"I STILL LIVE."

THE LAST WORDS OF MR. SHERIDAN WHISTLER.
"See I go!" The leaves were falling
Round the mansion where he lay;
And autumn's voices mourned every;
While the dead leaves rustled every;
While the dead leaves rustled every;

At the dead hour.

Breathing with a conscious motion
Like the fleeting hope of man.

"See I live!" O strong and fearless!

With those prophetic words of cheer;

For where'er I go, health victorious;

Greatest health the world over,

Yours power, high up there;

He shall win from every nation

An undying name on earth.

"See I live!" The death was failing,
And the spirit was failing still.

Light it is down there;

And the mighty soul goes still.

Yet the soul, so good abiding,

Cleat in anxious fire and bright,

On the body's calm resting,

Shines with clear light.

What he does, that man of glory,

Maintained a mournful shadow can say;

And his weeping country's story.

But this love that deepest nestled,

Causes such calm as heaven can give;

For angel's vision glistered,

At the echo—"See I live!"

"Explosion's" solution of enigma was correct, but we had already received one. His solution of the Donkey's is correct—Assassin.

POSSUM.—Mr. L. W. WOOD.—Dear Doctor.—A small boy was pinched by a Possum last week by eating a part of it, which was in an apple dropped, and complained it did not taste good. A short time later, began to swell, and in about two hours dead. His parents picked up the apple, and upon examination found a worm, known in common parlance as the thousand-legged worm. We did not learn the name of the boy.—(Class. O.) Democrit.

The first saw mill was erected near London in the year 1762, but afterward demolished that it might not deprive the labouring of employment.
