"Captain Lettby was here. I wanted to stay—to say something to you."

"Well?"

"It is something impertinent, I don't know how to put it."

"Then leave it unsaid, please. I hate to be out of friends with people, Lord Francis, but I don't think I could suffer an impertinence."

Lord Francis looked excessively uncomfortable. "If only your father were in England," he sighed.

"Oh, it is advice you want to offer me," cried the girl, amused.

"Yes, advice, that is it," he caught eagerly at the word. "Advice, yes, a piece of advice which I would not dare to advance if I had not your welfare deep at heart, Miss Elliott."

His face grew passionately earnest as he spoke, and the girl found herself voluntarily growing earnest too.

"Speak, then," she said.

"It is about that woman"—he glanced out the words with an effort that was painfully transparent—"she was here just now, the Countess of Hohenstein."

"Ah!" the girl's eyes flashed and she clasped her hands across her knees. "The Countess of Hohenstein? Like that woman as you call her?"

The man almost groaned. "For heaven's sake don't allow yourself to like her!" he cried.

"She means you better, you, Francis, she means you harm."

"Francine!" echoed Miss Elliott springing to her feet; "you have no right to name me so, and less to speak ill of my friends. How dare you say such a thing to me of the Countess—and behind her back?"

Cressingham arose too. "I dare, Miss Elliott, because I once"—he gulped down a breath—"because I wish to be just now, the Countess of Hohenstein."

"The Countess asked me to give you this note," he announced abruptly.

"Ah, thanks," Cressingham crushed the paper into his pocket. "Are you going citywards?"

"I think not."

"Well then, good-day to you," with a nod.

"One moment, Cressingham, if you please."

"Ten if you like. Anything urgent?"

"Let us walk on." The Captain's face was troubled; they walked in silence for a little and stopped by common impulse at the corner of Dover street and Piccadilly.

"The fact is, Cressingham, I've wanted to speak to you for quite a while, but you're so infernally hard to get hold of, since—" he hesitated.

"Since I got the sack from the F. O., said the other grimly.

"If I didn't quite mean that but you've said it yourself. We used to be friends once, Cressingham."

"Once!"

"Well, I quite understand your manner when we met today left little to be explained."

"Booh!" blurted out the Captain. "It's not your part to be satirical; you are the deserter, Frank. The old rooms which you always shared with me are still there and never once have you come near me."

"I thought—"

"Never mind what you thought. You never gave me a chance. You resigned from the regiment without saying a word to a soul. You've never been to the club, never called at the mess. How can you wonder that your old pals are offend-

FIREMEN GET INCREASE;
PATROL WAGON NEEDED;

At the regular monthly session of the board of public safety last evening it was decided that the call firemen should have their fifty per cent increase for the full year commencing first of December 1906.

A committee was appointed to inquire into the cost and maintenance of a patrol wagon and a number of other matters were disposed of. The meeting was brief and adjourned.

Ald. Holder brought up the question of paying the firemen first and he moved that it be recommended to the treasury board that the men be paid half-monthly instead of monthly.

Ald. Pickett suggested that the recommendation should be that all employees of this department should be paid fortnightly.

Tenders for eighteen police coats were opened and the lowest bid was $1.25. The lowest bid was $1.25. The lowest bid was $1.25.

REV. M. C. SHEWEN IS RECTOR ST. MARY'S

Fredericton, N. B., Oct. 29.—At a meeting of the parishes of St. Mary's Episcopal church this evening Rev. M. C. Shewen, of Greenwich, Kings County, was elected rector in succession to Rev. Dr. Duffy, who lately removed to the west.

The election was decided on the first ballot, Mr. Shewen, taking twenty votes, Rev. Dr. Duffy, seven, and Rev. W. W. Raymond, jr., two. It is said that Rev. Mr. Dibblee was willing to accept the appointment only on condition that a portion of the parish of Margaree was added to his field, and this proposal did not meet with favor.

It is believed that Rev. Mr. Shewen will accept the call and enter upon his duties early in the new year.

ded? The fellows are thinking all sorts of things—this I know you're right.

"Let them think!"

"Oh, it's all very well to take that stand, but you are not treating them properly. They have a right to an explanation, and you know it, Vernon and I have stood your sponsors long enough. It's time you took a hand, or at least gave one of us the right to speak."

Cressingham's face softened. "You're a good fellow, Jack, but I can't yet, I'm too hot up."

"Abeard," cried the other sharply. "Don't you see how foolish you are? What's the use of muzzing the beauty thing? It's not the first time you've done it and gone to India or somewhere. Then they'd have understood your feelings and forgotten the whole business before this. But here you stay in the heat of things, avoiding everybody and not conceding to offer the slightest explanation. But here you stay in the heat of things, avoiding everybody and not conceding to offer the slightest explanation."

"It's kind of you, Jack, to come down on me like this. I know you're right. Well then, I'll see the Colonel; Vernon's a good sort, he has refused to send on my resignation—I got a note from him today."

"Good man. You'll stay on with us, then."

"If Vernon advises me—after he hears what I have to say. Fact is, I was damnably careless, Jack, and deserved the thrashing I got. But for an accident, I'd have resigned the whole regiment. The facts were not published, but you have a right to know. It was a Nihilist conspiracy, and the brutes made use of me."

The Clear might have been assassinated.

"Great heavens!"

"I was some to cutting my throat at one time, and would have, too, if they had called my honor into question."

"Don't talk rot, Frank. The F. O.'s stupid, but it never gets drunk, all at one time."

"I'm dashed glad to have chatted the thing over with you, old chap. I feel better now, I know I've done for weeks."

"Well, good-bye, old fellow. See Vernon soon, won't you?"

"The doctor says I've done for weeks."

"By, by—the-bye, dine with me at the club tomorrow night?"

"Very well."

Captain Lettby got into a handsome, and presently remembered that he had entirely overlooked his original intention of ruling his friend for his extraordinary treatment of Miss Elliott. But he soon forgot the whole matter as the recollection of Madame Vipella's bright eyes and certain speeches which had murmured in his ears. Indeed, so little is the heart of man, he forgot also his own devotion to his cousin and the fact that he had worshipped at her shrine for six long years.

Cressingham wandered moodily to his room in Jernyn street, and there arrived nervously placed open the Countess' note.

NEWFOUNDLAND WAS FULLY INFORMED

London, Oct. 29.—Answering a question in the House of Commons today, Winston Spencer Churchill, under-secretary for the colonial office, gave precise details of the steps taken by the government in the treatment of Newfoundland of the course of the negotiations of the modus vivendi on the fisheries question. He said:

"The decision of His Majesty's government that a modus vivendi was needed and their intention to make proposals to the United States government for such arrangement was communicated to the Colonial government, telegraphically, some days before the United States was informed. In the same telegram Newfoundland was asked to give her views of what form the modus vivendi should take, and no proposals were actually made to the United States government until the reply of Newfoundland was received. Throughout Newfoundland was kept fully and promptly advised by telegraph."

"His Majesty's government answered no communications of the United States without first consulting Newfoundland and endeavoring to obtain her concurrence. The note from the United States ambassador, ratifying the arrangement, was telegraphed verbatim to the colonial government the same day as it was written and received."

Financial and Commercial REVIEW OF STOCK MARKET BY J. S. BACHE & CO. OF NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—As the time for the election approaches, the speculative markets indicate a feeling of uncertainty. Prices last week, however, declined more on the state of the money situation than on political outlook. Ralids were made first by London traders and then by the New York bear contingent, and no resistance to speak of was encountered from the latter inside interests.

From "Ben. B. Lindsey: The Just Judge," by Lincoln Steffens in the November "McClure's." It was ten o'clock at night, dark and cold. The boy, sixteen years old, was strong, and his face was not very promising. The judge (Judge Lindsey) looked at the boy, and he believed in his "method." So when the door closed behind the officer, he went straight up to the boy.

"Do you mean that, Judge?" the boy asked, and the Judge thinks his impulse was to go. "You know what I mean," he answered, and for a moment the two looked at each other.

"Then," says the Judge, "I thought I saw a peculiar shadow cross his face, and I believed he understood. I went back to my table and sat down, I must confess it was an anxious moment for me. I wasn't sure that I had made out that boy's impression I hoped to make."

WHAT'S IN McCLURE'S The November McClure's is a striking number and will be remembered long beyond the usual term of magazine literature. THE EVE OF ALL HALLOWS Jack-o'-lantern's night is upon us. The hollow pumpkins, lighted by an unearthly glow, carved by boyish imaginations, will dance unobtrusively in the darkness, shining into house windows and frightening the good woman of the house, if she be a timid, lonely soul of her kind.

There comes a sharp tick-tock-tock on a distant window, outside doors slam, and the front gate gives a grating protest as it is torn from its hinges. And the children thing of the old ghost story--the creaking gate and slamming door of daylight; "Once I was happy--happy; now I'm miserable." They cluster round mother's skirts--the wee ones, who are too small to be out in the darkness among the mad crew who have raised the flicking challenge of Jack-o'-lantern--and their excitement is tinged with a fearful joy.

The board of health is now taking down more diphtheria cards than they are putting up, and although the typhoid cases are not reported, yet many doctors state that the disease is gradually dying out. In one house on Waterloo street there are four typhoid fever patients.

Little Jack Armstrong, who, it will be remembered, was injured some weeks ago by falling down the elevator shaft in his father's office, was taken from the hospital to his home last week. He is almost all right again, except for some trouble with his arm, which was so seriously broken. Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Armstrong feel very grateful to the doctors and nurses of the hospital for their very kind treatment of the little fellow.

The curling trophy, donated by the Lowndes Co., Ltd., Toronto, makers of the famous 20th Century Brand Curling, which has been on exhibition in Gilmour's window, King street, will be forwarded to Fredericton tomorrow. All who have not seen it, earlier particularly, should see it today or tomorrow. It is certainly well worth the effort of St. John curlers to capture. In addition, each member of the winning rink will be presented with a $25 suit or overcoat of 20th Century Brand clothing.

A new system of handling the conductors will be inaugurated by the Street Railway Company at an early date. An office is being built in the Indian town car shop, and two depot clerks will be installed there, one for day work and the other for night work. They will receive returns from the conductors, keep the men's time, the record of the cars and the time they go out and in. An inspector will be appointed who will travel over the line and see that everything is done properly. Architect Brodie has completed his plans for the new car shops in Carleton and is now calling for tenders for the work.

A NEW LODGE OF PYTHIANS

St. John Lodge Will be Formally Organized on November 12th.

At a largely attended meeting in the Orange Hall, Simonds street, last evening, a number of matters, preliminary to the organization of the new Lodge of Knights of Pythias to be formed in the north end, were disposed of. Alfred Dodge, chancellor commander of Union Lodge No. 2 occupied the chair and gave valuable assistance in getting matters properly arranged. During the evening he delivered a stirring address on the aims of Pythianism. It was decided that the new lodge would be known as St. John Lodge. Officers were nominated as follows:-- G. C. Joseph Irvine, V. O.--J. Cecil Mitchell, P.--Wm. M. Sanborn, M. of W.--James Boyd, M. of A.--E. E. Baxter, K. of R. & S.--W. Earle Anderson, M. of T.--Dr. H. B. Nasse, M. of E.--Wm. H. White, J. G.--Oscar Price, O. G.--Henry McIntyre, 1 year; B. Trustees--R. P. Hamer, 1 year; B. Dyleman, 2 years; W. H. Turner, 3 years.

A communication was ordered sent to Grand Chancellor Marx, of Halifax, asking him to come to this city on Monday, November 12 to organize the new lodge. The charter is now complete, though the members who have secured more than double the number of names. Those who did not get their names on the charter will be given an opportunity to join in the regular way as soon as the lodge is instituted. It has been decided to have the institution ceremonies in the Pythian Hall on German street and great preparations are being made for the big event. Grand Chancellor Marx will bring a team from Halifax to work the first rank and members of New Brunswick No. 1 and Union No. 2 will work the second and third ranks.

SMALL FIRE IN CORNWALL MILL

Fire Started in Bin of Raw Cotton and Damage Done Was Slight.

An alarm was rung in from box 231 for a fire in the Cornwall cotton mill about 11.15 this morning. The firemen quickly responded and the blaze was subdued without much trouble. The cause was discovered by the night watchman, who rang in the alarm and also blew the mill whistles, bringing quite a number of the millmen to the scene. These were discovered in a bin of cotton in the opening room. The bin was full of raw cotton at the time. It is thought that a spark got in the fluffy material as one of the machines was running and it probably smouldered for hours before it finally burst forth. The only damage done was to the cotton. There is no machinery that would be injured, by water in the room and whatever was likely to have been affected was covered by the salvage corps. The mill is running as usual, and the fire will not interfere with the filling of orders or in fact any of the work to any extent. Officers of the company say the loss will be slight.

SALVATIONISTS WERE ATTACKED

There was a disagreeable scene on Charlotte street last night about 12 o'clock when a number of rowdy youths assaulted some of the Salvation Army bandmen. It seems that the bandmen who are visiting here in connection with the annual congress of the army, were returning from a meeting, accompanied by some ladies, to their lodgings and in passing the Alarct building, a number of youths who evidently had been drinking enough to make them feel fresh, approached from the opposite direction and made some insulting remarks. One of the party then bumped into one of the bandmen, an elderly man, with considerable force. This was followed by one of the youngest officers and he spoke rather sharply to the young men about their conduct. The youths thereupon set upon the bandmen and ransacked him severely before his comrades realized what was going on. They then came to his rescue, one of the party dropping a parcel of fruit in doing so. The rowdy were driven off, though it was a matter of regret to many that the army men did not give them the thrashing they deserved. Instead, however, they contented themselves with peacefully continuing their way to their lodging house, followed by vile remarks from the assailants. The bandman who was set upon had his clothes dirtied considerably from being knocked down and his hat was lost. It was greatly to be regretted that a policeman was not around at the time as a trip to the police court would have laid down the law. The bandmen are mostly Englishmen who came from the old country as immigrants and had they been so minded would probably have made their assailants look like thirty cents, if they had returned the attack in kind.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE

The Boer war is of interest to Canadians and particularly to St. John people, as many of our citizens were there or had friends there. The Ellis Co. will present at the Opera House Monday night, the strong play of Zira, two acts of which are laid in South Africa during the war and the uniforms of both the English and Canadian troops will be strongly in evidence. Miss Helen Astroy is at her best in this very strong part. There will also be new features as the two new members, Manager Ellis brought from New York, will make their first appearance. Miss Longfellow will do a fine musical specialty between acts. Monday, November 12th, the great melo-drama of Knobe O' Tennessee, will be given.
