A QUEEN UNCROWNED — OR — THE STORY IN THE LONE INN.

CHAPTER XV.

"When you leave Fontelle, you may take to fisticuffs as soon as you please; but you will be good enough, both of you, to restrain your natural inclinations in my presence. Once again—and for the last time, Jacquetta—do you mean to say that you do not know who your father is?"

"I do not. By Heaven and all its hosts, I swear it!" she passionately cried.

"Then, behold him here!" exclaimed Mr. De Vere, pointing to Captain Tempest, who arose to his feet, triumphant. "Oh, falsest of the false! that you whom I believed the soul of frankness and honor, could be guilty of such mean deception as this! And, to think that I should have been so poor a dupe, to be fooled by a smiling face and a smooth tongue! Oh! never till now did I realize how fair an outside falsehood hath!"

"There was a cry from all, and a unanimous rising to their feet. Jacquetta stood like one petrified—turned to stone. Mr. De Vere sternly waved them back, and went on: "Your very countenance convicts you; for you have your father's face! But, to think I should have ever cherished the spawn of such a viper! To think that you could have known this and acted a living lie all these years under my very eyes!—that you should have held secret meetings with this man, and given him money—my money—plundered from me, to pay him and this wretched old woman to keep your secret! Had you told me he was your father in time, I might even have overlooked the disgrace of having the child of such a wretch connected with my family; but, now I can never believe, or trust, or forgive you! The daughter of such a father—of such a mother, bearing my name! Oh! how indeed have I fallen, when I have lived to see such a day!"

He strode up and down the room, like one beside himself with grief and rage, and humiliation. Still she stood like one turned to stone—mute, voiceless motionless. She had a vague expectation of something terrible, but nothing like this. She passed her hand over her eyes, like one in a dream.

"Come, Jacquetta, have done with this," said Captain Nick, roughly. "We have had enough of this fooling. I'm your father, and that's the end of it. And, what's more, you know it."

Whether bobbed or long—here's a way to make your hair lie fashionably smooth

The newest bobs—whether shingled or straight-cut—lie smooth to the head. The smartest arrangements for long hair are almost severe in their plainness. Women are finding in Stacombs the thing to achieve these smart, new fashions in dressing their hair. Get a touch of this delicate cream applied on with the palms of the hands—and the most unruly hair will lie just as you want it—even immediately after a shampoo. You can get Stacombs at all drug and department stores in opaque jars or in tubes. Try it today!

better for it, since it is so deceitful! No, you shall not go yet. You have not heard all. Your sins have found you out."

"Go on! I am listening!" "Where is my son's child? Where is this child of yours whose existence you have concealed so long?"

"Mr. De Vere!" "Oh! start and look, and cold fresh lies! I know you of old, madam! Deny it, as you did your father! What an unnatural heart you must have, Jacquetta, to deny the existence of your own child, that I might leave all my wealth to you! Answer me; where is my son's child?"

"It is dead! It died the day of its birth!" "It is false!" said Grizzle, sternly. "It lives!"

"You hear that!" said Mr. De Vere, triumphantly. "Your very confederates have turned against you! Add no more falsehoods to the rest. My grandchild lives!"

Again the bewildered look came over her. "I am going crazy, I think! You told me she was dead," she said, turning to Grizzle.

"I never did. You paid me for taking care of it, and concealing its existence!"

Her eyes turned voluntarily upon Orrie. "You ought to know. Do not deceive me now, but tell me. Is he my father?"

"You know he is. What's the good of asking?" said Grizzle, in an impatient yet somewhat subdued tone; for there was that in the young girl's very calmness that awed her.

"Then it has come to this, at last! I knew this pleasant dream could not last forever."

"But, you thought to keep it off as long as possible," said Mr. De Vere sarcastically. "A few falsehoods, more or less, made little difference to you."

"God forgive you, Mr. De Vere! From you, at least, I have not deserved this."

"No—you have deserved much consideration, much kindness, from me! Oh, false heart! that I should ever have believed you true!"

"You think me then a liar and an impostor?"

Something in her tone moved him; and he looked in the little, sorrowful face and beseeching eyes, with their pitiful look, so very sad to see in eyes so proud as hers. But, the memory of all Grizzle had told him bearing so powerfully the impress of truth came back to him; and nerving himself with remembered wrongs, he savagely answered:

"I do!" Her clasped hands dropped. "Once more—God forgive you, Mr. De Vere!"

"Pray for yourself," he said, haughtily. "You need forgiveness as much as me."

"May I go?" she said, wearily dropping her head. "I am tired and sick! I never meant to wrong you; and, if you would only believe that, I could forget the rest."

"I do not believe it, Jacquetta! I can never believe you more. You have deceived me too long and too often for that."

She leaned heavily against a chair. "May I go? Will you not spare me? You are breaking my heart!"

"Let it break! You will be all the better for it."

ABLE TO DO HOUSEWORK NOW

Sick a Year. Got Great Benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bloomington, N.S.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains and backache, also for nervousness, sick headaches and sleeplessness. I was troubled in this way for over a year, and a friend told me about the Vegetable Compound and induced me to take it. I must say I have received great benefit from it and am able to do my housework now. I recommend the Vegetable Compound myself and am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonial. Mrs. WILLIAM MORSE, Bloomington, Annapolis County, Nova Scotia.

Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes."

This means that 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial.

Mrs. Morse is simply another case of a woman receiving "great benefit." Women suffering from the troubles so common to their sex should listen to what other women say who have experienced the same sufferings and found relief. Give this dependable medicine a chance—and at once. It is sold at all drug stores.

THE BOBBING FAD.

My niece's hair is bobbed; I view her with alarm; methinks she has been robbed of beauty and of charm. She had the finest hair, ere scissors made it drop! No damsel anywhere could boast a finer crop. It waved above her brow, it curled about her neck; I gazed upon her now, and she appears a wreck. But I'm a mossback wight, in love with ancient ways, and nothing seems just right that happens now-a-days. When I rebuke my niece for cutting off her hair, she answers, "Give me peace—they do it everywhere! At every modern scheme you mossbacks stand aghast; oh, would you have me seem a relic of the past? When other maidens bob, you'd have me wear it long, avoid the barber's job, and get myself in wrong. When other heads are short, you'd have my topknot great, you'd have me feel the scorn of people up to date." Defiantly she talks, defiantly she grins; she's glad she has no locks demanding bands and pins. She almost makes me feel that she's in earnest, too, rejoicing that the steel was sent her, tresses through. But sometimes when I pass her room I see her rise and face the looking glass with teardrops in her eyes. Oh, Celia, why those tears? And why that sigh dismayed? Are they because the shears have made your glory fade? You face me with a stare of righteous wrath and say, "I would not have the hair that I have thrown away!"

"So you can feel shame? you can feel remorse? you can feel humiliation?"

"I am not ashamed!" "I am sorry to hear it! But I forgot—those who stoop to deception, as you have done, seldom feel shame."

She raised her head and hands. "Oh, my God!" she said, as the words of the dying cardinal came to her mind, "if I had loved thee as I have loved this man, Thou wouldst not have cast me off thus!"

There was a pause, which no one seemed inclined to break. She arose to her feet at last.

"Is there anything more? What else have I done?"

"Ah! you are anxious to be gone; but I have not quite done with you yet. Why did you never tell me what sort of a mother you had?"

"I did not think it necessary. It could have done no good."

"Oh, so you do not deny that? Well I am glad you perceive the necessity of speaking the truth, at last! You did not think it necessary? No I dare say not! You took good care I should not know it!"

"Must I answer for my mother's sins?"

"Yes; the sins of the father shall be visited on the children, even to the third and fourth generations, saith the Lord."

"You can quote Scripture against me, too. Heaven and earth seems to have forsaken me alike! Ah, well! let it be! What else, Mr. De Vere?"

"The worst of all!" he said, in a low, passionate voice. "You have been unfaithful to your marriage vow!"

Her white face turned crimson, and she started like one who had received a spear thrust through the heart. Turning for the first time toward Disbrowe, she gave him a look he never forgot.

The Fire Bull

When the good people of St. Jean de Luz are feeling festive they bring out the fire bull (toro de fuego). It is a most impressive performance, unlike anything that I have ever seen anywhere else. For this strange Basque people that delights in games, dances, and pageants of every kind it appears to possess a particular appeal.

The Place Louis XIV. is the scene of this diversion. The quaint old square derives its name from the ancient mansion abutting on it where in 1660 the Grand Monarch resided when he came to St. Jean de Luz to meet his bride, the Infanta Maria Theresa of Spain. Three times a week, on band nights, the townsfolk gather in the square and, with snapping fingers and twinkling feet, dance the fandango beneath the plane trees to traditional Basque airs played with indelible vigour by the red-capped musicians. It is on band nights that the fire bull from time to time during the season makes its appearance. A rocket that rises screaming into the night from the adjacent bank of the Nivelle gives the first warning. A deep sigh of excitement rises from the crowd massed about the bandstand or gathered at the small tables on the terraces of the cafes. Two more maroons are fired, and then, suddenly, eerily, the lights of the square are extinguished, and it is as though an invisible hand had illuminated the stars. A profound silence falls.

A harsh spluttering, a loud report, rudely shatters the expectant hush. The crowd squeals with excitement as in a lurid trail of fire, a huge black object is seen tossing above the solid barrier of people that dams the approaches to the Place. It is the fire bull. Dimly seen in the half-light the throng, swaying hither and thither, rushes to greet it.

Spraying out on either side of its high curved back a broad jet of fiery rain that descends in a shower upon the spectators, the great bull seems to be careering along over the people's heads.

It is a fearsome-looking animal, nearly life-size, its curving white horns supporting a sort of tall white framework connected with a long fuse running from shoulder to tail. When the bull comes nearer one sees that it is merely a huge papier-mache frame-work carried on the shoulders of a running man, whose legs are visible beneath, and that the head, shoulders, and back are elaborately festooned with fireworks.

The fuse on the back contains what the firework shop calls "golden rain." For a good quarter of an hour, what time the bull careers madly in and out of the crowd, swerving to right and left, swinging abruptly about, rearing up, the cascade of fire never ceases to pour from its flanks, interrupted only for an instant at intervals by the explosion of a cracker amid showers of sparks.

In its darkened kiosk the band is playing an inspiring march and with its strains blend the excited cries of the multitude, men shouting and laughing, girls squealing and children screaming in sheer delight. There are hundreds of people on the square and as they fall back precipitately to leave a passage for the flaming bull the effect is as of a field of corn swaying to the wind at night. The Place is a heaving mass of black save where the toro de fuego cleaves a way, its fountain of orange light picking out the faces of the crowd.

The man beneath the bull is blinded by his burden, so at the head trots an attendant, clad from head to foot in white to make him distinguishable in the half-light, as a guide. When the golden shower has almost reached the horns the bull is directed to a high platform on the far side of the square, where the Nivelle glitters beneath the stars.

The bull is hoisted on to this sort of altar, a black, smooth, squat silhouette against its spot of flame. Even as the golden rain ceases the horns burst into fire. Catherine wheels revolve, Roman candles go soaring into the night, bursting with a faint pop amid a cascade of coloured lights, squibs flare and explode with a joyous bang—in short, a miniature firework display begins which terminates by a whirling disc of fire spinning upwards, upwards, to burst high above the Place in a shower of glory. Then the lights go up, the bull—a very commonplace sort of property bull when viewed under the lamp—disappears into the crowd, and we all go home.

This diversion sounds, as it looks, exceedingly dangerous. As a matter of fact it is quite innocuous, for, by some secret of pyrotechnics, the golden rain does not burn even if it falls on the face or hands, and one can confront it with impunity.

Sewing on a Button

A good way to sew on a button so that it has the right amount of space between it and the garment is to place a large pin across the top and sew over this. When the button is fastened securely the pin can be removed, and the button pulled up the slack cotton. More cotton should then be twisted round the threads under the button to make a little "stalk" on which it will stand.

Deserted Twins Search for Mother

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y.—Twenty-eight years after they were deserted, two sisters—twins—have started a search here for their mother. The two women themselves learned they were sisters less than two years ago, when one of the sisters was told of her adoption by her foster mother. This was on the eve of her marriage, and the foster mother felt that she should not keep secret any longer the fact that the bride was not her own daughter.

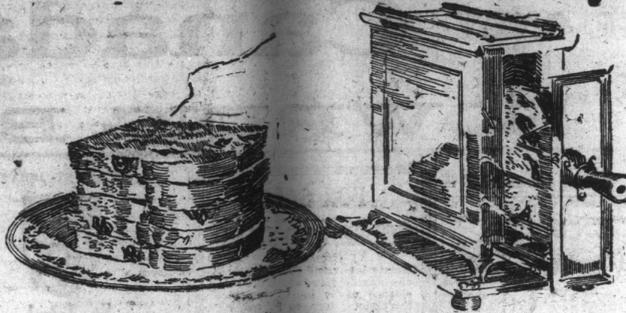

After the two sisters found each other, they decided to make an attempt to find their mother to share with them their prosperity, as they married well-to-do men. The twins were mere babies when they were deserted on a farm near here. Later they were adopted by different families.

Advertisements have been inserted in the newspapers in the search for their mother.

OUT OF ALL PROPORTION.

Speed costs. In boats, in autos, in horses and in people.

We were looking at some second hand boats the other day. One exceedingly nice looking little "craft" was priced at $500.

Near it was another boat not quite so nice looking so far as paint and general finish, no better as to line, and quite a little smaller.

"How much do they want for that one?" I asked hopefully, mentally setting the figure at about $300, since the other was $500.

"Eight hundred," said the agent who was selling them. "But why on earth?" "I beg your pardon?"

Those Dumb Women Folks. The agent didn't wait for me to finish. He was plainly used to women folks and their dumbness in the matter of boats.

"Because it's not a ten-horse-power engine," he explained, "it can make 15 miles an hour and that other boat can't make more than ten. If that boat had as powerful an engine in it it would bring $1200."

"Think of it, $700 for five miles an hour. It seemed incredible to me until I consulted a specialist in boats and he assured me that there was nothing extraordinary in the figure."

"But the engine isn't even twice as powerful," I objected, "and it costs more than twice as much."

"Surely," he said, and proceeded to jot down some difficult-looking figures from which I finally culled the information that if one represents the amount of power it takes to drive a boat ten miles an hour, four will represent approximately the amount of power to drive her 15 miles an hour. There is four times as much power to drive her half as fast again.

Most assuredly, speed costs. "And the same thing," he added, "is true of automobile engines, though the variation in power will be somewhat different."

When it comes to flesh and blood of course it is impossible to get it down in exact figures as to how much power is taken to drive the human engine a little faster than ordinary; but the expert on boat engines, who is also by way of being somewhat of an expert on human engines, assures me that there is no doubt that when we speed up the human machine we use up energy out of all proportion to the speed obtained.

An Expensive Run. If you run to the station in three minutes instead of walking it in six you use up much more than twice the energy.

If you rush all day long trying to catch up with that hour that you somehow lost in the morning, you use up a great deal of more energy than if you did the same amount of work at your ordinary rate of speed.

Speed costs. We pay in money when we buy it in boats or in automobiles or breed it in horseflesh. We pay often in dangerously depleted energy when we constantly take it out of our own hides.

Just Folks.

THE HOUSE MADE UGLY.

"I want a home of loveliness," he told the architect. "I want the finest building which your workmen can erect. Let every window seem to smile to greet the morning sun. And let there be no jarring note when once your work is done."

The house was built. No cost was spared. No jarring note was there; that which the eye finds beautiful was smiling everywhere. And then the decorators came, and once again the man said: "Furnish now this house for me as richly as you can."

They tapestried his stately walls; They stretched upon the floor Such rugs as Kings of Persia knew. They searched the country o'er For treasures rare with which to grace each room, and when 'twas done

If every home held loveliness that structure was the one. And yet when he came home at night he sneered at her who smiled. He had an ugly temper and spoke harshly to his child; And none beneath that roof was glad where happiness should be. For 'tis the spirit makes the home and not the things you see.

TOOTON'S, The "Kodak" Store

St. George's Welcomes

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR

Just as the anchor of H.M.S. Victoria touched the water, Colonel Cart, Magistrate of the town and Chairman of the Reception Committee, accompanied by the Secretary, proceeded on board to welcome the Governor and to lay before him the next day's programme. That night the town was brilliantly illuminated; fires blazed on Cathedral Hill, and on the hills by Seal Rocks; every window of every house was ablaze. St. George's with this aureole of light about her brows, looked gloriously beautiful, through the dusk, tranquility of the Autumn night. At ten next morning, Rev. M. O'Reilly, Rector of the Cathedral, representing his Lordship Bishop Renouf, who was absent, called on board to pay his respects.

The Gubernatorial party landed at the public wharf at half past eleven, and were there met by Col. Cart, members of the Committee, the clergy of St. George's and Sandy Point, and representative citizens. They proceeded beneath arches of flags to the court house, which was suitably decorated. Immediately the National Anthem was enthusiastically sung, and was followed by the Ode to Newfoundland. The people's address was presented by A. J. O'Reilly, Secretary of the Reception Committee.

A bouquet of Sweet Peas was presented to Lady Allardyce on landing by Miss Marjorie Carter, and another from the girls of St. George's at the Court House by Miss Annie O'Reilly.

THE ADDRESS.

To Sir W. L. Allardyce, K.C.M.G., Governor of Newfoundland.

Your Excellency.—We welcome you cordially to St. George's. We are glad to have you with us, to express to you our appreciation of your interest in all things that pertain to the advancement, the prosperity, the future well-being of our own beloved land. That you should come to us from the Old Land and understand immediately our passionate, our almost jealous love for our dear Terra Nova, has turned all our hearts toward you, recognizing your sympathy, your ardent initiative, your powerful encouragement along the paths of higher progress of the Twentieth Century—ideal traits of the ideal Governor. Your work as Patron of the Great War Veterans' Association, your interest in it, your encouragement of it, your gulfing advice and powerful influence have wonderfully aided that Association in its endeavor to preserve for posterity the revered names, the sacred graves, the glorious deeds, of that awful time of world conflict—in its admirable work of healing the wounds left by the War—comforting the bereaved, succoring those who have lost their bread-winners, securing pensions for the maimed and making cheerful and comfortable the homes of those incurable awaiting the last roll call.

To your wife, Lady Allardyce, your aid in all good works, we extend our hearty and whole-souled welcome. Never was Consort of a Governor more well beloved, more indefatigable in doing good. Newfoundland will have lasting monuments to her memory, in the Child Welfare campaign, and in the inauguration of Community Nursing, movements which are at present conducive of great good and alleviate of much suffering, but which, in the future, may grow to such vast benefit for Newfoundland, as only God, in His infinite wisdom, can foresee. Her interest in handicrafts—in industries of the hearth side appeals to us all and opens our hearts to her as perhaps nothing else could have done. To her then we say: "Welcome, Dear Lady." May God bless your kindness of heart and prosper your work in Newfoundland a thousandfold.

Excellency.—We will not say anything of ourselves beyond our desire to make you and Lady Allardyce heartily welcome. You will observe here in the west an absence of rugged coast line, a loss of the savage grandeur of mountains—although we possess the highest—wider expanse of forested plain, river bottoms more fertile than the Manitobian prairies, and a people more nearly resembling in originality and freedom, from cramping conventions the sons of Western Canada, than the more conservative Newfoundlanders of our Eastern seaboard. But you will realize that though our love of Newfoundland is passionate, our love of Empire is vigorous. We did our full part in the Great War. It was a little village in Bay St. George which sent more men to the front, according to population, than any other in Newfoundland, or as we believe, than any other in British America. We trust that you and your lady will be tempted by our glorious weather to come again, and we assure you that mingled with the respect we show to you as our Governor, representative of our King, and to Lady Allardyce, your assistant and compeer in all good works, will go also, that simple, genuine, and heartfelt greeting which to be fully expressed must be called "a true Newfoundland welcome."

To the Address, his Excellency replied in a most eloquent speech which it really would be unfair to spell by an inadequate mention, but which, I am sure, some of your clever correspondents here will later report fully to the Telegram. Lady Allardyce followed in an able and practical address, every word of which was listened to with rapt attention.

His Excellency and party then visited St. Michael's Convent, and were shown through the building by the Mother Superior. From thence they went to the home of Col. Cart, where they were hospitably entertained by his sister, Miss Cart. In the afternoon a luncheon tendered by some gentlemen of the town was served at the White House Hotel. After luncheon the Gubernatorial party, at the invitation of Rev. Mr. Butler, visited Sandy Point. On Thursday morning, his Excellency and suite returned by special train to Curling.

The address presented to the Governor at St. George's is a beautiful example of the artist's skill. The work was done by Sister Mary Gerard of the Mercy Convent, St. George's. The exquisite taste and beauty of this piece of work can be fully appreciated only by one whose eye has been trained and whose taste has been elevated by a study of the ancient masters. In grace of line, perfection of letter and harmony of coloring it vies in loquacity with the masterpieces of the race from which the artist sprang. It will be treasured by the recipient as a work of art deserves.

some thirty years ago. Many matters of importance to the Church of England in Canada coming before the delegates for consideration which was given with the one thought in mind—the furtherance of Christianity in Canada and the outlying sections of the world which come under the spiritual teachings of the church in Canada.

In the last moments of the session the Synod took an important step in connection with its relation to the Church in China, the "Chung Hwa

This step was taken in the form of a message from the Upper House, which to the end of recognizing the Church in China to be a duly organized Church in communion with the House, and made official action by the Church of England and in Canada. the Synod.

A New Coal Mine Found

"After operations reaching back to 1909, the Burnley seam of coal has been reached at the colliery which has been sunk by Messrs. Pease and Partners at Thorne Moor End, near Doncaster," says the Yorkshire Post.

"The rejoicings which stirred the Doncaster district at the success of the enterprise will be easily understandable, but the occasion is one for more than local jubilation. Here is a lesson in determination and perseverance which a commercial nation may well note with some pride. The earth does not always give its treasures lightly, they have to be won, and hard won. The many discouragements which have beset the enterprise since its inception must repeatedly have tried the patience and shaken the certainty of those concerned."

In Newfoundland because, when we have barely scratched the surface, we are not rewarded by an inexhaustible supply of mineral in open view, we are disappointed, depressed, and easily persuaded that our coal or other mineral wealth is a myth. This lesson in perseverance and determination and, it might be added, faith, are most applicable in our own case.

Our wealth in the past has been so easily obtained, that we are loath to undertake operations that necessitate long and exhausting operations before they bear fruit. We hesitate to invest money in anything which does not promise immediate results, and what is infinitely worse, we allow individuals to hold on to claims which they are utterly incapable of developing now or in the future, and thus prevent others with more enterprise and means to investigate and work them.

One Minister of Agriculture after another has declared that our mining laws are only a farce, and that they enable speculators to put a damper on all legitimate effort, but who is the David who will tackle the problem and free the land from the rapacity of those who are thus retarding development?

Capt. R. E. Gosse Expresses Appreciation

The following message was received this morning from Capt. R. E. Gosse, who is leaving for his home in Vancouver to-day:—

POCH UNVEILS MEMORIAL AT BEAUMONT HAMEL.

Through the courtesy of Mr. R. H. Cochius, the Telegram has received a copy of the "Gazette de Perone," dated Sept. 21st, 1924, which contains an announcement concerning the unveiling ceremony by Marshal Poch of the Memorial at Beaumont Hamel to the 51st Division. The ceremony took place on Sept. 23rd.

The French paper states that the site selected for the erection of the memorial was the centre of the bitterest struggle in the early years of the war. The Germans had transformed Beaumont Hamel into a veritable fortress, and thousands of Scotsmen, Canadians and Newfoundlanders met their death there. But, says the French paper, what was a scene of the most terrible desolation at the time, the site is now being turned into a glorious park and an ever green memorial through the splendid efforts of Newfoundland, "that little fishing people."

Nascopie Arrives From Far North

S. S. Nascopie, Capt. Smellie, two days from Cartwright, arrived in port this morning and hauled to the Furness Wharf pier where part of her cargo of fishery produce is being discharged. The Nascopie left Montreal in July for the Far North, and has been ever since visiting the different Hudson Bay posts in Labrador and Baffin's Land. The ship brought up a live polar bear. The animal is housed on deck in a crate made of spruce pickets covered with wire netting. Major Boyworth of the Canadian Geological Survey and District Manager Parsons are amongst the passengers. The others are: Ralph Parsons, Bay Roberts; Wm. M. Ritchie, Aberdeen; Dr. Stewart, Edmonton; Dr. Douglas, Edmonton; Rev. B. and Mrs. Atkinson, Cork; A. Myles, St. John's; L. T. Boyworth, Toronto; F. Melron, Grimby; L. Livingstone, Aberdeen; H. Leormouth, Aberdeen; Rev. S. M. Stewart, J. Mercer, Bay Roberts; W. Smith, Bay Roberts; S. Bradbury, Bay Roberts; J. Kelly, Bay Roberts; J. Voisey, Hopedale; W. Parsons, Bay Roberts.

Adequate Culverts Needed

Considerable improvement is noticeable of late in the methods adopted in repairing the roads in the environs of the city, yet there remains room for further improvement, particularly in relation to drains. As an instance the Torbay Road may be cited. Whilst the road bed has been put in first-class condition, the drains have not been given the necessary attention. In many places on this fine stretch of road the old wooden or stone culverts have been allowed to remain choked, and the consequence is that when rain comes the drains overflow and extensive damage to the roadbed results. The cheap but efficient galvanized culverts which were adopted by the Board of Works Department some time ago should be used more extensively.

A Bereavement

Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Vincombe will have the sympathy of the community on the death of their darling child, Nicholas Joseph, which occurred yesterday at noon. ADDRESSES ROTARY CLUB.—At the Rotary Club luncheon held at the Sterling Restaurant at 115 to-day, Mr. Joseph Cocker addressed the Association on "Fire prevention in connection with automobiles and gasoline."

Auxiliary Power Supply for City

It was noted previously electric power was received in the city from the United Towns Electric Company's plant for the first time yesterday morning. The power supply was sufficient to keep all the city factories going. Present at the first turning on of the power were Mr. Gosse of Milwaukee, representing Allis Chalmers Mfg. Co. Ltd., from whom the U. T. Company purchased the generator and turbine Mr. R. J. Murphy, Managing Director; Hector Ross, representing Westinghouse Electric; Thos. Armstrong, foreman in charge of installation, and Eben Hutchings, who is electrician in charge of the power house. The opening of the new service was unofficial owing to the recent death of Dr. John Murphy, whose father is the President of the Company. The Newfoundland Light and Power Company has done well to secure this auxiliary power which will prevent a repetition of the occurrence of 1920 when the city was without light or power for nearly two weeks. The United Towns Electric Co. have done equally well in securing a profitable market for the power generated at Seal Cove. With the new improvements at Petty Harbour and the auxiliary power from Seal Cove the city is now in a splendid position regarding power for its industries. Interesting as this progress is the average householder is probably more concerned in the cost of his light. We understand that in the very near future the Newfoundland Light & Power Co. will concede something in this direction. The United Towns Electric Co. have nearly completed their transmission line to Placentia, Argentia and Silver Cliff. The line is run by way of New Harbor and Dildo in order to take in a number of settlements at Trinity Bay. The circuit from Seal Cove to Placentia is over 90 miles long, and all the work of erection has been completed as far as Placentia Junction. It is hoped to have the current turned on at Silver Cliff Mines early in November. The Company is also extending its system to Torbay and adjacent settlements and quite a number of poles to carry the transmission lines have already been erected.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

Oct. 6th.—Up very betimes, the weather still fine, and to take a walk before my breakfast which is a thing I have not done this long time, but do now, since with the passing of the Summer Time, it is now warmer in the early morning. Many distressing reports of the election in Bonavista and is generally believed that Sir W. Coker will not himself contest the district, albeit others named as likely to oppose the Ministers. To the Board of Trade, where Capt. Kean shows me the leading article in this morning's news sheet which shows how the revenue is greater this past month than in the same month for many previous years. But at hinging to note is that the editor points out how the revenue is increasing albeit taxation is less on many articles of the commonest use. My wife this day begs a new evening dress from me which I will not give her. But Lord, how cute is the wretch, for she do already have one in the house and tells me that she has bought it from a girl that will not take it back, and I am therefore compelled to let her have it.

STUDEBAKER CORPORATION.

Probably Will Have no Bank Loans by End of Year, Says Pres. Erskine and be in Good Cash Position—Capacity Operations Until Christmas.

N.Y.—From present indications Studebaker will probably run at capacity until Christmas or possibly longer, said President Erskine of the company on the eve of his departure for Europe. "Probabilities are, Studebaker will have no bank loans by the end of the year and will be in good cash position. "Studebaker foreign business is very good," continued Mr. Erskine. "New Studebaker models will be on display at both the London and Paris shows. I am going over to look over these shows, and also to inspect our agencies abroad."

"Balloon tires made by Firestone and Miller are part of our standard equipment for both foreign and domestic models. On a test these run about 20,000 miles. Four-wheel brakes are optional, and there is almost a negligible demand for four-wheel brakes in the new models. "Both the motor and the business outlook are very good. Business is anticipated Coolidge's election, which seems a certainty."

AMERICAN WOOLEN.

Big Women's Wear and Successful Woolens Suggests Goods Markets Looking Much Better.

Boston.—In the past four or five days the tide has turned definitely and abruptly for American Woolen. The optimistic success of the women's wear openings, represented by Department 4, has put an entirely different aspect upon the entire goods market.

All women's wear woolen lines have been withdrawn from the market and only a question of a few days when the worsted lines will be withdrawn as well. In addition men's wear woolens have been increased in price to 22 cents a yard, the average running about 20 cents, in percentage amounting generally from 3% to 12%.

No come advances of about the same scope for cloths combining woolen and worsted at the opening of the week. The action dependent upon the production of ten different mills. All of these developments indicate a big woolen year for the company and assure capacity operations for the woolen units, including the big Asabet mill at Maynard, for the balance of the year.

Furthermore, they indicate that buyers are at last awake to the significance of steadily rising wool markets and to the abnormal cheapness of goods prices today based on replacement costs. In the natural course of events this confidence should spread to the much more important worsted in time to guarantee big and healthy winterweight openings in January.

Notwithstanding this extremely promising trend in selling markets it is easy to exaggerate the importance of the news so far as it affects this year's results, for American Woolen named very close prices all around and is always dependent upon worsteds for its chief profit. But the past few days' new does forecast in all likelihood a very prosperous half-year beginning with January.

Accused Minister Was Poison Buyer

ADMITS SEVERAL PURCHASES BEFORE WIFE'S DEATH TO KILL "PARSONAGE RATS."

Mount Vernon, Ill., Sept. 28.—Important additional information had come to light within the last few hours in the case of the Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, the Ina clergyman, in jail here charged with the murder by poison of his wife, F. G. Thompson, States Attorney announced today.

We have the evidence now to go to trial on a murder charge, the Prosecutor said. I do not care at this time to disclose its nature, but at the proper time we will be able to show that the Ina minister was in the market for poison on a rather extensive scale this summer.

The States Attorney said he received a letter from John Webster, a Benton druggist, stating his records showed the pastor had purchased poison there July 22.

Admission that he had purchased poison three times that he "could remember" in Mount Vernon and Benton drug stores in recent months was obtained from the minister at the country jail to-day, officers said.

The rats were awful about the parsonage, he was said to have explained. They carried off the young chickens right before our eyes.

Commenting on this explanation, the States Attorney said:

The rats in the parsonage must have been very bad, judging from the amount of poison the preacher was buying at drug stores in Mount Vernon and elsewhere.

Two photographs found in the home of the prisoner were considered by the authorities to be important evidence.

Photographs of the Rev. Mr. Hight and Mrs. Sweetin, whose husband's death under circumstances similar to those attending the demise of Mrs. Hight is now also ascribed to poison, parted together were found, according to Sheriff Holcomb, in the clergyman's home, while officers were searching for further evidence to prove that the death of Mrs. Hight was caused by poison. The minister denied all knowledge of the picture and said, if it was found in the parsonage, some one other than himself had placed it there.

I want an early trial, said the clergyman after the preliminary hearing, in order to clear my name as soon as possible.

He insisted he was not guilty of the charge brought against him, and attributed his plight to a plot of bootleggers whom he had fought in the pulpit.

Aside from the formal investigation by the prosecuting authorities, another is being conducted by the Rev. C. E. Hall, District Superintendent, who will place the matter before the meeting of the Southern Illinois Methodist Conference next week. Members of the minister's congregation have reassured their faith in his innocence, have assured him of their moral support and have promised assistance during his trial.

Young-Adams Co. will Play "Veiled Woman"

BIG MYSTERY PLAY INITIAL OFFERING IN ST. JOHN'S.

A new play by Wm. Devereaux founded on the Elton Case one of New York's biggest mysteries will be the offering for the opening nights of the Young-Adams Company at the Casino Theatre. Miss Adams and Mr. Young both have excellent parts in this play and it affords the entire company ample opportunity. To tell you too much here would but spoil the performance, let it suffice that the company is all new from the last visit and as Mr. Young personally advises the best ever all real people who are looking forward to their visit to St. John's are anxiously awaiting the opening late. The Theatre goes at St. John's will welcome Mr. Young, Miss Adams and their associates on Monday Oct. 20th, let us hope that play and players will meet with the approval of all. Mr. Young promises a good show and we have reason to believe him. Mr. E. H. Barnstead, Advance Agent of The Young-Adams Co., will reach St. John's Oct. 13th to arrange for the appearance of the troupe.

British Dyestuffs Industry

The British Dyestuffs Corporation has just issued a pamphlet for the benefit of visitors to the British Empire Exhibition which gives a survey of the whole dyestuffs industry in Great Britain from the time of Perkin's discovery of the first artificial dye in 1856 down to the present day. It is pointed out in this pamphlet, according to advices received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service, that whereas in 1892 only 21 per cent. of the chemists in the British Chemical industry held high University degrees, as against 69 per cent. in the German industry, to-day the British Dyestuffs Corporation alone employs 125 chemists, of whom 83 per cent. hold degrees.

"It is freely admitted by those competent to judge," the writer of the English pamphlet concludes, "that 80 per cent. of the dyes used in the country are now British-made, which is an entire reversal of the position from 1855 onwards. The British dyestuffs industry can therefore claim, with all modesty, that it has made good. This is not to say it has reached its ultimate goal. Such criticism as now exists is mainly directed towards price questions, but the trend of the general average of prices has consistently been downwards."

Agricultural Enterprise
THRIVING FARM ON EXPLOITS RIVER.

Energy and enterprise is exemplified in Mr. John V. Bethune, who has recently brought under cultivation some 20 acres of the wilderness on the banks of the Exploits River. Mr. Bethune has about 150 acres of land in this section and is applying scientific methods of farming. He employs five men and has raised this season 100 tons of cabbage, 200 barrels of potatoes and 300 barrels of turnips on his clearing. He is a great believer in lime as a soil improver and so far has applied about 10 tons of the mineral (crushed lime stone) to his land. In his nursery may be seen a thriving stand of North Carolina poplars, Norwegian pines and spruces. In this and other directions he is demonstrating the capabilities of the soil under expert management, and his example should be an impetus to others to settle in this fertile region. The land in the valley of the Exploits is generally level or gently undulating and it is stated that at least 200 square miles of the country is reclaimable. Mr. Bethune's farm is situated about three quarters of a mile from Rattling Brook. He has a market for his produce at Grand Falls, Millertown and Botwood.

Our Montreal Letter

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
THE WORK BEING DONE FOR THE UNDERPRIVILEGED BOY.

The problem of "How to Deal with the Underprivileged Boy" seems to be looming high these days. Each year the number of delinquents seems to grow in very large proportions. A month of the Scholastic year has not been finished, and the Juvenile Court has been crowded with cases of youths starting on "The Downward Grade." The Boys' Home on Mountain Street and the Boys' Farm at Shawbridge, are doing excellent work for English-speaking Protestant children, backed up by generous-hearted citizens, but especially by the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs, whose interest in the great and necessary work, never grows dimmer. Their work is not confined to making generous gifts to the institutions, but both Clubs pay annual visits and hold special festivities, with greatly added, not only to the happiness of the boys, but to their welfare and progress as well. It would be well indeed, if we had a few more self-sacrificing, zealous and charitable clubs composed of such men as make up the Rotarians and the Kiwanis. The work of these clubs means a lot to the underprivileged boys. It means a very bright light to them in the darkness of a career, which has been brought on them, almost too often, by careless, drunken and good-for-nothing parents. The French Catholic and the English-speaking Protestant boys are provided with institutions, and now, the English-speaking Catholic boys are to be provided for by having a Home similar to those of other denominations. May success follow the movement.

WORKMEN ARE TOO CARELESS WORKING IN DANGER.

A young man named Asselin was electrocuted while engaged in trimming trees for the City Corporation when he touched a live wire near both Boulevard Bordet and the intersection of the latter with the latter street. He died at once, and a few seconds afterwards tumbled from the tree to the ground, thirty-five feet below. Calix Beaudouin, a fellow workman, who remained below while Asselin climbed the tree, stated that the victim was sitting on a branch three or four feet below the wire. Suddenly witnesses heard a cry, and a few moments later the man crashed to the ground. An ambulance was summoned from the Montreal General Hospital, and on arrival a doctor pronounced the victim dead.

Deputy Coroner Prince stated that the employees of all industrial organizations who are likely to come into contact with electrical apparatus are provided with gloves, and forced to wear them. The city, he said, must do the same. It is no use giving workmen gloves, if they are not compelled to make use of them. Glendon Blissett, foreman under whom the dead man had worked, testified that the civic employees were provided with gloves but very often left them off.

YOUTHS SHOULD TAKE WARNING

Under the heading of "Youth and Crime," the Kingston Standard says: It will be just as well for the 18 and 19 years old youths of Canada to be reminded that the law of this country is not as considerate of murderers, no matter what their age, as is the law of the United States as interpreted and laid down by Justice Caverly of Chicago in the Leopold-Loeb case. What determines the punishment in this country is the crime and not the age, the wealth or the social position of the criminals.

WHAT CROSS ON MOUNT ROYAL

Visitors to the city are very much impressed with the cross that stands towering high on the eastern ridge of Mount Royal and erected by the St. Jean Baptiste Society. The lighting of the cross will not take place for some time. Electricians, however, are now at work on the wiring, and the plans for illumination will adjust themselves as the cross nears completion.

The edifice is to commemorate the first recorded visit to the mountain top of Jacques Cartier, the celebrated French explorer and discoverer, which took place during one of his visits here during the sixteenth century when he erected a wooden cross on the approximate site of the present structure. Cartier at that time took possession of the mountain top France, naming it Mount Royal. The site of the new cross was solemnly blessed on St. Jean Baptiste Day, June 24 last, by Mr. Deschamps, at an impressive ceremony on the mountain top.

MONEY IS NECESSARY FOR RUNNING A NEWSPAPER.

The "Canadian Freeman," of Kingston, Ont., under the heading of "We need them," says editorially:— A Catholic editor may please some of his readers all the time, says the Baltimore Catholic Review, and all of his readers some of the time, but he cannot please all of his readers all the time.

The Rev. Father A. Gillis, S.J., editor of the Catholic Herald of India, realises the fact only too well. Accordingly he has framed a petition to St. Francis de Sales, who was appointed by Pope Pius XI. the patron of newspaper men. St. Francis de Sales was noted for his meekness and patience, two virtues that must prove helpful to all editors, who are forever being kicked about by outraged readers who are dissatisfied with the editor's way of running his paper.

We quote Father Gillis's prayer in the fervent wish that some of our readers will take it upon their desks and read it whenever the impulse seizes them to write to the editor and tell him what they think of him. The prayer follows:—

"Dear patron of a harassed tribe, grant us thy protection; bestow on us thy assistance; a little more of thy critical spirit, and a little less in our readers; confer on our subscribers the grace of consideration in overlooking our faults; the grace of light in acknowledging our merits; the grace of promptitude in meeting our bills; make them less critical of misprints; induce our many readers, both spiritual and temporal, to sweeten their reproaches and never to press their point; then shall we thy faithful servants, resting on thy protection, fight thy battles with joyful hearts; drive the wolf of the door, the devil of the fold and meet in everlasting peace. Amen."

The Freeman especially recommends the devout recitation of the petition for "the grace of promptitude in meeting our bills." We don't worry very much about criticism since we are not infallible, we cannot be right always; since our critics are also fallible, the chances are they are wrong as often as we are.

But we would like a few greenbacks. Every member of the Freeman is as this as a rail, being forced by delinquent subscribers to exist on bread and water. And we have to walk to the office because we can't afford car fare. May the good St. Francis soften the hard hearts of the readers who are so deaf to our appeals to loosen up.

In the Central

District Court

Michael O'Reilly Plaintiff and Edward Boone, Trading under the name of The Red Taxi Co. Defendant.
The statement of claim sets forth that the Plaintiff suffered damages by the killing of his horse by the motor car of the Defendant, negligently driven by Robert Sellars, a servant of the Defendant, on Cornwall Avenue in the suburbs of St. John's. The Plaintiff claims $200 damages.

The Defendant denies the alleged negligence on the part of the Defendant and pleads inevitable accident by the Plaintiff's horse running across the road from the ditch, where it had been grazing at the moment the Defendant's motor car was about to pass, and further there was contributory negligence on the part of the Plaintiff in permitting the horse to roam around the highway and not under the control of the Plaintiff or his servant.

The evidence of Robert Sellars, driver of the car, shows he was driving along Cornwall Avenue and when about fifty or sixty yards away he observed a horse grazing in the ditch and he was grazing away from the car. The Plaintiff went along and had nearly approached the horse when he pulled across to the left hand side of the road to avoid the horse in case it would jump and he slowed his car to what he thought was a reasonable rate, about fifteen miles an hour. When he was between eight and ten yards from the horse it jumped out in front of the car and he immediately applied both brakes which were in perfect order. By that time he had hit the horse and knocked him down but no part of the car went over any part of the horse. After knocking down the horse the car had moved ahead a short distance, hardly noticeable. The stretch of the road where the accident happened was fairly straight and the road is about thirty feet wide.

An eye witness of the occurrence, who was unable to attend at the trial but who has since been called by the Plaintiff, testified that she witnessed the accident having seen it from the window of her house which is situated on the north side of Cornwall Avenue, opposite the scene of the accident. She says the horse was on the right hand side of the road with its head over the fence. The horse went west of the gateway and west of the pole also. The horse backed out and turned ed around and crossed the road but it did not get right across. It did not jump across or go in a hurry it just walked across leisurely. The car then hit the horse somewhere behind and the horse fell and rolled over and then scrambled up and jumped high in the air and limped over to 18th Street. The car just went apast and stopped at Kelly's gate. It did not bring up when it struck the horse.

Since the hearing of the case I visited the locus in quo in company with Mr. Silverlock, an expert motorist, who drove his car from the point indicated by the defendant where he had first seen the horse, at a speed of fifteen miles an hour, applying the brakes at the spot indicated by the Defendant where he had applied his brakes. Mr. Silverlock brought his car to a standstill within fifteen feet and some few feet from the spot indicated by the Defendant where the horse was supposed to have been struck. At the speed of ten miles an hour over the same distance and applying the brakes at the spot indicated by the Defendant, Mr. Silverlock stopped his car within seven feet, which would be about ten feet away from where the horse was said to have been knocked down.

As to the allegations made by the Plaintiff that the Defendant's car was negligently driven at the time it struck the horse, the driver, Robert Sellars, admits the car was going about fifteen miles an hour. This rate of speed was in violation of Section 10 of the Motor Act which says "within one mile of any town or settlement the speed shall not exceed ten miles per hour." Had the car been driven in compliance with the Law the horse would not have been struck, as the car could have been stopped within seven feet of the horse after the application of the brakes. As to the Defendant's plea of contributory negligence because of the fact that the Plaintiff's horse was at large on the highway the Law is well defined on that point. The Plaintiff may have been guilty of negligence by leaving his horse on the highway and that negligence, in fact, contributed to the accident, yet if the Defendant could, by the exercise of ordinary care and diligence, have avoided hitting the horse the Plaintiff's negligence will not excuse him.

In the case of Davies vs. Mahon, reported in Vol. 10, Messen & Welsh's Reports, the following dictum is laid down:

"The declaration stated, that the Plaintiff theretofore and at the time of committing the grievance thereinafter mentioned, to wit, was lawfully possessed of a certain donkey, which said donkey of the Plaintiff was then lawfully in a certain highway, and the defendant was then possessed of a certain wagon and certain horses drawing the same which said wagon and horses of the Defendant were then under the care, government and direction of a certain man servant of the Defendant, in and along the said highway, notwithstanding the Defendant, by his servant, so carelessly, negligently, unskillfully, and improper conduct of the Defendant, by his said servant, the said wagon and horses of the Defendant then ran and struck with great violence against the said donkey of the Plaintiff, and thereby they wounded, crushed and killed the same and etc.

The Defendant pleaded not guilty. At the trial before Erskine, J., at the last Summer Assizes for the county of Worcester, it appeared that the Plaintiff, having letted the fore feet of an ass belonging to him, turned it into a public highway, and at that time in question the ass was grazing on the off side of a road about eight yards wide, when the Defendant's wagon, with a team of three horses, coming down a slight descent, at what the witness termed a smartist pace, ran against the ass, knocked it down, and the wheels passing over it, it died soon after. The ass was fettered at the time, and it was proved that the driver of the wagon was some little distance behind the horse. The learned Judge told the jury that though the act of the Plaintiff in leaving the donkey on the highway so fettered as to prevent his getting out of the way of carriages travelling over it, might be illegal, still, if the proximate cause of the injury was attributable to the want of proper conduct on the part of the driver of the wagon, the action was maintainable against the Defendant, and his Lordship directed them, if they thought that the accident might have been avoided by the exercise of ordinary care on the part of the driver, to find for the Plaintiff. The jury found their verdict for the Plaintiff, damages 40s."

Under the facts as given in evidence, and the Law as quoted I give judgment for the Plaintiff in the sum of $200 and costs.

Dated at St. John's this 7th day of October A.D., 1924.

F. J. MORRIS,
Judge.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

LABOR PARTY'S DEFEAT EXPECTED ON WEDNESDAY.

LONDON, Oct. 7.
Events seem to be moving with ever increasing momentum toward a general election which all party leaders do not tire in progressing. It looked to-night as though the crisis might mature as early as Wednesday of the present week. Every political speech delivered now adays is an election manifesto, and Premier MacDonald himself, contrary to custom, is giving to the press interviews in which he accuses the Liberal leaders of forcing an election on the country on unjustifiable grounds. Apparently convinced that the Liberals are determined to force the situation, Ministers are disposed to meet the challenge immediately without awaiting defeat on the Russian treaty at the end of the month. A Cabinet Council discussed the situation to-day and, according to the chief Labor whip, Ben Spoor, the Ministers have decided to offer the strongest resistance, both to the Conservative motion for a vote of censure and an amendment to the motion to be moved by Sir John Simon, Liberal, viz: that instead of establishing the Government a Select Committee shall be appointed to investigate the circumstances leading to the withdrawal of the prosecution of the editor of the Workers' Weekly on a charge of sedition. Premier MacDonald will deliver a lengthy speech at the Labor Party Congress to-morrow, and should he confirm his decision, it can hardly mean more than a defeat of the Government next Wednesday, with the consequent dissolution of Parliament and elections during the second week of November.

MONTREAL, Oct. 7.
Charged with piracy, Captain Samuel Ford, a New England shipmaster appeared before the court of the King's Bench this afternoon, Mr. Justice Dimsie presiding. The evidence submitted was a repetition of the testimony given last July on board the

This incident took place according to the testimony a year ago, when the Lutzen was within two days of St. John, N.B.

OLYMPIC HEROES PLAN TO RETIRE FROM ATHLETICS.

Almost a score of America's star track and field athletes wore the United States shields in Olympic competition for the last time at Paris. Within a few months fully one-half of those athletes will have retired from the scenes they have dominated so long by virtue of a fine co-ordination of brawn and brains.

Of the sprinters, Charlie Paddock, Jackson V. Scholz, J. Alfred Looney and possibly Loren Marchison are about to desert the chider track. Golf has usurped the place once occupied in the affections of Paddock. Scholz, who, single-handed, upheld America's prestige in the sprints at Paris and who has devoted ten years of his life to racing, is ready to yield his laurels to a younger man.

Looney came out of retirement to represent his country in the 400 metre relay for the last time and probably will withdraw before he becomes a has been. Murchison, disappointed over his failure to win at least one of his sprints at Paris, may try to stage a comeback, but business is taking more and more of his time and soon may compel him to abandon the spiked shoes.

THE GREAT WHITE WAY HAS BRILLIANT START AT THE NICKEL THEATRE.

"The Great White Way," the Cosmopolitan Corporation's big super film, worn around life in New York, has settled down at the Nickel Theatre, where it opened last night to what gives every indication of being one of the most brilliant engagements ever enjoyed by a motion picture in St. John's.

According to fight authorities, the prize ring scene in "The Great White Way" is one of the biggest things ever accomplished in a cinematographic way. It brings to the screen for the first time scores of sporting celebrities, including Tex Rickard, Johnny Gallagher, Jimmie Quigley, Joe Humphreys, Irvin S. Cobb, H. C. Wittwer, "Kid" Broad, Tammany Young, Damon Runyon "Bugs" Baer and others. Jack Dempsey, who attended the opening, was particularly interested in the fight itself and voiced the opinion that it was as realistic as any ring battle that he has ever seen. For this fight scene, the Cosmopolitan Corporation engaged Pete Hartley, well-known professional lightweight and a contender for the championship title held by Benny Leonard, to impersonate the role of Jimmy Stone, British champion, who is defeated by the American welterweight titleholder, Joe Cain. Oscar Shaw, star of the musical comedy stage, played the latter part, in preparation for which he underwent a vigorous course of training under the care of Johnny Hennessey, popular conditioner of fighters.

The race track scene, is another which has won commendation from leaders of the sportsworld. The scene shows many celebrities of the American turf, including the world's premier jockey, Earle Sande, who appears in the cast of the new film.

Scores of other Broadway notables appear in the big newspaper office scenes of the picture. Some of those shown are Arthur Brisbane, Nell Brinkley, J. W. McGurk, Billy De Beck, Harry Hershfield, George McManus, Winsor McCay, Hal Coffman and others. The entire chorus of the famous Ziegfeld "Follies" appears in "The Great White Way." Ned Wayburn, stage director of the "Follies," also appears in the picture.

Shot as "Squealer"

VICTIM OF GANG CONCEALS WOUNDS AND ASSAILANT.

New York, Sept. 28.—As William Lyons shuffled homeward through the shadows of the East Side at day-break yesterday two bullets plunged out of the darkness and into his breast.

A policeman came running. "I thought I heard some shooting," he said to Lyons. "So did I," was the answer, and Lyons, shivering a little, drew his coat more closely around him. A half-hour later the ashen-faced youth collapsed at the entrance to Roosevelt Hospital, 30 blocks away. He died there to-day, refusing to the last to tell who shot him.

Police say that Lyons, by dying tight-lipped, atoned to "the gang" for an earlier breach of gangdom's cardinal commandment. "Thou shalt not squeal." The youth's father, a snarled and callous-faced product of the environment which brought death to his son, told the story.

"My boy and another lad were arrested several months ago for robbery," he said. "My boy told the truth. His chum went to Sing Sing. And the gang called my boy a squealer—a squealer for telling the truth. And they got him."

Life in the Wilds of Newfoundland

Dr. Dr. Hemmeon Gave An Interesting Address On The Subject Before The Rotary Club.

"Life in the Wilds of Newfoundland" was the subject of an exceptionally interesting address, in which the speaker, Rev. Dr. Hemmeon, of St. John's, gave an interesting account of the game and bird shooting in the neighbouring colony, before the members of the Halifax Rotary Club at yesterday's luncheon in the Green Eastern. Dr. Hemmeon, who spent several years in Newfoundland in connection with his ministerial duties, proved to have a thorough knowledge of the Newfoundland hunting grounds, which he termed a sportsman's paradise.

He gave many of his audience a surprise when he stated that there were no moose to be found on the island. He explained that many people claim that there are a few there, but in all his experience at hunting on the island, he had never heard of them. The speaker described the climate of the colony and stated that it was not suitable for moose, although caribou could be found in large numbers on any part of the island. He told of an experience made several years ago when a number of moose had been taken to the island with a view of establishing them permanently, but stated that these had all been shot during the past few years, and that there were none to be found here at the present time.

The Newfoundland Game Laws.

Speaking of caribou hunting on the island, Dr. Hemmeon stated that there were at least 300,000 on the island and that every year at least 1,000 were shot by sportsmen and inhabitants. The game laws on the island allow each inhabitant to shoot three annually. The speaker compared the enforcement of game laws in Newfoundland to that in Canada, stating that very little protection was given the game in the colony as compared with Canada. He related an incident where one man had shot six caribou and then had wired to his son to come and claim three of the carcasses. This, he gave as an illustration to show how plentiful the animals were.

Dr. Hemmeon also briefly outlined the habits of the various birds to be found on the island and compared them to those to be found anywhere along the coast from Florida to Newfoundland, stating that if a person was to shoot shore birds at intervals of a hundred miles between Florida and Newfoundland, and place them alongside each other, they would be found to be alike in almost every respect.

At the conclusion of Dr. Hemmeon's address, two violin selections were rendered by Julius Silverman, the local violinist, both selections being well received by the audience. J. J. Penny occupied the chair.—Morning Chronicle.

Swedes Have Cut Timber for One Thousand Years

Stockholm.—Sweden's work of forest conservation has managed to keep the lead in the neck-to-neck race with the rapidly increasing output of industrial products, according to a governmental report in which the statement is made that Sweden has "an inexhaustible gold mine in her forests."

This assurance is regarded as of great importance to the nation, since about 60 per cent. of its exports consist of lumber, wood pulp, paper and other forest products. In 1923 these exports alone amounted to a value of about $183,000,000, and in the 12 months ended last June, upwards of $10,000,000 of Swedish wood pulp was shipped to paper mills in the United States.

The forests in Sweden, which have been drawn upon for commercial purposes for at least 1,000 years, now cover about 52 per cent. of the total land area of the country, and consist principally of spruce and pine.

King Sings a Chorus

At a command performance given by Sir Harry Lauder at Balmoral Castle, the comedian sang, at the King's special request, his song, "I love a lassie."

"When I got to the chorus," said Sir Harry, "the whole company joined in, the King and Queen singing as lustily as any and obviously enjoyed every line of it."

The audience included gillies, tenants, and household servants.

Will Tell Club of Far North Trial

L. A. RIVET, K.C., WENT TO ICE BARRIERS TO MEET OUT JUSTICE.

L. A. Rivet, K.C., will deliver an illustrated lecture to the Club Canadian on October 17 next on his trip to the frozen north made in the interests of Canadian Justice.

Mr. Rivet was appointed to preside over a Court sitting to determine upon whom lay the responsibility for the death of a Newfoundland fur trader, Robert S. James, who was found killed on one of the barren, icy wastes that stretch northward from the Arctic Circle. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police had investigated the circumstances and had arrested three Esquimaux, Noo-Kud-Lah, Oo-Roo-Ree, Unnagh and Ah-Teo-Tah, all three of whom they charged with the murder.

The Department of Justice organized a complete tribunal to try these men in their own district, and L. A. Rivet, K.C., was appointed the Judge by special patent. The voyage was made on Captain Bertrams' old steamer, the Arctic, and the voyage, including the time for the trial, took three months. In accordance with the laws of the North West territories a jury of only six men was required and this was made up from the ship's company. Nearly all the witnesses were Esquimaux.

Two Found Guilty.

At the close of the trial Noo-Kud-Lah, was found guilty of manslaughter, and was sentenced by Mr. Rivet to ten years in Stony Mountain Penitentiary, in Manitoba. Oo-Roo-Ree-Unnagh was also found guilty of manslaughter, but the jury recommended a rider strongly recommending him to the mercy of the court. He received a sentence of two years in the custody of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Ah-Teo-Tah was acquitted and released.

The crew of the Arctic included a motion picture operator with his equipment, and many of the pictures that he took will be shown to the audience at the Club Canadian, when Mr. Rivet recounts his experiences while administering justice in the frozen north.—Montreal Star, September 20.

A Record Slaughter

Nearly 80,000,000 Animals Killed for Food in U.S. in a Year.

Slaughter of nearly 80,000,000 animals in establishments operating under Federal meat inspection during the year ended June 30, 1924, is shown by figures recently compiled by the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture. The exact total is 79,814,060, which is 6,000,000 more animals than were slaughtered during any previous fiscal year.

Hogs were the most numerous of all classes of stock, there being 54,454,813 of these animals slaughtered. This number, nearly three-fifths of the total, is also a new high mark. Calves slaughtered during the record-breaking year numbered 4,667,948, which is also the largest number on the records of the United States meat inspection service for any year. Cattle and sheep killed under the supervision of Government inspectors numbered 188,852 and 11,805,001, respectively.

This record slaughter of animals indicates an increased total meat consumption in the United States, as would be expected with the growing population. It also shows what a comprehensive service the United States Department of Agriculture renders in the inspection of the Nation's meat supply.

Eating Apples in Public

(From the Portland Oregonian.)

We can see no good reason why there should not be a renaissance of apple-eating in public, frankly and without embarrassment. The apple is a fruit well adapted to the requirements of the pedestrian, and may be consumed on any crowded street without inconvenience to the consumer or peril to his fellow creatures. This is obviously not true of the orange, and, alas, it is most emphatically not true of the banana. The apple is innocuous. It harbors no ill-will toward mankind, and is, in its every aspect, the most friendly of fruits.

For the life of us we cannot see any indecency in yielding to an apple in public—that is to say, on the streets. The eating thereof could not possibly offend the most captious, and would result in the stimulation of a great industry if it became the common practice. We can well imagine that many citizens who mix their morning ozone with cigar and cigarette smoke, would feel altogether more capable and energetic if they munch an apple as they proceeded to the office.

There is still a great market for human hair, and even the almost universal bobbing of women's hair has failed to satisfy the demand. In pre-war days the great market for hair was Limoges, France, and the Fair was an amazing sight. Girls with beautiful tresses would line up while dealers—who had come from all over the world—would pass down the ranks and make offers for any head of hair which attracted them. Bobbed hair has lessened the vogue for earrings and altered their style. Small, close designs are the only ones that suit the average bobbed hair.

Tickle Fashions of Femininity

What is chic to-day becomes the horror of to-morrow! Do the fashions in women's modes follow any permanent principles of beauty, and if so, why are the modes so transitory? An answer to the question was attempted in a recent exhibition in Paris of miniature models of "Ladies of To-day." The period covered was the past twenty years, and the contributors were the famous couturiers who furnish the world with fashions in women's wear. Eight of these models were reproduced in L'Illustration (Paris), and the accompanying comment throws some light on the rapidly changing tastes of the feminine part of the community:

"These little doll-models, drest by ingenious and nimble fingers, modestly attract from their glass cases the curious and inquisitive gaze. There are twenty-five of them, as many ephemeral and fallen queens, determining year by year the silhouette of the Parisian lady since 1900. Dame Fashion allows each but a brief reign. All have had their hour of success. They all came from the fashionable ladies' tailor, and once represented elegance, the latest and correct style. There are some that we regret. Such have retained their youth and charm. Time seems to have left hardly a mark on them. Fortunately, the fantasy has realized one of those harmonies of lines that passing years do not affect. But Dame Fashion is never content to remain at a standstill once she has made a discovery, but continues to change, for one of the reasons of her existence is this same instability. On the other hand, others seem obsolete for all time, carrying badly an old age which is almost a caricature. They seem further from us than even those older models. The styles of 1900, detestable as they were, lasted too long not to have had their effect on a fashion that is responsive to every influence.

"And then one could see the simplifications take place. The dress frees itself from the over-employment of finery; the skirt becomes shorter, showing off more of the foot and then of the leg, only to become longer again later. This is the natural, inevitable swinging back and forth of the pendulum of fashion. But will the woman who, thanks to athletics, has come to have the desire and the custom of enjoying certain freedom, allow herself to be burdened again by the corset which compresses her figure, or by the dress which trails on the street? What an evolution from the curves of 1902 to the straight lines of to-day.

"What memories, a trifle melancholy if you will, do they bring back—these little doll-models of the Paris of yesterday, the Paris which has already disappeared, which has become almost antiquated, whose ornaments and delight they were!"

The Day of Atonement

The Day of Atonement, in Hebrew Yom Kippur, falls this year on October 8th. It is celebrated with a profoundly impressive ritual-service on the evening of the 7th and all day of the 8th. Observant Jews fast on this day and sedulously refrain from all labor or secular matters, considering it a Sabbath of Sabbaths. The fast occurs on the 10th day of the month of Tishri according to the lunar Jewish calendar and is prescribed in Leviticus 16 and 23, where it is entitled a Sabbath of solemn rest. No other feast or fast except the Sabbath Year is designated so significantly.

On this day as on no other the synagogues are crowded with worshippers, gathered to carry out the Biblical injunction "to afflict the soul." It is small wonder that this fast holds the reverence and inspires the awe of scattered Israel. It is so deeply personal and yet so powerfully communal that it seems to cleanse the soul of the worshipper as well as that of the community. Its observance dates back beyond historic record. Fortunately, some part of its observance in pre-Christian times is preserved in the Mishna. On that day the High Priest, attired in simple white instead of the gorgeous sacerdotal vestments of his office, made atonement for himself, his family and the whole house of Israel and entered the Holy of Holies, where "behind the veil" he solemnly invoked the ineffable name of God. At the sound of the divine name ten thousands of worshippers fall prostrate, exclaiming, "Blessed be His glorious name forever and ever," to be answered with the assurance, "Ye are pure."

According to Jewish thought, the act of fasting and the ritual are not the potent factors of the day. The important thing is the individual's own resolution to know his shortcomings and to amend them. As the Talmud points out, the inhabitants of Nineveh were not pardoned, according to the narrative of Jonah, because they put on sackcloth and ashes but because they repented. The great ritual is a reminder of God's glory and grace, the fasting is a denial of the demands of the flesh until man's spirit may regain the mastery in the guidance of his conduct. Atonement, reformed life, the new spiritual strength are achieved through God's grace found through prayer and self-denial.

Sin is a terrible taskmaster and the shaking off of its bonds requires great effort. Hence we find the Jews emphasizing the struggle against it not only in all their prayers but especially in the solemn fast-day of atonement. Not only do they seek guidance and help against personal sin but also against that of the whole community. It is significant that on the Day of Atonement the ancient Israelites were commanded to blow the trumpet, "shofar," as a sign of the year of Jubilee, when all debtors and slaves were to be released. "Proclaim Liberty throughout the land to all the inhabitants thereof," is the Bible phrase, one well-known to all Americans. Hence the Day of Atonement is dedicated to human freedom from the greatest of all slavery, the domination of sin.

Spiders in Battle

A naturalist engaged in observing some spiders had the opportunity of witnessing a battle between two of them as big as bumble bees, whose webs were two feet or more in diameter. Scriptures for a Cent

Not long ago an early edition of the Bible was sold in New York for $100, the highest price ever paid for a book. About the same time the American Bible Society announced that it had received an order for 1,500,000 copies of the Scriptures to be sold for one cent apiece. The average between the prices tells a story. In spite of the light fiction that is annually thrown on the market, the Bible is still supreme as a best seller. In eight years, we would by E. E. Wilson in Farmington, the sale of Harold Bell Wright's books, the second best seller, has reached 10,000,000, whereas the same period more than 240,000,000 copies of the Bible have been sold. At the present rate of distribution, says a writer in the New York Times, the whole world may be supplied before the end of the century. Of last year's total about one-third was the output of the American Bible Society, which, since its 118 years ago, has issued about 100,000,000 volumes of Scriptures. For the second time in its history the society last year exceeded the 7,000,000-copy mark, an increase of 2,500,000 over the previous year. No book even approaches the Bible in the number of its translations. The Scriptures, says the writer, have been printed in 175 tongues and the total number of languages and dialects represented is more than four times that figure. As to domestic circulation, we are told that the United States circulation of Scriptures was almost doubled last year, as compared with the previous year. Through the Massachusetts Bible Society alone a quarter of a million copies in forty-two languages were distributed. But the country falls several hundred thousand short of the Chinese demand. The American Bible Society had there two and a half million copies last year, an increase over the previous year of more than half a million. In fact, one-half of its 7,000,000 volumes went to the Orient. In other countries the figures have risen for the American Society alone. Similar accounts come from the British and Foreign Bible Society of the Bible Society of France—through which a Bible is given away at every French marriage or first communion when so desired—the Belgian Gospel Mission, the Evangelical Society of Geneva, and many others. The circulation of Scriptures through the American Bible Society represents the services, we are told, of 2,000 persons, about three-fourths of whom labor in foreign lands. From them comes many an interesting story, one of which we give: "In the course of his travels from the Persian Gulf to Cairo last year a representative of the American Bible Society stopped to present a special copy of the Arabic Bible, beautifully printed and bound at the Beirut Press, to King Feisal. There he learned that on the King's table, where he keeps the books he really uses, lay a copy of the Bible, New Testament included, that had been presented to him by the Jews of Bagdad. "Truly a remarkable channel for propagating the Gospel of Jesus Christ," commented the emissary. "From a Jewish community to their Moslem King."

Nothing in Particular
By TRINCULO

THE ETERNAL MASQUERADE.
I have heard of literary misers and cobblers. Even shopkeepers and at least, one wheelwright, have written books. Nevertheless, until I picked up a copy of "The Eternal Masquerade," I had yet to hear of a literary tailor.

Of course there is no reason at all why tailors should not be able to write books as well as other people. As a matter of fact, some of the letters that have accompanied my tailor's bills have been models of literary composition. But I must admit that it never entered my mind that a tailor could write a book, and most certainly not the type of book that Mr. H. Dennis Bradley has published under the title which heads this article.

Mr. Bradley, who is a member of the well known firm of English tailors, Pope and Bradley, discourses equally learnedly on history, costume and economics.

His book overflows with epigrams and aphorisms, all of them witty, pointed and true, and moreover, written with a frankness which would cause even Mrs. Asquith to blush. It would be an impertinence for me to attempt to review this astounding book, and I shall content myself with quoting extracts which I trust will encourage those who read them to buy it.

Being a tailor, it is only natural that Mr. Bradley should have some pertinent things to say about dress. In fact, the main portion of his book deals with the influence of history on costume, and moreover, he presents English history in a very new light. Here are some extracts from "The Eternal Masquerade." They need no comment.

CLOTHES MAKE THE MAN.

"Without his trappings where is man's power? Could a nude Prime Minister inspire anything but ribald laughter?"

LADY GODIVA.

"Only one woman in history succeeded in making a name for herself without the aid of clothes. But for becoming bare, Lady Godiva would never have become famous. Had the fashion existed in those days for bobbed hair, she might possibly have become infamous."

GALLANTRY.

"The days of gallantry are passed. There is no modern Raleigh willing to fling his mantle in the mud for a virgin to walk on. But there is many a modern maid who would literally take a man's coat from his back to pay for her farewells."

SNOBBERY.

"At the present time snobbery in England is almost unfashionable. It is now only practised in the suburbs of the cities and towns, and is society by a few fortunate chorus ladies, who by strategic virtue, have managed to climb from the footlights into the upper circle."

RELIGION.

"If a religion is necessary it should be limited to a simple phrase. Take care of the few within your circle and inspire them to feel the better for knowing you and not the worse."

REPUTATION.

"The only value of a reputation is the privilege to smash it." The above extracts are all taken from the first section of Mr. Bradley's book, which he calls "Sartor Sardonius." They are an example of the wit and insight into human minds and motives which dominate the book, and give to it that originality which few modern books possess. At a later date I hope to give some extracts from the second section which is appropriately entitled "Sartor Historicus."
