EASTER DAY IN THE CHURCHES

Large Congregations attend the Special Services.—Easter Concerts by Sunday-Schools of Baptist and Methodist Churches.

Easter Day was bright though the wind blew sharply. The churches were well attended and the services in each were of a festive nature appropriate to the day.

A special Easter service was held in the Baptist Church Sabbath morning, Rev. A. S. Lewis preaching a very impressive sermon on the significance of the resurrection, under three heads. First, Christ's resurrection a proof of the truthfulness of truth; second, the resurrection assures us now that we have a living Christ; third, Christ's resurrection a proof of our resurrection. Special music was rendered by the choir. In the evening a very pleasing Easter concert was given under the management of the superintendent, G. H. Dixon, consisting of music, recitations, and exercises. The little ones acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner. Much praise had been taken by the teachers in training them. Special mention might be made of a very "little tot," Miss Eunice Hatt, who gave the address of welcome in a pleasing manner. Little Master Owen Condon also pleased the audience by reciting "I am a very small boy." A solo and chorus by three little girls, Lorna Condon, Muriel Elliott and Josie Michie, was enjoyed by all. A rather difficult exercise was given in a very pleasing manner by seven young girls of Mrs. Harry Chute's class. Misses Thelma Lewis, Mabel Marshall, Connie Lloyd, Eva Miller, Julia Corbett, Edith Chute, and Mabel Monroe. A large white cross was arranged, each girl twining about it a wreath or garland of colored flowers. Singing formed a part of this exercise. The house was well filled with an appreciative audience, and a good collection taken. In the Providence Methodist Church the usual morning service was held, with sermon and music appropriate to the day. In the evening an Easter service was given by the children of the Sunday School who occupied the choir seats, the form of the service being entitled "Sonata." Interspersed with the choruses were a number of recitations and responsive readings. Some especially pleasing features were a motion song by three little girls, Edna Burns, Edna Fulmer and Juanita Bishop, recitations by Miss Bessie Laird and Clarence Kinney, a reading by Miss Freda Giles, and two exercises, one by ten boys and girls, and one by five boys. The children rendered their respective parts exceptionally well, and much praise is due them as well as Miss Johnson and Miss Wilkinson who had them in training. At the Gordon Memorial Presbyterian Church the usual communion service was held, with an appropriate address by the pastor and special music by the choir, including an anthem.

Service in St. James' Church on Easter-day were, as usual, of a very bright and hearty character. The altar with its festal hangings looked particularly attractive, whilst the music was all that could be desired, the consensus of opinion being that the Anthem, "King of Kings," by Simper, was one of the best heard in the Church for a very long time. The Rector occupied the pulpit both morning and evening, preaching in the morning on "The time of singing is come," and in the evening on "Hope begotten by the resurrection of Jesus Christ." We understand the Easter music will be repeated next Sunday.

A Promising Vocalist

From the Brockton News we learn that Miss Myrtle Jones, soprano soloist of the Brockton Methodist Episcopal Church gave a farewell concert on the occasion of her departure for Los Angeles, California, where she will join her parents who have been there more than a year. Miss Jones is a grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bishop, of Paradise, and a niece of Mr. H. G. Bishop, of Bridgetown. With her teacher, Mrs. Packard, Miss Jones visited her relatives here last summer and many who then had the pleasure of hearing them sing will be interested to learn that Miss Jones on the occasion of her final recital made a most favorable impression upon a cultured audience. The News says of Miss Jones' interpretations, "The solo numbers ranged from light love offerings to the prayer from Puccini's 'Tosca.' It is a climax was needed to prove her ability she could not have selected a number more fitting. Puccini's composition calls for interpretation by a truly powerful dramatic soprano. Miss Jones filled the requirements. It is not too much to say that she was magnificent in this number. It was rendered with the power of an operatic star by a young woman hardly out of her teens."

Dawson Sanford Killed by Tree

On Saturday morning, March 27th, Dawson Sanford, after having been employed all winter in the lumber woods at the head of Red Indian lake, was just about leaving for his home in Nova Scotia, when a falling tree struck him on the head, leaving him unconscious. He was immediately carried to his camp and his contractor, Mr. Wickdall, ordered a teamster to jump on a horse and gallop to Lunenburg, fifteen miles, for a doctor. In four hours from the minute of leaving camp, the teamster had arrived with the physician, travelling in six inches of water on the lake. Everything that medical science could do to save the man was done, but at 4.30 on Sunday morning he died, his death being caused by concussion of the brain, due to the blow from the falling tree. The whole camp feels his death deeply, as he was a splendid man in every way and was just about leaving to see his dying father. His trunk had been sent ahead of him. His home was at Waterville, Kings County. He was 23 years of age. On Sunday morning the men of the camps placed the remains on a hand-sleigh and all took part in hauling same half a mile to the edge of the lake. From there Mr. Wickdall, who comes from Nova Scotia, brought the remains with horse and sleigh to Millertown, forty miles distant on the ice. This is the first death at Red Indian lake this winter.—Halifax Herald.

Level Railway Crossings

Mr. Houghton Lennox on Wednesday elicited the interesting information from the minister of railways and canals that at present there are some 15,000 level railway crossings in Canada. The average expense of installing gates at these danger points would reach $700. The average upkeep per gate, day and night, annually, would total about $1,200. In view of the number of unavoidable accidents that are recorded annually, it would appear as though the crossings, at least in densely populated communities, should be protected in some manner. The question is, however, receiving the attention of the real problem—that of the expense connected with the making safe of the crossings, will be generally welcomed.

H. H. Grant Addresses Bridgetown Law and Order League

Owing to various engagements on the evening of Easter Monday, the meeting in the Providence Methodist Church was not so largely attended as was hoped. However, a good representation of our citizens was present, and the address of the Rev. H. R. Grant, the Agent of the Provincial Temperance Alliance, which occupied about an hour and a half in delivery, was listened to with deep interest. It was occupied mainly with two ideas, the evidences of progress in the Temperance Reform and the improved measures, legislative and educational, necessary to complete success. Among the encouraging signs of the times, Mr. Grant mentioned the fact that in this Province, as well as elsewhere, clergymen and laymen of all the churches, Protestant and Roman Catholic, are united as never before in fighting the common foe.

He dwelt particularly upon the excellences and the defects of our present legislation, and the growing conviction of all persons interested in this great and needed reform that the goal of their endeavors must be the total prohibition of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic drinks. Mr. Grant speaks from the heart, as one whose work brings him into personal touch with the distressing evils of intemperance and enables him to see with clear vision the duty of the people and of the hour. Listening to the address there came to mind, again and again, the well-known apostrophe of Shakespeare, "O, invisible spirit of the wine cup, if thou hast no name, to be known by, let us call thee Devil."

Homeless in Montreal.

London, Dispatch.—Letters respecting the state of employment in Canada are still appearing in the papers here. Frank J. Robinson, of Westmount, Montreal, writes to the Leader: "In every city here tens of thousands are workless and homeless. There are between 20,000 and 30,000 out of work in Montreal alone, yet by every boat more emigrants arrive. How is it the truth never comes out in the English papers?" Mr. Robinson further says the agents' statements that Canada is a country where there is work and hiring for all is the biggest falsehood ever invented to trap the unwary emigrants.

Perils of the Sea

Two hundred and twenty-one persons perished by shipwreck and 89 vessels met with disaster off the New England and North American coasts, or while engaged in the New England or Canadian trade during the fall and winter season 1908-09, which is just ended. Of the 89 vessels cast ashore or lost at sea, six steamers and 56 sailing vessels were totally wrecked. The financial loss exceeds $3,000,000.

The most thrilling disaster of the season was the collision between the White Star line steamer Republic, bound from New York for Mediterranean ports, and the Italian steamer Florida, from Mediterranean ports for New York. The Florida cut down the Republic during a dense fog off Nantucket before daylight on January 23rd. Five lives were lost. The Italian steamer did not sink, but the Republic foundered on the night of the 24th, while in tow of government craft. The Republic-Florida disaster demonstrated the value of the wireless telegraphy by which other vessels were immediately summoned to the aid of the damaged steamers.

Exhibition Officials

At a meeting of the General Exhibition Committee held in Butcher's Hall, it was resolved to hold the District Exhibition for the Counties of Hants, Kings and Annapolis, at Middleton, during the first week in October next. The main building will be the Reed & Jones warehouse.

The officers elected were: President—G. H. Vroom. Vice Presidents—Rev. Joseph Gaetz, A. E. McMahon (Kings) and William O'Brien (Hants). Treasurer—C. E. Jubien.

The Executive Committee in addition to the above named officers consists of John H. Charlton, T. G. Bishop and F. Fitch. These were appointed by the Municipality of the County of Annapolis and also the following gentlemen elected by the General Committee were: Colonel Shippy Spurr, T. R. Jones, H. G. Reid, C. W. Montgomery, G. N. Reagh, J. G. Shaffer, Dr. W. F. Read, G. M. Moore, E. T. Neily, W. G. Parsons, L. W. Elliott, F. M. Chipman.

Subsequently W. G. Parsons was appointed as Secretary.

OPPOSITION TO THE NOVA SCOTIA PULP AND POWER COMPANY'S BILL.

The Nova Scotia Pulp and Power Company's bill is exciting a good deal of interest in the house of assembly. Its friends and opponents were given a hearing before the committee of the house of assembly last week. The bill was read by the chairman, G. E. Faulkner, and was then explained by W. E. Roscoe, K. C., who explained its provisions. Humphrey Mellish, K. C., opposed it, on the ground that the bill gave the company power to light towns anywhere in Nova Scotia without restriction as to competition with existing companies. He declared the policy of the legislature was to protect existing companies—that they must be bought out before a new concern could start operations.

ANOTHER MOVING FEAT.

Digby Courier.—Mr. W. A. Chute, the well-known building mover, has just performed another remarkable feat in his line of business. This occurred about one mile from Bear River. In four days with four men Mr. Chute moved a house down a hill a distance of 300 feet, the new site being 65 feet lower than the old one making a down-grade of more than 21 feet to the hundred. The building is two story, 30x28 with chimney. It was moved without injury and is certainly another demonstration of Mr. Chute's skill as a building mover. His regular advertisement appears in another column and it will pay those who are looking for a good job to correspond with him.

SPECIAL MEETING OF TOWN COUNCIL

Council Repudiates Bill of Bridgetown Electric Light Company for Street Lighting Since September 30th, 1908.

A meeting of the Town Council of the Town of Bridgetown was held in the council chamber April 10th, 1909, at 7.30 with Mayor Ruggles in the chair and Councillors present as follows: viz., Councillors Calder, Dixon, deWitt, Chute, Freeman and Longmire.

The street committee handed in a report dealing with the question of street and house lights which was read and discussed. The following is the report.

The committee on street lighting beg to report as follows: At a public meeting of the citizens held on the 22nd day of March last a resolution was passed requesting us to interview the Bridgetown Electric Light Heat and Power Co., Ltd., and to ascertain if possible whether they would sell their Electric Light plant and at what price, and in the alternative whether they would adopt the schedule submitted to them in July, 1908, by the council.

We were unable to arrange a meeting with the company although we made several attempts to do so until the afternoon of the 3rd inst., when we met Mr. Beckwith representing said Company and submitted to him the resolution of the meeting.

Mr. Beckwith said he could not give us a price for the plant then nor would he adopt the schedule of rates submitted to him. At the adjourned meeting of the citizens to consider our report it was unanimously resolved after hearing our report that the citizens who are now using the lights give the company notice to turn off all lights on the 8th day of May, 1909, and that they would not pay for the same at the present rate after that date.

It was also further resolved at the meeting that they approve of the action taken by the council in July last by which they notified the company that unless they would give the town the additional street lights asked for and reduce the rates to a schedule submitted to them that they should turn off the street lights.

We therefore submit to the council that we are of the opinion that the council should at this meeting pass a resolution to rescind the resolution passed by them on the 25th day of January last as the Company have refused to accept the terms submitted to them by that resolution and have continued to turn on the street lights notwithstanding the contract made between the Town and the Company on the 1st day of April, 1901, for five years only has expired a copy of the said contract is attached to this report) and in direct violation of the notice served upon the Company in July last, and that the Council should repudiate all liability to the Company for lighting the streets since the service on them of said notice to turn off all street lights by September 31st, 1908, and that the council should refuse to pay the company for street lighting since September 31st, 1908.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Dated April 10th, 1909.
(Signed) WM. R. CALDER
GEO. H. DIXON
J. R. deWITT
W. R. LONGMIRE.

On motion the report was adopted. Ordered that the following bills be paid, Pay sheet for clearing snow from the streets last Monday, $4.16; Canadian Iron & Foundry Company for pipe and specials, $130.39; D. A. R. Co., for freight on same from Londonderry here, $15.07; E. C. Hall, C. B. Tupper and O. F. Ruffee for revising, $40.00; W. H. Burns, $2.25. House of Assembly Bills No. 172 and 171 were read before the Council and on motion the Council unanimously indorsed and approved both of said bills and directed the Clerk to send a copy of this resolution under the town seal to the Hon. O. T. Daniels.

Whereas by the resolution passed by this Council on the 25th day of January, 1909, it was ordered that the bill of the Bridgetown Electric Light Heat and Power Co., Ltd., for $185.00, for street lighting for quarter ending December 31st, 1908, be not paid but that if the said Company withdraw such bill and file a new one with the Town Clerk charging for the street lights according to the schedule contained in the written offer submitted to them by the Town Clerk last summer the same be paid forthwith without further order.

And whereas the said Company have refused to accept the said resolution and upon reading the report of the Electric Light Committee submitted and adopted at this meeting, it is therefore resolved that the resolution passed by this Council on the 25th day of January, 1909, which is above set out be rescinded by this Council and the same is hereby rescinded.

And it is further resolved that this Council repudiate all liability to the said Company for lighting the streets since the 30th day of September, 1908 under the notice served on them by the Clerk in July, 1908, to turn off all street lights after September 30th 1908, as they have turned on said street lights in direct violation of said notice and contrary to the instruction of this Council and that this council hereby refuses to pay the said Company for street lighting since Sept. 30th, 1908, and that the Clerk at once serve the Company with a copy of this resolution. Minutes read and approved. Council adjourned for two weeks.

THE HUGE INVADING HOST OF THE LAND HUNGRY.

Winnipeg, March 31.—Wealth is pouring over the border into Canada from the United States at the present at the rate of nearly a million per week, according to the estimates of those who are in touch with the immigration movement. The influx is exceptionally large. Trains in two sections are the rule on the Soo line running into Moose Jaw, and all the trains are carrying large numbers of Americans from the States of the central west.

Special settlers' trains, with large numbers of cars loaded with effects, are also being operated. The estimate of the local office is to the effect that 70,000 Americans will come in this season, taking up between 20,000 and 25,000 homesteads, and the number may possibly reach a hundred thousand. At several points in Saskatchewan and Alberta the rush has been so great that the Government has arranged to supply large furnished tents. These can be used not only by travellers from the United States but also by those from Eastern Canada and Europe.

Cured His Rheumatism In Three Weeks.

James LeB. Johnstone, a prominent member of the Citizen's Band, of Chatham, writes:

"I contracted Rheumatism by exposure, five years ago, and was ailing for two months and in great pain all the time. I got Father Morriscy's No. 7 Tablets and took them for about three weeks, when the Rheumatism all left me and I have had no return of the pains since."

Father Morriscy's "No. 7" Tablets

have cured thousands of this terribly painful disease.

Rheumatism is generally brought on by exposure, but is really caused by Uric Acid in the blood. This Uric Acid is an irritating poison, formed from the waste matter of the body. The kidneys should remove it, but when they fail it poisons the blood, and, settling in the joints, causes Rheumatism.

"No. 7" Tablets clear out the clogged-up Kidneys and stimulate them to perform their task of filtering the Uric Acid out of the blood. When this is done the Rheumatism simply and naturally vanishes.

"No. 7" Tablets cost 50c. At your dealer's.

THE HUB

Edouard Lefevre, christened plain Eli by a conscientious New England mother, and Banks by inheritance, stretched his long, shapely legs and his wide, mobile mouth in a prodigious yawn. By some peculiar sympathy between the muscles of the upper and lower limbs, as the latter stiffened the former relaxed, and from one hand a theatrical paper rustled to the floor, from the other his pet meerschaum followed clatteringly. He bit off the disturbing yawn, with a snap of his white teeth as he glanced anxiously downward to where the pipe had fallen. Satisfied that it was unharmed he plunged both hands deep in his trousers pockets and again stretched his powerful frame in a mighty yawn that ended in a baffled shriek.

A woman by the window industriously sewing in the waning light started nervously and echoed the cry. Lefevre laughed, and setting up, sauntered over to a crib in the corner and for some time gazed thoughtfully down at his sleeping occupant.

The woman, Mrs. Edouard Lefevre, by the grace of the man at the crib, dropped the tiny blue velvet trunks on which she was grouping startling constellations of green moons and pink stars and glanced apprehensively at him. When he had noticed the baby before, seriously, at least? There could be but one object in it row, she thought; and her heart contracted with dread.

"How old is she?" he asked as he dropped into a chair beside the crib. "A little over two," the mother replied evasively.

"How much?"

"Nearly two months."

"Humph! Nearly time she should walk, isn't it?"

"Why, yes, I suppose so," the mother answered him apologetically. "Though Jessie didn't walk till she was twenty months old."

"That isn't twenty-six," he answered shortly. "I had hoped—"

Mrs. Lefevre carefully folded her work and laid it aside, a rosy star impaled on her needle. "Yes," she prompted, facing him with a certain repressed desperation, as though she would know the worst.

"I had hoped," continued her husband, rousing himself from his momentary abstraction, his eye still on the unconscious face of the child, "that she would be running around long before this. I wanted her for the tip of that spire."

"Who would hold her?" asked the mother in a low voice.

"Fred."

"What! Trust that delicate, excitable baby to a ten-year-old boy?"

"Fred is pretty level-headed, and I would hand her up," returned Lefevre, calmly. "But, of course, it is out of the question. The tender-hearted public objects to the use of a babe in arms," he concluded bitterly.

"Eli!" said Mrs. Lefevre, after a moment's pause.

"Don't call me that!" snapped the man. "You'll be doing it before people the first thing you know."

"Edouard," apologetically.

"Well?"

"I've been thinking—"

"Don't, it'll give you wrinkles."

"I've been thinking," went on the woman soberly, ignoring the interruption, "that you might leave me this one child for my very own. No: I will speak, Eli Banks! Just this one child! You've taken the other six as soon as they could toddle, and they have never been mine again, with their prattle of eyes and certain calls before they could talk plain. But this one, the last I shall ever bear you, Eli, she's such a frail, sweet little thing—oh, Eli!"—her voice rose tense and shrill, and her face paled with emotion—"won't you let me keep this one?"

"Why, you little goose, they're all yours," answered the man, coolly and turned back to the crib. "She's bound to walk soon," he said musingly.

"And you'll take her?"

"Sure!"

The woman groaned. "Oh, I wish—" she began desperately, then ceased, seeming to feel the futility of speech.

"I'm putting on some pretty good things," went on Lefevre thoughtfully, "a living wheel, and a new trick with the dogs; and I tell you, that church spire business, with the bell tolling, can't be beat. That's what landed Forepaugh's," he chuckled reminiscently.

"Forepaugh's!" gasped the woman, her eyes wide and staring.

"Yes," returned Lefevre easily. "Didn't I tell you I'd signed for June? And this is March: devil's short time to work up in. What's the matter, Annie?" he laughed. "Afraid the lions and tigers will gobble up the kids?"

"Oh, Eli! this is bad enough," she groaned. "Travelling about all the time, with no home life for the children. But, a circus!" She glanced about the dingy hotel parlor as though, in comparison, it wasn't so bad after all. "The dreadful people—the danger. Why, sometimes now, as I stand in the wings and see them running those awful risks, I—I can't breathe. But a circus—" Words seemed inadequate, and she knew, too, by his abstracted, thoughtful look, that he wasn't listening.

At length he picked up his pipe, filled it, and began to smoke. Then, drawing a pad toward him, he drew strange wheel like structures; erasing drawing again, changing the position of the big dot that represented himself, and re-roping the six little dots, miniature reproductions, and finally threw it on the table with a muttered oath. His wife, pale and troubled, walked to the window and stood for a moment silhouetted against the light, her face lying on her arms, which were crossed upon the sash. Lefevre, glancing carelessly toward her, suddenly started, and a look of relief sprang into his eyes.

"Annie!" he cried joyfully, hurrying to her and turning her around. "Why, I didn't know—I never thought—" He clasped her arm inquiringly, then spanned the shapely thigh revealed by her plain dress.

She drew back in indignant amazement. He was looking at her face now—not as a lover or husband, but as Edouard Lefevre of the famous "Lefevre Acrobatic Family."

"A little more color, and—yes, a wig, blond, I think," he murmured excitedly, running his fingers through her thin hair. "Then, with some lace and a little padding—Why, Annie old girl, you're just the thing!"

"For what?" she asked falteringly.

"Why, for the hub of the living wheel!" he returned exultantly. "We will go in and see Madame Renaud about your costume to-morrow."

"But, Eli, I couldn't! I should die of mortification and fright," she objected.

"Why, you wouldn't have anything to do but stand on a scaffold and be the hub. You're that now, you know," he declared laughing happily. "Let me see. Flesh-colored tights, lavender trunks—"

"Tights, Eli?"

"Sure! Why not?"

"Your wife, the mother of your children, ca-capering around in tights?"

"Your husband, the father of your children, cavorting around in tights?" he mimicked.

"But the baby—Lucy? How could I leave her for the rehearsals, matinees, and everything?" she cried desperately, feeling the web tightening about her.

"Oh, we can always get some of the hotel people to stay with her," he said, good humoredly. "Why, you'd earn enough in one night, silly," pinching her cheek. "To hire her tended for a month."

"But I don't want anyone else to tend her," she pleaded. "She's such a delicate little thing. Oh, Eli! Have you no pity?"

She stormed, she cried, she pleaded but Lefevre, entirely unmoved, drew the pad to him again and cheerfully drew another wheel; but this time the largest dot was at the base; one scarcely smaller, but very black and carefully made, for the hub; and around the two were grouped the six smaller satellites.

There was much laughing and stamping outside, and Mrs. Lefevre hastily dried her eyes.

"The 9.30 tomorrow morning," Annie, said Lefevre absently, tearing off the sheet from the pad and putting it in his pocket. "Oh, yes!" he added, as Mrs. Lefevre hurried to take Lucy, who had been awakened and startled by the uproar. "We'll just take her alone to that what-do-you-call-him specialist, and see if there's anything wrong with her."

Mrs. Lefevre, very pale and shrinking, had been fitted with tights of a delicate flesh tint, and the lavender velvet trunks which were to be emblazoned with silver stars were well under way when at last they turned toward the office of the great specialist.

"We ought to have seen to her long ago," complained Lefevre, setting the baby more comfortably on his arm.

"Even if she gets to walking in a month or two, it'll be too late for

BEST TREATMENT FOR COLDS.

"Most ordinary colds will yield to the simplest treatment," says the Chicago Tribune, "moderate laxatives, hot foot baths, a free perspiration and an avoidance of exposure to cold and wet after treatment."

While this treatment is simple, it requires considerable trouble, and the one adopting it must remain in doors for a day or two, or a fresh cold is almost sure to be contracted, and in many instances pneumonia follows. Is it not better to pin your faith to an old reliable preparation like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, that is famous for its cures of colds and can always be depended upon? For sale by Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Karon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. A local druggist is the authority that these simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from our home druggist.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clears the urine of sediment and regulates urination, especially at night, curing even the worst forms of bladder weakness.

Every man or woman here who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial, as it is said to do wonders for many persons.

our first performance with Forepaugh's; and that's what counts."

His wife made no reply; but taking the little mittened hand next to her, kissed it passionately; and the baby, with her arm tightly about her father's neck, wide-eyed at all the strange and wonderful things that she saw on the street, still found time to smile down into the wistful, upturned face.

At length, tired of watching the ever changing throng in the doctor's office, she fell asleep in her mother's arms, and awakened, much to her alarm, in strange ones. But her mother was near, smiling reassuringly; even her father—though really he scarcely counted—stood looking anxiously down on her, his hands, as usual, deep in his pockets. Consequently, after informing the stranger very emphatically that she was "ma'm's baby," she became intensely interested in a bright, shiny thing that she managed to get off the table. It had a well, she was a little undecided whether it was a "saba" or a "bow-wow" in it; but, as soon as she got it in her mouth, of course she could tell.

But what was this they were doing to her? Her mother's hands, cold and trembling, the doctor's warm and very sure, were undressing her. Why, she'd just had a nap, and was as wide awake as could be.

"No bed-dv," she said pleadingly, drawing back.

"No, indeed! No bed-dv for you, dear," laughed the doctor, "Mamma will put them all on again in a moment," he assured her.

That was gratifying, and she wished him to know it; so, as her vocabulary was somewhat limited, she again remarked that she was "ma'm's baby."

To her surprise, the statement was contradicted for the first time in her experience. "Doctor's baby," he declared.

For a moment she stopped trying to find a way to get at the tantalizing creature in the paperweight, and stared, but he was smiling, and his brown eyes were merry and tender, so she repeated very emphatically, and with much emphasis this time, so as to leave no doubt in his mind, "mam's baby!"

At this he put one big hand over his face, and said, very mournfully, "Poor doctor has no baby."

"Dear, dear! This was very trying. She glanced at her father, standing soberly by the window; at her mother sitting near, and loyally patted her hand; then back at the doctor, who was still stubbornly grieving. Again he deplored his babyless condition and displayed other startling symptoms. What should she do? He might scream and hold his breath at any moment. Anxiously dragging down one big finger, she saw enough of one eye with which to establish communication.

"Do-ker's baby," she agreed raily, laughing and clapping her hands, and to her relief, the danger was averted, for though there were tears in his eyes, he laughed with her and kissed her on her plump little neck.

"Did you have any great fright, any sudden shock, Mrs. Lefevre?" the doctor asked, passing his hand thoughtfully down the baby's back.

"Why, yes. —Once when Fred's trapeze broke," she returned. "But the worst was when Jessie fell—you remember, Eli—Edouard?"

Lefevre nodded. "She threw up both arms and fell in a heap without a word," he confided. "Nearly broke up the show. But there's nothing wrong with the baby, is there, doctor?"

The great man smiled at the baby's endeavor to get the paperweight into her mouth, but made no reply. Inch by inch he went over the little body. He tumbled the yellow curls, and again induced the reluctant admission that she was "do-ker's baby."

"Who takes care of her?" he suddenly asked.

"I," returned the mother promptly. "That's right; do not trust her to your other children—to a nurse even," (continued on page 3 1st column.)

A GRAND KIDNEY MEDICINE

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him When Everything Else Failed.
 Ulverton, Que., March 17th, 1908.
 I wish to place on record, for the sake of others who may be suffering in the same way that I suffered, that no medicine I ever took did me as much real good as "Fruit-a-tives" did. I suffered for many years with Kidney Trouble, with bad pain in the back. I took every known kidney remedy and kidney pill, but nothing gave me any relief, and I was getting discouraged. I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and did so—and this medicine cured me when everything else failed.

I used altogether fifteen boxes of "Fruit-a-tives," and from the outset they gave me relief and I am now practically well again; no pain, no distress, and all symptoms of kidney disease have entirely left me. I am very thankful to be once more well, and I freely make this statement for the sake of others who may suffer as I did. To them, I say try "Fruit-a-tives" as they are a grand kidney medicine.

"Unless she's a trained one," he continued seriously, dropping a white flannel skirt over Lucy's head, then cautiously raising it and kissing the bewildered face beneath it.
 "No, please let me dress her?" he begged as the mother drew up her chair and reached for the dress.
 "She's all right; she'll walk in a month or so, won't she, Doc?" persisted the father uneasily.

Again the doctor seemed not to hear him. The baby was confiding with many gestures and little bursts of laughter that the cow said "how-wow" and the cat said "quack quack"; and the doctor was breathing dire threats against her if she didn't uncurl her toes and put her foot properly into the bit of white kid he held in his hand.

The mother sank back in her chair, an expression of great relief and happiness on her face. She was to care for her precious baby, instead of any trifling, heartless chambermaid they could coax to do it. She would not have to be a hub and wear those horrid tight; at least, not for awhile. And the doctor spoke as though the dear little thing wouldn't be fit for the spire for some time. "O God!" she prayed breathlessly, "not for a year. Don't let her walk for a year! I'll care for her so well she'll never miss it."

The doctor buttoned the last button of the baby's dress, and his eyes were very gentle and tender as they turned toward her.
 "There is no one like a mother, Mrs. Lefevre," he said softly. "And I know you will not trust her to any one else. A sudden fright, a fall—He had risen, and disengaging the clinging little arms from about his neck, set the baby in her lap.
 "I am sorry to tell you, Mrs. Lefevre," he solemnly kissed the pretty head, then stood tall and straight before her—"that your baby will never walk."

There was a tense, breathless silence. Many thoughts were mirrored in the expressive, unguarded face of Edouard Lefevre, and the doctor read them all. The baby discovered that the sunbeams were playing strange pranks with the paperweight, and again became intent and absorbed with it; and Mrs. Lefevre gazed up at him with a strange, dawning light in her face that puzzled him.

A smothered oath from Lefevre as he stalked from the room broke the spell; and, to the doctor's great surprise, the mother buried her face on the curly head, and between choking, hysterical sobs, cried fervently:
 "Thank God! Oh! Thank God!" And the baby, patting her face lovingly, told him in a once-for-all manner that she was "mam-ma's baby."

The Motor and The Law

An account of very expensive litigation comes from England, the moral being that motorists should not let their angry passions rise—at least to the extent of going to law—when farm stock is encountered on the public highway. A farmer residing at the intersection of two roads near Truro, down Cornwall way, owned a large and very fat sow, which one day took a walk and sat down in the middle of the road. A motorist was howling along one road and a horse-drawn vehicle heading in the same direction on the other. When the motorist saw the sow he "made a great noise with his horn" and Susie promptly "grunted loudly." Thereupon the horse shied and the motorist, to avoid a collision, was forced to turn out sharply, which turned him in a bump against a stone wall and the reduction of the touring car to junk. Then the motorist sued the owner of the sow for the value of the machine and a local jury gave him a verdict. On appeal the case went to the highest court in England which decided that a sow had a perfect right to be on the highway, that it was the shying horse which caused the motorist to turn out and hit the wall, that the court below was all wrong, that Susie and her owner had nothing whatever to do with the case and that the motorist must pay all the costs of the suit. As the expenses involved amounted to several thousand dollars, it would seem that it will not pay motorists to go to war with the farmers whose stock may be perambulating the highway. The decision is deemed an important one in Britain.

BRUTE FORCE.

A woman is reported as replying in answer to the query "how best to manage a husband": "Feed the brute." It would seem that the "brute" is capable of marvellous tractability and usefulness if he be properly handled. The most recent endorsement of this theory comes from France, where a discussion has been in progress as to the best methods of handling the incorrigible of the vicious criminal class. It has been the custom in recent years to send those against whom one or more convictions for robbery, assault, or street outrages have been recorded, to the disciplinary battalions of riflemen in Africa when the time comes for them to undergo military service. They are ruled with a rod of iron and with their ferocious instincts under exacting military control they are said to make the most daring and intrepid soldiers. It is a case of brute force used in a distinctly brute sphere, controlled by superior brains. All of which goes to show that warfare is savagery and to get the best results savages must be employed in its prosecution. Kipling has given us a vivid picture of the uttermost of animalism aroused by the passions of war. Nevertheless we continue in this Christian land to encourage the youth to strut about with mock soldier garb and mimic guns while their elders talk jingo and paper colonels map out imaginary invasions. If it could be made a part of the "Monroe doctrine" that any man on this continent who talked of war should be put in a straight-jacket, America would give to the world a lesson on the supreme folly of this last legacy of our naked ancestors.—Home Journal.

LOVE'S COMING.

She had looked for his coming as warriors come. With the clash of arms and the bugle's call; But he came instead with a quiet tread. Which she did not hear at all.

She had thought how his armor would blaze in the sun. As he rode like a prince to claim his bride; In the sweet dim light of the falling night. She found him at her side.

She had dreamed how his coming would stir her soul. As the ocean is stirred by the wild storm's strife; He brought her the balm of a heavenly calm. And a peace which crowned her life.

In Five Minutes.

Take your sour stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your stomach misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness, and many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself, after your next meal, that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

What Will They Do About It?

With the almost certain prospect that aerial navigation will before long become a practical success, governments everywhere will be confronted with an exceedingly serious problem. No customs walls erected along their borders will prevent the commercial argosies of the air from crossing and re-crossing the frontier lines wherever and whenever they please at all hours of the day and night and dropping down their costly bales at chosen points without the payment of duties. No system that human ingenuity can devise can obviate wholesale smuggling under such circumstances. Protection will be forced upon all the nations whether they like it or not, leaving to their several governments no choice but to raise their necessary revenues by means of direct taxation, which, perhaps, may prove a blessing after all, as the taxpayers will then look more closely and carefully into the administration of their affairs.—Quebec Telegraph.

Cigarette Smoking Boys.

Prof. William McKeever, of Kansas Agricultural College, has been studying cigarette smoking amongst school boys for about eight years, and he has just published some of the results obtained. His conclusions seem to agree with those of every other individual who has devoted time to this subject. In reference to the effect upon the health of the boys he says: "I have tabulated reports of the condition of nearly 2,500 cigarette smoking school boys, and in describing them physically my informants have repeatedly resorted to the use of such epithets as sallow, sore eyed, puny, squeaky voiced, sickly, shortwinded, and extremely nervous. The younger the boy, the worse the smoking hurts him in every way, for these lads almost invariably inhale the fumes; and that is the most injurious part of the practice." The effect upon the mind seems even more pronounced: "The injurious effects of smoking upon the boy's mental activities are very marked. Of the many hundreds of tabulated cases in my possession, several of the very youthful ones have been reduced almost to the condition of imbeciles. Out of 2,336 who were attending public school, only six were reported 'bright students.' A very few, perhaps ten, were average, and all the remainder were poor or worthless as students. It is hardly necessary to comment upon these statements, as their truth is only too apparent to any one who cares to study the matter. The evil, fortunately, has not reached the same climax with us in Canada, and it should never be allowed to take root in our soil. We have a law which should cover the case if properly enforced, and it should be the business of our Christian citizens to see that it is enforced.

A HAND AT WHIST.

The Story of the Result Put Bridge Yarns in the Fish Class.

At an uptown bridge whist party a man member told this story while the company was taking a bite between rubbers: "I had heard of a man holding a complete suit, but I never saw it until last week. I was invited to play at Dr. Blank's home, and it was my deal at the start of the second rubber. I looked at my cards and could hardly believe my eyes. There were thirteen cards all of the same suit. 'Gentlemen,' said I, 'this is embarrassing. I hate to make the trump.'"

"Why?" was asked.
 "Well," said I, "if I were playing with people who knew me less well I would dislike to show my hand."

"Now, after all this fuss, what do you make it?"

"Hearts," said I.
 "Quick as a flash the man at my left said, 'I double,' and then I realized that in my excitement I mislaid my hand—I had all diamonds. They made a grand slam and said a few things to me also."

The day after he had told the story the man received a postal card on which this was written:

"The old rule that an affidavit should go with every fish story and a pepsin tablet with every piece of amateur mince pie has been changed to include bridge whist stories in the fish class."

SPANISH THRONE ROOM.

Outrivals in Splendor Anything of the Kind in Europe.

The throne room of Spain outrivals in splendor any in Europe. The ancient throne stands in the apartment known as the room of ambassadors. The decorations of this apartment include vast crystal chandeliers, huge tables inlaid with precious marbles, vast plate glass mirrors, gildings, rich hangings and above all the painted ceiling representing the long line of Spanish kings in the various picturesque costumes of the provinces. Here Spanish kings receive on state occasions, and here, too, their bodies lie in state after death. The throne is of rich velvet, embroidered. Around it are grouped four great silver lions with their heads turned away as if guarding the occupant. Four broad steps lead up to the throne from the polished floor of the room, and the crimson covered footstool is in itself a work of art. In this room have been gathered for ages curious and gems from Spanish possessions the world over at a time when Spain was mistress of the world. And here in front of the throne hang chandeliers of rock crystal which have for generations been the envy of other European rulers.

Witchcraft in India.

The belief in witchcraft is widespread in India, especially among the tribes low in the scale of civilization. The oja, or exorcist, is an important member of the community. His mummeries and incantations impress not only the lower classes, but even orthodox Rajputs and Kayasthas. He is paid to denounce witches, and, with the cunning of his class, he usually chooses harmless old women whose existence is rather a burden upon the village. Some of these women, however, have an implicit belief in their powers for evil as the villagers themselves. Murder frequently follows the denunciation.

"Whipped" From a Lunatic Asylum.

Among the amusing anecdotes told of parliamentary life Sir Henry Drummond Wolf in "Fambling Follies" gives the following as an example of skillful "whipping":
 "At the time of an important division a member happened to be confined in a lunatic asylum. Every vote was necessary. Arrangements were therefore made to deliver him at the house at the moment required, and he was received by the 'whip' of his party, who induced him to walk through the lobby by preceding him with a stick of barley sugar in his hand. This I believe to be a perfectly true story."

Jack Ketch.

Jack Ketch has long been a synonym for the public executioner and is derived from Richard Jaquet, who formerly owned the Manor of Tyburn, now the ground upon which stands the marble arch and where the Bayswater and Edgware roads meet.
 Here some few yards westward of the arch stood Tyburn tree, and to it and to the tender mercies of its owner and presiding genius, Jaquet, came the highwayman or the horse thief or the housebreaker in a tumbrel from Newgate.—London Mail.

A Canine Suicide.

 "Suicide."
 "Honest?"

"Yes. He tried to nab a flea on the small of his back and, miscalculating, bit himself in two."—Exchange.

We are a great people because we make such a hullabaloo about the things to do, because we accomplish them to the music of the band. Our pride has set the pace, and it's our pride that keeps us up till we drop.

No Brother Needed.

"But I shall always be a brother to you," he murmured.
 "If I had any use for a brother," she replied sweetly, "I could reach under the sofa and get one right now."

Manner is everything with some people and something with everybody.

Repeat it:—"Shilo's Cure" will all ways cure my coughs and colds."

More bread and Better bread —And the Reason for it

A STRONG FLOUR can only be made from strong wheat. Manitoba hard wheat is acknowledged the strongest in the world—and that is the kind used for Purity Flour.

Of course this special process is more expensive to operate but it means a lot to Purity flour users—that's why we use it.

It means that Purity Flour is made entirely of the highest-grade flour parts of the strongest wheat in the world.

It means a high-class, strong flour and therefore yields "more bread and better bread."

Purity may cost a little more than some flours, but results prove it the cheapest and most economical after all.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14, 1909.

—An organization for which it is claimed that it is a movement primarily to develop those resources of the Maritime Provinces which are now dormant for want of organization has been formed with head office at New Glasgow, to be known as the Maritime Exploration Company.
It is desired to arouse the public to the splendid possibilities of these provinces by the sea, and a realization of the immense wealth that lies all about us unrecognized.
To this end an assay office will be immediately established where assays will be made on any ore that property holders may possess, and which they desire to have examined by a competent assayer.
A prospecting department will also be organized for the purpose of making a free investigation of all properties that assay well. Competent engineers will be employed in this work, and the most expensive part of individual prospecting will be done away with entirely.
A selling department will act as the intermediary between the property holders and investors, who would stand for immediate development. This branch of the organization would be in constant touch with the valuable properties all over the Maritimes and at the same time in direct communication with the investing capitalists the world over.
The intention is to handle properties of every description and nature. To assist in locating and securing privileges for any manufacturing plants, etc., also and principally to handle copper, tungsten, coal, gypsum, iron ore, pyrites, manganese, lead, limestone holdings, etc.
The object of the promotion is certainly commendable and should receive the hearty support of all patriotic citizens. No capital stock is to be raised by the Company as it is not a money making project. We trust it will be highly successful in its endeavor to promote the progress of this section of our country.

It is interesting to note that the population of Canada was almost the same at the dawn of the 20th century that the population of the United States was at the dawn of the 19th—both under five millions and a half. For the first thirty years of that century the United States had not the tremendous machinery of the steam railway to aid in the populating and expansion of the country. Canada has this advantage, and it is not too much to expect that the settlement of the Dominion will now proceed even more rapidly than it did in the United States, which quintupled between 1800 and 1850. There is every reason to believe that the population of Canada by 1950 will be 30,000,000, and its revenue at least $500,000,000 a year. The projects which now look so large, such as canal-building and navy-building, will by that time be bagatelles for us. Development must therefore be a watchword of statesmen, and the doubting Thomases of to-day will then wish nothing so much as that their pessimistic speeches may be forgotten.

Tea grown at an elevation of 5,000 feet and upwards, where soil and climate combine to give that delightful fragrance and delicious flavor, is used in "Salada." Its purity and strength make it much more economical to use than other teas.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Accuracy of the Exchange in the Analysis of Events.
Barring the case of manipulation, which carries its own remedy and which is one of the evils of speculation, the stock market tells the truth. Temporarily indications may be misleading, but it is eventually shown that its analysis of events is correct. The silent panic of March, 1907, was a premise of the panic of November. During the intervening seven months prices dropped steadily, showing plainly that there was a weakness in the financial and industrial structure. The utter foolishness of blaming speculation for the downward movement is obvious. The stock market with its daily record of prices said as plainly as it was possible to say: "Danger! Stand from under!"
Something similar happened in 1803. Bradstreet's for July 20, 1803, shows that twenty representative stocks fell on an average 45 points, or more than 50 per cent, between January and July. This mitigated the effect of the panic.
One of the most striking illustrations of the cold blooded accuracy of the exchange is recorded by Proudhon in the Speculator's Manual, published at Paris in 1857, in which he shows that in the later days of Napoleon and the restoration, while French patriotism was at white heat, prices on the bourse advanced with each victory of the allies, reflecting the belief that the defeat of Napoleon meant more for France than the success.—John Paul Ryan in Metropolitan Magazine.

ROYAL SCHOOLMASTERS.

Kings Who Turned to Teaching to Make a Living.
In the early part of the life of King Christian IX. of Denmark there was no prospect of his ever becoming the ruler of that country. With this in view he became a schoolmaster at the German university of Halle.
Being too poor to keep a servant, the Dowager Czarina Dagnar of Russia, one of his daughters, used to help her mother to do the household work and take care of the younger children. During this period there were King Frederick VII. and several others in the direct line of succession that stood before Prince Christian; but, by a succession of deaths that occurred, he became the heir apparent, and after the death of King Frederick VII. in 1803 he was proclaimed King Christian IX. of Denmark.
Another instance of a similar nature is that of Louis Philippe. During the time he was exiled from France, then being the Duc de Chartres, he became a teacher of mathematics and geography in Switzerland. About thirty-six or thirty-seven years afterward, on Aug. 9, 1830, he was proclaimed King Louis Philippe of the French.—London Answers.

Puzzling Differences in Weights.

Which is heavier, a pound of feathers or a pound of lead? They weigh the same.
Which is heavier, a pound of feathers or a pound of silver? The pound of feathers is heavier, because feathers are weighed by avoirdupois weight, which has 7,000 grains to the pound, while the precious metals are weighed by troy weight, which has only 5,700 grains to the pound.
Which is heavier, an ounce of feathers or an ounce of silver? An ounce of silver, because in the troy ounce there are 480 grains, while in the avoirdupois ounce there are only 437½ grains. The avoirdupois pound of 7,000 grains is divided into sixteen ounces, while the lighter troy pound of 5,700 grains is divided into twelve heavier ounces.

The First "Coin Sweater."

"Coin sweating," which so often figures in the Old Bailey calendar, is a very, very old crime. More than six centuries before Christ there was a coin sweater, one Alexander of Byzantium. He was chief officer of the public treasury, and he amassed an immense and sudden fortune by "clipping" the money in so skillful a manner that his frauds could only be discovered by weighing. The Byzantines gave him the nickname of "The File" from his making such dextrous use of that tool, whence probably comes the modern term of "file" applied to thieves, pickpockets and cunning hard-headed scoundrels.

Clothing in China.

In winter throughout the cold latitudes of China the Chinese of all classes wear fur, wool or hair lined garments. Even the cool laborers have their sheep or goat skins, and people of the middle and official classes have many sets of garments lined with the richest furs. In China houses are rarely heated to the winter temperatures of European or American interiors, and in consequence fur lined clothes are worn indoors as well as out.

RECORD LOBSTER SHIPMENT FROM YARMOUTH TO BOSTON.

(Boston Herald, April 9.)

The labor of fully three thousand men was required to trap the lobsters filling 1,260 crates landed in Boston yesterday from Yarmouth by the steamship Boston. This shipment is the largest of the year and represents the Nova Scotia season at its height. Next Thursday, to be exact, will be mid-season day for the fishery in the provinces.

Yesterday's cargo was so large that some of it was lashed on the ship's upper deck, there being no room in the holds. Fifty cravans were kept busy for hours transferring the lobsters to wholesalers in Boston, who will place them in submerged cars to await orders that will dispose of them within three or four days. A commission merchant who accompanied the shipment from Yarmouth said that not more than three hundred crates of the lobsters will be consumed in Massachusetts, the remainder being sent to the far west and south, principally to Chicago and St. Louis.

The crustaceans brought by the Boston averaged about 220 pounds to the crate and 140 pounds per barrel. The catch was taken in water ranging from twenty to thirty-five fathoms deep and very cold along the stretch of coast from Digby to Lunenburg, the fishermen receiving fifteen cents for the large and five cents for the small. Each fisherman has specially marked crates which will be returned to him by the little steamer, fifteen or twenty of them, which make collecting trips and land the catches at Yarmouth. Two lobstermen work in a dory and the recent large catches are explained by the fact that the dories are fast being equipped with gasoline motors which effect a large saving of time over the old-fashioned sails and oars. Most of the fishing is done about the Tusket islands, 365 in number, where the tide rises and falls a matter of many feet. The lobstermen are able to work at slack water only and can haul and set about twenty traps during the short period when the tide is not running like a mill race.

In a week or ten days lobsters will be coming to Boston from the entire length of Nova Scotia, spanning the distance between Digby and Straits of Canso, and the Yarmouth boats will be expected to land in Boston anywhere from five hundred to one thousand crates three times a week till the close of the season, by law, puts a temporary stop to the industry. The Halifax season has proved a failure, though some lobsters are being shipped from that port.

TO ENCOURAGE MILITARY TRAINING.

Lord Strathcona has sent the Minister of Militia a cheque for $250,000 to create a fund of $10,000 a year for the encouragement of physical and military training in the schools of the Dominion. Lord Strathcona expresses the honor he would feel if his excellency, Earl Grey, would consent to be patron of the fund, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, vice-patron, and suggests that of a committee to administer the funds the Minister of Militia should be president and the ministers of education in the various provinces vice-presidents.

AEROPLANES AT SIXTY MILES AN HOUR.

Experts predict that aeroplanes will soon be flying at the rate of sixty miles an hour with a load of fifteen hundred pounds, and assert that a thousand at least can be turned out for what one Dreadnought will cost. When these dynamite scatterers swarm in the air, the dangers of naval operations will be absolutely appalling, and the nations will be compelled to form a league of peace for common defense.

SKIN TROUBLES

YOUR SKIN REFLECTS YOUR HEALTH!

JUST as your skin is, so is your health. If the pores of your skin are not acting properly, the wastes of your body are not getting away as they should, and this means that your kidneys, liver, lungs, and heart have to take on extra duty. Your skin requires periodical cleaning, just as the housewife knows that the stove requires periodical shaking down to make it burn brightly.

If you have any skin disease, scrofulous sore, festering ulcer, or an outbreak of pimples and eruptions, apply Zam-Buk. Apply it freely at night. Let its healing essences sink well in! You will be surprised at its wonderful healing power.

HOW ZAM-BUK REMOVES SKIN DISEASES.

Mrs. S. Jeans, of Queen Street, St. James, Winnipeg, says:—"Some time back pimples and sores broke out on my forehead, and spread over the whole of one side of my face and neck. Small red pimples, joining up into a kind of red rash, which discharged and then became very sore, was the form the disease took. The irritation from this was terrible, and whenever I went out of doors it was very painful. I consulted the family physician, who gave me a lotion to use. This only seemed to irritate the disease the more, and to cause more pimples to appear, so I left off using the lotion and began applying Zam-Buk. In a wonderfully short space of time this proved effective, and every pimple was removed from my face and neck, leaving my skin clear and smooth as before. I have had no return of this disease since, so I believe the cure is permanent. I have also used Zam-Buk for an open running wound on the calf of my right leg, which had troubled me for some time, and it cleared away all the foul matter and healed the wound up nicely."

Mr. William Purser, of 1385, Elgin Avenue, Winnipeg, Man., says:—"As a cure for skin diseases I do not think there is anything to equal Zam-Buk. Last year pimples and sores broke out all over my face, and defied various remedies which, from time to time, I applied to them. Not only were these sores unsightly, but they were very painful. For over two months I was afflicted in this way until I was advised to try Zam-Buk. I found this balm was entirely different to the ordinary remedies. It reduced the irritation and the smarting pain. The sores, from first being anointed with the balm, grew less and less angry, and then began to dry off. With perseverance I was able to clear my skin entirely from all the sores and eruptions. I highly recommend Zam-Buk to all who suffer from any skin disease."

Zam-Buk cures cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, piles, festering sores, ulcers, scalds, blood-poisoning, eczema, scabs, chapped hands, cold cracks, chilblains, ringworm, scalp sores, bid, leg, diseased ankles, and all other skin diseases and injuries. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, three for $1.25, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

FREE BOX. Send this coupon, name and date of paper, and 1c. stamp to the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. A free box will be mailed you.

JOHN LOCKETT AND SON

Seaman's Rules in Rhyme

When the passenger lies awake in his luxurious berth on board a modern ocean greyhound and vaguely wonders how the captain on the bridge manages to steer his way in safety through the pitch blackness of the night, he little thinks that he owes his peace of mind to the kindly efforts of a poet long since dead. Yet such is the case. Collisions at sea would be far more frequent than they are, had Thomas Grey, C. B. M. not lived and penned certain lines of rhyming verse.

As everybody knows, it is much easier to remember a fact which is stated in rhyme than one which is stated in prose; and schoolmasters have taken advantage of this by composing rhymed lists of the dates of British Kings and rhyming rules of Latin genders.

Mr. Thomas Grey realized that the same dodge might be adopted in teaching seamen, so that at a crisis, instead of having to use their brains in an effort of reasoning, they could fall back on the aid of an unforgettable jingle. For the peculiarity of a good rhyme is that once you have got it into your head you cannot get it out again. It comes back to you quite unasked, even if it has not been remembered for years.

Now the safety which the passenger enjoys on board ship is mainly due to the existence of what is called the rule of the road at sea. Just as when you are bicycling you have no fear when you meet another machine coming in the opposite direction, so in travelling by sea. On a cycle you know with absolute certainty that the man you are meeting will keep to his right. If there were no such law, to venture on a highway would be to risk your life. Similarly, if there were no rule of the road at sea, no sane man would ever embark upon the billows.

But obviously, at sea, there is no actual "road," so that the rule cannot be merely "keep to the left," or

YOU have to buy hats on faith, at best. Seems wisest, then, to buy a make that justifies all the faith you can show. That is the kind labelled like this:

WAKEFIELD LONDON

It pays to find the hat-store that sells them. A. A. ALLAN & CO., Ltd., TORONTO Wholesale Distributors for Canada

"Keep to the right." That would be too vague because as often as not a ship would be neither to the left nor to the right, but crossing your bows at right angles. The sea road rules, then, have to be more complicated, and for this reason might be harder to remember in a moment of excitement, than the one simple rule which suffices on land.

Probably the experienced captain after years of piloting his ship, in crowded waters and through every sort of weather, acts on the sea rule instinctively, without definitely repeating Mr. Grey's lines; but there can be no doubt that the young captain, almost losing his head in a serious situation when a collision is imminent, often steadies his nerves and reminds himself of his duty by repeating one of the following verses: When both side lights you see ahead, Port your helm and show your red.

That is to say, if both the red and green lights of an approaching steamer are visible, the steamer is coming straight on to you; by porting your helm you will clear it.

The second rhyme deals with the situation when two steamships are passing each other: Green to green, or red to red. Perfect safety—go ahead!

The third of Mr. Grey's rhymes is to be recalled when in the most dangerous position of all—that is, when two steamships are crossing. Mr. Grey's remarks: "There is nothing for it but a good look-out, caution, and judgment," and the rule, such as it is, runs as follows: If to your starboard red appears, It is your duty to keep clear. To act as judgment says is proper. To port or starboard—back, or stop her!

But when upon your port is seen A steamer's starboard light of green, There's not so much for you to do. For green to port keeps clear of you.

Finally there is a last piece of advice based on the essential rule that all ships must keep a good look-out, and steamships must stop and reverse if necessary—obviously because there are steamships and not dependent on the comparatively feeble and uncontrollable sails:

Both in safety and in doubt, Always keep a good look-out; In danger with no men in turn, Ease her! Stop her! Go astern!

How many lives these rhymes of Mr. Grey's have saved it would be impossible to calculate; but the recent accidents to naval vessels manoeuvring with "masked lights" give some hint of the appalling state of affairs which would ensue if the rule of the road at sea were left to the whim of each separate sailor.

Don't Paint the Floors

It seems that the womenfolk have been right all along in their prejudice against painted floors and their preference for polished hardwood. The doctors say now that any painted floor catches and holds dust about as badly as a carpet; and dust is known to be the vehicle of many diseases and therefore a menace to health, especially during winter. Dust can be practically excluded from any room, however, by coating the floors with Floorglaze, an ideal floor-finish which gives indoor or outdoor woodwork a beautiful, durable and glossy surface, in any of ten handsome shades. A floor finished with Floorglaze cannot harbor nor hide dust, and can be washed thoroughly clean in a very few minutes.

Floorglaze is an economy, because it will not show wear in many years, even under hard usage. Anybody who can use a brush can easily put it on right, and it will dry hard overnight. This perfect floor finish comes in tins, the sizes ranging from a pint to the gallon can that will cover 600 square feet. Dealers in almost every paint store sell Floorglaze, as well as the other first-rate paints and finishes made by Imperial Varnish & Color Co., Ltd., of Toronto, who send free a readable booklet you ought to request.

McKenzie and Mann's Position on the H. & S. W. Railway.

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

Mr. William MacKenzie was seen with regard to the Halifax despatch in yesterday's Mail and Empire, which stated that Premier Murray, of Nova Scotia, was in a quandary because of the failure of the Halifax & South Western Railway, which runs from Yarmouth to Halifax, to earn enough money to pay the interest on its bonds, guaranteed by the Nova Scotia Government.

Mr. MacKenzie was asked whether it was true that Mr. Murray was tired of the Premiership, and replied: "I don't know anything about Nova Scotia politics, but I should think Mr. Murray is all right where he is."

"Is there any truth in the statement that the bondholders, whose interest was guaranteed by the Government, are demanding payment from the Government?"

"There are no bondholders, so they can't be asking."

Mr. MacKenzie said: "There are no bonds for interest. The position is this—We built the road, expecting it would take some time to make it pay. The money was loaned by the Provincial Government on terms that, if the net earnings of the road for the first three years after its completion did not prove sufficient to pay the interest on the capital, the company would not be in default, but the interest would be added to the capital, and interest would be charged on it, till the loan was paid off. ### Making Old Apple Trees Pay

In the horticultural line few topics are of more interest to a greater number of farmers than the renovation of old orchards. There are thousands of old trees, some in orchards, some scattered about in fields, which would pay good returns if they could be thoroughly renovated and given a square deal. What to do with them is the question. Data just made public by the Massachusetts board of agriculture in its September crop report answer the question as satisfactorily as can be in a general way. The arguments are advanced by Prof. F. C. Sears, head of the Pomological Department at the State Agricultural College. At the outset the farmer will ask whether it will pay to make the attempt of getting the trees into such a better condition.

Replying to the question, Prof. Sears says it will depend, in his opinion, on four things: First, age and vigor of the trees; second, the stand of trees in the orchard; third, the varieties; fourth, whether the San Jose scale is in the orchard or immediate vicinity. If trees are vigorous with good trunks and main branches unaffected with Canker or other injuries to the bark, it has been my experience that they can be brought into a profitable condition, even though the tops are full of dead branches and have been systematically neglected for years, says he. It is surprising what can be done with an old orchard when it is taken in hand and given modern treatment. It must be remembered that the trunk is the highway by which the results of improved culture are transported back and forth from the roots to the top and if this highway is in a demoralized condition we are not going to get the best results.

The stand of trees makes a difference, for if half of them in an orchard are gone it will not pay to cultivate and fertilize all of the land for the few trees left. It is never satisfactory to grow anything else in such vacant places in an old orchard or even plant young trees in the vacancy. It is a different matter if trees are along fences, but in the orchard there ought to be, at least, a three-quarter stand to make it worth while.

The variety question is of least importance, though it has a bearing on the cost of the renovating process. It is possible to graft over the trees, but this is both an expensive and lengthy operation, and I should condemn an orchard to the brush heap which needed to be grafted, far more quickly than one which already had the right varieties in it. By right varieties I mean Baldwin, Rhode Island Greening, Roxbury Russet, etc., continues Prof. Sears.

I would feel much less like attempting to recover an old orchard which was infested with the scale or which was found near the infested orchard. Renovating an old orchard includes cultivation, pruning, spraying, fertilizing, cover crops, grafting, named perhaps in the order of their importance. I have placed cultivation first because, though trees will often do well in sod if otherwise well cared for, and though it sometimes may be necessary even in attempting to revive an old orchard to let the trees stand in sod, yet, as a rule, to get them into satisfactory condition, cultivation is the prime requisite and will do more than any other thing to start the orchard on the right road. After the plowing has been done it is always advisable to use the disk harrow and follow it with the spring-tooth harrow, going both ways with each one of them and over the land several times so as to get it in good tilth. After this, through the balance of the season, it is best to cultivate the land once every week or ten days up to perhaps the middle of July, making the cultivation thorough.

If the disk and spring-tooth harrow are available, it is well to run the former over first, the long way of the orchard, and then finish with the spring-tooth, the opposite way. This insures all the land being worked over and leaves it more level than if one finishes with the disk. It is difficult to overdo cultivation at this season of the year, and with an old neglected orchard I should feel inclined to let this be the principal feature of the program so far as the soil is concerned.

The second essential is pruning. This is apt to vary more in the extent to which it is needed, than in the character of it, which is best to apply, than any one of the other factors. If the trees are very high, with little or no bearing wood near the centre, as is apt to be the case, then they should be given very drastic pruning so as to grow an entirely new top, many feet nearer the ground than the old one. It will practically amount to the removal of all the top in perhaps two years, and the branches should be cut down at least 6 or 8 feet and sometimes much more. This seems like heroic treatment and it is, but in the great majority of cases, if the trees are otherwise healthy, they will send out a bushy top, which, with judicious thinning will make practically a new tree out of the old one. On the other hand, if trees are reasonably low, the pruning may consist largely in thinning the top throughout, beginning, of course, with the dead branches, and then taking enough live ones to leave the head fairly open to light and air and to the sprayer when that comes on the scene.

The fertilizer factor is naturally in close relation with the cultivation problem. I do not believe it desirable in these old orchards to apply any nitrogenous fertilizers.

I would use other fertilizers freely and would begin with a half ton of lime to the acre. My observation is very few orchards will not respond wonderfully to such an application. This need not be applied every year, only once in four or five years. In addition to this, I would give the yearly application of potash and phosphoric acid. Experiments seem to indicate that low-grade sulphate is the best form for the potash. If this is used 400 or 500 pounds, per acre, ought to be applied, annually, and it is better applied as early in the season as possible, and plowed under. I favor plowing under all fertilizers as it gets them down where the roots are and where they will be under such conditions as to make them most quickly available. In phosphoric acid one has the choice of several different forms, but probably the best two for the orchards are phosphate or basic slag, and one of the superphosphates or acid phosphate.

Finally comes the great question of cover crops for the orchard, by which is meant some crop grown usually late in the season and exclusively, or at least mainly, with the object of improving the soil of the orchard. This can be made to play a very important part in the upbuilding of the old orchard. Some of the best crops are buckwheat, rye, soy beans, cow-peas and vetches.

The chief advantages derived are that they take plant food away from the trees in the autumn, thus helping to ripen them up; that they catch and hold nitrates in the soil after the growth of the trees has stopped, and when these substances would otherwise be washed out of the soil; that they pulverize and rot down the sod, which is especially important at the beginning; that when they are plowed under, they furnish humus, which, in turn, furnishes plant food to the trees.

The general plan is to plow the orchard early in the spring, cultivate it thoroughly up to July 15th, and then sow on a cover crop. After cultivation ceases and cover crop is sown, nothing further is done to the soil till the following spring, when the cover crop is plowed under and the program begins again. I recommend the following quantities of seed: buckwheat, one bushel; rye, 1-1/2 bushels; soy beans, two bushels; broadcast, summer vetch, 1-1/2 bushels; broadcast, winter vetch, one bushel, broadcast. The farmer can take his choice of these crops for the one to use, but I favor buckwheat the first year as it aids in breaking down the sod.—N. E. Homestead.

AN ARROW AT A VENTURE.

The minister had just finished a little opening talk to the children, preparatory to the morning service, when Mrs. Berkeley suddenly realized, with all the agony of a careful housewife, that she had forgotten to turn the gas off from the oven in which she had left a nicely cooked roast, all ready for the final reheating. Visions of a ruined dinner and a smoky kitchen roused her to immediate effort, and borrowing a pencil from the young man in front, she scribbled a note. Just then her husband, an usher of the church, passed her pew. With a murmured "Hurry!" she thrust the note into his hand, and he, with an understanding nod, passed up the aisle, and handed the note to the minister. Mrs. Berkeley saw the act in speechless horror, and shuddered as she saw the minister smilingly open the note and begin to read. But her expression of dismay was fully equalled by the look of amazement and wrath on the good man's face as he read the words: "Go home and turn off the gas!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

A POLITE WAR.

A little boy, with an interest in the meaning of unfamiliar words, said to his mother: "What is the meaning of 'civil'?" "Kind and polite," answered his mother. A puzzled look brooded for a second on the boy's face. Then he said: "Was it a kind and polite war that was in this country once?"

Slimson—"What do you mean by giving that little boy in the next block such a terrible whipping?" Willie—"He didn't even know it, papa. You see, he's a Christian Scientist. All the boys practise on him and he doesn't even dare to tell his father and mother."

THE TEST OF THE HEART.

"Tis easy enough to be pleasant When life flows by like a song. But the one worth while Is the one who will smile When everything goes dead wrong. "For the test of the heart is trouble. The Easter music in all the churches is highly spoken of. In the English Church a strongly augmented choir with Mrs. Byers as soloist rendered a splendid program of music. We understand this music is to be repeated next Sunday. In the Methodist Church the choir was assisted by Miss Dimmock and Messrs. Hardwick and Faulkner, of Halifax. After the usual evening service a large congregation listened to an enjoyable sacred concert.

The services in St. Luke's were attended on Easter Day by large congregations. There were thirty-four communicants at 8 o'clock, and some sixty at 11. The church was redolent with the perfume of flowers. The Sanctuary Guild bought, and parishioners lent beautiful pots of white flowers, and Mrs. P. C. Whitman sent, from Bermuda, a large box of lilies. With the rich white hangings, the church was like a bride, adorned. Mrs. How and her reverent and loyal choir received many congratulations on the music. Mr. Cheese and Mrs. Byers very kindly assisted. The latter charmed a full church in the evening by a lovely solo. She will also sing on Low Sunday. The Gilpin Window, from Mayer & Co., Munich, Bavaria, was unveiled, after dedicatory prayers, by Mrs. Godfrey. It is a genuine 'work of art,' of high order. It represents the Resurrection of Christ. The figures (four) are veritable studies. The faces are characteristic. The eyes of Christ follow one from the lowest part of the nave up to the Sanctuary. The radiant body seems to turn. Everybody is delighted with the gift of Mrs. Croucher, of Yale, and the other members of the Gilpin family. The inscription is "To the glory of God, and in memory of Edwin Gilpin, Dean of Nova Scotia, his wife Amelia and their sons, Edwin and Arthur."
