EDUCATION AND IMMIGRATION REPORTS HEARD

Plea on Behalf of Canadian Magazines Is Made

SAINT JOHN WORK Death of Mrs. N. S. Dougherty, of Fredericton, Referred to With Regret

THE sorry spectacle which so often appals thinking Canadians of different parts of the Dominion, struggling for their different interests or disregarding the claims of others, was the way Miss W. Gordon, of Kingston, Ont., national educational secretary, described a situation in this country, in her annual report submitted today at the forenoon session of the second day of the annual meeting of the National Chapter of Canada, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, at the Admiral Beatty Hotel. Miss Gordon's report and that of the Committee on Immigration, made by Mrs. C. C. Hearn, of Brandon, Man., conveners, were considered two of the most important to be laid before the delegates.

High Spots in I. O. D. E. Meet

"CANADA is always regarded as the keystone in the arch of the British Dominions, the very star and leader of them all, and it is our proud privilege to keep her so and to stand on guard for Canada."

MORNING SESSION

After the session was called to order by the national president, Miss W. Gordon, of Toronto, and the devotional office said, the minutes of the previous sessions were approved and the roll called.

NEW CANADIANS

"The policy of allowing our New Canadians to settle in colonies or communities seems to be exceedingly detrimental to their becoming Canadianized. In communities such as the Doukhobors, Menonites, etc., in which they have been allowed to settle, they live to themselves in absolute isolation from all Canadian influences, are almost entirely self-contained, often refusing to allow their children to attend the schools provided for them, and under these circumstances it may be generations before they become familiarized with Canadian habits and characteristics. If our new Canadian people were scattered among British or Canadian settlers, they must of necessity imbibe our national customs and ideals."

SOCIAL CLUBS

"I might mention that one of the most fruitful efforts along Canadianization lines that has come under my notice is the founding and carrying on of social clubs for new Canadian girls (the future mothers), and this can so properly be done in many cities, towns and villages under the auspices of I. O. D. E. chapters, or by I. O. D. E. members."

On the vote, Senator Robertson, former Minister of Labor, was the only Conservative to support the bill. Sir Allen Aylesworth, Senator J. J. Hughes and Senator Turfitt, all from the government side of the House, voted with Conservatives against the bill.

ANOTHER expedition into the far north gets under way this month—the American Museum of Natural History's scientific cruise. No attempt will be made to reach the pole as the aim of the expedition is simply to study animal and plant life in the arctic. Photos show Captain Robert Bartlett, Carl Durand and the converted Newfoundland fishing schooner, "Morrisey" in which the voyage will be made. Captain Bartlett was a member of Peary's 1909 Pole expedition and is, today, the only living white man who has come within 100 miles of the North Pole on foot. Carl Durand plans to use his famous lariat on muskox and walrus.

Rt. Hon. A. Meighen Tells of Auto Industry Tariff Adjustments Made

WINNIPEG, Man., June 9.—Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader and leader of the opposition in the House of Commons, told the Manitoba Conservative Association annual convention last night that adjustments made in the budget within recent days had brought the protection to the automobile industry nearly back to the level at which it had been before the budget was introduced. The removal of the five per cent luxury tax announced Monday, he said, was equal to increasing the duty on low price cars to 37 per cent. Mr. Meighen spoke for an hour. Of all the deeds of the King administration, its position on the tariff was the most malodorous, he declared.

Attempt To Steal $150,000 Worth of Alcohol Frustrated

CHICAGO, June 9.—Theft of $150,000 worth of government alcohol was averted in a Chicago warehouse early today when two bandits were frightened away by the shooting of government guards. The alcohol was being guarded in the Fred Japp warehouse by three government guards. Shortly after midnight the bandits entered, overpowered the guards and bound them in an adjoining room after an exchange of shots. The guards, after several hours, released themselves and telephoned a report of what they assumed was a robbery. They told of hearing the bandits drive away in a motor truck carrying with them the 195 drums of alcohol. The police freed the guards, and discovered that the bandits had fled without touching the alcohol.

LONDON, June 9.—Representatives of the miners and mine owners, after difficult underground negotiations, were finally brought together yesterday in an atmosphere hopeful of settling the strike of miners, now in its sixth week, but the meeting only leaves matters worse than before. SAINT JOHN, N. B., JUNE 9, 1926.

FLOWERS AND FIRES.

It is a very disheartening reflection on the mentality of a section of the population of Saint John that in one day we should read of the destruction of a bed of tulips in King Square and also a column warning against fire carelessness issued by the Common Council.

The wanton destruction of flowers in our central public square draws attention to a state of utter disregard for the rights and pleasures of others. That only a small minority are so afflicted with spiritual blindness that they are unable to appreciate natural beauty and are unwilling to let others enjoy it may be readily assumed. The insensate stupidity of those who will destroy and uproot flowers is, however, a symptom of a worse disease—an utter insensibility to the finer things of life, and, in particular, an egotistic determination to turn liberty into license.

From a state of mind which leads to stupid vandalism it is only one step to more dangerous vicious destruction in wholesale, such as incendiarism. While Goths are at large in our city none is safe. But though it may be a comparatively easy matter to put a stop to the activities of hoodlums, the careless man is an awful menace because there is no yardstick by which to measure his potential folly.

The Commissioner of Public Safety rightly advised that the question of fire prevention be taken up in the school and the home. Education along these lines is invaluable and may save many a fire ten or twenty years hence. That is correct and His Worship the Mayor is also right when he says that those most in need of instruction are past school age. The hazard is present now and must be countered at once.

In a city like Saint John, where wooden buildings still preponderate, fire is an appalling danger and is careless in this regard is a danger to the whole community. Once again, the only way to get at those whose folly imperils the life, property and prosperity of their fellows is by the exercise of public opinion. May the offenders outcast and their numbers will diminish rapidly. Also the effect of public opinion on the fraternity of fools will be infinitely greater than a dozen prosecutions.

It is time the sensible people of Saint John awoke to their individual responsibility in this matter. They have it in their own hands to put a stop to all stupid destruction and wanton carelessness in their midst, and the sooner they get busy, the better.

A NEW COAL ERA.

The coal crisis in Great Britain has so far been a mechanical one of the race to work to devise means of overcoming the heavy costs of production. One method suggested is the "carbonisation" of coal before it is sold for domestic or industrial purposes. Mr. John D. Troup, writing in the Weekly Telegraph says this principle is being adopted as a national policy. Such a process he believes will have a very close relationship with the process of "winning" the coal from its present position underground.

He writes of this plan, in part, as follows:

Remembering that the carbonisation of coal calls for the breaking-up of the original raw material into small pieces—in some cases powdered form—the natural thought which arises in one's mind is, why not hack the coal out of the original seams in small pieces? Imagine an electrically-driven cutter traveling along the coal seam, like a lawnmower cutting the grass, and imagine further a suction pipe like that on our home vacuum cleaner attached to the coal cutter; then it is clear that small coal in a continuous stream could flow from the coal seam direct to the carbonisation plant on the surface, without ever being touched by the human hand.

We can cut coal by machinery and we can also move and lift coal through pipe lines by means of air currents. It is therefore within the bounds of possibility to carry through the above idea.

Such a scheme has had no particular attraction in the past, because there would be difficulty in disposing of the small coal; but the coming of the carbonisation process will completely revolutionize our ideas on coal "winning," and also, of course, completely change the working conditions of the miner; in fact, he will no longer be a miner.

ROMANCE

Last night I discovered rich treasure. In a wind-swept and wave-beaten cove. Jewels and gold in boundless measure. A buccaner's long buried trove. I tasted the sweet draught of unshackled youth. And rescued fair maidens from their fate. I swung a bright sword for beauty and truth. And killed Minotaurs in their caves. Prehistoric pachyderms trembled and died. As the stones from my sling sealed their fate. Fair Helen the Trojan gazed at me with pride. As I calmly slew Alex the Great. Then the "Missus" appeared with our sunny-haired laddie. As Rome was preparing to fall. She smiled as she told me he'd learned to say "Daddy."

POEMS I LOVE

"Parting," by Emily Dickinson. ONE of the most astonishing talents in American literature is that of Miss Dickinson. She was born at Amherst, Mass., and lived a life of seclusion. Had it not been for Thomas Wentworth Higginson, her remarkable work might have remained unknown for many years. He and Mabel Todd edited her first books. Her work is marked by an amazing brevity. She seems to have peered into Eternity, read the hidden meanings of inanimate objects—a true mystic. It seems to me a genius if ever there was one. Sometimes her words are as keen as swords, cutting into the very heart of life. These eight lines have always been among my favorites: My life closed twice before its close; It yet remains to see If immortality unwell A third event to me, So huge, so hopeless to conceive, As these that twice befell. Parting is all we know of heaven, And all we need of hell.

Queer Quirks of Nature

THIS BUG ISN'T A REAL BUG, AFTER ALL. By ARTHUR N. PACK, President, The American Nature Association. SO-BUGS are known to every country, boy whose mother makes him stay home on Saturday to clean up the woodshed and the back yard, when he wants to go fishing with his chums. As he takes out the rubbish, he finds the damp boards, in the shaded spots, horde of slime-loving creatures, which scurry about seeking some similar noisome but congenial retreat. They have flat bodies made up of jointed, flattened rings and on each of the principal shell-like segments is a pair of short legs—about seven pairs of them. If the creatures cannot find shelter, they will roll up into a ball, looking somewhat like a seed. This habit has given them another name, the pill-bug, for they resemble somewhat the old-fashioned, roughly shaped hand-made pills. To the boy and his mother, and to most of us, then, they are so-called and it is somewhat of a surprise to learn that they are not bugs at all, not even insects. They are related to the lobsters and crabs and cray-fishes. Had we counted their legs, we would have known they were not insects, for all insects in their adult state have only six legs. The so-called bugs, like their close relatives, breathe by means of gills and, unlike most true insects, their young are like in appearance to themselves. Under ordinary circumstances so-called bugs are harmless creatures, living in their billions about the borders of salt marshes, or in our back yards, in other surroundings, however, as in greenhouses, where the moist air helps to provide a congenial habitat, they may feed on the tender roots of orchids or ferns, and become somewhat of a pest. GOOD REPORTS RECEIVED AT I.O.D.E. SESSION

Life Membership Conferred on Lady Byng by National Chapter
SURPLUS SHOWN IN GENERAL FUND
Name of New Governor-General is Received With Applause

LIFE MEMBERSHIP in the National Chapter of the I. O. D. E. was conferred on the honorary president, Lady Byng of Vimy, as a tribute to the wife of the one-time Commander of the Canadian Overseas Corps in France, by the National Chapter in annual session in the Admiral Beatty Hotel Ballroom last evening and this tribute was paid with hearty unanimity. It was announced by Miss Church at the evening session that Lord Willingdon had been appointed Governor-General of Canada and the announcement was greeted with applause.

Yesterday, the first full day of general sessions, many important reports showing the great scope and progress of I. O. D. E. work were presented, and in the evening there was a prolonged discussion of the desirability of having amendments made to the constitution or of dropping a constitution and having the charter and by-laws suffice. Miss H. M. Church, of Toronto, National president, was in the chair, except when she invited other officers to preside.

TREASURER'S REPORT.
 An excellent report was given by the national treasurer, Mrs. J. U. Power, of Toronto, showing an actual surplus of $1,105.68 in the general fund. Contributions to the War Memorial during the year were $184.87, and disbursements about half that amount leaving a balance of $404,834.89. In the general fund the balance was given as $11,207.42.

Reports of the work in the various provinces were presented and outstanding among the work accomplished was the appointment of a paid worker for Canadianization of the adult foreign born by the Alberta I. O. D. E., and an undertaking by Saskatchewan I. O. D. E. to provide maintenance up to one year of age for the children of tubercular mothers, patients in a sanatorium.

LIFE MEMBERSHIPS.
 The following life memberships issued during the year were ratified: Mrs. E. B. Chandler, Moncton; Mrs. J. A. Murray, Mrs. A. D. Allan, Mrs. A. F. Rutter, Mrs. C. Sampson and Miss Margaret Deacon.

Miss Joan Alford read the report of the committee on the constitution which was adopted, making it necessary to have a two-thirds vote and favor of disbandment by the chapters having jurisdiction before a chapter disbands, and allowing girls of 16 to receive as members of a primary chapter, but not to hold office until 18. It was pointed out that next year would conclude the work on the consideration of the constitution and only 10 or 12 amendments had been proposed in four years.

ADDITIONAL REPORT.
 The committee presented an additional report, giving recommendations to be made at the next annual meeting, and advocating simplification of the machinery of the order.

Miss Charlotte Whitten, it was announced would give her child welfare report on Thursday night at 8.30.

The invitation of Mrs. H. F. McLeod, provincial president for New Brunswick, for the delegates to visit Fredericton next was announced at the opening of the afternoon session.

NATIONAL SECRETARY.
 The report of the national secretary, Mrs. P. M. Nicholson, referred to the visit of distinguished visitors from England, the welcoming of whom had been a means of cementing the ties between the Motherland and Canada. Besides their many everyday activities the chapters had been urged to take up the marking of historical landmarks and cooperation with existing historical associations; counteraction of communist propaganda; the encouragement of British films; the establishment of an Empire shopping week in Canada; cooperation with the government in a "Save the Forest" campaign, and cooperation in the scheme of Dr. Do Little for planting trees along the Trans-Canada highway. Special appeals supported were the National War Memorial in the proposed Sir George Parkin memorial library at Oxford and the obstetrical hospital in London. Miss Charlotte Whitten's appointment to the League of Nations child welfare committee was referred to with pride and Sir Fabian Ware's visit and addresses on the Imperial War Graves were specially referred to. Sir Fabian's ideas are new in the possession of the Order. Trophies to be competed for annually by the eastern and western divisions of the I. O. D. E. were purchased with the offertory money of last year's Intercessory service. Feeling reference was made to the loss the Empire sustained in the death of Queen Alexandra.

APPOINTMENT FUND
 It is very gratifying to report the marked improvement in the Apportionment Fund this year. The figures are $4,652.13—more than double those of last year. The Provincial Chapter of New Brunswick again carries off the honors in regard to the payment for National Pans for 1925. By December 3 the fees for every primary chapter in the province had been received.

ORDER NEEDED IN CANADA.
 The national organizing secretary, Mrs. M. E. Brotherhood, Elkhorn, Man., expressed the opinion that the order was needed in Canada today even more than in any other country. Her report stated that in the year were 17 primary and four Children of Empire. She urged historical names being chosen for new chapters. Provinces reported as follows: Alberta, 40; Saskatchewan, 51; Manitoba, 29; Ontario, which organized 14 new chapters, had a total of 284; Quebec, 89; New Brunswick, 30; Nova Scotia, which alone did not lose one chapter, 32; Prince Edward Island, two; and Yukon, three. There were 19 chapters reported disbanded, but three were disbanded in the previous year. Mrs. Griffith, of British Columbia, expressed appreciation of Mrs. Brotherhood to that province. Mrs. J. H. Spence, Toronto, "Echoes" secretary, in her report, showed a surplus of $728.62 for the year. Last year there was a loss of about $210. She appealed for a 20,000 subscription list for the ensuing year and introduced Mrs. O. C. Peace, the editor, who was warmly applauded. Mrs. H. F. McLeod recommended adoption of the plan followed in New Brunswick, where the Echoes subscription was added to the primary chapter fee. Miss Lucy Doyle, Toronto, pleaded for support of the magazine in order that the subscription list might be doubled and monthly instead of quarterly issues be published. Mrs. W. H. Burns pointed out that all surplus from Echoes was given to the schemes of the order.

THANKS FOR FLOWERS.
 Mrs. Bridges, of Fredericton, wrote to thank the I. O. D. E. members for flowers sent to her when she fell and injured her arm at the last annual meeting.

Mrs. H. F. McLeod was chairman while provincial reports were presented. Mrs. Marion Morrow, of Nova Scotia, told of the I. O. D. E. home for mentally defective in Halifax and two girls cared for. A mental hygiene survey was to be undertaken in Nova Scotia shortly. Child welfare work made to "settle the settler." The I. O. D. E. members were erecting war memorials, aiding hospitals, and appealing for special British films being shown on national holidays and in support of Canadian magazines and home products strongly urged. One member gave a $100 prize for a Christmas card design.

MANITOBA'S REPORT.
 Manitoba report was given by Mrs. Wilson Smith, who expressed the regret of the president, Mrs. Colin Campbell, at being unable to attend. The report urged every endeavor be made for the presentation of a ceremony for the presentation of flags should be prepared. The amount of the province's chapters indebtedness to the I. O. D. E. was memorial was asked for. In the report immigration work was appealed for as well as Canadianization work and support of Canadian magazines and home products strongly urged. One member gave a $100 prize for a Christmas card design.

The Foolish Husband Who is Jealous of His Wife's Love for Her Mother—How a Young Bride Can Profit by Being Her Mother-in-Law's Pupil—At What Age Should Young Men Marry?

DEAR MISS DIX—I am married to the sweetest girl in the world, and I would be perfectly happy, except for one thing. About every month or two she is bound to see her mother, who lives about twenty-five miles from us, and this makes me wild. It isn't that I don't like her mother. I do. She is a splendid woman and never interferes with us, as some mothers-in-law do. But I can't bear that my wife should want anybody but me. What shall I do?

ANSWER: Well, if I were you, John, I should summon a little common sense to my aid and I would make an attempt to look at the situation with clear eyes, instead of through bilious green spectacles.

You are jealous because your wife loves her mother. Stop and consider what she did not love the mother who bore her; the mother who nursed her through her infancy and childhood; who has watched by her bedside through long nights of sickness; who has made a thousand sacrifices for her; who has shown her nothing but tenderness and affection all the days of her life.

Why, a woman who doesn't love a good mother hasn't anything in her that is worth any man's loving. She has neither heart, nor appreciation, nor gratitude. She is as hard as a rock and as cold as a fish. She is a greater who takes everything and who gives back nothing in return.

Why, a girl who doesn't love her mother is destitute of all natural affection. She is incapable of loving any human creature except herself. She has no tenderness in her even to give to her husband. Her emotions are dried up at the source.

It angers you that when your wife married you she did not put her mother altogether out of her life and be content never to see or hear of her again. Do you realize what that would mean if she could do it? It would mean that she was utterly lacking in loyalty and could break all the ties that held her to her past life as easily as if they were passing threads. That she could forget the debt she owed her mother for all her goodness to her. That she could blot out the memory of all of her mother's devotion. That she could callously hurt the heart that trusted her. That she could be unfaithful to the best she has eaten all of her life.

That isn't the kind of a wife a man wants.

The thing that a man wants more than anything else in his wife is loyalty. He wants to know that he can trust her; that she will stick by him through thick and thin; that she will never forget him, never forsake him; and that she will never turn her back on other interests can ever dull her love of him.

Loyalty is something that is knit into the very fiber of a woman's soul, if she has it at all, and so if your wife were disloyal to her mother she would be disloyal to you. If she could forget her mother, she would forget you. If she could come to love her mother because she had made new ties the day would come when other interests would blot out her affection for you.

Don't be jealous of your wife's love for her mother, one resent her desire to see her. It is just foolishness, because the love that a woman gives her mother and her husband are totally different. They are no more conflict than her liking for roast beef and ice cream.

Believe me, there is no safer friend that a girl can have than a good mother.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have recently married and live with my husband's people, who are very good to me. But they lead a much gay life than I have been accustomed to. My family are very strict and rigid in their ideas, and I have never been permitted to go out in society and so with her affairs that will place me in an embarrassing position. My husband wishes me to take an active part in his mother's life. What shall I do?

ANSWER: Go to your mother-in-law and very frankly tell her of your dilemma, and ask her to give you the training that you failed to receive in your own home.

That will serve a twofold purpose. It will teach you the ways of the new world in which you have gone to give and it will please your mother-in-law to have you for a pupil.

A great many young women make a very grave mistake when they refuse to take the help that their husbands' mothers would gladly give them if they could. But the glass of fashion, but she would rather go dowdy than ask mother-in-law to pick out her clothes. Many a girl who has had few social advantages falls to profit by the advantages that her mother-in-law offers her or to walk through the doors of opportunity that her mother-in-law opens for her.

Don't be one of these foolish ones. Don't cut off your nose to spite your face. Put yourself in your mother-in-law's hands and learn from her all that she can teach you.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a young man 20 years old, and it seems to me that the appropriate age at which I should marry is 23. What do you think?

ANSWER: I don't think that you can set any definite age at which a man should marry. It depends on so many different things, upon his temperament, upon how much money he has, most of all upon whether the man, the hour and the girl have met.

Generally speaking, I think that 23 is entirely too young for a man to marry.

Most men at that age are still boys, with a boy's unformed tastes and his avid taste for pleasure. They are not tired of roaming around and ready to settle down. But there are exceptions to this rule, and now and then a man is as old at 23 as he will be at 33, and just as sure of himself and as capable of picking out his life partner.

Now are many men at 23 capable of supporting a family, unless they have inherited money. And, sordid as it may sound to say it, a wife is a luxury that no man is justified in setting up until he has the price.

The boy who marries before he can afford it, and who is weighted down with anxiety about where the rent money is to come from and how the butcher is to be paid, and who is deprived of all the luxuries to which he has been accustomed, has little chance of happiness in marriage.

Now can you say at just what age a man shall marry, because Cupid carries no alarm clock set to go off at a certain hour. You cannot love to order, nor does the girl always bob up at the psychological moment. These matters are on the knees of the gods and they choose their own time.

So if I were you, S. H. Y., I shouldn't set my wedding date for 23—which is an unlucky number anyway—but for some time between 23 and 33, which is the time when a man is old enough to love and not old enough to be careful.

QUICK RELIEF
FOR CONSTIPATION

Price of Nine Men's Lives

NINE exhausted men huddled in an open life boat, drifting toward death on the wings of a raging gale that whipped the Pacific off the rocky Oregon coast.

Up into the teeth of the wind came a two-masted Canadian schooner, close-hauled to the fury of the gale. Her captain dared the loss of his ship and his life, here-to-for a few perilous moments—and saved the men from imminent death.

Then up came the U. S. coast guard cutter Algonquin. It trained its guns on the schooner, escorted it back to Portland.

And now the skipper of the schooner, Captain Robert Pamphlet, has been convicted of the crime of run running and sentenced to two years in the federal penitentiary and fined $5,000.

That, in brief, is the story of one of the strangest adventures of the sea ever revealed.

It all began when the American steamer Cooba, bound north from San Francisco, got into trouble off the Oregon coast. There was an engine breakdown that could not be repaired and there was a heavy storm rising. The Cooba was helpless.

Another ship tried to help her, but sprang a leak and was obliged to run for port. The Cooba began to settle, and Captain Sandvig and his crew abandoned it and took to the boats.

Captain Sandvig and eight seamen were in the boat about which this tale revolves. The storm grew worse and the tired sailors could do little but hold their little crafts head into the wind. A steamer passed and failed to answer their hallo, running before the wind and passing over the jagged horizon.

JUST IN TIME

The men in the lifeboat saw that their case was hopeless.

Then through the spray and mist that the wind dashed in their eyes, they saw a sail. There was an agonizing moment of suspense—did the men on the schooner see them? Then the schooner changed its course and began beating against the wind to come to the rescue.

As the rescue ship hove-to to windward, the men in the lifeboat saw that it was the schooner Pescawha of Vancouver, black-hulled and sturdy.

And lining the rail, were half a dozen grim-looking men leveling rifles at the drifting lifeboat!

The captain of the Pescawha—Captain Pamphlet—scrutinized the lifeboat with his glasses. Then he signed his men to put away their rifles and the Pescawha came closer.

The lifeboat and the men in it were hoisted aboard.

Then the rescued men got another surprise. They were taken below and given, in addition to warm food, plenty of good whiskey to chase away the ocean chill. For the Pescawha was a run runner—a load of Canadian whiskey under her masts, and her crew had at first mistaken the lifeboat for a black-bird's outfit. Hence the display of rifles when the schooner first came alongside.

MEANWHILE, the lookout on the coast guard cutter Algonquin, which was looking for the Pescawha, a bell jingled.

down in the engine room and the cutter came on at full speed. Presently the cutter reached the schooner.

Into port came the Pescawha, meekly enough, her own men under guard and a prize crew of blue-jacketed coast guards in charge. Captain Pamphlet was held for the federal court as a run runner.

A little later the shipping firm of Sudden & Christensen of San Francisco, owners of the lost Cooba, sent Capt. Pamphlet a $500 gold watch, engraved with a tribute to his heroism in rescuing Capt. Sandvig and his men.

And then Capt. Pamphlet came to trial. He testified that he was 13 miles from the coast when seized by the cutter. The coast guard said it was seven miles. It was revealed that the Pescawha would have escaped capture if it had not stopped to save the Cooba's men.

But the judge held that the rescue had nothing to do with the case.

Accordingly, Capt. Pamphlet was convicted and sentenced. He is now out on bond pending an appeal to a higher court.

"THEY ARE MEN"

Capt. Sandvig paid his tribute to his rescuers in no uncertain terms.

"They gave us their food, their clothes, their bunk and their boots," he said. "We cannot but feel that they are prisoners because of their humanity to us. Where a big freighter refused to stop to save us, a boat runner picked us up—and was sentenced as a result. They may be run runners but they are men."

And Fred L. Boalt, editor of the Portland News, has sent a petition to President Coolidge asking for clemency for Captain Pamphlet.

Meanwhile the two-year prison sentence stands, unless a higher court reverses it or the attorney general intervenes. Capt. Pamphlet will go to prison—because he saved nine lives.

BELIEVED necessary and the romance of early California form a background for Natalie Kingston, who, in two years, has become one of the coast's reigning beauties.

She is a direct descendant of Gen. M. G. Vallejo, first governor of California. Her family tree also includes Agoston Haraszthy, who brought the wine grape from Hungary to California. Her father was an Englishman, Sigurd Kingston.

Miss Kingston ran away from school to join the dance team of Fanchon and Marco. She was soon a feature dancer and spent a year at the New York Winter Garden. She was "discovered" by Mack Bennett, and since is to have a leading part in Raymond Griffith's Paramount picture, "Wet Paint."

IF GENERALLY FAYS A FELLOW TO SIT TIGHT

IN NEW YORK SEE-SAVING UP and down BROADWAY

EASY spenders, like spoiled children, weary quickly of their toys.

Hence the feverish activity of recreation inventors in Manhattan. Anyone with a new toy can make easy money for a period and, when the easy spenders have tired of it, the vogue is established and the curious sheep who have heard about it come trilling along.

Broadway, which caters to the "easy spender" trade, models its amusements to what the jaded appetites.

Last winter it was the supper club, and they appeared and disappeared like mushrooms in the spring. Summer came none too soon to rescue them from the annual which would have led to quick failure.

A leading theatrical publication, in a recent chat, found that the vogue was about at an end and predicted a return of favor to the hotel dining rooms and the established cafes.

The summer's innovation is "a floating night club."

Shrewd promoters have secured a five-masted barkentine to cruise in the waters about Long Island and, if the vogue persists, in Florida waters when winter comes.

Dance floors, dining rooms, tea rooms, equipment for swimming, fishing and all sea subjects are provided. The old square riggers, with its ghosts of hardy seamen and hazardous voyages, will now carry a cargo of pretty maids in sport clothes and young men.

The recruits for membership will come largely from the Park Avenue belt and, I am told, Vincent Richards, the tennis champion, will be a leading membership getter.

The fee will pay $200 a year and $50 additional membership dues—a very nominal sum for a floating club. But no mention is made of what the charges for eating and tea sipping will be—to say nothing of ginger ale and vichy water.

ONE of the more rustic pastimes of ennuied playboys is riding about in the late hours of the night or early hours of the morning, in one of the horse-drawn hansom or phaetons which rent for various sums per hour.

In the daytime these are employed largely by tourists seeking something new, but Broadway claims most of them when the hour grows late.

They tell me of one rich man's son from the west, who insists on changing places with the Jehu and putting on the driver comfortably in the carriage and going driving about the white lights belt—perhaps in some hope of recapturing a bit of the ranch life he left behind.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE KIWI AND THE COOK-CHAFFER

I DO wish," said Nancy, "that we could find the door to Mister Snooty's cave."

"So do I," shivered the little Whiffet, who had lost his shadow.

But whatever else he was going to say will never be known. For they had come upon a most peculiar couple who were having a most peculiar conversation. The peculiar couple consisted of a cook-chaffer and a kiwi bird. The peculiar conversation consisted of the following remarks:

"Such big feet," the cook-chaffer was saying. "I never saw much big feet on a person your size. And as for tail, see, see, heel! Why, you haven't a hair—I mean a feather."

"Have a care, you little shrimp," retorted the kiwi bird. "My tail bothers me not. I do not miss it because I do not eat with it. As for my feet, I dig on them. In Kiwi Land it is not my feathers, but large feet that make the fine birds. Now I wish to sleep. Be gone! But come back at a quarter to twelve—for lunch!"

"To lunch or for lunch," said the cook-chaffer.

"For lunch," said the kiwi bird, shutting his eyes and dropping off to sleep as kiwi birds do.

But suddenly he opened his eyes again and looked at the cook-chaffer sharply. "What's that?" he demanded. The cook-chaffer jumped about a yard. "Nothing," he chirped. "I didn't say anything."

"But you were thinking," said the kiwi bird. "I distinctly had a shock and it wasn't a pleasant shock like you get when you open your bureau drawer and find a box of candy you had forgotten about. I had a shock like you get when you put salt on your berries instead of powdered sugar. Now out with it! What were you thinking?"

"Well, then," said the little black beetle with the white velvet spots, "I was thinking that your nose was entirely too long. What time did you say lunch was?"

"It will be right now," said the kiwi bird, "if you don't stop making remarks upon my personal appearance."

"Catch me if you can! Catch me if you can!" shouted the cook-chaffer rudely, backing away out of reach of the kiwi bird's long bill.

"Oh I can catch you all right," said the kiwi bird. "Only I don't dine until a quarter to twelve. It will be time enough then."

So the kiwi bird closed his eyes again and went to sleep.

"He's afraid! He's afraid!" He's afraid!" shouted the cook-chaffer, dancing around on his short low-legs. "He's afraid to touch me for fear I might pluck him!"

"Bully!" said Nick, for the Twins and the Whiffet had seen and heard the whole thing. "You'd better be careful and not get so snappy. Kiwis eat cook-chaffers, you know."

"Perhaps," said the cook-chaffer, "but I'm the world's original digger. I can disappear in the ground before you can blink your eye." Which he did. And of course everything looked as safe as a bank for Mister Cook-Chaffer.

But just then the kiwi bird woke up. "It's a quarter to twelve. I can tell by my appetite," he said suddenly. And with that he stuck his long lead-pencil of a beak quite twelve inches down in the ground and pulled up Mister Cook-Chaffer and ate him.

"Handsome is as handsome does," said he. Then he went to sleep again before the Twins could ask him a single thing.

New Pictures of Canadian History Are Being Exhibited At National Convention

ADORNING the walls of the Admiral Beatty Hotel Ballroom are copies of some of the new pictures of Canadian history, which are being endorsed by the I. O. D. E. and are being specially exhibited during the National Chapter's annual convention, now in progress here.

As works of art they have a sure appeal and they present very vividly the incidents of Canadian history. TWELVE IN ALL. There are 12 pictures in the series and seven are the work of A. W. Jeffrey, R.C.A., the remaining five being by Henry Sandham. The titles of the eleven pictures are as follows: Jacques Cartier Erects the Cross, 1534. Champlain Discovers Georgian Bay, 1606. The Order of Good Cheer, 1606.

La Verdun, 1743. The Founding of Halifax, 1749. Wolfe's Landing at Quebec, 1759. The Coming of the Loyalists, 1783. Macdonald at the Pacific, 1793. The Pioneer, Laura Secord. Meeting of Fur Traders. Battle of Fish Creek, 1885. Only seven of the 12 are being exhibited, but these were attracting much attention and much favorable comment from the delegates attending the convention. The pictures are 15x24 inches unmounted and in their original brown frames are a decided enhancement of the convention platform as well as splendid representations of national history incidents. The pictures are exhibited under the auspices of the educational department of the Order, which also is exhibiting the new series of Canadian history readers written by Miss Donalds J. Dickie, M.A., teacher of English on the staff of the Calgary Normal School and fully illustrated.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

To Neutralize Acidity and Fermentation. Prevents Indigestion, Sour, Gassy Stomach. People who suffer from indigestion usually take pepper, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and know these things will not cure their trouble—in some cases do not even give relief. But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Magnesia—MAGNESIA, which you can obtain from practically any drugist in either powder or tablet form. Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most every thing you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.

League Commission Raps Dop Traffic

Norton C. G. I. T. Give Rendition

HAMPTON VILLAGE, June 8.—The play, "Molly's Aunt," which was presented by the Norton C. G. I. T. at the Consolidated School here on Friday evening was very much enjoyed by a fairly large audience. The play itself was of a wholesomely entertaining character, and though presented by amateurs, each part was carried out with an ability which left nothing to be desired. The members of the cast were: R. E. March, Leonard Buckley, Norman Swift, Miss Annie Howe, Miss Marion Brown, Miss Viola Howe and Miss Dora McCready. Their director, Mrs. George Brown, is to be congratulated upon her success. The specialties between acts were all of a high order. Miss Gladys Burns acted as accompanist. A kitchen orchestra furnished novel entertainment, and Miss Edith March and Ralph March sang a duet. During intermission, ice cream was sold. The proceeds of the fair were divided between the Norton C. G. I. T. and the Hampton Consolidated School.

An unofficial estimate of the total unemployed today, including miners, is 2,720,000.

and Interesting Career

OTTAWA, June 8—Premier King announced in the house at 6 o'clock that he had received official notification of the appointment of Lord Willingdon as Governor-General.

Lord Willingdon alike in his private relationships and in his public life bears the character of a courteous and high-principled English gentleman, and from friend or stranger he could have no better certificate. In the course of his career, in which practically all his domestic interests are centered, his position is unassailable. The people whom he is going to be glad to know that this is how he stands among his own folk. In his public career they are perhaps able to judge him for themselves. They know that already he has "done the state some service".

Also, doubtless, they are informed of the variety of the activities which have helped to build up for him an excellent reputation. He is known as a student, sportsman, soldier, courtier, parliamentarian, minister, states governor, and diplomatic misligner; in fact he has played many parts—all with a good measure of success, and some with such marked distinction as to earn the warm approval of his countrymen and a sheaf of royal honors. As is well known, he is even at this moment engaged on a state mission to the Far East, helping on behalf of his Government to smooth out the difficulties of administering the millions involved in the return of the Boxer rebellion inmates.

LANGUAGE OF DIPLOMACY

It will hardly have been so soon forgotten that in January last when Lord Willingdon was on his way across Canada to China on this mission—a journey which he has declared was most instructive and enjoyable—rumors were circulating in the Dominion that he was designated to succeed Lord Byng of Vinny at Ottawa, and that when interviewed on the subject he answered the press representatives in the language of diplomacy, though his reply was regarded as being "in" the negative.

Events have proved that in these rumors there was more significance and truth than at the time apparent. Successful men in politics and diplomacy are often deeply indebted to nature and culture for their achievements. In the person of Lord Willingdon, when he set out to make a name for himself, had advantages over most. He is tall and distinguished-looking and of dignified bearing, and with these physical characteristics he combines ripe intellectual attainments, and a charm of manner which all who come in contact with him find captivating. In education, training and influence he represents Eton and Cambridge at their best, and his record on the playing fields both of school and university proves that both helped to possess him of that true spirit of sportsmanship which becomes the man of affairs better than any arts of diplomacy.

POPULAR IN SUSSEX

As generally indicated, the new Governor-General is very much at home and popular in the beautiful maritime county of Sussex, especially in its eastern part which embraces not only the home of his youth but also his place of entry into parliamentary life, the borough of Hastings, fashionable now as a health and holiday resort, but notable also in history as the principal of the ancient Cinque Ports group, to say nothing of its outlook over Pevensey Bay, the traditional landing spot of William the Conqueror, and of its associations with the decisive battle following that invasion. Moreover, at or about Hastings, Lord Willingdon found a wife, as there will be occasion again to mention.

Freeman-Thomas—Freeman-Thomas—for so was the new Governor-General named before he joined the ranks of the peers—comes of good stock long identified with Sussex, his father being Frederick Freeman-Thomas, of Rotton and Yapsen, Willingdon, and his mother Mabel, daughter of the first Viscount Hampden, a former Speaker of the House of Commons. Lord Willingdon assumed the additional surname of Freeman in 1892, in which year also he married the Hon. (afterwards Lady) Marie Adelaide, daughter of the first Baron Brassey, afterwards Earl Brassey. He was born Sept. 12, 1866, and was an only son. Two sons have been born to him. The elder, Gerald Frederick, born in 1893, went to the war as a lieutenant in the Coldstream Guards, and was killed in action in 1914. The surviving son and heir to his father's peerage is Hon. Inigo Brassey Freeman-Thomas, who was born July 25, 1899, and married in 1924 Maxine, daughter of the eminent actor, Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson.

LIBERAL IN POLITICS

Lord Willingdon's inherited political faith was Liberal, and he himself in his parliamentary days adhered to Liberalism, which was indeed the creed of all those who claimed kinship with him—his wife's family as well as his own. But he had no passion for politics, as may be inferred from the fact that he was 34 years of age before he reached the House of Commons. Probably such predilections as he had for a political career may be traced more to the maternal than the paternal side of his family. The political strain in his mother's blood it may be assumed was very strong, for her father when H. B. W. Brand, fought many battles in the constituencies before the Liberals placed him in the Speaker's chair. One can well imagine that the example of his maternal grandfather, and that of his father-in-law, who was a star of considerable magnitude in the political firmament, had much influence in eventually turning Mr. Freeman-Thomas into the direction of Westminster via the borough of Hastings, for which he was elected in 1900. That seat had been occupied by his father-in-law (then Sir Thomas Brassey) from 1888 to 1896, when he was raised to the peerage as Baron Brassey, an honor that was followed by an exilium in 1911. Sound as were his own merits, Mr. Freeman-Thomas doubtless owed some

COUNTESS CATHCART TO WED AMERICAN

Engagement to Gideon Boissevain is Announced in London Newspaper

LONDON, June 9—Vera, Countess Cathcart and Gideon Boissevain, of a Dutch-American banking family, the Daily Graphic asserts, are engaged to be married.

They only met a few weeks ago, although when I was in New York last winter I happened to attend the first night of the Countess's play. It has really been a pure romance, and of course, we are both very shy about the whole affair.

"We have already got the engagement ring, and the marriage takes place next week."

The Graphic also quotes Countess Cathcart as saying: "Although my fiance loves the English, he is really an American. I shall be an American, too."

Vera's supposed betrothal to Ralph Nails, English playwright, is mentioned by the Graphic, but without explanation.

DUNNING SAYS HUDSON BAY ROAD COMPLETION FIGURED AT $26,353,000

Denies Government Intends to Deviate Rails or Change Terminus in Presenting Engineering Estimate to Commons

OTTAWA, June 8.—Hon. C. A. Dunning submitted to the House this afternoon an engineering estimate of $26,353,000 for completing the Hudson Bay Railway and harbor works and elevator at Port Nelson for the accommodation of ten 7,000-ton ships. The estimate was made out as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Item, Amount. Total: $26,353,000

Mr. Dunning added that he did not give this estimate as an expenditure to which the government was committed. It was the policy of the government to build the road as economically as possible in order that a fair trial might be made of the route.

Questioned as to the deviation of the line, Mr. Dunning said that the government had not any intention at the present time of changing the port.

The feasibility of the line was beyond question, said Mr. Dunning, and there were extensive possibilities of development along the route in pulp-wood, mineral and fish products as well as in Arctic trade.

EQUIPMENT COST ASKED

Hon. H. H. Stevens asked what was necessary in the way of equipment such as vessels and aids to navigation in order to test the route. Mr. Dunning said he was unable to give the complete figures in answer to this question, but that aids to navigation would not be as extensive as had been thought necessary. A light house at the entrance to Nelson Channel was provided for in the estimate.

The minister read from a memorandum made in 1918 by R. A. C. Henry of the Economic branch of the Canadian National Railway, in which it was stated that navigation on the bay route was at its best in September and October. This, with ordinary aids to navigation, could be extended into November, making a two-and-a-half month season.

Conditions on the bay route were not so different from the Great Lakes as might be supposed. Mr. Henry's memo estimated that 5,000,000 bushels each season would be required to meet operating expenses, and 10,000,000 bushels to meet operating expenses and fixed charges at 3 p.c. on the money invested on the basis of a $25,000,000 investment.

Hon. R. B. Bennett (Conservative, Calgary West) pointed out that this memo had been made in 1918 before the western movement of wheat had commenced.

$21,189,000 IS SPENT.

Replying to questions regarding the amount already spent, Mr. Dunning said this totalled $21,189,000 of which $15,000,000 was on the railway and $6,000,000 on the port.

Regarding the condition of the line, the minister said, that from Le Pas to Mile 214 it was possible for a train to pass, although it might not be suitable for heavy traffic.

From Mile 214 to Mile 322 there had been no train over the tracks for many years, and it was in a very bad shape. It was difficult to estimate the amount of work that would be required on twisted rails, etc. "The work will be pushed as rapidly as possible, and it is my hope—although it is only a hope—to complete the rail work this year."

ing had told the people of Saskatchewan that the 92 miles from Kettle Rapids to Port Nelson would be constructed. The people of the West were too tired of being put off by promises. The Conservative party had completed 82 miles of the railway from Le Pas to Kettle Rapids, and had graded the line from Kettle Rapids to Port Nelson. "This work would have been completed had it not been for war conditions," said Mr. Rogers. Mr. Dunning interjected to state that work on the Hudson Bay Railway was discontinued in October, 1918. "I'm not responsible for conditions under the Union Government," retorted Mr. Rogers. Continuing Mr. Rogers said that the Hudson Bay route was the natural outlet for the products of the west. Freight rates by way of increases in the western provinces had added to the cost of transportation there. Mr. Rogers said it was his duty to urge that such assistance be given as would complete the undertaking in order that conditions under which the people of Western Canada were suffering would be relieved.

MANUFACTURERS HEAR REPORT ON TRANSPORTATION

Continued from page 1. Volume of freight traffic handled in 1925 as compared with 1924 had not sufficient to regain the level reached in 1923 in which latter year a record tonnage was handled. A marked falling off occurred in the movement of coal attributable to the labor troubles in the Nova Scotia and United States mines. The increase in the volume of agricultural products was relatively small.

RAILWAY ECONOMIES

An appreciable reduction in operating expenses, principally in transportation, and maintenance of way and structures, resulted in greater net operating revenue than in either 1923 or 1924. The operating income of the Canadian National Railway (Canadian Lines) was $23,355,291.76 in 1925 or substantially double that for the previous year. Their total operating expenses amounted to 88.55 p.c. of the gross earnings as compared with 94.15 p.c. in 1924. The net earnings for the system (composed of lines in Canada and the United States) were $20,948,531.76, or an increase of $15,222,897 over 1924. The net earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway for 1925 were $40,154,778.86, their total operating expenses amounting to 77.03 p.c. of the gross earnings as compared with 79.24 p.c. in the previous year.

USE OF CANADIAN PORTS

It will be recalled that the Association at its Annual Meeting several years ago unanimously passed a resolution to the effect that members should use to the fullest possible extent Canadian ports in the handling of their export and import shipments. A circular was issued by the Department advising members of this resolution and we believe that members are endeavoring to carry out such an arrangement. The year 1925 shows an increase in the movement of traffic through these ports and we believe this is an indication of a greater use being made of Canadian ports.

An Energizing Meal SHREDDED WHEAT gives you all the bran you need

As part of the Special Committee on Taxation, your committee recommended that the sales tax, which has been a burden on Canada since it was introduced, should be abolished. It is unfortunate that the Government did not see its way clear to act on this recommendation.

Tariff Report

The report of the Tariff Committee was, in part, as follows: CANADA'S POLICY In sharp contrast with the policies of all the 82 countries, Canada has reduced her customs tariff again, the result being a sharp reduction in eight years. It seems incredible that Canada should go on year after year lowering her tariffs and throwing open her markets to other countries when these countries are steadily increasing their tariffs and shutting out our goods, other than raw materials, from their markets. The natural result of this policy is to increase the prosperity of the producers in other countries, to restrict employment in other countries, and to transfer employment to other countries. Many countries have recently increased their tariffs against Canadian wheat and wheat flour. This is a further indication of the necessity for Canada to formulate a bargaining tariff. If Canada raised her general tariff on goods imported from such countries she could then bargain for preferential entry of her principal exports into their markets.

TRADE AGREEMENTS

During the year Canada negotiated a trade treaty with Finland, under which Canada extends the French Treaty tariff rates to Finland in return for Finland's most-favored-nation tariff rates. A treaty was also negotiated with the Netherlands under which Canada extends the benefit of the rates provided for in the French Treaty to the Netherlands, the Netherlands East Indies, Surinam and Curacao.

DEPRECIATED CURRENCIES

Canada is still suffering from unfair competition of goods produced in countries where the currencies are depreciated. Further representations were made to the Government during the year, asking that defensive measures should be adopted. Other countries have safeguarded themselves against this situation by raising their tariffs, but Canada has attempted to do so only by a system of determining values which are constantly fluctuating and which provide little or no help.

SALES TAX

As part of the Special Committee on Taxation, your committee recommended that the sales tax, which has been a burden on Canada since it was introduced, should be abolished. It is unfortunate that the Government did not see its way clear to act on this recommendation.

WILLIAM LILLEY FOUND AS BOY 340 YEARS OLD

Book on Farming Was Printed in London in 1586

William T. Lilley of the staff of Manchester Robertson Allison Ltd., is possessor of a book that left the hands of the printers away back in 1586, that is 340 years ago.

The book had been the property of Mr. Lilley's uncle, the late John Kerr, for many years chief of the Saint John fire department. It had come to Mr. Kerr from his uncle, Charles Briscoe, who in turn had received it from the late chief's grandfather, also named John Briscoe, who was buried at St. Andrews in 1842.

The book was printed in "The now dwelling of Henric Denham, Aldersgate, at the Signe of the Starre." The text is difficult to read by the modern eye trained to the present style of type. The book is highly prized by Mr. Lilley.

The Trouble With Us Men

Don't we kid ourselves that clothes look as smartly kept to other eyes as they do to our own?

But most of us must admit that our own eyes are not noting the condition of the suit quite half the time. But other eyes are—all the time.

Just to be safe why not get down to a regular system of keeping our suits fresh through dry cleaning. Have 'em gone over every six weeks, say. Doesn't cost anything—the longer life of the suit overcomes the small cost of clean upkeep. 'Phone for driver.
