MR PARROTT RUNS A MEETING

Announces His Intention to the Electors of Charing Cross — Confesses He's a Handsome Man.

Some Very Amusing Statistics Were Introduced—Cheers for Clements at the Close.

The Liberals decided to hold a meeting at Charing Cross last night and for a week before all the roads in the vicinity were adorned with bills stating that George Stephens, Dr. Holmer and J. G. Kerr would speak. A fair sized crowd assembled at the hall last night but apparently Mr. Stephens didn't think it worth while to speak to the residents of Charing Cross and vicinity for he never showed up. Harry Westman and E. E. Parrott appeared in their stead. Sidney White was elected to the chair. At this stage Mr. Parrott took it on himself to remark that this was a Liberal meeting and Mr. Parrott proposed to run it.

There were about as many present as attended Mr. Clements' meeting a week ago but the audience was not nearly as attentive. The Stephens orators couldn't hold the attention. Mr. Westman repeated the old, old story about good times but the audience wasn't interested. After his peroration, he waded into how cheaply in his opinion it could be built. He even stated that the road would not cost more than $2 per head.

Mr. Parrott attempted to score off Messrs. H. S. Clements, R. L. Borden and the Conservative platform by holding the three up to ridicule. This nasty argument didn't appeal to the intelligent men present and they exhibited their disapproval of these tactics. The funny part of his speech, however, was when he posed as a handsome man. The audience could laugh heartily at the handsome man and they did. Producing a picture of Mr. Clements, Mr. Parrott remarked that he was a pretty good looking man but not as handsome as Mr. Westman and not nearly as good looking as he would be had he a full beard and a bald head. Then Mr. Parrott exhibited himself as a sample of a handsome man—Laughter. Apparently Mr. Parrott thought that the farmers of Charing Cross aren't thinking men. Here is some of the "arguments" he stated.

Mr. Parrott was speaking of the free corn. He said that one bushel of corn would produce 65 cents worth of pork. Then he went on to show the big profit that the farmer could secure by turning corn at 45 cents a bushel into pork when it would be worth 65 cents. Of course, the market price of corn had nothing to do with Mr. Parrott's arguments and it would not do for Mr. Parrott to study the prices because then he wouldn't have anything to say. He concluded with an address on dark clouds, which were past and gone and drew a pretty picture of what would happen. If Mr. Parrott's predictions are as correct as his corn quotations, the Liberals won't have much of a look in.

Mr. White at the end of the meeting said: "We'll give these speakers a first for the King, second for— (a voice) Borden. This set the crowd laughing. The cheering wasn't very hearty until three cheers were given for Mr. Clements when the whole audience joined in.

DOESN'T LIKE THIS PUBLICITY

George Stephens and the Toronto Bonus Seekers and Corporation Promoters Hate to Have the Farmers Heard

Stephens Organ Says they Will Take Action Against the Planet and Mr. Wilson—An Amusing Bluff.

The local Stephens organ announced last evening that J. N. McKendry and Herbert L. Dunn, the Toronto railroad promoters, with whom George Stephens is associated as charter owner and provisional director, had taken action against this great home journal for publishing in full the statement of Reeve Purser, the well-known and highly respected Dover farmer, relative to the overtures made to him, and also against Mr. Matthew Wilson, K. C., who gave, at the request of The Planet and Mr. Purser, the statement of his advice to the people of Dover in the matter.

It is, of course, interesting that this news should come to us from the Stephens organ rather than through the regular official channels, but we presume that it is necessary these days for the bonus-seekers to "hang together."

If the Stephens organ's report is true—and it announces that it has the ear and confidence of the corporation promoters and acts on their instructions, quoting the same—what a splendid unanimity of purpose is displayed by George Stephens and these Toronto men in seeking to prevent Reeve Purser and the interests of the townships from securing the public ear. Publicity seems to be the one thing dreaded.

It will be remembered that when George Stephens held his meeting at Big Point he challenged Reeve Purser and Councillor Boyer to be present. They were there and when the people called for them to speak the promoters of the meeting were afraid and denied them. Now when this great home journal, believing in fair play to the farmers as well as to George Stephens and the corporation promoters, has given Reeve Purser's statement to the people, and Mr. Matthew Wilson, K. C., the able solicitor of the Township of Dover, has repeated publicly the legal advice he gave to the Reeve in the interests of the taxpayers of the Township, the Stephens organ announces that the corporation promoters will take action against this publicity. How whole-souledly they all work together in an endeavor to keep the full facts of the case from the people!

Why this fear of publicity? Why this refusal to let the Dover representatives speak? Why these alleged "actions" to prevent publicity? And why did the promoters run to the Stephens organ with the announcement of their terrible intentions, instead of dealing officially and personally with Mr. Matthew Wilson, K. C., Reeve Purser and this great home journal?

The whole thing is interesting to the people and the taxpayers of Kent—and is worth thinking over.

SOCIAL EVENING

A very pleasant and enjoyable entertainment was given in the Park Street Methodist Sunday School Hall last evening by the members of Misses Irwin and Mounters' Sunday School Class. The social was given for the students and young people of the city and there was an excellent attendance.

An excellent program was given including an instrumental solo by Miss Flossie Bogart, readings by Miss Dunlop and Miss Sandison and a solo by Jasper Wilson.

Refreshments were served and a toast list followed, presided over by Toastmaster G. Austin.

People who say mean things don't always mean things they say.

FINE MEETING FOR CLEMENTS

Splendid Rally at Guilds With Addresses by H. S. Clements and J. M. Pike.

Mr. Clements Draws Attention to Distortion of His Statements by the Stephens Organ.

One of the best and most profitable meetings of the campaign for the Conservatives was held last evening at Guilds in the interests of Mr. Clements. There were fully 150 present at the meeting and Messrs. Clements and John M. Pike were the speakers. Opposition was invited but none showed up. Both of the speakers occupied an hour and a half each and during all that time they received the most rapt attention. Mr. Clements made an excellent speech, which was well received. It was the ablest speech he has made during the present campaign. The more Mr. Clements speaks the better he gets. Mr. Pike, who is always a polished orator, and a telling platform speaker, was right at himself and showed up in magnificent form. Both of the gentlemen were highly complimented at the conclusion of the meeting.

James Glendenning was appointed chairman and Mr. Clements opened the meeting. He was greeted with a round of applause and at different times he was interrupted with applause, showing the approval of the audience.

He referred chiefly to the unfair report in the Banner of the McCully meeting. Mr. Clements stated that the disease in the county commonly known as hog cholera can be cured. It was not hog cholera. The disease whatever it is, has been cured by different farmers. He also referred to the San Jose Scale and the treatment the farmers received from the Government on this question. Mr. Clements then laid his platform before the meeting and ably discussed the issues of the day.

Mr. Pike was well received. He made a masterly address which was cheered and applauded. Many of those present pronounced his address the best speech of the campaign. He pointed out that Mr. Stephens had done practically nothing for Kent and then he referred with telling effect to the Dover bribery charges. The farmers were much interested in this. He also drew attention to the large profits which would be made by George Stephens if the road had gone through.

Mr. Pike gave a clear and distinct solution of the G. T. P. deal, quoting Hon. Mr. Blair. He briefly referred to the Jackson-Pollock, and wound up his brilliant speech by pointing out that the Ontario machine and Mr. Ross are in league with the Dominion Parliament.

The Stephens organ closed with three hearty cheers for the King, R. L. Borden and H. S. Clements.

GENUINE GOODS

New Era of Splendid Productions to be Inaugurated at the Grand on November 2—Splendid Opening Promised.

Wallace Sackett, business manager of the "Marie Wainwright" company, was in the Maple City, yesterday. Mr. Sackett is a former New York city newspaper man, and paid a short visit to The Planet.

"I am somewhat sorry," he declared, "that our company visits your city the night before election, because I would have liked to have seen everyone at the Grand that night. Our production is Mr. Small's first book-keeping here and I think everyone who witnesses it will pronounce it the finest production seen here in several seasons."

"Miss Wainwright needs, I am sure, no introduction, and she is supported by a magnificent company. Everything that money and enterprise could secure has been included in the production."

There is no doubt that Mr. Sackett is warranted in his eulogy and The Planet hopes the company will be honored with a splendid house and thus a new era of good shows may be successfully inaugurated.

NEW STEAMBOAT.

Ed. Hardaker, engineer at the Canada Flour Mills Co., has returned from a water trip to Tupperville. Mr. Hardaker's son-in-law, George Strum, of Tupperville, purchased the 45 foot boat that lay on the flats back of the Canada Flour Mills Co.'s stable all summer. The boat was brought from Wallaceburg last winter on sleighs and was sold by J. E. Graham. Mr. Hardaker fitted the boat with a four horse power engine and took it around this week to Tupperville. They are using it for hauling logs for John Cooper. The little craft is quite fast and runs from Dover to Tupperville, a distance said to be eight miles, in 45 minutes. It will also tow 800 logs quite handily.

Talents never wear out.

The balcony of the Grand will be specially reserved for the ladies and their escorts and a hearty invitation is extended to the fairest sex to grace the occasion with their presence.

The committee in charge is endeavoring to arrange a good program of music to be interspersed with addresses by local politicians. All are welcome.

THE SUPPLEMENT

The Planet has to-day issued as a supplement a large map of Canada, showing the route of the proposed Grand Trunk Pacific and giving a few facts and figures in regard to the colossal expenditure meditated by the Liberals should they be returned to power. The supplement is left in the hands of the thoughtful citizen for their perusal. It is worth studying carefully.

The Value of Charcoal

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables. Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. They are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

NO SUBSTITUTE

has yet been found for cod liver oil. There are so-called extracts, wines and cordials of cod liver oil that are said to contain the active principles but not the oil itself. This is absurd on its face. You might as well extract the active principles of wheat and make bread with them. The best form of cod liver oil, that can be digested and assimilated most easily, is Scott's Emulsion.

We'll send you a sample free.

A NUISANCE

The police have received the names of some boys and young men who make a practice of raising a row under the electric light on the corner of Murray street and Lansdowne avenue every night from eight o'clock until ten.

It is claimed by some of the neighbors that a lot of boys, young men and young girls, many of whom are old enough to know better, congregated under the light and laugh and make a general noise and some go even so far as to look in the windows of the houses of neighbors. It has become a nuisance in that vicinity and the people who reside near that corner have decided to put a stop to it.

The matter will be investigated and if the practice is not stopped prosecution will follow.

AFTER TRUANTS

Anson Mounter Appointed City Officer—Meeting of Police Commission

The Police Commissioners met last night and appointed Anson Mounter, health inspector, as the Truant Officer. Judge Bell objected to a policeman being appointed on the ground that people don't like a policeman coming to their house and the advent of an officer is a source of gossip to the neighbors. The judge was strongly of the opinion a good man was necessary for a truant officer. Such a man as could interest, not only the children, but also the parents, and also command respect. Chairman Judge Houston, Judge Bell and Mayor McKeough were present.

D. S. Patterson addressed the Commissioners on behalf of the Children's Aid Society. He pointed out the great necessity for a truant officer. He also read a letter from Geo. S. Weir, the Truant Officer, for London, Ont. Mr. Weir devotes his whole time looking after truants. He asked 100 pupils last year. He makes a practice of traversing the streets during the school hours and visiting the fishing grounds. He uses persuasion generally and only takes a truant to the Police station as a last resort. Mr. Patterson stated that he had spoken to the Health Inspector and he had offered to act as truant officer for $15 per month.

Judge Houston asked if the Inspector could attend to the duties of truant officer. His time seemed to be pretty much occupied. He had been requested to disinfect the police station once a month but he was too busy to do so.

The place was old, dirty and unsanitary and should be disinfected once a month.

The statute provides that the Truant Officer shall be appointed by the Police Commissioners but their ability to give a salary was in some doubt. Judge Bell remarked that it was quite clear that they couldn't get anybody to act without a salary.

He also remarked that it would be of great advantage to get a man of philanthropic spirit as truant officer, one whose heart would be in the work. A good salary was very desirable. Judge Houston pointed out that the Commissioners would soon have to raise the salaries of the policemen. The cost of living was much higher now but the policemen were getting the same old salary. Police were also asking for two additional policemen.

On motion of Judge Bell, seconded by Mayor McKeough, Mr. Mounter was appointed truant officer at a salary of $12 a month for the 10 school months.

Judge Bell said that the right man could earn his salary and a great deal more.

THE STAGE

(Supplied to The Planet by Press Agents.)

A favorite with theatre goers all over the civilized world, in every nook and corner of which it has been presented, is "The Humming Bird," that comes to this city in the near future. The reason for its popularity is easily found. It tells a story that is so human, so familiar, that everybody sees in it a parallel case to one he has himself known. It is just like meeting an old friend.

Mrs. Parker's rural drama is a reproduction of the life of a pioneer phase and is said to be an admirable piece of work. The naturalism of the play itself increased and heightened by the realistic fashion in which it has been mounted.

It makes a feature of the play, a run down one's spinal column to see the pitiless driving snow which whirls past the windows of the old New Hampshire farm-house. Stage snow storms have heretofore lacked variety. Paper snow flakes sifted from perforated boxes in the flies, generally fall in a very limited area, but Mr. Grismer who staged "Way Down East," has hit upon a new device. This principle of snow storm seems to have set in to last the rest of the winter. The flakes drive past the windows as if blown upon the winds of a gale; they are in fact, blown by machinery. It is all intensely interesting and extremely picturesque.

The company, which Manager Brady has selected for this piece, is one of the very strongest ever gathered for a play of this kind.

So many things have been said and written about Miss Marie Wainwright, and her production of "Twelfth Night," which is to be presented at the Grand on Wednesday, Nov. 2nd, that the keenest interest is manifested by local theatre-goers in the production of the play, and the appearance of the famous actress. A scenic revival of "Twelfth Night" by Manager Jules Murray is of itself an event of unusual dramatic importance, and when it is in conjunction with so famous and artistic an actress as Miss Marie Wainwright, and an all star cast in the fullest sense of the phrase, for such is the company supporting this great actress, the event becomes doubly important. Not one of the heroines of the Shakespearean drama is as many-sided as Viola. The love of Juliet, the sprightliness of Rosalind, the tenderness of Cordelia, the waywardness of Katherine, the trustful simplicity of Desdemona, all are combined in Viola. And not only must the actress who essays this part know both to know better, but she must be of exceptional physique, for Viola assumes male attire, and hose and doublet require elegance of form and carriage, she must also possess superb beauty, for Viola must be eminently pleasing even as the page. Miss Wainwright brings all these qualities and attributes to the part. She is divinely formed, and as the page Cesario she is a picture that even the old masters would have been proud to have created. She is statuesquely beautiful. Her voice is musically melodious. She is unquestionably the finest Shakespearean reader on the English speaking stage, and her impersonation of Viola has been pronounced a masterpiece by the greatest critics.

AS A WORKING TOOL

for the student and the writer,
as an authoritative reference book
for schools, teachers, families,
business and professional men,
there is one book which offers superior advantages in the solid value of its information, and the ease with which it is obtained.

One's admiration for Webster's International Dictionary increases
daily as it comes to be better known. It never refuses the information sought and it never overwhelms one with a mass of misinformation illogically arranged.

The St. James Gazette of London, England, says: For the teacher, the pupil, the student and the litterateur, there is nothing better; it covers everything.

The New and Enlarged Edition recently is-

GOVERNMENT
OWNERSHIP

Sir Wilfrid's Return Kills
for 100 Years People's Own Railway.

Liberal-Conservative Party Believes
That what the People Pay for the People Should Own and Control.

Montreal, Oct. 25.—The leader of the Conservative party, R. L. Borden,
has issued the following message:
TO THE PEOPLE OF CANADA:

Parliament is now dissolved and political parties must submit themselves, their actions and their policy,
to the judgment of the people.
Since the election to the leadership of the Liberal-Conservative party, it has been my privilege to address audiences in every province and territory
of the Dominion, the Yukon excepted,
and with my colleagues to discuss in parliament many subjects affecting the public weal. Our policy has been clear, defined and consistent, the same
in every quarter, alike to every class.
The records of Parliament show
where we stand on the public questions which have been before the country since the last elections. These cannot all be discussed in this message, but in regard to some of the principal issues involved in this contest, I submit in a few words the platform on which we appeal for your judgment.

TRANSPORTATION.

The subject of most immediate concern is transportation. Having regard to the enormous obligations which would be imposed upon the people by the government's rash transcontinental projects; to the certainty that its adoption by you would shut out for a century government ownership of railways, and to the vital importance of controlling our own traffic and commerce, this question is the most momentous and far-reaching that has ever been submitted to the electorate of Canada. The immense territory and ever-increasing products of Canada demand the best and most economical transportation. We know that the people are willing to provide generously whatever money may be necessary for the development of the Dominion and our policy to extend and improve its transportation facilities by land and by water. But we insist that what the people pay for, the people should own and control; that public money should be used for Canada and for its people and not to promote the trade and wealth of foreign ports.

COUNTRY'S NEEDS.

We fully realize the country's need
for increased facilities of transportation. Efficient service and reasonable rates must be assured. In utilizing the public credit for these purposes
we must thoroughly guard against the diversion of our trade into the hands of foreign competitors. The government seeks to impose upon the people liabilities amounting to at least $150,000,000 for the construction of a transcontinental railway and conditions which absolutely fail to protect our national interests. The important and immediately profitable
western division is to be owned and the whole is to be absolutely controlled by a corporation interested in diverting our trade away from our own ports. We oppose to this our declared policy of constructing the new transcontinental railway as a public work to be owned and controlled by the people, and to remain a national highway in the truest sense.
I beg you clearly to understand that it is still open to you to decide what policy shall be done. Do not be misled by any assertions to the contrary.

We affirm that the management of the transcontinental railway and of other railways operated by the government should be freed from partisan interference and from party political
control.

EXTEND INLAND WATERWAYS.

We also affirm the necessity of thoroughly equipping our national ports and of developing and extending our system of inland waterways.
The principles upon which Sir John A. Macdonald's railway fiscal policy in 1878 guide us to-day.
We maintain and we will develop that policy for the advancement of the whole Dominion. It is a stable policy avowed openly without reserve.
It is a practical business policy adjustable to the needs of the time.
Our aim is to apply it for the common good of the people and for the conservation of the Canadian market for the Canadian producer, that honest industry in every legitimate calling may receive a just reward;
that the toiler may enjoy in his own
land full employment under conditions which ensure a just wage; that capital may be attracted to and may be safely invested in our industries,
and that articles and commodities required for the use of our people may be produced as far as is reasonably possible in this country. We believe that any extension of our markets by means of reciprocal trade arrangements should be sought among those within the empire who are our chief customers, rather than in foreign countries. A preference for our products in British markets would lead to an immediate enormous development of our resources. Such a preference the Conservative party will endeavor to obtain on favorable terms.

CHARACTER COUNTS.

In making appointments to public offices we shall place a special character and especially above considerations of party service and such additional safeguards will be provided as may be found necessary for the full protection of the public treasury.
More efficient means will be devised to guard against corrupt practices at elections and to protect the electorate from fraudulent devices by which the will of the people has been so often thwarted and the name of Canada degraded.

Inspired by an abiding faith in the justice and wisdom of our policy, and with an earnest confidence that it will prevail, we now submit it for your consideration, believing that it merits and that it will receive your approval.

International Bible Lesson for Tomorrow—Elisha at Dothan—II. Kings, 6, 8, 23.

Golden Text—"The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them
that fear Him and delivereth them."

There are three, at least, splendid points in this lesson, but it is full of pointers.

1st.—The perfect safety of those who live and walk in God's Holy Spirit, as Elisha did and as described in the 1st Psalm. Elisha's new servant (Gehazi was dismissed) was ignorant of this, as multitudes are now,
until their eyes are opened by faith
in such declarations of God as we have in our golden text.
2nd.—Carnal courage and carnal weapons are not used by fearless Elisha or by God's spirit-filled children against their enemies; their weapons are not carnal but spiritual, and mighty to the pulling down of the strongholds of Satan. Elisha uses the weapon of prayer and God opens the eyes of Elisha's servant to see as he did, and closes the eyes of his Syrian enemies, to eventually make them his friends.

3rd.—How to overcome evil with good. Elisha was like the Law of God to condemn and destroy sin, and the sinner; Elisha was like the Gospel to capture the blinded enemy, forgive him and send him home in peace. Elisha was a cyclone; Elisha as gentle rain or dew; but both the approved servants of the Living God.
Friend, hast thou accepted the Gospel, or art thou in the cyclone's track?

FOR THIRTY YEARS

Congressman Meekison Suffered With Catarrh—Read
His Endorsement of Pe-ru-na.

CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON, OF OHIO.

Hon. David Meekison is well known, not only in his own State but throughout America. He began his political career by serving four consecutive terms as Mayor of the town in which he lives, during which time he became widely known as the founder of the Meekison Bank of Napoleon, Ohio. He was elected to the Fifty-fifth Congress by a very large majority, and is the acknowledged leader of his party in his section of the State.

Only one flaw marred the otherwise complete success of this rising statesman.
Catarrh with its insidious approach and tenacious grasp, was his only unconquered foe. For thirty years he waged unsuccessful warfare against this personal enemy. At last Peru-na came to the rescue, and he dictated the following letter to Dr. Hartman as the result:

"I have used several bottles of Peru-na and I feel greatly benefitted thereby from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer I will be fully able to eradicate the disease of thirty years' standing."—David Meekison, ex-Member of Congress.

Over fifty members of Congress endorse Peru-na as a catarrhal tonic. Men of prominence the world over praise Peru-na.

A TONIC is a medicine that gives tone to some part of the system.
There are different kinds of tonics, but
the tonic most needed in this country,
where catarrh is so prevalent, is a tonic
that operates on the mucous membranes.
Peru-na is a tonic to the mucous membranes of the whole body. It gives tone to the capillary circulation which constitutes these delicate membranes.

Peru-na is a specific in its operation upon the mucous membrane. It is a tonic that strikes at the root of all catarrhal affections. It gives tone to the minute blood vessels and the terminal nerve fibres. Catarrh cannot exist long where Peru-na is used intelligently.
Peru-na seeks out catarrh in all the hidden parts of the body.

A. M. Ikard, an employee of the C. B.
& Q. R. R., West Burlington, Ia., writes:
"I had catarrh of the stomach and
small intestines for a number of years.
I went to a number of doctors and got no relief. Finally one of my doctors sent me to Chicago and I met the same fate. They said they could do nothing for me, that I had cancer of the stomach and there was no cure. I almost thought the same, for my breath was something awful. I could hardly stand it, it was so offensive. I could not eat anything without great misery, and I gradually grew worse.

"Finally I got one of your books, and concluded I would try Peru-na, and thank God, I found a relief and a cure for that dreadful disease. I took five bottles of Peru-na and two of Malinalin, and now feel like a new man. There is nothing better than Peru-na, and I keep a bottle
in my house all the time."—A. M. Ikard.
Catarrh of the stomach is usually called dyspepsia. Catarrhal dyspepsia cannot be cured by peppin powders or any other temporary relief. The only cure for real dyspepsia is a removal of the catarrh from the mucous membrane
of the stomach. This Peru-na will do.
This Peru-na has done thousands and thousands of times.

Congressman Botkin, of Kansas, was cured of catarrh of the stomach of many years' standing. Hundreds of other cases have been reported to us through unbiased testimonials. Peru-na is the only internal systemic remedy for catarrh yet devised. Every one afflicted with catarrh in the slightest degree
ought to take a course of Peru-na.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio

THE LOCAL BUDGET

Miss Theresa Kelly, St. Thomas, is visiting her sister, Mrs. P. J. Doyle, Harvey St.

Tommy Gardiner, who played solo cornet in the 24th Kent Regiment Band, has accepted a position with the Quinlan Minstrel show and left with that organization Wednesday.

Will Stevens and James Sutherland have returned from spending this week duck shooting at the Eau. They stayed with John Palmer, Shrewsbury and had fairly good luck, bringing back 12 nice ducks.

Trinity Church will hold memorial services both morning and evening to-morrow, in commemoration of the late Maurice Scotland-Baldwin, the former eloquent and dearly beloved Bishop of Huron. Music in keeping with the occasion will be rendered at both services.

A visit to the greenhouses of Chas. W. Baxter, Adelaide St., would amply repay a connoisseur in carnation culture, as he has almost every variety in bloom. It took 700 to supply his customers this week, while he has 300 more ready for delivery.

I have not got very many more 1847 Roger Bros. knives and forks left, but would like to clear them out. You might just as well be the gainer as anyone else. I do not need to tell you what the goods are like as you have seen them advertised for years, only you buy them from me cheaper than any other place in Canada. E. J. MacIntyre, leading jeweler and optician.

The jury sittings of the High Court held here this week, cost less than usual. The court fees were very light in comparison with other years, owing to the shortness of the sittings and the absence of criminal cases. There was only one criminal case and the fees of witnesses for it amounted to $22.25. The other expenses were, grand jury $75.80, petit jury $315.50, constables $45.60.

AUDITOR-GENERAL TO THE PEOPLE

Issues Open Letter to Electors of Canada—Asks for Their Support

Unless Members are Returned Who Will Strengthen His Hand Against Graft, He Will Quit Office

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—The Auditor-General has issued the following open letter to the electors of Canada:—

"To the Electors of Canada:—

"These are times of great uncertainty about my reason for withdrawing my application for re-appointment when the dissolution of the Commons took place. There was ground to expect that you would see that the most painstaking auditor, even with the Audit Act, must let too much of your sweat-stained money go to people who had not earned it. With this knowledge you should require your members to carefully change this and other laws so as to help your auditor, and your honest servants whose duties lie in the same direction, to feel that their labors have full results in your interests. It did not seem necessary to say that I could not hope to keep out of an asylum for the insane if I attempted to do our great work here with the immense additions so soon to come to it without this help, and therefore I should leave.

"When I asked to be superannuated I tried to make it clear that my health was good, and that I was not tired of work. I wanted to remain as a matter both of duty and taste, my family needed my full earnings. If I were a farm laborer I could not remain with my prairie employer who would turn me out only a reaping hook to save his ripened grain. The reaping hook was, however, the only implement for the purpose in my neighborhood fifty years ago. If you the Auditor-General, must let too much of your sweat-stained money go to people who had not earned it, the same direction, I shall quit this office with the superannuation I have earned if possible, but if I cannot get that, then without it.

60 LIVES BLOTTED OUT

Trinidad, Col., Oct. 29.—Probably 60 men lost their lives in a terrific explosion which occurred at mine No. 2 of the Rocky Mountain Fuel & Iron Company, at Tercio, forty miles west of Trinidad, yesterday afternoon. The exact number of dead may never be known, as the mine is burning, and in all likelihood the bodies will be consumed. A large number of mine officials left here as soon as word of the accident was received. Company doctors and other physicians were picked up all along the line.

F. J. Forman, Government stock inspector, was at Tercio when the explosion occurred. He returned here last night and gave the following account of the affair:—

"I was standing not more than 300 yards from the mouth of the tunnel when the explosion occurred. The explosion was preceded by a low rumbling sound, resembling an earthquake, which made the earth tremble and startled the whole camp. I looked toward the mine and out of the mouth of the tunnel two air shafts came a great volume of smoke and dust, which continued for nearly a minute. Out of the two air shafts, each of which are 7 feet in diameter, timbers that were fully 3 feet in diameter were shot in the air and broke into splinters. Rocks were thrown over the camp for a distance of a quarter of a mile; in fact, it rained rocks, broken timbers and all kinds of debris for fully a minute and many persons were injured by being struck with these missiles.

"The explosion, which resembled a volcanic eruption, caused the wildest excitement. Men, women and children rushed to the mouth of the tunnel, and women, whose husbands were in the mine, had to be brought away by miners to prevent their being killed by deadly fumes coming from the mouth of the tunnel.

"The mine employs eighty men, and it is believed that at least sixty were in it at the time. It was not possible that any in the mine could escape. It was impossible to secure names of the dead and injured last night.

The latest arrivals at "The Ark" is fancy Japanese Jardinieres. The price is surprisingly low.

SIZED UP

J. J. Bradley, of Prairie Siding, Tells a Little Story to Geo. Stephens

A good story comes from near Prairie Siding. It seems George Stephens, in his canvass, called upon J. J. Bradley, stating that he heard he had turned his coat and was supporting Herbert S. Clements.

Mr. Bradley assured him that he had been correctly informed, and severely criticised Mr. Stephens for his failure to act in the interests of his constituents while at Ottawa.

Mr. Stephens replied by saying it would be of great benefit to have the river dredged.

Let me tell you the story of the two Irishmen, George, replied Mr. Bradley. They were out in the ocean during a wild storm and had lost all hope of reaching land. One was on his knees promising many reformations and virtues if Providence would only deliver him. 'But Pat,' said his companion, 'you will never carry it out.' Pat turned indignant. 'What, ye blockhead,' he said, 'if I only get there, devil a bit I'll care what I've promised.' That's you, George. If you only get elected the rector, and the Thames will be forgotten again, just as it was when you were in before."

CAPTURED A DEER

James E. Oldershaw and J. W. Webb have returned from a duck shooting at Briant. The weather was a little too fine for good sport. An interesting little episode happened yesterday. They were shooting on Bissett's Creek and were in a hide on this side of that waterway. Suddenly a deer sprang out of the rushes into the water. After going a short distance, it turned and went back into the rushes. Later, the two heard a noise and on going over to the other side of the point, they found three men in a boat being towed ashore by the deer. The deer had taken to the water, and being pursued by the men, had been captured. They used the deer to tow them ashore where its legs were bound and was taken to Capt. Fellows' at the Light house where it is now domiciled. The deer is believed to have escaped from the Park.

MISS WAINWRIGHT

At the Grand in "Twelfth Night," on Wednesday, Nov. 2nd.

The phenomenal success this season of Miss Wainwright in the Shakespearean comedy "Twelfth Night," demonstrates that it is the highest order of drama and not tawdry sensationalism, pure wit and not cheap topical jokes, sweet morale, and not bothersome debauchery, the public wants. No play or star has been accorded a more generous reception by the theatre-going public than

Miss Wainwright.

A supernatural stillness suddenly prevailed the multitude. All was quiet. All at once there was a deafening noise like the crash of a falling mountain, and the heavens opened up and the rain rained and the thunder roared. Mingled with the crash of falling glass came cries of terror from the vast assemblage, but J. G. Kerr, not the least astounded, stood at his post and continued wiping the world from under the feet of the Conservative party.

This is a pretty good sample of the nickel novel organette's method of reporting a political meeting. No, Nick Carter didn't write it. At least, he didn't get credit.

"Twelfth Night," and Marie Wainwright. Of course, the beauty of the production from a scenic standpoint, of "Twelfth Night" is indeed staged lavishly, has been a material adjunct, and the splendor of the costumes has added its quota, but it is without question that the beauty of the play, the excellence of the cast, and the delightful charm of Miss Wainwright's acting are the chief factors in the great popularity of this attraction. No Shakespearean play is so replete with star parts as "Twelfth Night," and in none is such wide range of character to be found. Orsino, Malvolio, Sir Toby Belch, Sir Andrew Ague-cheek, Sebastian, Olivia, Viola, Cesario, and Maria—what an array. It indeed required the genius of a Shakespeare to link together the fortunes of this diverse host.

Regular Meals on short order. Orders in any style. Night Lunches.

Chief Clipper—All right, run and get five of Nick Carter's nickel novels, read them through, get some ideas and then write up the meeting.

District Dashes

Miss Bernice Connell left Thursday for an extended visit with her friends at Chatham and Blenheim. Somers Cor. to Wallaceburg Herald.

Death claimed another resident of Chatham township on Tuesday, when Mr. James Dunlop passed away at the age of 84 years and ten months. —Dresden Standard.

Mrs. S. C. Walker, of Chatham, has been secured to take charge of the Baptist choir here and will sing in the Baptist Church here next Sunday. —Blenheim News-Tribune.

N. Gordon Auslie, for many years a member of the staff of the Comber bank, and teller of the Crown bank since its opening in Comber on Aug. 1st, has been promoted to the branch of the same bank at Darford, Ont. The citizens tendered him a banquet at the Forbes' house and presented him with a gold watch and chain. —Comber Cor. to Tilbury Times.

John Gardiner arrived home from the west, after a month's visit with friends out there. Mr. Gardiner is looking well and enjoyed his trip immensely, although he always had a longing for Tilbury East while away. He is much taken up with the west, and thinks it a splendid country for young people to get a start in life. —Merlin Cor. to Tilbury Times.

The sad intelligence was received in town of the death of Walter R. Lydiatt, formerly of this town. Mr. Lydiatt, though only a young man, held a very responsible position at Winnipeg, Manitoba, as manager of The Dominion of Canada Guarantee & Accident Company. Mr. Lydiatt was out shooting and was accidentally shot. About two months ago he was the guest of his brother, of this town, Mr. Geo. Lydiatt. The funeral took place in Toronto. —Wallaceburg Herald.

Official bulletins prepared by the U. S. Interstate Commerce commission shows that in the last year 9,984 persons were killed in railroad wrecks, and 78,247 injured. An officer of the commission stated that the "increase of fatalities annually is regular, growing with the extension of the railroads and population. We have received reports from England which are as remarkable as the killings here. Approximately the English average last was 50,000 miles of track to our 200,000, yet they do a greater per mile business than we do, yet there was not one passenger killed last year."

Mr. C. K. Woods paid his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Woods, a flying visit one day last week. Mr. Woods, who has been general foreman of the railway machine shops at Muskegon, Mich., for some time, has been appointed for a similar position in the Pere Marquette shops at Grand Rapids, Mich., and has moved to that city. Mr. Woods began his railroad career as a water boy on the old Erie & Huron, when that road was built at Blenheim. He later entered the Erie & Huron shops at Chatham, where he learned his trade. After leaving Chatham he went to the United States, where, by strict attention to his duties, he has steadily worked ahead, until attaining the responsible position he now holds. —Blenheim News-Tribune.

HOUSTON—BLACKBURN.

The marriage took place at 11 o'clock last Wednesday morning, of Frederick Houston, of Chatham, to Miss Rachel Blackburn, eldest daughter of R. J. Blackburn, Chatham Tp., at the manse, by Rev. Mr. Buck.

Mr. McKeen, of Rutherford. —Dresden Standard.

DOCTOR EUDON WAS A LIFE SAVER.

Chinese school children do not strengthen the muscles of children with algebra and calculus, but stuff them with Confucius morals, says a writer in the Chicago Record-Herald. He further declares that in China he found no wit or imagination, but tells the following incidents, which prove that the Chinaman has good unconscious substitutes for one or the other:

One day in Shanghai, when I was feeling sick, I called a Chinaman to me and said, "John, do you have good doctors in China?" "Good doctors!" he exclaimed. "China have best doctors in world." "Eudon, over there," I said, pointing to a house covered with a doctor's signs, "do you call him a good doctor?" "Eudon good doctor!" he exclaimed. "He great! He best doctor in China. He save my life once." "You don't say so!" I said. "How was it?" "Me velly sick," he said, confidentially. "Me call Doctor Han Kou. Give some medicine. Get velly, velly sick. Me call Doctor Sun Sing. Give more medicine. Me get verry verry sick. Me call Doctor Wang. Going to die! Bimeby call Doctor Eudon. He no got time, no come."

"I used to think when I first came out there were other shoe polishes equal to it but now is the only shoe polish I keep. I fill my window with it and draw a crowd. I believe if I filled my store with it I could easily sell it all. No kicks now front selling 'just as good goods.'"

2 in 1

He save my life!

In Che Foo my wife engaged a Chinese cook. When he came she asked his name. Shaking hands with himself and smiling, he said, "My name Young Hang Ho." "Oh, that's too long!" said my wife. "I can't remember all that. I call you John." "All right," he said, smiling. "What your name?" "My name," said my wife, slowly, "is Mrs. Melville D. London." "H!" cried John. "Too long name! Can't remember all lot. Callee you Charley?"

OUR DARLINGS.

Yes, this is little baby May; Her nose, you see, is rebrous; I feel so bad for Mrs. Rugg; Her baby's nose is awful pug!

When I told Willie not to toot; He said "Shut up,"—was that not cute? The precious! But I dare assert You'll never see the darling pert.

Oh, Jamie breaks them, every one. So mischievous, and full of fun, We'd rather have him that way, far, Than naughty, as some children are.

The slender girl is Isabel. We think her quite spirituelle. The other one is Susie Hatch; She's just as this as any match.

Dear Harold's such an active child; High-strung, as Doctor Knowling styled. He's never still. (Twixt you and me, It's better that than fidgity.)

With callers Lulu, little mite! Does most the talking—she's so bright. A forward child, tho', I would state, We both of us adore her.

There is no Salt for table use that can compare with WINDSOR SALT. It is absolutely pure, never cakes, and is always the same perfect quality.

MAKING FRIENDS WITH KING OF ABYSSINIA.

Consul General Skinner, who has just concluded a treaty with Menelik II. of Abyssinia, was not the first American to visit that monarch, says World's Work, and to establish friendly relations with him. William H. Ellis, a Wall street promoter, preceded Mr. Skinner, and was equally well received.

Mr. Ellis, who is a colored man, met Prince Ras Makonnen in London at the time of the coronation of Edward VII. and was urged to visit Abyssinia. He learned that the African kingdom needed a new currency and a new national bank, new bridges and many other things, so he determined to go thither. When the expedition of Mr. Skinner was decided on, Mr. Ellis hastened his preparations in order to gain prestige by being the first to arrive. He had a Mexican saddle made at a cost of $3,500, and several jeweled revolvers for King Menelik. He packed up plans for a new bank and several specimen coins, and set out on his travels. He marched inland from the sea coast with a retinue of two hundred, and travelled in great state.

Menelik was greatly pleased with the American Ethiopian who could talk big enterprises with him in an understanding way. Their appointments were made by telephone, which Mr. Ellis found much in vogue in the Abyssinian capital. He found also that there were two cities which had a large trade and which needed many American goods, and made a list of more than one hundred articles for which a market could be found. He proposes to make another trip soon in similar style to further business interests.

MATERNITY.

God gave me children, so He fed, in part,

The quenchless longings of a loving heart,

And taught me how to love, and He doth choose

My loved for me, and so I never lose;

And, for my children, O what love divine

This dear pre-natal pledge, "They shall be mine!"

Thrilling my soul with life inspiring flame:

Twined with Love, so all my children—

When near my heart their first faint pulses beat,

It seemed an angel spoke a secret sweet,

With a strange meaning other words above

To fit my girlish heart for mother love:

Trembling at thought of life's great mystery,

My timid soul its way alone would see;

In dearer tie He met my spirit there,

When first for babe unborn I breathed a prayer:

Alone, and kneeling in the twilight dim,

The asked of God, I gave again to Him.

I even dared to pray, so bold I grew,

That He would keep me to my trust as true,

As His own Virgin Mother, when she bore,

The incarnate Life beneath her bosom fair:

And often through those waiting days there came,

Dear thoughts of Him who bore the sweetest name,

Who made for us the badge of motherhood—

The deepest sorrow, and the highest good.

I leaned by day upon His promise strong,

And heard by night the angels' cradle song;

And bore each life, deep, deep my soul within,

Unswayed by one cherished thought of sin:

And looking ever in His tender face,

Could say, "Thou knowest it is all of grace!"

So, in the promise of His love I rest,

Since faith will always say, "He knoweth best."

And trust my flock shall gathered be at last,

Safe in the fold above, when life is past.

—E. Harriet Howe.

A NAIVE COMPLAINT.

A New York musician tells of a naive compliment that Reginald de Koven, the well known composer, once received.

"Mr. de Koven was touring the country with one of his operas, and a certain Sunday found him in the town of Dayton.

"They told Mr. de Koven that an Episcopal church in the neighborhood had a superb organ. Accordingly he went to that church, ascended to the organ loft, and sat beside the organist during the morning service.

"You seem to know something about music," said the organist in a condescending way. "I'll let you disarrange the congregation if you like."

"Why, yes," said Mr. de Koven, "I would like that very much."

"Accordingly, at the end of the recessional, he exchanged places with the organist, and began to play Mendelssohn's 'Spring Song.' He played beautifully. The Dayton people refused to depart. They sat in rapt enjoyment, and after the 'Spring Song' was finished, Mr. de Koven began Chopin's 'Funeral March.'

"Suddenly a heavy hand was laid on his shoulder, and he was pushed off the music stool.

"You can't dismiss a congregation," said the organist, impatiently. "Watch and see how soon I'll get them out."

"My daughter, when she was 5 years old, was troubled with a very bad cold
for over six months.

She was short of breath, and seemed to be choked up all the time.

"The doctor said it was catarrh of the head and throat, and gave her medicine for it, but it gave no relief.

Seeing Psychine advertised, I decided to try it, and before she had finished
the first bottle she was as well as ever.

The catarrh never returned, although 14 years have passed away since then,
and she is now grown to young womanhood."—Mrs. Wm. Garratt.

The first stages of catarrh are commonly called catching cold. It may begin in the head, nose, throat, lungs,
or stomach. In the majority of cases no attention is paid to a cold until serious complications set in. Neglect is a sin against yourself, your friends,
and loved ones. Symptoms of catarrh, coughs, or colds are often cured with only one bottle of Psychine. Psychine can be purchased at any drug store, at

RUBBER PAVEMENTS.

But for their expenseiveness it is probable that pavements of india-
rubber would be largely used in city streets. That, at least, is the inference to be drawn from experience
with rubber pavements in London.
In 1881 the two roads under the hotel
at Euston Station were paved with rubber two inches thick. This pavement under heavy traffic, remained in continuous use for 21 years. In 1902 it was renewed, having been worn down to about half its original thickness. Lately a rubber pavement has been laid in the court-yard of the Savoy Hotel, London. The cost for covering an area of 75 by 60
feet was nearly $3,000.

CATARRH IS CERTAINLY CURABLE.

In fact it is one of the most curable
diseases if fragrant, healing Catarrhazone is used. No matter how long you have suffered with catarrh
you can be properly cured by inhaling
the antiseptic vapor of Catarrhazone, which strikes at the foundation of the trouble and establishes such a healthy condition in the system that catarrhal germs simply can't exist.
"I suffered from catarrh of the nose and throat for years," writes S. H.
Downie, of Plattville. "My nostrils were always stuffed up and I had a most disagreeable hacking cough. Catarrhazone cured me completely." Catarrhazone never fails. Two months treatment $1.00; trial size 25c.

SEX PECULIARITIES.

A man will run as fast as he can to cross a railroad track in front of a train. Then it will wait until it is out of sight. Then he will walk leisurely away. He seems to be all right and probably is. That is a man.

A woman in a street car will open a satchel and take out a purse, take out a dime and close the purse, open
the satchel, put in the purse, close the satchel and lock both ends. Then she will give the dime to the conductor, who will give her a nickel back.
Then she will open the satchel and
take out the purse, put in the nickel,
close the purse, open the satchel and lock both ends. Then she will feel for the buckle at the back of her belt.

A REMARKABLE RECORD.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many millions of bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during this time no case
has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substances, and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult.

THERE WILL BE NO WAR

Russia and Britain Agree to International Commission.

Premier Balfour, in Speech At Southampton Breaks Silence—Erratic Fleet Stays At Vigo Until Investigation Closed—Nothing to Do With Arbitration, But Any Person Found Guilty Will Be Tried and Punished Adequately.

London, Oct. 29.—All danger of war between Russia and Great Britain has been averted, and the settlement of the only points in dispute regarding the attack by Russia's second Pacific Squadron on British trawlers, Oct. 21, has been referred to an international commission under The Hague Convention.

Premier Balfour, speaking at a meeting of the National Union of Conservative Clubs at Southampton last night, broke silence. "The Russian Ambassador," said Mr. Balfour, "has authorized a statement to the following effect:

"The Russian Government, on hearing of the North Sea incident, at once expressed its profound regret and also promised most liberal compensation. The Government has ordered the detention at Vigo, of that part of the fleet which was concerned in the incident, in order that the naval authorities might ascertain what officers were responsible for it; that those officers and any material witnesses would not be permitted to proceed to the Far East; that inquiry would be instituted into the facts by an international commission as provided by The Hague Convention."

"That," Mr. Balfour interpolated, "had nothing to do with arbitration; it was the constitution of an international commission in order to find out the facts and any person found guilty would be tried and punished adequately. The Russian Government undertook that no person would be taken to guard against recurrence of such incidents. Special instructions on this subject would be issued. Preliminary to this court," Mr. Balfour said, "there would be the coroner's inquest at Hull over the dead fishermen, a Board of Trade inquiry, and an inquiry by Russian officials at Vigo. The Board of Trade inquiry would be specially constituted by the British Government to include representative men. The Russian Embassy had been asked to send a representative and give assistance. Apology and compensation have already been offered, nothing now remains but to determine which account is correct, Holstevensky's or the trawlers'."

The immense audience received Mr. Balfour's announcement of the settlement of the affair with unbounded enthusiasm.

Premier Balfour addressed a "timid meeting in Artillery Hall last night. His appearance on the platform at 8.05 p.m. was the signal for great cheering, which was again and again renewed. The Marquis of Winchester presided.

On rising Mr. Balfour said: "By no will of mine this great assembly coincides with a moment of national difficulty. Since the assembly was arranged events have happened which have stirred to the depths every section and every class of the community, every subject of His Majesty and the conscience of the English-speaking people of the world, as well as the general sentiments of civilized Europe."

Continuing, Mr. Balfour said he believed the lamentable and deplorable tragedy of Oct. 21-22 would not end in war. The matter had been referred to an international commission, and both sides would abide by the decision of the international commission, which would consider all the questions at issue. There would be no two great nations would be avoided without dishonor. There would also be a Board of Trade inquiry with, he hoped, the assistance of representatives of the Russian Government.

War Not to Come. Consequently, so far as he was able to see into the future, the result would not be one of those great national struggles which, though they might occasionally be necessary, always left behind a deplorable mark and always retarded the progress of humanity and civilization. War between two great powers could not be raised without great danger to neutrals, but until last Monday (the day the news of the North Sea incident was made public), when the contemplated ever being fired upon and sunk during the progress of a peaceful vocation?

The report in the first instance was received with universal horror, indignation and surprise by the whole civilized world. Two stories had been put before them, as a result of which this matter was to be made the subject of impartial, international inquiry, although it was impossible to doubt which of the stories was true. As the ally of Japan, Great Britain was bound under well defined rules to assist Japan, but as they should make it a point of honor to use their whole national power in fulfilling this obligation, it was also a point of honor that their duty as a neutral should be scrupulously performed.

The Premier said it was incredible that a fishing fleet could be engaged in hostile operations, and ridiculed the idea of a torpedo boat attack. The Russian fleet was thirty miles out of its course, and it was absurd to suppose that the commander of the alleged torpedo craft would choose a position for attacking the Russian fleet in the centre of a fishing fleet.

Doesn't Believe the Story. The Premier expressed disbelief in the existence of these Japanese ships and said the nearest Japanese warship was 14,000 miles away. Such a story as that told by the Russian admiral was the purest fancy. The Premier hoped the truth would be made manifest and clear as noon day when the inquiry, which the Russian Emperor welcomed, took place. The Russian Government had not at any time underrated the gravity of the crisis or failed to do what it could to diminish it.

Mr. Balfour thought that the difficulty was surmounted. At the same time recklessness or indifference to cruelty ought to be avoided by every man who had the interests of civilization or his own conscience at heart. It should not for a moment be supposed that throughout all the channels of commerce from the English Channel and the Red Sea, an admiral of another power should be allowed to pass under such circumstances unscathed, unchallenged and unpunished after such a deed as that of the night of Oct. 21. It would be a position which it would be impossible for Great Britain as a neutral to tolerate. Hence the Russian Government had promised to make an inquiry and had ordered the detention of part of the Russian squadron at Vigo.

Attack On Russia. The Russian version of the occurrence of the night of Oct. 21 was equivalent to an attack on Great Britain's national honor. The torpedo boats spoken of by the Russian admiral were phantom ships—creatures of pure fancy—against which Mr. Balfour entered a most emphatic protest. He was glad to say that the Russian Government had agreed with Great Britain regarding the necessity for an investigation. The responsible officers would be permitted to proceed to the Far East, and the persons found guilty would be adequately punished. In agreeing to these things, Russia had taken the view which commended itself to other civilized nations. Russia had given a pledge that she would prevent a recurrence of the tragedy which filled British hearts with sorrow and the hearts of most men with indignation.

The Russian Ambassador had authorized the statement that the Russian Government, on hearing of the North Sea incident, at once expressed profound regret and the Russian Emperor telegraphed to the King in similar terms. The Russian Government had also promised the most liberal compensation. The Russian Government had shown an enlightened desire that truth and justice in this matter should prevail. The entire facts must be brought out at the investigation, which Mr. Balfour pointed out, would be made by three distinct bodies—first, by the international commission; second, by the Board of Trade inquiry, and, third, by the coroner's inquest.

Mr. Balfour said: "If this meeting had been held yesterday evening, I would not have dared preface my remarks in a hopeful tone. Everybody felt that if the trawler incident could be repeated a belligerent fleet was indeed a pest against which we had no protection would be bound to combine.

The only version we had on that day of the lamentable incidents of the previous Friday was the version supplied us by the trawlers. Thursday morning the situation changed, because for the first time we had the counter story, supplied by the Russian admiral. In the story of our fishermen there was much tragedy, but I am driven to the belief that there is much romance. It is impossible to doubt which is the correct story. I should not have approached it but for the fact that the admiral's story is really an attack upon our national honor and implies that we are not doing our duty as neutrals! In an island kingdom like Great Britain, the nationality of every craft is known. It is impossible that we could be harboring Japanese sailors and warships without Russia, and, indeed, the whole civilized world, knowing it. I enter a most emphatic protest against such an allegation. The truth will be made manifest and clear as noon-day when the enquiry is held, which, in most statesmanlike manner, has been welcomed by the Czar. But in bare justice to the Czar and the Russian Government, I will say they never at any time underestimated the gravity of the crisis or failed to do what they could to diminish it.

Punish Wrongoers. "Remember the wheels of diplomacy move slowly, and, perhaps, the wheels of Russian diplomacy especially slowly, but it should be borne in mind that the tragedy was not known until Monday, and the Government at once expressed its sorrow and promised reparation, and at the very beginning intimated that any wrongdoer ought to receive punishment. One difficulty was that the fleet which committed the outrage was on its way to the illimitable east. That difficulty has been gotten over, but there is another difficulty, namely, that the Russian admiral has a theory of the rights and the duties of a belligerent fleet as against neutrals which would really make the high seas a place of public danger. Suppose some dark night a liner or a transport fell in with the second Pacific fleet at Gibraltar, when they intended to divide, and approached within the magic distance, according to the admiral's theory, he would be justified in sinking it. The position is one impossible for neutrals to tolerate. A fleet animated by that policy would be a fleet which would have to be eliminated out of existence if civilized commerce were to pursue its way unimpeded. I am glad to think that in this view the Russian Government agrees and has given orders which will prevent a recurrence of the tragedy that filled our hearts with sorrow and the hearts of all those who had heard it abroad with something approaching indignation."

Praise For the Czar.

Mr. Balfour thought it must be admitted that the Russian Government had shown an enlightened desire that truth and justice should prevail. Only a few hours ago he should himself have taken a gloomy view of the possibility of a satisfactory and peaceful solution. He thought the Emperor had shown himself an enlightened judge of what was right in the matter as between nation and nation. The British Government did not ask of others anything it would not gladly have granted if it had been in a similar position. The Government had no desire to take advantage of Russia's difficulties to enforce its demands. It had appealed simply to justice and equity, principles which ought to govern in the good relations between nations, and it had not appealed in vain. It might have been far otherwise, and that it was not was due in great measure to the foresight and wisdom of the Emperor. The world had its eyes centred upon one great warlike tragedy in the Far East. It would have been appalling, but it was not at one moment impossible that that great world's tragedy would have been doubled.

"It would have been doubled, and we should have seen the greatest calamity that could befall mankind, namely, a struggle between two first-class powers. Speaking for the Government, Mr. Balfour declared he could say they had done all they could consistently with honor to avert the calamity."

Not Yet All Over.

"To say the incident was closed and over would be too much, but they surely would not think him over-sanguine in hoping the spirit of reason and justice which had brought Great Britain through the most difficult parts of the controversy without the calamity of war would still preside over the council of the nations, and that the greatest of all calamities, that of internecine war between two European nations would be avoided."

"If," said Mr. Balfour, "war could be avoided without dishonor the settlement would reflect nothing but credit upon the ruler of that great empire with which we have been so long coming in collision, but with whom it is my earnest hope and sincere belief our good relations will remain undisturbed. I hope I have said nothing which can in the smallest degree impair international relations, and though I have spoken once again of the sense of responsibility and under considerable difficulties, I do think the events of the last few days, though they can never wipe out the tragic occurrence of last Friday, will not bring in their train any of those widespread calamities which at one time we almost feared they would bring with them. I congratulate this country and Russia, Europe and the world on what I believe will be the result of the last few days negotiations."

St. Petersburg Relieved.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 29.—There was a feeling of profound relief here last night over the announcement that the differences between Great Britain and Russia are to be submitted to a commission. This outcome is attributed to the direct interposition of Emperor Nicholas and King Edward. The British Government, in the face of an excited public opinion, which was demanding the most extreme measures, proposed the submission of the issue to a commission under The Hague Convention, while the Russian Government was preparing a similar proposal to the neutral powers, notably France, and, it is believed, the United States, were using all their influence to avoid a world catastrophe.

There's as much difference in Shoes as there is in people.

Yet these differences in Leather, Workmanship, Wear and Fit, are so juggled in shoe manufacturing, that they disappear from sight in the made-up shoe.

That is, they disappear to the eye—but the foot finds them out.

Aye,—and the purse finds them out too, when you draw the wrong pair of shoes in the usual store lottery.

Why should you gamble on shoes when you might, at the same cost, invest in them?

Why purchase a shoe of unknown value (price-fixed by the Retailer) when you might, at the same cost, buy a sure-value, Maker-priced shoe, with a twenty year record of uniform merit behind it.

"The Slater Shoe" is the only shoe in Canada made in a factory which makes nothing else—and which has specialized on the making of that single grade, uniformly as its best and surest, for two decades.

It is the only shoe in Canada which is price-controlled by the Makers, who alone can know the hidden value in each pair without guess-work.

Nearly all other shoes are sold for what they look like, or for as much as the Retailer thinks he can get for them.

A genuine "Slater Shoe" is price-branded at the factory for exactly what it is known to be worth in wear and comfort, with no charge whatever for its extra fine appearance and its style.

When a "Slater Shoe" goes bad, if it ever does—you know where to get your money back.

The Slater Shoe Company, when they once brand their own price on a shoe, are responsible for its service up to that price—and they never shirk the responsibility.

Effective Criticism

How the Ex-Minister of Railways, Hon. Mr. Blair, Riddled Grand Trunk Pacific Project.

Hon. Andrew G. Blair, in the House of Commons, on the 12th of August, 1903, delivered a speech which was a strong arraignment of the Government's railway policy with reference to a transcontinental railway. Mr. Blair had given emphasis to his protest by resigning his position as Minister of Railways and Canals in the Laurier Administration. The address which he made on August 12 is universally considered one of the ablest philippics ever uttered by a public speaker, and no effective answer to it has ever been made. Within the past few days Mr. Blair has emphasized his views by resigning his office as chairman of the Railway Commission and by announcing his intention of reaffirming his opposition to the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme. This has created new interest in Mr. Blair's great speech, and the re-publication of parts of it may not be inopportune. The following is an epitome of Mr. Blair's remarks—

"Let me tell the House in the first place, however, what the right hon. gentleman did not say in explanation of his course. He did not say that there had been deliberation; he did not affirm that the Government of the country had availed itself of all proper sources of information, and had waited until they had exhausted all the means in their power to ascertain what the opinions were in the various parts of the country which this road was to traverse; he did not tell us what had arisen for us to headlong into a scheme of this kind; he did not tell us that he summoned to his assistance the counsels which the country afforded; he did not tell us that he sought the assistance of experts in order to know what the conditions were which would make this railway desirable; he did not even pretend to tell us that he had done these things."

—Hon. A. G. Blair

Mr. Blair, after some preliminary observations, said that he had followed the Rt. Honorable the Prime Minister in the statements which he made with the closest interest, and it was only fair to the right honorable gentleman to say that if the grace of eloquence, if the finest and choicest language, if eloquence coupled with the sincerest conviction that the measure was a proper and judicious one; if these things could have carried conviction to the minds of members of Parliament, then members of Parliament and the country generally would have been impressed by the Prime Minister's presentation of the case, speaking for himself alone, while

"Government may possibly not deliberate, but Parliament has a right to deliberate, and in my judgment, sir, before we impose a burden of such magnitude on the neck of the people of Canada, before we commit this country to a scheme of such large and extraordinary proportions, it is only just to the people of Canada that they should have a chance to talk it over and think about it, that the press should discuss it, and that everybody in the country should know what the Government are contemplating."

—Hon. A. G. Blair

he was impressed with the singular ability, of the right honorable gentleman, and while he felt that all had been said by him that could be said by anybody, and much more than could have been said by anyone else with the same effect, yet he still felt himself absolutely and entirely unconvinced, and he still felt that the objections which he existed in his mind against this measure almost in its entirety had not been removed except in a very small degree.

Turning then to the reasons which had been given by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in support of the work, Mr. Blair read them briefly and summed them up with his famous declaration that they all meant that, "We cannot wait because Senator Cox cannot wait."

"My own view, continued Mr. Blair, would be that if we wanted to pass any legislation, if we wanted to do something of advantage for the transportation of the country, if we wanted to secure to our Canadian seaports the transportation of western products, we would have extended the Intercolonial to Georgian Bay by acquiring the Canada Atlantic."

"If they wanted to do something which would give evidence of a response to the national aspirations they would have gone to Georgian Bay and they would have found the Box 2—

them in going there with the Government railway."

As to the scheme for the construction of a railway from Quebec to the West, he was not going to say that it was a project that had not very much to recommend it, and perhaps a project which he would gladly see carried out, and which he would hold up both hands to support under proper conditions and in a proper way. If we could be satisfied that the country to be traversed by that railway from Quebec to the prairies is a fertile country which will invite and support settlement, and which will support a railway from a local point of view, then he would say let us go ahead and build it as rapidly as the occasion arises, and as rapidly as the settlement of the country will call for it, and as rapidly as we can justify it under a proper administration of affairs. He would favor the construction and operation of this section by the Government provided the precautionary steps which he had mentioned had been taken, but they were not.

Mr. Blair ridiculed the idea of establishing a common highway over which other companies should have running rights. Such a suggestion showed conclusively that no advice had been taken from anybody who knew anything about railroading. In the opinion of every railroad man it was an unworkable and a senseless suggestion.

"Passing to what is called the western section," continued Mr. Blair, "I wish to make a few observations upon the question of the prairie section. A curious condition of things is developed here. The policy of even government construction and ownership is abandoned when you come to this portion of the line. Why should it be thrown aside here? I fail to understand—that is, I fail to reconcile it with any interest which Canadian people have in the matter, with anything calculated to serve the welfare of the general public. If it is simply because a railroad company desires and prefers to own the prairie section that we think it is proper

"Unless there be something behind which has not been discussed and which renders it necessary, I can see no reason now for the construction of this proposed national line. Both the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian Northern Railway are national lines in the widest acceptance of the term."

or if we think, on balancing the advantages and disadvantages it is better that the company should own and operate it, very well; I can see the force of that. But these reasons have not yet been made apparent. If it is a sound principle to own your railway from Moncton to the prairies, to the confines of that portion of the country where you hope the business will, in course of time, develop to a paying point, why should you virtually give away, and not only that but also substantially add the line through this valuable and fertile country? What are the compelling reasons? I see none, none whatever."

With reference to the extension from Quebec to Moncton, Mr. Blair was especially severe. He condemned it in the most unqualified terms as a project that would do wanton injury to the Intercolonial, the Government road. It would injure every man along that part of the Intercolonial, and would give no compensating advantages. "Both these lines," said he, "will have to be maintained, both of these lines will undoubtedly continue to be a very heavy charge upon the exchequer of the country, because the revenues of the Intercolonial Railway are not sufficient to pay the cost of operation, and the balance falls upon the exchequer. So in the case of this new railway, the maintenance of that road must necessarily be expensive; there will be a loss, and whatever the loss is it will fall directly upon the exchequer of the country. The interest upon the money which is expended upon it by the government will not, in all probability be paid."

"In so far as the Intercolonial Railway itself is concerned, farther there is no earthly necessity for having an

"We need not pass over American territory, even though the restriction were sought to be placed upon us by the American Government. We could avail ourselves of those railroads, and they are just as transcontinental, just as Canadian, just as national, as any railroads we could construct in Canada. They are railroads on Canadian soil, and one of them at least is owned by the government of the country itself."

—Hon. A. G. Blair

other railway through that country. The Intercolonial Railway has been fully competent to take all the traffic that has been offered up to this date. The officials who are in charge of the Intercolonial Railway, and whom I have consulted upon the subject, while the improvements and extensions have been going on, have advised me that without having a double track, except at one or two minor points, the Intercolonial Railway can carry four times the amount of traffic that it is carrying to-day. Therefore, from the standpoint of the capacity to handle the traffic, that question is absolutely settled, and settled according to the judgment of men who are most competent to form an opinion upon it. You will have both of these lines operating and struggling one against another. Whatever business one may take it will take it away from the other. You will have the government in the anomalous position of owning both roads, of operating one and of being practically interested in the successful operation of the other; going in and destroying its own property, impairing the value of its own property whether it be one or the other. Such a spectacle I do not think has ever been presented to the knowledge or observation of any human being since the world began."

As to the financial aspects of the proposition, it will be best to give Mr. Blair's views in his own words. He said:

I come now to the financial aspects of this scheme. On these I will not dwell at great length; but I would like to present to the House what my view of that branch of the question is. First, I take the question of the cost of the line from Lewis to Moncton. I make that mileage 425 miles. If the road is ever built, while I have very much doubt, that mile-exception, perhaps, of rails, are more costly than they were then? What is going to be the cost of getting in to that country and building this railway under these conditions? It may possibly fall short of $50,000. No man knows. We have not the information. It is not laid before us, and we must take this leap in the dark. We will call it, if you will, $35,000 per mile. You see I am only adding $5,000 to the present estimate, a very moderate computation, which makes the cost of those 1,400 miles $40,000,000.

Now, 1,825 miles from Moncton to Winnipeg, or to some point north of

What does the right hon. gentleman mean when he says—
If we let it pass the voyage of our national life, bright as it is to-day, will be bound in shallows?

I think, Mr. Speaker, and I say it with all respect to my right hon. friend, that it would have been as correct if not so poetic for him to have said—

—Hon. A. G. Blair

Winnipeg, wherever the line may be supposed to run to, will cost this country $65,000,000 upon the calculations which I have made. That may be somewhat in excess of the actual result; but no man can say that the cost may not exceed the figures I

A Vote For George Stephens Means a Vote for a Bonus of $796,650 from Kent County.

The Hon. Mr. Blair, the only practical Railway man in the Laurier Cabinet, put the total cost to Canada of the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway at $139,000,000. This was before further concessions to the big corporation were made by the Laurier Government in 1904. The population of the Dominion at the last census was 5,371,315 and dividing this into $139,000,000 the cost per head of population is $25.87. That is, every man, woman and child in Canada will contribute this amount directly or indirectly to the big railroad corporation for the carrying out of this mad scheme. On this basis Electors of the County of Kent are asked to vote this bonus of $25.87 per head, or according to population in the County of Kent, $796,650.00 for the county. A vote for George Stephens is a vote for this great corporation bonus for a railway 600 miles to the north of us. ARE YOU VOTING FOR THIS BIG BONUS?

"My quarrel with the Government so far as this portion of the undertaking is concerned, rests almost entirely upon the consideration that they are plunging headlong into this thing, in a most unwise, unjudicious and unbusinesslike way, when by a little pause, by a year or two of delay to get information, we might be put in possession of facts which would justify us in proceeding."

age will not be found to be excessive, but a reasonable estimate. The Government estimate is made that it will cost $30,000 per mile. From what I can learn, the cost of building the line through a considerable section of the Province of Quebec, before it reaches Edmonton, will be very great for a portion of the distance it will have to cross mountains, gullies and rivers, and I believe it will cost more than $50,000 per mile; I would not be surprised if it cost $40,000 to construct that portion of the railway. But I am going to take an average between the two, and I think I am on safe ground when I calculate on $35,000 per mile. That will represent an expenditure of $15,000,000.

I next take the section between Quebec and Winnipeg. We are told that it is 1,400 miles, some say 1,500 miles. I will take the lesser mileage. The estimate is that that will cost $30,000 per mile. I have made some inquiry as to what the cost of that portion of the Canadian Pacific Railway north of Lake Superior was. That portion of the railway, as everybody knows, is quite accessible from the lake; and yet its cost, apart from terminal rolling stock and equipment, was $50,000 per mile. How can anybody say what this railway is going to cost, 150 or 200 miles north of Lake Superior, while it is very much more inaccessible and probably, therefore, very much more difficult of construction than the Canadian Pacific Railway, and built at a time when wages are high and when materials generally, with the have given, and it is a question which this house and this country may well pause and consider, whether such an obligation, incurred in the absence of information which I have tried to point out is so essential in arriving at a wise judgment on a question of this character, should be undertaken, and whether we can take the hazard of impairing the financial strength of Canada, to some extent at any rate, by undertaking an enterprise which may saddle us with an addition to our debt of $65,000,000.

Returning to the question of the liabilities which the Government assumes, on the eastern section it will assume $65,000,000. On the prairie section it guarantees $9,750,000, and on the mountain section $13,500,000. This will make a total on the three sections of $88,250,000. To this I add the three per cent. interest on the cost, which for ten years on the eastern section would be $1,950,000 a year. I have taken this at ten years because that is the expectation of the contracting parties themselves. This

"The line, my right hon. friend claims, is both a national and a commercial line, but yet he says it is not a commercial line in the sense that you are to count on a profit or loss. Well, sir, what is a commercial line if it is not a line constructed according to the dictates of commercial needs and which involves, necessarily and inevitably, the idea of profit or loss? You may build a sentimental line, but if so, tell the people that it is a line which you are building for sentimental purposes. Or, if you are building it for commercial purposes, say so. But my right hon. friend does not seem to be willing to consider entirely the one or the other. It is a compound of both."

On Friday last a spirited match at cricket was played in this town between eleven members of the Morpeth club and eleven members of the Thames club, Chatham. The Morpeth club showed some very good playing. The bowling was very fine, also the fielding. Indeed in these respects they exhibited good playing. As will be seen by the score more was made by them off the field than off the bat.

Practice will remedy this and we doubt not that in a short time when their batting is brought up to the same degree of excellence with their fielding, they will be able to take high rank as cricketers. The refreshments were of the best description, abundant and liberally donated by Sheriff Mercer who, with John Duck, Esq., of Morpeth, were the getters-up of the match, so we are informed. ## LAPRESSE ON THE SITUATION

Montreal, Oct. 28th, 1904. — La Presse which has been Laurier's backbone, says Quebec will be more evenly divided than at any time in fifteen years. La Presse says the Conservative Party has put excellent candidates in Quebec constituencies, and that Borden will gain in Quebec more than in any Province. La Presse says if the Liberals are beaten they can blame the Sifton-Fisher-Mulock combination and not Laurier. Evidently the Liberals are preparing for a fall.

COME FROM SUPPORTERS ONLY

Montreal, Oct. 25.—There has grown up in the public mind, and not without reason, the impression that campaign subscriptions mean something sinister, and, indeed, according to present usage, there is much to justify this feeling. At the same time the legitimate expenses of an election campaign are heavy and justifiable, and it is for defraying these outlays that subscriptions are received by both parties. The habit of taking campaign funds from almost every source has become a matter of some notoriety and having this in mind, Mr. Borden has decided not to accept any contribution from any one who would afterwards claim any special consideration on account of assistance granted at election time.

The leader of the Conservative party has, therefore, issued the following TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

To avoid misunderstanding it has been thought best to distinctly state that the Conservative party will receive subscriptions only from those who favor its general policy, that such subscriptions are not to be understood as creating claims to consideration for any interest likely to be affected by any special feature of that policy, and that no subscriptions are solicited from any such interest. Such a declaration is deemed desirable in order that the leader may have an absolutely free hand in framing his policy in the interest of the whole country upon the return of the party to power. If any subscriptions have been given in other spirit they will be returned on application to

BLAIR'S VERDICT

When speaking on the Railway (Commission, Sir Wilfrid declared Hon. Mr. Blair—"The highest railway authority in Canada." This being the case, it is interesting to know what Mr. Blair thinks of the Government's G. T. P. railway scheme. Here it is, in the form of three extracts from his (Hon. Mr. Blair's) speech in the House—

"An utterly insane and indefensible thing."

"Turn it over, turn it back, examine it right and left, inside and outside, and it fails to present to me a single redeeming feature in any phase of it from beginning to end."

"A grave and egregious blunder, which will deal disaster to the future of this country."

PRaise FROM THE ENEMY

So manly and right is Mr. Borden's declaration regarding the collection of campaign funds, which we publish elsewhere, that even the Globe is compelled to speak editorially in praise as follows in its edition of Oct. 26th:—

"Campaign Fund Contributions."

"The attitude taken by Mr. Borden in the matter of contributions to the necessary funds for conducting a campaign is the only true and defensible attitude for a leader to assume. Funds are needed for meeting the necessary and legitimate expenses of an election campaign. A great deal of money is needed for registration work, campaign literature, hall rents, advertising, platform expenses, and other legitimate purposes. The constant danger is that contributions may be given on the understanding of the assumption that valuable favors, franchises, subsidies, offices, appointments, graft of some kind, will be received in return. This is the charge made against the campaign management on both sides, and with corporations and promoters and office-seekers forever greedy and urgent, the danger is neither imaginary nor insignificant. And the methods of the modern lobbyist and grafter make the danger a menace to Opposition and Government alike."

Whatever the effect, the proper attitude for a leader who values his own self-respect and party mastery, to say nothing of the higher ethical claims of public life, is to have the understanding definite and unmistakable with all contributors, that campaign contributions and services are accepted solely for the purpose of promoting the opinions and policies for which the party stands, and not a toll on past favors or a pledge for future claims."

REACHING THE LIMIT

Are the Canadians dead to the instinct of the decent conduct of public affairs? Is ordinary business morality dead in Canadian politics? Is the record of what Sir Wilfrid Laurier calls "eight years of clean Government" such as makes us proud of our rulers and of our country? Or does it make us blush?

What deductions does the impartial observer draw from some of the events of that period of Liberal administration? Let us run over them. They are uncontradicted and were they merely straws which show how the wind blows they would be appalling enough.

1. Mr. Fitzpatrick liberates from goal Hetu and Brunet, two men convicted of manipulating ballots in the St. James Division in Montreal.

2. Sir Richard Cartwright appoints J. B. Jackson, K. C., to represent Canada in Leeds, England, after his methods had been characterized by Mr. Justice Street as the use of "improper and reprehensible means which have been proven here to have been devoted to an absolutely improper purpose."

3. Sir Richard Cartwright defends Mr. J. B. Jackson and describes his conduct as "zeal" and "indiscreet" when that conduct consisted in paying $750.00 to Mr. Chambers for evidence which, he said, mattered not to him whether it was false or true so long as he could unseat Sutherland.

4. Sir Frederick Borden describes part of Lord Dundonald's report as "private, secret, and confidential," when it was neither so marked and (says Lord Dundonald) "when the Minister made these statements he had been explicitly informed by me that I desired their publication."

5. The Auditor General, appointed by Parliament itself, is treated by the Government as its employee and told to mind his own business when money is being illegally spent.

6. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking this month in Toronto of his efforts to bind Canada to the Mother Country, deliberately omits mention of sending troops to South Africa, so that the reports of his speech, when reproduced in Quebec, will not cause comment there, yet allows Mr. Aylesworth to gratify the audience by expatiating upon it in his presence.

7. The Government appoints 58 members of Parliament to paid offices, after an explicit statement by Sir William Mulock describing such appointments making members "mere parasites upon the administration" and as "corrupting agencies within their ranks."

Kent wants to be represented in Parliament by men who have her interests at heart—not corporation directors and bonus-seeking promoters.

Admiral Togo must smile grimly as he reads how imagination set Admiral Rottenfoolsky's nerves on edge before he got out of sight of Denmark.

Kuropatkin is now commander-in-chief of the Russian forces. Unlike our own Sydney Fisher, Gen. Kuropatkin probably got his position by acclamation.

George Stephens stands for the corporation bonus-seekers and promoters. Herbert S. Clements stands for the people of Kent County. Which are you supporting?

The Planet publishes as a supplement to-day a map showing the proposed route of the Grand Trunk Pacific and giving some interesting facts in connection therewith. It's worth studying.

Mr. Borden has issued a circular to members of the Liberal-Conservative party, forbidding the taking of money from all persons who have axes to grind, and directing that money shall be taken only from those who support the general policy of the Conservative party, and that it must be understood that the giver has no claim whatever on the Government. Mr. Borden is a clean man.

ing the winter. So I think we make no extravagant estimate when we say it would not be likely to pay sufficiently to enable it to pay interest until after the expiry not of seven, but of ten years. So we may assume that this interest will run for ten years. This will make a total of $19,500,000 to be added to the previous sum. Upon the mountain section interest will be borne for seven years, making $4,050,000 more.

The interest on the prairie section for two and one-half years, which would be half the time of construction, would be $750,000. The interest on the eastern section for half of eight years, or four years, would be $7,800,000 more. If, as is apparently the expectation of the Government, the bonds or obligations to enable the Government to carry this large sum, may have to issue at a higher rate than three per cent., at, say, three and one-half per cent., this would add a very large sum to what I have already given as the gross cost of this enterprise to the country. I only infer that it is regarded as possible by my honorable friend, the Finance Minister, that he may have to go into the market with bonds bearing interest at three and a half per cent. in order to raise moneys he will require. If he has to borrow at that rate and get back three per cent. only, he will have to count on one-half per cent. of a deficit during the life of this bargain, which is fifty years, to be added to this accumulated burden. If you add $18,850,000 on this account, you have a total of $139,000,000 representing the direct and indirect liabilities which the Government assumed in connection with the enterprise. But, even if you strike out this $18,850,000, I say you have a direct liability of $121,000,000, which this project represents to the country. That is a large proposition. I think a proposition of such magnitude that we may well think that some have been visions and others have been dreaming dreams.

Mr. Blair then criticized the clause requiring that freight for export or for points in Canada would be car-

Now, sir, when we consider all these facts (the absence of any Dominion demand for the road, and other facts, it would seem to be almost incredible that under such circumstances, no heed should be paid to an appeal that we should go slow, that we should see what we are doing, that we should carefully study the bearings of the question in all its aspects. I would have thought there is scarcely one minister in the Government, burdened with all the duties which during a parliamentary session are cast upon members of the Government, but would have hesitated to take a step of this magnitude during the present session."

—Hon. A. G. Blair.

ried over this all-Canadian line when not otherwise routed. He pointed out that if the company failed to live up to this clause no penalty was provided by which they could be made to suffer. The Government was simply trusting to the Grand Trunk Pacific to do what they say they will do. If the agreement in this respect was broken, it could not be enforced and the Grand Trunk would be under very strong temptation to break it. This showed that, if it were so important that we should spend $120,000,000 to try and get the western traffic to find its outlet through Canadian ports, then, it is vital that the Government should not only own but operate the railway, because in no other way can you guarantee that the traffic will go through a Canadian outlet. We are spending the money and we are getting nothing for it.

"Contracts," continued Mr. Blair, "may be evaded, ingenuity can be set at work, influences can be brought to bear, but with a Government road you are safe and sure. The interest of the Government is paramount, the interest of the Government will carry out and be sure that the arrangement is carried out according to the wishes of the people whom they govern. I think that if we had all this money to spend there is another way in which we could spend it. If we want to spend it at once we could not spend it more usefully than to have it ensure that the inland ports on our great lakes should be so improved, so equipped, and so provided with all the necessary facilities as to enable us to take the very best advantage of our canals."

"Now, I want to know also, in all calmness, and all frankness, from the members of this Parliament, from whence comes this irresistible and compulsive pressure under which we must drive this thing through now? The thing was never mooted before, and the Government took no action until the Grand Trunk Railway Company conceived that it would be in their own interest to have the railway project liberally aided by the Parliament of Canada, which they desired to promote. That is the secret of the whole business; that is where it originated."

Hon. A. G. Blair.

If you do spend millions, as I dare say it is the intention to spend millions, you should make this expenditure for the purpose of equipping and improving the canals and the different harbors and points where grain and the other products of the west are received and handled and you should continue this work of improvement until you can present a route possessing advantages surpassing those of any route in the United States, so as to secure the traffic which you can secure by expending money for that purpose. You might go still further and improve the navigation of the St. Lawrence, and the aids to navigation in the way of lighting which some people say are not entirely complete as yet. I know that there is quite a little opinion in the country which would favor your making free the two great ports of the St. Lawrence and the two great ports of the Atlantic seaboard. That may be a proposition in regard to which there are different opinions, but if the object which is professed to be sought after in this resolution is worthy of this effort, that object can be more largely attained now by making an expenditure for the purpose and in the direction which I suggest.

(Mr. Blair closed with a strong personal appeal to the Ministers to change their course before it was too late to conserve the public interests.)

Dont's for Young Mothers

Don't give baby a sleeping draught, soothing mixture or opiate of any kind except by the order of a competent doctor who has seen the child. Remember that all so-called soothing mixtures contain dangerous opiates. If your child is restless give it Baby's Own Tablets, as they are absolutely harmless and in a natural way promote health-giving sleep.

Don't give medicine to check the movement of baby's bowels in diarrhoea except on the advice of a doctor. Feed the child sparingly and give Baby's Own Tablets to cleanse the bowels of irritating secretions. Keep the abdomen warm. This treatment will cure diarrhoea.

Don't give a young child harsh cathartics, such as castor oil, which gripe and torture. Baby's Own Tablets have a gentle laxative action and never fail to cure constipation.

Mrs. J. D. Cilly, Heatherton, Que., says, "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach and bowel troubles and have always found them a most satisfactory medicine."

Don't fail to keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box by writing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FIGHT HORSEBACK IN A RACE.

The sight of the jockeys riding the two leading horses slashing each other with their whips as they came in on the home stretch and one of them bleeding from a long gash across the face from the other's whip created a sensation at the race track at the Livingston county fair in Chillicothe. It was a half mile and repeat. Tibouran, ridden by Bobby Ralph, was the leader, and Albert Boone, with Pat Berry astride, was second.—Kansas City Journal.

MAN'S MOST CRITICAL AGE.

Very often the vital resources are small at 42, but if not then, between 57 and 62 years of age there is a strange slowing down and loss of vitality. It is important that this transient period of decay should be checked; strength must be imparted to the tired brain, the weakened nerves must be fortified. The wise man will use Ferrozone, whose potency is particularly applicable to these critical periods. Ferrozone quickens the whole being, imparts vigor and power, pushes back the onset of senility in a very manifest way. It's because Ferrozone gives strength, vitality and vigor that it is useful to old men. Try it. Price 50c.

HOW TO CATCH FISH BY TELEPHONE.

A Norwegian has invented a queer way of finding out where the fish are. A microphone, which is an instrument that will catch and transmit the least little bit of sound, lowered into the water from a fishing smack, and a wire from it leads to a telephone aboard the boat. Now, as the herling, scodfish and mackerel schools number thousands and tens of thousands of fish, their passage through the water naturally causes a rushing sound, which can be heard by the fishermen at the telephone, and thus they are enabled to lower their nets at the right time and in the right place.

OWNS HIS LIFE TO A NEIGHBOR'S KINDNESS.

Mr. D. P. Daugherty, well known throughout Mercer and Sumner counties, W. Va., most likely owes his life to the kindness of a neighbor. He was almost hopelessly afflicted with diarrhoea; was attended by two physicians who gave him little, if any, relief, when a neighbor, learning of his serious condition, brought him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which cured him in less than twenty-four hours. ### COREAN HEAD GEAR.

A Korean youth must go bare-headed and must wear his hair hanging down his back in a single braid or pigtail, to the date of his wedding, even though the happy day should be deferred indefinitely. Until then he is treated as a boy, is excluded from the councils of men, and is a person of no consequence. But the moment he becomes a man of family he may do his hair up in a little knot on the top of his head, where it resembles the stem of a pumpkin, and may don the national hat, black stiff, broad-brimmed, high-crowned and ungainly, but prized above all other articles of dress, and never removed from the head except at night, when it is replaced by a brimless cap of similar material. Korean women, plain of feature, and concealing whatever shapeliness of figure they may possess beneath multitudinous skirts, draw over their heads, when appearing in public, a long-sleeved masculine coat, with which they partially conceal the face.

THE GIFT OF SYMPATHY

IT IS NOT GOOD TO BE ALONE

Christian Sympathy a Necessary Gospel Attribute—Influence For Good Is to Know That Your Fellow Men Are Wrung Up in Your Life—We Are Not Independent Entities, But Joined in Bond of Brotherhood.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1904, by William Bally, of Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 23.—To give congratulation to the successful and sympathy with the sorrowing and the distressed is urged by the preacher in this sermon. The text is Romans xii., 15, "Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep."

Perpetual segregation, isolation, separation, seclusion, voluntary exile, were considered by many of the ancients as necessary adjuncts to the attainment of the highest earthly development of Christian perfection. Because Christ fasted and prayed in the wilderness for forty long days many disciples of old believed that to be like Christ they must continually live in a wilderness, wear sackcloth and ashes and do nothing but pray and starve and starve and pray. They tried to walk with God, to be like Enoch, by refusing to walk with their fellow men. They tried to live with Christ by sleeping on stone couches and shivering in damp cells and clothing themselves in coarse woollens, by tramping through snows with naked feet and by mumbling daily prayers with sepulchral countenances. While they refused to smile an encouragement to the little children playing in the street or to help carry a heavy pack under which a poor, tired peasant was staggering on his way to town. Hence the monasteries and the nunneries and the cloisters and the abbeys and the priories, which are only a few of the many names given to the ancient buildings within which the monks and nuns immured themselves for separation from sinful men, of whom they did not wish to be a part. But away back in the time of creation God said, "It is not good for man to be alone." And what God spake to Adam, our first ancestor, God is speaking to us now.

"Not good for man to be alone." Yes, we know it. We know it in spite of the fact that the cloister has segregated some good men from contact with the busy, anxious, sinful world. Thomas a Kempis was a hermit, a recluse. Thomas a Kempis was a good man. Within the gloomy walls of the Augustinian convent of Zwolle, in the dark recesses of an ascetic's cell, he wrote the wonderful pages of "De Imitatione Christi." But, though his book is a wonderful guide to Christly life, Thomas a Kempis' cell is a poor place in which a modern Christian could practice the gospel truth. By all odds the best place to translate the teachings of Thomas a Kempis is not in an ascetic's cell, but in God's sweet, pure, golden sunlight, among just such rough, horny-handed men as the fishermen with whom Jesus Christ associated. Human perfection is never best developed in the happy valley, where the young Prince of Abyssinia was secluded with his brothers and sisters and there separated from all the gruesome and repulsive sights which make life sad to those of tender heart, but it is best developed in a great, busy, smoky, rushing, crushing and forgetful metropolis like London, in which Samuel Johnson starved and growled and wrote his philosophical romance of "Rasselas," as James Boswell recorded, "that with the profits of it he might defray the expense of his mother's funeral and pay some little debts which she had left."

San Marco Convent of France is a poor nursery for spiritual life. There Fra Angelico has drawn the students of art to come and study his figures of Christ, which he painted upon the cold walls nearly 600 years ago. But the best place to be a modern Fra Angelico and to paint Christ in the hearts of living men is to do as Paul did on his missionary tours. It is to do as Christ did when talking to men.

Christian sympathy is a necessary gospel attribute, in the first place because no human power on earth does so much to make a good man or even a bad man try to live better as to know that other lives are wrapped up in his life. "Sympathy," wrote the lexicographer, "is literally a fellowship with others in their various conditions of joy or grief." It is the power which a Christian man has of putting his hand through another's arm and saying: "Old fellow, you are not alone in this world. My interests are combined in your interests. When you are happy I am happy. When you are sad I am sad. When you live right I rejoice. When you sin I sorrow as much as if I had committed the sin. Therefore, O friend, you must be very careful how you live. In one sense you are exactly in the place of a locomotive engineer who has a long train of coaches attached to his engine's tender. If your true aim fails, then other lives besides your own must suffer on account of your weakness." When Christian sympathy speaks thus an average man will suddenly stop and say to himself: "What! Does any one care for me? Is my life an important factor in other lives? If this be true, I must be careful where my feet go, how I laugh, how I cry and what I do. My life is not an independent entity. My spilled blood will stain other garments besides my own. My heart beats must find their pulsations in many breasts instead of in only one breast. Therefore I shall beware how I ruin other lives as well as my own."

"What kind of soldiers are the most reckless?" was one day asked Lord Kitchener, the British general of the Boer war. Without any hesitation he answered: "Bachelor soldiers. Not that they are at heart braver, but when a man has a wife and children dependent upon him for daily bread he guards his life more carefully on their account and does not run into any useless dangers." Now, my friends, when a true father is careful not to run into physical dangers, fearing he may deprive his wife and children of their daily bread, is not a man by the same law of reasoning the more unwilling to run into spiritual dangers and temptations if he realizes that the joys of others, in a spiritual sense, are wrapped up in his own joys and that sorrows in other lives will be caused by his sins? In the crisis of life, when success is won by the man who casts everything into the scale, the married man hesitates because he is afraid to risk the future of his wife and children. But he overlooked the fact that his love for his family will keep him from running foolish risks. So when a man enlarges his circle and makes the welfare of others his concern he has an inspiration to a better, truer, nobler life. He shrinks from wrong-doing because he knows that he will injure others by his example. The ascetic has only himself to consider, but the man who has entered into other men's joys and sorrows knows that his fall or his good life may affect the lives of others.

But how is Christian sympathy to enter truly into the existence of another's life? First, my text says, "Rejoice with them that do rejoice." Do you know what that means? Why, the interpretation is simple enough to understand. It means when you see an old school friend getting ahead in life, when you see a brother succeeding in the law or in medicine or in the pulpit, or when you see a sister living in a finer house than yours or driving in a carriage while you walk, or when you know that your brother-in-law is able to take his family and children to the country to get back the flush of health to their pale cheeks, while you cannot afford to go, that you must not be jealous of their successes. If you are a minister and you hear of another church holding a great revival and gathering in new converts to the church that church go to the minister of that church with a warm, loving gospel handshake and say: "Brother, I congratulate you! We are praying for you and the great good you are doing. May God bless your new members and make them mighty agents for Christ!" It means that if you are a candidate for some office and another is elected to the presidency of that society in your stead then you are to pitch in and work just as hard for the successful outcome of your successful rival's administration as you would have worked for your own, and furthermore, not only work just as hard for the new man, but be just as happy in his successes as you would have been in your own successes.

"Oh," says some one, with a quick gasp, "I did not know this text meant as much as that. That is pretty bitter medicine for an average disciple to swallow." Yes, my friend, you are right. It is not natural for a sinful man to "rejoice with those that do rejoice." But the gospel of Jesus Christ can make what is unnatural for sinful man natural for a redeemed man. "The hardest act of life is to get any man to be willing to completely sink his individuality in a cause," once wrote General Samuel Armstrong, the founder and first principal of the Hampton Institute. "It is comparatively easy to get rich men to endow a scholarship or to erect a building or to do this or that for which their names will be known far and wide, yet it is almost impossible to get any man to give his money to help out the ordinary running expenses of a college, which have to be met and must be met right away." Difficult, is it, to rejoice with a man when he rejoices and to help on his success? Yes, but I believe the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ is even able to accomplish that wonder, and it can accomplish it, O man, in your heart, so that you can go to your successful brother and say: "Brother, give me thy hand. I rejoice with you in your success. How can I help that success to become greater?"

If a brother needs your help in time of success, does he not also need you all the more "to weep with him when he weeps"? Does he not need you to come to his sympathetic aid when all the world seems black and when it truly seems, on account of his wrongdoings, that he can never become a noble man again? Does he not need your help when, floundering in the quicksands of sin, he seems to be deserted by God and man alike and to be only the sport and plaything of devils? And does he not also need your help when, in the awful hours of black temptation, he is about to yield as well as in the black hours of remorse after he has done wrong?

If a man who has done wrong or is about to do wrong needs your help, how much more does a woman in her hours of trial? I always had a great deal of sympathy for the prayer of that woman who said, "O God, keep me from going over the precipice of sin, for if my feet ever leave the path of virtue even though I cannot bring me back to the straight path again." And yet how many women there are to-day being torn and lacerated by the thickets of sin who could be brought back to live honest, pure, true, respectable lives if only the Christian men and the women in the name of Christ would go forth to bring them back! The beginning of my text opens amid the shouts and gay laughter of the merry-makers. It closes with the sobs and moans and the groans of breaking hearts. Brother, sister, will you to-day in the name of Christ "weep with those that weep"? Will you stretch forth the broad, strong, loving hand of rescue and say, "Brother, sister, in the name of Jesus Christ, give me thy hand, and I will help thee up to God, up to a heavenly and an earthly rescue?" Will you do this for Christ? Will you "weep with those that weep" and help others, no matter how far astray their sinful feet may go or are about to go?

"Yes," answers some one, "from this day I promise to help all those in distress that I can." You do? Well, then, let me put that resolve to a practical test. At a large religious gathering in the east where a collection was about to be taken up for famine stricken Ireland that big hearted philanthropist William E. Dodge arose and said: "Gentlemen, we have been hearing some wonderful speeches about this famine. Some of us have been crying, some praying. Now I want to put your gospel sympathy to a practical test. What Ireland needs is bread, bread, bread, bread! In order to buy that bread my sympathy is worth just $500. What is your sympathy worth?" As William E. Dodge put his sympathy to a practical test I want to put your sympathy to the same kind of a test. You say as a Christian man, "By the grace of God I will always help those who need help." Well, here is a convict just liberated from jail. Work! He will do any honest work that he can get, but the trouble is he cannot get any work to do. All earth and hell seem to be arrayed against him living an honest life. Every door of business is shut against him. Too few places for honest men. For him no room, no room. The other day he applied for work as a coal heaver. When about to be employed a rough workman stepped forward and said to the owner of the yard: "Mister, I would not hire that man if I were you. He has just finished a sentence in the penitentiary." With that the employer turned and said: "Out of this yard, you scoundrel! My office is no reformatory!" Trying to be honest, who will give him a chance? Pray God he may not give up. Tomorrow you may see him. What, then, will your sympathy be worth? Here is a poor, weak sewing girl struggling on to make an honest living and to live right. But, try as hard as she will, in her weakened physical condition she can make but $3 a week, and that is just 50 cents less than she can live upon. Oh, what an awful life! No sounds are heard in that room save the continual scratchings of her needle, the sighs of a crushed heart or the low, hectic cough of a diseased lung. Sewing for others while she herself has hardly a rag of her own. All well enough for you to talk about the holiness of virtue. You have your three good meals a day. But to-morrow when you ask her to make you a new dress or you see her going down the street in her faded shawl what will your sympathy be worth?

Here is a street urchin, just as good a boy as yours, and if he had any chance he would make just as good a man. But what chance has he? The kindest word he ever received was a curse. No mother save a drunkard, no father save a felon: no school save sin; no literature save an obscene pictorial. Where did he spend last night? In a low bowery theater, the ticket bought by pitching pennies. Oh, my friends, Christ came into the world to "weep with those that weep." He came to save the lost sheep, not those safe within the fold. Be ye like Christ. Go out into the highways and the hedges and compel them to come in. Fine churches will not do it. Missionary subscriptions will not do it. But by the help of the Holy Spirit Christian men and women can do it, who in a plain, practical way will share the joys and the sufferings of others and thereby, by the help of God, bring those sinners back with them to the Master's feet.

There is no picture on earth more beautiful than that of a Christian, by the Holy Spirit inspired love of Christian sympathy, trying to bring lost souls to Jesus Christ. There is a beautiful legend told of Zachaeus when he had become old and feeble. He still lived in the outskirts of Jericho. Every morning he would go off alone for a walk and remain away two or three hours and then would come back smiling and happy. He would never tell any one where he went. But one morning his wife followed him. Then she saw her old husband go to the old sycamore tree made memorable by his history. He kissed it. He caressed it. He watered it. He plucked up the weeds about it. When his wife asked him why he was doing this the old man answered: "Why, do you not know, my dear? This is where I first saw Him. This is where He called to me, 'Zachaeus, make haste and come down!'"

Ah, that is a beautiful legend. But it is not to me the most beautiful story I have heard about Zachaeus. The most beautiful fact I know about the publican is not that he caressed and kissed a tree, but that after his conversion he was ready to do anything and everything to serve Christ among sinful men. When Zachaeus said, "Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor," I know that Zachaeus at once went forth to "weep with those that weep." I know that at once he had an unquenchable desire burning within him to bring all classes to the feet of him whom he called Saviour.

Oh, my friends, will not you and I have this holy desire burning within us? Will we not live to bring the happy and the troubled alike to Christ?

A WEAK HEART

THE INTERESTING EXPERIENCE OF A ST. CATHARINES MAN.

Had Suffered for Twelve Years and was Ultimately Cured Through the Advice of a Friend.

"Twelve years ago," says Mr. Wm. Emery, of Welland Avenue, St. Catharines, "I was living in the town of Gananoque and the physicians there told me I had heart disease. From that time and up to four years ago I often had severe spells of the trouble. The least exertion would bring on violent palpitation and at other times I would become dizzy, nervous and frightened and my heart would almost cease to beat. I became reduced in flesh and insomnia followed. I was hopeless of finding a cure for I had been treated by an experienced doctor, and had taken many advertised remedies without getting any benefit. One day a neighbor strongly advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and acting on his advice I got a half dozen boxes. I soon found much relief through the use of the pills, and after continuing the treatment for a couple of months I was again enjoying perfect health. I have not since had any return of the trouble and I feel safe in saying the cure is a permanent one, and I can strongly advise the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all sufferers from similar trouble." The reporter can only add that Mr. Emery is well known in St. Catharines, is a prominent worker in Methodist circles, and has the highest respect of all who know him.

If you have any symptoms of heart trouble, neuralgia, indigestion, rheumatism, anaemia or any of the numerous troubles caused by poor or watery blood, you will find new health and strength in a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Do not waste money or further endanger your health by the use of substitutes—get the genuine pills with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A curious phenomenon has been noticed in the tropics that can never be seen at higher latitudes. A mining shaft at Sombrerete, Mexico, is almost exactly on the tropic of Cancer, and at noon on June 21, the sun shines to the bottom, lighting up the wall for a vertical depth of 1-100 feet or more.

EVERYONE WITH SORE THROAT

Should know how quickly Nerviline cures. "I can recommend Nerviline very highly for sore throat," writes Mr. R. McKenzie, of St. George. "I once had a very sore throat and my chest was full of cold and soreness. Every cough hurt me. I cured myself quickly by rubbing my chest and throat vigorously with Nerviline and using it also as a gargle. I believe Nerviline to be the best general remedy for emergent sickness that one can get. We have used it for twenty years in our house." Price 25c.

No wonder their position is aroused, and they beg to feel that every man's hand against them, when, after all, if they only in a quiet way were informed what was expected of them, and the mud mess appealed to, they would readily enough fall into line.”

So thought Aunt Mary, as she wrote out the following recipe for a little out-of-the-way remedy, which was called “the good foot,” and was the joint effort of her husband and the good-natured, amiable box in

Eisenbaum is a sailor who believed that if he went alone across the ocean he could make money exhibiting himself in dime museums—a belief which events have rudely shattered. One morning when he was well out to sea and was riding out a southeasterly gale in comfort, with the head of his stoop held to the wind by a heavy drag, or "sea-anchor," the line to the drag suddenly parted, and his vessel fell off into the trough of

Not only does he ride the steer in his ordinary business, but he is always ready to race him against the California ponies.

Neither the French marquis nor the American cowboy can claim to be the first to discover the possibilities of the cow family in the way of saddle racing. Many years ago Jas. Hirt,

Dr. James M. Anders, of Philadelphia, who believes that violent athletic exercises have a harmful effect on the young, has decided the other day: "I should like to see all the most violent forms of athletics reduced to moderate moderation that a fat friend to mine advocate."

of the road for the entire term of 50 years. The Grand Trunk Railway Company holds or controls all the stock of the Grand Trunk Pacific and draws all the profits.

Sir Rivers-Wilson (President of the Grand Trunk Railway Co.) said to the shareholders of his Company at a meeting called to consider the ratification of the agreement as settled by the Government:

"Therefore, the liability comes back to the sum which I have just mentioned, viz: about £3,000,000 (pounds sterling) and I have stated distinctly and clearly that that is what we estimate the liability of the Grand Trunk to be, eventually, a POSSIBILITY of £3,000,000 of capital and, under any circumstances, not more than £118,000 ($577,000) of interest per year."

If the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co. defaults in payment of any of its rentals to Canada, we have no lien or security, of any value, from the Grand Trunk Railway Company or the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company.

If the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company defaults or refuses to operate the Eastern Section, the only recourse Canada has is to take over the section and operate it themselves, which would prove a veritable white elephant on our hands, as it would be without connections or terminals, and is, moreover, the poor or non-paying portion of the entire line.

AS TO TRAFFIC:—The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co. will assuredly give its Western traffic to the Grand Trunk Railway connections at Winnipeg (for transit via Chicago, to the sea) until the Eastern Section is completed to the north of Port Arthur, and later on, to the north of North Bay, when the Western freight will be given to the Grand Trunk Railway Company at these points; and as far as export is concerned, will go thence to Portland in the United States, in winter altogether, and in part also in summer.

When the whole line is completed to Moncton all freight NOT SPECIALLY ROUTED, which is 90% of the whole) may be delivered to the Grand Trunk Railway Company, at those points, and without doubt will be so delivered, and go thence to the United States' points as the haul would be about 300 miles less.

When the whole road is completed at an estimated total cost of not less than $138,000,000 for construction, and the bonuses paid, it will be found that the two partners—Canada and the Grand Trunk Railway Company—will have contributed substantially as follows:

The Government will have provided:

Cash to the amount of at least	-	-	$84 000 000
Guaranteed bonds to the amount of at least			40 000 000	$124 000 000

Canada will have paid in Cash, by way of interest and discounts, what is in effect a bonus to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, not less than	-	$22 410 000
--	---	--------------	--

Canada will have lost three years' interest on the cost of construction of the Eastern Section, also rentals amounting together approximately to not less than	$9 000 000	$31 410 000
			$155 410 000

While the Grand Trunk Railway Company will have provided as their share:

Guaranteed bonds not exceeding	-	-	$14 600 000
--------------------------------	---	---	--------------

On this footing the respective contributions of the two partners will be,
Canada, not less than	-	-	$155 410 000

The Grand Trunk, approximately,			14 600 000
---------------------------------	--	--	-------------------

What are the respective PROFITS of the two partners?

Of the $45,000,000 total common stock of the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Grand Trunk Railway Company as a consideration for giving the above guarantee of $14,600,000, receives common stock of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company to the amount of			$25 000 000
The Grand Trunk having sole control of the Grand Trunk Pacific, may also issue as it pleases the remaining			$20 000 000

CANADA GETS ABSOLUTELY NOT A DOLLAR OF THE STOCK

Canada is under contract to lease the Eastern Section, after completion, to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, for 50 years, with a right of renewal for 50 years more, during seven years of which it gets no rent, and for the next three years it gets only 3% on the cost of construction, IF THE NET SURPLUS EARNED BY THE RAILWAY PROVIDES IT.

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government were returned to power in November, 1900, this Trans-Continental railway was not projected. The electors of Canada have never had an opportunity of expressing their opinions upon the subject. It is clear that the Government has contracted on behalf of Canada to assume nine-tenths of the financial responsibility and the Grand Trunk Railway Company only one-tenth.

It is a question, therefore, for every elector to answer on the 3rd of November next for himself.

"WOULD IT NOT BE IN THE INTERESTS OF CANADA TO PAY THE OTHER ONE-TENTH AND OWN THE RAILWAY OUTRIGHT?"

Mr. Borden and the Conservative Party say: "YES IT WOULD. LET US HAVE A GOVERNMENT-OWNED RAILWAY, NOT A RAILWAY-OWNED GOVERNMENT."

Canada further by the deal proposed by the Laurier Government, practically makes valueless the $70,000,000 invested in its Intercolonial Railway by taking away all possibility of western connection and Traffic.
