SAINT JOHN, N. B., MONDAY EVENING, AUGUST 17, 1874. No 201 VOL III. The Globe says one of the speakers at the Orillia meeting yesterday sat down without "turning a hair of the Treaty."
We don't wonder at that. Like the editor of the Globe the Treaty is baldheaded.—

The recent Odgerite parade in Trafal gar square, London, as a declaration of war against Prince Leopold's annuity, was not a particularly successful enterprise. George had only 500 or 600 hearers when he began to expatiate. Some of the speakers acknowledged that the Prince had a very estimable character, nevertheless the vote of £15,000 to him was none the less a Parliamentary breach of trust.

The London correspondence of the N. If Y. World has this little budget of operatic gossip: Patti has taken a furnished villa at Dieppe, where she goes for three weeks' sea-bathing. Gound will not allow his opera of "Mirella" to be performed in England, because some one here cheated him out of his copyright of "Faust." Capoul's engagement in Prusia is for four months; he is to sing sixty nights and to receive 60,000 francs. Twelve artists are engaged to go to Russia—among them Patti, Nilsson, Capoul and Eoli.

In the latter part of July, 1870, Mrs. Tilton was sick, and at her request I visited her. She seemed much depressed, but gave me no hint of any trouble having reference to me. I cheered her as best I could, and prayed with her just before leaving. This was our last interview before the trouble broke out in the family. I describe it because it was the last, and its character has a bearing upon a later part of my story. Concerning all my other visits, it is sufficient to say that at no interview which ever took place between Mrs. Tilton and myself did anything occur which might not have occurred with perfect propriety between a brother and sister, between a father and child, or between a man of honor and the wife of his best friend, nor did anything ever happen which she or I sought to conceal from her husband.
