DEMPESEY AND GIBBONS READY FOR BIG FIGHT

WORLD'S TITLE BATTLE NOT EXPECTED TO DRAW MONEY-MAKING CROWDS

Last Predictions From Shelby Place Attendance at Today's Fight at 15,000.

BOTH MEN ON EDGE

Dempesey and Gibbons Assert They Are in Shape To Fight Battle of Their Lives.

By HENRY L. FARRELL. Special to The Advertiser.

Shelby, Mont., July 4.—In the big white pine saucer out here on the Montana plains, Jack Dempesey this afternoon answers another challenge for his world's heavyweight crown. Uj at daybreak, this little cow town swelled to a hundred times its population, besieged the big arena with its 40,000 seating capacity to see what Dempesey is going to do with his latest competitor, Tommy Gibbons, the Irish lad from St. Paul.

In a circus setting—hotel tents, hot dog vendors, concessionaires, pennants, flags, milling, excited crowds—the pre-fight scene was set. Over at Great Falls, Jack Dempesey arose early and parked himself in the splendor of the private car which is bringing him here from his training camp.

About a half-mile out from the dirt streets, Tommy Gibbons rolled out of bed and busied himself doing nothing while he waited for the referee to call him into the ring that will make or break him. For three years he has been waiting for this chance, and now he is confident that he will be successful. It will be a wide-open fight.

Jack Kearns and Eddie Kane, the managers of the two heavyweights, met with the Shelby boxing commission and agreed upon a set of rules that will permit either one of the fighters to hit any time anywhere above the belt. The rabbit punch, the kidney punch and other questionable blows will be permitted, and the contestants shall protect themselves at all times—which means there will be hitting in the clinches and breaking away.

This gives the rugged Dempesey a decided advantage, because he always does his most effective work at close quarters. Upon the insistence of Eddie Kane, the referee changed the ring and made it 21 feet inside of the ropes, instead of 15 feet, as it was originally built. This will give Gibbons more room to keep away from the man-killer champion in the early rounds.

Promoters—those same promoters who wished and watched unsuccessfully for the last $300,000 of Dempesey's $300,000 purse—say there will be 15,000 spectators at the ring side. It seems at least that many seats will be filled. The eating houses were crowded, and it was impossible to get into any place to drink unless you stood in line for an hour.

The cowboys, with their hair pants, gave the wild west atmosphere to the picture. There was plenty of liquor and good beer being handed around, and no one seemed to pack a third that could not be quenched. This all lent a more jolly spirit to the occasion and helped to characterize the last few days before the fight when it did not seem certain that it would be staged.

The big fight will get under way at 3 p.m., mountain standard time. The arena opens at 10 a.m., and the first preliminary bout starts at noon. While Gibbons prevails as the sentimental favorite here, most of the critics who have watched the champion and his challenger all through their training were of the opinion that Gibbons had only one chance to win, and that one chance depended upon his style of attack.

Both in Great Shape.

Gibbons said this morning that he had his plan firmly in mind, and that he felt sure he knew how to beat the champion. Tommy said he knew he

MAYOR APPROVES PLAN TO CONVERT TO ONE-MAN CARS

Street Railway Company To Remodel Six of Their Older Vehicles.

BETTER SERVICE

Council Ready To Work With Company in Interests of Citizens.

Mayor Wenige views favorably the latest request from the London Street Railway corporation to convert six of their older cars into vehicles of the one-man variety.

"I think the idea is good," his worship stated, "I stand for service all the time. I don't care if the street railway company can operate its cars without any men at all just as long as they can maintain a decent transportation for the general public."

The mayor believes now that the company is making a real honest endeavor to maintain and actually improve their present service.

"Once again I say that it is 1923," he says. "And I can see that the company seems to be making a larger effort than ever before to do the right thing. Why interfere with them or hamper them if they want to improve their service?"

At the next regular session of the franchise committee, the councillors will consider and, from present indications, will approve the company's proposal about one-man cars.

It is more than likely that Ald. Judd's suggestion will be followed. The company suggests employing their new center-door cars with one man during the slack periods, but the council thinks that it would be more satisfactory, and a great deal safer to leave two men on these cars and convert six old cars into one-man cars in lieu of three as suggested by the company. The latter was favorably impressed with this alternative.

The proposed change in the equipment would take a considerable period, he explained, as it was intended to practically build over the old structures. "We will spend in the neighborhood of $3,000 a car," he explained. "But the cars will be almost like new, and will materially improve our service."

Mayor Wenige insists that during 1923 at least, the street railway company appreciates the fact that increased service by the company is in their interest as well as the citizens'.

THINK STORM LOSS IN WEST WILL AMOUNT TO $1,000,000

Hail on Sunday Evening Cuts Swath in Crops For 150 Miles by Five Miles in Alberta.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Lethbridge, Alta., July 4.—Estimates of the damage done by Sunday evening's big hail storm, which cut a swath approximating 150 miles by five miles from Midnapore to the Milk River Ridge in Southern Alberta, cannot be arrived at with any degree of satisfaction for a number of reasons.

First of these is that the storm occurred so early in the crop season that it is impossible to estimate the possible recovery. Then, too, the hail was much more intense in some stretches than in others.

The nearest possible guess was that the crop will be cut down to the extent of a million dollars. Under certain weather conditions, it may be much more and it may be much less.

Hail insurance adjusters will make no estimate of the amount of the loss as yet.

It is a story of Red and White crammed with thrills.

British Fear Labor Power, Abolish Land Registration

Conservatives Think Labor Will Control Government, So Take Steps To Protect Land Owners From Taxes.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, July 4.—The House of Commons, by a vote of 260 to 187, agreed to the abolition of the registration of land sales and leases after this step had been opposed by Austen Chamberlain, Lloyd George, H. H. Asquith and Ramsay MacDonald.

Lloyd George pointed out that each of the dominions had a complete register.

Premier Baldwin contended that registration was an unnecessary expense.

Austen Chamberlain suggested that the Conservatives feared a Labor government would use the information secured by registration for the application of a predatory system of taxation. The fight on any such question, he said, must be on a big issue.

British Start Survey of City Fire Department

Police Branch Next On List of Toronto Investigators.

TRUSTEES IN FAVOR

Board of Education To Be Requested To Sanction Probe.

As foretold yesterday in The Advertiser, the fire department survey is under way at last, following some months of bickering and argument both in the city council and among Londoners on the streets. Dr. Horace L. Brittain, head of the Citizens' Research Institute of Toronto, started this morning with two of his colleagues, C. C. Wyatt and Joseph E. Howes, on the first survey on the list. The police department is the next in order, and after that the city hall surveys and perhaps the board of education.

Added Efficiency.

Dr. Brittain will present the case of the survey personally to the board of education at their next meeting on Thursday afternoon. Many of the trustees are strongly in favor of the idea which is recognized in all the larger centers as being an added efficiency to the administration of any body.

"There are two things," he said, "in connection with these surveys which should be clearly impressed on the mind of every citizen. First, that the survey is the exact definition of what we are doing and, second, administrative side of the various departments."

"Another important part of the work is to get that it has in view storing public confidence in the various departments. We often find that these surveys are asked for in cities where this confidence is lacking. One thing or another, has been destroyed and in this way alone, by proving that the fears of the public were not warranted by the facts, we have, in my opinion, been justified."

Not Detective Agency.

"You know," he went on, "we are not a detective agency, neither are we investigators in the ordinary sense. We are not here to probe into the personal record of any of the officials, and we are not to hold up any member of a department for criticism. The whole idea of the survey is to enable us to forward a sound recommendation, based on the facts, to the heads of the departments, on which they may act as they see fit in the light of our studies. Then we are to make a record of the case of a fire department, of course."

Dr. Brittain and his party, who spent the morning in the central fire hall, on King street, were delighted with the very friendly way in which they had been received by the chief and his staff.

"That is always the way we like to carry on our work," said the doctor. "We like to work with and not against the heads of the departments, and we wish them to feel that we are not antagonistic to them in any way."

The Citizens' Research Institute has carried out similar surveys in Toronto, Windsor, Hamilton, Winnipeg and in many of the other cities, sending in their recommendations and in every case with the satisfaction of knowing that they were able to advise measures which when put into operation would result in a considerable saving in the cost of administration.

Had Varied Experience.

Dr. Brittain himself as the head of the institute has had a varied experience in this kind of work. Ten years ago some of the most influential men in the city hall there were being run at too great an expense, looked about for a man to study the problem and found that in New York there was an institute doing this sort of work.

Accordingly they asked the institute to undertake the survey of the city hall and the man who was sent to carry out this work was a Canadian medical man, the second in command of the institution, and none other than Dr. Horace L. Brittain.

Such satisfaction was shown with the Toronto survey that it was determined to form a similar organization in Canada to that which already existed in the United States. The institute is a graduate of one of the maritime universities, was asked to take charge and since that time has with the aid of a competent staff, has gathered about him, undertaken a number of such surveys, bringing credit to the institute, and always a certain satisfaction to the city in which he has operated.

Half the cost of the London surveys are being met by the local branch of the institute, and the other half by the thoroughness of the work done, and the restored public confidence that goes with a survey, has justified the city fathers in their decision to carry them through.

CROPS AND TREES DESTROYED BY ICE IN GREAT STORM

Hail and Wind Whips St. Thomas District, Inflicting Heavy Loss.

AGED MAN SUCCUMBS

Charles Ross Dies at School Picnic When Storm Breaks.

The severeness of yesterday afternoon's thunderstorm that hovered over London for a while, and then seemed to move in a southeasterly direction, was not apparent to Londoners, but St. Thomas suffered greatly. Orchards and crops, from Mill Creek bridge to Pinafore Park, and in other sections several miles in area, were destroyed.

In certain areas hail as big as hickory nuts fell covering the ground to the depth of a foot or more. Train crews on L. & P. S. cars arriving in St. Thomas late in the afternoon had visions of winter realistically revived when they saw in the vicinity of Mill Creek bridge, a few miles from Pinafore Park, large drifts of hail that had been swept over the tracks by the wind and rain. The usual depth was a foot, the members of crews state, and in places even the hail was massed as easily as two feet deep.

Farmers and gardeners residing north of St. Thomas declare that it was the worst hail storm in several years. The full force of the storm was felt in a stretch two miles wide and from ten to fifteen miles long, and in this district, whole fields of grain and corn were laid level.

Orchards also suffered to a great extent, and many trees were stripped of every bit of fruit, rendering this fall's fruit crop in certain sections a total loss. In some places reports have been received that barn fowl were killed by the heavy stinging storm and the hail also lay deep on the ground as the storm passed.

It is doubtful if any picnic party ever experienced such excitement as the children of the Southwood town ship school, who gathered in Pinafore Park yesterday for their annual outing. At times the storm was partial, and the children in the park, and a tree near the pavilion was struck by lightning. An unfortunate climax of the picnic was the sudden death of Charles P. Ross, aged 71 years, who succumbed to heart trouble as he was preparing to return home. It is thought that the severity of the storm and the excitement caused by it is in some measure responsible for his untimely passing.

In speaking to The Advertiser this morning, E. Richardson, general manager of the London and Port Stanley Railway, said that they were fortunate in being able to maintain their usual passenger service, although the trains had to go through the worst of the storm.

Hail Deep on Ground.

Mr. Richardson corroborated reports from the stricken districts that the hail was a foot and a half and even two feet deep in some places. He passed over the road during the storm, he said, and he himself saw fields of grain on both sides of the track beaten down by the hail.

"The fall of hail seemed to be the worst from the Mill Creek bridge right up to Pinafore Park," the general manager said. "The ground was obliterated and the ice on the tracks in some places made me think of the snow storms last winter."

The hail storm didn't include St. Thomas proper, Mr. Richardson stated, although Pinafore Park suffered to the extent of a foot and a half, and the outskirts of the city appeared undamaged and seemed to point that the fall of hail stopped at Pinafore Park.

Mr. Richardson returned to London about 9 o'clock last night and at that hour the hail was four and five inches deep in many places, he asserted.

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF SYDNEY MINES WITH PUMPS IDLE

Company Officials Take Over Work in Attempt To Save Pits.

TEN THOUSAND IDLE

Company Declares Trouble Is Between Workers and Government.

Sydney, N.S., July 4.—With over 10,000 men on strike in the Cape Breton industrial area, the night passed without serious disturbance so far as police and municipal officials have been able to ascertain this morning.

In the coal fields relays of pickets organized on a military basis are closely guarding the 22 collieries of the British Empire Steel Corporation but no attempt is being made to work the mines. Company officials, who have been bringing out horses and trying to keep the pits pumped have not so far been interfered with.

Semi-official information from Besco sources indicate that the company regards the trouble as between the men and the company, inasmuch as their avowed demand is for the removal of the militia and provincial police from the mines. Company officials, who were sent here by the two governments respectively, the strikers have abandoned the fight to save the big coal bank at New Aberdeen, where a huge pile of over 20,000 tons of coal has been on fire for the past 10 days. No disturbance has occurred at the steel plant or the coal mines, and no move toward a settlement has been made by either side since the informal conference between Hon. D. A. Cameron and the strike leaders here yesterday afternoon.

OFFICIALS WORK PUMPS.

Special to The Advertiser.

Company officials will take over the maintenance work and endeavor to keep the pumps, fans and power house in operation to save the mines. During the last strike the pits were allowed to flood and incalculable damage was done the underground workings.

The strike actually commenced early in the evening as the men on the night shifts in a number of pits did not go to work.

At midnight 100 per cent strong was tempered with a resolution of permit the maintenance men to remain at the pits as long as they allow the company to get the horses out of the mines.

Following a meeting the men reported that the company had withdrawn police and soldiers be withdrawn. Later in the afternoon, they said they had a conference in Sydney with Hon. D. A. Cameron, provincial secretary, which they characterized "The greatest force they had ever attended."

Seek Postponement.

In regard to the accusations respecting the conduct of the provincial police here, the provincial secretary asked that they order the strike postponed until the matter be fully investigated. This they refused to do.

Colonel Eric MacDonald, who was called into the conference was ridiculed by the speakers as a result of their meeting. They said Hon. D. A. Cameron left last evening for Halifax to confer with the premier and the members of the government regarding the whole situation. They counseled the miners to remain firm in their decision until the provincial police and other troops were removed from Cape Breton.

The cancellation of the district charter threatened by President John L. Lewis in the case of a strike, was discussed and the executive members advised the miners to keep their hands off if this should occur. They assured the assembly that the outcome would be successful, and repeated that the proper thing for Lewis to do was to "keep his hands off the affairs of district 26."

Picket All Mines.

Following the meeting at which the strike decision was unanimously and enthusiastically reaffirmed, the miners returned to their various localities to appoint pickets who went on duty at midnight.

During the conference yesterday afternoon, D. H. McDougall asked the miners' delegation if it would be possible to have the men remain on duty at Dominion No. 2 bankhead to fight the fire which has been raging there for some time. The answer of J. B. Turn to Page 2, Column 3.

Dr. Brittain himself as the head of the institute has had a varied experience in this kind of work. Ten years ago some of the most influential men in the city hall there were being run at too great an expense, looked about for a man to study the problem and found that in New York there was an institute doing this sort of work.

Accordingly they asked the institute to undertake the survey of the city hall and the man who was sent to carry out this work was a Canadian medical man, the second in command of the institution, and none other than Dr. Horace L. Brittain.

Such satisfaction was shown with the Toronto survey that it was determined to form a similar organization in Canada to that which already existed in the United States. The institute is a graduate of one of the maritime universities, was asked to take charge and since that time has with the aid of a competent staff, has gathered about him, undertaken a number of such surveys, bringing credit to the institute, and always a certain satisfaction to the city in which he has operated.

Half the cost of the London surveys are being met by the local branch of the institute, and the other half by the thoroughness of the work done, and the restored public confidence that goes with a survey, has justified the city fathers in their decision to carry them through.

SCIENCE ALLEMIEN OBJECT TO "SURVEY" BY EXPERTS

ALDERMEN OBJECT TO PROBE BY BRITISH MEN

Will Cost More Than It Will Be Worth, Is View of Two.

MAYOR IS CONFIDENT

Engagement of the citizens' research bureau to investigate the operation of several municipal departments does not meet with the whole-hearted approval of all members of the city council and the visiting experts is inevitable if the salary list is tampered with.

Ald. Frank McKay, stated quite emphatically today that, in his opinion, the council would not derive sufficient benefit to justify the expenditure — a matter of probably $4,000 or $5,000.

And what is more, he questions from whence will come the necessary funds. He insists, as does Ald. Gordon Drake, that the cost will not be met from the $5,000 set aside in the 1923 estimates for "wages."

Ald. McKay's frank opinion coincides with the opinion voiced at last night's city council session by Ald. George Burdick, that "he would not allow the research bureau to dictate to him, as a councillor, what wages to pay."

Can't Touch Wages.
And Ald. McKay was also one of those who favored an immediate survey of the city hall salary roster, with a view to re-adjustment, rather than wait until after reports had been tendered by the research committee, as suggested by Mayor Wenigke. He maintains further that the respective committees should consider every employee under their jurisdiction when the pay list is being overhauled.

Mayor Wenigke stated today that the "new where the funds would come from," but he did not enlarge upon this phase of the situation, other than to declare that the council had ordered the survey and would have to pay for it.

While the claim has been registered that possibly the survey of the police department by the research bureau would not serve the original purpose, His Worship holds a contrary view.

If I feel confident that the survey will accomplish everything," he said, "and that a report will be submitted for the police department, including the survey to the council, including the operation thereof."

Two Opposed.
When the council officially ordered the survey, both Ald. McKay and Ald. John Colbert opposed the undertaking, particularly as it applied to the fire and police departments. Both councillors voiced the opinion that the council was quite able to probe the fire department and that the police were practically "dogging the issue."

Ald. McKay opposed the scheduled survey of the police department, maintaining that such action was not within the jurisdiction of the council, but a question for the police commissioners.

Ald. McKay questioned last night whether another survey of the assessment department was necessary, in view of the fact that the research office earlier in the year and the excellent result since then.

Mayor Wenigke declares that the council is not "dictatorial attitude," but will merely recommend what they, from their experience, would consider a sound, economical and efficient method of operation and maintenance.

LONDONER INVENTS UNIQUE ROAD GUIDE
S. Charlton Makes Map Which Proves of Great Advantage to Motorists.

Mr. Sam Charlton of London has brought out something entirely new and original in the matter of road maps. Some time ago he conceived the idea of making a road map, covering Ontario and the surrounding provinces, and he has now completed the map in a car, and yet one that would have all the highways and good roads clearly marked.

With this end in view he has cut the map of Ontario into ten sections, these fitting in a neat case. As any particular section is required it is taken and placed on top of the others, under a celluloid scale, which forms the cover of the map. The map is held in place by a red line that makes ten-mile squares. A glance at this will show distances between points quite accurately.

Mr. Charlton has his idea protected by patents both in Canada and United States, and already one visitor to the city from California, interested in this class of work, has offered a neat figure for the rights to publish and distribute the map in that state. The department stores in Toronto, has placed an initial order for 1,000.

Tells Easy Way To Swim Without Aid of Teacher

Expert Lady Amateur Advises Beginners To Banish Fear of Getting Mouth Under Water—Breast Stroke Now Out of Fashion.

The following article has been written for The Advertiser by one of London's most expert lady swimmers. This young lady taught herself to swim by the methods she describes.

Professionals have various methods of instructing beginners in the art of swimming. For the younger who must plunge around in a river or lake, without the benefit of an instructor, in an endeavor to find out by himself how it is managed, these scientific methods are not always the most easily worked. Some say the process of getting oneself thrown into the water is still the most reliable.

Body Will Not Sink.
However, these hints by an amateur who learned to swim by some of the most reliable methods, rather than by the scientific method, are worth a try.

To begin with, the first idea instilled into the then youthful mind of the young lady was that the body will not sink unless it is forced under. Most people complain that they are sure they could swim if they could only manage to keep their feet up. The fact of the matter is that the feet are usually quite willing to stay up if their owner is willing to let them.

As If on Mattress.
Kneel in water a little over knee depth. Place the arms flat out on the water, as though lying across a bed, with the hands placed together, one on top of the other. Then lean forward, the head being under water. It is impossible to swim well without letting the head lie easily on, or nearly under, the water. The easiest position is that of a child saying prayers at a bedside.

From my point of view, which is of course that of an amateur, the first essential is learning not to be afraid of getting the face and head under water. It is impossible to swim well without letting the head lie easily on, or nearly under, the water. The easiest position is that of a child saying prayers at a bedside.

FINEST S.S.A. BAND PLAYING IN LONDON, CONCLUDING TOUR

Flint Army Musicians Delight Huge Crowds On Visit to City.

GO TO SPRINGBANK

Playing with all the zest and perfect harmony that gained for the reputation of being the finest Salvation Army Band in America, 58 members of the Flint Salvation music makers delighted Londoners as they strode down the main streets this morning.

The Flint bandmen arrived in the city from Toronto at 11:30 via C.N.R. to visit the local branch of the army and play at various functions. Mayor George Wenigke extended the band a hearty welcome and expressed the hope that Londoners would turn out in legions to hear the inspiring music at Springbank Park this afternoon.

The bandmen would enjoy the instrumentalists would enjoy their visit to London and assured them the citizens would be delighted with their playing.

Received at Toronto.
The Flint band was accorded enthusiastic reception at the city hall. Toronto where they played at Sunnyside Park, Allen's theater and other places. Members of the musical brigade spoke glowingly of the Queen City.

"Seventeen thousand people listened to our selections at Sunnyside beach in Toronto last night, and everywhere in Canada we have been afforded the best of hospitality," said Ensign Hicks when he was met at the train by The Advertiser.

The Flint band came here from Toronto, Hamilton and Brantford, where they have been playing to capacity audiences. London is their last visit and they will return to Flint tomorrow morning.

This band is probably the finest of its kind in North America, having in its personnel many distinguished musicians, some of whom have played with Sousa's band. The Salvation Army band is composed of so many instrumentalists of exceptional ability, are certain to give a most enjoyable concert at Springbank this afternoon.

Play at Citadel.
Local Salvation Army officers have been trying to secure an auditorium in the city that could seat thousands of people desirous of listening to the refreshing music of this extraordinary band. A large enough place could not be obtained and as a result the concert will be given at the Salvation Army Citadel.

This afternoon the band is to journey to Springbank on two special trains, and it is expected that large throngs of people will hear this band of exceptional note.

Dressed in snappy gray uniforms with round bays, the Americans made a favorable impression when they marched in precise order down the main streets of the city. After having luncheon they will meet local Salvationists and later the concert at Springbank will commence.

ENTERTAINS CADETS AT CARLING HEIGHTS
Y. M. C. A. Provides Enjoyable Program For Boys Attending Camp.

More than 250 cadets encamped at Carling Heights attended the concert held in the "Y" hut last night. The cadets were entertained by the Y. M. C. A. and with Bob Liddle, camp secretary, in charge. Two or three first class motion pictures and special musical numbers made up a program that was entertaining in every detail and that the appreciation of the lads was genuine was evident, every available place in the hut being occupied.

One film worthy of mention was "The Beginning of Life," released under the direction of the Social Service Hygiene Council and in a few remarks to the boys after the program was concluded by the Y. M. C. A. national council, lauded the educational feature as one of the finest for boys that he had ever seen.

Between the numbers of the program interest was enlivened by several of the boys from outside camps. Reg. Higgins was the accompanist for the evening.

Tonight a special treat is promised the cadets when the Highland Pipe Band of Western Ontario Regiment will stage a band concert on the grounds.

The music band is well known throughout this part of the province and the citizens of London who wish to attend are cordially invited to do so by the camp officials.

APPOINT MRS. ROSS NEW MATRON AT JAIL
Governor Dawson Reports Twelve Prisoners Now Inmates of Institution.

Mrs. Frank Ross, Hensall, is the new matron at the county jail. The governor Byron Dawson told The Advertiser this morning. Mrs. Ross has been appointed on probation in succession to Miss Jennie Doyle who was superannuated on June 1. She has already taken over her duties and is on probation for the time being.

The end of the half year saw the county jail with only 12 prisoners enjoying the hospitality of the government. None of these confined here are guilty of serious offenses.

Hoover Suffers Defeat In English Sculling Match

U. S. Oarsman Loses Title to Diamond Sculls During Preliminary Heat When Oar Hits Boom and Splits.

Associated Press Despatch.
Henley on Thames, July 4.—The most dangerous opponent of Hilton A. Belyea of St. John, N.B., Canada's champion sculler, in the diamond sculls competition was eliminated this morning when Walter M. Hoover of Duluth, defender of the trophy, was defeated in a preliminary heat by D. R. L. Gollan of the Leander club.

Belyea Has Good Chance.
Gollan won by three-quarters of a length in eight minutes and 24 seconds. Belyea, with Hoover eliminated, is now considered to have an excellent chance of winning the competition. He will not row in his preliminary heat until tomorrow.

Gollan, through whose victory the United States oarsman loses his title to the diamond sculls which he won in last year's regatta, made his first appearance in sculling races at Cambridge in November, 1919. He was then at First Trinity College and won his heat in a race on the Cam. In his training Gollan, a deaf mute, was given directions by a professional from the river bank by means of signs.

Hoover hit a boom with one of his oars in making the course soon after the start and split the blade. He lost in length by the accident, but despite the handicap, recovered most of the distance and finished with no daylight between his shell and Gollan's. Hoover was loudly cheered when he pulled to the Englishman's boat and congratulated him.

Defeats Norwegian.
In another heat of the Diamond Sculls, K. A. E. Wilson, English, defeated H. L. Jungmann, a Norwegian who has done most of his rowing in South America.

There was an upset in the Grand Challenge Cup competition when in an early heat the Leander crew, holders of the cup, were defeated by the Eton Vikings. The Eton crew won by a length and a quarter.

FIGHT FANS ARRIVE.
Associated Press Despatch.
Shelby, July 4.—At eight o'clock the pile of tickets remaining unsold in fight headquarters was bundled into a government truck, amply guarded, and carried to the box office at the arena. Trains arriving here early today continued to be crowded with fight fans. Several specials were dropped from regular trains and others continued to arrive during the morning.

Gibbons was expected to weigh in at about 194 pounds and Gibbons about 175 or less. They are both about the same height, although Dempsey has the advantage in reach.

Ernie Slayes of Minnesota and Jack MacDonald of Seattle will start the card with a six round number. The next will be six rounds between Bud Gorman of Racine and Harry Drake of England. The semi-final will be 10 rounds between Jimmy Delaney of St. Paul and Jack Burke of Pittsburgh.

In Dempsey's corner for the big fight will be Kenney, Jerry Lavette, his trainer, and Joe Benjamin, California lightweight. With Gibbons will be Kane, Buck Page, his trainer, and Bud Gorman, his chief sparring partner. Jimmy Dougherty, Philadelphia, is to be the referee.

Ringside seats were selling at cut rates on the streets of Shelby. Speculators were buying the tickets at cut rates and reselling them at the railroad station to others for the regular price. It was reported unofficially that between $3,000 and $5,000 had been realized by fight officials from the sale of tickets today.

Want Gibbons to Win.
Shelby is torn by two ardent desires today. One is to see Tom Gibbons win. The challenger is an overwhelming favorite with the townspeople with whom he has been fra-

TO SURVEY WAGES OF ALL EMPLOYEES ON THE L. & P. S.

Whole Question To Be Discussed at Next Meeting of Commission.

TAKE QUICK ACTION

While the city councillors have talked wages and salaries more or less consistently since they assumed office on Jan. 8, and achieved little, it remains for the Labour & Post Stanley Railway Commissioners to pursue a definite course. Whether their finding will meet with unanimous satisfaction is a matter of conjecture.

A complete survey of the L. & P. S. pay roll will be staged Monday morning, when the commissioners will convene for their monthly session, when, at the instigation of Donald Wright, the Labour member, wages will claim a fair share of the discussion.

In compliance with the directions of Sir Adam Beck, chairman, and his colleagues, at the last session, Manager J. E. Richards will present the railway's wage roster, together with corresponding reports from other railroad corporations, including electric roads, similar to the city's line to Lake Erie.

In May last, when certain recommendations for salary increases were submitted, Commissioner Wright asked that his colleagues consider his proposal to survey the entire pay roll, with a view toward a complete revision. At that time, however, the famous Beck-Wenigke list battle was at its height, and the pay roll itself was jealously guarded. In any event the proposition was set back for a month, and at the same time Mayor Wenigke explained that he personally could not conscientiously support any sort of a motion affecting wages until he had the list at his disposal.

Since that time, however, the list has been submitted to the council and printed in the municipal year book. "I have no objection," Commissioner Wright's colleagues agreed to at least consider his project.

The outcome of Monday's assembly is problematical. About the only definite announcement is that he is at this time that there will be no reductions.

"There may be a few increases," comments Commissioner Frank Harley, who explains, however, that he has not studied the L. & P. S. situation as compared with remuneration in other industries, and that he has not studied the situation in other electrical roads.

"The manager will submit comparative reports," stated Mr. Harley, "and although I have yet to make a study of the situation, I have heard general remarks that the wages paid at the Port Stanley road are on a par with other roads, if not better in certain instances. Of course, I am only speaking generally, as I have not the reports at my disposal yet. He started for another car, and there may be a few increases."

"I would like to see a complete revision of the entire pay roll," Commissioner Wright stated today, "and have every employee considered again. I moved to this effect at the May meeting, when the manager submitted certain recommendations."

CAPT. M'MILLAN NOW ON WAY TO POLAR REGIONS

A thousand years of shipbuilding: Leviathan, the Bowdoin would appear even smaller. The size of the liner is indicated further by the New York skyline in the background. The highest building on Manhattan Island, the Woolworth (at the left), rises 792 feet, with 51 stories. At the upper right is a replica of the Half Moon, on which Hendrik Hudson discovered New York harbor in 1609. At the upper right is Columbus' flagship, the Santa Maria—largest of his three ships in the voyage on which he discovered America. This is a photograph of a reproduction of the Santa Maria. In the middle, top, is a picture of a Viking ship, with oars and sails, such as the Norsemen used in the discovery of America in 1000 A.D., according to some authorities. The Vikings also penetrated into Arctic regions in vessels of this size. This replica is copied from the Gokstad ship, which, almost complete, was unearthed in Scandinavia, and is now in a museum in Christiania.

The tremendous size of the Leviathan is made apparent by contrast with some of the most famous vessels in the history of navigation, and with the Bowdoin, smallest of Arctic expedition ships, in which Dr. Donald B. MacMillan is bound for his polar outpost, carrying radio with him. Some of the comparative measurements follow, those of ancient ships being taken from the best available records:

VESSEL	LENGTH, feet
The Leviathan (A.D. 1923)	950.7
The Bowdoin (smallest Arctic exploring ship, under Captain MacMillan (A.D. 1923))	75.7 waterline, 89.5 over all
The Santa Maria, Columbus' flagship (A.D. 1492)	100.0
The Gokstad Viking ship (A.D. 1000)	78.0
The Half Moon, Hendrik Hudson's ship in the discovery of the Hudson River (A.D. 1609)	75.0
The Gjoa, Amundsen's Arctic ship (A.D. 1903)	75.0 (greater tonnage than the Bowdoin)

WILL TELL WORLD OF TRIP IN NORTH BY RADIO NEWS

Dr. MacMillan Sets Historical Precedent in Latest Polar Expedition.

ENTIRELY AMATEUR

Dr. Donald B. MacMillan, famous explorer, heading north as special Arctic radio correspondent of The Advertiser and the North American Newspaper Alliance, will solve the great mystery of radio—the effect of the aurora borealis. That is the prediction made after careful study of the situation by Hiram Percy Maxim, one of the most distinguished scientists and inventors, and for years a student of radio in all its aspects. MacMillan himself declares he is confident of success.

By HIRAM PERCY MAXIM. This latest MacMillan expedition fires the imagination more than any previous attempt in the Arctic. For the first time in history a ship is going into the unexplored regions around the North Pole equipped with radio transmitting and receiving apparatus capable of reaching every civilized country in the northern hemisphere. I firmly believe he will succeed in communicating with the outer world.

It would be a poor imagination indeed which would not thrill at the spectacle of this little ship threading its way in the northern ice fields and wintering in a place many hundreds of miles from any human habitation, with the entire radio world looking on and listening.

Another interesting element of this MacMillan expedition is the fact that the radio part of the enterprise is absolutely entirely amateur. The organized amateurs of the American Radio Relay League selected the most suitable amateur operator to go with Dr. MacMillan. Ex-amateurs designed and built the receiving and transmitting apparatus, and the thousands of amateurs in the relay league are to act as receiving and transmitting stations.

16,000 Stations Helping. At the present time there are over sixteen thousand of these amateur stations in Canada and the United States, and at any particular time it is certain that at least many hundreds of them will be listening. Mr.

Donald Mix, the radio operator of the MacMillan ship, the Bowdoin, will be in daily communication with his fellow amateurs and will select that one which is coming through best at any particular time. The distances are not serious, being approximately but one-half of what the amateur regularly works east and west. In foreign countries, amateur listeners will also know exactly what is going on, and it will be a unique experience for a polar explorer to sit at the top of the world and realize that his radio words are reaching into every civilized country north of the equator. Still another important element of this enterprise is the tremendous influence radio equipment will have for the crew of the ship.

A Boon to Crew. When it is considered that his crew of seven men live on board a small schooner and must endure six months of continuous night with the closest daily contact with each other, it can be readily seen that word from the outside world will have a very helpful influence. The human mind craves something of interest to feed upon. If it cannot have it, the daily affairs of life breed irritability. Communication in both directions between relatives may also be a matter of daily occurrence.

I regard the news that will come down from the north by radio during the coming year as being unique in human history. It will make for the popularization of the Arctic, and who knows but what it may be one of the steps which will eventually lead to regular summer tours to the North Pole and return?

EX-KAISER HESITATES TO PAY DUTCH TAXES

Contents Holland Not Entitled To Levy Because of Entrance Under Compulsion.

Associated Press Despatch. Amsterdam, June 18.—William Hohenzollern is quarrelling with the Dutch over the payment of taxes. He is now engaged in a dispute with the municipal authorities of Doorn over the question of local assessments. The former German emperor refuses to pay, contending that the municipality is not entitled to its demand because he came to Holland under compulsion. The Doorn city fathers maintain that he came there voluntarily, and have decided to enforce the law with retrospective effect. The municipal council of Amerongen, where the former emperor resided the first year of his exile, has not been slow in following up the decision of the Doorn council, and proposes to submit its claim for arrears in taxes.

Quinn Family Reunion. One of the interesting picnics that Springbank held yesterday was the Quinn family reunion, which found more than thirty people who braved the disagreeable weather to join in the second annual reunion of this large family. These picnickers were not as successful as others, and did not succeed in staging their program of sports before the rain came and spoiled it all. Mr. D. Quinn, the president, gave a brief address to the picnickers after they had lunched, and urged making this picnic an annual affair. This suggestion was met with approval by everyone present. Members of the Quinn family came from such distances as Hamilton and Brantford to attend this annual reunion. The majority of the Quinn family reside in London and this district. FIVE LONDONERS SAVED BY YOUTH IN MOTOR WRECK

Machine Plunges Into Irrigation Ditch, Filled With Water, Near Maidstone. FREES OCCUPANTS

Special to The Advertiser. Windsor, July 4.—Six persons were rescued from drowning near Maidstone, twelve miles east, on Monday night, when the closed automobile in which they were riding left the road and turned over in an irrigation ditch containing six feet of water. The rescues were made by David Girardot, 24 years old, of Sandwich, according to his brother, A. J. Girardot, of Detroit. Three rescued are: Miss Celia Girardot, sister of David, of Sandwich; Mr. and Mrs. William Aust of London, Ont., and their three children, Edward, 7 years; Aneta, 4 years, and William, Jr., 18 months old. The car, driven by Miss Girardot, and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Aust and their children, was on a rut in crossing the Michigan Central Railroad tracks, near Maidstone. Miss Girardot lost control of the car, which left the road and dropped fifteen feet into the irrigation ditch. David Girardot, following in another car, saw the accident. He dived into the irrigation ditch and while under water, succeeded in opening doors of the submerged car. He then carried its six occupants to the banks of the ditch, according to the story told by the brother. The occupants of the car were treated for minor cuts and bruises. None was seriously injured.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO INVESTIGATE SAAR

France and Great Britain Concur In Adopting Resolution.

A resolution to this effect was adopted unanimously, both France and Great Britain concurring. Lord Cecil, British spokesman, demanded a complete investigation of the Saar coal situation at today's council meeting. Declaring that the decrees promulgated were due to the initiative of the French government, although the Saar commission was responsible, only to the league, Lord Robert asked that the French troops be withdrawn from the valley, and that the demarcation be increased.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1923.

Let Them Get a Financial Expert.

When Hon. Howard Ferguson suggests that one of his first moves will be the appointment of a financial adviser for the province of Ontario he is on safe ground.

It has been one of the weaknesses of provincial administration that finances have not always been in the hands of men who thoroughly understood the money markets, nor in the hands of men who fully appreciated the gilt-edge security of a loan with the backing of the province behind it.

The Advertiser has pointed out on several occasions that the city of London had been able to dispose of its debentures at a better price than that secured by the province of Ontario. Admitting that this is good business on the part of the city, it follows that it is bad business on the part of the province because a provincial bond is a much more saleable paper than a municipal offering.

It is possible to have a provincial treasurer scrupulously honest and well meaning in what he does, and at the same time not competent to handle the millions that go to make up the annual turnover in a province the size of Ontario.

Let Mr. Ferguson get the best man available; it will be a paying investment. An expert who can save a million is a good investment at $10,000 a year.

The Canadian Senate Again.

Newspapers are raving over the action of the Canadian Senate in blocking a measure to permit the National Railways to build extensions in Western Canada that are long overdue.

The extension of these lines is simply a matter of reaching out after more business, and keeping faith with people who have fought on for years against most uneven transportation odds.

The Canadian Senate in this case has once more demonstrated its uselessness.

If it has a function to perform in Canadian public life, that function could just as well be performed by a body composed of one representative from each province. Canada has wearied of talk about "reforming the Senate."

The only effective reformation will come when the people turn the key in the front door of the place and nail a sign "Closed" over it.

Ontario Should Rule the Roads it Owns.

It would be interesting to know just how many cars have been smashed in Western Ontario over the week-end containing the holiday.

The garage man out in the smaller centers can tell his story, and the men who drive service cars for the city establishments can add a chapter as well.

Two things contribute to accidents in at least ninety per cent of the cases, (1) speed and (2) a refusal to be courteous to others who have a perfectly good right to be on the road.

The police force entrusted with the duty of looking after traffic on the country roads are not up to their business. Either that or the force is far too small. We still have the high-powered car whose driver thinks fifty miles a perfectly good and proper rate at cross-roads or any place else.

We are told by some that we must not be too hard on the tourist traffic that is coming to Ontario; that if we fine them or put them in jail for breaking the speed laws they will cease to come.

That sort of reasoning is the veriest nonsense. It would be just as logical to say that we ought to get a lot of them by pasting up signs that they can travel on the left or right side of the road and go sixty miles an hour and welcome.

The people of Ontario are paying for the roads here, and they are paying a good price for them. The people of Ontario welcome tourists who wish to come over here and abide by the laws of the people who are paying for the roads, but whether they are tourists or natives, the point might as well be made clear right at the start, that there are certain laws regulating travel and they are going to be enforced.

The verdict of any man who uses the roads much is that the average driver is a pretty sane sort of a chap, who realizes his responsibility for the safety of those in his and other cars.

Ontario wants and welcomes sane tourists on its roads. For all these it has wonderful scenery, great views of rolling fields, streams and lakes, fine herds and well-kept farms, tourist camps and good treatment.

Ontario does not want, and will not tolerate, the driver who mistakes the welcome of this province for a fool license to do as he wishes, and it might as well be demonstrated just as forcibly as possible that this province is able and prepared to deal with all such quickly and severely.

A Machine With a Poor Future.

A Berlin scientist, Dr. Scherbius, has invented a machine that will send or take in code wireless messages.

The idea of the machine is that it will be used by diplomats to make their secret work more effective.

The German scientist adds nothing to the world's joy when he brings in a weapon that makes international diplomacy more secret.

He might do much were he to bring out a huge highboard on which diplomacy could paste each move.

Secret diplomacy was one of the things the world yearned to see posted up in the casualty list of the world war.

When Young London Goes Swimming.

London Public Utilities Commission is doing a commendable work in providing swimming accommodation for the children and young folks of London. The idea of providing bathing suits and life guards is splendid. The roped-off areas in the river are known to have no holes or danger spots.

What a change, too, from the old days of swimming. Not many years ago there were no bathing suits at swimming holes. There were boys, yes, sir, naughty ones, who used to resort to that fine old game of "chaw raw beef." To the untrained let us explain that when one crowd came out and got dressed they at once set to the task of tying knots, good hard knots, in the clothes of those in the water. Said knots would come but, of course, but the chief sport was in having tied them.

An occasional snapper made his appearance in the old swimming hole, a few crabs and an odd blood-sucker as well. A small fire on the bank was the one sure way of dealing with the latter. Many a boy has made the mistake of trying to pull one off after it became fastened to his toe. Just hold said blood-sucker over a hot coal and the rest is easy.

What's more, bathing suits are put through a wringer now down by the river in London. What do you think of that for style? These swimming places, supervised and clean, are good hot-weather spots. London's Public Utilities Commission is doing a good work in making safe places for the young folks to get into the water.

"There Were Ninety and Nine."

In a neglected cemetery plot at Fergus rest the remains of a fair-haired young man. There is only a slab to mark the spot and, like many another grave of similar kind, it would attract little notice but for one fact. That slab marks the resting-place of one about whom the lines of that fine old hymn, "The Ninety and Nine," were written.

Miss Elizabeth C. Clephane penned those wonderful words, which were afterward set to music by Ira D. Sankey. The combination of words and music is a pathetic song-sermon that has touched the hearts of thousands.

Miss Clephane's brother, so the story goes, had one failing, drink. He came of a fine old Scottish family, and his arrival in Canada was in the hope that a new country and new surroundings would give him a new start. As in many another case, he found that the conditions that had hurt him in the old land were waiting to hurt him on his arrival here.

It was in far-off Scotland, during one of the Moody and Sankey tours, that the words of the "Ninety and Nine" were first handed to Sankey, and during the progress of a great meeting he hummed to himself a tune for the words, rising to sing them at the close, the song having a wonderful effect. It became one of Sankey's favorite gospel messages from that day.

There have been other musical interpretations given to "Ninety and Nine," some of them outstanding in their musical excellence. None of them, however, seem so well suited to carry the heart story of a wayward brother in Canada and a loving sister in Scotland as the original tune, which finds its strength in the simplicity of its arrangement as well as in its commendable lack of anything that seeks to make the music greater than the words.

This Battle Must Be Won.

The Housewife's League of Toledo has a war on with the parks board of that city, which sought to make the girls and their gentlemen friends get out of the parks, where they were accustomed to go and spoon.

President of the Housewife's League must be a human sort of a person, because she has declared, "An occasional kiss can't hurt any girl."

With such a slogan the parks board stands in danger of being wiped off the map.

By all means, let these Housewife Leaguers keep up the battle for the free rights of a free people.

The Canadian Egg Market.

Prof. F. Elford of the poultry division of the experimental farm at Ottawa gives warning that there is likely to be a shortage of eggs next winter owing to the poor hatch of spring chicks and to the lateness of them. At present there are practically no eggs in cold storage, and it is generally at this season that the heaviest consignments are being made to these plants.

Prof. Elford also shows that the per capita consumption of eggs is greater than ever. The lesson is plain—those who have pullets coming on should take care of them.

Prof. Elford goes so far as to advise securing expert advice and assistance in order that the maximum of eggs may be secured. Under the circumstances, the poultry-keeper and the man or woman who has a few chickens in the backyard should do everything possible to take advantage of these conditions, and secure such information and knowledge as will enable them to get the best results from their hens. He expressed himself as being of the opinion that great good would be accomplished by having reliable information on the care of poultry broadcast in every possible way. Otherwise, he says, the Canadian people will not be able to eat their egg a day owing to scarcity and high prices.

Note and Comment.

Vacation time is that season of the year when the $18 clerk puts on a flannel suit and lives at a $40 hotel.

Two can make a quarrel, but there are always a number of others waiting around for a chance to chip in and make it a real affair.

Heard a preacher the other day saying that the leopard could not change its spots. Quite true, but a muskrat can change into a sealskin.

About the only people who can get their pictures in the paper now are young men who fish some drowning person out of the water and girls who are going to get married. We are in the midst of a hero-worshipping age.

People who cross streets in the middle of a block are called jay-walkers. Still, one might just as well be hit in the middle of a block, where it's quiet, as to go to the corner crossing where a crowd is sure to gather in a hurry.

NOTHING FOR DR. SAUNDERS.

(From the Ottawa Journal)

The supplementary estimates tabled in parliament this week provide an annuity of $7,500 for Dr. Banting, the discoverer of insulin. That is meet and proper; but why no provision for Dr. Saunders, the discoverer of Marquis what? Dr. Saunders' claim upon Canada is hardly less compelling than that of Dr. Banting. It is a claim backed by the historical fact that Dr. Saunders' discovery added untold millions to the wealth of this country. It is a claim, too, that is admitted by press, public and parliament, and which is made all the more imperative by the fact that Dr. Saunders is now in failing health. Yet the government, and, for that matter, parliament, takes no action.

The thing is a disgrace to Canada. It is a particular disgrace to members of parliament who, only a year or two ago, swelled their own indemnities. And it reflects no credit upon either Conservatives or Progressives that they should accept the ministry's niggardliness without protest.

People often ask why it is that our young people with promise of achievement go to the United States. Hereafter they will put the question no more. They will simply recall our disgraceful treatment of one of the finest benefactors this country has ever known.

A Montreal mislister protests about the way in which friends pursue newly-married people with confetti, tin pans and old boots. The protest is well lodged, as the gas man, the electric man, the piano man, the grocer and the butcher man, the furniture man and the rent man all take up the chase immediately after. Others should stand to one side.

THE PIONEER'S COMPLAINT.

"Things ain't like they used to be,"
The ancient man cried bitterly.
"All the world looks queer to me
And life ain't right."
Today the gals turn up their nose
If ask to wear their mother's hose,
And tend the wicked pitcher shows
Most every night.

The boys ain't like they used to be,
Near every night they're on the spree,
Cavortin' round most giddily
To saxophones.
Big motor cars and pitcher plays
Is all that's thought of nowadays,
With new contraptions, like X-Rays
And telephones.

The young folks go to college now
To learn the way to milk a cow,
And when they've learned to steer a plow.

They join a frat.
"Things ain't like they used to be,"
The man repeated bitterly;
And some one whistled happily,
"Thank God for that!"

Isn't it wonderful how a girl manages to put off getting fat until after she gets married?

In these days you can't keep a good thermometer down.

The law pinches a man for carrying concealed weapons. But it doesn't even molest him when he eats garlic.

In counting up our bitter pills,
Our hard luck we condemn.
We find that many of our ills
Have "be" in front of them.

Why is it that the cakey-looking relative a man tries to disown always live in the same county with him, and the wealthy and distinguished relative he is always bragging about live on the other side of the continent?

If nature happens to give a girl
a good-looking face she goes around acting as if she did it herself.

A handkerchief is a man's best friend when he has a cold. Yet the two always come to blows.

Some men are so lazy that if they had a choice between hanging and electrocution they would select the electric chair because they wouldn't have to stand up to die.

We prefer the man who never says anything for a rainy day to the fellow who lives as though he believed it was going to rain every day for the next fifty years.

A fashion expert tells men how to dress well for $2,000 a year. But if he would tell us how to dress well for $15 a year he would have a bigger audience.

After a woman gets to be over 40
she will tell you that mirrors aren't what they used to be when she was a girl.

Judging by the things we see leading them to the altar, some girls must just naturally hate to work for a living.

The male of the species is usually larger than the female. But if you will go to the zoo you will notice that the lion's paw is larger than its paw.

It only takes the bride about a year or two to realize she didn't marry the best man at her own wedding.

That street fakir on the market square gets something for nothing because he talks to a crowd that wants something for nothing.

The robin lays three eggs a year,
A puny exhibition;
And I am very glad to hear
The hen has more ambition.

But a codfish lays a million;
And she doesn't brag a bit,
A cross between a robin and
A cod should make a hit.

Truth is stranger than fiction, and is the kind of stranger some men should get acquainted with.

MUSIC FOR THE JOURNEY.

Songs in the house of my pilgrimage.—Psalms exix, 54.
How wonderfully the old Hebrew hymn book has been used.
With the music of psalms the shepherds and plowmen cheered their toll in ancient Palestine; and to the same music the Galile boatmen kept time as they rowed their barges against the swift current of the Rhone.
St. Chrysostom fleeing into exile; Martin Luther going to meet all possible devils at Worms; George Wishart facing the plague at Dundee; Wildlife on his sick-bed, surrounded by his enemies; John Bunyan in the woodfoll; William Wilberforce in a crisis when his noble plans were threatened with ruin—all stayed their hearts with verses from the psalms.

The Huguenots at Dieppe marched to victory chanting the sixty-eighth psalm; and the same stately war-song sounded over the field of Dunbar.

The motto of England's proudest university is a verse from the Psalms; and a sentence from the same book is written above the loneliest grave on earth, among the snows of the Arctic circle.

It was with the fifth verse of the thirty-first Psalm that Jesus Christ commended his soul into the hands of God; and with the same words, St.
Stephen, St. Louis, Huss, Columbus, Luther, Melancthon, and many more saints of whom no man knoweth, have bid their farewell to earth and their welcome to heaven.

WHAT THE X-RAY MEANS TO THE SCIENCE OF DIAGNOSIS.

By Royal S. Copeland, M.D., United States Senator from New York, Formerly Surgeon General of Health, New York City.

In all injuries,
such as sprains,
after any accident
where there is damage to the joints, or in any case where it is possible a bone has been fractured, or splintered, an X-ray picture should be taken.

In olden times
the surgeon had to determine the nature and extent of the injury by
"the rule of thumb"—guesswork and judgment. Today, thanks to the wonderful discovery of the X-ray, it is possible to see exactly what has happened. This addition to medical equipment has markedly simplified the work of the surgeon in many fields. In accidents particularly it is necessary nowadays to make use of the X-ray machine. There is no doubt that before the discovery of the X-ray many a sprain was treated as a broken bone. Persons frequently wrote epistles to weeks and suffered all the discomforts of the classical treatment for fractured bones, when their trouble was only a simple strain or sprain that did not demand such radical and long-continued treatment.

It is also probable that many a slight fracture, perhaps where a corner or splinter of bone was broken off, was overlooked, and treated as a sprain. Perhaps no great harm resulted. Nevertheless, it is disturbing to think something important was made light of and wrongly treated.

All these old-time mistakes, quite excusable under old-time conditions, are unexcusable for now. Every community, no matter how remote, has its X-ray equipment.

Unless there is prompt response to treatment, what was thought to be a strain or a sprain, is probably a condition more important than was suspected at first. It must be given further study.

This is the point where the X-ray operation enters. The magic of his skill will soon determine the real condition. All the hidden things will be revealed and it will be determined exactly what is wrong.

Too frequently in human experience what is thought to be a trifling thing may be far-reaching in its effects. I do not believe in being fussy about things or overanxious, but sprains and joint injuries always require careful consideration.

Every dispensary worthy of the name is equipped with the X-ray and, if you are poor, will gladly examine your case without charge. Your doctor, if he has not the equipment in his own office, will send you to some specialist in this line.

Early treatment is the important consideration in sprains and strains, as it is in every sort of injury to the human body.

The immediate aid of your doctor may spare you months and even years

Answers to Health Questions.
A READER, Q.—Will you kindly tell me what causes dreaming?

2. What can I do to remedy a bad breath?

A.—Dreaming may be caused by indigestion, intestinal trouble, constipation or nervousness. If any of these conditions exist, correct them,
and your symptoms will disappear.

3. An offensive breath is due to constipation, decayed teeth or diseased tonsils. Locate the cause and then treatment will be given.

D. A. B. Q.—My kneecap has become misplaced about three times during the past year. Will you kindly tell me what causes this?

A.—Strap your knee very tightly with adhesive tape for about two weeks. This will help to strengthen the muscles and ligaments in your knee.

MRS. L. E. P. Q.—Will you kindly advise me what to do for hot, dry, aching feet?

A.—Bathe the feet twice daily and change stockings often. Do not wear the same pair of shoes for any length of time and see that the shoes are properly fitted. Drink water in abundant.

AN INTERESTED READER, Q.—
Will you kindly advise me as to the cause of brittle finger-nails?

A.—This condition is due to some constitutional disorder, such as anemia or some nutritional disorder, and very often to the use of hard water and caustic soap. Find the cause and treatment will suggest itself.

MRS. M. R. Q.—I have a growth about the size of a marble on my head and several smaller ones on my body. Will you please tell me what this is and what treatment is best, as I fear to undergo an operation?

2. Is it all right to give chicken to a child who has been sick with scarlet fever about six weeks?

A.—Apparently you have wens.
These can be removed under a local anesthetic and I would suggest that you consult a surgeon or apply at a hospital clinic without delay for treatment. Surgical treatment is the only cure for this trouble.

3. Yes, it is all right for you to include chicken in the child's diet.

X. Y. Z. Q.—I am a young woman 18 years old and at times I have severe pains in my stomach when I breathe. This usually occurs in the morning while I am in bed and very often wakes me. Will you please tell me what causes this and what to do for it?

A.—Probably constipation, flatu-lence or gas causes this condition.

Looking Abroad

By DOUGLASS McREYNOLDS.

The innumerable photographs recently printed of Mr. Stanley Baldwin indicate beyond doubt that the new British prime minister possesses a distinctive tag by which he will be identified by posterity.
The world likes to connect some definite characteristic or fad with the men who figure in history, and of the British prime ministers, Disraeli is best remembered by his primrose and peacock; Gladstone by his wood chopping; Melbourne by his contempt for watches ("I always ask my servant the time and he tells me what he likes"); Wellington by his nose; Pitt by his two bottles of port and Chatham by his gout. As to Mr. Lloyd George, there would seem to be doubt as to what characteristic will fix him in the minds of future generations, although it is said that his hobby is singing Welsh hymns; and as to Mr. Asquith, perhaps "Margot's Journal" will be the most enduring reflection of his individuality.

Mr. Baldwin, however, has arranged in advance with history as to his tag. It is his briar pipe and his English look. None but an Englishman ever had that face. Written all over it is what Burke called "the ancient and inbred integrity and good humor of the English people." In the many photographs there is always the slight pucker of the brow and the smile suggesting the protesting acquiescence of the man who is compelled to be photographed, if he must. While the left hand usually rests in the coat pocket it is the right hand that is really characteristic—resting on the knee, or holding the pipe, or rather clutching a pipe-case, a common briar pipe with a black mouthpiece—the kind of pipe that sensible Englishmen smoke. It furnishes the human touch that every Englishman understands and in consequence feels drawn to its owner.

The symbol of homeliness, of a philosophic and ruminative temperament, of the preference of comfort to luxury, it is eloquent.

There is no doubt that Mr. Baldwin's pipe is the pipe of popularity and that one result of his preference will be to give a tremendous impetus to pipe smoking and is likely to affect the tobacco market. Straight briars with black mouthpieces will increase in price and fine cigars will no longer be in such great demand.
Even Sir James Barrie may be displaced as the idol of writers of advertisements for tobacco. His Lady Nicotine will stand but little show compared with "the prime minister's favorite pipe."

For more than 200 years on rainy days in London, there has been a little dry patch on the wet roadway in Cornhill, near the Royal Exchange.
This patch was caused by two baking ovens under the roadway belonging to Birch's restaurant, founded in 1680, in the reign of William and Mary. They so heated the road that the rain was evaporated as soon as it fell. The ovens have now been used for the last time, and another interesting city curiosity passes.

During the last 200 years, they have baked pastry for many royal and civil banquets at the Mansion House or Guildhall. When Captain Cook set out on an expedition in the resolution in 1773, they were used for the farewell luncheon. One hundred and forty-one years later they were used to prepare a farewell luncheon to Sir Ernest Shackleton before he left for the Antarctic. New ones of a modern character, in an upper part of the premises are to be used in their place.

"MIDNIGHT"

A Mystery Story
By OCTAVIUS ROY COHEN.

Carroll Is Convinced That Both the Young Greshams Know More Than They Have Told

"You're right, Leverage. If Spike is innocent, he's not undergoing any enormous hardship. But if his story is untrue in any particular—then it is probably entirely true. And since we cannot understand how that body got into the cab or where the murderer went—we've got to hold on to Spike. Meanwhile, we both believe him."

"You said it, David. Now, next on the list we have Barker. What about him?"

"I don't like Barker particularly," said Carroll, frankly. "He hasn't what you would call an engaging personality. Of course, that his agreement that he knows a great deal about the case which he hasn't told—and doesn't intend to tell, unless we force him to it. But we'll go back to him later—he's too important a link in the chain to pass over casually when we're trying to hit on a definite course of action. Remembering, of course, that his visits to the Lawrence home have a certain degree of significance."

Leverage chuckled. "Go to it, Carroll. You know more about that kid than I ever will—or want to. Ain't suspecting her of being the woman in the taxi?"

"Good Lord, no! She hasn't that much on her mind. And if we manage to solve this case, we can thank her. That little tongue of hers was at both ends—and out of the welter of words that drip from her lips—I've managed to extract more information than from any other source we've tapped. I've been awfully lucky there."

"Don't talk like a simp, David—'tain't luck. That's your way of working. And because there isn't anything flashy about it—you call it luck. Why, you poor fish—there isn't any other way in the country who'd have the common sense to do what you did—to know that it would be a sensible move."

"Some day, Eric," grinned Carroll. "I'm going to throw you down—I'm going to flunk on a case. And then you'll say to my face what you must often have thought of me as a lucky, old-maidish detective."

"Gwan wid yeh! Fishing for compliments—that's what you are."

"Carroll grew serious again. "I think we're safe in eliminating Evelyn Rogers from our calculations except as a gold mine of information. Which takes us to her friend—Hazel Gresham."

"And Garry Gresham. You say he didn't want to discuss the case with his sister?"

"They both acted mighty peculiar," agreed Carroll. "One of them, I'm sure, knows something about that case—has some inside dope on it. And the one who knew has told the other one—the affection between them is something pretty to look at, Leverage."

"You think one of them is in on the know?"

"Yes, I think so. And I think that their information touches someone pretty close to them. That's obviously why they pleaded so hard with me to call off the investigation."

"M-m-m. They're pretty good friends to the Lawrences, aren't they?"

"Yes—with Naomi Lawrence, anyway. I don't believe Gerald Lawrence is especially friendly with anyone. But the Greshams and Mrs. Lawrence are pretty intimate."

"And you believe that the alibi Miss Rogers established for Hazel Gresham is good?"

Carroll hesitated for a moment before replying. When he did speak it was with obvious reluctance. "I hate to say so, Leverage—because I like Evelyn Rogers, and I took an instant liking for both Hazel Gresham and her brother. But there seems to be something wrong about it. I do think that Evelyn Rogers believed she was telling the truth—but I'm not so sure that her dope was accurate. Just where the inaccuracy comes—I haven't the least idea—but I'm not sitting my likes and dislikes out on the way of a sane outlook on the case. I am convinced that both the young Greshams know something more than they have told. As a matter of fact, there isn't a doubt of it—they showed it clearly when they begged me to call off the investigation. We know, further, that they are intimate with Naomi Lawrence—and we know that either Naomi or her husband—or both—are mixed up in this case. Events dovetail too perfectly for us to ignore the fact that however right Evelyn Rogers may believe she is—she may be wrong."

"And I'm not forgetting, either," said Leverage, grimly, "that Hazel Gresham was engaged to marry Warren."

"No. Nor am I. It's a puzzling combination of circumstances, Leverage—a perfectly-knit thing—if we don't—and so now we come to Gerald Lawrence and his wife."

Leverage did not take his cue immediately. He sat drumming a heavy tattoo on the table-top, forehead crumpled in a frown of intensive thought. When he did speak it was in a manner well-nigh abstract—

"Gerald Lawrence probably lied when he said he didn't leave Nashville until the 2 a.m. train."

"He may have. One thing which impressed me about Lawrence was this Leverage—when the man started bucking me he thought he had a perfect alibi. He was supremely confident that I was going to be completely nonplussed. It was only after he had questioned him closely that he realized that his alibi was no alibi at all. He realized he couldn't prove where he was at the time the murder was committed—that for all the evidence he could adduce he might have been right here in the city."

"Yes—"

"The significant fact is this," explained Carroll—"when he made the discovery that his alibi was no good—he was the most surprised person in the room!"

"And you're thinking," suggested the chief, "that if he had actually had a hand in the murder of Warren he would have had an alibi that would have been an alibi?"

"Just about that. Get me straight, chief—I would rather believe Lawrence guilty than any other person—except, perhaps, Barker—with whom I have come in contact since this investigation began. But he is a congenial rascal. But he told his Nashville story so frankly and became so panicky with surprise when my questioning showed him that his alibi was rotten—that we must not fasten definitely upon him—"

"Except to be pretty darn sure that he knows more about it than he has told."

"Perhaps. Ain't you sure he does?"

"I'm not sure of anything. I haven't one single item of information save that regarding the only person whom I would prefer to see left clear."

"And that is?"

"Mrs. Naomi Lawrence."

Leverage nodded in agreement. "Things do look pretty tough for her."

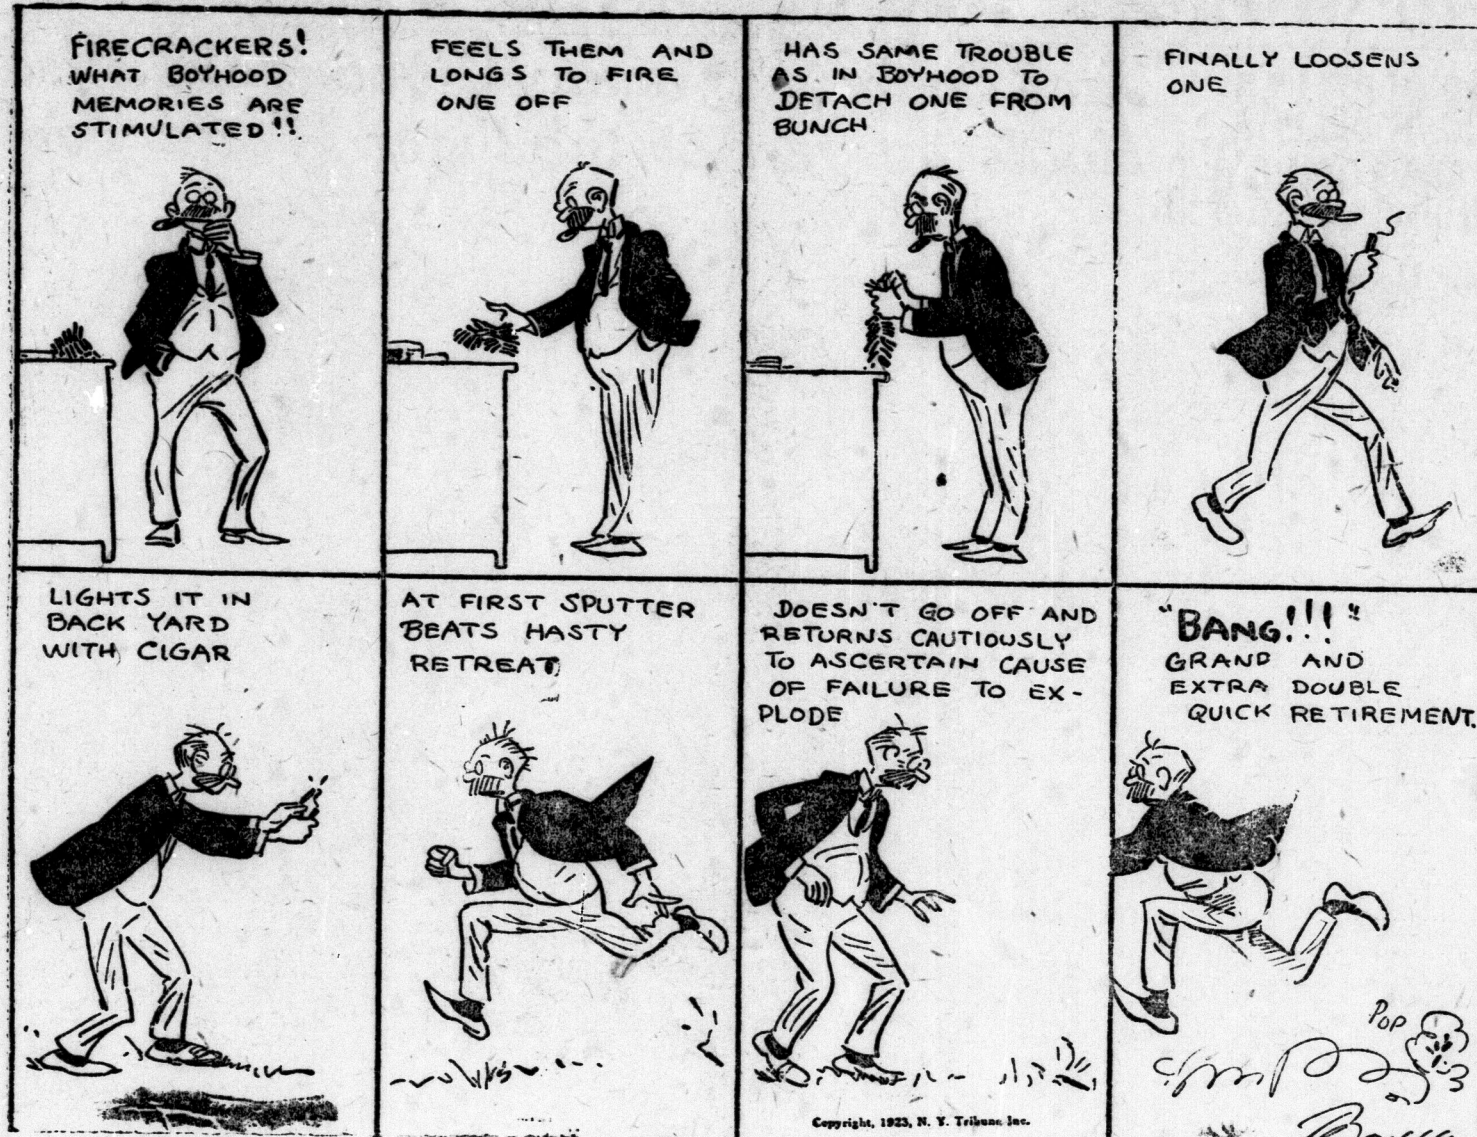

"More so than you think, Eric," Carroll designed on his fingers. "Count the facts against her as we know them; irrespective of their weight or significance."

"First, she is a beautiful woman, twelve years younger than her husband and very unhappy in her domestic life. Second, she was very friendly with Roland Warren. Of course, Miss Rogers' fatuous belief that Warren was crazy about her is pure rot; he called at that house to see either Gerald or Naomi Lawrence, but he never saw her. Third, in substitution of that belief, she frequently gave her presents. It doesn't matter how valuable the presents were—he gave them. That proves a certain amount of interest."

Carroll paused for a brief explanation. "Mind you, Leverage—I'm not trying to make out a case against Naomi Lawrence—I'm only being honest." To continue—fourth, we know that in spite of the fact that she is afraid to remain in a house alone at night, she suggested to her sister visit at the home of Hazel Gresham on the night Warren was killed. Her husband was supposed to be in Nashville. It is absurd to presume that when she let Evelyn go out for the night she expected to remain

The Little Lost Grouse Wanders Farther and Farther Away From the Anxious Old Mother Grouse

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Often it is a lot easier to do the wrong thing than the right thing. Now, as a rule, if a person is lost the wisest thing to do is to stay right in one place. But that usually is the hardest thing to do. The result is that the one who is lost usually wanders on and on and makes a bad matter worse.

It was some time before the timid little Grouse who had down in the opposite direction from that taken by her mother and brothers and sisters when they had been frightened by Reddy Fox understood that she was lost. As soon as she had come down to the ground she had hidden, and there she had remained motionless for a long time. At first she had thought nothing of it when she heard no sound from her mother. She had been taught to lie still until mother called. And more than once she had heard a long time before she had heard the welcome sound of mother's voice.

But by and by she realized that never had it been so long before. She began to wonder why mother did not call. Still, being an obedient little person, she remained motionless right where she was. But at last she realized that something was wrong. Mother Grouse never had left her like this before. She peeped out of her hiding-place, and with her bright little eyes looked in every direction. No one was to be seen. It was very still there in the Green Forest. She ventured to call softly. There was no answer. She came out of her hiding-place. Everything about her was strange. She called a little louder. There was no reply. After that she wisely called no more. She sat there and waited. She had been near her mother and brothers and sisters when they had been frightened by Reddy Fox. She was getting further and further away from the sound of mother's anxious voice.

There she called and called, but of course she got no answer.

When her small legs became so tired that she could run no more, she hid and rested. But just as soon as she felt a bit rested she started on again. For a while she was too frightened to think of eating. But after a while she grew so hungry that she had to stop and hunt for food. She didn't hunt long. As soon as her appetite was partly satisfied she started on again to look for mother.

Now, that was the wrong thing for her to do. You see, without knowing it, she started out in the wrong direction. The further she went the more frightened she became, and the faster she ran. All the time she was running further and further away from her mother and brothers and sisters. She was getting further and further away from the sound of mother's anxious voice.

"Yes, do," said Tom's mother. "It will cool you off." So Peter had a tall glass full of soda, with a regular island of ice cream floating about in it.

Then he had lunch, followed by more shrub, little cakes, ice water, a lemon ice, cold lemonade, Eskimo pie. His was a full day. He wanted no supper. He needed a doctor.

Isn't it strange that people think that a child's stomach has no limitations? Feed him. Is he cold? Give him a drink. Is he hot? Give him a drink. Want to entertain him? Feed him.

No other organ of the body is so subjected to abuse as is the child's stomach. If his eyes are overworked instead of remaining where they should be, the twitching lids, swollen and dark, the pain comes swiftly on the heels of the offence. Ears will stand no abuse. Neither will hands or feet or teeth. Their protests are quick and loud.

But the poor stomach lies quietly in its retreat, meekly taking everything that comes to it hour after hour. It sends up a faint remonstrance. It grumbles gently. It seems troubled and restless as one in distress, but without language to express it. Then comes the rebellion. Once the stomach turns, it is like all the grim silent forces in the world, relentless, thorough, complete in its action. It has stood for all it can endure. Now beware. Isn't It Strange That People Think a Child's Stomach Has No Limitations

By ANGELO PATRI.

It was a very warm day and Peter was uneasy. He crumpled up on a porch mat and sighed deeply. "What's the matter, Peter? Feeling the heat? Take a drink of shrub."

The shrub was a mixture of fruit juice, sweetened and iced. It tasted good to Peter. He drank one glassful and asked for another.

"Don't drink too much. It's rather rich," said mother dreamily. It was such a hot day.

Peter wandered away to the tennis court and watered his sister's play. Too tired and feeling rather heavy about the middle, he lay down to the task. The grass felt soft and cool for awhile, but not for too long. He went crawling back to the house.

There was a lady visitor and she and her mother were having a dish of ice cream with little cakes. "Poor Peter. He feels the heat so. Take a little ice cream, Peter, and it will cool you off."

Peter went to the pantry and Mary served him generously. He waddled down the shaded street and met Tom and his mother on their way to the drug store.

"I'm going to have a soda. Come ahead."

"Yes, do," said Tom's mother. "It will cool you off." So Peter had a tall glass full of soda, with a regular island of ice cream floating about in it.

Then he had lunch, followed by more shrub, little cakes, ice water, a lemon ice, cold lemonade, Eskimo pie. His was a full day. He wanted no supper. He needed a doctor.

THE DAILY SHORT STORY

THE PATHETIC MR. JONES.

By JESSIE DOUGLAS.

"You don't need to worry, Mary; he's not eligible!"

Mrs. John Warren watched the expression of relief that changed Mary Dale's face unbelievably.

"Thank goodness!" Mary sighed.

"If you knew what it means to me, darling, I think he's a very good fellow."

But she thought, a wretch of a woman, the sight of him takes away my speech!

"You don't need to explain to me, Mary," Mrs. Warren laughed. "I know it!"

Mary sat down on the four-poster bed in the guest room and smiled very charmingly.

"I know I'm hopeless. Twenty-eight and not a single beau. But I've always been a very good girl."

"I know a fancy to him; that is, I can feel he's a human being; but the minute I think of him I think of the young, good-looking, that my friends are looking at me expectantly, then everything's all up!"

"That's why I asked you to this little dinner with John and me and this Mr. Jones. Rather pathetic person, Mary. He married when he was very young; a wretch of a woman, and she leads him a life. He never speaks about her; he tries to be cheerful. She rose, looked into the full-length mirror at her slender figure, in orange and satin, and smiled to her own reflection. Mary followed her, and stood a moment staring in at herself, too. He had one woman in whom he was interested above all."

The pause threatened to engulf them.

When she looked up she saw that he was looking down, straight into her eyes with those splendid dark eyes of his. His voice made her catch her breath.

"I suppose the Warrens have told you something about me?"

Mary nodded.

"I've only been back a little while, and it is extremely difficult to find someone so refreshingly fine and simple and true. No, don't stop me, I said eagerly. 'I know that I'm doing a peculiar thing, but you know you night meet you that you are the one woman—'

Mary stood up. Her heart was thudding terribly. Unconsciously she pressed both hands against her heart.

"But—have you forgotten your wife?" she whispered.

"Oh, you mean that rot about my being wedded to my work? I've been an incorrigible bachelor. The Warrens told you that, I know; but, Mary, if you'll just give me a chance—"

Mabel Warren was coming down the strip of moosehide toward them.

"Perhaps you don't know it, but the clock has struck one."

They rose and walked beside Mabel to the door.

"Good night, Mary," Mr. Jones said, and extended his hand, and Mary as she put hers into it knew that her heart was in his.

But when the guest room door had closed behind them, Mabel Warren spoke breathlessly.

"I've seen you at first sight, but never such a dreadful case before."

Mary Dale, I believe you knew all the time that he was the most eligible bachelor and with a famous traveler and lecturer, Everett Stuart Jones."

And in spite of her denials, Mrs. Warren still tells the story on her own about her dear friend, who is now Mrs. Everett Stuart Jones. (Copyright, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Mabel's charming strip of garden. There was a wreath of a moon and the sky was silvered over with stars; all the fragrances of June roses and pinks hugging the garden walks made the air sweet for them.

She caught Mr. Jones' eyes on her again. Once her heart stumbled in her breast when he said, "You are very lovely in this garden, Miss Dale. You're such a little young thing that you'll let me say it."

And Mary, who was 28, knew what it was like to have the thrill of 18.

But she never thought of flirting with him. He was married. That settled everything for her; she listened to him eagerly and begged him to go on and asked him questions when he stopped. And after all that was the most flattering thing she could have done.

They sat at last on a garden seat with a path of moonlight streaming away before them and Mr. Jones said easily, "I think that's the sort of thing you'd like to do. Travel through the jungle. Take risks. Rough it and live very close to the heart of things."

"How did you know?" Mary said suddenly. "All day long I walk in a musty office and I stare out of grimy windows at roofs and buildings and I would give anything just to see something of life."

She stopped all of a sudden. She had been talking altogether too eagerly and too honestly to go back on her words, but—somehow, she had gone too far. He wasn't interested in what she wanted to do after all, or in her life. He had one woman in whom he was interested above all.

The pause threatened to engulf them.

When she looked up she saw that he was looking down, straight into her eyes with those splendid dark eyes of his. His voice made her catch her breath.

City Council To Control All Salary Adjustments Without Committee's Aid

Members Decide Citizens Research Bureau Not Necessary To Carry Out Work, and Will Receive Reports At Next Session.

Some members of the city council appear just a trifle dubious as to the ability of the Citizens Research Bureau to deal with city hall salaries, and to safeguard their position in this regard they determined at last night's session to undertake this question themselves.

Although Mayor Wenige is opposed to the idea and said so several times, they ruled that the members of the finance committee and the board of works will at their next regular meetings deal with this issue, subsequently submitting their respective salary adjustments to the council as a whole for approval.

One of the stellar acts of last evening's performance was the authorized purchase of a Ford sedan for City Engineer Near, regardless of the emphatic protest from Ald. Douglass and Ald. May. And one remarkable feature of this event rested in the established fact that Mayor Wenige voted in the affirmative, despite his stated opinion of recent date that city officials should not be provided with this means of transportation.

Gruelling Battle.
It was a long, gruelling battle, and a few deep thrusts were executed. Ald. Ed. Hayden twisting a nimble rapier with Douglass, chairman of the board of works, informing that gentleman that in his opinion the committee was quite capable of transacting business even during his (Douglass's) unavoidable absence. Incidentally under the convenient heading of inquiries. Ald. Douglass, remarking pleasantly that while Ald. John Colbert was among the absentees, he could not afford to ignore an opportunity to impress upon all and sundry that he (Douglass) was not a member of "a Tory quietist endeavoring to block the city hall project for political purposes."

Ald. Douglass characterized Ald. Colbert's comment about the city hall issue as "timely political capital" for the former member of the legislature for London, and let it go at that.

Spice of Program.
The proposed purchase of the city engineer's car was perhaps the spice of the program, impelling the oratorical efforts of the councillors. Ald. Douglass leading the opposition on the forward line, with Ald. May right tackle and general interference.

"It was unfortunate that I was not at the last meeting," explained Douglass in his opening shot, "but I would move this back to the committee for reconsideration."

"I thought that this thing was settled and that the engineer was going to use Inspector Piper's car," ventured Ald. Watt.
"We have to let the engineer have a car if he needs it. He can't be walking about," cautioned Ald. Greer.
"We have to decide tonight," admonished Ald. Hayden. "If we have not set aside a sufficient sum for the purpose, let's set it aside. A majority of the board of works has so decided. I fail to see why we should refer this back just because Ald. Douglass was not there. I don't see why this should go back and let him have all the credit."

Challenges Colleagues.
Later on in the game Ald. Hayden arose again and boldly challenged his colleagues as follows: "I can't understand why such a body of men as this council should quibble all night about a small affair as this. It is beyond me."

Ald. Douglass congratulated Ald. Hayden as a capable chairman in his recent absence, but reiterated his contention that the issue should go back to the committee as the members of that unit were not of one mind.

"I want the mayor's views first before I vote," interjected Ald. May, taking up where Ald. Douglass left off.
"We have to have some sort of service," replied the mayor. "If we give an automobile to one we shall have to give it to all."
Ald. Douglass maintained that they were "making flesh of one and fowl of another," and illustrated with Dr. Dowdham, who claims, purchases his own gasoline for a civic car. He also called attention to the fact that the proposed expenditure had been charged to the city paying account and questioned if this was fair to the ratepayers who were expecting pavements to be undertaken this summer.

Cordial Relations.
Another feature of the evening was the apparent cordial relations existing between ward 2 representatives, whose verbal engagements of the past have enlivened many a session—Ald. Douglass and Ald. William A. Wilson. Ald. Douglass handed Ald. Wilson a handsome bouquet. "I maintain," he declared, "that Ald. Wilson's stand at the time the building inspector's car was purchased was the proper one. I stood corrected at that time. The stand should now be taken in this instance."

After promiscuous argument all along the line and back again the council voted to purchase a sedan. Ald. Douglass, McKay and May opposing. Answering Ald. Douglass, the mayor acknowledged that he would vote in the affirmative.
Ald. John May introduced an interesting subject for debate—city hall salaries. "What has been done," he asked the mayor, who vouchsafed the opinion that nothing should be done in this respect until after the citizens research bureau had completed their surveys of the several city hall departments.

Proposes Session.
Evidently this ended that discussion, as far as the mayor was concerned, but it was insufficient for Ald. May who rose again several minutes later to ask "What about salaries?" and to move that a special session of the council be called this week for that purpose.
Ald. McKay was a prompt seconder and Ald. Judd wanted to know "which salaries?" Ald. May reminded the mayor that he had called a meeting a month ago for the same purpose, and he urged an immediate readjustment.
Ald. Judd explained that while he was quite in accord with the mayor's suggestion to wait until after the surveys, he thought that they could deal with the assessment department at once. He urged also that in any event all changes in remuneration would be retroactive to January 1.

Ald. May declared that it would take up too much time waiting for the research committee, and Mayor Wenige stated that if they intended to deal with one office they would have to deal with all.
"It is the feeling of this council, I think, that there should be no interference from the research bureau," volunteered Ald. May.
"They are going to interfere," the mayor reminded.

Burdick Protests.
"The research bureau has nothing to do with city hall salaries," asserted Ald. Burdick, fairly aroused. "I wouldn't let them dictate to me as an alderman what to pay. That is out of their line entirely."
"Hear, hear" from Ald. May warmly.

"I move that we have a special session Friday night," exclaimed Ald. Drake, keeping his promise of a week ago.
"Five weeks ago we were here for the same thing," said Ald. McKay advised. "I was willing to go ahead then and I am now."

Ald. Hayden thought it would be "peculiar" to go into the question now after hiring the citizens research bureau for investigations. Wait for the report he urged.

"Do it now," was Ald. Wilson's announcement. "It will soon be the end of the year. There are some here entitled to increases. There may be some who are too high, but we should deal with them now."

"I think that we are going at this the wrong way," cautioned Ald. Douglass. "Let each committee discuss salaries and make recommendations at their next sessions."

Issues Warning.
"Right," concurred Ald. Burdick. "We have backbone for that. What does this research bureau know about salaries?" Ald. Watt supported the Douglass motion. "I have always opposed granting increases during the dying hours of the year," explained the latter. "I favor action early in the year in order that we can go back to the electorate and tell them just what we have done."

Then Mayor Wenige had a few words of warning. "The members of these committees had first better post themselves as to what funds they have available," he directed.
"I know that now as well as you do," rejoined Ald. Burdick.
"Well, there is one thing," Ald. Drake promised. "The pay for the citizens' research bureau is not coming out of the $5,000 set aside for salaries."

"The council voted for the surveys," retorted the mayor. "You passed the job."

"When you won't take their pay out of that $5,000," responded Ald. Drake sharply.

Regrets Absence.
When the salary question had been disposed of, Ald. Douglass remarked pleasantly that it grieved him sorely because Ald. Colbert was absent.

"I am truly sorry that he is not here," he commented. "He has a great habit of bringing in clippings from the paper, and I want to refer to one about the city hall. There was a report that concentrated opposition to this project had asserted itself among a number of politicians in the council."

"What my politics does not enter here. I am sorry that he is not here," he declared. "I am sure he would have been of great help to me."

Judd Objects.
Ald. Judd objected that his worship was out of order, and that the time was not opportune to reopen a question already settled. Ald. Douglass was Ald. Judd's shield-bearer in this sort. "Quite right. All out of order," concurred enthusiastically. "Vagrant dogs are duly warned to leave for distant parts after legislation enacted last night—authority given the city treasurer to hire a dog-catcher. Ald. Wilson was the sole opponent, his associates being unable to convince him that the measure would apply only to tagless animals. The motion did not include dogs without tags, and Ald. Wilson refused to vote until the same was inserted. Anyone who attempts to take his dog while it carries a regulation tag will find he has picked upon the wrong party, promised the veteran ex-chairman of the board of works."

Supports Measure.
Mayor Wenige essayed the opinion that the measure was admirable, and explained that the Humane Society would undertake the job for nothing, if provided with a second-hand automobile.
"Not the tagged dogs," warned Ald. Wilson, quickly on the defensive. Alderman Drake moved that Ald. Douglass supply one of the two or three "worn out cars" in the works department. Ald. Douglass nonchalantly ignored this able suggestion, while Ald. Wilson took advantage of another opening to advise that lots of dogs with tags gambled carelessly at large and should not be tampered with.

This dog-catching business is not a new venture, related Ald. Drake, who reminded that it had been done for years. Ald. Douglass agreed that it was "a serious" business when somebody laughed.
The Street Railway Company, represented by R. G. Ivey, vice-president, presented a formal appeal for permission to convert three cars into the one-man variety while it was proposed to operate the new centre-door cars with one man during the slack periods of the day.

Appears Agreeable.
The request goes to the finance committee for consideration with the alternative submitted by Ald. Judd that the company convert six cars into one-man cars and leave the new cars in charge of two men all the time. Mr. Ivey seemed agreeable to the latter proposal.

As the council formally appointed Police Inspector Lucas as the post of license inspector, Ald. John Greer wanted to know from Mayor Wenige if members of the city police force participated in county C. T. pilgrimages, deriving benefit from the subsequent fines.
Ald. Watt reported that Chief Birrell had told him that men off duty sometimes were employed by Cecil Webb of the federal department.

Ald. Wilson also desired to know if Inspector Lucas was going out into the county in search of stills.
Ald. Greer made it quite clear that he did not like the idea of city police, paid by the people of London, engaging in still-hunting in the county.

Mayor Wenige presumed that any member of the force could do as he pleased on his holidays. He added that of course he did not go into the county upon orders from the chief.

DOZENS OF MASTODONS FOUND NEAR LONDON

MILLIONS OF MASTODONS
ROAMED ABOUT ONTARIO
WHEN WORLD WAS YOUNGDr. S. Woolverton, Willing To Start Museum of Such Relics For University of Western Ontario, Talks of Recent Discoveries.

TELLS OF OTHER SKELETONS UNEARTHED

In the past forty years dozens of mastodons have been unearthed in the vicinity of London, and literally millions roamed this part of the globe 30,000 years ago, according to Dr. S. Woolverton, L.D.S., one of the most active geologists in London.

The discovery of the bones of a prehistoric elephant at Delaware recently prompted Dr. Woolverton to resurrect geological revelations of the past and recount them to The Advertiser. He remembers when the skeletons of no less than three mastodons were on exhibition at the Western Fair. It was he who, accompanied by ex-Mayor Rumball of this city, sped with all haste to St. Marys to examine the remains of a Mastodon Americanus found by Richard Hobbs. In those days interest in such discoveries was apathetic, but now citizens are commencing to understand their historical significance.

Dr. Woolverton, whose collection of geological specimens is the finest in Canada, is anxious to start a museum at the University of Western Ontario. If proper arrangements are made, he is willing to loan his entire collection of rare geological relics to the college. Now that the bones of a mastodon have been found Dr. Woolverton believes with his contribution the university may shortly boast of one of the best arrays of scientific samples in Ontario.

Thousands Roamed Province.
All over the province there must have been thousands of ancient elephants 30,000 years ago, he declared. A number have been found within the past four decades. One was discovered at Cherry Grove, another at Bowmanville, and still another at Lobo. The fact that four or five have been unearthed in this part of the country proves the existence of millions before man appeared upon the earth.

One skeleton found at Smithville was sold Dr. Woolverton said, for $1,600 to a museum in the United States. The one found at Highgate was exhibited about the country for years, and curious citizens paid a small admission fee to see it. The best skeleton, that found in Cherry Grove, has mysteriously disappeared, along with the one found by Richard Hobbs, a St. Marys farmer. This man died some time later and left the skeleton to his wife. Dr. Woolverton believes the remains are probably to be found among the Hobbs relatives in their attic. He proposes taking a trip to St. Marys shortly to reclaim them.

The word "mastodon," Dr. Woolverton said, is derived from the Greek "mastos," a nipple and "odos" a tooth. It is distinguished from the ordinary elephant by its knotted teeth and curved tusks. It was a pachyderm or thick-skinned animal. The mammoth is different from a mastodon in that it is found only in Siberia and Russia. From the Siberian mammoth is derived all fossil ivory used in industry. The remains of these animals are frequently found in the ice fields of Siberia, and are invariably in a finer state of preservation than skeletons discovered in warmer countries.

Bones Found Far Apart.
Being a gregarious animal mastodons always roamed Canada in great herds. When one died the others ate his body.

It is owing to the carnivorous nature of the ancient beasts that bones are now usually found far apart from one another. As soon as the animals died their brothers would eat them and scatter the remains far and near.

"The mastodon started from the north about Siberia, and Alaska," Dr. Woolverton explained. "Their bones are frequently found well preserved in large ice cakes. In their time, of course, the north countries were covered with vegetation, and the climate was approximately the same as that enjoyed by inhabitants of Ontario. The glacial age pressed them further south, and finally they arrived at about the 40th parallel. None went any further than the territory near which the city of Cincinnati now stands."

Wiped Out by Time.
"Gradually the long protecting coat of hair left the mastodon, and other changes wiped out the entire species. All these successive changes in a series of creatures coincide with great disturbances on the surface of the globe. It was at the instant of one of these disturbances that the mastodon disappeared. In times of succeeding calm the new organization was developed in keeping with the changes in the isothermal lines."

Dr. Woolverton has seen numerous mastodon skeletons, including one found in the Klondike, whose tusks measured twelve feet each. He believes every available specimen should remain in Western Ontario to be used by the university, and he is anxious to see the bones of the mastodon placed in the new museum. The doctor has attempted on several occasions to establish a good museum of natural history in London, but owing to lack of interest on the part of the public the scheme failed. Now, however, he believes the university should take up the work actively, and will be glad to donate his collection, time and experience in developing the new branch of learning along proper lines.

Controversy Rages Regarding Disabling of Ship by German Crew.

Special to The Advertiser.
New York, July 4.—Carrying 1,700 passengers, the giant Leviathan, pride of America's merchant navy, sails today on her first commercial transatlantic voyage under the stars and stripes.

Tuned and tested to the steenth degree the big liner will slip down the river early this afternoon and begin her throbbing assault upon all transatlantic speed records—some of which, established in trials last month—she already holds. Having picked her day appropriately, the Leviathan's sailing will be in the nature of a national event, flags, bunting, bands, aeroplanes roaring overhead, a farewell speech or two and the shrieking of whistles of harbor craft wishing their big sister "bon voyage," will all lend color to the take off.

The Leviathan sails with an acute controversy raging as to whether her German crew, at the entry of the United States into the war, wrecked her machinery as is popularly supposed, or whether an accident is now in addition to the regular military announced by F. H. Gibbs, of the engineering firm now operating the Leviathan, was responsible for putting her out of commission.

Armed With Regular Rifles
Cadets Invade Local RangesTwo Spirited Competitions on Program For Today—Athletic Field Day Thursday.

Cadets from the camp at Carling Heights took possession of the rifle ranges this morning and spent the day there improving their marksmanship and competing for the valuable trophies offered by two local citizens.

Leaving the camp at 9 o'clock, the boys boarded special cars at the corner of Adelaide and Oxford streets, and with much joking and laughter proceeded to the targets. For the rifle shooting regulation army rifles are used.

Two rifle competitions are on the program. The first of these is for a shield donated by Sir Adam Beck, to be completed for by teams of six officers, N. C. O.'s or cadets from any cadet corps attending camp. The range in this contest is 100 yards, ten rounds to be fired, with one sighting shot. No coaching will be allowed. The judging will be done by Major D. J. Corrigan, D.S.O., M.C., and the shield will be held by the winning team for one year.

J. S. Barnard has also offered a trophy of bronze for marksmanship. The only difference between the two competitions is that in the Barnard trophy shoot seven rounds will be fired, the range being the same. Major Corrigan will act as judge.

Field Day Tomorrow.
Tomorrow, under the direction of Walter Knox, famous Canadian athlete, the cadets will hold a gala day of sport. Contests of all sorts, to the number of 14, have been arranged for the day. The athletic events run all the way from a 100-yard dash to the weight, including a half-mile run and a mile relay. Mr. Knox, who has charge of these events, is a member of the Ontario Athletic Commission, Toronto, and the man who took the Canadian Olympic team abroad three years ago. The physical training competition, for the Daughters of the Empire shield, will also be held tomorrow afternoon. The judges in this are Lieut.-Col. George Gillespie and G. Cadet E. W. Crowe, R.M.C., Kingston.

Strike Tents Friday.
Friday morning, early, will see the break-up of the camp and the boys will leave on the early trains from London for their respective homes, after having participated in one of the finest cadet camps held in Ontario, if not in the Dominion. The boys themselves have entered into the spirit of the thing and no complaints concerning routine or food have been heard. Col. Gillespie, camp commandant, expressed himself as more than pleased with the discipline of the boys and the manner in which they have obeyed orders and conducted themselves.

The four gentlemen-cadets from Royal Military College, Kingston, have acquired themselves remarkably well, according to Col. Gillespie, who stated that which members of the cadet camp to which members of the famous institute had been sent. They are acting as adjutants of the various battalions.

Associated Press Despatch.
Rome, July 4.—Pope Pius' letter to Monsignor Pacelli, the papal nuncio in Berlin, charging him to make vigorous representation to the German government that it condemn crimes in the occupied regions under the guise of passive resistance, has had a marvellous effect in relieving the tension caused by the pontiff's repatriation letters to Cardinal Gasparri, according to indications in the political and diplomatic quarters here. Incidentally the new letter is pointed to as marking the success of recent Franco-Belgian diplomatic representations to the Vatican.

HOMERIC CONFLICT

Spelling Books Much in Demand by Staid Business Men This Week.

Can you spell "mnemonics"? If not, you'd better not line up with the Kiwanians or Rotary clubs in their world championship spelling contest to be conducted under the auspices of The Advertiser next Monday. All Rotarians and Kiwanians can spell "mnemonics" and a flock of other words besides. They've been cramming for the past month on all kinds of terrible words. And when the fateful day comes they're going to be a tough crew to stump on anything less than ninety-nine letters.

However, The Advertiser is preparing a list of 250 little, simple words like "cat" for the big battle. These simple ones are the kind a man falls down on. He knows the intricacies of words like "hippopotamus," but let him try a word like "besiege" or "dares" and his brain is liable to crack.

With the great event looming big in the offing, Chief J. B. Hay of the Kiwanians and Captain Dean Sherwood Fox of the Rotarians are having a mighty hard time keeping their men in town. They apparently think the conflict is going to be an awful ordeal. For imagine the embarrassment of falling flat on a simple word when all these years they've been telling their little boys and girls how they used to spell when they were boys.

So a number from both clubs have informed their presidents to agree to attend grandmother's funeral on the fateful July 9. Others made haste to flee the town on week-end tours of the Niagara peninsula. And still others have engagements with a hook and line on the banks of the Thames.

Alibis Barred.
None of these alibis will be considered justifiable, however, and patriotic clubmen are demanding the presence of their masters on penalty of excommunication. One club member said he wouldn't enter the contest for anything. He's always calling down his stenographer for mis-spelling words with equanimity. He knows the stenog. is apt to laugh at him. In fact, life in the office won't be worth living.

World-famed spellers such as Rev. D. C. MacGregor and Eddie Grange, however, view the prospect of a world championship with equanimity. Dr. MacGregor says he isn't much when it comes to mastering the dictionary, but friends know he is practically unbeatable. And Mr. Grange was a newspaper correspondent at Ottawa for anywhere from 20 to 30 years. As all informed persons know, a newspaperman never makes a mistake.

Several of the spellers were rehearsed yesterday when it was announced that no "modern" words would be used. Clarence May and Jed Vining thought words like "cat's meow" and "hot dogs" might be included in the list, and felt rather uncomfortable owing to their failure to keep up to the times in mastering the ultra-modern vernacular of the vaudeville stage. They were told no such phrases would be used, and now express delight that only "old-fashioned" words will be employed.

Heroic Judges.

Three judges, steeped in etymological lore, will be on hand to conduct the proceedings. Professor J. N. Russell, head of the department of geology at the University of Western Ontario; E. A. Miller, principal of the Central Collegiate Institute, and J. A. Spenceley, associate professor of English at Western, make up the trio who shall pass judgment on the pedagogic merits of the Rotarians and Kiwanians.

Surprises are promised for the word wrestling bout. The winners are quite likely to get free trips to Africa or the North Pole, and the losers are uncertain. Perhaps they shall be forced to join the Ku Klux Klan. The punishment, whatever it is, will be heart-rending.

The word warfare commences at the Rotary luncheon in the Teumseh House Monday next at about one o'clock. Both clubs are going with excitement. Their whole future rests on the outcome.

YOUNG MERMAID WINS AGAIN.

Little Miss Eileen Riggin, who proved the star of the last Olympic meet, is again setting the aquatic world ablaze with her feats. Her most recent achievement was an easy victory over a large field in the 100-metre free style swim at Rye, N. Y.

BICYCLE PICNIC
THIS AFTERNOON WILL DRAW MANY

Bicycle and Motor Sales Company Stages Annual Spring-Bank Outing.

This afternoon will see thousands of boys and girls cycling along the Pine Line road to attend the monster bicycle picnic at Springbank. Yesterday and today children of the city were working diligently getting their wheels in trim for the five-mile ride to the big picnic. As early as six o'clock this morning the telephone at the Bicycle and Motor Sales Company was ringing furiously. Little children were calling up to know if it would be all right for their big brother to drive them down on the handle bars, and shouts of delight could be heard over the wire when the little tots learned that their big brother could drive on his handle bars as many as he could balance.

A thousand ice cream cones will greet the children when they reach the park. Arrangements have been made to supply the kiddies with a lunch consisting of as many "hot dogs" as they can eat, sandwiches, and cooling drinks.

The procession of bicycles, along the highway will be led by 32-year-old Woodrow "Buster" Weniger, son of Mayor Weniger, riding his famous "tiny bicycle." The stream of wheels will consist of cycles of all makes and all sizes. Men and women, boys and girls and little kiddies will take part in this big bicycle picnic.

A brand new Red Bird bicycle is to be given away following the completion of the program of sport events. Cards entitling the owner to the prize will be given to all of the picnicers. The person holding the card with the winning number on it gets the free bicycle. Three conditions exist before the holder of the lucky number is eligible to receive the wheel. The holder of the lucky number must have ridden in the picnic on a bicycle, must have taken part in at least one of the events at the park, and must be there when his number is called.

A program of twelve novel events will be given away following the completion of the program of sport events. Cards entitling the owner to the prize will be given to all of the picnicers. CHARGE PARENTS
WITH ALL COST OF BAD JUVENILESCity Has Paid For Years, But Now Treasurer Will Collect.

MUCH MONEY LOST

Municipality Has Formerly Paid
Bills of Reformatory Cases.

It is one thing for a judge to say, "Off to the reformatory with these juvenile offenders," but it is quite another thing, city authorities state, when the municipality proceeds to exact payment for their maintenance in the different institutions.

For years, City Treasurer James Bell relates, the citizens at large have paid in their tax rate for the upkeep of these children in Mimic, and other of the so-called reform schools, while the municipality still retained the power to collect from the parent.

But the parent has never paid—least not within the past few years—and during 1922, for instance, the citizens paid $3,200. In the estimate for 1923 juveniles delinquency justifying imprisonment in the reformatory is estimated to have cost $2,000, according to the city treasurer.

But there is a difference this year. The city council proposes, and the members state that they act with their rights, to collect from the parents of guardians of such children as are sent away. A resolution was passed last night directing the clerk to notify Police Magistrate Graydon and juvenile judge Warner that it would be imperative for them to let it be known to City Relief Inspector McCallum when the parents come to request a hearing in order that he will be in attendance to insure provision is made to collect from the parent.

The parents have not paid for years that I can remember," City Treasurer Bell reported today. "As a matter of fact we tried to collect from several of them one time, several years ago. We took it to the courts and lost every case."

It appears that the presiding judge must, when despatching a child to the provincial prison, make it definite on the records that the expense must be borne by the parent. Otherwise the municipality is compelled to shoulder the burden and there is no alternative.

But now the city proposes to stop this leakage and the judges have been ordered accordingly.

CITY NEWSPAPER MAN
SURPRISES FRIENDClaude Kewley and Miss Katherine Jarrell Principals in Romantic Wedding.

Local newspaper circles were startled out of their accustomed routine yesterday when Claude Kewley of Hamilton, reporter on the Press, announced that he would be married before tonight.

Mr. Kewley left London on Saturday for a visit to his home in the Ambitious City, with the full intention of returning to this city early for work Tuesday morning. Instead of this he evidently became imbued with the spirit of ambition which pervades the other city, and instead of returning with his fiancée at the railway station he brought her along with him, taking her to the home of his aunt, Mrs. Philip Kewley, who lives on the corner of the street, and as soon as the train reached this city.

At 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon Rev. A. A. Rice of All Saints' Church celebrated the marriage of William Claude Kewley and Miss Katherine Gertrude Jarrell, marking the culmination of a romance.

Mr. Kewley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Kewley, Hamilton, and the bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Jarrell, Kingston. Of late years, however, Mrs. Kewley has resided in Oshawa, where she held an important position with a large manufacturing concern. Mrs. Prudence Hamilton, and Mrs. Kewley, the necessary support as the knot was tied. They will stay for the present at the home of Mrs. Kewley.

BROWN FAMILY PICNIC ON FARM AT DELAWAREHold Annual Reunion Where Mastodon Bones Were Found.

The lovely farm home of William Jones, Delaware, where the recent discovery of mastodon remains was made, was the scene of a second interesting event last Monday, when about 60 members of the Brown family met there for their twelfth annual picnic.

The guests, who came from Hamilton, St. Thomas, Talbotville and Promé, were shown the exact spot of the discovery and also viewed those relics which remain in Mr. Jones' possession. The greater part he has given to the Western University.

The picnic supper was served at tables spread on the wide lawn surrounding the home, and baseball and other sports filled in the day.

IMPERIAL DELEGATES
FAVOR BILINGUALISMSouth African Representative Tells London Education Conference of Advantage.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, July 4.—Bilingualism was subject yesterday of an interesting discussion at the Imperial Education Conference being held here. It opened by a South African delegate, M. Viljoen, who pointed out distinct success of South Africa's efforts to establish two languages on an equal basis.

Apart from the political advantages of bilingualism, Delegate Viljoen said it fostered mutual understanding and thus encouraged mutual tolerance between two communities. He expressed the opinion that bilingualism tended to shut out the ignorant and develop the intelligence of the pupils in the schools, and he was satisfied that the progress made in South Africa under this system justified the South Africans in taking heart and going forward, leaving the peaceful operations of time to solve any outstanding difficulties.

The known dead are: V. C. Robertson, engineer; Joseph Blevins, engineer; Walter Crews, fireman; Earl Hall. One passenger, unidentified, was the fifth victim.

The double-header was making schedule time when, without known cause, it left the rails, six sleeping cars, three coaches and five baggage cars piled into the ditch, and it is reported that one baggage car was entirely demolished.

Eleven of the fourteen cars overturned, and despatches indicated many passengers were seriously injured. Homes were being prepared as emergency hospitals to house the injured and doctors are being rushed to Albuquerque to aid in caring for them.

Port Bruce Girl Tribes Pledge Loyalty To Camp

Big Chief Burns Wood Tokens, Indian Fashion, In Camp Fire.

Special to The Advertiser.

Camp Orendaga, Port Bruce, July 3.—A most impressive ceremony was that of Saturday evening, when what is known as the opening ceremony of camp took place. Quietly through the shadows of the trees, from opposite side the two tribes, Owasea and Irari, wound their way down to the river's edge, where was laid the central fire of camp, and the small tribal fires.

Here the big chief, Miss Gertrude Gavin, explained the purpose and meaning of the camp.

She emphasized the fact that at camp, through fellowship with one another and with God, there might be caught a new vision of the beauty of the fourfold life. Help might be gained by discovering God's purpose for life. She pointed out further that the ideal of the camp was to be found in the life of Him who loved beauty, truth and goodness, and showed how these ideals could be expressed in every-day life.

Then each tribal chief, Grace Gibberd for the Owasea and Isobel Griffiths for the Irari, asked the "braves" of their tribes if they wished to make the aim of the camp their aim. Indicating her desire to do so in Indian fashion, each girl presented in turn to her little chief a stick of wood as a token of her loyalty to her, to the big chief and to the ideals for which they together stood.

These tokens were then presented to the Big Chief, who, accepting the signs of loyalty, kindled them in the central camp fire. She thus showed that as all had united to build the great camp fire, so would the spirit of the camp be made strong and beautiful as each of the girls gave her best to the camp.

Arising from the shadows behind the camp fire, the two tribes, the "Spirit of the Camp," called "Fire," in soft tones, proclaimed: "I am Fire, the Spirit of the Camp. I cleanse each thought and make it pure and true. I stand on guard to cheer and comfort you. When evening closes in, you gather round my light. To laugh and love and sing, and feel that all is right. But if you look deep down into my flame, You'll find my spirit there, spells out His Holy Name."

Following out the ceremony each little chief took a burning brand from the great camp fire and with it kindled her own tribal fire, and the tribes sang a song of their lighted tribal fires, the great chief, Miss d'Avignon, closed with prayer.

Two most interesting issues of the "Orendaga Saga," the camp paper, have appeared, and the next issue is being eagerly awaited. The Saga contains personal news, beautiful worded editorials by the editor in chief, Miss Eleanor Grant. Miss Grant has an able body of assistants, among whom are Grace Cape, Madge Pierce, Gertrude Gavin, Betty Waters, Helen Lindsay, Grace Gibberd and Isobel Griffiths.

One of the contributions to the latest Saga was a poem by Lucy Harding, which follows:

"My Master Comes."

My Master comes in the hush of noon,
When the streets are blistered by the sun,
And quiet lies the way,
In a fragrant cool caressing breeze
Drifting from blossom on the trees.
At the hottest hour of the day,
"My Master comes when cares distress."
When all is dreary gloominess,
And hopes all shattered lie,
In a glint of sapphire decked with white,
Over the black trees gleaming bright,
In the vastness of the sky.

"My Master comes in wondrous night,
A spirit full of restful light,
And radiant with love,
In the inspiration of the stars
The half closed petals of the flowers
He softly steals from above."

"But he came first to me as the sun's welcome ray Stripes the chill earth at dawn of day,
Bidding me to light a day,
He shone through the cheery smile
Of a friend.
Encouragement through his eyes
Seemed to lend,
And that sunshine warmed my heart."

Camp Social Notes.
Many delighted visitors have lately motored to Orendaga, and been charmed with the "Lodge," as the new camp center is known. On Friday, among those who visited the camp were Mrs. John Tanton and the Misses Isabel and Margaret Tanton of London, who are summering at Port Stanley, and their guest, Mrs. Elliott of Kingston; Mrs. Ed. Fashions by Wire

Special to The Advertiser.

Paris, July 3.—Many of the hats of tagel straw—so extremely popular just now—are trimmed with one large, smashing bow of moire ribbon. The bow invariably matches the straw in color, and is posed with as much of it below the brim as above.

Fishes Decorate Bath Suits.
Paris, July 3.—What could be more appropriate for the swimming suit than a decoration of fishes. Such a decoration, arranged as a blouse, and done in sea green, decorated the blouse of a black jersey bathing costume shown here today.

Fur Decorates Wraps.
London, July 3.—Fur is quite as chic this year for a summer as for a winter decoration. Many of the summer fashions and wraps have collars and cuffs of the lighter furs, and fur is often seen in combination with embroidery and flowers.

A Braided Coatee.
London, July 3.—The allover braided coat has pretty well disappeared. But it was too pretty a style to vanish altogether, so it still survives in a coatee of some silk material which has its upper part covered with narrow silk braid.

The Wilder, the Smarter.
New York, July 3.—This is, of course, a time when you can wear any sort of earring at all, only remembering that the wilder, the smarter. One woman has resurrected the old-fashioned wedding gift, which was a pair of Venetian earrings, consisting of wide carved gold hoops each containing a tiny gold gondola.

Stiffly Starched Ruffles.
New York, July 3.—The cotton frock today has taken unto itself ruffles. It is the fashion now to have these ruffles rather stiffly starched. They bedeck the frock almost anywhere that the wearer fancies.

Cool-Looking Costume.
New York, July 3.—One girl looked cool during the recent hot spell here. She wore a pleated georgette skirt of white. Instead of blouse, she had a linen jacket in a refreshing shade of pale green. The jacket was braided with white and had a sailor with a deep V.

Zona Gale Says:

"The Wise Woman Protects the Man She Loves From Knowledge of His Own Weaknesses."

The wise woman protects the man she loves from too abrupt knowledge of his own weaknesses. Sudden and bitter revelations menace happiness.

Most men need their own good opinion. Those who can isolate their weaknesses and push them out by nurturing the power in themselves are the advance members of the race. The other type depends on his wife tempering her clearer judgment with a kindly absence of emphasis.

Touch man's small vanities, his errors, his limitations, gently. You help more by praising when you can and witholding criticism when you cannot. Show him in anger all you think, and if he is sensitive you may shock him into a sense of inferiority which will make him inferior.

You may risk your own happiness by destroying his puny pretensions behind which he is trying to reach his realities. He may accept the criticism as just, and still find it unpardonable, coming from you. Perhaps he has expected protection instead—protection from too discouraging a vision of his handicaps.

Women help men by stimulating the good and by ignoring or, whenever it is possible, ministering to the less-than-good in them. Good, nurtured to power, crowds out evil. Tear away no veils from the weakness another is trying to turn into strength.

Such a discussion recalls Hannah and Frank Lapham. Hannah had the clear, cold but unkindly mind which saw through everybody. In occasional flashes of candor she analyzed her husband cheerfully and mercilessly.

"Frank Lapham is a nice man, and he seems to have good sense," once said one woman to another. "Why doesn't he get on better in his business?"

"Because his wife begrudges him a little conceit," grimly came from the other. "I met Frank in the street in front of his house one day. He seemed so confused that I thought he'd lost something. I asked him what it was. He looked at me with whipped spaniel eyes and said, 'Nothing. Nothing at all. Just my house.' But she is right. It was all true, only too true. But I wish—I kinda wish I didn't know."

"Why, there's nothing much wrong with Frank—nothing except that way of seeming to apologize for being alive," exclaimed the first woman.

"No, nothing from me. He needs mothering and sistering more than he needs school m'arning."

And both knew that the tragedy of it was that the practical, heavy-handed Hannah had given him a "piece of her mind" only because she cared for him.

Londoners Go a-Fishing For Bass At Snake Island

First Party of Season Includes Four Distinguished Johns and L. H. Scandrett, All Ardent Anglers.

Snake Island, far up in Georgian Bay, again hears the sound of London voices, the whizz of fishing reels and the crackle of camp fires. For the first fishing party of the season is already there, and the black bass are jumping to welcome them. There is fishing in not quite as good as usual this year, but that the roses are in bloom and the island never was prettier.

It is said that John Dillon is the best fisherman, but the average catch of each one of these sportsmen is sufficient to place him in the ranks of the best anglers.

The Snake Island Fishing Club was organized 25 years ago, according to W. C. Allen, who is one of the most enthusiastic members. Many of the members have since died, but their shares have been taken up by others, and at the present time there are eleven in all.

Snake Island is located just opposite Red Bay in Georgian Bay. The London men go by train to Warton, drive ten miles to Red Bay and then across the water by sailing vessel.

Members of Council Criticize Vote To Purchase Car For Official.

Ald. John T. May, member of the board of works, charges that the purchase of a car for city Engineer No. 1, as authorized by the city council last night, is the "most improper municipal procedure" he has observed, alleges Ald. May, who states that the recommendation from the board of works was not brought to council in a manner to conform with regulations.

The recommendation was made at the 10 o'clock meeting of the board of works," stated Ald. May. "The secretary was not present at the time. He was asked to leave with the business representatives of the board, so the committee must discuss the advisability of retaining a certain employee. Later the finding of the committee is reported to the clerk in the minutes."

Ald. May submits that this procedure is highly irregular, insisting that the clerk should be in attendance at the time any official loan was taken."

Ald. L. M. Douglas, chairman of the board of works, concurs with Ald. May.

There was not work at the meeting made. He explained today, that he maintained that the question should be gone back to the committee for their consideration. The members of the committee even, were not unanimous in this matter and had many certain and not certain. "As an instance, Ald. Ed. Hayden, who presided in his absence, changed his mind three times last night. First he recommended a touring car for the engineer. Then he changed to a coupe, and then later he changed to a sedan. He finally approved the purchase of any car whatever. "It was the mayor's stand, too, unanimous in his opinion. When he stated in the affirmative. His vote is registered only at my request."

ADVOCATES DECREASE OF FARM PRODUCTION

Secretary Wallace of U. S. Department of Agriculture Makes Novel Suggestions.

Canadian Press Dispatch. Washington, July 3.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has been giving out some figures on the exportation of U. S. farm products, which are calculated to destroy one of the notions most commonly entertained about the reason for the low prices of farm products in this country. Taking up the exports of the eight principal food crops of the United States, he finds that in 1920, 1921 and 1922, they were heavier than before the war, and even heavier than they were in war years.

Much has been heard about the low prices for farm products here being due to lack of a market abroad. The figures of Secretary Wallace are a blow at that theory. It is altogether probable that in the light of the fact the export situation is not responsible for the low prices of farm products, as indicated by Mr. Wallace's figures, Congress will be under pressure to take action along other lines than the securing of markets abroad to help out the farmers. It is true that if more markets abroad could be secured, it would be to the advantage of the farmer.

HAVE YOU ANY MONEY IN THE BANK?
THERE is an old-fashioned theory which some people still cling to—that a bank wants no dealings with them unless they have "lots of money." Such is not the case with this bank; you will be welcomed whether you have $1 or $1,000 to deposit. Open an account with what you feel you can spare now and add to it regularly as "pay day" comes round. It is a comforting feeling to know that you have several hundred dollars put away safely in the bank.

SAVE BASEBALL GROUND FOR USE OF CHILDREN

Through the efforts of Ald. John Greer, children living north of the C. P. R. tracks, and near Wellington street, are not to be deprived of a place to play ball.

When Wellington street was closed by the C. P. R., a portion of the thoroughfare north of the tracks remained as part of the street, but was never used for that purpose.

At last night's city council session Ald. John Greer directed attention to the fact that the police have been the only persons to date who have objected to children playing ball on this space, although it had been leased to a nearby club for $1 a year.

By resolution the council permits this to be used as playground, and the police commission and officers will be duly notified to that effect.

WOMAN CRUSHED AS CAR CRASHES INTO DEEP DITCH

Mrs. Charles Cornwall of Norwich in Precarious Condition at Victoria.

FOUR ESCAPE INJURY

Heavy Auto Falls Over Embankment Near City After Collision.

Pinned beneath a large touring car when it rolled down an 18-foot embankment two miles from the city on Hamilton road, about 8 o'clock last night, Mrs. Charles Cornwall of Norwich, suffered internal injuries, which are considered by physicians this afternoon to be of an extremely serious nature.

After she had been extricated with some difficulty from the wreckage of the heavy car, Mrs. Cornwall was rushed to Victoria Hospital, where it was found that she was suffering from shock. The full extent of her injuries could not be ascertained, however, until this morning as she was in a semi-conscious condition throughout the night. Dr. Homer Black reports that Mrs. Cornwall is suffering from internal injuries in the region of her chest.

The four other occupants of the car, Miss Myrtle Moore, who was driving; Mrs. Phil Webb, Mrs. Coons and her 2-year-old son, all of Burgessville, were uninjured except for minor bruises and cuts.

Miss Moore and her friends were motoring from Michigan and were on the last lap of their journey when the accident happened. Crossing a bridge at a point formerly known as the Graham House, their car met another automobile being driven towards London by Fred Taylor of this city.

Although the bridge is rather narrow there is enough room for two vehicles to pass easily, but it is thought the slippery road was the cause of the cars brushing as they passed. Both were going slowly at the time, it is said.

Mr. Taylor stated that he felt a slight jar, but did not think anything of it until his companion called to him that the other car had rolled from the road. Stopping and running back he found the car in the ditch with Mrs. Cornwall pinned beneath. Calling assistance, he pulled her out and summoned an ambulance.

The rear bumper on Mr. Taylor's car was bent after the accident, and it is thought that it caught in the ditch. The car was damaged, but not seriously. The car was a 1922 model, and was being driven by Mrs. Taylor. The car was damaged, but not seriously. The car was a 1922 model, and was being driven by Mrs. Taylor.

DEFENDS PURCHASE OF ENGINEER'S CAR

Mayor Explains His Position in Regard to City Engineer Near.

Mayor Wenige today explains why he voted to purchase an automobile for City Engineer Near, although he had stated often that he was opposed to the measure.

"I am still opposed to the principle," his worship declared decisively, "yet I voted in the affirmative last night. I want service for the citizens and I want pavements laid this summer."

"I have gone into the question thoroughly, and I have concluded that under the present arrangement the city engineer should be provided with a car. His duties demand his presence every day in every section of the city. The work cannot be held up, as it is when he has no car at his disposal."

"I voted for a car for the city engineer because, while I am still opposed to the practice of cars for city officials, I can see no way out of it under the present system. He should have a car for himself until such time as we have inaugurated the municipal garage or have perfected some other satisfactory arrangement."

"Otherwise it would not be fair. Meanwhile other city officials have city cars at their disposal, while the city engineer, the most important official at this period of the year, has to walk, ride the street cars and shift for himself in any manner possible. And the result is not satisfactory. The other departments are bound to go ahead, while the work of the engineering department must naturally be delayed."

"I am still opposed to the principle, but there was no other alternative at this moment if we are to have the service that I submit that the people are entitled to."

PAVEMENT HELD UP.

Contrary to the wishes of the city council, there can be no new pavement this year on Oxford street from Richmond to Adelaide streets. City Clerk Baker reports that a sufficient number of ratepayers on that thoroughfare have petitioned against it.

Says County Has Not Paid Share of Juvenile Court

Judge Warner Reminds of Arrangement That Middlesex Should Bear Part Cost.

County cases have already been brought before Judge G. Q. Warner in the juvenile court, and W. E. Raney, attorney-general in the late government, gave the distinct understanding that the county of Middlesex would be responsible for a fair share in the upkeep of the court, but county officials have so far taken no steps toward discharging their responsibility for the present year.

"We have so far received no assistance from the county, but I presume the two councils will deal with the matter. I don't believe we are responsible for seeing to it," Mr. Warner said this morning when asked if any payment had been received from the county toward defraying the expenses of the court.

Last week twelve county cases were brought before Judge Warner, each concerned with the same charge and a single case brought before the court this morning and adjourned had to do with residents of the county.

FINED $200 AND COSTS FOR ALCOHOL BATTLE

Edward McCullough Claimed It Was For Rubbing, But Court Ruled Otherwise.

Edward McCullough, no address, was fined $200 and costs, with the option of three months in jail, for having liquor in other than an authorized place.

McCullough, who was arrested yesterday by Sergeant Oakley, pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication but denied the other charge. Sergeant Oakley gave evidence to the effect that he had arrested the man as he came out of a house on Clarence street, and on searching him found a small bottle of drinking alcohol. He phoned for the patrol and McCullough was taken to the station.

On his appearance in court this morning, McCullough told Magistrate Graydon that the alcohol found in his possession was used for a sore throat. He would not take the stand and said that he was merely taking the liquid to his rooms.

The court found him guilty and imposed the fine, the other charge of intoxication being dismissed.

At the meeting of the Oriole Club of Christ Church, held last evening, Mrs. Weaver, who has been doing missionary work among the Indians of Red Pheasant Reserve, Saskatchewan, gave a short address, relating many of her experiences among the Indian children. A charming feature of the meeting was the presentation to Mrs. Weaver of two quilts, made by the girls of the club, and used in her missionary work. A short address was given by Canon Gunne, and Miss Lorraine Burch made the presentation. The girls' mothers were also present, and after a jolly program of games had been enjoyed, a dainty supper was served.

ROBERT SMITH PAYS $5 WHEN HIS PLEA FAILS

Sergt. Last Charges Citizen With Driving Past Street Car.

"I am as innocent as this straw hat," declared Robert Smith, local railwayman when he appeared in police court today charged with having passed a street car on the left-hand side, contrary to the traffic by-law.

Smith stated that he had been driving east on Dundas, when near the corner of Lyle he noticed that a street car had bumped into an automobile, with the result that the traffic was becoming congested, and as he was in a hurry he passed by on the left-hand side.

Sergeant Last saw him do it and entered an information against him. While the officer admitted that there had been a slight block at the place mentioned, he stated that it did not last longer than a couple of minutes and that had Smith waited he would have been able to pass on the right side.

Magistrate Graydon fined Smith $5 and costs.

Alexander Judson, charged with carrying swill or garbage in a rig through the streets of the city without having it properly covered, successfully defended himself and the charge was dismissed. Judge told the court that his barrister was covered by the necessary airtight covers, and that over them again he threw canvas. It was the canvas that was responsible for him appearing in court.

Several minor cases, breaches of by-laws and the motor vehicles act, were settled out of court.

COUNCIL PROVIDES JOB FOR PETER M'GINNIS

Special Committee Decides On Work For Old Employee of City.

At last the council has dealt with Peter McGinnis, old-time employee of the city engineer's department. This question was left to a special committee, Mayor Wenige, Ald. Judd and Ald. Douglass.

The two chairmen met at noon today and provided that certain work be detailed to Peter that will meet with the entire satisfaction of the council. Peter was employed for a number of years as a member of the street cleaning department, but he is not now suited for this work, they say.

Peter's new job takes effect at once.

BERRY-REEVES FAMILY PICNICS AT WILTON GROVE

At the second annual picnic of the Berry-Reeves family held Monday at the home of Hubert Berry, Wilton Grove, more than 50 representatives of the two branches of the family gathered to renew old acquaintances. The day's sports consisted of two baseball games. In the first one the "Hinky Dinks" defeated the "Hokey Pokeys" by a score of 9 to 7, and in the second fray the "Buster Browns" won from the "Rail Birds." After a bounteous repast on the lawn other games and contests were staged.

RURAL PHONES ARE DISCUSSED AT ILDERTON

Annual Meeting of Shareholders Brings Out Interesting Facts Regarding Service.

MANY IN ARREARS

Special to The Advertiser.

Iliderton, July 3.—The annual meeting of the shareholders of the United Telephone Company was held in I. O. O. F. hall on Saturday evening. The president, Mr. Boughner, in the chair. Mr. Skinner, the manager, reported that there were now 340 phones in use and that he was repairing the lines as fast as possible, but some of those lines were in very bad shape. Secretary-Treasurer A. Stoner reported that the storm of a year ago would cost the company $12,000. A large number of phone holders were in arrears. He intended to stop the services of many of these and take steps to collect the rent.

The president was instructed to send a resolution of sympathy to Mrs. Skippon, widow of Thomas Skippon. The auditor, Mr. A. B. Stoner, reported the audit not completed, but gave an approximate statement of the business. On his recommendation it was decided to add the six months from December 1st in order to bring the accounts to the end of May.

The newly-elected board are: Mr. Boughner, London; A. B. Stoner, Telfer, E. T. Caverhill and Thomas Martin.

The R. R. board have not yet placed their valuation, but it is expected soon and the board of directors were authorized with full power to deal with the municipality and sell the valuation.

PRIEST FOR BAYFIELD FOR SUMMER MONTHS

Father Stroeder of Zurich To Take Charge of Summer Resort.

For the convenience of Catholics who spend the summer months at Bayfield, a summer resort on Lake Huron, Father Stroeder of Zurich, has been appointed as resident priest at that place during the months of July and August, and it is now assured that mass will be celebrated every Sunday.

Last year Bayfield was without a resident priest during the holiday season and it was the custom for priests from surrounding parishes to go to Bayfield on Sundays if it were possible. This summer's arrangement is far more satisfactory, as a priest for sick calls and emergency cases will always be available, instead of it being necessary to summon a priest miles away when spiritual aid is required.
