The Lost Will; OR, LOVE TRIUMPHS AT LAST!

CHAPTER IX.
"I knew you would say that," she said softly; "and I have been trying to brace myself up not to take advantage of your good nature. But the moment you came into the room I felt as if you were the one person on whom I could rely. My good resolution to trouble you any further melted into thin air."
"As she spoke she went to the table and took up a packet of papers and documents, tied up neatly with the regulation red tape.
"Here are some papers about the estates which Mr. Horton gave me this morning," she said. "They were worrying me dreadfully, because they were things which I had to do myself, questions I had to decide; but now—" she turned to him with a smile that made Jack's heart grow warm—"now I'm going to place the burden on you."
Jack took the papers and, drawing up to the table, opened them out and ran through them.
"Ah, yes," he said. "It's Gibson's lease and the building of those new cottages in Church Lane. Now, the question is—"
She sat on the edge of the table and looked over his shoulder. She was so close to him that Jack could feel her breath stir his hair, and a strange little tremor seized him and his brain refused for a moment to continue its work; but Nora was so interested in the matter in hand that she was unconscious of her nearness to him.
"Oh, do explain to me," she said. "You won't mind the trouble? You see, I want to know all about them, and what is the proper thing to do for them."

"Quite so," said Jack, with a portentous gravity, and with a more or less successful effort to escape the spell of her proximity, the sweet, low voice, the touch of the sleeve of her black dress against his arm. "This is how it is."
He put the various cases before her as simply as possible, and she almost held her breath, so intent was her attention.
"Of course, these cottages ought to be rebuilt; but it will cost a lot of money," he said.
"Oh, but that doesn't matter," she broke in. "Does it?"—eagerly. "Pray have them rebuilt as soon as possible. And the lease—why shouldn't he have it just as he wants?" Then suddenly her face grew red, she slipped from the table, and stood beside him like a penitent schoolgirl. "Oh, I beg your pardon, this is your business; it is for you to decide. I am presuming."
"That's all right," said Jack, drawing a breath of relief for the removal of her close presence. "We'll build the cottages; but I don't know about this lease—he wants too much."
"I'll leave it to you; I'll leave it to you," she said, with eager humility. "Please do just as you think right."
"I'll see that you're not imposed upon," said Jack. "You and Mabel can go round with the beef-tea and the blankets; but don't you let them get you to promise all sorts of things; better refer them to me, or to all their tricks and dodges."
On her way to the door she looked over her shoulder at him and smiled. "I find it difficult to think of you as hard-hearted, Mr. Chalfonts," she said.
"Oh, they won't have any difficulty in thinking me so, you bet your life," responded Jack, cheerfully. "And now you and Mabel are going out for a walk or a drive, I hope?" he added.
"I wasn't going, but if you think I ought to do so—"
"Jack laughed and coloured; she was indeed relying on him.
"Oh, well, it's a fine morning," he said, "and you ought to get out and about; fresh air and all that, you know. I should take a run in the motor, or perhaps you'd like something slower—the victoria? I'll order it for you. Which shall it be?"

"That's just it," she said, with a flickering smile. "There seems so much, so many things; it is difficult to make up one's mind. I had no idea of what wealth meant—so many horses, carriages, and rooms. I get confused."
"The victoria will fit you to-day," said Jack decisively. "You want to go slow—get into things gradually."
"Very well," she said, as she opened the door; and Jack rang the bell and ordered the victoria.

CHAPTER X.

THERE was some slight confusion in his own mind as he went forth to perform the duties of the post which had been restored to him by Miss Norton. He had thought that he had seen the last of Chertson, but here he was, reinstated by the heiress. On his way to the village he met Horton, and explained the new state of affairs to him; and Horton nodded with a faint smile that indicated a kind of satisfaction.
"Miss Norton has acted very judiciously," he said; "but, then, she is very intelligent. I'm glad that you are going to stay here. The people, too, will be glad, for I find that you are popular. It's an excellent arrangement, both for you and Miss Norton, to say nothing of the estate."
Jack went down to see Gibson, and knocked reason into him; then went on to the old cottages which he intended to pull down; they were picturesque, but insanitary. In one of them lived a middle-aged woman, a woman with one daughter. They got their living by sewing gloves for a well-known London firm; the gloves were sent down ready cut out, and Mrs. Delman and her daughter, Maud, sewed them by hand; the pay was by no means poor, for the gloves were of the expensive kind, riding and driving.
Jack, as he entered the living room, found the mother and daughter at work; the woman was quiet and reticent, with the air of having seen better days; the girl was remarkably handsome, with a mass of auburn hair and eyes that were nearly violet. Jack, in a casual way, had noticed her beauty and once or twice had spoken to her when he met her in the village or called at the cottage, and now, while he was telling the mother the arrangements that would be made for her while her cottage was rebuilding, he watched absently the girl's slim and skilful fingers work at her glove.
"You do that very quickly, Miss Delman," he said. "I suppose you make a lot of gloves in the course of the day?"
The girl, colouring faintly, raised her eyes from her work, then dropped them again, and her mother answered for her.
"Not so many as we would like, Mr. Chalfonts. You see, they have to be sewn very carefully, and it would not do for a single stitch to give. But we manage to earn enough to live upon." She sighed. "But that is all; I feel that Maud ought to be doing better than stitching gloves; she is very fond of reading; she wanted to be a teacher in a school, but, of course, she could not pass her examination—could not afford the time to work for it."
"That's a pity," said Jack, in his warm-hearted way. "I shouldn't think it would take long to swot up the exam."
"And then there's the books," said Mrs. Delman, with the patient resignation of the poor. "They would cost too much money."
"Mother!" murmured the girl, scarlet now and bending still lower over her glove.
"I was only answering Mr. Chalfonts's question, Maud," said her mother, apologetically.
"That's all right," said Jack, quickly. "We must see if something can be done. I'll speak to Miss Norton; it's no use going on sewing gloves when you've set your heart on doing something else. Well, I'll get that other cottage in the lane ready for you, and let you know when you're to move in."
He shook hands with the mother and daughter—the girl's felt hot and trembled a little—and got outside; but he had not gone many yards before he heard footsteps behind him and a low voice timidly calling his name; it was the girl's voice, and Jack stopped. She came up to him, panting a little,

Shell Shocked Nerves

though not by reason of her haste, her face pale and flushed by turns.
"I beg your pardon, Mr. Chalfonts," she said, hurriedly, her hand plucking at her skirt. "I wanted to tell you, to ask you, not to speak to Miss Norton. I don't want any help—in that way."
"Oh, but what's the matter with it?" said Jack. "None of us can do without help in this world, and we shouldn't be too proud."
"It's not that; it's not because I'm proud," said the girl, her eyes, violet now in her intensity, raised to his, "but because my mother is wrong; I don't want to be a teacher. She thinks so because I'm fond of books and—and all that; and teaching's the only thing that appears suitable to her. But I—I should hate it! I'd rather go on sewing gloves for all my life than be mewed up in a stuffy school trying to teach stupid children."
"So would I," said Jack. "But you don't want to go on sewing gloves all your life," he went on, with a man's lack of wisdom; for he was struck by the intelligence which shone in the girl's beautiful eyes, by the quiver of the well-cut lips. "Then what is it you want to do?"
She paused a moment, her eyes downcast; then she flashed them up at him and replied, below her breath: "I want to be an actress."

Jack was staggered, but he did not laugh; it was really impossible for him to do so, in face of that rapt look, the strained eagerness of the girl.
"An actress!" he repeated. "Well, but look here—what makes you think you could be one? I mean, he went on gently, for he could see her wince, "ever so many people think they can act, if they have the chance; but when it comes to business—well, there you are!" he wound up, rather lamely.
"I know," she said, doggedly. "You think I'm a fool, a silly girl, like so many others who want to go on the stage. And I can't tell you why I think I could act," she added, with a gesture which had something histrionic in it. "I'm always thinking of it; I've learnt ever so many parts; I try them over in my room when I'm alone. Mother does not know, does not guess; she would laugh at me, as you are doing in your sleeve."
"I'm not laughing in my sleeve, or anything else," Jack assured her. "And it strikes me, my dear girl, that any one who bought you for a fool would lose by the transaction. So you learn parts, do you? That's interesting. Now, what parts do you know?"
Unconsciously they had walked on; the girl was bareheaded, but the fact would not have attracted attention in Chertson, because the village folk were wont to go about without their hats.
"I know Juliet and Desdemona, and one or two other Shakespeare parts," she said, timidly, and yet with a quiet, matter-of-fact air which impressed Jack. "Shakespeare's about the only book of plays I have, so I learnt those."
"I see," said Jack, wondering what he ought to do in this case.

Household Notes

Never let rising bread get cold. Celery seed improves potato soup. Cocoa should never be made thick. Every one should drink at least three-pints of water a day. Molasses will eradicate grass stains. Lefever mushrooms can be put in soup. It is economy to use butter only on the table. Sour cream used in beef and cream is delicious. Curry is delicious if used in chicken over ribs. Catsup may be served with grated cheese and butter.

Wholesale Murder Planned.

Washington, Sept. 18.—The betrayal of Roumania and elaborate advance plans of Germany and her Russian Bolshevik tools for suppressing and murdering loyal Roumanians, Russians and Poles, are exposed in detail by to-day's chapter of the astounding secret Russian documents which the American Government is giving to the public.

Other instalments of the series have described how the Bolshevik leaders, Lenin and Trotsky and their associates, were bought by the Germans for millions in gold and engineered their bloody overthrow of Russia for the benefit of their masters. Now the story is told of how while the Brest-Litovsk peace conference was still in progress, the Bolsheviks were sending hired agents into Roumania to disorganize the armies of Rumania, ally, de throne the Roumanian King, and turn loose the German army occupied there for service in a general offensive on the western front.

The exposure of the latest disclosure shows the Bolshevik at German direction, undertaking not only to kill refractory Russian generals, but to shoot individually and wholesale Polish soldiers who were refusing to go to the Germans and patriotically keeping the field against their enemies. One of the documents transmits orders from the German Intelligence Service to "take most effective measures, to shoot en masse against Polish troops" and to institute surveillance of institutions and persons, including the Roman Catholic Polish clergy.

Explanatory notes by Edgar Sisson, who obtained the documents, add many details lacking in the papers themselves, including a story of how the Roumanian minister barely escaped assassination after being arrested by the Bolshevik and released through the efforts of Ambassador Francis, and other diplomats.

WAR REVIEW.

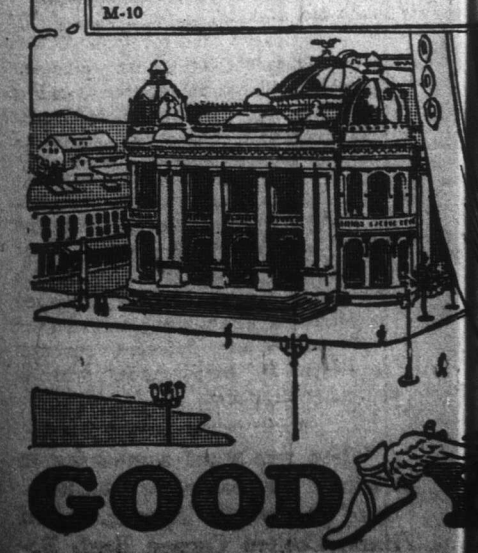

The Germans are in retreat on an important sector of the Western battlefield in France. The scene of the new retrograde movement is a wide front north and south of LaBasse Canal. The continuation by the Entente Allied forces of their brilliant achievements in restoring Belgian Flanders and the expulsion of the enemy from further territory in France in the region of Cambrai to Verdun, evidently has brought the Germans to the realization that the great bend in the line from Menin to the east of Arras is likely to prove another such trap as was the St. Mihiel salient, unless they are fast enough of foot to move eastward, giving up Lille, Lens and Douai and straighten their line from the vicinity of Cambrai to Belgium. On all the other six battlefronts from Belgium to Verdun the Entente forces are keeping up their successful advances, although the Germans everywhere except northwest of Rheims have materially stiffened their front and are offering strong resistance to further inroads into their territory. In Belgian Flanders the wedge of the Belgian, British and French troops has penetrated still further eastward and southeastward from Dixmude, and only a few miles more will be required by the Allied troops to give them positions by which Ostend, one of the German sea bases, will be made untenable, and indeed the entire North Sea coast now in German hands put in jeopardy. British warships are now violently bombarding the coast, and the Germans are reported to be moving their heavy guns eastward, fearful of their capture. Many additional towns have been captured by the Allies in this region and numerous prisoners have been taken. The important railroad junction point of Roulers is all but in the hands of the Allies, while southwards from Roulers-Menin railway at two places and are in process of investing Menin. The French are now in full possession of St. Quentin and have passed on eastward. The entire Hin-

WAR REVIEW.
The Germans are in retreat on an important sector of the Western front in France. The scene of the new retrograde movement is a wide front north and south of La Bassée Canal. The continuation by the Entente Allied forces of their brilliant achievements in restoring Belgian Flanders and the expulsion of the enemy from further territory in France in the region of Cambrai to Verdun, evidently has brought the Germans to the realization that the great bend in the line from Menin to the east of Arras is likely to prove another such trap as was the St. Mihiel salient, unless they are fast enough of foot to move eastward, giving up Lille, Lens and Douai and straighten their line from the vicinity of Cambrai to Belgium. British warships are now violently bombarding the coast, and the Germans are reported to be moving their heavy guns eastward, fearful of their capture. Many additional towns have been captured by the Allies in this region and numerous prisoners have been taken. The important railroad junction point of Roulers is all but in the hands of the Allies, while southwards from Roulers the British have cut the Roulers-Menin railway at two places and are in process of investing Menin. The French are now in full possession of St. Quentin and have passed on eastward. The entire Hindenburg system between St. Quentin and Le Cateau has been completely smashed by Field Marshal Haig's forces, and further ground has been won in the outskirts of Cambrai and north of that city. At one point north of that city the British were forced to give up a village under a heavy counter attack by fresh German troops. A band of Americans who had outdistanced their fellow-in-arms were surrounded on one sector by the Germans, but were released after two days, during which they killed many of their enemy who sought to capture them. Northwest of Rheims the St. Thierry Massif has been captured, and north of the cathedral city the environs of Betheny have been reached by the French. The Germans along the front are in retreat to their old 1917 line, and the French have reached the Aisne Canal at several points. The French in Champagne and the Americans on their right have made further gains against the Germans in the cleaning out of the Argonne forest and pressing northward on both sides of this bastion. In Palestine the British have occupied Damascus and taken more than 7,000 Turks prisoners.

FALL OF ST. QUENTIN SHAKES WHOLE GERMAN SYSTEM.
PARIS, Oct. 2.
St. Quentin is taken and the corner stone of the Hindenburg system has fallen, thanks to the prodigious and unremitting efforts of the armies of General Debeny and General Rawlinson under the general direction of General Fayolle the fine soldier who commands the group of armies in that sector. It is a most resounding triumph where victory smelted upon the Allied armies. Belgian forces strongly opposed are making headway towards Roulers and Menin. The Germans are preparing to evacuate the Lille region. British armies around Cambrai are successfully fighting one of the fiercest battles of the war. Gen. Berthelot is driving the enemy back between Rheims and the Aisne, and General Gouraud has reached Chaleraigne the important railroad center at the western opening of Grand-Pré. The same danger threatens the armies opposing Gouraud. Thus the first logical result of the capture of St. Quentin must be the retreat of the enemy from the Laonnois and Champagne sectors if he wishes to escape disaster, but it will not be enough that their line breaks up under the blows of the Allies. A general German retreat becomes more and more imperative. The problem for General Ludendorff is how to prevent it from being converted into a disaster which is the usual sequence of a retirement of masses closely engaged in a formidable struggle.

FAILED TO STOP PROGRESS.
LONDON, Oct. 2.
Two thousand prisoners have been taken by the French between the Vesle and the Aisne in the past two days. On the Belgian front the Anglo-Belgian troops have been subjected to violent counter attacks. Neither these nor the bad weather, however, has stopped the advance, although the combination has had the result of slowing down the Allied progress. The Germans are making a determined effort in Flanders as everywhere else to stop the onrush. They realize that if the Allies push even five miles farther eastward on the Belgian front, Ostend will become untenable, while an advance of ten miles would jeopardize the whole coast line.

PREPARING TO EVACUATE THE BELGIAN COAST.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.
Further evidence of German preparations of evacuation of the Belgian coast reached the state department today in despatches, saying hospitals, postoffices and the contents of storage houses of the German fourth army district were being moved back and turned over to the military government in the interior. German civilian authorities are being generally recalled and strict regulations affecting the maritime district are being enforced. Reserves in Belgium which were to be sent to the front by the Antwerp navy staff are said to be preparing to leave Belgium.

MEETING OF GERMAN PARTY LEADERS.
AMSTERDAM, Oct. 2.
At a sitting of the main committee of the German Reichstag on Monday, Vice-Chancellor Von Fayer read a decree of the Emperor, announcing the resignation of Imperial Chancellor Von Hertling. He announced that the former leader had called a meeting of party leaders to discuss the situation. Indefinite adjournment was then taken by the committee.

PUSHING INTO THE GERMAN LINES.
LONDON, Oct. 2.
The British are pushing further into the German positions on the front between Saint Quentin and LeCateau. Field Marshal Haig reported today that the Australians had finished the work of clearing out the German defenses south of LeCateau and had freed Juncourt just to the south of the enemy.

ENEMY WITHDRAWING.
WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY NORTHWEST OF VERDUN, Oct. 2.—
(By the A. P.)—German efforts to penetrate or bend the line between the Meuse and the Aisne dwindled rapidly today. A minor counter-attack some outposts scrimmaging and a half-hearted bombardment characterized the enemy's activity. The enemy to-night appears to be withdrawing on the American left. Broadly speaking, he is going in the direction of the junction of the Brunhilde and Kriemhilde systems. In the Argonne Forest Americans made progress to-day. East of the forest they are operating north of Clôges and hold positions on the road from Gesnes to Exmout. In this district there has been stiff fighting, local positions repeatedly changing hands until the Americans to-day established their supremacy. Since Sept. 26 the American aerial forces has bagged 100 enemy planes and 21 balloons.

MENIN AND ROULERS ON FIRE.
PARIS, Oct. 1.
(Havas)—The towns of Menin and Roulers, railway junctions in Flanders, have been set on fire by the Germans in face of the advancing Belgian, British and French troops. French guns now control the railway line running from Ostend through Thourout and Roulers to Courtrai. British monitors are co-operating actively in bombarding the German lines on and near the coast.

ASKING FOR TERMS.
LONDON, Oct. 2.
The Turkish commandment at Damascus has asked for terms for the surrender of the city to General Allenby's forces, the Manchester Guardian reports. It is expected that troops of the British army in Palestine will enter the city to-day.

FURTHER FRENCH SUCCESSES.
PARIS, Oct. 2.
Heavy fighting took place in St. Quentin last night. Resisting stubbornly the Germans were driven back to the east bank of the canal, according to the war office statement to-day. West and north of Rheims the French have made further important gains. The entire massif of St. Thierry is now in French hands. Northwest of Rheims the French have taken Porillon and Thil and have reached the southern outskirts of Villers Franqueux. North of Rheims they have pushed forward their line to the outskirts of Betheny. There was no change in Champagne, during the night.

BULGARIANS EVACUATING SERBIA.
LONDON, Oct. 2.
Serbia is being evacuated by the Bulgarian troops who are returning to Bulgarian territory, according to the Serbian official statement of Tuesday night.

ROBBING RUSSIA.
AMSTERDAM, Oct. 2.
The second shipment of gold from Russia to Germany has arrived at the German frontier and has been taken over by an official of the Reichbank according to a Berlin despatch to-day. Dispatches on Sept. 11 reported the shipment of the first portion of the Russian war indemnity to Germany, and its receipt by a Reichbank representative at the German border line. It was stated in an Agency message from Copenhagen that the shipment amounted to 25,000,000 rubles, one half of which was in gold and the remainder in notes.

FRENCH SUCCESSES.
WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Oct. 1. (By the A.P.)—
Three French armies won important successes to-day. While General Debeny's forces were passing through St. Quentin to Rouvroy, across the Somme, General Berthelot's army made a big gain on St. Thierry Massif, northwest of Rheims. Further east General Gouraud's army advanced still further north toward vital German positions. General Berthelot's men have virtually traversed the hills between Rheims and the Aisne. On that river they hold the left bank as far east as Converseux and have taken Bouvancourt, Harvelon, Trigny and St. Thierry. They are also in Lanoeuvre, a mile and a half northwest of Rheims. General Gouraud attacking along his whole front in the Champagne sector advanced north of Auro to within a thousand yards of Liry. Further east even more important results were obtained in the advance north of Bouconville and Binarville. His line was pushed on to Vaux and Lancon crowding the Grand-Pre-Gap and putting the German forces west of the Monthois-Voxieres line into a most awkward position. Their communications with the forces operating in Argonne Forest and east of it are virtually cut, which means that this region becomes untenable. German counter attacks in the region south of Liry were repulsed with severe losses to the enemy after sharp engagements.

ENEMY FIGHTING STUBBORNLY.
LONDON, Oct. 2.
The British have gained a little ground north of Cambrai but the enemy is fighting stubbornly on a front of five miles with 11 divisions. The only sector where substantial progress has been made is between the West and the Aisne where the enemy has fallen back to the line of the Aisne-Marne canal, north of Rheims.

IRON HANDS OF GERMAN STAFF.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—How the iron-hand of the German General Staff was extended into Finland through the German-paid Russian Bolshevik Government, is pictured in today's instalment of secret documents brought out of Russia for the American Government. There are also some peremptory notes from the German Military Intelligence Service to Trotsky, then the Bolshevik Foreign Minister, telling more of the story of the suppression of revolutionary propaganda in Russian provinces after it had played its part in throwing the provinces into German control.

When the Bolshevik were slow about opening the way for complete sway for their masters in Finland, the German Intelligence Service had "the honor" to remind them that the withdrawal and disarming of the Russian Red Guards in Finland must be completed immediately. Furthermore the Russian agents were directed to send to Finland a trusty agent to deal with Yarmo Haspala, Chief of the Finnish White Guards, who was disposed to be loyal to his country. This, Edgar Sisson, who procured the documents explains in a note, accounts for the sudden withdrawal of the Red Guards last March, leaving Finland to her fate. Some of the Russians resisted disarmament, but they were beaten.

A series of curt orders from the Intelligence Service to Trotsky call for the removal of all agitators from the Ukraine, Estland, Litva and Courland, and for the restoration of rights and property to German landlords who had been declared outlawed in Estland.

Other communications throw further light on assassination compacts between the Bolshevik and anarchists, which have figured in earlier chapters of the series. A list of anarchists hired as "agents for the destruction of counter-revolutionists" include several characters of international notoriety.

Are You Proud of Right Things?

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Pride is a splendid spur toward success in both doing and being. It is a very big thing if it is—if you are proud of the right things. But to be proud of the wrong things is to have completely lost one's sense of direction in the ways of life. I've spoken of various varieties of the wrong kind of pride before. And you've all met examples of it. There's the person who is proud of her handwriting so illegible that it is a bane to everyone who has to depend on it for communication with him.

There's the woman who is proud of her domestic helplessness, who was not brought up to know how to make her own bed and who regards this inefficiency as a distinction. (Thank goodness she is rapidly going out of style.) But the variety of wrong pride which has particularly impressed me lately is the almost incomprehensible pride which some people still feel in being able to evade government rules and regulations in regard to the war. Boasting of Being Able to Get White Flour.

Does it seem possible that a man would go about, in this day and generation, boasting that he knew an underground way to get white flour? Does it seem conceivable that a woman would say with pride (how that fine word is belted by such usage) that there was plenty of sugar in her house and that when it was gone she knew a way to get more?

While Babies Freeze to Death. Does it seem as if, while babies in the very city in which she lived were freezing to death, a woman could say that she thought these fuel regulations, these requests for us to wear warm clothing and keep the temperature down were all exaggerated, and that she always wore light dresses in the house because she thought they were prettier and that she intended to keep her house comfortable if her husband's influence could accomplish it and she thought it could.

Shaken Out of Oneself. Doesn't it seem as if even a commonplace, self-centered person would be so shaken out of himself by living in such stirring times that he would see things in their proper valuation and realize that to take advantage of special privilege in these days is as dastardly and not a boastworthy thing. Would you think there would be a man or woman left who wouldn't instinctively feel pride in doing as much as he could, instead of as little, to help win a war in which the happiness of the world is at stake?

MINARD'S LINIMENT CO., LIMITED. Gents—A customer of ours cured a very bad case of distemper in a valuable horse by the use of MINARD'S LINIMENT.

Yours truly, VILANDIE FRESSES.

Household Notes

Woolen yarn for darning should be shrunken before using. If you have a cow that merely pays for her keep, sell her. Geese less than a year and half old should never be plucked.

Celery gives an additional zest to almost any sandwich filling. Never leave an electric iron alone while the current is turned on. A little fuel put on often is the best recipe for a clear coal fire.

Save all lemon rind, dry it in the oven and store it in airtight tins. Mushrooms or mushroom catsup lend a delicious flavor to some soups. Raisin bread is an excellent substitute for cake in children's lunches.

To avoid sweeping in a sickroom wipe up the floor with a damp cloth. Watch the workers in your household for loss of time—time is money. In mixing flour and shortening for pastry use as little water as possible.

A few grapes give apple jelly a beautiful color and an appetizing flavor. Orange peel added to grape jam makes the jam decidedly more interesting.

The most important thing about taking care of a range is keeping it clean. Silk stockings will last much longer if washed each time they are worn.

THE WOMEN IN THE OVERALLS. Silken gown and dainty shoe. Time was that I bowed to you. Fluffy trills and furbelows. Scent of lilac and of rose. Snow-white hand and pretty face. Kerchief edged with dainty lace. In the days of long ago. You were beautiful to know. But to-day I hit my hat. To a braver garb than that. Better dress that silken gown—Overalls of blue or brown.

Widow, wife or sister fair. 'Tis a noble garb you wear. Shame on him whose lips would leer. Shame on him whose eyes would leer. As you pass along the way. Wearing overalls to-day. I would tell him to his face. You are in a soldier's place. You have put your beauty by. That Old Glory long shall fly. And these overalls you wear. Mean another soldier there.

Scent of oil and lather and loom. Take the place of gay perfume. Reddened hands, once soft and white. Faces, lined by care, at night. Weary forms that hitherward drag. Mark your service to the flag. Beauty, comfort, hours of ease. And the old days' pinnacles. You have given up to know. That another man may go. And because this garb you wear. There's a soldier fighting there.

Women wearing overalls. When at last the curtain falls. On this tragedy of life. And sweet peace shall end the strife. Great shall be your glory, then. Who have done the work of men. For the beauty that you gave, For the youth you couldn't save. For your strength, in happier days. You shall hear a nation's praise. By the flag that flies above. You shall own a nation's love.

Having purchased the greater portion of Mr. J. J. Strang's stock of Tweeds and Serges, we are now offering one of the finest stocks of Tweeds and pure Indigo Serges. See us about your next suit. SPURRELL, The Tailor, 365 Water Street. sep24.18c.1f

THE SECRET OF KEEPING YOUNG.

Mothers should realize that each generation lives differently and ideas of others are changing, and if she would go hand in hand with her children, she must be a student with them. Some people seem never to grow old, always seeming to be young and buoyant, carrying their years lightly. Their secret is that they keep the mind young and fresh by activity, the heart light and merry, and live above the little worries of life.

So remember that growing old rests much with oneself. If one wishes to grow prematurely old, discard youthful employments and pursuits, and settle down to elderly ways: just as some individuals become invalids, when by a little effort they might shake off their physical lethargy and raise themselves to health and vigor.

For a woman to change her daily routine of life to that of the younger set, she necessarily will have to conserve her strength and do a certain amount of training at the beginning. She must also take an inventory of her beauty possessions and where there is any deficiency she must make improvement. It may be possible that her circulation is not perfect, and that the veins of her hands are very pronounced. This condition may be remedied by indulging in proper exercise.

Such exercise should be taken standing; the arms are raised outstretched at the sides and continued high up overhead, and at the same time the body is lifted to the tip toes; standing so the arms are then bent at the elbows, hands lowered, and the feet rested flat on the floor. This exercise may be repeated fifteen times, each time the hands are lowered at the back and an effort is made to reach further down. This action brings about a better circulation and gives color and mystery to the arms and hands.

Kaiser in a Temper.

"AMERICA MUST BE PUNISHED."

Vivid glimpses of the Kaiser, by one who knew him intimately, are given in the "Flims," which publishes an installment of a new book, entitled, "The Kaiser as I Knew Him for Fourteen Years," by Mr. Arthur N. Davis, D.D.S., an American, who was the Emperor William's dentist from 1904 to November, 1917. Mr. Davis says:—One memorable interview I had with the Kaiser influenced me perhaps more than any other single factor to hasten the settlement of my European affairs and return home. It was in the autumn of 1916. The Kaiser had come to me for professional attention, and after my work was completed he remained to discuss some of the aspects of the war. Perhaps the fact that I had just returned from a visit to America made him more than usually eager for a chat with me. We had discussed various phases of the war, when the Kaiser changed the subject abruptly with the question, "Davis, what's the matter with your country?" "In what respect, Your Majesty?" I asked. "Why is it that your country is so unfaithful to Germany? Why do you persist in supplying munitions and money to the Allies? Why doesn't your President treat European warring nations the same as he treated Mexico, by putting an embargo on munitions, and letting us fight this thing out ourselves? You do not ship munitions to us. Why do you ship them to the other side?" I answered this question with another: "I have always understood, Your Majesty, that during the Russian-Japanese War Germany continually supplied munitions to Russia. Why was that any more justifiable than America supplying munitions to the Allies? Then, again, in the Spanish-American War, "Davis, you surprise me," the Kaiser interrupted, rising from the operating chair in which he had remained, walking towards me, throwing back his shoulders, and rising to his full height. "Cases are entirely different. When we helped Russia against Japan we were helping a white race against a yellow race. Don't ever forget that—don't ever forget that. But with America that is certainly not the case. Your country is acting from purely mercenary motives. It is a case of dollars, dollars, dollars." And each time he repeated the word he struck his partially helpless left hand violently with his powerful right. "America values dollars more than she values German lives. She thinks it right to shoot down my people." He had worked himself up to a degree of indignation which I had seen him display only on two or three previous occasions, and I must confess I was reluctant to start a fresh outburst by answering his arguments. His eyes, usually soft and kindly, flared fire as he advanced towards me, and slowly and incisively declared, "Davis, America must be punished for her actions." In that expression, which he repeated on subsequent occasions in precisely the same words and with the same measured emphasis, I knew that he revealed more clearly what his attitude was and will ever be towards this country. After the sinking of the Lusitania, American opinion on the war had changed. Dr. Davis told the Kaiser. (The dentist had been home to America for a short time and had learned public opinion.) The United States, the Emperor was informed, had become anti-German.

"Perhaps so many women and children were aboard he might have sent the torpedo," was the Kaiser's comment. "But what he was thinking of, naturally, was the 5,000 tons of ammunition on board which were destined to slaughter my people." The matter of Zeppelin raids upon London, Manchester, Liverpool, and other non-military centers came up for discussion. The Kaiser exulted in the killings by the great ships. "England expects to starve my women and children to death," he said, "but our Zeppelins will give their women and children a taste of war, too. Confound them! They sit on their island and try to starve us. We will give them a taste of what war is!" On Mr. Wilson's election as President this was the flattering comment: "I am much surprised," he said. "I didn't think your people would be so foolish as to elect a college professor as President. What does a professor know about international politics and diplomatic affairs?"

HONORARY TREASURER'S REPORT
As Honorary Treasurer of the W. P. A. I beg to present the fourth Annual Report of its financial affairs. In doing so, I have much pleasure in announcing that from every point of view, the year has been a banner one. The Balance Sheet, which is attached to this Report, shows very clearly the position in which we stand. A few comments are necessary to mark the difference between this and our last year:

We began in September with a balance of $3,098.83, and the amount raised since then, from every source, reaches a sum of $62,240.63, an increase of almost $30,000 over the previous twelve months. Of this amount $14,575.41 was received from outport branches to purchase material for them, and $3,979.70 from the Department of Militia for flannel for shirts, which the Association undertook to make for the Regiment, the Department paying for the material. We received from them in addition to the above amount the sum of $38.25, which was remitted direct to the vendors of the material; on one occasion, however, a hurried telegraphic remittance was necessary before access could be obtained to the Department of Militia, and the sum of $2,979.70, account of which appears on my books, is the re-imbursment of that remittance. After deducting these two items, we find that subscriptions from all sources amounted to $40,585.40, an increase of roughly $20,000 over the amount received last year.

Our total expenditure was $46,941.20. Of this amount $14,575.41 was spent in material for outport branches, an increase of $2,000 on last year. The balance of $32,365.88 was used at Sutherland Place for Red Cross supplies, wool, etc., an increase of $8,900.

The balance now on hand is $15,384.68. This sum looks very large, but in the new year, but it must be borne in mind, that orders actually placed for materials, to be used in the near future, amount to $11,000. And thus this large amount is quickly dissipated.

We begin, however, with the fullest confidence that the generosity which has supported us during the dark days of the past four years, will not fail us during this, the fifth, and as we believe, victorious year.

The books of the Association have been audited by Messrs. G. N. Read, Son & Watson, Honorary Auditors, to whom our best thanks are due, and the Balance Sheet bearing their certificate is tabled with the books and vouchers for your inspection.

Respectfully submitted,
KATHERINE EMERSON, Hon. Treasurer.

HONORARY TREASURER'S REPORT

As Honorary Treasurer of the W. P. A. I beg to present the fourth Annual Report of its financial affairs. The Balance Sheet, which is attached to this Report, shows very clearly the position in which we stand, but a few comments are necessary to mark the difference between this and our first year.

We began in September with a balance of $3,099.63, and the amount realized since then, from every source, reaches a sum of $32,240.23, an increase of almost $30,000 over the previous twelve months. Of this amount $14,575.41 was received from support branches to purchase material for them, and $5,973.70 from the Department of Militia for flannel for shirts, which the Association undertook to make for the Regiment, the Department paying for the material. We received from them in addition to the above amount the sum of $36.25, which was remitted direct to the vendors of the material; on one occasion, however, a hurried telegraphic remittance was necessary before access could be obtained to the Department of Militia, and the sum of $3,973.79, account of which appears on my books, is the re-imbursment of that remittance. After deducting these two items, we find that subscriptions from all sources amounted to $40,585.40, an increase of roughly $20,000 over the amount received last year.

Our total expenditure was $46,941.23. Of this amount $14,575.41 was spent in material for outport branches, an increase of $2,000 over the balance of $32,365.83 was used at Sutherland Place for Red Cross supplies, wool, etc., an increase of $8,000.

The balance now on hand is $15,288.94. This sum looks very large to begin the new year, but it must be borne in mind, that orders actually placed for materials, to be used in the near future, amount to $11,000. And thus this large amount is quickly dissipated.

We begin, however, with the fullest confidence that the generosity which has supported us during the dark days of the past four years, will not fail us during this, and as we believe, victorious year.

The books of the Association have been audited by Messrs. G. N. Read, Son & Watson, Honorary Auditors, to whom our best thanks are due, and the Balance Sheet bearing their certificate is tabbed with the books and vouchers for your inspection.

Respectfully submitted,
KATHERINE EMBERSON,
Hon. Treasurer.

WINTER COMING.

The leaves are turning brown and red, the cauliflower and rose are dead, the onion gone to seed; the frost has touched the columbine, the drooping fern and pumpkin vine, and killed the limon weed. This morning all the roofs were white, the frost had fallen in the night, the air was chill and keen; old winter once had waved his wings, and all the green and growing things were in the soup tureen. I'm glad that winter's on the way, and I shall greet the snowy day with rapture and applause; for I am tired of buying ice, which winter brings without a price, a gift from Santa Claus. And I am tired of men who fret because the weather is too wet for sunless heats and showers; and I am tired of men who sigh because the weather is too dry for growing wheat and oats. The winter's shy of growing crops and so we hear no plaintive yelps from sad-eyed husbandmen; and no one cultivates or hoes and no one plows or digs or mows, or tries to set a hen. The leaves are turning red and gold, the frost lies white upon the world, the winter is at hand, when we shall sit before the fire, and read a book or punch a lyre, and sing to beat the hand. Oh, winter, doubtless, when you're here I'll say you are a nuisance drear, but, as I look ahead, methinks you are a precious boon the which I wouldn't trade for June with all its roses red.

Our store is full of opportunities if you are looking to increase your savings account. Ladies' Fall and Winter Coats, $17.50 to $35.00. W. R. JOOBIE is last opp. Post Office, aug19,18

When England's need was greatest And her threatened Empire's call Was heard across the waters By the souls of freemen all; They responded to the promptings Of that spirit that shall stand In the annals of the future, To thy glory, Newfoundland!

Tell us not that you've forgotten Our distress by Suvla's shore— That Achi Baba's sight of tegeest Stirrs your memory no more— When the flood-gates of disaster Burst upon the British force And when our frozen bodies choked The mountain torrents course? When o'er thy peaks Gallipoli The blizzard swept, and fell On friend and comrade's camp alike We did our duty well.

And on the fields of France—we may not tell— Ye know the story, or we fought in vain.

"The best is not too good for our boys" Is fared in headlines on the city walls, 'Tis shouted in the market place, and by The leaders in our legislative halls. Ye talk of "service" if it aught avails Beyond the hollow sound of words of praise. Then show us "That the best is not too good." Or perhaps 'tis but another canting phrase?

ADVANCES IN NORTHERN RUSSIA.
ARCHANGEL, Sept. 30.
(By the A.P.)—British, French, American and Russian troops to-day occupied villages on both banks of the Drina River, to a point 125 miles north of Kotlas in the government of Vologda. They have advanced 75 miles in the past two weeks and are now about 375 miles southeast of Archangel. The river is blocked further south by both mines and barges which have been sunk in the channel. Up the Vaga River, however, progress is unobstructed, and the Allied forces are occupying the important town of Shenkursk. The aurora borealis is already flaming in the northern sky, in their advance up the Drina the land forces have met with virtually no resistance since September 21, when the Americans were subjected to heavy machine gun fire for five hours at Seltako.

GERMANS IN RETREAT.
LONDON, Oct. 2.
The Germans are in retreat over a wide front north and south of La Bassée Canal, with the British following them, according to Field Marshal Haig's report from headquarters to-night. The Germans have lost further ground to the British in the outskirts of Cambrai and northwest of Miry, but northeast of St. Quentin the British under a violent counter attack have been forced from the village of Sequehart, according to Field Marshal Haig's communication issued to-night.

OCCUPATION OF DAMASCUS.
LONDON, Oct. 2.
The official statement of the occupation of Damascus says: Palestine troops of an Australian mounted division entered Damascus Monday night. At 6 a.m. the city was occupied by the British and by a portion of the Arab army of King Hussein. Over 7,000 prisoners were taken. After its surrender with the exception of necessary guards all the Allied troops were withdrawn from the city for the time being. The local authorities remained responsible for its administration.

PROTECTING NEW YORK.
NEW YORK, Oct. 2.
Promulgating by President Wilson an order establishing a new, barred zone for enemy aliens embracing Rockway Point, all of Staten Island and New Jersey, 30 miles southward from New York, was announced here to-night. The object of the order, said Rufus A. Sprague, head of the New York Enemy Alien Bureau, is to improve protection of the port and its shipping, and to assist the authorities in guarding against possible communication between German submarines and enemy agents on shore. The regulations apply only to German aliens and reasonable time will be allowed persons affected by the order to apply for residence or travel permits, excluding them from enforcement of the order. Extension of the prohibited zone, it was stated, will guard the jaws of the Harbor extending from Rockway Point to Sandy Hook. In the Jersey shore barred zone will be Atlantic Highlands, regarded by the authorities as the most advantageous point for landing on the North Atlantic coast.

At Rest.

All that was mortal of the late John Jardine was laid to rest at Bay Roberts yesterday (Wednesday), when a large number of friends and relatives, including a deputation from the Masonic Fraternity, were present from St. John's. The funeral took place from the home of the deceased, on the arrival of the morning train. A short service was held at the house by the Masonic body and afterwards the Orange Society had a portion of their burial service read. The funeral cortege then moved towards St. Matthias Parish Church, preceded by the Masonic and Orange Societies and followed by the relatives and a large concourse of sympathizing citizens not only from Bay Roberts but from Harbor Grace and near-by settlements, testifying to the high esteem in which the deceased was held by all classes. Arriving at the Church the procession was met at the gate by the officiating clergymen, Revs. Canon Field and E. C. Clench. When all were seated several hymns were sung and the first part of the burial service read. At the mournful strains of the Dead March the procession re-formed and proceeded to the cemetery where the concluding portions of the service were rehearsed and the body of John Jardine was committed to Mother Earth, there to remain till the Resurrection morn "When father, sister, child and mother meet once more."

Night School.

The Commercial Night School reopened Tuesday evening, and was well attended. Classes were formed and received their courses in Accounting, Rapid Calculation, Business Penmanship, Business Correspondence, Business Spelling, Business Law, Stenography and Typewriting. A few students entered for Telegraphy, Mechanics, Mechanical Drawing, Mensuration and Land Surveying; while it was delightful, as the Principal, Mr. P. G. Butler, expressed it, to find no fewer than seven willing to study for the Business Educators' Examination of Canada, or the C.I.E. Intermediate Grade, whichever they preferred, in Commercial Subjects. An excellent report was given on the success of last year's work, which resulted in the placing of over sixty students in good business positions; that was a great help to the business firms of the city, and is appreciated by everyone. The advantages afforded of eleven typewriters, four new machines (Underwood's, L. C. Smith's, Remington's and Oliver's) will be for the Evening Classes, as well as the Day and Afternoon Classes, and all will have the privilege of instruction from an expert teacher in typewriting, Miss Freeman, who has graduated from what is said to be the best school in the world in this subject, Rose L. Fritz's School in expert typewriting. The all-finger touch method will be taught, and no doubt good results will follow. All the teachers of last year will be present, and additions made to the staff as required. The rooms are very comfortable and provision has been made for electric light and the comfort of the students; while three of the leading moving picture houses of the city have kindly promised Mr. Butler that they will oblige him with the use of films for the school moving picture machine from time to time, that will be both instructive and entertaining to the students, and a reward of industry. Returned soldiers have also been invited to attend.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES. 10.30 A. M.

FORGING AHEAD.
AT BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, Evening, Oct. 2, via Reuter's Ottawa Agency: Canadian Press Despatch from Reuter's Ltd.—Reuter's correspondent cables, although the fighting blazed up this morning with great intensity, later the infantry fighting decreased. Along the Cambrai-St. Quentin front we are busily engaged in mopping up and consolidating our gains. The Canadian attack, yesterday, anticipated the heaviest enemy assault which engaged two fresh storm troops divisions, hence there occurred furious fighting in which the Canadians gradually gained the mastery. The enemy is unquestionably beginning to feel the heavy losses sustained in war materials. He has for some time now employed liquid air as a substitute for high explosives. In the attack along the Canal bank, north west and southeast of Valenciennes, our troops relieved a party of Americans who had been surrounded the day before and had put up a magnificent resistance, though heavily outnumbered and the ground in front of them was strewn with dead Germans. We satisfactorily progressed eastward in various parts of the new battlefield. In forcing the Beaurvoir-Weaucourt line yesterday, the English thirty-second division bore a conspicuous part. The statement that the Germans fired Cambrai appears to be unconfirmed. It is now believed that the fire was caused by the burning of ammunition dumps.

Mineral Deposit.

An American mineral expert, who has been over here for some time, discovered and located by Mr. M. L. Parrell, declares it to be the very best in the world, and furthermore states that it is the largest. It is a fissure vein, whilst all others were only composed of pockets. It is at Fleur de Lys. Up to a few years ago, only a small amount of this mineral was used, Germany buying all that was available, which she used to harden her big guns which, in this war, we use on our big cities. Since the war, the Allies have tried everywhere, with but little success, to obtain the metal to use for the same purpose. This mineral is used for making dies, armour, and for hardening steel. The percentage in this deposit runs very high, according to our local analysis, and to the Munition Board, Ottawa, and also to the U. S. Assay Office, Washington. It runs in sand and ore, as has never happened before, it being previously only found in rock. The sand also has a big commercial value. The Allies will now be able to get the valuable mineral from the mine of Fleur de Lys. Operations will begin very shortly.

From Port of Spain, Trinidad, come advices to the effect that the dried fish market is firm and the "government price on Halifax cod is $8.9," while large Newfoundland cod of superior quality is bringing $6. These figures indicate that the scarcity of most grades of dried fish has influenced higher prices, and what is true of Trinidad is true also of markets as far away as Europe. Indeed, dried fish is so universally used that there is a shortage the whole world feels it.—N.Y. Fishing Gazette, Sept. 21.

Kink in the Back

You bend over and can scarcely get straightened up again. This comes on you so suddenly you can't understand it. This is lumbago. Like backache and rheumatism, it is the result of poisons in the blood. The kidneys are deranged, but the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will soon set them right. The pains and aches will disappear with the poisons when the kidneys do their work properly.

Personal.

OKA-THOMAS.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place on Tuesday morning, Oct. 1st, at Look-out Farm, Portugal Cove Road, the home of the bride's grandparents, when Mabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Thomas was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Staff-Sergeant-Major Charles C. Oka, of the Royal Nfld. Regiment. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Gordon Dickie, M.A. of the Presbyterian Church. The bride, who was given away by her father, was prettily attired in a travelling costume of navy blue with hat to match and carried a handsome bouquet of white asters.
She was attended by the Misses M.
Carmichael and V. Thomas, while the groom was supported by his brother Mr. Alex. Oka. The wedding march was rendered by Miss Gertrude Thomas, cousin of the bride. The groom's present to the bride was a gold wrist-let watch, to the bridesmaids gold birthstone rings and to the best man a shaving set. After the ceremony a dainty lunch was served and the happy couple toasted. Then several photographs of the wedding party were taken, after which they proceeded by motor and carriages to Waterford Bridge where the bride and groom boarded the express en route to Canada where the honeymoon will be spent. On their return to the city Mr. and Mrs. Oka will reside at 273 South-side Road. Both bride and groom are very popular, and were the recipients of many costly presents.

Obituary.

Philomena O'Neill, the victim of Tuesday's train accident, was laid to rest on Saturday morning in the Central Cemetery. The body, enclosed in a handsome casket, arrived at Holyrood at midnight Friday, and was waked at the parental home until 9 o'clock Saturday morning, when the funeral obsequies began. Undertaker Dunphy had charge of the funeral appointments and the casket was borne by six pall bearers from her home to the Star of the Sea Association Hall, where Rev. Father Finn officiated at the funeral mass for the repose of her soul. After the burial service had been read he very touchingly and sympathetically referred to the very sudden and sad death of the deceased young lady, and for the congregation and himself condoled with the grief-stricken parents and sisters in their very distressing bereavement.

The funeral service ended, the body was placed on the hearse-in-waiting and the funeral cortege wended its way to the cemetery, where her remains were interred in the family plot, beside those of her grandparents, amidst showers of tears from her sorrow-stricken relatives. Indeed the closing of that early grave was bathed with tears of truly loving and genuinely sorrowful hearts.
Death in any form is surrounded with sadness, sorrow and gloom; but to the young spirit of our dear friend, Philomena, who has winged its early flight to the better land in so sudden and tragic a way, all these are wonderfully intensified, and everybody seems filled with keen sorrow and sincere sympathy. The late Philomena O'Neill was a successful teacher, under the R. C. Board, Whitbourne, for the past five years, giving the fullest satisfaction to the Educational authorities and idolizing herself with pupils. She was the ideal teacher, her appearance pleasing, her mind keen and well-stored, her piety sincere. Reserved and taciturn, modest and gentle, she was the brightest picture in the family circle that death has so ruthlessly blotted out. Possessed with the earnest desire to travel abroad, and to join her sister Clara in Boston, she resigned her school and was emigrating to the U.S.A., when in the train wreck she was accidentally killed. Her handsome and costly polished oak casket, the gift of the Reid Nfld. Co., was covered with floral wreaths—the offerings of sincere and sympathetic friends; and the grief-stricken family have received numerous expressions of sympathy from all parts of the Dominion. To the parents, sisters and brother, John O'Neill, C.E.F., we offer our sympathy and pray that the soul of their loved and lost one has winged its early flight to the heavenly abode.—Com.

Men's Winter

is a specialty of ours and we advertise it a lot, as there is always, somehow or other, a lot of winter around Newfoundland. And sometimes people say, "Are you agents for Stanfield Under-

Perhaps we stock more Stanfield's Under-carry a large stock of Men's New Knit Underwear.

The "New Knit" is made by St. John's labor,
