GREAT PEACE QUESTION NOT YET SETTLED
No Agreement as to Sovereignty of Italy in Tripolitan Provinces

WOULD BE EASY AFTER THAT
Other Matters Are Secondary—Apprehension Over Balkan Matters Aroused in Constantinople by Decision for Army Manoeuvres

(Canadian Press)
London, Sept. 26—The Times' special correspondent at Ouchy, Switzerland, reports that the modified Turkish-Italian peace negotiations are going on, telegraphed under yesterday's date.

"This afternoon the Turkish and Italian delegates met at the Beauvauville Hotel here, where peace negotiations have been proceeding since July 12. It is expected to state that the various reports that have appeared in foreign newspapers with regard to the negotiations, are wholly unauthorized. No statement has been given to the press.

"The negotiations are being conducted in the strictest secrecy. The long reports in the Paris Temps and other newspapers purporting to give the basis of an agreement are pure inventions. The semi-official purporters have been proceeding quietly and unobtrusively, and have never been any deadlock, but the principal question, namely Italy's sovereignty over the Tripolitan provinces, has not yet been settled. This once settled, peace is likely to be concluded, as the other questions are of quite secondary importance. Consequently the negotiations might speedily be terminated or might continue indefinitely.

"One of the Turkish delegates, Fakhreddin Bey, Turkish minister at Cetinje, said: 'We are not pessimistic about the result.' I am asked to state that the King's visit to the Beaurvauville hotel on Saturday and Sunday last was purely private and had no connection with the negotiations.

ALBERTA PEOPLE FEAR THEY WILL NOT GET THEIR GRAIN OUT
Crop is 25,000,000 Bushels and Prospects are for Movement of Only Third Before Navigation Ends

(Canadian Press)
Calgary, Alta., Sept. 26—The prospective wheat crop of Alberta, this year, is estimated at about 25,000,000 bushels. The prospective amount shipped out of the province before the close of navigation will be less than 8,000,000 bushels or one-third of the crop.

The conditions in Alberta this year have been very favorable to the grain growers. Grain has been harvested a little earlier than last year and although threshing operations have been considerably hindered by the late season, the crop is estimated to be considerably higher than last year and in many districts the yield surpasses that of 1911.

In quality, the crop is uniformly excellent. The grain will be considerably higher than last year and in many districts the yield surpasses that of 1911.

There is no doubt now of the physical impossibility of the transportation of one half crop out of the country under present conditions. Last year only 7,000,000 bushels were shipped out before the close of navigation. The movement up to date this year is considerably less than that of the corresponding period last year.

SIR DONALD WANTS A CANADIAN NAVY AND BUILT AT HOME
Says Each of The Dominions Should Have One and Canada Should Guard Both Atlantic and Pacific Coasts—Favors Cash Contribution at Once

(Canadian Press)
Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 26—"I am firmly convinced," said Sir Donald Mann, in talking on the naval problem, "that Canada should give an immediate and worthy cash contribution to augment the number of ships of the imperial navy. The country should do something worthy of the place it holds in the empire and only by thus giving a cash contribution for immediate needs, can it atone for its remissness in the past."

"Furthermore," said Sir Donald, "I am entirely in favor of all the dominions having their own navies to operate a man-of-war and wherever practicable to sail by themselves."

"Canada should have two fleet units, one on the Atlantic and the other on the Pacific. That on the Atlantic should be a home fleet of the empire at a woman's notice. The fleet on the Pacific should be the Australian and Southern Pacific units generally. The fleet work of the Canadian navy should be to defend the shores of Canada against attacks. What would happen on the Pacific coast? These things would be in the hands of foreigners in short order, if any of their vessels escaped the British fleet."

"The fact that the Heppner passed five miles off the coast of the Straits of Belle Isle, could not cool the enthusiasm of the British fleet."

MRS. JUDSON CURRIE OF HARTLAND FINDS HUSBAND DEAD IN BED
He Was Deacon of Hartland Baptist Church—Worried Over Daughter Leaving for West

(Special Times)
Hartland, N. B., Sept. 26—Mrs. Judson Currie, aged seventy-eight was this morning found dead in bed. She had been suffering from heart disease and worried much over the departure of her daughter, Mrs. W. Estey, late of Fredericton, for Vancouver. Another daughter, Miss Sadie, accompanied her sister to McAdam and turns today. It was Mrs. Currie who found her husband in death.

His Son in the Lead in The Method of Checking and Reforming Those Who Start on Wrong Path—Explained in Detail

The application of modern principles in dealing with juvenile delinquents, minor offenders and even persons charged with more serious crimes, as illustrated in the State of Massachusetts was described in a most interesting manner by Adolph F. A. Schulz, probation officer of Dedham, Mass., in an interview with a Times reporter.

Mr. Schulz is in the lead in the method of checking and reforming those who start on a wrong path, and is taking advantage of the opportunity to look over this part of the country. Even on pleasure trips Mr. Schulz does not forget his life-work, and yesterday visited the county jail to see how prisoners are treated here. When asked for his opinion he seemed reluctant to discuss the subject, apparently being restrained by a polite desire to avoid hurting anyone's feelings. He is at the Dedham.

Manuscript, he said, took the lead in reforming the methods used in handling minor criminals and the success they have attained has been such that their system has been the model for improvements in many of the other states. While opposing revolutionary, the new system was the application of the Golden Rule and a little common sense. His aim was not to visit dire punishment upon a person, young or old, who happened to violate the law. They aimed instead at the reformation of the offender and his preservation, would have been a useful member of society. Even when reform was not possible, he did what he could to keep a man from becoming a burden to the community. The protection of the family was paramount in view, and whenever possible the disgrace and actual privation which would be caused by the imprisonment of the offender were avoided.

Parole Method is Basis
The probation or parole method was the basis of his system. A first offender was almost always given a chance to go free and avoid further trouble and even those who fell more frequently gave patience was shown. The work had been under the old system, would have been practically condemned to a life of crime were given, and took advantage of the opportunity to rectify their mistakes and gain their place among their fellow citizens without the prison stain on their career.

AUSTRALIA'S POSITION AS TO NAVAL DEFENCE
Favors Taking Part in Policing The Pacific—New Zealand to Join

London, Sept. 26—A special despatch to the Daily Mail from Melbourne states that Premier Borden's speech in Toronto, together with reports that Canada intends to make an offer of three super-dreadnoughts as an emergency contribution to the imperial navy, have aroused much attention in Australia and Australians are now realizing that they must stand on an equal footing with the other dominions in defence of the whole empire.

There is a genuine dread of the growth of Japanese influence in the Pacific, and though little is said on the subject, feeling is undoubtedly strong that Australia should show her readiness to play her part alongside with New Zealand and the United States of America, in policing the Pacific. Australians are, in fact, willing to bear taxation for those purposes.

Premier Fisher favors biennial naval authorities in the same way as the British. "I believe it is now best thinkers that eventually join in a defence," he said.

French Farmer Subject of First Operation of Its Kind
Paris, Sept. 26—A man's stomach has been removed and replaced with the stomach of an anthropoid ape, which is, of course, the same very close to man in the rising scale of development.

So joyous was as the recipient of the new stomach that at the first opportunity he became intoxicated. Naturally the ape had never been in liquor, but the stomach gave way as he drank. It did not suffer by being drenched in alcohol.

This operation and the restoration of the diseased part is the first of its kind in the world. The patient was a farmer, twenty-seven years old, whose stomach had been worn out.

Mr. Marconi was driving at the time, and the automobile with which his car collided was practically wrecked by the force of the impact. It belonged to a lawyer named Belmonte, who was severely bruised about the breast, while his son's teeth were all broken.

Mr. Marconi's secretary was rather badly hurt, his arm being dislocated.

Reminiscences Concerning Napoleon III, and Their Author - Trellis Work Masts for Warships a Failure

Now that the "Reminiscences concerning Napoleon III" by "Baron d'Ambes" have been translated from the French into English, and have received so much publicity in the press, the interest in the mystery prevailing, as to the identity of the baron, has been revived.

It is admitted that the name "Baron d'Ambes" is fictitious. Inasmuch as the author claims to have known Napoleon III. from childhood and to have been with him at Arenberg, in Switzerland, a claim substantiated by descriptions of incidents of the early youth of Napoleon III. there, manifestly told by an eye-witness, the inquiry into the identity of the baron is narrowed down, for Napoleon III. in his boyhood and early youth had but few playmates at Arenberg. In fact, the names of every one of them were well known.

The young Prince Charles Anthony of Hohenzollern, whose mother had been Princess Antoinette Murat and a most intimate friend of Queen Hortense, his sister Amelia, who died as Princess of Saxe-Altenburg, and the two children of Napoleon's wet-nurse, Hortense and Eugene Lacroix. The Lacroix' mother remained a member of Queen Hortense's household until the latter's death, and her two children, her boy and girl, were brought up entirely with the future emperor of the French at Arenberg as his foster-brother and sister.

Eugene became a wonderfully clever architect, while Hortense Lacroix, who was also a goodly painter, and continued throughout her life and that of Napoleon III., as the latter's most interested and faithful friend and adviser, her influence being all the more powerful in that it was ignored by the general public and even by some of the principal statesmen and politicians of the Napoleonic era. Hortense Cornu always remaining in the background.

It is a matter of common belief that King Charles of Roumania owed the nomination to his throne at Bucharest in 1880 to France, but this is not the case. His candidature was initiated by Emperor Napoleon, at the instance of Mme. Cornu, who, when Napoleon discussed with her son, who would be a suitable ruler of Roumania, suggested the name of Charles of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen as being the son of their former playmate at Arenberg, Charles Anthony of Hohenzollern. It was, again, who suggested the candidature of another son of Charles Anthony, the late Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern, to the vacant throne of Spain in 1870. This candidature was initiated by Napoleon, who was subsequently compelled to withdraw it, owing to the popular outcry raised in France against a Hohenzollern becoming King of Spain.

Indeed, Napoleon was later on driven by his subjects to declare war upon Germany because the King of Prussia refused to give a pledge that Leopold of Hohenzollern would never accept at any future time the Spanish crown. Both Prince Leopold and his brother King Charles of Roumania, were always described by Hortense as "the little boys," while they in their return invariably referred to her and wrote to her as "Mama Hortense."

Hortense Cornu was born in 1813, and was thus three or four years older than Napoleon III. This age difference, coupled with that of the pseudo "Baron d'Ambes" as indicated by himself in his reminiscences.

The Baron in his reminiscences states that on the eve of the coup-d'etat on December 1, 1851, a conference took place at his house in Paris, enumerating the people who were present besides himself. Now there was no "Baron d'Ambes" who took part in that conference, but the one person whose name he did not mention as having attended it, was Mme. Cornu, and it took place at her residence, according to contemporary memoirs by participants in the coup-d'etat.

Then, too, there is in the Ambes memoirs a tone of warm personal affection for Napoleon, and yet at the same time a sort of detached impartiality, which enables the writer to criticize and, in some cases condemn, the emperor's acts and policy, without the slightest suspicion of prejudice. Now the only person who was wont to do this, and moreover the only one of Napoleon's intimates who was wont to speak and to write of Empress Eugenie with indulgence, if not with regard, was Hortense Cornu. Eugenie appreciated this, and a few hours before Napoleon's death, she sat down at Chislehurst and wrote a long and most affectionate letter to Mme. Cornu, describing the terrible sufferings undergone by the emperor, and opening her heart to her on the subject of her own sorrows.

Sebastian Cornu, whom Hortense had married long before there was any question of Napoleon's obtaining the throne of France, was, like so many artists of the day, imbued with revolutionary sentiments of the most advanced character. It must be remembered that in those days Napoleon III. himself was a revolutionary, and a member of those carbonari bands of conspirators which were bent upon driving the Bourbons and the Hapsburgs out of Italy and upon amalgamating all the petty sovereignties of the peninsula into one united nation.

Be Your Own Companion

By RUTH CAMERON

"Be able to be alone." - Sir Thomas Browne. Are you good company for yourself? A young woman in the course of a vacation trip was left alone for a few days in a strange city where she did not know a single person. When the friends for whom she was waiting joined her, they were loud in their expressions of sympathy for the terrible boredom she must have suffered.

"Why, I had a lovely time," she said. "What did you do?" "Well, I went shopping and then went out to the park and looked at the animals. Then I walked up and down the avenue and watched the people, and thought about them and what they were doing. Altogether, the time just flew by."

"And you weren't lonely?" "I suppose I could have made friends with some of the women at the house, but, do you know, I didn't really care to. I was contented with a smile, that I'm pretty good company for myself."

There are a great many people to whom there is no prospect more terrifying than that of a few hours with only their own selves for company. To escape that terrible catastrophe, they will make friends with the most fearful bore or read the most stupid story.

Consider if they realize, when they do that, what a commentary they are making on their own bore-omeness. If each people are marooned a few hours, not only without human companionship, but even without a book or magazine with which to screen their own stupidity from themselves, they are fairly frantic. "The safest way of not having any thoughts of your own," someone has said, "is to take up a book every time you have nothing to do."

In these days of cheap and copious reading matter, that is exactly what three-fourths of us do. It is it any wonder, then, that most of us do seem to be rather short on thoughts of our own and not very successful as companions for ourselves? Could you enjoy just watching a crowd of people pass by? Could you be happy alone in a strange city? Could you enjoy a long walk in the country by yourself? In short, are you "able to be alone?"

admittances, became intimately acquainted with all the leaders of the revolutionary movement in Italy and France, and it was through her that Napoleon after becoming emperor was able to communicate with them, to explain the difficulties which he encountered in establishing a liberal and constitutional government in France, and of fulfilling, as a monarch, all the pledges which he had made in his youth as a confidant to bring about the unification of Italy.

Indeed, the forbearance with which the revolutionists in France, and those of Italy, treated him, until Sedan, in 1870, was largely due to Mme. Cornu's intervention in his behalf, and while her association with him, with the emperor, and with the Hohenzollerns of Sigmaringen, was well known to the revolutionists, yet it never in the slightest degree affected their entire trust and confidence in her or their deference to her judgment. (Gambetta was one of her most fervent admirers, and benefited time and again by her advice; while it was in compliance with her recommendations that the multi-millionaire revolutionist and socialist, Cornuschi, bequeathed his magnificent art collections, along with the palace which contained them, to the City of Paris.)

Admiral of the Fleet, Sir Edward Seymour, will be interested to learn of the determination of the United States government to abandon the skeleton or trial, and to send the skeleton to the United States at the time of the Hudson-Fulton celebration, he gave a great deal of attention to these matters, carefully examined them, and asked all sorts of questions of them. Finally he came to the conclusion that they were undesirable, and calculated to prove an embarrassment in times of peace as well as in time of war. He told me this at dinner one night on board his flagship, Indefatigable.

As Sir Edward holds in the British navy the rank equivalent to that of field marshal in the army, and a great amount of war service to his credit, almost any other man in the British navy, and though trained in the old school, he kept thoroughly abreast of the times in all matters relating to his profession, his remarks made a considerable impression upon my mind, and it may be timely to recall them now that the experiments with the skeleton mast on the wreck of the San Marco in Tangier Sound have proved how easily the steel lattice-work could be shot to splinters.

INDIAN GRIDDLE CAKES. Two eggs, 1 pint of sour milk, 1 teaspoon of soda, salt, and a little flour and meal enough for a pretty thin batter.

MOCK MINCE PIE. Scant cup of sugar, 1 cup of chopped raisins, 1 egg, 1 cup sour milk, 12 even teaspoon cloves, 12 even teaspoon cinnamon, tablespoons of stewed organberries, pinch of salt. This makes two pies.

PLAIN WHITE CAKE. One cup sugar, 1 rounding tablespoon of butter (possibly a bit more, I go by guess), Beat well, 1 egg and beat again, 1 cup sweet milk with 1/2 good teaspoon soda dissolved, 1 good teaspoon cream of tartar & about 2 cups of flour. Vanilla flavor, bit of salt.

For Home Bread Makers. Thousands of letters from satisfied users of White Swan Yeast Cakes prove that it is a good reliable yeast. If your grocer doesn't sell them advise White Swan Spices & Cereals, Limited, Toronto, Ont., and ask for free sample.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING IN FINLAND. An article in the London Standard indicates the following: "A striking proof of the excellent work which can be performed by a small parliamentary majority is furnished in the record of the legislative bill brought in by the women members of the Finnish parliament. They include such progressive measures as the establishment of laws for child protection, raising of the marriage age from fifteen to eighteen years, organization of colonies for youthful criminals, the right of woman to assist in the department of public medicine. Bills awaiting decision deal with maternity insurance, establishment of government midwives, appointment of women as factory inspectors, and the removal of sex disqualifications in all departments of the government."

Tradesmen Begin to Think They Have Gone Too Far

SEE CHANCE OF A BOYCOTT

Views of Belfast Banker on Home Rule Question—Opposed, But Not Really so Afraid as Extremists Would Have it Believed

(Times' Special Correspondence)

Dublin, Sept. 14.—The north is full of rumors about measures of retaliation which it is believed the south and west will adopt in case the Ulster "die hard" carry out their programme of resisting home rule by force. So far as can be found out there is little foundation for them except the fact that Belfast and who see that habitual denunciation of one's best customers is not the best conceivable business policy.

So far the principal suggestions which have been made—and which come from Belfast itself—are a boycott of the Belfast traders by the west of Ireland, a repudiation of debts to Belfast, and a hold up of improvement and development grants to the north by the Irish parliament. Belfast's prosperity rests on two foundations—one is her linen manufacturing and shipbuilding trades and as far as these are concerned she is to some extent independent of the rest of Ireland. The other, and almost equally important foundation, is her position as the wholesale distributing center for Ireland.

Dry goods merchants, grocers, tobacconists, ironmongers and retailers of all kinds in every corner of Ireland, buy their goods in Belfast. Belfast commercial travelers are met in the villages of Connacht and the towns of Leinster and Munster. Belfast banks collect, through their local agencies, the money of all Ireland, and distribute it again to finance agriculture, manufacturing and commerce in every corner of the land. A settled policy of boycott against Belfast would ruin this great trade. Irish traders could with little inconvenience go to Manchester or London to buy and English wholesalers will not be slow to send their agents after the Irish trade if they see a chance of capturing it.

So far there is no indication of any organized movement of this kind against Belfast, but the travelers have been bringing back stories of warnings from their customers that have made the Belfast business men uncommonly uneasy. It is said that a few orders have been cancelled already.

A natural corollary of this is that Belfast is in the position of creditor to all the rest of Ireland. It is conceivable that if "Ulster" were in rebellion against the Irish government it might be a good "war measure" for the rest of Ireland to repudiate its debts to Ulster and one can hardly expect the Irish government to turn itself into a collecting agency for a rebellious province.

The third feature in the possible policy of retaliation is equally feasible. The most active anti-home rulers in Ulster, for instance, are the farmers in the Valley of the Bann. Now the Bann, like the men who live in the valley, is a most unruly river, given to overflowing its banks at the most inconvenient seasons, and inflicting untold damage on the farmers. For years they have been appealing to the British government to carry out an extensive drainage scheme, including the canalization of the river, but nothing has been done. Naturally an improvement of this kind would be one of the first cares of the Irish government, but again why should it spend its money on helping rebels against its authority?

See the Danger

There are signs, however, that the serious business men of Belfast are waking up to the danger of their position. A high official of one of the big Belfast banks, who said that he voiced the sentiments of this class, declared the other day that there had been far too much wild talk about resisting home rule. "I don't like home rule," he said, "and I believe we should do all we can in a peaceful way to defeat it, but I am no rebel, and I hold that once it is passed we should make the best of it."

"I don't agree with all this abuse of our Nationalist and Catholic countrymen. They are just the same kind of people as we and just as good and honest as we are. And if they wanted to discriminate against us they could not do it without hurting their friends as much as they hurt us."

"Suppose it were possible for them to put an extra tax on Belfast or on the industries on which Belfast thrives. There are nearly as many Catholics as Protestants in business there and they would be hit equally by us. Then is absurd to talk about their trying to ruin our industries. Where would they get their taxes from if they did? Their policy, if they are sensible men, and I believe they are, will be to foster the prosperity of Belfast in every way, and through it the prosperity of all the rest of Ireland."

The same man said that he and all the rest of the same Belfast men thought that a terrible responsibility rested on Lord Londonderry and Sir Edward Carson for their wild talk of armed resistance to home rule. "Whatever happens," he said, "I am afraid there will be some street rioting in Belfast and some of the other northern towns. If the home rule bill were to pass at once I am afraid there would be a show of organized resistance, but I don't believe that they will be able to keep the level-headed, sensible men of the north worked up for two years to the pitch at which they are now. Our people are beginning to see the absurdity of it all and I hope and believe that in another year they will have made up their minds that resistance is useless and that the only thing for them to do is to make friends with their neighbors and work with them for the general good of the country."

"After all," he concluded with a smile, "we don't think England has made such a good job of governing us as she might. I suspect that at bottom we would not object a bit to home rule if we were to be the rulers. What we are afraid of is being ruled by the other fellows, who, we have been taught to believe, are ruled by their church, but I for one, think we can trust to their Irish sense of honesty and decency."

The phenomenon of trees growing in a church is to be seen in the parish church of Ross, on the Wyre. The tradition has it that they grew out of the grave of the Man of Ross, a local philanthropist of the 18th century, immortalized in a well-known poem by Pope. At present the trees are bare and leafless, but an artificial greenness is imparted to them by graceful trails of a Virginia creeper that festoons them.

facilities are provided. Each contains a kitchen, which may be used as a photographic darkroom. In the basement, a kitchen is provided for the joint use of all the tenants.

In this kitchen the house cook takes all the tenants' orders, buys the supplies, does the cooking and serves the meal. Each tenant pays pro rata for the goods obtained; in fact, it is an imitation of the English catering plan used in these flat-houses which are called "mansions" in London slang.

The Paris house also contains a garage, which allows a tenant who is able to drive a car to dispense with a chauffeur. A reasonable rent is charged for its use and the cleaning. In short, the proprietor said, the house will enable the tenants to give up servants altogether, except perhaps one maid, but he adds, with Parisian cynicism, "I don't doubt that it will keep four or five, all the same."

COMMERCIAL PARALYSIS COMPLETELY CURED

"Fruit-a-tives" Performs Another Miracle

Bristol, N. B., July 23th, 1911. "I had a stroke of Paralysis in March, 1910, and this left me unable to walk or help myself, and the Constipation of the Bowels was terrible. Nothing did me any good and I was wretched in every way. I then took 'Fruit-a-tives' for the Constipation, but it not only cured me of this terrible trouble, but gradually this fruit medicine toned up the nerves and actually cured the Paralysis. By the use of 'Fruit-a-tives,' I grew stronger and stronger until all the Paralysis and weakness left me. I am now well again and attend my store every day. I say 'Thank God for 'Fruit-a-tives'!"

ST. JOHN MAN WAS ONE OF THE 2,500

C. J. Hay, Home From St. Louis Speaks of Recall Convention

After attending the Recall convention in St. Louis, C. J. Hay of this city, who was representing Wasson's Drug Store, returned to the city on Tuesday day well pleased with his trip and the results attending the conference. He lasted for four days and was a distinguished success. The meetings, which were held in the Coliseum, were attended by representatives of the Recall convention from all parts of North America and Great Britain, numbering in all about 2,500. An official address was made by the mayor of St. Louis. During the convention, matters of general interest to the Recall delegates were considered and addresses of an interesting and profitable nature delivered. On one of the days of the meeting the Canadian delegates, who numbered thirty, held a banquet which was most enjoyable. The Canadians won distinction in capturing the loving cup presented by the company for competition in the most original piece of advertising as their specimens were considered the best.

Mr. Hay was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. A. S. Hay, and was the only local delegate, acting for Mr. Wasson, representing his store here.

CASCARETS CLEANSE LIVER AND BOWELS

The Millions of Cascaret Users Never Have Headache, Constipation, Biliousness or Sick Stomach. It is more necessary that you keep your bowels, liver and stomach clean, pure and fresh than it is to keep the perspiration and drainage of a large city free from obstructions. Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets or merely forcing a passageway through the bowels with cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important. Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the acid, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the constipated waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels. No odd how badly and upset you feel, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A box of Cascarets from your druggist will keep your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleanser, too.

MORE ABOUT STEEL WORKS FOR ST. JOHN

Very definite reports of the nature of the steel and iron industry which is to be established at Courtenay Bay are current in Fredericton following a visit by W. F. Parsons, chief engineer of the Drummond Iron Mines at Middle, N. S. It is understood that the Messrs. Drummond are interested in the proposed start a huge iron and steel works at St. John in connection with the proposed dock and steel shipbuilding plant. It is said that the plant which is proposed to establish would have two blast furnaces of 250 tons daily capacity each, connected with which there would be a rolling mill and bar steel works. Such a plant would employ 1,000 men and St. John is declared to be an ideal site for the industry. "One opens to handle the by-products would doubtless be established and it is said that St. John would then have 50 cent gas. Such a plant as proposed would use 3,000 tons of raw material daily, the plant being operated 365 days in the year, and this ore would be supplied from the Drummond Mines at Gloucester, N. B., and Torbrook, N. S.

TWO QUEENS AGAINST PAT HANDS

Notable Poker Play Which Wound up Harry Wilder's Career

SHARP PLAYERS SURPRISED

Stranger in New York Game Who Proved Himself an Expert at Sleight of Hand With The Cards

"I read in a San Francisco paper the other day that one George Graham, who died in some hospital in that city, recently was supposed to be the man who was known as Harry Wilder about 40 years ago, said the gray-haired, young-looking man in the club smoking room. And he looked around somewhat curiously to see if anybody seemed to remember Harry Wilder. Nobody did.

"Wilder was a gambler," he continued, after a little pause, "and he was first one I ever knew who seemed to realize all the possibilities of a gambler's career. It was no uncommon thing in those days any more than it is now to see across professional gamblers who understand a great deal about sleight-of-hand, but he was the first one I ever saw who seemed to have as much skill in manipulating playing cards as the original Hermann himself.

"I have myself seen him win a large pot under circumstances that left no moral doubt of the fact that he won by sleight of hand. It might have passed for one of those miracles of luck that will happen in the best regulated poker games if it had not been for the other gambler who we all knew about him, but as it was it was perfectly apparent that he was the author of his own success. It seems as if he had determined, in a spirit of bravado, to make a remarkable series of exploits with one so daring and original as to excite wonder and admiration. The gambler who was the last to play before disappearing, and so far as I know he never came back here afterward.

"At that time Union Square was practically the uptown centre of the New York. In the immediate neighborhood could be found everything that made the young metropolis ever so attractive. One of the centres of the earth for those who craved excitement.

"When Harry Wilder came to New York from nobody knew where, he went to Union Square. You couldn't have kept him away with guns. He was perfect stranger to everybody. So far as I know and believe he never had a confederate. Certainly he played a long hand in New York, but it was only a matter of time before he was seen in the world sitting up and taking particular notice.

"He strolled into Chris O'Connor's billiard place, and making himself comfortable in one of the many chairs provided for the patrons, he sat down and waited, that were going on while he waited. He knew or surmised that he wouldn't have to wait long, and when the young dandy of the day asked him in a friendly way if he cared to play a game of pool.

"It was the old story with a variation; of course, the young fellow was an expert, but Mr. Wilder was the first to play a game and then proposed a bet. Then he let Wilder win a game or two more and offered to increase the bet.

"It was just what Wilder wanted, and he took his turn at losing till the young shark was convinced that had secured a victim. But when it came to important money Wilder won every time by so narrow a margin and with such dumb luck apparently that the shark kept on till he had exhausted his resources. And next day Wilder went to the billiard parlor that was talked of for a long time in poker circles. He won and lost at successive intervals in a way that indicated ability but no great gifts on his part, such as would enable him to do up the crowd. Those who were watching him were of the opinion that the combined talent in the party would eventually succeed in putting him out of the game. And there were not a few who looked forward with satisfaction to his eventual discomfiture.

"The last night he played there there were six in the game. One was the politician having a challenge of one or two fool systems such as an beginner learns about while he is being trimmed. Another was a man who knew a good deal about '818 and around at the Gotham by having a challenge of one or two fool systems such as an beginner learns about while he is being trimmed. Another was a man who knew a good deal about '818 and around at the Gotham by having a challenge of one or two fool systems such as an beginner learns about while he is being trimmed.

"After that he was steered into Petry's place in Laparand street and Petry dealt: faro himself one evening while Wilder sat across the table, but never again. I don't know the truth about that game, but it was said that Wilder took quite a wad away from there.

"You may say that was luck, and probably it was. There isn't much skill in faro except in handling the box. But it wasn't luck, or it didn't look like it, when Wilder trimmed some of the best poker players in the city, as he certainly did the night I was looking on at the game in the old Morton House.

"If there were any better players in the country than the little bunch that met there, night after night, Harry Hill was a man who knew a good deal about all kinds of sport and he testified in court once that one of the party, a politician in his day, was the best short card player that he ever knew.

"They played a stiff game, too, for money was plenty in the crowd, and there were frequently be half a dozen spectators of the game. It was pretty well known where the members of the party could be found at night and men who wanted to see them for one thing or another were often admitted and some times stayed to look on.

"Wilder's reputation as a sport was soon established and there was nothing strange about the fact that an opportunity was made for him to play at this particular game. Nor did it seem strange afterward that he availed himself of the opportunity, not eagerly, mind you, but with the cool assurance of a man that was always prepared to enter a contest of wit.

both stood pat, but Wilder showed no perturbation as he laid down face up and remarked that he would take three cards. The others stared in amazement when they saw that he had only had a pair of queens and the manager exclaimed: "What kind of poker is this? I didn't think anybody outside of a lunatic asylum would bet $5,000 on a pair of queens." "O! I don't know," said Wilder. "Out west we call two queens a pretty good hand before the draw."

"And he discarded and taking a card from the top of the deck that lay beside him he turned it over and laid it on the table. It was a trey and the manager shouted in derision. "But Wilder coolly turned over the next card. It was a queen. "There he said 'I can make four or a queen full with the next card. Do you want to bet any more?' "Oh, play poker," said the manager, "if you understand the game. This looks to me like highway robbery. I'm ashamed to take your money."

"Very well," said Wilder, taking his last card and laying it with his others without looking at it. Then he pulled a $1,000 bill from his pocket and put it in the pot.

SCOTCH REGIMENTS FOR SPECIAL DUTY IN BELFAST

Government Prepared For Trouble on Saturday—Unionists Fear They Have Gone Too Far

Belfast, Ireland, Sept. 25.—Regiments of Highland Light Infantry and Scottish borders will be drafted into Belfast tomorrow morning in anticipation of trouble on Saturday, Sept. 28, when the covenant in defiance of home rule is to be signed by Unionists. The Royal Irish Rifles, already stationed here, are confined to barracks in readiness for emergency.

More than 1,000 members of "Young Citizens Volunteers of Ireland" were enrolled tonight. The new organization is to assist when called upon by the civil authorities in the maintenance of peace.

The demonstration at Fortadoon today was one of the most remarkable of the campaign, owing to the display of armed force and the enormous number of Orangemen and Unionists who assembled to greet Sir Edward Carson and other Unionist leaders. Sir Edward declared that they were performing the obsequies of home rule.

London, Sept. 25.—Unionists in a responsible position are nervous lest, having raised a whirlwind in Ulster, Sir Edward Carson and Lord Londonderry should be unable to control it.

David Glover, a sheep raiser, near Hayneville, Pa., to protect his flock against stampedes, has purchased two angora goats and placed them with the sheep. The pugnacity of these goats is said to be such that no animal of prey dares run the risk of an encounter with them.

NEW SENSATION IN I. C. R. PASS INVESTIGATION

Witness Swears Prominent Conservative Had Hundreds of Unpunched Railway Tickets

Moncton, N. B., Sept. 25.—Today's session of the I. C. R. pass inquiry brought out evidence which has caused quite a sensation about town. The testimony of Joseph Bourque given near the close of the afternoon session involved a prominent Conservative, Dr. L. N. Bourque, who is on friendly terms with the I. C. R. officials and well known in this part of the province.

The evidence of Joseph Bourque to the effect that he had seen half a peck of unpunched I. C. R. tickets in Dr. Bourque's office, and that the latter used a wooden mallet in punching the tickets till the date disappeared, and then related the tickets, came as a big surprise.

Charles Wright, an employee of the I. C. R. and clerk in the office of the mechanical accountant in 1911. About eight passes were enclosed in a pass from Dr. Bourque, and Dr. Bourque stated it was impossible for him to come today, as he had passed but some of the stolen ones. He would come tomorrow.

Fowler—"I had better come and let his story go out to the public with the other men's."

G. A. Bell, departmental auditor of the railways and canals, testified to holding an investigation sometime in 1909 in Moncton in connection with the misuse of passes. He had power to examine witnesses under oath. He went into the different rooms in the I. C. R. general office building. He had talked with Mr. Hawke and went to his office.

He heard of street rumors about Dr. Murray, who practically denied having been implicated. Witness saw Ferguson, the reporter, while he was in the Transcript office. He had not seen Vye. He understood he had left the country.

"By whom was your informant to examine witnesses?" "Mr. Butler, if I remember right. There was a letter of instructions. I am not positive about that. It is a matter of record."

"I could not say. I remember I went fully, whether verbal or written, into the system. They had a very loose system. Witness did not have the report with him. He said: "It's a matter of record."

This concluded the taking of the evidence for the day and the enquiry was adjourned until a date to be fixed by the commissioner.

Health and Beauty Helps BY MRS. MAE MARTYN

Mrs. J. S. Wrinkles and other marks of approaching old age which now worry you are very common. However, you will not have to worry if you will follow this simple treatment: Apply to your face every night a greaseless cream-jelly made by mixing two teaspoonfuls glycerine and one ounce alcoholin into one-half pint cold water. Stir and let stand several hours before using. Massage the face gently with this cream. It will remove all dirt and excess oil from the skin pores, and time you will not have a rough, wrinkled face, but a fresh, smooth, clean-looking skin of velvety texture. I also find this preparation excellent for removing tan, sunburn, blackheads, freckles and large pores in the skin.

Juliet: Yes, any one afflicted with superfluous flesh is always at a big disadvantage, whether married or single. To get rid of that annoying fat, stop at our druggists the next time you are downtown and get four ounces of paraffin take a tablespoonful three times a day (five minutes before each meal), and it will tone up your skin wonderfully and quickly. It makes the skin soft and smooth, and it removes that shifty, "sandy" look which is so annoying to you. You will find this lotion much better to use than the "powdered look." I find this apparatus lotion is excellent for removing and preventing freckles, chapping and roughness of the skin.

R. P. N.: To whiten and beautify your face, neck and arms, dissolve four ounces of spumax in a half-pint which hazel or hot water, adding two teaspoonfuls glycerine and one ounce alcoholin. You will find this lotion much better to use than the "powdered look." I find this apparatus lotion is excellent for removing and preventing freckles, chapping and roughness of the skin.

Mrs. R. P.: If your hair is getting so thin that you have to wear false hair, you should begin at once a treatment to rid your scalp of dandruff which is the direct cause of all scalp and hair troubles. It will mix together an ounce of quinine, one-half pint of alcohol (not whiskey) and one-half pint of cold water. Rub this gently into the roots of the hair twice a week, and it will rid the dandruff, stop your falling hair and in time promote a new growth of hair. This quinine remedy applied regularly will make your hair soft.

Chinese women are now engaged in organizing an unusually interesting and important congress. The president announced as its programme the complete equality of the sexes and the suppression of polygamy, slavery and prostitution. The National Council of Chinese Women is to be organized in six sections, and branches will be established in every town throughout the empire.

SENORITAS IN DUEL

Mexico City, Sept. 25.—A scantily clad senorita, limping into town in her bare feet in the early morning hours, brought to light a tale of romance which ended in a duel with a local theatre, each strove to win the affection of Carlos Garcia, a gold-digger knight of the cape.

Maria, known as "La Minuca," which translated means "The Doll," appeared in desperation she proposed a duel with another senorita, to which Carolina agreed. Accordingly the two took a taxicab to a point far out on the "Calzada de Tlalpam," a lonely road at that hour of the night. Here, according to the police, they fought until Carolina fell to the ground, slashed in a dozen places.

The victorious Maria then proceeded to relieve her defeated rival of mantilla and other portions of her clothing, including her shoes and stockings. Both young women were arrested. La Carolina is being cared for in the city hospital under guard.

On Homestead for Six Months.
Edmonton, Alta., Sept. 25—Bill Hurley, Ducky Holmes, Fred Manning, Joe Thean and Phil Delia, known to baseball fans all over the Pacific northwest and inter-mountain country, through playing with organized teams in Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho and Montana, also in the midwestern states and in the province of Alberta, have gone to their homesteads near St. Paul, Minn. and Bill Hurley, 50 miles northeast of Edmonton, where they will pass the next six months in improving their properties.

Harley and Manning going in for grain and livestock, while Thean, Delia and Flanagan will devote their efforts to mixed farming. Harley is a chicken fancier and may add a few coops of fancy fowl. He is interesting other professionals in homesteading, probably with a view to organizing a team composed entirely of farmers.

The World's Series.
New York, Sept. 25—The opening game of the world's baseball series will be held in this city on Tuesday, Oct. 8. The games will alternate between here and Boston, one game in each city, until the series is concluded.

The loss of a coin decided which city was to get the opening game. President McAleer, of the Boston club, chose heads; the coin fell tails and the game went to New York.

A second toss, with similar results, fixed the opening game for Tuesday, Oct. 8. The Boston club preferred Monday, Oct. 7. The Boston club will control the sale of tickets in this city. This is a victory for Ban Johnson in the American League.

The umpires selected were: National League, Klen and Rigler; American League, O'Loughlin and Evans.

In New York, the sale of tickets will be handled by the national commission. Boston has worked out a plan, it was announced, whereby tickets would be delivered so far as is practicable to persons who have already made application. The applications have been filed and they have been notified to send the money. Tickets, good for three games each, will be issued.

In New York, with a view to defeating the speculators, the only seats reserved are a block of $200 in the upper grand stand. Seats in the lower grand stand and bleachers will be sold at the Polo grounds and each person purchasing a ticket must pass into the grounds.

CUT PLAYERS OFF FROM ALL LIQUOR DURING SEASON

Barney Dreyfus, who controls the Pittsburgh Pirates, has started a movement among the Major League magnates to insert a clause in the players' contract prohibiting the use of intoxicating liquor in any form during the championship season. Dreyfus does not believe a halfway mark which will permit tired and thirsty players to enjoy a few glasses of lager beer after a hard game. He says that players enjoying such privileges forget all about moderation and go to extremes. The Pittsburgh magnate, it is said, differs from the team manager, Fred Clarke, on this point and it is determined to have his own way.

Rumors have been circulated that conviviality has prevented the Pirates from finishing close to the Giants this year. It has been broadly hinted that the slump of one expensive player has been due to too freely indulging in beer. Dreyfus has made up his mind to begin a crusade which, it is believed, will meet with more than passing favor, says the New York Sun.

It would seem very long ago that Connie Mack of the Athletics suspended and Chief Bender and Babe Odling for violating the club rules. It will be recalled that Wolverton had to fire pitcher Caldwell of the Hillmen and suspended him without pay for behaving that could not be overlooked. Frank O'Day of the Cincinnati Reds was forced to take Long Larry McLean of the parrot after several unruly outbreaks. Manager Chance of Cuba recently disciplined Frank Schulte for an escapade, but other Cubs who transgressed escaped detection. It is said that Hugh Jennings of the Detroit is anxious to get rid of his star catcher because of his habits and that other star players in the big leagues are on the ragged edge.

It is a noteworthy fact, however, that the members of the Giants and Red Sox, who will meet in the World's Series, have walked a crack all season, although their employers and managers have not forced them to refrain from drinking beer. McGraw believes that a few glasses of the stuff will benefit players if they feel fatigued in need of a stimulant. He says as much as beer drinking gives the men something to work off the next day.

McGraw, however, draws the line at hard liquor, and also makes it clear that players who stay up late and consume too much beer will be severely disciplined. Dispatches from Chicago state that the dramatic suspension of Frank Schulte was followed by a fresh declaration of war by Charley Murphy, the president of the club.

Murphy has laid down the law to the members of his former championship club, and five of the most prominent Chicago players have been informed that hereafter they must abstain from liquor, cigarettes and late hours.

"Booze, cigarettes and late hours beat us out of the pennant this year," said Murphy, "but it won't beat us out of it again. I have spotted the men who are not taking care of themselves, and they will obey or get off my team. I cannot afford to lose any more pennants."

Did Not Want to Discuss Local Jail
It was not so easy sometimes to do this as it would be to impose a sentence of a fine or a term in prison and 200 probation officers were kept busy keeping track of those who had been committed to their care. The majority of the offenders were men, but women offenders were provided to look after the females and children who were brought into contact with the police system.

Boy Killed in North Shore Woods
The schedule providing for reduced rates for users of electrical power in large quantities, published in the Times yesterday, was approved by the Public Utilities Commission at their afternoon session. The new rates will go into effect at the first of next month and the management of the company is preparing for a large expansion in the department of the business.

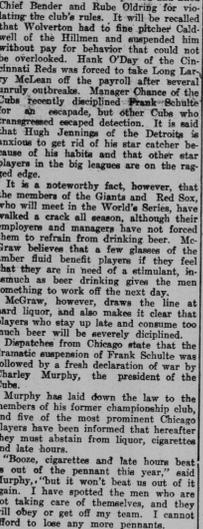

Staff Captain and Mrs. Coombs have been appointed to assist in the command of the St. John district of the Salvation Army and will arrive in the city on Saturday. Captain Coombs was located here sixteen years ago.

Neglect of Wives
A class of offenders who were dealt with severely were men charged with neglect or desertion of their wives or with non-support. The utmost vigilance was used in rounding up such cases and they might be given long terms of imprisonment. While this was good medicine for the men it did not help their families, and last year legislation was provided to enable the families to benefit by their earnings while the husband or father was in confinement. The court might order the sheriff to pay fifty cents for each working day to the family of the prisoner, and this was a substantial help to the families. The system had worked so satisfactorily that it was possible that it might be ex-

"BIG JEFF" TESREAU, GIANTS' PITCHER, IN CALCIUM LIGHT

New York, Sept. 25—The extensive bulk of Jeff Tesreau, the Giants' husky pitcher, is gradually sopping up all the world's series calcium light to the point of exclusion. Every time Jeff appears now there is a distinct gas in the odds against the Giants. Right now Tesreau is twirling great ball. Up until a short time ago he had been in the habit of walking three or four batsmen to a game, but he has gradually gained control, and Coach Wilbert Robertson believes that he will finally become as steady as any pitcher in the land.

They were provided not only for punishment but, when possible, for restitution. In cases of theft, malicious destruction, etc., the offender was given a chance to restore the money stolen or pay for the damage, and this frequently made the loser more willing to allow the prosecution to be dropped. Frequently an employer would be persuaded to continue in his employ a man who had stolen from him, or if he was not willing to do so the probation officers would secure other employment for the man where he could work to support himself, and at the same time earn the money to pay back what he had taken.

In all such cases, in the cases of men released on suspended sentences, boys released from the industrial school, etc., the probation officers kept track of them, received reports at frequent intervals, and in general saw that their progress was being made. Occasionally they were disappointed, and cases did not show their appreciation of the kindness shown them, but the contrary was the general rule, and on account of the immense amount of good accomplished by the probation system, it was felt better to let a few bad customers escape without their deserts than to condemn all the others.

ST. JOHN IMPRESSES HIM
His firm faith in the east of Canada in general and St. John in particular was voiced in no uncertain manner by W. T. Robson, general advertising agent of the C. P. R., who was in the city yesterday. Mr. Robson was much impressed by the changes which he noticed since his last visit and was also gratified with the progressive and energetic spirit shown by the business men of the city.

POLICE COURT. Three prisoners were arraigned in the police court this morning. William Goldworthy was fined $20 or two months in jail on the charge of assaulting and beating his wife. Mrs. Goldworthy testified that her husband went home yesterday and picked up a frying pan and struck her on the head. He had been drinking. One prisoner charged with drunkenness was remanded, and another was fined $8 or thirty days in jail.

PLENTIFUL NEAR LEPRELAUX. Arthur Shaw, of Lepreau, a well known guide of that section of the country, was in the city today. He said that big game was abundant in that neighborhood and there promised to be many large moose brought down. Already some parties had been in the woods and brought down good-sized animals. Mr. Shaw has not been with any parties for a week or so, but expects to guide several huntmen during the season, starting after next week.

REV. MR. GAETZ RETURNS. Rev. Wilfred Gaetz returned home this morning from St. Martin's, where he had been visiting several of the missions. On Sunday Rev. Mr. Gaetz was in the pulpit attending the special services which were held in Trinity Methodist church there, it being the occasion of the fifth anniversary of the opening of the church. Rev. Mr. Gaetz occupied the pulpit at both the morning and evening services. The pastor, Rev. Hamilton Wipe, conducted the services.

OLD HOME WEEK. Former residents of Newfoundland are planning on returning in large numbers to the land of their birth next year during Old Home Week which is to be held in midsummer about the twenty-first of July. It is estimated that there are about 60,000 Newfoundlanders in the eastern states and Canada, and they will probably be the boom of the project of an old home gathering. Many of the prominent citizens of New York, Boston and other cities where are former citizens of parts of Newfoundland. There is a probability that the programme will include inter-colonial boat races and that boats from the maritime provinces will take part.

MOOSE NEAR CITY. The report that big game is very plentiful in the New Brunswick woods and section seems to be quite correct, judging from the many moose that have been seen near the city of late. Only on Monday last one of the "king of the forest" appeared in the vicinity of the golf club and readily interspersed with a big bull moose made an appearance in Riley's field, near the Jewish cemetery. It was seen grazing in the field by several city workmen, but when they went too near, the big fellow took to the woods. Moose meat at present is plentiful. The market is well supplied today.

KELLY-HECTOR WEDDING. A very pretty wedding took place yesterday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of Mrs. Samuel Hector, Spar Cove Road, when her daughter, Miss Gertrude A. Hector, was united in marriage to Archibald A. Kelly, son of Archibald A. Kelly, of Yarmouth, N. S. The bride wore a gown of mauve silk and carried a shower bouquet of white anemones. The parlor was decorated with ferns and palms and cut flowers. There were no attendants. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. Hutchinson of Main street Baptist church. Among the valuable presents received was a beautiful oak tree from Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Nae. A wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's mother, and later in the evening the bride and groom were serenaded by the St. John Brass Band. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will reside in the Spar Cove road.

SURPRISE PARTY. A pleasant surprise was given A. J. Charlton by the Whist and Dancing Club of Drury Cove at that place last evening, when the members with a number of his friends from the city gathered at his summer cottage to congratulate him upon his birthday. During the evening supper was served and a presentation was in order. On behalf of the single members of the club assembly, Frank Allwood presented to Mr. Charlton a set of military brushes, and on behalf of the married members, a handsome pipe. A pleasing incident was the presentation of a beautiful cup and saucer, by little Miss Allison, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allwood. Speeches were given by Mr. and Mrs. Charlton, Roscoe Bond, James Thomson, captain of the Tally-Ho Yacht Club and W. T. Nilsson. The ladies serving at the table were Mrs. F. DAUGHTER OF MR. AND MRS. JAS. ROBINSON OF MILLERTON DEAD

St. John Friends Shocked by News Received Today — Bright and Popular Young Lady

Many people in St. John will be shocked to hear of the death of Miss Irene Robinson, youngest daughter of James Robinson, lumberman and ex-M. P. of the North Shore, which occurred at Millerton this morning. She had been ill since January, but her death was entirely unexpected. She was an exceedingly bright and popular young lady, and had a host of friends who will regret to hear of her death. Miss Robinson was a graduate of McGill University in Montreal, and also of McDonald College, Ontario, and her fellow students in both colleges will sympathize with her parents in their great loss. Although only young she had traveled extensively on the continent, and gave promise of a very brilliant career.

SUES FOR $3,000 BECAUSE OF FATAL ACCIDENT IN MILL

The trial of the civil jury case of Catherine McGowan, administratrix of the estate of her husband, James McGowan, vs. Mary R. Warner, doing business under the name and style of F. W. Warner & Co., was commenced in the circuit court this morning. This is an action to recover $3,000 damages for the loss suffered by the death of James McGowan, who was killed by being struck with a revolving shaft on Sep. 11, 1911, in Warner's mill, through the alleged negligence of the defendant in not having the shaft properly guarded, as required by law.

He was a workman in the mill at the time of the accident. At this morning's hearing Thomas Quinlan, John Tyne, and Factory Inspector John Kenny were examined. The case was then adjourned until this afternoon. Daniel Mullin, K. C., appears for the plaintiff and Fred R. Taylor for the defendant.

LIFE LONG RESIDENT

Mrs. Mary Cronk Passed Away Suddenly—Was Born on Voyage to St. John

Cheerful and bright as ever, and around the house as usual until last night, Mrs. Mary Cronk was found in death this morning by her nephew, Arthur Bourke, at her home, 88 Duke street. She had been ailing for some time, but there was no thought of death just now, so that the shock was most severe and caused keen sorrow amongst her family and friends, for she was highly esteemed. Mrs. Cronk was the eldest daughter of the late Rev. and Ellen Cassidy, who came out to this country from Ireland many years ago, and on the voyage out she was born. The vessel docked at St. Stephen, and there the little family land, later coming to St. John, where Mrs. Cronk lived the whole of the seventy-six years in the "New Lampoed." Mrs. David W. Cronk, who was a well known master of deep sea vessels, sailing for years in the "New Lampoed." Mrs. Cronk is survived by two sisters, Mrs. John Spears and Mrs. Ann Fuller, both of this city. She will be buried on Saturday afternoon from her late residence, 88 Duke street.

WILL REMAIN HERE

Rev. Charles McCormick, C. S. S. R. is to Be Stationed at St. Peter's

Rev. Charles McCormick, C. S. S. R., is being welcomed to the city by his numerous friends, who are pleased to learn that he is to stay in St. John as one of the fathers at the Redemptorist house at St. Peter's, North End boy. He was ordained priest a few years ago, and since that time has been stationed at Roxbury, Mass., and later at Quebec. His coming to the house at North End will probably mean another change, and it is thought likely that Rev. Father McCormick will take his place at Quebec.

The latter is now one of those taking part in the services of the mission. The provincial of the Redemptorist order in America, Rev. Father Schneider, C. S. S. R., is expected almost any day now on a visit of inspection to St. Peter's.

PROGRESSIVE PLANS OF ST. PETER'S Y.M.A.

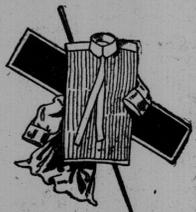

At a meeting of the St. Peter's Young Men's Association in their rooms, Douglas avenue, last evening, with a large number of members in attendance, matters of interest for the ensuing year were discussed. The nomination of officers took place, and quite a number of names were offered, so that the election which is to be held in about a fortnight promises to be lively and interesting. The spiritual director, Rev. J. H. Borgmann, C. S. S. R., made encouraging remarks upon the outlook for the year, which seems particularly bright. The chair was occupied by the president, Jas. B. Dever.

It was the opening meeting of the season and took the form of a smoker. The members are already taking much interest in the plans for the winter months and the formation of a bowling league of eight teams is now in progress. The bowling alley, which have been given in charge of John Hurley, presents a completely renovated appearance, and have been put in fine shape. A series of debates and lectures, as well as the usual social functions is now being arranged.

REPORTED AS OF DISORDERLY GROUND. Policeman McCollom has reported Frank Ryan, Robert Mason, Walter McAuley, Dennis McGowan, Robert Tracey, Thomas Tracey, C. Tracey, George Thomas, William Daley and Frank Donahue for being members of a disorderly crowd that frequented the corner of St. Patrick and Richmond streets.
