

CHIGNECTO POST AND BORDERER. SACKVILLE, N. B., NOV. 8, 1883.

Our Cotton Mills.

Our Grit contemporaries appear to be extremely thankful for small mercies. During the last five years they have had very few crumbs of comfort, but they have certainly made all they could out of the blessings they have received. When the National Policy was adopted they were as one man in their denunciations of the measure and in their predictions of the ruin and disaster which must inevitably follow the protection of our struggling industries; but it must be admitted that they did not display as much unanimity in arranging the details of the coming desolation, or in suggesting a method of averting the catastrophe. As the years rolled on they had the mortification of seeing the country prospering under the beneficent N. P. and of witnessing the birth of new industries and the expansion of those already established, while at the same time they saw an overflowing treasury instead of the empty exchequer which had marked the former administration. The failure of the predicted depression to put in an appearance necessitated a change of tune on the part of the Opposition organs, and they began to denounce the manufacturers who, they said, were getting enormously rich out of the N. P., while the people were groaning beneath a terrible burden of taxation. Now, however, the prophets of evil have a genuine cause for rejoicing, and they claim, unhesitatingly, that their worst predictions are verified. Editorial articles without number have been written to prove that a general collapse of the manufacturing industries of Canada has taken place, that the bottom has fallen out of financial affairs in general and that terrible depression of trade has resulted from the National Policy. Some of our Grit contemporaries severely attempt to conceal their satisfaction in the alleged dire condition of our manufacturing industries, and all unite in proclaiming with deep thankfulness the utter overthrow of the policy of Protection. The cause of all this agitation and all these predictions is to be found in the fact a few of the cotton mills of Canada have found it necessary to partially or entirely suspend operations for a few weeks. There are twenty-one mills in the Dominion engaged in the manufacture of cotton goods, and two of these mills have recently suspended operations for a month or so, some four or five others are only working two-thirds time; the St. John mill has so many orders ahead that it has to work over time, and will probably do so all winter, while the remainder, so far as we know, are working full time and doing their regular amount of work. There has been and is depression among cotton manufacturers of free trade England, but the fact does not serve to point a moral nor furnish a subject for Grit editorials. An English cotton broker has recently failed for a large amount and has involved a number of firms in financial disaster, but that fact is not used as an argument against free trade. All the manufacturing interests of Canada, with the exception of cotton, are in a flourishing condition, and the business outlook is fairly bright and cheerful, but if we are to judge by the dismal dirges of a portion of the press, the country is in the throes of a financial convulsion and on the very verge of bankruptcy and ruin. The true cause of the temporary embarrassment which has overtaken some of our cotton manufacturers is to be found in the fact that they unwisely entrusted the sale of their products to a single broker, who was unable to make a speedy market for them; and also in the fact that nearly all the cotton mills in Canada are engaged in manufacturing one class of goods. If there has been an over-production it has all been in one line, while in several classes of goods which might be made here not a single yard has been manufactured in Canada. Even the charge of over-production seems to fall to the ground in view of the fact that over twelve million square yards of such goods are manufactured in our mills were imported into the Dominion in the fiscal year ended June 30th, 1882. Our cotton manufacturers have learnt wisdom from the experience of the past and will be likely to avoid the binders which have caused some of their number. It is probable that they will now turn their attention to the lines which are in great demand and to classes of goods which have not yet been produced in Canada, thus preventing any longer a repetition of the present local depression. If such be the case the trouble which has befallen a few of the "cotton lords" will not be an unmitigated evil, for it has already given the enemies of progress a large amount of satisfaction and furnished them with a subject for many doleful jeremiads, and it will have the effect of placing our cotton industry upon a firm financial basis.

The appointment of Dr. Rand to the chair of Didactics at Acadia College, has given rise to a great deal of very unpleasant controversy among the Baptists of Nova Scotia. The assailants of the appointment have had things pretty much their own way until recently the Rev. Mr. Saunders, one of the editors of the Halifax Herald, began to publish in the Halifax Herald a series of letters in defence. In his second letter he represented President Sawyer Professor Higgins and Prof. Jones as ardent advocates of the appointment, whereas these gentlemen promptly published in the Herald emphatic denials of the statement.

Coal shipments from the port of Pictou, N. S., for the last week in October were 2,795 tons, viz., from the Vale Co's works, 1,611 tons; International Co. 577 tons; Acadia Co. 336 tons; Halifax Co. 271 tons. The total shipment to date was 154,885 tons.

On Tuesday week there were elections in ten States of the Union. The results on the whole were rather discouraging to the Democratic party and have very materially mitigated the transports of joy with which that party hailed the results of the October election in Ohio. In New York they have succeeded in electing all their State ticket but one by small majorities, but have lost control of both houses of the Legislature and with it the appointment of a U. S. Senator in 1884. In Massachusetts, Ben Butler has received what we trust will prove to be a final extinguisher, while his fellow-rascal, Mahone, the boss of Virginia, has been rudely disposed from control of that good old State, "the mother of presidents." Pennsylvania has returned to the Republican fold, and in Connecticut the Democrats have been routed foot and horse. They retain the control, however, of Maryland. New Jersey has been easily victorious, while the Republicans have been routed in Nebraska and Minnesota. Altogether, the prospects for Republican success in the next presidential election are decidedly brighter than they were a fortnight ago, and, if the Democratic majority in the National House of Representatives abuses its power and alarms the people during the coming winter, as it is pretty sure to do, General Arthur will be beyond all question, succeeded by a President from his own party.

Professor Foster's Lecture.

The seating capacity of the spacious new Music Hall was taxed to the utmost last Thursday evening to furnish accommodation for the highly intelligent audience which assembled to greet Prof. George E. Foster, the eloquent M. P. for Kings County, on his first public appearance at Sackville. The members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, who had been instrumental in securing the services of Prof. Foster, occupied seats on the platform, where several prominent gentlemen also took their places. Rev. Dr. Inch presided, and, after prayer by Rev. Dr. Pickard, introduced the lecturer in a few well-chosen sentences in which he spoke in high terms of the good which had already been accomplished by the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and congratulated the audience upon the intellectual treat which had been provided for the evening. Prof. Foster, in beginning his address, referred to the excellent acoustic properties of the hall, which, he said, was an easy place to speak in, and announced his intention of talking familiarly with his hearers on the Temperance question instead of attempting to make a set speech. A great and wide-spread agitation, the Professor said, was in progress in all parts of the Anglo-Saxon world for the furtherance of the cause of Prohibition, and hundreds and thousands of such meetings as the one now being held at Sackville were taking place in all parts of the world. The great subject under discussion at all these meetings is the best method of diminishing drinking and the consequences of drinking. The present efforts for reform were not the result of a short-lived enthusiasm but were the outgrowth of an agitation which commenced 50 years ago, and which had been gathering strength ever since. The charge of fanaticism is applied to temperance advocates less frequently than in former years, and the best people are all in favor of temperance. The advocates of temperance can afford to be called fanatics when they bear the reproach in company with such men as Hon. W. E. Gladstone, who in the discharge of the duties of his exalted position, remained in his place in Parliament till six o'clock in the morning in order to record his vote in favor of giving Wales the right to close all dram-shops on Sunday. They could afford to be called fanatics along with Canon Farrar, who is unsparring in his denunciations of the curse of drunkenness. Doctors are cool men, not liable to fanaticism, but Dr. Benjamin W. Richardson, in a paper read before a Medical Congress, came to the conclusion that no healthy man should touch alcohol, that no man in ill-health should presume to prescribe alcohol for himself any more than any other drug, and that in nine-tenths of the cases where liquor is prescribed, some other stimulant could be found which would answer equally well. There are only two methods, said the lecturer, by which the cause of prohibition can be promoted—moral suasion and legal coercion. The former is prepared to refute the assertion that temperance men had left moral suasion and taken up legal suasion. There is more moral suasion in 1883 than there ever was before. All great reforms have been begun and carried on by moral suasion, and after moral suasion has done its part, legal suasion must come in and finish the work. Moral sentiment is very good for people who respect it, but in the majority of cases it is useless without legal suasion. It is impossible to complete any great work without the intervention of the law, for many people will not respect the strongest expression of public sentiment until it is brought up to the level of the Statute Book, and moral suasion turns to legal suasion whenever a necessity arises for it. Some people are strongly prejudiced against prohibition, but profess to believe in license. The word, prohibition, has the same effect upon them that a red flag has upon wild beasts. The best clause of the license law is prohibitory, for they prohibit the sale of liquor to minors and intoxicated persons, and limit the time during which it can be sold. The license law also limits the number engaged in the liquor business, and prohibits unlicensed persons from selling, consequently it interferes with the liberty of the subject in the same manner that the prohibition does. The difference between license and prohibition is only in degree, and all are in favor of some degree of prohibition. Some say you can't make a man sober by Act of Parliament, but Canon Wilberforce shows that men have been made sober by the course of law, as in cases where drunken criminals are sentenced to long terms of imprisonment. You can't make a man honest by Act of Parliament, but no one will say that it is useless to enforce laws against dishonesty. He (Prof. Foster) does not expect to make all men sober by prohibition any more than he expects that all men will be made virtuous by the Statute Book. The true test of the law is not that it entirely stops the sale of liquor, but that it makes it more difficult to get by the traffic. The Scott Act, imperfectly as it has been carried out, has done good here. It has broken up in a measure the pernicious habit of treating, and has driven the liquor traffic to divers respectable places. The Scott Act has not had a fair chance from the first, for it has been hampered in its operation by the question of its constitutionality. The Government should not call upon private individuals to carry out the law, but it should be administered in the same manner as the other laws of the land. This error in the provisions for enforcing the Scott Act has been remedied by clause in the Dominion license law, which is to go into operation on the first of next May, and which provides that officials shall be appointed by Government in every county where the Scott Act is in force to carry out the provisions of the law. Temperance people who are thinking about repealing the Scott Act, should first see if there be not danger of jumping into the fire while trying to get out of the frying-pan. The first thing you do when you license the sale of liquor is to sanction the traffic. The rumshop then has the sanction of the law just as much as the church or the school-house. To-day the liquor traffic is not responsible, but as soon as you license it you are in with the authority of the law and become a partner in the business. The address, which occupied about an hour and a half, was a brilliant effort worthy of the reputation of the speaker, and first prize was made in clear and forcible illustrations and contained many passages of lofty eloquence and rare beauty. Excellent order was maintained throughout, and, judging by the number in which the points made by the speaker were received, he certainly had the sympathy of a large majority of the audience. Dr. Moore, in moving a vote of thanks, made a public reiteration of the somewhat contemptuous opinion he held of the lecturer, and of the efficacy of the W. C. T. U., and said that he was now convinced that he had already done a large amount of good. The motion of thanks was seconded by Mrs. Pickard, Esq., and was carried with enthusiasm, and elicited a happy response from the lecturer. A few remarks were then made by W. H. Rogers, Esq., Inspector of Fisheries, and the meeting was brought to a close with the Doxology and the benediction.

Personal and Political.

—Kosuth, the Hungarian patriot, is dying at Turin. —The Prince of Wales was forty-two years old on the 9th inst. —A despatch from Dublin states that there are influences at work to obtain for Lord Lorne the position of Viceroy of Ireland. —Lady Elizabeth Howard was the youngest daughter of the Duke of Abercorn and is described as "perfectly lovely." —Franz Liszt celebrated his seventy-second birthday at Jena, on Oct. 22, where his oratorio "Saint Elizabeth" was performed at the Court Theatre. —Butler goes out, and Robinson comes in. What does the primo Statelet lose or win? She swaps a man and gets a mankin and the proud right of tanning human skin. —A few literary men have been so successful and thrifty as Anthony Trollope. His literary work has never intermitted at home or abroad and netted him a total of about $50,000. —The trial of a Minister of State for Sweden is proceeding on the articles of impeachment already formulated; the prosecution demands that the Minister be forever disqualified for holding office. —Green Willie has been overwhelmed with poems commemorative of the death of John Brown, and acknowledges them with her autograph—so if any one desires it he has only to send an elegy. —The remains of Harvey, the discoverer of a circulation of the blood, have recently been placed in a magnificent sarcophagus in the parish church at Hempstead, England, by the Royal College of Physicians of London. —A company of sailors named William Porton recently died in England, who was by Nelson's side when he received his mortal wound at Trafalgar. He was born on a man-of-war on Aug. 12th, 1783, and was killed in a work-house. —Gen. Sir Patrick Grant, the present Governor of Chelsea Hospital, has just been made a field marshal on the active list of the army, the other four being the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge, Lord Strathairn, and Lord Napier of Magdalen. —The Gaulois publishes a report that M. de Brazza, the French explorer, has been killed in a fight in the Congo country, Africa. No confirmation of the report, however, has been received by the Minister of Marine. —Lord Donegal is succeeded in his Marquisate by a brother, past 80, whose eldest son, now earl of Belfast, is chiefly known to the public through the chronicles of the Bankruptcy Court. Some years ago he took a country house, and by means of fierce dogs bade defiance to the Sheriff's officers. —When Lord Coleridge visited the New York Stock Exchange, the brokers sang "God Save the Queen." His Lordship might stay over here ten thousand years, and he would never hear anybody sing "God Save the Brokers." The Americans are a practical, hard-working, sensible people, who believe that the age of miracles has gone by. —Sir Charles Tupper is said by an American paper to be negotiating the sale of the island of Anticosti to the French Government with the object of amicably settling the disputes between the French and English fishermen in Newfoundland. He shall probably next hear of his selling the Isle of Wight to the Emperor of Russia to prevent a quarrel between the Czar and the Queen.

Trade and Commerce.

—The creditors of Morris Ronger, the insolvent Liverpool cotton king, will receive a very small dividend. —It is reported that President Arthur will call the attention of Congress to the necessity of giving serious consideration to the Isthmian Canal question. —Canadian Pacific Railway earning for the third week in October, 1883, were $132,000; Same week in 1882, $67,000; Increase, $65,000. Mileage—1883, 1,931; 1882, 899. —The traffic on the Grand Trunk Railway for the week ending October 30th was $37,751; for the corresponding week last year, $35,588, showing an increase of $2,163. —The new coal syndicate for operating the Intercolonial mines at Cape Breton, will supply the Canadian Pacific Railway as far as possible with an annual amount of coal which is estimated at 60,000 to 100,000 tons. —Mr. D. Falconer, a well-known flour merchant of Halifax, suspended payment a few days ago with liabilities of some $12,000. If time be granted him, he is confident of being able to pay in full.
