Mystery of the Sand Dunes of Prince Edward County, Ontario.

By J. H. Hollings.

Picturesque, but relentless.

Picturesque: in a five-mile stretch of sand that from the distance shimmers as silken samite, and is in reality a delicate fawn color, undulating sand dunes that stretch along the shore of Lake Ontario,
pile to a height of 150 feet, and gradually slope to the green shores of West Lake.

Relentless, in that year by year they lav waste acres and acres of rich farm land, move the course of highways
through the county of Prince Edward,
move farmhouses, yes, and hotels and indeed take from the landowner the farm
that his father and his grandfather toiled on.

These are the dunes of Prince Edward County.

Nothing has been found to check their forward course. They drift as the wind blow snow in winter, they fill fertile areas, they kill plant life. Year by year their kingdom grows.

The sand banks have become known widely as a resort for the fagot-out city man. Here he finds rest and peace. He may climb the hills' do all for which he leaves the city for those blessed two weeks each year.

But, with all their natural beauty, the sand dunes hold a sinister fascination.

When one hears a little while ago that a
"summer hotel" had been knocked down
at auction to the highest bidder at $160
it was thought the printer had erred. But no, it was a fact.

The Evergreen house, long a favorite resort for the summer visitor at the Sand Banks, was sold this spring at the ridiculously low price of $160. Why? Because the shifting sands have pushed it to its last line. It once stood in three acres of farm land. But the sands have travelled until now they cover the three acres, except a "corner" where the "Evergreen" now stands. Almost at the back door rises a bank of relentless sand sixty feet high, and stretching at least one mile away. The sand hills are covering a fine grove of cedar, and soon
will bear down upon the house and hide
it from view. It will not be long before the place where the Evergreen House
now stands will be pointed out to tourists
as one of the interesting sights of the Sand Banks. The Evergreen House was built in 1875. At that time, there was no thought that the sand hills, which were some distance away, would move to such an extent.

These strange-moving sands have already caused two removals of the Hart-

let House, another of the summer reorts. Within eight years the sands have encroached farther inland by fully 150 feet.

The Sand Banks have long proved a source of wonder and admiration to the tourist, and are one of the show places in eastern Ontario. Rising in some instances to a height of fully 150 feet and gradually sloping to the green shores of West Lake, they serve as a barrier land-locking an excellent fishing ground
from Lake Ontario.

In a walk, where safe, one's foot sinks
a few inches, but on releasing the
"print" is filled so completely and rapidly that the impression just made is quickly lost. Another curious fact is that snow and ice have been found three feet below the surface in midsummer.

Fifteen years ago a small farmhouse was covered by the drifting sands. Today the shifting banks have left it in its original condition.

Where does the sand come from?

Incessantly the waves of Lake Ontario beat against the shore, reminding one of an old woman washing. The sand is washed up on the beach, and the western winds soon pick up the dried particles.
They are blown away to join their fellows. The sands also drift in winter winds. They seem to fly with the blowing snows. When the country roads open up in the springtime there is frequently found that the sand has blown as far inland as two miles. What was thought to be a "drift" of snow is revealed as sand blown from the banks.

Pieces of pottery red-grey in color, and sprinkled with quartz and specks of mica
have been found on the Sand Banks. It is supposed these were fashioned here
hundreds of years ago by Indians or perhaps at an earlier stage of the settling of Canada. In the Mound Builders' period.

Not long ago Prof. E. J. Zaritz, M. S.
F. of the Department of Forestry, Ont., Agricultural College, took up the question of reforestation of the Sand Banks.
Only the evergreens have been found to thrive in all the sands. Elms and maples that have been covered up seem dry and are slowly killed, the wood being left as dry as tinder. Reforestation would be possible, but the expense would be too great. If the experiments now being made in Norfolk county prove successful they may be extended to Prince Edward County.

Kitchener's Fate.

The statement is continued that Lord Kitchener is soon to be married. The lady is said to be Lenora Matilda, youngest daughter of Lionel Douglas Mearsey of Kheri-Ouhl, India. It is said that Kitchener never before took woman seriously. It is reported that Queen Alexandra once said to him: "There is only one thing wanting to make you all that could be desired." Kitchener asked what that one thing was and the Queen replied: "A clever, handsome wife." And then Kitchener, with a smile that was unusual for him, answered: "That is a defect capable of being remedied." It is said that this was the first time Kitchener ever thought of marrying. The General is 61 years of age, the lady between 25 and 30 years.

Survey of Port Mann Commoned.

Twenty-five men under the direction of Mr. H. Neville Smith, P. L. S., of New Westminster, are engaged on a topographical survey of Port Mann, B.C.
The work is only preliminary to the subdivision survey which will be undertaken later, and will be completed about the middle of July.

An eminent eastern landscape architect has already made an inspection of the townsite with a view to familiarizing himself with the contours and general surroundings before putting it on artistic lines. There will be many squares, presents and boulevards, with ample provision for public parks. Only a portion of the townsite, or about 2,000 acres, will be subdivided this year. On the basis of 25-foot lots there will be over 25-000 lots. No standard size of lots has yet been adopted.

The interest in the future coast terminal is indicated by the receipt of scores of letters of inquiry from prospective investors from all parts of the world, at the Vancouver office of Messrs. Davidson & McRae, land commissioners of the Canadian Northern. It is the intention to engage in a great publicity campaign
before placing the lots on the market.

Shriners May Purchase A 5,000 Acre Mecca.

Impossible for any City to Take Care Of Great Council.

Rochester, N. Y., July 11. That the Mystic Shriners should buy 5,000 acres of land somewhere to establish there a Mecca for the organization where the annual imperial councils should be held
was the startling suggestion in the address of Imperial Potentate Fred A.
Hines of Los Angeles, at the first business session of the council. One of his reasons for making this recommendation was that it was now almost impossible for any city in North America to care for the council and its following. This idea in detail is presented in the following part of Mr. Hines' address:

"I would recommend the appointment of a committee of three to investigate and report at our next annual session

the feasibility of buying say, 5,000 acres of wooded land, centrally located for instance in the Green Bay country or Lake Superior, on a line of railroad not too far from the main lines of travel, where there is good fishing, boating and hunting, have a drill ground cleared, with plenty of reviewing stands, baseball and golf grounds, tennis courts, etc. build a convention hall with seating capacity
for 750 and plenty of committee rooms (one story) a ball and banquet hall while can be divided, but in which when all opened, several thousand could dance
a hotel of adequate proportions.

"Give to each Shrine ten acres on condition, an area of ground" if they will build a $1,000 bungalow." -Ex.

Now For an Anglo- French Tunnel.

Favored on Both Sides of the Channel.
New York, July 10. A Paris cable says: One result of the triumphant aeroplane flight from the continent to England has been a revival of the proposed tunnel under the channel. Every time the idea has been put forward hitherto it has been opposed by the military old fogies, who saw in it all sorts of danger to England's splendid isolation.
After the invasion of London by the bevy
of aeroplanes it is impossible to set up the claim that Great Britain is safe from attack as long as her navy retains command of the sea. Hence, even without the tunnel the navy is powerless to prevent an enemy from attacking not only the English coast towns but London itself. Consequently, the sole valid objection to a tunnel, namely the military objection is valid no longer, and the sooner a military tunnel is constructed
the better for the English and the French commercial worlds. This suggestion is now warmly welcomed on both sides of the channel. The Pall Mall Gazette discussing the subject, says, the mercantile opinion of both the British and French is stoutly in favor of it.

NATURE WILL CURE YOU Of Kidney Disease, Aided by Father Morriscy's No. 7.

Kidney trouble is one of the most distressing ailments of mankind, and leads to backache and rheumatism. This is because of the impure nature of the work done by the kidneys, work which must proceed normally to insure good health.
A very large proportion of civilized
people have some form of kidney trouble, sometimes without knowing that their malady is of that nature. Many obscure pains can often be traced to diseased kidneys.

These organs are the filters of the body.
Their function is to strain out of the blood and eliminate through the bladder the worn out tissue and other impurities gathered by the blood in its course.
When the kidneys become congested and sluggish, these impurities, including the irritating and poisonous uric acid, are not entirely removed from the blood.
The result is that the uric acid is deposited in the joints and tissues, causing the agony of rheumatism and frequently affecting the liver and other organs.

Father Morriscy, the famous priest, physician of Barbicouge, N. B., after much research compounded a remedy which worked hand in hand with Nature. His doctrine, justified by thousands of cures,
was that the need is not a patchwork relief, but a treatment that will enable the forces of Nature, working through the kidneys, to accomplish their intended work.

His famous prescription, No. 7, assists
the kidneys to work vigorously and eliminate the harmful uric acid from the whole system. In the form of tablets,
No. 7 is easy to take, and will effect cures
where other remedies have failed. Do not trifle with kidney disease, but take
No. 7 Tablets, the treatment that has proved so successful with other sufferers.

Is Bravery Uncommo-? 7

In his recently published book of Indian travel, Price Collier, the keenest and withal the fairest critic of the Briton since the days of Max O'Rell,
says he never sends his womenkind
to sea in any other vessel than one in which Englishmen or men of the Anglo-Saxon race have command.
He feels assured when a British captain is on the bridge that women will be saved first in the event of disaster.

Now that is a very fine tribute from a shrewd observer. In every corner of the world men have died to earn

it. With simple bravery the Briton has always counted life well lost in losing it he could safeguard the lives
of his women folk and children.

Are we in Canada filling from that high estate? Is the command "women and children first" not as binding upon us as upon our fathers? Is bravery becoming uncommon? We should be sorry to think so, and yet there are disquieting incidents every-now and again that indicate the need for inculcating the virtue of dying honorably. Here are some of the more recent: Several London men,
the victims of either cowardice or of
too much liquor, perhaps of both,
stood by a few days ago while two boys were drowned in a pond. When the wharf at King Edward Park near Montreal collapsed men in the crowd thrown into the water scrambled to safety, leaving women beneath them in the water. In certain recent drowning accidents in the vicinity of Toronto it has not been established that every effort was made by the men who were rescued to save their women companions who were drowned.
But the most significant of re-use of the pier at Queen's Park, Aylmer, Quebec, on Thursday night. There fifty persons were thrown into the water, and the bulk of people were rescued by three men, while many others stood around too dazed to do anything helpful. That was not the worst of it, as the following extract from the report of the accident indicates—

"In the water several incidents occurred that cast no heroic light on the men who were thrown into the occurrences was a particularly cowardly nature. Young Mullin (one of the rescuers) had just pulled a woman out who was going down for the last time. Seeing another in a like predicament, he asked one of the male passengers, who was clinging to the dock, to take charge of the first woman while he went to help of the second. The man did not reply, and Mullin took his silence for consent, telling the woman to hold on to the man's shoulders for a moment. "Mullin heard no sooner turned than he looked around, he saw the man strike her full in the face, sending her back into the water. Happily, however, Mullin
was able to rescue both women,
but in the hurry he lost track of the man who did the cowardly act."

There is no law to punish cowardice so object as that of the man who would not take even a little risk to save a woman's life. Public contempt is the only thing that can be used as a corrective. It may seem cruel to put the coward in the pilory
for an act that is often times no more than the momentary triumph of the lower nature, but unfortunately, when life is in danger there is usually no time for the coward to get a grip of himself by exercising his reason.
Bravery must be a matter of instinct
or of habit, absolutely automatic,
be useful in times of crisis. The boys of the rising generation must be taught that the supreme against manhood is to hesitate to venture even life itself in saving women and children when they are in peril.—Toronto Globe.

Food for Repentance.

A well known Federal official was strolling down Philadelphia Avenue
one afternoon when he encountered
a very small boy crying bitterly.
"What's the matter with that child?" demanded the official, somewhat peremptorily, of the woman who had him in charge. "Is he ill?"
"He ain't exactly ill," responded the unmoved woman, "but, between you and me, sir, no stomach ain't goin' to stand nine doughnuts!"

As to the value of this substance in roofing only the Dominion report says:

"It will not be long before the asbestos slate or shingle business, which is just commencing to be felt, will push its way more and more to the front. Indeed, it is not too much to say that the time is not far distant when fully 75 per cent. of all asbestos produced in the world will be used in the manufacture of asbestos slate and shingles. The asbestos slate business is only four years old, but during that short space of time the demand for this article has increased to such an extent that factories for this purpose are being established all over the world."

Great Heat Wave Kills 948 Horses.

Contractors sent in figures the New York City Health department on Wednesday, of the number of horses and other animals removed from the streets up to last Saturday night. The returns show that 948 horses died in the greater city in that time, as compared with 447 in the same week in 1910, which was one of unusually high temperatures.

Of the 948 horses removed, 589 were from Manhattan, 240 from Brooklyn, 54 from the Bronx, 44 from Queens and 21 from Richmond. In all boroughs, as compared with the figures of 1910, there was a marked increase.

One peculiar phase was shown in the number of dead cats and dogs removed from the streets of the city during the hot weather. In the corresponding week in 1910, 2,903 cats and dogs were taken up, as compared with 3,617 last week.

Seventeen hogs were also removed from Manhattan. This so interested officials of the Health Department that an inquiry was made Monday to find out just where they had been taken up, as department regulations state explicitly that hogs are not to be kept in the city limits. But it was learned that they were removed from a West side slaughter house.

Incognitos of Royalty.

Queens and Princesses sometimes travel As Plain Mrs. Or Miss.

It has always been the custom of royalties to travel under assumed names, but though their incognito is respected most people know who they are. The King and Queen (the Belgians, who lately went to Egypt, travelled under the names of Count and Countess de Kesh, and as this was a name not well known they were not recognized by most people.

The late Queen Victoria called herself the Countess of Balmoral, the Czar Paul I. and his Empress once went on a long journey to all the great courts of Europe as the Count and Countess de Nord. The last king of Sweden, of the ancient line of Vasa, Gustave Adolph IV., called himself Colonel Gustavson.

Queen Alexandra of England on one occasion, when she stayed in Paris, was under the name of Mrs. Stephens, says the Gentlewoman, and Queen Maud of Norway when she makes an excursion often calls herself Miss Mills, while her sister, the Princess Victoria travels often as Miss Johnson.

The King of Bulgaria travels as Count Murany, while the present King of Italy bears the name of Count Pollenza. The German Crown Prince and Princess call themselves Count and Countess Ravensworth, and his younger brothers, Prince August-Wilhelm and Prince Oscar travelled as the Counts von Lingen.

The ex-Empress Eugenie when she is incognito is known as the Countess Pierrefonds in remembrance of a castle of that name that was once given to her by Napoleon III. The late King Edward was known as the Duke of Lancaster and King George takes the name of his travelling name Lord Renfrew. The name under which Queen Alexandra generally travels is the Countess of Chester.

The late Empress of Austria always had her name entered as the Countess of Hohenemb. The King of Sweden is known as Count Tulgard, Ex King Manuel of Portugal was also fond of being incognito and was then known as Count Varelles.

Natural Gas Fires

One Has Been Burning in India For Centuries.

Consul General Michael of Calcutta, in a bulletin tells of a country located about twenty miles from Chittagong, British India, where natural gas blazes from crevices in the ground. The gas has been burning so long that the oldest inhabitant can give no idea of when or how it was set on fire. The general belief among the natives is that the gas has been on fire for centuries. At any rate it has been burning as far back as any records have been kept by white people. It is now suggested and some steps been taken to carry out the suggestion, that the fire be extinguished and the gas be brought under control and piped down to Chittagong for light and fuel power. The citizens of Chittagong have concluded that it would be cheaper to utilize the gas than to introduce electricity.

Murder Of Germans Directs Attention To Troubled Mexico.

Berlin, July 17.—The murder of four Germans during the rioting of Puebla, Mexico, has attracted general attention to the anomalous conditions in Mexico. The German government is awaiting the result of the investigation by the German minister at Mexico City before taking definite steps in the matter. There is little apprehension of serious international complications. Thus far the attitude of the Mexican government has been satisfactory.

Mi-o-na! An Excellent Stomach Remedy.

Mrs. J. R. Whyte, Killarney, Manitoba, who says: "I have found great comfort and relief from Mi-o-na. I had been greatly troubled for months with heartburn and a heavy burning feeling in my stomach. A fair meal would disturb me so much that I would have to sit up at night—the food would sour on my stomach and form a gas which would cause belching and dizzy spells. These distressing troubles disappeared after using Mi-o-na and I shall always speak highly of this excellent stomach remedy."

Mi-o-na is the best prescription for stomach trouble ever written. It gives quick relief and cures permanently. Mi-o-na is put up in tablet form and is small and easy to swallow. Sold by leading druggists everywhere, guaranteed by a guarantee to cure or refund your money. Or postpaid from the R. T. Booth Co. Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. You will search the world over and not find a stomach remedy half so good as Mi-o-na. Sold and guaranteed by J. Sutton Clark.

Anniversary Of Noted

Priest's Birth.

Reverend Father Morrissey, born in Halifax Seventy years Ago To-day. Halifax, July 16. To-day is the seventieth anniversary of the birth, in this city of William, afterward Reverend Father Morrissey, lovingly remembered throughout the Maritime Provinces and known across the continent for his remarkable cures.

There have probably been few priests better known throughout the Dominion than Reverend Father Morrissey. Through his medical skill he enjoyed a wonderful reputation from coast to coast and during his thirty years' pastorate, at Bartigouche, N. B., his services were in demand, without charge, of all those who needed his help. From far and wide thousands came to him, or wrote for his advice and his name and fame spread far beyond the bounds of his own parish.

His good work, however, did not stop with his lamented death on March 30th, 1908, for his best known prescriptions then passed into the possession of the Reverend Sisters of the Holy Dieu, at Chatham, N. B. These prescriptions are now made up and placed on sale throughout the whole Dominion, so that in even fuller measure than during his lifetime, his good work for the sick and suffering goes right on.

One of the most marvellous workmen in the world is Hananuma Masakichi, of Tokio, Japan, who has carved a figure in wood so like himself that when the two are placed side by side it is said to be impossible to tell which lives and breathes and which does not.

By several connoisseurs in art this wooden figure has been pronounced the most perfect and human of man ever made. Masakichi has faithfully reproduced every scar, vein and wrinkle to be seen on his own body. The figure is composed of two thousand pieces of wood, dovetailed and jointed with such wonderful skill that no seams can be detected.

Tiny holes were drilled for the reception of hair, and the wooden figure has glass eyes and eyelashes in which no dissimilarity to Masakichi's own can be detected.

The Japanese artist posed between two mirrors while modelling this figure, and for some time after its completion he posed frequently beside it, to the confusion of spectators, who were often entranced by a loss as to which was the artist. The figure stands with a little mask in one hand and an instrument for carving in the other; the lifelike eyes are apparently gazing at the mask, and the face wears a look of intense absorption.

The man who asks what free trade has done for this, that, or the other merely advertises his innocence. Free trade does not do for or do anybody. It is an absence of schemes for doing and doing for anyone. Protection does some people in an effort to do for others. Free trade is the absence of such schemes. It leaves all free to do for themselves.—Ex.

CAMEO KIRBY

As gravely he parted the trees and, with bowed head, slowly threaded his way toward the distant tower. Kirby had not long left the scene of conflict before Tom Randall, coming from an almost diametrically opposite direction, burst into the grove and tripped headlong over the lifeless form of Colonel Moreau. Heaving himself up, he saw that the man he had just seen was dead. Swayed by his present emotions, he had not long left the scene of conflict before Tom Randall, coming from an almost diametrically opposite direction, burst into the grove and tripped headlong over the lifeless form of Colonel Moreau. Heaving himself up, he saw that the man he had just seen was dead. He had not long left the scene of conflict before Tom Randall, coming from an almost diametrically opposite direction, burst into the grove and tripped headlong over the lifeless form of Colonel Moreau. Heaving himself up, he saw that the man he had just seen was dead.

With difficulty loosening Moreau's fast stiffening fingers from their death grip upon the pistol, young Randall hastily concealed the weapon upon his person and thus by a single movement transformed what had been an honorific and fair encounter into a seemingly deliberate and cold-blooded murder. The fact that Moreau had used the late John Randall's weapon, leaving the owner at Moreau's, would be but additional proof that Cameo Kirby had shot down an unarmed man. But the living witness other than Tom Randall had been present at this exchange of weapons, and he, Aaron, would be expected to keep silent. Revenge, may it ever be honorable, but honorable retaliation, revenge at all costs—such was the boy's slogan.

He had hardly resumed possession of his father's weapon and thus created the scene of murder upon Kirby when several men, attracted by the shots and whose rapid approach had spurred the boy to instant action, came running into the grove. To them young Randall breathlessly recounted his version of the tragedy. "You see, the gentleman has no weapon," he concluded, pointing to Moreau's barren hands. "This, therefore, is a deliberate and carefully planned murder. Like your selves, I was attracted by the shot." "But there was two of 'em, for I have no weapon of any kind, and that we kin prove. You kin see it for you, Mr. Kirby, an' yuh all know it." "The devil it is," replied Kirby. "You are the victim of a mistake, Mr. Farmer, and I'm evidently the victim of an enemy who has concealed my late opponent's weapon. I will not permit your ignorance to swing me from the end of a rope."

"Tom, run for help. I'll hold this fellow off the farmer. And as the boy ran off the martial gentleman flung his wry arms about Kirby. A fierce and protracted struggle ensued, Kirby realizing that he was not only fighting for liberty, but life. In those days torch law was only too common, and he knew what to expect at the hands of an infuriated, ignorant and unrepentant mob. And in the present instance all explanation would prove futile, for mob rule is not intwo companions chose the right or southerly branch, while the man who had met Kirby, accompanied by a half grown youth, bore away to the left. Thus by another intervention of the fates young Randall's meeting with the gambler was again postponed. The former and his companions, alarmed the countryside en route, reached town without overtaking or even sighting their quarry.

Meanwhile the other members of the posse had fared better—or worse. They had not long left their companions before Kirby was sighted, walking leisurely with bowed head and evidently preoccupied mind. Warned by the rapidly advancing steps of his self constituted judges and executioners, he turned in mild curiosity and awaiting approach.

The farmer and his son—for such was the relationship existing between this contingent of the pursuers—came up hot and panting from their exertions and, meeting Kirby's cool and pleasantly inquiring eyes, became for the moment mollified and confused. "Rather a warmish morning for such strenuous exercise, gentlemen," greeted the gambler. "It is obvious that your business is with me. Try in what manner I serve you?" The youth's foolish bearing became the more evident in contradiction to that of the elegant and courteous gambler, and, with hanging lip, he fell back, overawed by the silent but compelling mastery of caste. His parent, however—a stringy, drowsing, matinee gentleman—was cast in a more determined and heroic mold. "Yuh all be the gambler they call Cameo Kirby," he exclaimed, pointing a threatening finger. "We seen yuh all come from the duels' oaks, an' we all have just come from there. Yuh all have killed an unarmed man, an' we all are goin' to have yuh all up for murder."

"My dear sir," replied Kirby, arranging his cravat, "yuh all's intentions speak well for yuh all's respect for justice, but I assure yuh all there is some mistake. The gentleman I had the good fortune to kill entirely merit of his end. Moreover, he was not unarmed, but made an earnest and sincere effort to settle me all. In short, yours was a fair and honorable meeting, and as such matters are not prohibited by the statutes I really fail to see how it concerns yuh all—comes within the scope of yuh all's worthy usefulness."

"Them big words and makin' fun of my language don't change the case," said the farmer grimly. "I seen yuh all's victim with my two eyes, an' so did my boy and a lot others. He didn't have no weapon of any kind, an' that we kin prove. You kin see it for you, Mr. Kirby, an' yuh all know it." "The devil it is," replied Kirby. proved by judgment, and he was already a dog with a bad name. They would hang him first and inquire into the merits of the case afterward. If possible prompt and ignominious flight was his only salvation.

True to his class, Kirby's opponent possessed some knowledge of wrestling, but was totally ignorant of even the rudiments of pugilism, and the younger man confined his efforts to frustrating tripping attacks while at the same time striving to free his punned right arm. This at length he succeeded in doing. A vicious wrench, a clever feint, a smashing uppercut, and the martial gentleman went down on his back, while Kirby, waving an airy adieu to the now advancing army of yelling pursuers, took aim to his heels.

But, feet and long winded runner though he was, capture was not thus to be lightly outfooted. The cry of "Catch the murderer" is infinitely more potent than that of "Stop thief" and pursuers were multiplying in his track at an alarming rate, adding at every step fresh runners to their ranks.

On sped Kirby, every variety and class of humanity at his heels. Once or twice his way was barred by some energetic and impulsive sevensome, but a clever dodge or a well directed blow left him to swail the ever increasing army of importunate in his rear. No fox doubling and redoubling on his tracks while in full view of the pack owned a more keen delight in this staking-up-men-and-riding-against-the-overwhelming odds than did the young gambler. By now the city proper had been gained, and the pursued, dashing around the first crooked corner, became lost to his pursuers.

Kirby found himself in a quiet side street lined with aristocratic, fat-fleshed brick houses whose drawing room interiors were little more than a man's height from the sidewalk. He vaguely recalled that he was in the heart of New Orleans' old French quarter. The street was not very long, and he did not know to where it led, but he was not at all sure that he was in the heart of the houses very still closed, but one house seemed to be an exception, for his quick, searching eyes noted on its right a tall, open window with its gentry flapping curtain.

He had dropped into a quiet walk in order to gain a much needed breath. Kirby, but now as the line and cry of his persistent pursuers became more insistent he again broke into a run. In a few moments they would turn the corner and slit their quarry. Almost at the same instant another chorus of cries came from the far end of the street, warning which Kirby was hastening. He instinctively halted, realizing that the enemy, familiar with the neighborhood, had divided its army and sent one contingent around his flank to head him off. He was trapped, for it was impossible to advance or retreat. Louder and louder sounded the cries from front and rear. In other minute and the short street would be choked with the meeting mobs.

Without hesitation nor caring where it would lead, Kirby accepted the desperate and solitary chance that he offered him. Hastily resorting to the house with the open window and ascending its steps, he leaped high in air, caught the overhanging balcony, drew himself up, leaped over the elaborately scrolled railing and, pushing aside the gentry bellying curtains, stepped quietly into the room.

CHAPTER VII.

"THE General looked up gravely. "Dele, I wish yuh would read some more to me, for there are words here that are too long. Both the prizes are just about the best heroes I ever heard of. One is a good prize and the other a bad prize. Which would yuh rather be, Anstole?"

"Oh, but the good prize, of course," replied M. Veaudry, good humoredly concealing his vexation at being constantly interrupted in his snatched tea-tete with the child's sister.

"Both 'em make so many whistles breath escapes I just can't tell whether I'd rather be the good one or the bad one," sighed the General. "Think of this: The good prize is in a secret passage, and the bad prize gets it walled up at both ends, but the good prize has got a slow fuse leading through a crack to a barrel of gunpowder under the bad prize's throne where he's sitting, but he doesn't know about it. What kind of time was that to tell anybody he couldn't hear the rest till after breakfast?"

"Drink your milk or yuh shall never hear any more," threatened Mme. Devezze. And the child obediently but unwillingly seized the huge glass and attempted to drain it at a draft.

"You are pale like the camellia," murmured M. Veaudry, resuming his tete-tete with Miss Randall. "It is only the air of the plantation you need to make you the rose, and we are goin' to make you renounce these blacks; we go to persuade you to wear both the rose and the camellia in your dress once more."

"Not yet," said the girl sternly, frowning her black dress. "I know what you mean," he returned, with deep significance. "Yet I tell you I think you are goin' to take off your mourning at the plantation. When you do then you will listen to what I have kep' in my heart so long"—"I will not listen to any other man before then," she interrupted listlessly. "Why is Colonel Moreau not coming to us?" she added abruptly, turning to her aunt. "I have such impatience to meet him. Are we not to

The Legend of Two Towers.

(From the Motor.)

It is doubtful whether any other church in England possesses a tower at each end which is a distinctive feature of the old Abbey church at Wymondham. The reason of this anomaly is said to be that when visiting Wymondham some 40 yrs ago, the then Bishop of Norwich complained because the bells were not rung in honor of the occasion, and the parishioners explained that as these were hung in the monks' part of the church they were unable to salute him. The perlate immediately gave an order for a western tower to be constructed, which was done. This tower, which carries a fine peal of bells, played a conspicuous part at the time of Ket's rebellion, one of the ringleaders being gibbeted on Norwich Castle, while another suffered a penalty on the summit of the western tower of Wymondham Abbey church.

Even Hymns Not Needed.

In the course of an article on the penalty of a captain when his ship goes down at sea, the Toronto Mail says: Of different stuff was a captain of a coastwise craft which a few summers ago carried a large number of excursionists out from Halifax. On the return trip a dense fog suddenly hid the coast. With all the thoughtlessness of inexperience a party of the excursionists gathered forward of the pilot-house and sought to enliven the rather dismal homeward journey by singing hymns. They had hardly begun to berate him for boresness.

"You stop that noise," he commanded, "and go aft, and do it now!" They went. When the vessel was safe alongside her pier one of the party, a woman, sought the captain and began to berate him for boresness.

"My brother is one of the owners of this line," she said, "and when I tell him of your discourteous conduct he will have you dismissed." "When you tell your brother of my conduct," the captain grimly replied, "you might add that when I ordered you and your party away from the pilot-house I had nothing to guide me but the sound of the whistling buoys, and that if I had allowed your singing to drown that sound the chances are that you would not have had any opportunity of making complaint."

Falling Hair.

Mrs. Jas. Harris of Wapella, Sask., says—

"I have found Parisian Sage to be the best scalp and hair tonic and dressing I have ever used. My hair had been coming out in combs full and was very dry and brittle and the scalp was always itching and full of dandruff. I have used two bottles of Parisian Sage and it has stopped my hair from falling, the itching and dandruff have disappeared and my hair is fine and soft and glossy. I would not be without this fine hair tonic for many times the price."

For women, men, or children Parisian Sage is without any doubt the finest preparation for the hair. Daintily perfumed, it is free from grease or stickiness and ought to be where every member of the family could use it daily. Large bottle 50 cents at all druggists or from the proprietors, The Groux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont., postpaid. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. Sold and guaranteed by J. Torn From His Bride.

Let Tied In The Woods.

Members of Bachelors' Club Punished for Violating Pledge by Getting Married. To be torn from his bride as he alighted from the train from Portland, Ore., at night, "blindfolded and bound hand and foot, thrown into an auto and taken seven miles up the White Salmon river, where he was left all night alone in the woods, was the reception Harold Brown received at the hands of his friends. His bride was taken to the home of one of her friends for the night.

Brown, a young man from the East engaged in developing a fruit ranch, was married to Miss Jessie Holmes, of White Salmon, in Portland during the Rose festival, and intended to keep the matter a secret as long as possible, for he was a member of the Columbia Bachelors' Club whose members had sworn to remain unmarried for one year. The kidnapping came as a penalty for marrying before his time limit had expired.

Brown was found in the woods by strangers, who released him and took him back to town.

"Air Waves"

Sometimes Extend 10 to 12 Miles Above Earth's Surface.

We hear much from the airmen of "air waves" but the subject is of interest as it is of aviation. As a matter of fact we have our being submerged in "waves" to which the greatest waves of the ocean are mere ripples in point of size, says the New York Herald.

When a current of air blows across a water surface waves are produced, and when a current of air blows across the surface of quiet air, or air having a different motion from the air current, then air waves will be produced.

These atmospheric waves have the phenomena of water waves, troughs, crests, foaming, breaking and spraying, but since the quality of air and water are so different, the air waves have dimensions more than twenty-five hundred times those of the corresponding water waves.

Thus, the greatest ocean waves of, perhaps twenty-five feet would have atmospheric counterparts extending upward a distance of ten or twelve miles above the earth's surface. The passage of these huge air waves would be left by us since they would cause a stirring up of the air at the earth's surface somewhat similar to that produced by the passage of water waves over shallow places.

The undulating movement of such air waves would account in part for the intermittent gusts of wind that we notice so frequently in storms.

The presence of these waves is also indicated by the existence of certain kinds of regularly formed cloud groups in which each cloud marks the crest of an air wave.

John Bull's Long Laugh.

(Buffalo News.)

Nothing makes any people happier, more patriotic or devoted to their form of government than to prosper under it. The English people can afford to equal and even surpass an American Fourth of July in effervescence over what means to them sovereignty, dominion and power, even if they provoke a smile on the face of the stern and rigid devotees of a republic on this side of the Atlantic. John Bull laughs last and best and Uncle Sam, because J. B. has about three fourths of the carrying trade of the United States itself, and has the carriage of more than half the traffic over all the seven seas.

Competent Officers Scarce.

(Shipping Illustrated.)

Some difficulty is being experienced for owners of tramp steamers in securing the proper kind of officers for their vessels. Applicants for berths are numerous enough but the class of certificated young men that tramp owners would like in their service are all seeking employment in the large liner companies, disregarding the tramps entirely. The super-seding of sailing ships by tramp steamers has had much to do with the present situation, as it is uncommon for tramp boats to remain away from the home port for two years or more. In the liner service, officers are able to enjoy a little home life, and the lines come home at regular intervals. In times like the present, when so much of the romance of seafaring has departed, the attraction of home life upon the sailor is greater than ever. Strange to say, the increase in material comfort on board ship has somewhat alienated the mind of the seaman from his vessel and it is rare nowadays to take seafarers who take any pride in their floating homes. Perhaps the growing ugliness of ships, from the aesthetic point of view, has a great deal to account for this decadence of the sailor instinct, added to which must be added the fact that the average steamship officer of the present age knows very little about his own ship in a technical sense, in contrast with the custom of former generations.

Catarrh Cured by Breathing.

You breathe in Hyomei (pronounced High-o-mei) and inhale the anti-septic vaporized life of the pine and eucalyptol forests. As you breathe in this delightful air it passes over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane, allays inflammation, kills the germs and drives out the disease.

Druggist J. Sutton Clark sells Hyomei and guarantees it for catarrh, coughs, bronchitis, asthma and croup. A complete outfit includes hard rubber inhaler and costs you $1.00. Extra bottles of Hyomei costs but 50c. By mail postpaid 50c. and $1.00 from The Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Remember Hyomei is guaranteed or the money back if it fails you.

The King's Welcome.

The warm welcome extended to the King and Queen in Ireland in characteristic of a people proverbial for their hospitality. Jealous for their good name and strong in their determination not to compromise the Nationalist cause by outward manifestations of loyalty to a sovereignty which in Ireland is represented by Castle government, they stretched across the main thoroughfare over which the Royal procession passed a banner bearing the message "Welcome! We want Home Rule." It was at once an expression of sincere friendliness towards the Royal visitors and of a desire, under happier circumstances, to attest their innate loyalty to the Throne. For at heart the Irish people are temperamentally incapable of unfriendliness or disloyalty. They would be loyal "if they had a dog's chance," as Mr. Lloyd-George once expressively declared. The old tribal instincts of the Celtic race and the monarchical constitution and leanings of the Roman Catholic Church provide congenial soil for the development of the closest ties between Ireland and the British Throne.—*Tor. The "Short-Change" Artist.

(Metropolitan Magazine.)

In many cities the ticket seller is not a salaried employe. He buys the concession. He pays to the management a bonus, and turns in 50 cents a ticket except where he discovers an opportunity to "hold out."

The man who buys the general-ticket selling concession puts his employes in the ticket wagons. These employes work on a commission basis. They must derive their own profit and that of their employer from such margin as may be gained between their actual receipts and the half dollar per head which is the price of admission. If these ticket sellers cannot steal enough to turn in a satisfactory sum to the chief concessionaire at the end of each day, after deducting each his fifty per cent., he is discharged as an efficient. In order to make such employment profitable one quality is essential. The ticket seller must be a "short-change" artist of ability.

To accomplish this with neatness and dispatch it becomes necessary to use "accelerators". These functionaries are gentlemen who keep crowding and endeavor to sweep the purchaser on, as soon as his tickets are handed out. No line is formed. The crowds are encouraged to jostle, so that innocent purchasers pushing from behind may be made to act as additional accelerators. The change is laid down in scattered form just inside the wicket. If the customer is swift enough to retrieve it, all is well. If he yields to the pressure and is swept a step aside he loses.

Rumors On Quebec Central Purchase.

(Bangor Commercial.)

Sherbrooke, Que., July 8. The purchase or lease of the Quebec Central Railway by the C. P. R. and New York New Haven and Hartford may have an important bearing even upon across continent transportation.

The C. P. R. has long been credited with a desire to obtain an outlet to a New England port. A short link joining the Rumford Falls line with the Megantic branch of the Quebec Central at Lake Megantic is already surveyed with the C. P. R. a part owner of the Q. C. R., and the Rumford Falls link constructed the Canadian Pacific would have a direct line from Quebec to Portland, Me., or some other part in the vicinity which it might develop.

This is the opinion of local railway men as a possible outcome of the C. P. R. deal.

Growth in the West.

Winnipeg has done a great deal of work, and is still doing a great deal of home building. The belief is that the money spent in house building this year will run up to fifteen millions of dollars. The total so far from the beginning of the year to the close of June is eight and a half millions of dollars, and while this is a little less than in the same period of last year, it does not follow that the total for 1911 will be below that of 1910. The building permits issued for the month of June the present year are two million seven hundred thousand dollars, and this is the highest June record.

Edmonton, capital city of Alberta, sends printed in red ink a symbol of success, presumably a statement of some of its doings. Its customs returns for the first six months of the present year were $308,000 against $160,044 in the same period of 1910. Bank clearings were in the six months $51,820,692, against $29,922,000 in the same period of the year before. The street railway showed 2,534,333 passengers carried against 1,556,816 in 1910. Mr. Fisher Secretary of the Edmonton Board of Trade, notes the fact that there is great activity in railway construction throughout Central Alberta. The main lines of the G. T. P. and Canadian Northern Railways are being pushed westward; the grading of the C. N. R. branch to Athabasca Landing is nearly completed; the C. N. R. Peace River branch has been commenced and work is proceeding on the C. N. R. Strathcona-Camrose line. The G. T. P. has established an excellent daily passenger service from Edmonton to Mirror on their Tofteld branch. In the southern part of the district, the Alberta Central and the C. N. R. Brazeau lines are progressing rapidly with construction towards the Brazeau coal fields.—Ex.

Waiting-Room Literature.

(Philadelphia Post.)
Sir Patrick Spens, London surgeon praised at a dinner in New York the abundant and timely reading matter that American physicians have in their waiting-rooms. "The English physician offers his patients reading matter, but I am afraid it isn't always up to date," Sir Patrick smiled. "One of your American millionaires consulted me in Harley street last month. He was kept waiting about an hour. When he finally entered my inner office he looked very much bored. 'I see by your papers, doctor,' he said with a yawn, 'that it is rumored that two Dayton men, Orville and Wilbur Wright, can actually fly.'"

Finds Hidden Wealth Of Greene and Gaynor.

Washington, July 13. Three quarters of a million dollars have been recovered from the concealed assets of Greene and Gaynor who defrauded the government out of $2,000,000 in Savannah harbor dredging contracts in 1897. This was developed by inquiries at the Department of Justice.

I. Johnson, an expert accountant and United States District Attorney Marion Erwin of Savannah are responsible for the recovery. They have been at work digging up the assets of the defaulters almost from the time the funds were discovered. Most of the funds recovered were in bonds and stock. More than $200,000 was in cash. These assets were found in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Denver. Some bonds were located in Paris but they could not be recovered.

Johnson and Attorney Erwin have been searching for these assets for twelve years. During that time their combined compensation and expenses amounted to about $150,000. Within the last year more than $100,000 in cash has been recovered. It is expected that other assets of the defaulters will be found.

Strange Story of Murder in Balloon.

London, July 8.—A remarkable story of murder in a balloon is sent to London by the Vienna Correspondent of the Daily Mail.
A number of policemen, while walking across a field near Dorchoi, Roumania, saw an abandoned balloon with a guide rope trailing along the ground. When the balloon was hauled down, the headless bodies of a young man and a girl were found in the car. Both bodies showed evidence of a desperate struggle.

The girl had been stabbed to death. Her companion had been shot. The gas bag had been split with a knife.

An investigation revealed that the girl was the daughter of a distinguished army officer of Bucharest, and that she was to have been married on the day the balloon was found.

The man in the car was the son of a wealthy land owner, named Jones, who had fallen in love with her.

The Roumanian police say that the young man, finding his advances rejected by the girl, who was promised to another, induced him to go with him on a balloon trip, and then murdered her and killed himself.

How the heads were lost from both bodies is not explained however.

Woman Changes College At 80.

Minneapolis, July 17. Mrs. A. D. Winship of Racine (Wis.) although aged 80, expects to complete a college course at the University of Wisconsin in the next two years. Mrs. Winship, who arrived in the city today to visit her daughter, entered the University of Ohio when 79 years of age and successfully completed the first and second year courses, making physiology her special study.

She is hale, rugged and hearty and says she will complete her university course, at the University of Wisconsin. She intends to enter the Madison school next September and believe she will have no trouble in mastering her studies. At summer school in Ohio this year Mrs. Winship gained honor for the excellence of her work in competition with many who were scores of years her junior. She is the mother of Dr. Davis of the university faculty.

Feared Nothing.

The skittish maid had captured her sweetheart's purse, and was about to open it.
"No, no!" he cried warningly. "Don't look inside!"
"Why not?" she asked. "Surely there cannot be anything I should not see!"
"There might be."
"Then, that is just why I am going to open it," she explained.
"You ought to be afraid to do that." She tossed her head.
"I am afraid of nothing!" she exclaimed defiantly.
"If that's so," he sighed, "when you look inside that purse you will be scared to death!"

A Year Of Dreadnoughts.

Brazil Will Launch The Most Powerful Battleships.
Thirty-six Dreadnoughts are due to be launched by the world's navies during this year. That is, one Dreadnought every ten days.

Altogether, seventy battleships and armored cruisers, with a total tonnage of a million and a half, and valued at $700,000,000 are now being built by the navies of the world.

A considerable number of these belong to Russia, which has been busily engaged for some time in building herself a brand new navy to take the place of that destroyed by Japan in the last great war. She will launch four Dreadnoughts, as compared with Germany's seven, and two each by France, Chili, Argentina, and Japan. One each will be launched by Spain, Brazil, Italy and Austria. Britain will be easily first with at least eleven to be built. Curiously enough, the most powerful battleship which the year will see launched will belong, not to any of the great Powers, but to Brazil, whose one venture in this line, the huge Rio de Janeiro, will carry the record armament of twelve 14.3 inch guns, as compared with the ten 14 inch guns of the newest American battleship and Britain's ten 13.5 inch.

Would End The Kaiser's Navy.

There is a good sporting story told in Germany of the Kaiser's love of a practical joke, and it relates to a boar hunt given to a number of guests. Tramp sing through a wood he met a keeper. "My good fellow," said the Emperor, "you seem very suspicious. Perhaps you think I haven't a license."

yes," exclaimed the silently thoughtful potentate, "I've no doubt the other gentlemen will readily follow suit and show you theirs." Of course not one had a license, and all had to pay lines before a Magistrate next day.

But he has not always had his own way. One night he was sitting out a dance with a young lady at a court ball.
"What would you say," he asked, "if I were to forbid naval officers to marry?"
"Your Majesty," came the quick reply "that would be impossible. Your navy would cease to exist."—Fall Mall Gazette.

Islam A Menace To The Soudan.

Mohammedanism is Making Great Inroads in That Country.—Missionaries Required.

London, July 16.—Dr. Karl Kumm, an adventurous missionary explorer, who has lately returned to Johannesburg after a journey across the Soudan, from the Niger to the Nile has created some sensation by a series of lectures on the inroads which Islam is making in the Soudan. He says that a considerable number of Mohammedan students are being sent into the Soudan from Cairo to Islamize the people, who are regarded as the best negro fighting population in the world. Illustrating his contention that but little is generally known of Soudan affairs Dr. Kumm, mentioned the recent libera-

90 Per Cent. Bow-Legged.

(Brooklyn Standard.)
The rationale of bow legs is an inviting field for those who have a taste for oddity. An admirable peg on which to hang such speculations is offered by the news that the naval recruiting station at Memphis has just been closed because 90 per cent. of the applicants were marked with a curvature of the shank bones. They came from the States of Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee, and the impression is left behind that this physical inelegance is a geographical peculiarity.

Do Girls Like Compliments.

Have you ever studied the significance of compliments? asks the "Gentele-woman." A historian might find some valuable hints in the history of soft nothings. A very pretty girl the other night was overheard taking her dinner-partner to task for offering her a compliment which according to her, "was in its fifty-seventh year at least." It had something to do with eyes and stars, and she would have none of it. Asked afterwards if she always rejected base coin of the kind, she said she did, unless it made her too angry to trouble.

"When a man tells you, you are as beautiful as the morning, when you are only rather nice looking, with sun-burnt neck, either he believes it, and then he's a fool, or he doesn't believe it, and then he's a liar." The drastic summary seems to be rather ungrateful, so far as this is concerned, but one notices that the girl of to-day is extremely impatient of compliments which outran her estimate of herself. On the other hand, she loves to be told she's a good goller, or a good companion. The focus seems to have shifted from her appearance to her capacities, which is a healthy thing.

tion of 200,000 slaves in one district alone as the result of the intrusion of European powers, stating that it was an event which had hitherto not been published.

Dr. Kumm declared that unless counter-acting Christianizing influences were forth-coming all over the Soudan, Islam must become a great menace to Southern as well as to Northern Africa.

No Use.

Old Gentleman.—"Now, kiddies do you want me to have a game of zomps with you? Eh?"
Youngster.—"Oh, no! We're playing at Indians, and you're no use. You're scalped already!"

There is little to choose between the sun that kills and the water that drowns. The toll of the two in Canada this year is absolutely unprecedented. The details in not a few cases of drowning prove that the wise rule against bathing shortly after a meal is very generally neglected. It would be well to require pupils in the public schools to memorize a few "don'ts for bathers."—Rx.

"Hipless" Trousers and "Hobble" Pants May Come

"Dan" Coghlin, of Boston, whom tailors and designers know as the finest formed man alive, said that before long men will look more like our modern hipless women than anything else.

Mr. Coghlin has the distinction of having worn more clothes than any other man in the country. In fact, he has changed his attire as many as twenty times a day and has never worn the same suit twice.

"Every year men's clothes are imitating more and more those of women," he said. "I do not hesitate to predict that in a few years men's attire will be masculine as women's attire will be masculine."

"Men are becoming more fond of gay colors, extravagant cuts, giddy trimming—they are getting to like buckles, belts, form fitting line, flareskirts—they are becoming more butterfly like than women and it will not be long before men will be having 'hipless' trousers, 'princess' overcoats, 'hobble' pants, 'gored' jackets, silk gloves, laces and ribbons—all the finery hitherto saved to womankind."

Sure Signs of Kidney Trouble.

If your eyes constantly ache and if you experience dull shooting pains, your kidneys are out of order. If your urine is thick and cloudy or your passages frequent, a dry and painful, your kidneys and bladder are out of order. Neglect quickly brings on rheumatism, diabetes, lumbago, sciatica, etc.

Mrs. John Wagner of Hollis St., Hill, N. S., says: "Dull shooting pains would catch me across the small part of my back and extend into my shoulders and neck, often causing me to suffer with severe headaches and spells of dizziness. Spots would dazzle before my eyes and everything would turn black. I would fall to the floor and be unable to get up again without assistance. A friend told me of Booth's Pills and I began their use. The first box gave me relief and I am now strong and well."

All druggists sell Booth's Kidney Pills, 50c. a box with a guarantee to relieve or your money back. They are the world's greatest specific for kidney and bladder trouble. Postpaid from the proprietors The K. T. Booth Co. Ltd., Fort Erie. Sold and guaranteed by J. Sutton Clark.

Spinning Asbestos.

Single Threads 100 Yards Long Weigh Only an Ounce Apiece.

The mines of Canada to-day produce the major portion of the asbestos used in the industrial world, says the India Rubber World. For six decades or more it was known that Canada possessed this mineral, but the fact was not considered of commercial importance.

In 1871 a farmer named Fecteau discovered deposits of importance and the first real mine began operations shortly afterward. It is said that the enterprise was a paying one from the start. Seven miles in all were opened in the first few years. One of these is said to have paid $24,000 net in one year upon an investment of $5,000.

Asbestos was first mined in Italy and prior to 1880 it was the only country that produced it as a commercial profit. The Italian asbestos is very silky in appearance and gray to brown in color. Often the fibres are several feet in length.

Asbestos after leaving the cobbling sheds is sent to the spinning mills in bags holding about 100 pounds. Upon its arrival it is first forced by a machine similar to the saw tooth gin used in cotton mills. This separates the tangled fibres, after which a final carding takes place on a regular carding machine.

When the asbestos leaves the carding machine it is combed smoothly and the fibres laid parallel in a uniform mass. This mass is treated in a rota spinning machine.

This first spins it into a coarse yarn and then draws and spins this yarn until it becomes fine and quite strong. Where a hard strong thread is required for certain fabrics the asbestos yarn is put into a doubling and twisting machine where two or more of the yarn threads are combined. Of course if the asbestos is to be impregnated with rubber a smooth hard finish thread is not desirable.

The spinning of asbestos for a long time seemed of great difficulty, owing to the manner in which the threads persisted in slipping past each other. Finally it was discovered that under the microscope a thread of asbestos showed a notched surface, and that by means of special twisting the spinning could be made successful. Now after much experimenting manufacturers are able to spin a single asbestos thread of 100 yards in length not weighing over an ounce.

A Prince's Romance.

Recalled by the Death of the Woman He was in Love with.

London, July 10. In December last a death notice appeared in the Marseilles newspapers in the ordinary form, except that it was issued in the names of the servants of the dead woman instead of relatives. It ran:

"The servants of Mme. Rebecca Clark Jackson, author and composer, have the honor of informing you of the death of their recreative mistress, and beg that you will attend the funeral which will take place from her house, 6 Boulevard de Paris."

Mme. Clark Jackson had lived in Marseilles nearly a dozen years. Her mode of life was very retired, almost mysterious so that the curiosity aroused while she was living was increased by the unusual form of the announcement of her death. Then her history became known.

She was of English origin. In 1873 she met in England the young Prince Louis Napoleon, then aged 17, the son of the Emperor Napoleon III, and the Empress Eugenie. He was in taking a course of studies at the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich. They soon became friends and when the young prince was killed in Zululand in 1879, she had just given birth to a son.

The Empress Eugenie who watched her son's every action too closely to be ignorant of his love story, took charge of the baby on the condition that the mother should give him up entirely. The mother, after passing several years in travel, settled down in Marseilles.

She seldom went out, although she always kept a carriage on the door of which was a coat-of-arms, and the motto "One heart, One Way." She passed her time in playing the piano, and composing pieces, some of which she published under the pseudonym of "Rubi."

Her will divides her property, the amount is unknown, but it will certainly exceed $200,000 into four parts. One part will be used for a charity institution for the benefit of little boys abandoned by their parents, a second for a similar institution for little girls, the third is devoted to the poor of Marseilles and the fourth is left to her servants and her notary at Nice.

Many of her possessions were sold at auction a few days ago, jewels, objects of art, old furniture, etc. Her bust of the sculptor Carpeaux was left to the town of Marseilles. Carpeaux was charged by the Emperor with the artistic education of the young prince.

Many letters were found in her home dating from 1873, and signed with her lover's pen name, "Napoleon London." What has become of the son is not known, but there is little doubt that the Empress Eugenie had had him brought up in complete ignorance of his origin.

Blind Sees with Dog's Eyes.

Restores Sight by Grafting Animal's Cornea on Human.

That a person totally blind from opthalmia even from birth can be made to see by having a portion of a dog's eye grafted on his own was the startling communication made by Dr. Borch, an oculist, in a paper read at the meeting of the French Ophthalmological Society last week.

In the course of his address the doctor explained that as a result of blindness from opthalmia, as also from other causes the cornea, which is a transparent membrane in the front eye, becomes opaque, and in such a case the only chance of restoring sight is to replace the defective cornea with a healthy one.

To perform this operation he first operates on a dog and laves back from its eye the conjunctive, or skin of the eyeball surrounding the cornea, removes a portion of the latter and places it aside in blood serum. He then performs a similar operation on the patient's eye, removing part of the front eye of the same size as the cornea taken from the dog.

The dog's cornea then is placed in a position on the human eye and secured with stitches of the finest possible silk. The surrounding skin which has been laid back is brought into place over the edge of the cornea and also sewn. The graft unites with the eye in a few days, aided by a temporary glass cover to keep in shape and injections of serum to stimulate vitality.

Although no man can state the amount of the combined fortunes of the Rothschild, it is estimated that they are at least $2,000,000,000. This is four times the probable wealth of the Rockefeller clan, and more than six times greater than the united Astor possessions, which forms our largest hereditary fortune. Yet the founder of the Astor estate was a rich man before the first Rothschild was permitted to do business.

Less Than Hundred Dead in New Ontario.

Fire Horror is not so serious as at First Reported.

Cobalt, July 13.—The fire situation today is, Total dead, no more than 100, probably but 75 or so; area burned over, ten square miles; cause, carelessness of prospectors in extinguishing fires made for cooking purposes.

Towns destroyed—South Porcupine, Pottsville, Cochrane. Partially destroyed—Golden City and Kelso.

Total subscriptions received by Northern Ontario Relief Fund—$29,000.

Work on the rebuilding of South Porcupine, including the mine buildings has already commenced.

Three train loads of supplies have already reached the affected district and more will arrive to-day. There is no lack of provisions and shelter of a kind for all.

Appalling as is the total loss of life as the result of the Porcupine fires, it is satisfactory to know from additional official details to land that the total will not exceed the estimate of 100, maybe twenty or thirty less than that number. The known identified dead number now 35. It is reported, but lacks confirmation, that seven unknown bodies have been found on the base line of Tisdale, a mile to the south of Vipond.

Word from the township of Denton in the Cripple Creek district is to the effect that the country was swept, but that the loss, if any, is as yet not known. Five empty canoes are floating on Mad Lake in that township. Bristol was also swept and no word has yet been heard from the Couly Bros., who made the rich strike there several weeks ago.

Porcupine, Ont July 13.—So fast are the dead accumulating here that they are being buried just where they are found. All West Dome employees are to be interred on the 'Gley O' rien property to-day, while at Deadman's Point, which has been dedicated for a cemetery, two charred corpses have been already buried, and more will be buried there as soon as coffins are provided.

Every half hour bodies are arriving at Little Tents, near the station here, which is being used as a morgue.

The men who ventured on the lake in canoes and were drowned are coming to the surface.

Nathan Haas and Leroux have been picked up by launches grappling around the edge of the lake, and more are coming in at short intervals.

Origin of Paris "Apaches."

The Apache movement in Paris was inspired by Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show at the World's Fair in Paris. The treachery and daring of the Apache Indians appealed to the vicious instincts of a certain class of young Parisians, and they were quick to imitate in real life the blood-curdling manoeuvres they witnessed at the show. They never disguise themselves. The hair of each member is cut in the same style—shaved high at the back of the neck, with a bulging mass of hair above smoothly plastered down. The girl Apaches never wear hats, and therefore devote great attention to their coiffures. Their dress may be shabby, their jackets out of date, but their hair will be arranged in the latest fashion.—London Opinion.

Growth of Hankow. Some of the Unusual Products That Fill its Storehouses.

An astonishing impression of the variety and peculiarity of the natural riches of China is given by the storehouses and factories of the Hankow export firms. Whereas the export of tea, the monopoly of a few large Russian houses, has for some years remained almost stationary, the value of the export of oil seeds from Hankow, to take one example of a comparatively unimportant article 1906 3.8 million tons in 1907 to 10.5 in 1909.

Boats bring wood tar from the Upper Yangtze in big round baskets lined with paper to be refined and remelted in the factories; they bring astonishing masses of the greasy product of the tallow tree used in European technical industries, also cotton and technical galls, pigs' bristles; also skins, which are sun-dried in the yards of the storehouses and packed by means of hydraulic presses for sea transport.

Millions of ducks' eggs are, during the few weeks of the season, manufactured by the hand labor of coolie women and children into masses of pure dried yolk and albumen, smelling like biscuits. The albumen is used in the photographic industry, the yolk in the European sweet stuff manufacture. On the same bank of the Yangtze are the new cold storage houses and the great tobacco factories of foreign firms, and near by are ore refineries, in which antimony, lead and zinc are prepared for export.

In this rapidly increasing export trade of China, says the Journal of the American Asiatic Association, the Germans are taking a great share. Both in Hankow and Shanghai nearly 75 per cent. of the export is handled by German firms, which look upon Hankow as the most important of their branches which are spread like a net over China. The capacity of the German merchant, thanks to his knowledge of the world market and his zeal to discover new resources by which even unlikely articles of export gradually present a lucrative side, has given him a leading position in the Chinese export trade which the more conservative and less experimental English and the Americans, thinking far more exclusively about "big" things, are not likely to win except by following similar methods.

Charles—When I asked her if she would be nice, she put her arms round my neck and whispered that she was so happy.

Amy—Yes, that is what she told me she was going to do; and, what's more, I happen to know that she has been practising it with Cousin Tom for ever and ever so long.—Atlanta Constitution
