THE EMPRESS EUGENIE.

This curious communication comes from the Parisian correspondent of the London "The speculation of the week has all "The speculation of the ween use an been concerning probability (not the possi-bility) of the truth of a most wonderful ru-mour which has been set affoat, and is dis-cussed with as much defence and opposition as though it were already officially confirmcussed with as much defence and opposition as though it were already officially confirmed. The first colouring given to the tale has been bestowed by the non-success of the journey to Compeigne, which was intended to rouse the Empress from the state of discouragement and apathy into which she had fallen, and which is beginning to give great uneasiness to those who love her, but which has failed in its object most completely. First of all, the miserable state of the weather, which impresses a deeper pletely. First of all, the miserable state of the weather, which impresses a deeper gloom on that country than any other; then the souvenirs which the visit was intended to conjure, instead of producing the tender emotion, the birth of which the place had first borne witness, somehow seemed to awaken sentiments of a totally different naawaken sentiments of a totally different nature, and to increase the melancholy depression which has settled like the witches curse upon one who was not so very long ago the gayest being in the world. It seems, indeed, as if the spot were fatal to all mirth. The last visit in dismay, when Edgar Nay received the bullet intended for the Emperor, and which has disabled him ever since, and prevented his official at addince at court till the other day, when the tar rushing at the horse which bore the appress, tore open the wound scarce healed is yet, and left him more crippled than before. The last event is said to have completed the evil effects of the journey to.

An insatiable desire for change, a yearing to leave not only the atmosphere of the court, which weighs like lead upon her soil, but to travel out of the very land, has seized upon the Empress. Even the direction upon the Empress. Even the direction her flight, which was once limited with bu-ing desire to Spain and her mother's hou nas now become an object of indiffere has now become an object of indifference.

North, south, east, or west was said to be all alike to her, provided France be left behind. This dream of change has become ne sole object of her life, and every other pursuit than that of preparation for departure, has grown utterly distasteful. So far the truth. Now for the suppositions and deductions which have as usual been ardeductions which have, as usual, been arrayed as realities by the very people from whom they first emanated. The Emperor, in order to dissipate the malady, which has laid such hold upon the very nerve and spirit of his fair young wife, after calculating and weighing in his mind the various advantages to be obtained by a journey abroad, and rejecting the Rhine and other autumn sojourns, has at last hit upon the most wonderful stroke of policy hitherto invented by his hold and fertile brain, finer in its way than the coup d'etat, more audacious than the Orleans confiscation, more cunning than the escape from Ham, more self-reliant than the echauffourrees of Stratsburg or Boulogne, and more apparently impossible of execution than his proclamation. deductions which have, as usual, been ar possible of execution than his proclamation of the Empire. He proposes, in short, taking the Empress Eugenie to England, for the purpose of introducing her in person to his good friend, ally, and cousin, Queen Victoria! To describe the sensation which the announcement has created in certain re-unions would be utterly impossible. No one pauses to examine into its truth, so ne away are we all by the agit excitement of the moment, and the loudes discussions are carried on at every cafe and reading room concerning the effect this ex-traordinary measure will produce, before it is even certain that the thing has ever been contemplated. Above all, the indignation with which the rumour has been received by the English is the most amusing to witness. They cannot realise the idea of a ness. They cannot realise the idea of a visit of this nature, and designate the step as one more extraordinary than any which has been taken yet."

TEMPERANCE A PART OF EDUCATION There are vast sums of money expended, and a great waste of time and labor, in hopeless efforts to reclaim the confirmed insbriate—the thousands who have become fixed in their drinking habits—who have grown after drinking habits—who have the confirment of success of success inebriate—the thousands who have become fixed in their drinking habits—who have grown grey in the use of ardent spirits. They tell you, they cannot do without it—that their toddy or their wine is as essential to them as their bread or their beef.

Now there is some truth in this plea; experience every day confirms it. Need we wonder at the feeble headway the cause of temperance is making? We have begun at the wrong end—we are working downwards, alus, to little purpose. The disease lies at the root of the tree, and vain is it to lop off the branches. It is the same with crime. What a harvest is growing up in the children of the uncared for poor—the denizens of the dock, and the market-house, the little pilferers that swarm like flies about the busy mart of commerce! In a few years behold the mature thief—the house-breaker—the assessin of our midnight walks! O, yes, we have built fine prison-houses for them—massive and safe! But does that mend the matter—does that cure the disease is vice less productive among us? Ask the records of the courts—ask the daily items of our

the courts—ask the daily items of our newspapers.

But blessings upon some wise and good men, who have taken the initiatory steps in this needed reformation. Visit that plaguespot once of the city—the iniquitous Five Points, and see what they are doing there. Blessings upon the self-sacrificing men and women engaged in that noble cause. They have struck at the root, and ere many years roll over, we shall behold the healthy flourishing tree. Vice and crime will be banished, and the prison-doors will grow rusty.

why should we not therefore, introduce Temperance in the school-room—in the public school—the high school—the academy—the college? Temperance should be as much a study as history or mathematics.

There should be books specially prepared for it. The thousand advantages of abstinence, and the myriad evils following from a contrary course should be fully and clearly set forth. Catechisms should be prepared by comp tent minds, with simple and easy questions and answers for the very youngest scholars. Physiology, so much taught now, should go hand-in-hand with the study of Temperance. As the pupil advances he snould go hand-in-hand with the study of Temperance. As the pupil advances he could be taught to see how that beautiful piece of mechanism, the human body, be-comes marred and disordered—how insiduously the poison paves the way for death in thonsand forms!

O, there is work to be done here, for the rising generation; a world of work. Who will set about it—who will write the first class book on Temperance? Who will first incorporate the study of it as a brauch of a thorough English education.—Union Ark.

THE MAINE LAW .-- A strong effort is being made in Pensylvania to secure, during being made in Pensylvania to secure, during the coming session of the Legislature, the passage of an act similar in its provisions to the celebrated Maine Law. No man, who, honestly expresses his sentiments, can heat to the the the passage of such an act, and its rigid enforcement by the officers of the law would be of vast service in improving the morals and manners of thousand to such a most useful citizens. In the hiladelphia, we are ashamed to say, the contract of the drunkenness is fearfally increaof drunkenness is fearfully increaobserved in sadly manifest to the actual observed in the sadly manifest to the actual observed in the composition of the progress which are springing up like must rooms in every ward in the city. The most melancholy fact connected with this subject is that the strongest support these places of injustry receive is from the young men, the very flower of our population. Go into any of these places and you will find that nine-tenths of the persons haunting them are less than thirty-years of age—a vast mojority not over twenty. Now this is fearful, and calls aloud for restraining measures to check the tide which is thus sweeping the future-hope of the State to destruction. Whether the Maine Law will accomplish all that its warm friends expect struction. Whether the Maine Law will accomplish all that its warm friends expect we know not, but this we do know, that we go for it, under the strong conviction that no other remedy, has been devised which has a convertion from the strong conviction that the strong conviction that the strong conviction that no other remedy, has been devised which has strong conviction that no other remedy, has been devised which has strong conviction that no other remedy. called forth such strong opposition from the grogseller, and, therefore, we think this must be the shoe which pinches the toe Fellow citizens, vote for it, and work for it!-PHYSICAL RECREATION.

PHYSICAL RECREATION.
Bodily exercise is one of the most important means provided by nature for the maintainance of health, and in order to prove the advantages of exercise, we shall show what should be exercised, and the modes by which it may be adopted.

The human body is in a reality a machine, the various parts of which are beautifully adapted to each so that if one suffers all adapted to each so that if one suffers all nust suffer. The bones and muscles are the parts on which motion most depends. There are 400 muscles in the body, each performing a specific duty.—They assist the tendons in keeping the bones in their places and put them into motion. Whether performing a specific duty.—They assist the tendons in keeping the bones in their places and put them into motion. Whether we run, walk or sit, or stoop, bend the head, arm or leg, or chew food, we may be said to open or shut a number of hinges, or ball and socket joints. It is a provision of nature that, to a certain extent, the more the muscles are exercised, the stronger do they become; hence mechanics, laborers, farmers and others, are stronger and more muscular than those whose lives are passed in easy, light, and professional duties. Besides strengthening the limbs, muscular exercise has a most beneficial influence on the circulation of the blood and on respiration. The larger blood vessels are generally placed deep among the muscles, consequently when the latter are put into motion, the blood is driven through the arteries and the veins with greater rapidity than when there is no exercise; it is more completely purified, as the action of the insensible perspiration is promoted, which relieves the blood of many matters taken attendant maladies. Now there is no re-medy for the evils referred to, but taking advantage of the summer, and enjoying as much bodily exercise and out door recreation as possible. It is quite a mistake to consider the labor of the day as equivalent to exercise. Work of any kind is a mere routine process, carried on with but little variety of circumstances, and a mere change of scene and air are beneficial. To derive the greatest amount of benefit from exercise, it should be combined with amusement, and thus a botanic and rural hunt is both pleasurable and recreative. If this important fact was borne in mind by parents, teachers, and employers, much fewer would be the victims to licentiousfewer would be the victims to licentiousness, drunkenness, and disease. Athletic sports, and out-of-door exercise of every description, are no less conducive to the perfect health of the young of both sexes. Wherever there is a physical depression, there must be a disposition to resort to mental, moral, or injurious physical stimulants.—Farmer and Mechanic.

BLESSINGS OF THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

There are some "facations individuals" who are continually monning about the evils of the Liquor Traffic, and are endeavouring to get a law passed to suppress it. Poor infatuated mortals! They would deprive their fellow-creatures of the privilege of getting drunk! Infamous outrage on the rights of American citizens!—Down with rights of American citizens!—Down with such odious doctrines! Give the people the right to get gloriously drunk when and where they please. Getting drunk helps a man on so rapidly in the world, it renders his family so astonishingly happy, and raises him in the esteem of his fellowmen. Besides, Liquor helps digestion—can't get along without it, unless the "fanaticat" wish to kill off the human family with dyspepsia!

Then there are the housewives who know how to serve up rare dishes, are they to be

Then there are the housewives who know how to serve up rare dishes, are they to be deprived of the necessary ingredients to do it? Are the people to be deprived of rich preserves, pies, &c., to please a few fanatics? No! the Liquor traffic ferever! If people will get drunk constantly, it is no fault of the Liquor Traffic; if they couldn't get drunk perhaps they would do something worse. The Liquor traffic is not to blame for the faults of human nature, and that man is not capable of self-government.

Traffic after reading the following? No sane person would wish to denrive sane person would wish to deprive mortals of such luxury, or put the stuff that reduces our fellow-creatures to such a state beyond their reach! It is related in the Daily Times, the place described is the locality of

"During one of the oppressively warm days which we have endured of late, the days which we have ensured of me, marrator was called to visit one of the dila-pidated and filthy habitations of Cow Buy. He was informed that a corpse lay unshroud-ed in one of the upper rooms, and straightway proceeded to ascertain whether such was the case. The story was true, and the scene before him was such as to shock every human sensibility. The writer has witnessed the mangled bodies of the living and the dead, mingling, a homogenous mass, with broken cars and shattered mass, with broken cars and shattered engines; has seen the writhings of the mortally scaled victims of the steam-boiler explosions again and again; has viewed, day after day, the scores of the dead that hay so long in an advanced state of decomposition on the river's shore at Yonkers, after the hurning of the state. lay so long in an advanced state of decomposition on the river's shore at Yonkers, after the burning of the steamer Henry Clay,—but never has he witnessed, in a single scene, aught so sickening in all its variety as that which presented itself to the gentleman who gave us the description.

"The building is five stories in height, and its crumbling walls, freen from the accumulation of noxious vapours, surrounded near one hundred miserable creatures of orime and starvation.—The room in which the corpe lay is about twelve feet square, and in it twenty wretches, white and black, reside. The effluvia that filled the roos when our narrator entered, was most intolerable. The body had been up in its passage, through the system, and thus diffuses a feeling of lightness and cheerfulness over body and mind.

Recreation should be taken which will excreate all the muscles. Most of our city employers compel the workers to stand or sit in unnatural positions, using only a few of their muscles, while the others remain comparatively inactive. Tailors, sawyers, shoemakers, watchmakers, and many others, such as cotton-spinners, dress-makers, present either awkward movement in limbs or eyes, or are sickly or sallow looking. Such parties are commonly affected with indigestion, giddiness, headache, or diarrhoza. Merchants, storekeepers, lawyers, writers, &c., pass weeks without exercise in the open air, and when opportunity offers, they have lost the inclination. These parties suffer from indigestion, costiveness, cancer of the stomach, and stagnant circulation of the blood and all its attendant maladies. Now there is no remedy for the critical stage and control of the stage and distorted—so much so, that the body could not be identified. One Kiss before Parting.—A lady of fashion (the well known Marchioness of Finsbury) had been loitering for nearly an hour in a fashionable music-shop. She had purchased a copy of nearly every piece of music that had a sentimental tale. She had sent into her carriage a whole canter ury full of "Love" going through every mood of the feeling, past, present, or future, and was following their example, when she paused upon the step, as if meditating whether she would take it, or some other whether she would take it, or some other step that was evidently turning itself over mind. The shopman who had been some-what moved by the tender tone of voice in which she had asked him, "Wilt thou have me then as now?" watched her with anxiety that betrayed itself to plainly in the adjustment of his shirt-collar, and the arrangement of his hair. Suddenly the Marchioness seemed resolved. As with one bound she cleared the pavement and, breathless pale, her auburn ringlets fluttering in the wind, stood once before the admiring shopman: "I had nearly forgotten" she said, in a voice that seemed to veil her blushing words—"Dear! dear! I cannot tell where words—"Dear! dear! I cannot tell where my head is to-day. I have come back to ask you if by chance——"Here she paused, as if to take new courage, whilst the trembling shopman poised his two thumbs elegantly on the mahogany counter, and leant his body inquiringly forward. "You can give me one kiss before parting!" "Ma-a-a-a-d-a-m!" exclaimed the astonished shopman. "I want you," repeated the Marchioness, "to let me have one kiss before parting. if you nlesse." one kiss before parting, if you please."
She raised her beautiful blue eyes full upon his. Springing over the counter, he seized hold of the Marchioness's fair form, and, hold of the marchioness s in norm, and, then and there, gave the kiss so earnestly begged for. To his great astonishment, the only return the Marchioness made was to give him a tremenduous box on the ear. This was followed by a volley of blows dealt by her parasol over his head, that never ter-minated till the police came into the shop. The affair was carried to Bow S was soon dismissed, upon it being expla that "One Kiss before Parting" was title of a song, which the unsophisticated shopman, blissfully green from his native fields had never heard of before. It was a favorite joke with the old Duke to ask the Marchioness whenever she was at the piano if she would mind giving just "One before Parting."

A WATCH STOLEN BY A RAT .- One night last week the overseer of a farm ; Huntly laid his watch on a table in his sleeping apartment, previous to going to bed. Towards morning he was aroused by a crash of something that had fallen, and a rattling sound, as of something being dragged along the floor. He immediately got up, and found his watch was gone. He lost no time in pursuing the thief, following the direction of the sound, when he came upon the watch at the mouth of the rat's hole, into which the rat had entered, taking with him the whole of the guard chain, and Huntly laid his watch on a table in his hole, into which the rat had entered, taking with him the whole of the guard chain, and was only prevented from taking in the watch by the case springing open from the fall, which made it require more room then the hole would admit of! As it was, the rat did not seem disposed to lose his prize, but kept a firm hold of the guard when the owner tried to pull it from his

A BIT OF WHOLESOME ADVICE.

Reader be popular in your views. Your notions must be wrong if they are narrow. This universe is not to be measured with a two-foot rule. Be popular in your style. If you would be a "will of the wisp," you may appear in the darkness; but if you would be a sun, brush the clouds from your face. Be popular in your sympathies; think, feel, pray, with your knees upon the the round globe. See Africa a continent of dry bones, Asia a pyramid of mortal death, Europe struggling in the folds of the serpent, and the isles of the sea crying for help. If the supineness of Athens produced a Philip, shall not the prostration of a world produce a Paul?

Re humble. A BIT OF WHOLESOME ADVICE. uce a Paul?

Be humble. Seek not for the knowledge that puffeth up, but for that which edifieth. Never be in flated by success; for what hast thou the, thou didst not receive? Be not wise in your own conceit. Shall the incarnate God say, I am nothing; and shall that worm (man) say, I am rich? Be independent.—God made you; lift up your heads among his sons. Think for yourselves. If there are books upth the shelf, thank God for them; but remember the open leaves of creation and the unbound volume of the soul. Dare to speak out. When the thoughts burn, let the flames have a flue. What fear you? Shall he whose exemplar What fear you? Shall he whose exemplar died upon the cross be afraid of sneers, and stripes, and blows?—"Strike, out hear me!" cried the great Athenian at the battle of Salamis.—"Kill, but hear me! let the Christian cry at the battle of the world.

REPROOFS ARE NOT PEARLS .- Few things are more difficult than to reprove sin properly : yet even the ayowed servants perly; yet even the avowed servants of God need it frequently and on different grounds. One day a person, in the apart-ment of an aged Christian woman, was la-menting a want of firmness in reproving the abandoned, especially when travelling; and abandoned, especially when travelling; and offering a pretty frequent apology in the caution, "Give not that which is holy un-to the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls be-

The aged woman seriously and instantly replied, "O, sir, keen and just reproofs are no pearls. Were you to talk to a wicked coachman, or omnibus driver, respecting the love of God shed abroad in the hearts by the Holy Ghost, and the pleasure of communion with God, you would cast pearls before swine; but not in reproving sin. Hear the command of God: 'Thou shalt in any wise rebute the peachbour and not any wise rebuke thy neighbour, and not suffer sin upon him.'"

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

IMPORTANT INVENTION IN THE MANU FACTURE OF FLOUR.—A most remarkable invention calculated to effect a complete revolution in the manufacture of flour, is rapidly coming into use in England and France. The bakers aftirm that the flour is more nutricious, and will rise much soon-er and more certainly. This is attributable to the greater portion of gluten contained in the flour manufactured by the "conical" in the flour manufactured by the "conical" burrs. Every experiment tried with the new method has proven, that within a given time more than double the quantity of wheat can be ground than with the flat burrs and a larger amount of flour, of a better quality, from the same quantity of wheat be the product. The beneficial changes effected by this new invention are thus sufficiently by this new invention are thus sufficiently enumerated:—First, the reduction of the weight of the running stone from 14 cwt. to 1½ cwt. by placing it between instead of upon the fixed one; second, the reduction of the size of the stones in the proportion of 3 34 to 1; and thirdly, the giving to the stones a new form—that of the frustrum of a cone. A few cases of Asiatic Cholera have occurred at Edinburgh and Glasgow. QUEEN VICTORIA AND THE POOR .- The sum of five thousand pounds was recently placed in the hands of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, by Queen Victoria, for distribu-tion among the Dublin charities.

Upwards of 2,400,000 children attended Sabbath Schools in England, under the care of 300,000 teachers. A conference of teachers connected with various religious denominations was recently held in Leeds, for the purpose of considering what means could be adopted to preserve the children of the schools from falling into the snares

Sir George Seymour, the Admiral on this station, is, we hear, very shortly to strike his flag, Admiral Fanshawe, who is appointed his successor in the North American command, having hoisted his flag at Portsmouth, in the Boscawen 74. An association has been organized in St.

of the Maine Law into that Province.

A committee of twelve citizens has been appointed in East Boston, to enforce the "Maine Liquor Law."

The Rev. Mr. Clay, Chaplain of the Preston House of Correction, estimates the loss caused to the public by fifteen pick-pockets whose career he has traced, including the value of the property stolen, expense of prosecution and maintenance in goal, at £25, 500. At an annual expense of £75 the whole fifteen might have been trained in an industrial school.

Capt. J. Everon, of Memphis, Tennessee, has recently secured a patent for glass tubes to conduct water from wells and cistrens, which supercede those made of less, iron ar wood. The Rev. Mr. Clay, Chaplain of the

We repeat, our Country is rich in Mineral wealth. We have seen a very rich specimen of Lignite, the out-cropping of Coal found not over 3 miles from where we write, which, ignited well and burnt away leaving but very little residue.—We have also been shown Silver-lead fluxed and melted from Ore found in this our County.

HASZARD'S GAZETTE

Saturday, December 31, 1853.

MR. WHELAN AND THE MAGISTRACY, MR. WHELAN AND THE MAGISTRACY, In the printed speech of Mr. Whelan shere is this clause, "Hon. Mr. Whelan would, however, day, that it was very fortunate for that hon. member (Mr. Palmer) that the accusation which he had throws out against him (Hon. Mr. Whelan) had been made under the sanctuary of the Assembly; for had; it been made elsewhere, he would have dragged him before the tribunal where he was so often obliged to seek assistance from the quirks and quibbles of the law to ustain him in his advocacy of a bad cause;—he would have bearded the lion in his den." This was meant to be a very high-sounding period, —a very valorous to be a very high-sounding period, — a very raiorous note of defiance; and had it been acted up to, Mr. Whelan would have proved, at least, that he was sincere in making the assertion. Why did he not beard the lion in his den? Why did he not file a beard the lion in his den? Why did he not file a declaration for libel against Mr. Palmer the instant the House was prorogued? Had he done so, and Mr. Palmer had pleaded his privilege, then there might have been some hardship for him to complain of. But Mr. Palmer would have put in no such plea, he would have done the same thing that he did in the House,—he would have justified the assertion; and the question would then have been tried before a competent tribunal, and the same question would have been submitted to the jury that is now submitted to the public, and the former would have virtually found would then have been tried before a competent of the loth instant. Had the writer confused in the former would have been submitted to the public, and the former would have virtually found Mr. Whelan guilty, if they had had acquitted Mr. Palmer. Mr. Whelan must, therefore, be considered as having acquiesced in the justice of the chiarge made by Mr. Palmer, and the declaration made by him in the House as an empty threat which he did not declaration. But if Mr. Palmer will be former would not declarate the did not declarate the logic of the logic o by Mr. Palmer, and the declaration made by him in the House as an empty threat which he did not dare put in execution. But if Mr. Palmer were privileged, Mr. Ings was surely not,—he is no member of Par-liament, nor is his paper privileged. Has not Mr. Ings given him sufficient provocation? has he not repeatedly in the Islander stigmatized Mr. Whelan as a perjured man, — and on the very ground, too, of the taking this eath of qualification without having the requisite property prescribed by the statute? Here as a perjured man, — and on the very ground, too, of the taking this eath of qualification without having the requisite property prescribed by the statute? Here were opportunities which Mr. Whelan might have availed himself of if Mr. Ings had not justified, Mr. Whelan would have been in a position to show that both Mr. Ings and Mr. Palmer were slanderers, and he (Mr. Whelan) an injured men. Mr. Ings is a man who could feispond to a verdict of damages fully as well as Mr. Whelan, and, we suspect, much better. Mr. Whelan may affect to desgise and contenue, as beneath his notice, any thing that may appear in the editorial columns of a newspaper, and so long as he is attacked merely as the editor of the Gassette it may be well to do as. But Mr. Whelan has been attacked by the Lilander as a member of the Assembly,—as having obtained a seat in it under false pretences, and as having taken a false eath in order to support these pretences,—and it became a daty he newed to himself to clear his character from the asperations that been cast upon it. It has been said, both by the Licent. Governor, and Mr. Whelan, that there was no objection made to Mr. Whelan, that there was no objection made to Mr. Whelan, that there was no objection made to Mr. Whelan, that there was no objection made to Mr. Whelan, that there was no objection made to Mr. Whelan, that there is two whole years. There is an immense difference, however, between a man filing, an office art officies, and being specially appointed. So long as Mr. Whelan hold the post of Executive Councillor, so long was he a Justice of the Fance, but only in virtue of his being a Councillor; the memoral he caused to be the other. It was the appointing him for the first time a Justice of the Peace for Queen's Council or the give

The Latter Rain.—Among the many strangely interesting occurrences of the present day, the following is not the least so:

"Dr. Duff, the Calcutta missionary of the Free Church of Scotland, assured the General Assembly at Edinburgh, that for the first time since the destruction of Jerusalam, has the "latter rain" returned, last autumn, to the Holy Land; and as this is predicted by the prophet Joel, in connection with the return of Israel, and is, indeed to be the one great desideratum, for the restoration of the fertility of the soil of Palestine, it is regarded with interest by the students of prophecy."

The Limerick Chronicle states, that a field officer of the 96th Light Infantry in Dublin has placed his commanding officer under arrest for alleged drunkenness.

Works at the Wholan relies upon his acquittal by the independent of the reposed in one who was even suspected of disregarding the moral and legal obligation of an eath?

But Mr. Whelan celies upon his acquittal by the House, John Le Lucheur might as well have pleaded his acquittal. Mr. Whelan has stated, that Mr. Palmer was compelled by an usuanimous vote of the House, to retract the accession. It is so recorded in the Journals of the House, but erroneously; for the Journals carry their own refutation. Immediately after, Mr. Montgomery moved that the Hon. Edward Whelan had not a legal qualification when he took his seat in this House in March, 1850; and Mr. Pope having moved, as an amendment, that Mr. Montgomery have leave to withdraw his motion, the House divided, and there were for the motion 10, against it 9. So much for the House being unanimous. The same may be said of Mr. Thoraton's and Mr. Haviland's amendments, the day previous. It is evidently, then, a clerical error, or it may be that the Committee for revising the Joannals, of which Mr. Whelan was the chairman, undertook to interpolate the word unanimously. But how or why it got there is of no consequence; if it not frue. No division was demanded, and it was therefore the resolution of the House, — and it being the resolution of the House, Mr. Palmer did right to retract. He withdrew the accusation—because he was compelled so to do by that resolution—in a mere matter of course, and consequently meaning nothing. Did Mr. Whelan ever ask Mr. Palmer whether he did so upon the conviction that he had made an erroneous charge, or did he still persist in ing nothing. Did Mr. Whelan ever ask Mr. Palmer whether he did so upon the conviction that he had made an erroneous charge, or did he still persist in his assertion of the truth of it? We rather think not. Mr. Palmer, or we greatly mistake, would have answered the question, and that unequivocally. All we can way is, that if Mr. Whelan is satisfied with the can bay is, that if Mr. Whelan is satisfied with the unanimous—as he calls it — resolution of the House, and Mr. Palmer's compliance with it, it is what no man possessed of the feelings of a gentleman would be, and, as we said in the commencement, the whole question is a part of the political history of the Island; and, as such, every man has a right to his own opinion on the matter;—we have our; and so far as saying that on the 20th day of January, 1850, and the day Mr. Whelan inst took his seat in the House of Assembly on the 5th March, 1850, he had no legal quisification to entitle him to a sent there; and that of this fact there does not exist the possibility of a doubt in the minut of any man at all qualified to form that he was as qualified, Mr. Whethan committed the crime of perjery, is a question that every man must erime of perjery, is a question that every man must judge for himself from the evidence. Whether Mr. Whelan will choose, at this late hour, Whether Mr. Whelan will choose, at this late hour, to adopt the plei'of ignorance, is for himself to any. It is, is our opinion, the only one that is open to him; but who will say, it can avail him. In reviewing this, as one of the other circumstances alluded to by the retiring magnistrates, we think it one which, from its magnisade, renders unnecessary the production of what must necessarily be minor and, viewed in comparison, probably venial offences, such as the open nequalified applaine of the actions of traitors, and the sorrow expressed for the failure of their treasonable attempts, and the denunciation of the tribunals that pronounced sentence on the offenders after an impartial investigation as partizes judges. tial investigation as partizan judges.

We feel that we have but done our duty, in bring-ing the matter before the public. We leave them to decide.

doubt but before now he would have been fairly answered by "Observer," who obviously wishes to avoid the display affected by that correspondent.

His second paragraph is a flowing specimen of the headlong, rollicking, style; but does he really put forth such senseless rhapsody, with a view to serious consideration! If Boreas still stumbers, at least the South has been disturbed, and what wonder if we hear of whirlwinds next! He somewhat exultingly remarks that in Lord Sackville's case, the dissentient Peers "did not resign." When, may I ask, did he hear of Peers of the Realm resigning the hereditary rank and privileges of their order! No, says he, "they submitted," and why I rejoin did they submited in an innerity—singular, indeed, that they did not resign."

He appears brim fall of Parliamentary love, evidently crammed for the occasion, and this he deals out with a happy seasoning of his mutive talent for the ridiculous; but in the midst of his indignation at the "family clique," and a mass of immaterial matter, consisting, as he tells us, of "ligious of assertions" which can be produced to prove the great end and aim of "almost every tory Administration," he plainly losse sight of the meaning of the words which he contradicts, and which he ought clearly to confute.

From his signature, however, we are perhaps to infer that he nets under a roving commission; and before now he may possibly have atrayed from one side of politics to the other. But I will presume to ask him, when he informs the public on the subject of the Middlesex petitions, why he does not extend his information as little further? and state that it was not the expulsion of Wilkes, even for the fourth time, that called forth those measures, so much as the arbitary testing in his stead of his opponent, the ministerial candidate; who having the minority of votes, and consequently being the minority of votes, and of the Ministry, declared to be the sitting member. This at once alarmed the foars, and roused the indignation of the Country, and sended more than anything to increase the popularity of Wilkes. Addresses came pouring in from various quarters, both to King and Parliament, and among others the two quoted in "Observer's" letter.

To these two petitions which were both addresses to the King, one by the Ety. "Observer's" letter.

To these two petitions which were both addresses to the King, one by the Ety. "Observer's" remark was manifestly conduct; and the extracta given from them, as well as the foregoing observations, will sufficiently indicate whether or no the grievances complained of in those days, bear any affinity to more recent occurrences which immediately concurs ourselves. "Rover" should have given the date of the debate he referr to; if it were that of the Stin of May 1769, it was before either of the petitions was precined; and it matters not what Lord North's threats then were, towards any one who should sign such a petition as Bi. Towarsheld warried him to appear. "Rover" should have informed us of the nature of the Stinister's threats, and what he said and did, after the petitions and bose received by his Jaigaty; one signed by no less than 1565 of his subjects the petition and an angle county, and both by many persons of wealth and distinction, whose loyally has been questioned. These petitions not choose a single outney, and both by many persons of wealth and distinction, whose loyally has been petitioned. The second of the subject of the s in recent connexions and endeavours to reorganize parties;—in the displacement of a high functionary on unknown grounds, from a position held by right of seniority, in accordance with instructions under the great Seal of England;—instructions which are sought to be rendered nugatory by a less formal document, obtained under cirumstances of secrecy and concealment, that must be regarded as an insult to that Body, whose privileges are directly invaded. Who knows but at the next Session, this same "Rover" or some other mouth piece of his party, may be "produced" in the Province Building, not: "fulminating," but growling hourse threats against any one who should dare to sign such a remonstrance, as was lately submitted to the worthy "North Briton" who governs the Colony; and whose advent, we are told, caused so pure a stream to circulate through the members of the body politic! Blustering eloquence answered in Lord North's time, and may again be happily applied, by some modern orators of more perishable renown.—Let them not however rely too confidently on success.—"Brag" is said to be a good dog, but "Holdfast" a better;—with "Rover's" qualities I am not personally acquainted;—he may have been a pretty fellow in his day,—perhaps the most knowing one of the pack;—but if I have heard him correctly described, he is growing old and crusty, rather loose in the fangs, and of late so faulty at scent as to be unfit for fox hunting, the only sport at which he was ever known to excel. He is besides, I am told, somewhat chap-fallen at being obliged to quit the kennel on rather short commons, owing to a disagreement with his associates, though doing his best to regain the good will of his masters, by humbly licking their hands and whining pitously for readmission to his former privi-

The Proprietor's Address to his Patrons

The Proprietor of Hazard's Gazelle is unwilling to allow the year to close without tendering to his friends his best thanks for their cordial support gives to the journal which bears his name. It has been his censtant endeavour to merit that support, and his aim has been to keep up with the progress of the times and theadvancing spirit of the age. For this purpose, he has during the past year, at an outlay of more than £500 imported and erected a power press, so as to enable him to issue his journal semi-weekly, of the same size as previously, thus presenting his Subscribers with two papers weekly instead of one, without any additional charge. It was his design this autumn to have erected a small steam engine instead of the horse power now in eas: his arrangements were not made early enough in the season for the accumplishment of this purpose, he trusts however, in the spring, to avail himself of the more effective attength of the Iron Aorse, whose muscless asver tire, and who needs never stop to feed. One of the principal duties of a public journalist is to place before his readers the occurrences of the day in a manner that may give, a just idea, both to them and those who may succeed them, of "the very age and body of the time, his form and pressure". And for this purpose he has secured the services of a gentleman whose aim he trusts it will be found, has been, in reviewing the sayings and doings of public men, to perform that responsible duty with a severe regard to truth, and The Proprietor of Hazard's Gazette is unwil the asyings and doings of public men, to perform that responsible duty with a severe regard to truth, and without yielating the respect due to society, by the use of intemperate, vulgar or abusive language. His establishment, already extensive, and embracing various departments, to be efficiently conducted, requires that persons entrusted with their exception should be properly qualified. In the mechanical department, in consequence of the emigration of workmen to the United States, the bulk of the work has chiefly to be performed by young and inexperienced hands, and so short a period is left between each issue for the revision and correction of the press, that its execution may not be, as the proprietor is aware, as free from typographical errors as in the time of his predecessor. This he trusts, however, will be obviated in future, and he will spars no pains in order to render the execution as correct as possible. the enyings and doings of public men, to perform that ated in future, and he will spare no pains in order to render the execution as correct as possible. While the proprietor pledges himself, to make every exertion in his power to provide the patrons of Hassard's Gazetle, with information and amusement, he trusts that they will see the necessity of a spirited co-operation on their part, and that the notes of invitation to meet himself or his book keeper, which will be issued in the course of the ensuing week will be responded to with as much alacrity, as if they were to a more attractive entertainment.

In wishing them A HAPPY NEW YEAR and many pleasent returns of the season he hopes, also, that

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE, WEEKLY-ENLIRGED.

On the 11th of last April THE DAILY TRIBUNE, was enlarged more than one fourth, or to the size of The London-Times making it considerably larger than any other cheap Daily published in this country or in the world. No change in price was made in conesquence of this Enlargement—the paper being etil afforded to Mail Subscribers at $5 per annum and sold to Carriers and to Agents ordering it by Express or Mail for distant sale at $1.90 for one hundred copies, or $15 per thousand copies, payable in advance. At these prices our aggregate receipts for our entire Daily edition do not exceed the sume we pay for Paper and Ink, leaving all other expenses to be defrayed from our receipts for Advertising. In other words, we return to each guechaser of our paper from us. his money's worth in the naked sheet we send him, leaking for the reward of our own labor and the heavy expenses of Telegraphing, Correspondence, Reporting, Composition, Printing, Mailing, Book-keeping, Rent, &c., to our Advertisers alone. We do not think it now possible to cheapen newspapers beyond this point; if it ever shall be hereafter, we intend to be even with the foremost in demonstrating the fact.

Our SEMI-WEEKLY, EUROPEAN and The Sale of the undermentioned articles, to have taken place this day has been postponed until the 4th January 1884, in consequence of the Roads being unit for travelling, but will most post-tively take place that day.

THE TRIBUNE has not now its character to make or to proclaim. It has not been and never can be a mere party organ. It has supported the Whig party because the distinctive principles of that party appaared to favor the great ends which it has laboured to subserve; it never advocated a measure because it was proposed or sustained by the Whig party. It holds itself at all times as free to condemn unsound principles, anwise measures or corrupt acts should the two former be propounded or the latter prepartated by Whigs as though they had emanated from the hostile camp. In so far as Peace, Liberty, Education, Tomperance, Internal Improvement and Industrial Development may be subserved by acting with the Whig party, it must continue to be, as it has been, Whig.

Though nover acting with any Abolition or other one-idea party, THE TRIBUNE is and must be the relentless for of Human Slavery, as of whatever else tends to degrade Labor and obstruct the intellectual and social development of any portion of mankind. Were it able to perceive that a vote in New-York could abolish Slavery in Carolina, it might attach itself to some one of the expressly Anti-Slavery parties: lacking that light, it declines to abandon the substances for the shadow of political good. But while it does not see its way clear of any effective Political action against Slavery in the Ratas ashier how cherish it, it regards the defect of whatever effert to extend the giant wrong under the flag of our Union, or to obstute thy its power the progress of Abolition in other lands, as among the most urgent and ascred of public duties, not to be subordinated to any party consideration whatever. And, while it does not propose to make Anti-Slavery the basis of Political action, other than defensive, it will neglect no opportanity, remit no effort, so to diffuse Light and Trath as to render the continuance of Slavery impossible in a land irr

SIR,—As the Agent of various Fire Insurance Companies, I beg to bring under your notice my PATENT ARTIFICIAL SLATE. This companies, a ceg to oring under your notice my PATENT ARTIFICIAL SLATE. This composition has been upwards of, three years extensively used in New Branswick, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, the Canadas and Neva Scotia, principally for covering shingled roofs, as you will perceive by the accompanying circulars of certificates. It has been severely tested, and proved most successfully its fire proof qualities under most extraordinary circumstances; so much so, that I am of opinion that Fire insurance Companies should encourage its general application to all kinds of wood building (where the color would be no objection to its being used, such as he been walls of dwellings in the city, out houses, ware houses, &c., as well as the roofs) by lowering the premium of insurance ou such buildings as are covered.

the premium of insurance of covered.

I have the honor to be, sir,,

Your obedient servant,

Patentee and Manufacturer
Halifax 14th July, 1858.

Sin,—In answer to your one of the 12th inst. I consider the use of your "Artificial Slate Paint" on shingled Roofs, as greatly diminishing the risk against Fire—I have frequently reduced the premiums on Buildings in the Country, upon its application,

I am, sir, your ob't servant.

GLEASON'S PICTORIAL.

ON the first of January next, Gleason's Pictorial will commence its sixth volume, and will appear vastly improved in all respects, with a superh new heading, new type and dress throughout, and will be printed upon the finest paper. As the proprietor of the Pictorial has purchased the entire good will of Baruam's New York Hustrated News. and has merged that journal in the Pictorial, the public will reap the advantage of this concentration of the strength of the two papers upon one, both in the artists and the literary departments. The same brilliant host of contributors and artists will be endaged on Gleason's Pictorial as heretofore, and a large addition is also made to the corps, both in talent and number. The most liberal arrangements have been completed, and such a will enable the Proprietor to preduce by far the finest illustrated jurnal yet published, and much superior to the present issue of the paper. The columns of the Pictorial will constantly be beautified by all that can please and instruct in art and nature, and its literary department will felly sustain the high reputation it has so long enjoyed.

The pages of Gleason's Pictorial will contain views of every populous city in the known world, of all buildings of note in the eastern or western hemisphere, of all the principal ships and steamers of the navy and merchant service; with fine and accurate portraits of every noted character in the world, both male and female. Sketches of beautiful scenery, taken from life, will also be given, with numerous specimens from the animal kingdom, the birde of the air, and the fish of the sea, and will present in its mechanical execution an elegant specimen of art. It will contain fifteen hundred and sixty-four equare inches, giving a great amount of reading matter and illustrations—and forming a manmosts weekly paper of sixteen occare pages.

WONDER OF THE WORLD.

Gravel Cured of five years standing

Messrs. Curtis & Perkuns, Bangor, Mc.

Gentlemen.—have been entirely cured of the Gravel, by the us of your Crainp and Pain Killer. It commenced taking the Gramp and Pain Killer in the Spring of 1847. It had been a great sufferer for ten years previous; some four or five years of the time I suffered heyund all my powers to describe.

During this time, I have had medical aid, and tried various specifies, but found very little relief until I obtained your Crainp and Pain Killer. In one month after I commenced using it, I began to grow better. I continued to use it for a year, all the time improving until I was entirely cured.
