ANNUAL CAMP.

Our Citizen Soldiers Getting Sun Browned.

MUCH HARD WORK.

Been the Order Since Camp Commenced--Inspection To-day.

Our citizen soldiers have now been over a week under canvas, but to see their tanned faces and soldierly appearance one would hardly credit it, but would easily believe that they had been at camp Fiddis for a month at least.

Camp Fiddis is an ideal camp ground for the battery. The ground is covered with a heavy soil, under which is sand so that the rain does not make mud. The fields are of convenient size for camping and maneuvering, and abundance of beautiful clear water is to be had.

When the Advocate reporter visited the camp on Monday, the battery, under command of Capt. Lawlor, was at the old brick yard bank where they were being instructed in fire discipline. Up to that time no instructor had been detailed for this camp, but although this is a drawback, yet with such an officer as Capt. Lawlor the work is being just as well accomplished. Capt. Lawlor is an enthusiast in military matters, and besides being a Lieutenant of one of the South African contingents, he has spent considerable time at Quebec and Kingston. Lieut. Anslow was a member of the first contingent and went through the whole campaign without missing a duty. We may add that there are at present three members of the first contingent in the battery. Lieut. Anslow also takes a deep interest, as do all the officers, in military matters, and spent a winter at Quebec.

It is needless for us to mention Lt. Col. Maltby. As a soldier he has for years been prominently before the public. The other officers are younger men at the business but take a lively interest in their work and in their hands the 12th Field Battery C. A. bids fair to hold the enviable position it has by hard work under difficulties, attained among the batteries of the Dominion.

The personnel of the battery is composed as follows:

Lt. Col. R. L. Maltby, R. L. F. A., Commanding.
Capt. T. W. Lawlor, 2nd in Command.
Lieut. C. W. Anslow,
Commanding Right Section composed as follows:

COMMENCEMENT

Exercises at St. Mary's Convent

VERY SUCCESSFUL

An interesting Program Rendered and Prizes Awarded

The commencement exercises and distribution of prizes at St. Mary's Convent were held June 26th in the Convent assembly hall. Every number of the programme given below met with generous applause, but particularly a violin solo with piano accompaniment by Miss Pineau which captivated the audience. The orchestra selections were also well rendered and the singing of the solos and choruses gave evidence of exquisite musical taste and careful vocal training. At the close of the exercises Rev. Father Dixon addressed a few words of felicitation to the pupils and teachers, remarked on the earnestness and devotedness which teachers in general bring to their noble work; stated that the year just closed has been most successful from every point of view and exhorted to renewed effort in the future.

On Sunday the Battery attended divine service at St. Andrew's and St. Mary's churches. The Newcastle Orange band, in uniform, was present and played the battery to the above churches and after service back to camp.

In conclusion we may add that visitors are always cordially received and entertained by Lt. Col. Maltby and his officers, the Colonel being especially attentive.

A report from two disciples of Isaac Walton, says that the Mi-quoites up river have proboscis like shingle nails. This is a new departure from the usual fish yarn.

Sunday morning next the Rev. A. F. Brown will preach to the Orangemen, in the evening he will deliver his farewell sermon.

DOMINION DAY.

A Beautiful Warm Summer Day.

BASE BALL

The only attraction Here.—Horse and Yacht Races at Chatham.

Last Wednesday, July 1st, was a beautiful summer day and was generally observed as a public holiday, with the exception of the mills, which as they are behind with their orders, worked as usual.

Alexander True Blue lodge picnic to Loggieville was not very largely attended, but a most enjoyable day was spent with friends at that place. At four o'clock the excursionists, with Loggieville friends boarded the Rustler and proceeded down the bay and a very pleasant sail was enjoyed. The Loggieville people were landed on the return and the Rustler arrived here early in the evening.

A large number went down river on the steamer Alexander and a very pleasant day was spent, getting home at about 9:30 p. m.

BASE BALL.

This was the only attraction here, there being three games on. In the morning the bachelors played the benedicts and the game was greatly enjoyed by the spectators. The following were the players:

BENEDICTS.	BACHELORS.
R. N. Wyse	W. Crocker
F. Mason	F. Dalton
C. Dickson	J. Stables
W. S. Moore	F. W. Pickles
A. E. Shaw	A. Ritchie
R. T. D. Aitken	Geo. Dalton
L. B. McMurdo	E. G. McKenzie
R. Lawlor	Mr. Stout
W. J. Sutherland	C. Morrissey

At the end of nine innings the score was Bachelors 35, Benedicts 23.

In the afternoon the Fredericton Tartars played the Newcastle Victors and were defeated by a score of 23 to 9.

In the evening the second game between the Tartars and Victors resulted in a victory for the former. Only five innings were played, the score being 6 to 2 in favor of the Tartars.

CHATHAM SPORTS.

(From the World)
The Portlanders of St. John failed to keep their engagement with the Stars, and the Tartars of Fredericton, who were here en route to Newcastle, consented to play six innings. Ramsay and Barry pitched for the Stars. The victors won by a score of 9 to 7. The Stars are badly in need of practice.

There was a big crowd present to see the first horse racing on the new trotting park the grand stand has not been built yet, and the men soon discovered that they could climb the fence on the inside and sit on the top. They mounted to this position and laughed at the command of the officials to get down, enjoying an uncomfortable seat but a splendid view of the entire track. Good order was kept and no one was allowed on the track or inside of it except those who belonged there.

The judges were Messrs. Jos. McKnight and Dan'l Chasman; the timers, Messrs. Messrs. Robt. Murray, Thos. Flannagan and W. B. Snowball; the starter, Mr. S. D. Heckbert; and the clerk of the course, mounted, Mr. Fred M. Eddy.

The entries in the three minute class were Charlie, James Lamont; Baby, Wm. Bryanton; Flossie, Geo. Dickson; Harry, Wm. J. Groat; and Napan Lass, Peter Archer. Harry was the favorite, and confirmed the expectations of his admirers by taking the first heat in 2:59. Napan Lass second, Flossie third and Baby fourth. Charlie broke a wheel and withdrew. Baby finished second but was set back to fourth for running. A tight over draw rein evidently worried Harry and he went to pieces in the subsequent heats. In the second heat Harry took the lead, with Napan Lass second and Baby third. At the first corner of the second half, Charlie, on the outside, passed all the others and held the lead to the finish, trotting without a break. Baby ran across the line and got fourth place. Flossie made several bad breaks and was a bad fifth. Time 2:59.

In the third heat Charlie took the lead at the start and was never passed to the finish. Flossie was second at the half, Harry third and Baby fourth. Baby finished in second place, neck and neck with Harry, and Flossie was fourth. Charlie led easily in the fourth and last heat, followed by Baby, Napan Lass, Harry and Flossie, the latter passing Harry and getting fourth place. Time, 3:00.

In the named race (2:40 class) the entries were Charlie, Jas. Johnston; Frank, Jas. Johnston; Frank, Jas. Q. Thompson; Jos. H. H. Carvell; and Ponoco, R. A. Snowball. Jos. had no difficulty in getting and keeping the lead. Ponoco finished second, Charlie third and Frank fourth. Time, 2:40. In the second heat Jos. went off ahead, broke, and was passed by Ponoco, but recaptured the lead when the latter

NIAGARA V. ZAMBESI.

Within a very few weeks the Cape-to-Cairo Railway will have reached the great falls of the Zambesi, says The Tablet. In some respects these tremendous falls quite throw Niagara into the shade. The Victoria Falls are double the width and more than twice the height of the Niagara Falls, as will be seen by the following table:—

	Estimated
Width.	Height.
Niagara F. 1 mile 158 to 167 ft.	7,500,000
Victoria F. 1 mile 400 to 420 ft.	35,000,000

It was one of the favorite projects of Cecil Rhodes to utilize the power which has been running to waste for years for the good of all Rhodesia. At the present moment plans are being prepared in an office in London which are likely to go far towards converting Rhodes' dreams into reality. A concession company is at this moment preparing to utilize the power from the Victoria Falls for working railways, lighting towns including Bulawayo 240 miles away supplying currents to the mines in northern and southern Rhodesia and other purposes. A writer in The Westminster Gazette states that in the opinion of Mr. Francis Fox any amount of power required could be obtained, and that an available head of at least 250 feet could be utilized. Each pipe or tube eight feet in diameter would drive a turbine and generator necessary for 5,000 horse power, and Mr. Fox thinks it will be found desirable to lay down the plant in units of this magnitude. The question of voltage is not yet determined, but there will be no difficulty in distributing current over an area of 300 miles. At the present time transmission is being successfully carried on over nearly 300 miles in California, and by the use of very high voltage the distance may be increased even further.

STEAMSHIP TRUST

New York, July 3.—While no official information is available in regard to the discussion at the recent joint meetings in the city of the American and English directors of the Morgan Steamship Trust, some of the details have become known, says the Journal of Commerce, and these indicate that important changes in management are under consideration and will be gradually carried out. The matters discussed mainly hinged on receipts and expenses, with the object of discovering how the receipts can be increased and the expenses curtailed. In the matter of receipts the relative popularity of the various lines in the service was weighed, and it was agreed that necessity existed for increasing the popularity of all backward divisions of the service on this line with discussion as to the undoubted jealousy that seems to exist on both sides of the water between the men of the former rival lines. It appears also that in several instances there has been a clash of authority. The leading financial interests of the company are said to favor placing absolute general management in the hands of some practical steamship man who shall have demonstrated his ability in this direction and who has the time and inclination to devote his entire energies to the work of the company.

Conservative M. P. Requires Information.

OTTAWA, July 3.—In the public accounts committee this morning Mr. Barker (Hamilton) obtained an order for the summoning of the mechanical superintendent, engineer of maintenance and storekeeper of the Intercolonial Railway to give evidence as to any matters of stores that have been charged in the account for the year 1901-02. The examination will be held on a day to suit the minister of railways.

An Ideal Woman's Medicine.

So says Mrs. Josie Irvine, of 315 So. College St., Nashville, Tenn., of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Never in the history of medicine has the demand for one particular remedy for female diseases equalled that attained by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and never during the lifetime of this wonderful medicine has the demand for it been so great as it is today.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific, and throughout the length and breadth of this great continent come the glad tidings of woman's sufferings relieved by it, and thousands upon thousands of letters are pouring in from grateful women saying that it will and positively does cure the worst forms of female complaints.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all women who are puzzled about their health to write her at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Such correspondence is seen by women only, and no charge is made.

DONKIN-FORD

Well Known Couple United in Marriage.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lyon, 18 School street, Boston, when their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ford, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed at a late hour, under the usual showery of rice and ancient foot-wear, for a short wedding tour, after which they will reside in North Adams, where Mr. Ford holds a responsible position with the No. 4 Adams Gas Light Company.

Miss Donkin belongs to C. I. Road and has many friends here who wish her much joy. Her cousin, Miss Jva. DoMnkin of New-castle, N. B., and James Ford of this city were united in the bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Mr. Hamilton.

Miss Ethel Baker, cousin of the bride was brides-maid while William Ford, a brother of the groom was a groomsman.

The house was tastefully decorated with ferns and potted flowers which made beautiful by many colors thrown about the room by the colored electric globes.

The happy couple were the recipients of many presents, useful and ornamental, as well as valuable.

After extending congratulations to the newly married couple, the many friends and relatives present partook of an elaborate reception given by the hostess, Mrs. John Lyon.

Arrangements Made for their Instruction at Deaf and Dumb Institution.

The deaf and dumb children of New Brunswick will receive their education in Nova Scotia. Friday Hon. Lemuel J. Tweedie, Premier of New Brunswick and Dr. Inch, Superintendent of Education of that Province were in Halifax making arrangements for the transfer of the pupils from the defunct New Brunswick Institution to the Deaf and Dumb Institution in that city. They called on Principal Fearon and inspected the school and work of the scholars. They expressed themselves as highly pleased with what they saw and complimented the Principal on the able manner in which the work was being carried out.

GRAND TRUNK PORT IN THE MARITIME PROVINCES.

The Grand Trunk Railway Company have indicated their intention to have their Atlantic port at some place in the Maritime Provinces. This is as it should be and no doubt the Maritime Province people will be glad to welcome the new connection with the west and north west. The north west is the section of Canada which will show the greatest development during the next decade. A country that produces flour like Ogilvie's is bound to have a magnificent future. Ogilvie's flour has been an important factor in advancing the resources of the north west. People are willing to trust a country that produces such flour as Ogilvie's.

CHEMICAL RESOURCES.

Manufacturers Employing Skilled Chemists—Prof. Lang—Address Before Society for Chemical Industries.

At a recent meeting of the Society of Chemical Industries, Canadian section, the Chairman, Prof. W. H. Lang, delivered an address on "The Chemical Industries of the Dominion of Canada." The subjects taken up were the iron and steel industries, leather and tanning, the extraction and refining of metals, sulphuric acid, acetic acid, and alcohol, salts, explosives, refined chemicals and fertilizers, coal-tar and asphalt, calcium carbide, carbon dioxide and graphite, cement and plaster, beet sugar, natural gas and petroleum, pulp, paper and asbestos. The lecturer reviewed the progress in the development of these industries during the past decade, making comparisons between their position now and then. The steel and sugar industries were given special attention, being, among others, those which are developing most rapidly to the natural mineral and vegetable resources, and to the widely scattered water power of the Dominion.

In conclusion, Prof. Lang said: "The attitude of our manufacturers towards chemical resources of late years has been extremely favorable, and many have seen it to their advantage to employ chemists trained in our universities and colleges to investigate the processes and material employed in their particular industries. So far, their employment has been amply justified by the results, and it is to be hoped that more may be brought to see the profit to be gained by adopting scientific methods of work. The university man, who has specialized in chemistry, can assist the manufacturer in this by bringing to bear on the rationale of the technical processes the general scientific knowledge which he has gained during his college course, and his experience in methods of research and manipulation. He can thus materially benefit his employer, by improving the quality of his products, or enabling him to turn out his goods at a cheaper rate. Let the manufacturer, be he dyer, tanner, pulp-maker or iron-master, indicate only that he is willing to find employment for men educated in the higher branches of scientific work, and the universities of the Dominion will supply them. Where chemical processes are used it is essential for the prosperity of this country that all the available scientific knowledge should be brought to bear on them in order that they may continue to improve, and to develop even more than they have done in the past decade. Canada, with its immense natural resources and its water power, should, in time and with proper management and assistance in the lines indicated, become one of the largest producers of the world's supplies."

HIS PRIZE ROSES.

A Little Secret That Was Confided to the Wrong Man.

An amusing incident is reported in connection with a small flower show in the north of England. One of the classes—cut roses—was open only to cottage gardeners within a certain radius, and the winner turned up in a laborer whom we will call Sandy. The lucky individual was in high feather and hung about near his exhibit all the afternoon receiving the congratulations of his friends.

"Beautiful roses," remarked a well-dressed stranger to Sandy. "They tell me, however, that if Briggs had been qualified to enter he would have beaten you."

Now, Briggs was the best grower par excellence in the neighborhood; but, unfortunately for him, he was just outside the radius.

"Briggs he heaved," ejaculated Sandy. "He ain't got no better roses than them."

"That's nonsense," retorted the stranger. "Briggs' roses are the talk of the district."

Sandy still stuck to his point and became quite confidential. "Between you and me," he whispered eventually, "Briggs ain't got no better roses than them, 'cos them's his! He couldn't enter himself, so he gave me the pick of his garden."

The stranger was satisfied, and it was only afterward that Sandy discovered to his cost that he had confided his secret to a member of the show committee—London Tit-Bits.

A Woodland Echo.

As became the little man having the time of his life in the primeval forests of the Troganitic province in Canada, the clerk of the New York court of special sessions was graciously inclined to instruct the worker in camp. These, says the New York Tribune, were two young, unknown men who, with a canoe and a camping outfit, were like-seeking backwood experience.

He came upon one of them taking bread in a portable aluminum oven before a smoldering log fire.

"Ah," said the clerk, assuming a refining position of graceful ease, "baking bread, I see."

"Yes. It doesn't come up for a cent," "You see," continued the clerk, with rising wisdom, "the baking powder, which contains cream of tartar, liberates when heated a certain amount of carbonic acid gas, which—"

"Oh, don't talk shop!" interrupted the cook. "I hate it out here!"

"Oh, you do?" the clerk observed, astonished. "What business are you in, may I ask?"

"I'm an assistant professor of chemistry at Yale."

Throwing Rice at Weddings.

Like roast pig, the origin of throwing rice at weddings is Chinese, and the legend is scarcely less worthy of Charles Lamb: "A famous sorcerer named Chao became jealous of the power of another sorcerer, a woman, and, conceiving a plan to destroy her, he persuaded her parents to bestow her upon his supposed son. The crafty Chao chose the most unlucky day for the wedding, the day when the 'Golden Pheasant' was in the ascendant, so that when the bride entered the door the spirit bird would destroy her with its powerful beak. But Peachblossom gave directions to have rice thrown out at the door, and she passed out unharmed while the spirit bird was devouring it."

Crushing a Bone.

John G. Whittier, the Quaker poet, once in describing the usages of the Quakers in regard to "speaking in meetings" said that sometimes the voluntary remarks were not quite to the edification of the meeting. It once happened that a certain George C. grew rather obstinate in his objections, and his prudent brethren, after solemn consultation, passed the following resolution: "It is the sense of this meeting that George C. be advised to remain silent until such time as the Lord shall speak through him more to our satisfaction and profit."

The Throat and Tonsils.

A simple gargle for a sore throat may be made by adding fifteen drops of refined carbolic acid to a quart of water. Remember to shake thoroughly before using—otherwise it will be useless—and gargle four or five times a day. In case of swollen tonsils a tea spoonful of powdered tannin dissolved in a tumbler of water forms an excellent gargle, which should be used every two hours. A gargle of permanganate of potash, not too strong, is also excellent for use in cases of mill-sore throat.

SON OF HON. J. I. FELLOWS MARRIED.

Ernest Garfield Fellow's son of the late Hon. J. I. Fellows, and Miss Margaret Hamilton Wells, daughter of Sir Frederick Wells, of North Bristol, were married in Kensington (Eng.), on June 11, by Rev. C. I. Atherton, of Exeter Cathedral, assisted by Rev. E. J. Kennedy of St. John's, Boscombe. The bride was attended by ten bridesmaids. Among the guests were Hon. Charles Duff Miller, agent-general for New Brunswick in England and Mrs. Miller.

A man who answered advertisements in cheap story papers has had some interesting experiences says an exchange. He learned that by sending $1 to a Yankee he could get a cure for drunkenness. Sure enough he did. It was to take the pledge and keep it. Later on he sent 50 2-cent stamps to find out how to raise trumpets successfully. He found out—just take hold of the tops and pull. Being young he wished to marry and sent 34 1-cent stamps to a Chicago firm for information as to how to make an impression. When the answer came it read, Sit down on a pan of dough. It was a little rough but he was a patient man and thought he would yet succeed. Next advertisement he answered read, How to double your money in six months. He was told to convert his money into bills fold them and he would see his money doubled. Next he sent for twelve useful household articles and he got a package of needles. He was slow to learn, so he sent $1 to find out how to get rich. Work like the devil and never spend a cent. And that stopped him, but his brother wrote to find out how to write a letter without pen or ink. He was told to use a lead pencil. He paid $1 to learn how to live without work and was told on a postal to fish for suckers as we do.

Young Dr. Flelding doesn't seem very certain of himself.

Why, no. I think he feels like calling a consultation every time he has to make a diagnosis.

That's rather a sizable boss you're drivin', said the man from Tennessee.

Yes, he is right smart of a critter, replied the man from Georgia.

I guess, said the naturally weary young man, I was meant to be a millionaire, but started on a line where they don't give transfers.

Mrs. Brown—So you were out again last night, eh?

Brown—No; I was in, and I'll give you $10 for your share.

But we haven't a cockroach in the house, interrupted the woman at the door.

Well, you will have in a few days ma'am. They've got them next door to you. I sold a package of this preparation there, and it always drives 'em to neighbors.

Fanny—Tell me candidly. Charlie don't you begin to feel sorry that you gave up your old life of freedom?

Charlie—Not a bit of it. I find married life so delightful that if anything were to happen to you I'd get married again inside of a month.

Perhaps ventured the unsuccessful contributor, you didn't consider my little ode true to life.

Oh, it was true enough, replied the editor. I assure you there was more truth than poetry in what you said.

What is known as goose flesh usually results from a low condition of the system and is really a slight chill. If you have such attacks often it would be wise for you to consult a physician.

MEN AND THE CHURCH.

That was something of a scorcher which Bishop Baldwin gave to the laymen of Huron diocese at the Synod. He said that he could get ten women to help him while the call to the men met no response. The men, with all their talk, wanted Sunday to yawn or go for a walk, in order to air their cowboby brains. When asked to take part in church work they said they had to work hard all day and begged to be excused. The conduct of the educated laymen was perfectly scandalous. It reminded him of the callousness in Rome where the Emperor and nobles lived on, while poor gladiators were killed to please them. Too many congregations told the clergy to do all the work. They needed more laborers, more interest, above all, more piety. They wanted more laymen to develop the Sunday school life.

If that exhortation does not put new life and energy into the army of shirkers their case is hopeless indeed. There ought to be virtue in such plain speaking.

THE GREAT PAN AMERICAN SHOWS.

The Most Complete Collection on Earth.

A circus would not be complete without a Menagerie, and no one knew this better than the Manager of the Great Pan-American Shows when they spent about a million dollars, depleting the jungles and forests of five continents for beasts rare and ferocious, strange and beautiful, to people their vast menageries, which is connected with their Monster Three-Ring Circus and Roman Hippodrome. Will be seen at Newcastle on Thursday, July 9th. Cages upon cages, and rows of cages, filled with every strange and awful beast known to the zoographer. Chief among the amphibious, carnivorous, bi-horned, split-hoofed mammals is the terrible Brachiosaurus. There are Elephants, Camels, Domesticated Deer, Bears, Lions, Tigers, Leopards, Grizzlies, Serpents, Reptiles, and in a word, birds and beasts of every kind. There is also, in a very attractive part of the menagerie, the cutest little baby Hippopotamus imaginable, and four little Baby Lions; and in the unique department, amidst many marvels—too many to name in detail—a Giant Camel the tallest animal alive.

Positively only one show at one p. m. no night show.

PIANO RECITAL.

The public Piano Recital given in the Temperance Hall last Friday evening by the pupils of Prof. Layton, was a decided success, and listened to by an appreciative audience. The excellent attention and order that prevailed coupled with the loud piano which greeted the various numbers on the programme gave evidence to the fact that all present heartily enjoyed the work of the performers, and were in sympathy with the Prof. in his efforts to bring his pupils up to a high standard of Pianoforte playing. The vocal numbers were much appreciated, and received loud accolades which were responded to in a happy manner.

Following is the programme:
1—Piano Duet—
Serenade from "Don Giovanni" Mozart
Misses Mary Anslow and Jeanie Tozer.
2—Piano Solo—"Two Flowers" Koelling

DOUGLSTOWN SUPERIOR SCHOOL.

The report of grade leaders at written grading exams, June 1903 was as follows:—
Grade I—Zelda Johnston, Agnes Falconer, F. Fitzgerald, D. Sikes, all equal.

Grade II—Geo Brooks, Harold Phillips, R. Kirkpatrick.

Grade III—Simon Driscoll, J. Jessamin, S. Bass.

Grade IV—Florence Doyle, Mary Arseneau, H. Russell.

Grade V—Frank Dinan, Allan Alexander, Gladys Buie.

Grade VI—Nellie Driscoll, Lou Henderson, Rena Johnston.

Grade VII—S. Woods, F. Henderson, J. Doyle, K. Kirkpatrick, also in this grade Elias Anderson made second and by mistake was not reported.

Grade VIII—Vaggie Henderson, Mary Jessamin and E. Johnston.

Grade IX—John Williston and Maude Wood.

Those on Honor list of making more than 80% on all subjects are the following names: S. Wood, J. Williston, F. Doyle, and nearly all leaders 1st grade and others.

The leaders in weekly essays for the term of 125 weeks were—Maude Wood, Annie McKnight, Beulah Henderson, Maggie Henderson, and Master Harry Spencer.

As only 1 prize was donated for essays it fell by lot to first named of the five. I may say to those who wish to improve our school they should prove it by stepping forward and offering say book prizes for the leaders of each grade during term as a whole. Each of such philanthropic persons might prove their wisdom by making the offer on the first day of school in each term to be legal and they will have their reward.

Also all depts were over crowded last term especially the primary where about two dozen composed one grade. In fact an extra dept. is and has been needed for years. This place always had four schools. The sworn reports to education office of the three departments for a number of years will prove that in matter of percentages and averages Douglastown was usually from 10 to 15 above the most overcrowded dept. in Newcastle and Chatham and even more than any in St. John and Fredericton.

But still with the vain hope of saving 1 cent per capita, per year four schools was crowded into three, and even the sad lesson of overwork, worry and death of one of our most faithful teachers the past year was not enough to teach ratepayers the folly of placing three grades in the hands of one teacher where the length of room did not permit one grade to be called at once; This I understand was the case in the primary department last year 39 in primer alone. I would therefore urge that another department be at once opened in which manual work should be a feature and with very liberal offers of Education office to pay a part of expense it should not cost the district one tenth of the benefit it would certainly be.

To any and every improvement stupid and childish objections can and will always be found, but one thing has been taught since the world began that there is always a few which will oppose every improvement but the faulty part is that when their objections are all met they at once set about to claim credit for the great benefits they so recently derided. They are just as irrational in one case as the other.

The following percentages were made by each department last term:—Adv 88%, Intermediate, 87%, and Primary 78%.

The Country. An Epitome of Events Gathered by ADVOCATE REPORTERS

BATHURST.

Though the weather on the North Shore is comparatively fine, with occasional showers, the farmers complain that it is not good farming weather. The nights are cold and heavy winds, mostly from the eastward, prevail, with a consequence that in many parts of the County of Gloucester the crops, particularly the hay crop, is not progressing satisfactorily. A gentleman from the eastern part of the County informs us that the hay crop in Pokenouch and Tracadie will be almost a complete failure unless the weather conditions change very soon. As this crop failed last year, and large quantities of hay had to be imported by the lumbering firms, the present condition of things is a great disappointment, as it is seldom we have such a failure two years in succession. Taking this in connection with the alarming destruction which the potato bug is creating in some sections, we cannot say that the outlook for a good harvest is as satisfactory as might be wished for, but there is time yet for warm weather to help the hay and corn, at all events, and it is to be hoped things may turn out better than some of the farmers anticipate.

Fortunately the fishing—particularly the salmon fishery, has been and continues to be good on the coast. The salmon beach nets, which hardly did anything last year, are doing very well now and were it not that the fishermen are bothered by having to leave their work in their busy season to defend the law suits which are yet going on, they would be fairly content. In this connection a boat at Fiskeville, between some of the fishermen and one of the watchmen employed by the Angling Club which took place after the Court closed a few days ago, shows that a very ugly feeling has grown out of this investigation, and it is rumored that litigation between those engaged in the frays has now been started in the shape of one or two actions for assault and battery. Taking everything into consideration, the wisdom of starting such proceedings is doubtful, and it is difficult now to tell where the matter will end. The fishermen seem determined to fight for what they consider their rights, and as far as can be learned the Angling Club seem equally determined to prosecute the cases to a finish. Though they have been at the matter for many days now, only one case has been disposed of, and on that the Magistrate, Mr. J. E. O'Brien, had reserved judgment.

The fishing on the Nepisiguit is only fair owing to low water, though one or two of the parties in camp at the Pabineau and Grand Falls have had middling fair success. The grise are now beginning to come in, and likely there will be better fishing from this time forward.

Building operations in Bathurst seem to be progressing very satisfactorily. The large store of Holdengraber & Rosenberg is nearing completion, and will be a credit to the town. The ceiling of native ash which is now about finished lends a splendid appearance to the interior, and Mr. Howell is making a good job of the brickwork of the walls.

The large building which Mr. John Legere is having erected on Water Street is taking on an imposing appearance, and they will add much to the street when finished.

Dr. McNicol, who has suspended operations on his new residence, owing to having to wait for certain kinds of lumber required, has about completed the repairs on the fine tenement house which he has constructed out of the large building he removed from the corner where his new house is to stand. By dividing the hall of the old house and running a partition through the middle and constructing another stairway. Two comfortable tenements have been arranged. The doctor has had the inside of the tenements newly painted and papered, and we understand has had no difficulty in renting both at fair rates.

The frame of Mr. James Howell's new house on King Street is up, and being enclosed, Mr. Samuel Gannon being the carpenter in charge.

R. D. Southwood's new building on Water Street is nearing completion, and will be a fine store with dwelling attached.

Mr. George Robertson has finished the store in the Peoples Bank block and has also just completed an excellent stone cellar under the whole building.

When we look at the Bathurst Harbor these beautiful long summer evenings, we wonder why there are not more pleasure crafts afloat on it. If the people of some places had such an excellent opportunity for boating they would delight in it, but our young people do not appear to appreciate such an advantage.

The Tennis Club, to which many of our young men and maidens belong, appears to be flourishing, and it is said that the club can boast of some excellent players, and are willing to risk their reputation against all comers from the North Shore Clubs. A challenge from Newcastle might be appreciated.

The funeral of the late E. J. Stewart, which took place on Tuesday was one of the largest and most respectable gatherings of the kind ever seen in Bathurst, and was an indication of the great respect felt for him in Bathurst and other points on the North Shore.

The brethren at Lodge Saint John F. & A. M., accompanied the remains to the new Presbyterian Cemetery in Bathurst Village, where a service in compliance with Masonic rights was held, the usual prayer and service having been previously held at the late residence of the deceased by the Rev. Mr. R. H. Minister of the Kirk at Bathurst Village. Many Masons and others from Riverview and other points joined in the procession and service.

Two men were arrested at Bathurst Station last week by Constable Branch, who was led to do so owing to their resemblance to the photographs published of the famous Colingwood murderers. The men, who were evidently tramps, were able to give an account of themselves and were allowed to go free after an examination by the justice who issued the warrant.

The public are warned to look for a young man who has imposed on several farmers and others in Gloucester County by pretending to be deaf, dumb and have only one arm. It is said this man is an impostor; in fact, he was exposed recently at Salmon Beach by a well known gentleman who deals in Agricultural Implements and carriages, and made to leave a house where he was comfortably enjoying a meal, prepared for him by the farmer's wife. It is said there are three in the gang, and that they are not only impostors but thieves. They will carry away anything they can get their hands on. If they are found in Gloucester County from this time forward they are likely to serve a term in Dorchester, where their talents will be better employed than here. After being kicked out of the farm gate by the gentleman mentioned the man quickly found the arm which was supposed to be severed and roundly swore at his assailant. Such creatures deserve any punishment which might be awarded them.

A movement is on foot by the Church of England people to build a reading room for the use of the congregation. The Rev. Hugh Hooper has already received about one hundred and fifty dollars in subscriptions and feels very much encouraged in carrying out the scheme, which is an excellent one.

PERSONALS.

Mr. J. J. McGowan of St. John, who has been entertaining a number of friends at his camp on the Tracadie, has returned to his home. The guests, which consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Creighton of Woodstock, Mrs. J. W. Byrne and Miss George Burns of Bathurst and others were delighted with their outing.

Mr. and Mrs. Creighton are at present visiting the Misses Burns at Bathurst.

Mrs. Herman Weiss of Liverpool, who with her little girl is visiting their relatives on this side, recently paid a visit to friends in Halifax returning last week.

Mr. R. Gil of Ottawa, has returned from his fishing trip on the Nepisiguit. Mr. Wing, manager of the Tracadie Lumber Company, spent several days in Bathurst last week.

Mr. Erle Johnston, teller of the Bank of Montreal at Regina, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Johnston, Bathurst. It is hoped that the holiday will improve Mr. Johnston's health, as owing to close application to his work in the Bank, he has not been very well lately.

Mr. Edward O'Brien, Principal of the Tracadie Superior School, is spending his holiday with his people in Bathurst.

We learn that Mr. C. J. Mesereau, principal of the Bathurst Village school, has resigned his position to take a course at the University of Chicago. Mr. Mesereau, who is a most efficient teacher, will be very much missed.

Lever's Y-Z (Wise Head) Disinfectant Soap Powder is a boon to any home. It disinfects and cleans at the same time.

Whitneyville.

During the past week the people of this place have been pleased to see the roads relieved of their dust and the earth refreshed by frequent showers of rain. A great many people of this vicinity are busily engaged at finishing the new Baptist Church which we hope will be completed before long.

Quite a number of young men have returned from States, which were gladly received by their many friends.

School closed on June 30th by a very good examination which was largely attended by parents, Miss Bessie O'Brien being teacher, whom we learn with regret has resigned.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Howe and daughter accompanied by their niece Miss Annie Brackett are visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Whitney and family have returned home from West Superior intending to remain.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Emerson are visiting their friends.

Miss Moran of Boston is visiting her uncle Mr. Addington McLean.

Mr. Archie Macleod is building a new fence which will add to the appearance of his farm.

Frank and Stanley Menzies are hauling lumber for the purpose of building a new house.

Mr. Ralph Parker is building an addition to his house.

On Thursday July 16th inst. in Whitneyville Hall the people intend holding a pie social proceeds for the benefit of repairing the Hall.

We hear rumors of wedding bells in the future.

DIED IN BOSTON.

Boston, June 26.—John Ferguson, naval veteran and for years identified with Wolfram as a town and city died in that city yesterday, after a long illness. He was born in Walling, N. S., May 1, 1822. In early years he was a teacher, and when twenty-one, entered the navy as captain's clerk on the frigate Savannah, which was one of the fleet that took possession of San Francisco in 1847. After serving twenty-seven years in various clerical positions, Mr. Ferguson resigned from the navy, after having reached the grade of first paymaster.

Mr. Ferguson was a brother of the late Jacob Ferguson of Riverview, and uncle of Mr. John Ferguson, the well known merchant of Newcastle.

POPE LEO XIII

NEARING DEATH'S DOOR—LATEST REPORTS.

Rome, July 7, 3.35 a. m.—The Pope awoke from his sleep which was induced by doses of chloral, very feeble and in pain but with his mind quite clear.

Rome, July 7, 3.55 a. m.—Another morning has broken on the pathetic scene within the simple chamber of the Vatican where Pope Leo lies dying. As the soft light of dawn penetrated into the room the Pontiff whispered to his devoted physician that he desired the shutters of the window to be opened, saying: "I wish to see once more, perhaps for the last time, the rays of the sun."

The congregation of the Baptist Church have requested Rev. A. F. Brown to reconsider his resignation from the pulpit of that church. It is understood that Mr. Brown has accepted a call to another church and is therefore not able to accept the invitation for a future pastorate.

An alarm of fire was turned in yesterday afternoon, there being a small blaze at Mr. C. Allan's residence, which fortunately did very little damage and was extinguished before the department arrived on the scene.

The C. M. B. A. band serenaded Dr. and Mrs. Duffy at the home of the bride's parents Monday evening. We must congratulate the band on the progress they are making under the leadership of Prof. T. M. Stewart.

THE MYSTERY OF GRASLOV

By Ashley Towne

Copyright, 1901, by Charles D. Elbertson

"Please do not," cried Frances. "He has stolen me from my father! He is a cruel monster! I cannot marry him!"

"He is his excellency, the governor," muttered the old man. "We must obey."

Neslerov seized her by the wrist and swung her toward the priest. The villagers crowded round, awestruck at the great name they had heard. They well knew the governor. Many of them had felt the knout at his command.

"It must be done," again muttered the priest.

"No, no!" cried Frances, trying to wrench away from Neslerov.

A boy slid quietly away from the crowd and ran.

"Stand there, curse you!" said Neslerov, grasping Frances by the hair. The pain of his rude hand on her lovely hair made Frances cry out in terror, pain and shame. "I'll kill you if you move again!"

There was the sound of a quick and stealthy tread. There was a swish in the air. There was a gasp, a murmur from the crowd, which fell back in consternation.

A heavy Russian riding whip swung through the air in an arc and, descending, cut the skin across the face of Neslerov.

"Curse you!" said a hearty American voice. "I'll have your life for this!"

"Jack! Oh, Jack!" cried Frances, and then, the last vestige of her strength deserting her, she fell unconscious into Jack Denton's outstretched arms.

CHAPTER VII.

A DUEL.

NESLEROV recoiled, and the writhing of his face in pain and fury, together with the long red cut made by the whip, gave him the expression of a demon.

"You! You!" he gasped.

"Yes, I!" said Denton. "Fortunately, I arrived in time to foil this dastardly attempt of yours to take advantage of a defenseless girl. I have been riding along the railway from stream to stream examining the bridges. I reached this place on my horse a moment ago. A boy saw me coming and hurried to tell me what was going on. I had no idea I should find a friend in need of help. But, thank God, I was in time."

"You will never leave this place alive!" said Neslerov.

He plucked a revolver from his pocket and aimed at Denton.

A woman standing near held out her hands and caught the form of Frances and bore it into her house. Denton, with flashing eyes, leaped forward and closed with Neslerov.

"It is a battle to the death between giants!" cried a man in the crowd.

The pistol fell from the grasp of Neslerov, and the whip before wielded by Denton dropped to the ground.

The iron fingers of Denton would close on the throat of Neslerov, and it seemed as though the struggle would end at that moment, but Neslerov would wrench himself free and leap at his enemy with a curse and growl.

"It is you or I! One of us must die!" cried Neslerov.

A swinging, crashing blow from the American's right hand sent the governor to the ground, where he lay as if stunned.

"Take care of him, somebody," said Denton in Russian. "I don't want to kill him."

He turned without a look at the fallen man and started toward the hut into which Frances had been carried.

At the cry, which was echoed in the crowd, Denton turned suddenly. The dastardly Neslerov had feigned. He had risen to his feet and was creeping upon his enemy with a dagger drawn.

"Oh, you are an assassin, eh?" said Denton as he drew his revolver. "Let me see if we can't settle you once for all."

While it might be that not one of the villagers sympathized with Neslerov, yet his act was not a crime to them. With their sordid understanding of women having no rights, no freedom, no liberties save what their lords and masters gave them, the men of this place looked upon the eagerness of Neslerov to be married to so beautiful a girl as natural.

One of them, realizing that the governor's safety was necessary to their own, sprang upon Denton and drove a knife through the fleshy part of his arm.

The pistol fell to the earth near that of Neslerov and two villagers picked them up and hid them.

Like a flash Neslerov was upon his enemy, and his knife was raised to strike, but Denton, with a quicker movement, drew a knife from his belt. He had ridden too often over the tundra to go unprepared for enemies, human and otherwise.

And now began a duel the like of which the banks of the Irish or the branches will probably never see again.

Steel flashed on steel.

The blood from the wound in Denton's arm was hung over the face and clothing of Neslerov, while that from the bruises on the governor's face grew thick and dark, making him truly hideous.

With a grasp as of iron Denton seized the hand of Neslerov that held the dagger, but with a wrench the governor got it away and cut to the bone half the length of Denton's finger.

But the American scarcely felt the wound. He was not fighting now for life, nor for vengeance. He was fighting for that girl who lay in the hut, and he knew that if Neslerov killed him, he was not killed himself, her life would be made such a hell in the power of this monster of brutality that death would be preferable.

A year ago she had told him she did not and never could love him. It had been a quarrel. She didn't want to get married, and he asked her if his rough exterior, the result of years of hard work in rude and dangerous places, was disagreeable to her. He said there were fine gentlemen at Paris, New York, London and St. Petersburg. She had answered that she knew it. She preferred their company to bores. They parted then and had not met till now.

Denton and Neslerov kept fighting on, the villagers too much agitated to step between or utter a word.

Neslerov felt his right arm getting weaker. Denton's knife had slashed through the sleeve of his coat and found the bone near the elbow. An artery must have been cut, for the blood was thrown from the end of the sleeve. Made desperate, he gathered all his strength for a final effort and sprang boldly upon his foe.

Denton, seeing an opportunity and knowing that nothing but a deathblow seemed likely to end the fight, met the plunge and drove his knife into Neslerov's side.

With another curse, a spluttering of blood and a groan the governor of Tomsk sank to the ground at the foot of his adversary unconscious.

"Take care of him, you fellows; no need to let him die," said Denton, examining the wound. "His lung is not touched. Nothing fatal here, I am glad to say. Here, you!"

The old priest came mumbling toward him.

"You know more about surgery than the rest. Get some water, bathe these wounds, take a few stitches in the long cuts and bandage him up."

"Yes, little father," said the priest, trembling. "But what of you?"

"I can take care of myself."

He strode to the bank of the stream, over which he had but a few months before built a bridge, and bathed his wounds. Then he went into the hut to see Frances, as if nothing had happened.

CHAPTER VIII.
THE INTERVIEW IN THE HUT.

FRANCES lay on a rude bed, scarcely conscious, and Denton stood a moment looking down solemnly upon the lovely upturned face. He bent over her, touched her brow and felt her pulse. All sense of his own injuries seemed to leave him as he saw her need of immediate care.

Frances felt his touch and looked up at him with about the same expression she might have worn had he been a stern and high priced specialist called in to make an examination.

"You are merely knocked out by the shock," he said, with assumed indifference. "You will probably be all right as soon as we get to Tomsk."

"Yes, if I could get there," she whispered. "My father will be anxious."

"We must relieve his anxiety as soon as possible. You must not worry."

"Never mind Neslerov now. Keep cool. You've got to be braced up a little. I wish I had some wine."

"There was some in the car," she answered. "Neslerov had it. He tried to make me drink, but I would not."

Denton went to the car, still on the main track, and brought from it the remains of the bottle of wine Neslerov had opened. This he took with him to the hut and offered some to Frances.

"I don't want it. I refused it before," she said.

"Oh, don't you want it?" he asked ironically. "I suppose in your own and subtle mind there is no distinction between a glass of wine offered by Neslerov when you were his prisoner and by me when you are ill?"

"I did not mean that," she said meekly. She reached out her hand, took the cup and drained it.

"Now, then," said Denton, coolly seating himself on a stool near her bed. "Tell me this whole miserable business from the beginning."

"I have told you yet, Jack," she said, with a return of color.

"Never mind thanking me. I did merely what any other American would have done, and, seeing you in danger, it would not have been manly, indeed, to stand off. I accept your thanks, but let's get to the business. How did you happen to be here—with Neslerov?"

"We were in Moscow," she said.

"There was a meeting about the new railway."

"Yes, I know. That was what took Neslerov there."

"He had an interview with papa while in Moscow—"

"Why do you hesitate? It is not a new experience to have a man want to marry you, is it? You gave him the usual answer, I suppose."

"Oh, Jack! There was but one answer papa could give him. I do not like the prince, and papa knows I will never marry a man I do not love."

"Everybody knows that—who knows you," said Denton soberly.

"He told him about you—and about Vladimir—and the prince got angry."

"About Vladimir? Who is he?"

"Vladimir Pauloff, an ironworker, now sent."

"Never mind. We will get to that afterward. You started for the Obl, where Gordon is to take a house in Vashlov."

"No, not yet. I must tell you about Vladimir—"

"The force—in his shop—one day while the railway was being put through Perm. Papa and I went there. He is a marvelous man, Jack. You would think as much of him as I do if you knew him. He is so handsome and strong. He is!"

"Do you mean young Pauloff, the blacksmith of Perm?"

"Yes, Jack. Do you know him?"

"I've had him turn out some iron for small bridges. Well?"

"He is so intelligent, and was so anxious to learn, to improve, I helped him. I used to send him books, papers, magazines, scientific works—anything I could get hold of that would help him. He studied hard, poor fellow! He grew to—I think he loved me—"

"Of course you returned his affection. You've done it so—I mean it came quite easy."

Tears glistened in her eyes, and she turned away her head. She had quarreled with this man and had said she would never marry him, and their friendship had been almost cut asunder. But he had saved her from Neslerov. Now he was helping her.

"One could not know Vladimir without."

with a great accession of spirit. "I fail to see why I should be put through this catechism by you."

"You needn't be if you don't want to," he answered coldly. "It is a nice, quiet village. Neslerov is living not far away, somewhat cut up now, but he will get over that. I could go on my way and leave you if my questions are distasteful. The thing is that there must be an explanation to this affair, and I'd like to know what it is to be. It is no trifling matter to cut the governor of a Russian province to pieces."

"Have you been fighting?" she asked quickly.

"No," he replied, with a tinge of sarcasm. "Neslerov and I indulged in a few pleasantities. He doesn't feel as gay over them as I do; that's all."

"Oh, I see your hand is bandaged—I never noticed it. Oh, Jack, forgive me!"

"We were following a course of inquiry," he said, putting the bandaged hand behind him. "This Vladimir—you mentioned—there was an attachment—so far so good. Now, how did that lead to this affair?"

"I wanted to see Vladimir and went by train from Moscow to Perm. I found a drosky at the station and was driven to the shops. Shops, house—all were deserted. I found Neslerov there with a painting under his arm. He was taking it away. It was a beautiful picture, a beautiful face. I asked the prince where Vladimir was. He said that all the Pauloffs—father, mother and Vladimir—had been sent to Siberia."

"Sent to Siberia! That big simple hearted fellow! For what?"

"Conspiring with others to kill the czar. We were alone; the drosky driver went out, and Neslerov tried to kiss me. I fought him; I shot him."

"You shot Neslerov?"

"Yes, I shot him. I would again. I then returned to Moscow, but did not tell my father anything about the matter, save that Vladimir was sent to Siberia. We soon after started for the Obl and stopped at Perm. We saw the governor, and he promised that if he discovered that Vladimir was innocent he would help him."

"He might as well have said that if he discovered the moon was cheese he'd give it to you for lunch. Things like that are rarely corrected in Russia."

"When we left Perm, Neslerov was on the train. Of course, as papa did not know anything about the shooting in the house of the Pauloffs he greeted Neslerov as a friend. Everything went well till we had crossed the border and came into Neslerov's own province. At this place—I had been sleeping—I woke up. The car had become detached from the train. I was alone with Neslerov. He took my revolver from me and dragged me here and ordered the priest to marry us. Then you came."

"Yes, I think I came just in time," said Denton.

Then a stern look came again upon his face.

"Frances," he said, "I do not know, of course, how this matter will end. If Neslerov wishes, he can destroy me. If he finds it advisable to keep silent, then I may find a way to assist this Vladimir. I think we shall soon be on the way to the Obl."

With these words he left the hut and was met at the door by an angry, threatening mob of villagers.

"There he is!" growled an old man, evidently the leader. "He tried to kill his excellency. Kill him!"

"Kill him!" said another. "It is the governor's command. He put the iron road, the bridge, the devil wagons, through our country. The czar does not wish it, and we must avenge the wrong. Kill him!"

CHAPTER IX.
DENTON TURNS LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEER.

DENTON presented an unruined front.

"Take me to the governor," he said.

"The governor is resting," growled a fellow whose face was a mass of greasy hair. "You will kill him."

"Nonsense! Take me to the governor. If you kill me, he will die."

"Why is not, builder of bridges? Is there a god who avenges the death of Americans?"

"It will need no god to do that now. The case is simply that Neslerov needs better care than you can give him. He is badly injured. It is necessary that he should be taken to Tomsk at once. I can start within the hour. There will not be another train to the Obl in four days. Do you desire to keep your precious governor here and have him die on your hands?"

"No. Let us see what the governor has to say."

It was a solemn crowd that marched in two columns, with Denton between, to the hut of the village priest, where Neslerov lay.

"Why do you bring him here?" asked the priest. "Heard you not what his excellency said?"

"Hold your peace. Wait till you hear them speak together," was the reply.

Neslerov looked up at his conqueror, and an expression of hatred came into his eyes. Denton made no show of sentiment or compassion.

"I understand you commanded these villagers to kill me," he said, standing at the side of the bed and looking coldly and sternly at his victim. "I just wanted to say before they kill me—which they certainly will do if you insist—that in that case you would probably die here for lack of proper care."

"You cannot help me—you would not," answered Neslerov.

"That is for you to say. I am not a murderer. I had no desire to kill you. You attacked me, and I defended myself. I am going back to Tomsk, provided your savage villagers don't kill me, and I merely came to ask if you would be pleased to go."

"How?" he asked.

"In the same car you came thus far in."

At Chatham on Monday a marriage took place at an early hour and as the bride couple were leaving the tying post a female rose from among those gathered and demanded to speak to the groom, but he evidently knew the party and explained that he was otherwise engaged and could not speak to her whereupon the exemplification of saying that "hell hath no fury like a woman scorned," was witnessed by the astonished onlookers, for she approached the groom, and using an opprobrious epithet seized him by the collar and tore both collar and tie from their customary place. The groom, who is quite a big chap, appeared glad to be released from the clutches of the incensed woman and made haste to get away.
