RETURN OF THE JAMES ADJER.—The steamship James Adjer, Capt. S. C. Turner, arrived in this port at noon to-day on her return from the expedition of the New York, Newfoundland and Telegraph Company to lay the submarine cable between the Islands of Newfoundland and Cape Breton. She brings fifty-eight passengers, consisting of the officers of the Company, their guests, and a number of telegraphic

The James Adjer-left here on the 7th of August, and has been absent 29 days. On her passage out, she arrived at Halifax on the 19th, left there the same evening and proceeded to Port-aux-Basques, at the north-west corner of Newfoundland. Upon north-west corner of Newfoundland. Upon her arrival, on the 12th, not finding the bark Sarah L. Bryant, which had been chartered in Liverpool to carry out the submarine cable, she left at once for St. John's, which she reached on Tuesday morning, Aug. 14. She remained at St. John's four days, during which time a dinner morning, Aug. 14. She remained at St. John's four days, during which time a dinner was given on board to the principal citizens of the place, who responded by a grand ball at the Colonial Building the following evening. The inhabitants of St, John's made every exertion to entertain the officers of the company and their questions. cers of the company and their guests, and their stay was taken up by a continued round of festivities.

The James Adjer returned to Port-aux-Basques on Monday morning, Aug. 20, and found that the Sarah L. Bryant, had arrived there on the preceding Wednesday, after a voyage of 48 days. The preparation for paying out the cable occupied two or three days, and advantage was taken of this delay to visit Cape North, in Cape Breton, and select a proper point for the termination of the submarine line.

The point of starting was also changed

The point of starting was also changed from Port-aux-Basques to Cape Ray Cove, from Port-aux-Basques to Cape Ray Cove, where a very favorable spot was found for landing the end of the cable. A house was erected at this point, and the bark baving been towed to the cove by the James Adjer, the end of the cable was safely brought ashore on the evening of the 23d. The next day was foggy and unfavorable, but on Saturday morning, the 25th, the steamer took the bark in tow, and endeavoured to proceed to sea. A violent northwest wind was blowing, and while the vessels were endeavouring to get into line, a serious collision took place, which seriously strained the cable. The attempt was then given up, but the bark soon afterward lost her anchor, and was drifting before the a serious collision took place, which seriously strained the cable. The attempt was then given up, but the bark soon afterward lost her anchor, and was drifting before the gale upon a reef of rocks, when she was obliged to cut the cable and set sail to save the world can with safety pass in and out of that lead looked bashow. The company

The James Adjer, with the bark in tow, then proceeded to Sydney in Cape Breton,

The Adjer left Sydney on Sunday morning, the 2d, and has had a speedy and pleasant return voyage.

The New York Journal of Commerce, in speaking of the attempt of the New York, Newfoundland and London Telegraph Com-pany to unite Europe and America by means of the Submarine Telegraph Company, says:

These united companies propose build a line from Halifax across the Island of Cape Breton to Cape North, thence across the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Cape Ray on the South-western shore of Newfound thence along the Southern coast of the latter island to St. John's, on its eastern side, and there to connect with a great sub-marine cable having its terminus at Cork, Ireland; the distance across the ocean between those points not being more than 1680 miles. The land portion of the line is being rapidly built, while the submarine part of it between Cape Breton and Newfoundland, the Company are sanguine will be completed next year. Along this proposed route from Cork to St. John's, the bettom of the can is a plateau or ridge, as Ireland: the distance across the ocean be posed route from Cork to St. John's, we bottom of the sea is a plateau or ridge, as discovered by Lieut. Mauray in 1953, which, from its apparent purpose of holding the wires of a submarine telegraph, has been called the Telegraph Plateau. It is about 70 fathoms deep, gradually increasing in depth from the shores of Newfoundland to near those of Ireland, and some two or three miles in width.

St. John's is about two days nearer Eng-land than Halifax, and contains equal facilities for coaling large steamers. A dangerous rock, called the Merlin rock, at the narrow entrance to the harbour. 18 feet below the surface of low water, has just bliged to cut the cable and set sail to save herself from wreck.

The cable was spliced on the following day, but as the junction was not found to be sufficiently strong, the two miles which had already been paid out were abandoned, and a new end hauled ashore and made fast. On the morning of Tuesday, the 20th, the weather was calm and propitious, and the steamer towed the bark to sea. Her progress was slow at first, and by might not more than twenty miles of the cable were laid.

Owing to a kink produced by uncoiling, if broke during the night, occasioning a delay of eight hours. The paying-out went on more rapidly next day, but a southeastern gale arose towards evening and became so violent, that the safety of the bark was endangered. After all means of settion was becoming more and move peritous, the cable was cut to save her.

All three of the insulated copper wires had already been broken by the violence of the strain. At the time this occurred 40 miles had been puid out, leaving 34 miles on board. The steamer was then about 30 miles distant from Cape North, the terminus of the submarine line. The British warsteamer Argus came up at the time and kindly offered her assistance.

They have seen the mistaken economy of employing a sailing vessel in tow of a large steamer, water than one single steamer of sufficient the sailing vessel in tow of a large steamer. rather than one single steamer of sufficient strength and capacity to carry the cable and to pay it out from her own hold. They have also seen the importance of commencing their operations earlier in the season, and of having the management of their steamer in the control of one man, nautically and mechanically skilled, who is thoroughly and experimentally acquainted with all the coast, the sea-soundings, the oceanic and tidal currents, and the winds prevalent at size

Of one thing we may be certain, from the permal of this narrative, that in a country where wills may be so easily forged, and murders committed by the powerful with such impounts; where dectors, priests, and jailers may be so easily bribed, and justice so easily blinded—that in a country where, in one word, such circumstances as 8 have above described could take place in the manner they did, there can be little authority in the law to inspire confidence or to command respect—there can be little force in the threats of justice to deter the rich from committing crimes, when, if detected they can so easily transfer them to the shoulders of the poor.

Madame Honnaire de Holl gives the following account of the daughters of a Tartar Princess, Adel Bey, who still lives in the neighbourhood of Bakteheserai:—'linagine, reader, the most exquisite sultanas, of whom poetry and painting have ever tried to convey an idea, and still your conception will fall short of the enchanting models I had then before me. There were three of them, all equally beautiful and graceful. Two were elad in tunies of crimson brueade, adorned in all departs between her dress and that of her sisters. enonce between her dress and that of her sisters All three had magnificent black hair excaping it countless treases from a fez of silver fillagree, set like a diadem over their ivory forheads; they were gold embroidered slippers and wide trousers drawn close at the ankle. I had never beheld drawn close at the ankle. I had never beheld demands in akins so dazzling fair, eyelashes so long, or so delicate a bloom of youth. The calm repose that sat on the countenances of these lovely creatures had never been disturbed by any profane glance. No look but their mother's had ever told them they were beautiful; and this thought gave them an expressible charm in my eyes. It is not in our Europe, where women, exposed to the gaze of perform the more faithful themselves to considered by the constitution of the constitut an expressible charm in my eyes. It is not in our Europe, where women, exposed to the gaze of crowds, so soon addict themselves to coquetry, that the imagination could conceive such a type of beauty. The features of our young girls are too soon altered by the vivacity of their impressions, to allow the eye of the artist to discover in them that divine charm of purity and innocence with which I was so struck in beholding my Tartar princesses. After embracing me, they retired to the end of the room, where they remained standing in those graceful Oriental attitudes which he woman in Europe could imitate. The Lonion Medical Gazette gives the result of numerous experiments with reasted coffee, proving that it is the most powerful means, not only of readering animal and vegetable effluvia innocuous, but of actually destroying them. A room in which meat is an advanced degree of decompanition had been kept for some time, was instantly deprived of all smell, on an open coffee-reaster being carried through it, containing a pound of coffee newly reasted. In another room exposed to the effluvia occasioned by the clearing out of a cess-pool, so that sulphurreted hydrogen and ammonia in great quantities could be chemically detected, the stench was completely removed

The tribunal of Chartres has, however, now pronounced the use of oil to be a fraud punishable by 100 francs fine, and forfeiture of the wheat.

> IRISH GALLANTRY .- A correspondent of the New York Times relates an instance of Irish gallantry which can scarcely find a parallel. As Mr. Howard A. Hughes, an Irishman residing in Truro, Mass., was lying at the Burlington City Hotel, having had both of his arms broken and sustained other serious injuries, from the Burlington Railway accident, one of a number of ladies who were ministering to his relief, asked him if he could tell, where he was injured internally? He replied, that when so many bright eyes were looking at him, he was sure, that he was injured about the region of the heart.

illustrious and enlightened nations of antiquity to fall a prey to the swords of their enemies, it is a remarkable fact, that their intemperate habits paved the way for their overthrow and ryndered their subjugation a work comparatively less difficult.

The Histories of Greece and Rome furnish undeniable evidence in support of this proposition; while the connexion between sobriety and prosperity on the one hand and adversity on the other, is traced in the Histories of Persia and Babylon, as by the finzer of Omninot-nee itself.

Shabylon, as by the finger of Omnipotence itself.
That the Persian Monarch was a chosen instrument in the hands of the Almighty for the chastisement of the Chaldeans, we learn from strument in the hands of the Chaldeans, we learn from chastisement of the Chaldeans, we learn from the word of God itself.; that he was frugal and the word of God itself.; that he was undimmed, his temperate, that his eye was undimmed, his strength unimpaired by the enervating influence of the intoxicating draught, and that to his own strong intellect and manly will: (guided, per-haps by Him in whose hands he was) he owed haps by Him in whose hands he was) he owed his freedom from its syren influence, we learn from no less a witness than the immortal Xenophon. How the noble son of Iran reproyed his grandfather Astyages for drinking wine. With what consummate skill the sage of twelve years attacked the wine-bibbing propensities of the Court is familiar to every reader of the classics. Trained to thought and inured to toil; waxing in strength from the observance of the severer rules of Temperance and from repeated conflicts with the Monarch of the Forest, the youthful Cyrus became the accepted head of a people predestined to become the scourge of the effete and pleasure-loving Babylonians.

Ere long those two nations confront each predestined to become the scourge of the each and pleasure-loving Babylonians.

Ere long those two nations confront each other in battle array, and as might be expected, the hosts of Belsbazzar melt away like snow flakes before the fiery ardour of their simpetuous adversaries. Defeat follows defeat, and pressed on every side by the advancing masses of their victorious foemen, the haughty Babylonian withdraws himself within the protecting walls of the "Golden City."—There with stores of Corn for thirty years, they look down upon the praneing steeds and athletic riders and once more shout defiance. For two years, the soldiers of Cyrus essay in vain to overleapthose lofty battlements. For two long years the Persian commander employs the arts of these lofty battlements. For two long years the Persian commander employs the arts of aggressive warfare, but fails to reach the taunting foe. There stand the unbroken walls, and their the tall towers lift their heads in grantlements. We make to the quarry dear to the skies. No nearer to the quarry than he was two years before. Baffied and discouraged, the Persian may as well retrace his steps. But hark, the sounds of revelry within the walls. The Monarch and a thousand of his nobles are met to celebrate a Heathen carnival. The feast of Bel is a feast of wine. The mighty

The feast of Bel is a feast of wine. The mighty City is given up to drankenness.

In the pride and infatuation of his heart, forgetful of the terrible manifestations of Divine power which his nation had been made to witness, the drunkan monarch shouts for the sacred vessels which had belonged to the Temple of God at Jerusalem; they are descrated with the red wine of Chaldea. The King raises one of these to his impious lips; at that moment a shadowy hand is seen tracing mystic characters on the wall. Terror seizes upon the deshadowy hand is seen tracing mystic charac-ters on the wall. Terror seizes upon the de-bauchee. Quaking with fear, he listens to their itterpretation by the aged Daniel. The fulfil-ment is at hand. The sound of strife is heard without, a confused noise which grows louder and louder as it nears the Palace walls, until it swells into the broad roar of battle. The grantle are out in pieces, the doors burst open. guards are cut in pieces, the doors burst open; the King and his attendants are slaughtered in their festal chamber, and the Empire of Babylon ceases to exist!

Almost parallel to the history of Cyrus is the history of Mahomet. That far-seging man, being resolved on conquest, and sensible of the importance of enforcing habits of sobriety among his soldiers, the want of which might often jeopardize their safety and ruin his schemes of aggrandisement, made the inhibition of wine an article of Religion, which has been observed with more or less strictness, down to the present time. Some silly persons, with little brains and less logic, have endersoured to cast opprobrium upon Temperance men because they resemble the followers of the false Prophet in respect to their rejection of the distribution. The quarterm false Prophet in respect to their rejection of the series and in the continuous continuous and the continuous continuous continuous cast of the vacant companies as captains. Almost parallel to the history of Cyrus is the men because they resemble the followers of the false Prophet in respect to their rejection of the wine-cup, just as though abstinence constituted Mahomedanism! If there was no feature in the colle of Mahomet more objectionable than this, we opine that it would scarcely prove offensive to the Author of our being. In prohibbling the intoxicating cup, we believe, that the author of the Koran only borrowed at leaf from the Word of God itself; and that every nation on the face of the earth would do well the follow his example. While the Mahomedans act up to their faith in respect to the wine-drinking, they so far do well; but we perceive that their intercourse with the English and French is beginning to effect a change in their habits; that many of them have relaxed the strictness of their observances and indule freely indicates introduced by their west.

And this reminds us of the conduct of our own Government—how different from that of Cyrus? How different from that of Mahomet. While these took care that the diet of their soldiers should be such as to promote the full developement of their muscular energies, the rulers of Britain are plying the heroes of Alma with the flery draught which is consuming their strength and rendering them, in other respects, unfit for the discharge of the responsible and arduous duties that devolve upon the soldier during the period of war; which has had as much to do, we have no doubt, with the prevalence of cholera and with the checks with which our brave fellows have met, and the disappointments they have been called upon to appointments they have been called upon to endure, as the obstinacy of the enemy, the short supply of food and clothing and other commissariat mismanagement that have occurred since the siege of Sebastopol first commenced.

Had our army been Mahomedan in one respect, its ranks had not been so effectually thinned by disease; greater vigilance on the part of our sentinels and outposts might have saved the loss of many lives; and the cross of saved the loss of many lives: and the cross of St. George might have waved long ere this, over the crumbling ruins of Sebastopol!—St. John PROMOTION-A GLANCE AT THE CON hester Barracks the other day led to some information about promotion and the regi-mental incidents of war which may be interesting. The depot of the Cannaught Rangers (88th Foot attracted attention.

An officer whose peculiar task is to drill young fficers for the army, and to get them ready for regimental duty in the shortest possible time, was pointed out. This was Captain Dunning, formerly Adjutant of the Rangers. and the barrack rumour is, that the "young swells" would rather be in the Crime than toil and sweat under the inexorable

Mrs. O'Donnell's own letters to the respected old soldier whom they all address are before us. One relates a touching incident. On the 4th of November, Sergeant Major O'Donnell wrote a tender letter to his wife (who, with Mrs. M'Nally, wife of the fore-going, had parted from the regiment at embarkation, and returned to Castlebar), and desired a lock of hair to be cut from his baby-daughter and sent to be cut from Crimes. It was affectionately done. But the mail which took out that letter met another homeward bound, with the official lists of killed and wounded of the 5th November, of whom there was "Sergeant Major O'Donnell, killed." That lock of That lock of baby's hair still wanders from office to office, or is buried in the confusion of Balaklava

It is pleasing to observe the respect, the affection, with which all the letter-writers of the Rangers speak of their gallant colonel—Shirley, now Brigadier General. Perremarkable, that, with forces which are represented as still undeveloped, and with army in the field of small numerical strength, compared with our resources and population, we should, nevertheless, have made such rapid advances in our outlay The result, however, admits of easy ex-planation. In the first place, it must be bserved that our expenditure upon army, navy, and ordnance, largely augmented though it has been, has not yet reached Dunning, formerly Adjutant of the Rangers. He entered as a private soldier in 1821, and rose through all the gradations of non-commissioned officers. He had fifty-six young gentlemen under him the other day; such an amount as it attained in the closing expenditure upon the army itself is by no means so considerable at the present moment, as it was at the periods to which we have referred. Of the £71,000,000 in 1813 and 1814, £44,000,000 in one year and £45,000,000 in the next were devoted to the army alone, whereas our present charges in this respect are still under £19,-000,000. On the other hand, if our naval charges approach more nearly to the old standard, we obtain fleets powerful and effective in proportion. In 1811, we speat something over £19,000,000 on the navy, an outlay which was continuously augmented by about an additional million in each of the three succeeding years, our present expenditure in this respect being between £19,000,000 and £20,000. In the ordinance, however, as might be expected, our charges are considerably larger than they were in the last war, being now over £8,000,000, whereas they were only between £5,000,000 and £6,000,000 in the year 1813.—London Times.

Nothing of importance has occurred in California since the last steamer, except the departure of 1. C. Woods of the firm of Adams & Co., for Australia, and the discovery of a bogus gold dust manufactory.

The San Francisco Chronicle says—

On Wednesday last a gentleman in search of some property belonging to him wont into the cellar of Parroi's building, on the corner of Montgomery and California streets, and in going in the vault under the place formerly occupied by Adams & Co's bank, discovered apparatus, which had evidently been used for the preparation of bogus gold dust. WE have been requested to give some information as to the culture of the grape in the open air, and in the absence of interesting intelligence, we willingly devote a few lines to this subject. There may, however, be those who have doubts whether the vine will grow in the open air in the climate of P. E. Island, to these open air in the climate of P. E. Island. to these we reply, that we have seen it growing; that there was, and we believe that there is yet, one growing and bearing fruit in Cherry Valley. The writer has two vines, raised last scason from seed furnished him by Mr. Simpson of Cavendish, which stood the winter without shelter or covering of any sort, except the snow, and have grown vigorously during the present summer. In the neighbouring Province of Nova Soptia, the white sweet-water grape is very commonly to be met with, perfecting its fruit in the open air, either against houses or walls, or upon trellises, forming an inclined plane. That with the same care, the same results will be produced in this Island, same results will be produced in this Island, we have not the slightest doubt.

same results will be produced in this Island, we have not the slightest doubt.

The vine is propagated by seed, cuttings or layers, as well as by grafting and budding or innoculation, but as these last presuppose an abusdance of plants already grown, we shall confine ourselves to the three first. By seed these must be sown in pots, and forced in a hot bed, then carefully planted out in the open air, but this is a very tedious method, as it will be some time before the plant comes to bearing, we therefore advise cuttings. These are from a foot to eighteen inches long, consisting of new or young wood, with a joint or two of that of the preceding year. They are planted so as to leave only two eyes above ground; some litter and mulch is then put about them, and they are carefully watered in dry weather; cuttings of this sort so treated, strike freely. By layers: this is effected by taking in the Spring of the year, a shopt, and cutting a notch in the stem, an inch or two below the eye, and firmly pegping it down with a hooked twig; the layer must be kept moist in very dry weather, but not too much so, as the plant will be likely to rot. Cuttings are, upon the whole, preferable, and we would advise those who have vines, to propagate them in this way.

If the vine is intended for ornament chiefly.

Cuttings are, upon the whole, preferable, and we would advise those who have vines, to propagate them in this way.

If the vine is intended for ornament chiefly, or for shade, it may be allowed to grow freely, but if fruit is required, it must be carefully pruned. The best way to do this, is to watch the cutting, letting it produce two shoots, which are to be carefully trained, rubbing off all others while young. Miller advises cutting these two shoots down to two eyes, about Michaelmas. In the next year, the shoots that are produced from these eyes are, at the same period, to be cut down to three eyes, and the same process is to be repeated, leaving each alternate shoot to form mother wood. Miller says:—Wines rarely produce any bearing shoots from wood that is more than a year old, therefore, great care should be taken to have such wood in every part of the trees, for the fruit is always produced upon shoots of the last years wood." We are thus particular, not that it is essential, that our farmers should raise grapes, but because, if it is ascertained that the linear is more than a decided to the undersity of the last years wood." We are thus particular, not that it is essential, that our farmers should raise grapes, but because, if it is ascertained that the that it is essential, that our farmers should raise grapes, but because, if it is ascertained that the climate is propitiatory to the vine under judicious culture, it is evidence, that Prince Edward Island is as favorably off in the respect of climate, as any other part of North America between the same parallels of latitude.

Gardening is the sister art of Agriculture, but the nearer the latter approaches to the former, the more perfect it is. To have it said, "it looks more like a garden than a farm," is a species of praise that every agriculturist should look forward to. And this is one of the reasons why, we think, that the art of Horticulture should be encouraged and brought to as great perfection as possible in this Island especially.

At Charlottetowa, on Thursday the 20th inst., by the Rev. David Fitzgerald, Mr. Angus McKenzie to Miss Mary McKay, both of South West River, New London.

Died.

At the family residence, on Sunday, the 9th inst, in the 58d year of her age, much lamented by her surviving friende, Mary, the beloved wife of Mr. Thomas Morris, of South Wiltshire, formerly of Bideford, Devon, England. Early in life the deceased connected herself with the Wesleyan body as a section of the Church militant, of which she remained a consistent member till summoned by death to participate in the blessings and glory of the Church triumphant. Her religion did not consist in outward form, or a mere nominal profession, bat in the renewal of the heart, whereby she was enabled to recken herself dead unto sin, but alive unto God through faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. CAPT. DANSEL Annort, Brooklyn, Maine, July 16, 1843, says: "I was taken sick one year ago, lest April, upon my passage from Havanna to Charleston, S. C. At the latter place I took medicine and procured a physician, but for ten days could obtain up relief, no sleep or apputite. At last taking up a newspaper having your advertisement of 'Hoofland's German Bitters' in it, I sent for some immediately, this was about 10 o'clock, at 11 o'clock I took the first dose, and another at 6 o'clock. The effect was so rapid on me, that I had a good appetite for supper, and rested well that night, and the next day found me a well man. I have not been without your medicine since, having been sailing between Baltimora, Charleston and the West India Islands ever since. I have now given up going to sea, and reside in this place, where you should have an agency, as you could sell large quantities of it."

Jos. B. Hall & Co., Presque Isle, Aroestock Co., Maine, April 24, 1854, say: "We herewith send you a certificate of a core performed by the use of only one bottle of the German Bitters, we think Mr. Clark to be a man of veracity, and have no doubt of the treth of his story."

of only one bottle of the German Sitters, we think Mr. Clark to be a man of veracity, and have no doubt of the trath of his story," Messra. Jos. B. Hall & Co.—Gentlemen—In answer to your inquiries, I will state that my daughter, aged about 16 years, had been complaining of a pain in her side, for six or seven years, and about the first January last, was taken down and confined to her bed. The pain in her side own and confined to her bed. The pain in her side own and confined to her bed. The pain in her side own and confined to her bed. The pain in her side own and confined to her bed in the pain between her shoulders and in her breast. From reading a number of cures performed by "Hoofland's German Bitters" I was induced to try it in her case, and sent to your store and purchased one bottle. She had taken it but a few days when she began to improve, and now, after taking only one bottle, she is enjoying better health than she has for years. She feels no pain in her side or in any part of her body, and attributes her cure entirely to the German Bitters. William Clark, Salmon Brook, Areostock Co., Me.

You should bear in mind that these Bitters are ENTIRELY VEGETABLE, thereby possessing advantages over most of the preparations recommended for similar diseases.

Medicine containing molasses or liquorice, like the beasted Sarsaparillas, require many large bottles to produce the slightest charge in health. The Forest Wine is altogether a different article. It contains no syrup to give it consistency, but acquires its excellent flavor and powerful medicinal properties from the vegetable plants of which it is composed. The Forest Wine combines the virtues of the

WILD CHERRY, DANDELION, YELLOW DOCK, AND SARSAPARILLA, with other valuable plants whose properties are all

most effective

Its high concentration renders it one of the most efficient medicines now in use. Sometimes less that a single bottle restores the liegering patient from weakness, debility, and sickness, to strong and vigorous health. Every dose shews its good effects on the constitution, and improves the state of the health. The Forest Wine is recommended, in the strongest terms, for all complaints of the Stomach, Liver, Ridneys, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Affections, Dropsy, Dyappeis, Loss of Appetite, Jundice, Female Complaints, Scrofula, and all Disorders arising from BAD BLOOD and impare habit of the system.

To Dr. Antronus,

Sir,—Your Hair Restorative is one of the greatest blessings ever invented. Several of my customers are quite enraptured with it, and consider it beyond all praise. I cannot deny, but that it has appeared to me quite wonderful, the alteration it causes after using it for a few weeks, it excels any thing of the f kind I ever used, causing a complete metamorphosis; giving the hair a natural curf, and even entirely hiding grey locks, esting nature at definance.

You may depend upon it, that it surpasses any thing of the kind ever brought before the public, and as to your Hair Dye. I can sell all you can send me, it is so unquestionably good.

BY RO YAL LETTERS PATENT. THE HYDROMAGEN, CORK SOLES,

Manufactured by HARCOURT BRADLEY & Co., 38, Aun Street, N. Y., and at London and Manchester, England.

THE HYDROMAGEN is a valuable discovery for protecting the feet from damp or cold, and therefore a preventive of many Lung diseases, without any dectoring whotever. The Hydromagen is in the form of a sole, and worn inside the bast or shoe. Its medicated character is a powerful antidote to disease.

For Gentlemen it will be found agreeable, warm and healthy, to wenr in the coldest or rainiest wea-her, as the foot cannot become wet, if the Hydromagen is inserted.

and healthy, to went in the coldest or rainiest weaher, as the foot cannot become west, if the Hydromagen is inserted.

Ladies may wear the lightest soled boots or shoes in the most inclement weather with impunity; while consumption, so prevalent among the young of our country, may be the arted by general adoption. They entirely supersede over shoes, as the latter cause the feet to perspire in a very unhealthy manner; and, besides, are not dangerous, wear to pedestrians in icy weather, like India rabbers. While the latter cause the feet to appear extremely large, the Hydromagen, being merely a thin slice of cosk prepared, peculiarly placed inside, does not increase the size of the boot, or cause the foot to appear untidy.

To Children they are extremely valuable, as they may engage in exercise, with consort and healthy effects. Their expense is so slight as to scarce need mention; hesides these who patronise them will find their yearly doctor's bill much diminished thereby.

As the Hydromagen is becoming more known, its sale is increasing to an almost incredible extent. Last year in London, Manchester, Birminghan, Liverpool, Glasgow, Leeds, Dublin, Paris, Antwerp, Hamburgh, and Berlin, our sales reached the almost incredible number of 1,732,430 pairs of cork soles. This year the number will far surpass that.

Ask the Faculty their opinion of their value as a preventive for COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, and CONSEMPTION.

ERYSIPELAS OF EIGHT YEARS' DURATION CURED.

Copy of a Letter from Geo. Sinciair, Esq., of Paris, Canada, dated the 18th July, 1854.

To Professor Holloway.

Sir,—I feel a pleasure and a pride in bearing witness to the wenderful benefit I have derived by the use of your inestimable Ointment and Pills. For eight years I suffered unceasingly from attacks of crystipelas; burge purple blotches came all over my body; in addition to the unpleasant feeling of itching and burning, which affected me both hight and day, rendering life a misery to me, as well as to all around,—so severa was the attack. I used several repu ed remedies without deriving the least cessation to my misery. At last, I determined to try your Distusent and Pilis; after taking them for a few weeks, a visible improvement took place, and I fee considerably better;—in three months, by continuing with your medicines. I was completely cured, and now enjoy the best of health. The unth of this statement is well known here, hence there is no necessity for me to request secrecy.

Jam, Sir, your respectfully.

ULCERS IN THE LEG.—REMARKABLE CURE.
Copy of a Letter from Mr. Edward Tomkinson, of Cape Breton. Now Scotia, dated the 4th
May, 1804.

To Professor Holloway.
Sir.—My sister, Miss Jane Tomkinson, suffered for a great number of years from a bad leg; in which there were several deeply seated and all wounds, delving the skill of some of the most eminent of the medical faculty, a variety of remedice were also used unsuccessfully; and it seemed to me that there was not any thing capable of mitigating the agenies she endured. At length, she had recourse to your Ointment and Pills, and after using them for about five weeks she was completely cured, after all inher means had failed to afford her the slightest relief. I have no objection to these facts being published, if have no objection to these facts being published, if you feel disposed to make them known. I remain, Sir, your most obedient servant. (Signed) EDWD, TOMKINSON.

Three Rivers, Canada West, dated July 9th, 1884
TO Professer Holloway.

Sir, —My wife suffered next exercity after the birth of our last child with a bad breast. There were several holes in it one as large as a hand; all the devices and statigens I tried would not heal them, but it assumed an aspect more frightful than before, and horrible to behold. As a last resource I fried your Ointment and Fills, which she persevered with for seven weeks, at the expiration of that time her breast was almost well; by continuing with your remedies for two more weeks, she wastentirely carried, and we offer you car united thanks for the cure effected. I am, Sir, yours truly.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Extraordinary Cure of a Bad Leg, communicated to Professor Holloway by E. Marchant, Esq., of the Gazette Office, Edgartown. Mass.—Mr. Daniel Norton, of Edgartown, had a soar on his leg, which defied all ordinary requedies, and instead of improving him he only bicame worse. At last, he had recourse to Holloway's Ointment and Pills, a few applications of the Ointment to his leg, effected a wonderful change for the better; it lost its awollen and angry appearance, and in a very short time he was completely cured. His leg is now quite sound, and he is able to resume his work; although eixty years of age! This astonishing unguent will cure wounds and ulcers even of twenty years standing.

The Great American Hair Tonic.

The Great American Hair Tonic.

Bogle's celebrated Hyperion Fluid, for the growth and preservation of the Hair is well known to be witheut a rival on this continent. Hundreds of imitations have started into an ephemeral existence since the introduction of this unrivalled Hair restorative, and their doom been canled, whilst Bogles's Hyperion Hair Fluid, with a popularity never attained by any other article, goes on "conquering and to conquer." There is no malady, which can affect the Hair but can be cured by this incomparable preparation. To ladies it is invaluable; and of children's heads it lays the foundation of a good head of Hair. It is now patronized by Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain, and commands an extensive sale throughout Europe. Bogle's Electric Hair Dye converts rad or grey hair into a beautiful black or brown, the moment it is applied, literally dyeing the hair without staining the skin and leaves the Hair soft and glossy without injuring its texture in the least; a decided superiority over all other Hair dyes.

Royal Agricultural Society's Cattle Show for 1855.

Best Blood Filly, The prevalence of incorrect notions upon the subject of medicine, is a great cause of miscry. Medical practice should be governed by principles cautiously deduced from the contributions of long experience and close observations. How important, then, that no medicine should be taken by invalids, anless it emainates from the hands of men of talent, indgment, sand the strictest probity. Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, Philadelphia, is a preparrtion emanating from one of the most celebrated practitioners of modern times, and one of the greatest medical writers Germany ever produced. This article is now in able hands, as evidence that the article is proposed carefully and skiffully, it is producing the effect the original inventor intended. It is used by many of the leading practitioners of Philadelphia in cases of debility of the digestive organs, and biliary apparates, and the diseases arising therefrom.
