Books and Papers.
Emanuel Swedenborg's "Arcana Calae-stina" was printed when the author was 61.
The people of the United States read and support as many newspapers as England, France and Germany combined.
A copy of the first edition of Gold-smith's "Vicar of Wakefield" was disposed of in London a few days ago for $475. The author sold the original copy right of the book for $300.
The largest book ever known is owned by Queen Victoria. It is eighteen inches thick and weighs sixty-three pounds, and contains the addresses of congratulation on the occasion of her jubilee.
According to foreign papers there are now 3,538 journals and magazines printed in Germany. In 1891 there were 3,443; in 1890, 3,204; in 1889, 2,982, and in 1888, 2,729. There has been an increase since last year, therefore, of 86, and since 1888 of 800.

GENERAL NEWS.
—The best Chinese razors are made of old horsehooves.
—Artesian borings have recently proved successful in Sahara.
—The British ship Beren, which recently rounded Cape Horn, experienced the phenomenon of a heavy cloud of dust at sea.
—Searchlights are such good targets for the enemy's guns that the Germans are arranging to throw the light first on a mirror and thence on the enemy, thereby concealing its real source.
—The largest plow in the world is owned by Richard Gird, of San Bernardino Co., Cal. This immense turner stands 18 feet high and weighs 30,000 pounds. It runs by steam.

—The ruler of the Cunard steamship Company consists of a single plate of steel, 22 by 11 feet 6 inches and 1 1/2 inches thick. It was rolled at Krupp's German gun factory.
—The most unique Sunday school in the world is one on the line of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railroad, among the telegraphers. The regular lesson leaf is used, and all the questions are given by wire.
—A New Jersey boy, who experienced great difficulty in swallowing, had an operation performed on his throat which brought to light a large pearl. It is thickly encased in an oyster shell.
—The latest reported Parisian eccentricity is that pet dogs in Paris are dressed to harmonize with the prevailing color of their mistress's boucliers. Two shades of violet are now the most popular coloring for white dogs.
—A society has recently been formed in France, the members of which are bound under penalty of a fine, never to shake hands with any one unless with a gloved hand. "As the practice is contrary to health."
—Cores are not yet in the enlightened stage, but is getting there. When a death occurs in a family in that country every resource is strained to provide an imposing funeral, and many families for years do not get out of the debts thus incurred.

—Russia proposes to connect the Baltic with the Black Sea, according to recent report. The rivers Dnieper and Dniester are to be joined by a canal; surveying has been begun at both ends of the route, and Chepurin is spoken of as the harbor for the canal on the Black Sea.
—Newspapers in Russia were forbidden some time ago to make any reference to the dresses worn by the press on state occasions. This was done because one paper by mistake reported her wearing a dress which at that time was completely out of fashion.
—The British Museum has an ancient weight, a unique object, in the shape of a bit of green diorite, about four inches high carved in Mesopotamia in the year 600 B. C. It has a long inscription in Assyrian, which sets forth that it was made in the time of Nebuchadnezzar II, and is the exact copy of the legal weight. It is somewhat conical, with a flat bottom.
—The Wine and Liqueur Gazette says: Complete returns of the Arkansas state election show that 50,000 votes were recorded against licensing the liquor trade as against 46,000 in its favor. The number of counties prohibiting the sale of liquor has increased nearly one-half since the election of 1892, and the district in which the trade is prohibited by legislative enactments aggregates 4,000 square miles. Even where licenses are granted, the fee is so high as to be practically prohibitive except in the larger towns.

—Lower California is the home of a species of lizard which appears to be at least a second cousin to the famous "Gila monster." It is of a mottled yellow and brown color and only about fifteen inches long. The natives of that region have given it the terrible name of "Man-eater," because it has a habit of attacking every human being it sees —going at them opened mouth—but does not appear to mind either wild or domestic animals. The man-eater's body is almost as brittle as that of the mythical "joint-stake."

—While sawing a cypress log about thirty inches in diameter taken from a bayou near Stroud, La., sparks were noticed flying from the saw. An investigation showed that the saw had come in contact with a piece of iron, which, on being extracted, proved to be a loaded shell. The shell was imbedded in the centre of the log, and no trace of an aperture was noticed. The missile was probably thrown by one of the contending armies in the late civil war, and lodged in the tree, which gradually increasing in dimensions, entirely closed the opening made by the entrance of the shell.
—Near the Gulf of Aden, and connecting the Lake of Asal with the main ocean, is one of the most wonderful rivers in the world. This river does not flow to but from the ocean. The surface of Lake Asal is nearly 700 feet below the sea level, and it is fed altogether by this paradoxical river, the latter being about twenty miles in length. It is said to be a wonderful fact that the river at high tide furnishes exactly enough water to counterbalance the extraordinary evaporation of the lake, and that in consequence the lake's surface remains at a level year after year.

Personals.
—The first dentist in America made a set of teeth for Gen. Washington.
—Mrs. Lee Monroe is a Kansas lawyer, and her husband is running for district judge.
—The town of Girard, Kas., has three ladies on its board of education, and one of them, Mrs. Alice Haldeman, is president.
—President Porier's late tour of France was made in a carriage so high that no hand could reach him with a dagger thrust.
—Judge O. W. Holmes, son of Dr.
Oliver Wendell Holmes, has received from the Prince of Wales a letter of condolence on the death of his distinguished father. The letter came through the secretary of state.

—The latest pretender to the "throne" of France is Mohammed-ben-Burbon.
He claims descent from one of the Bourbon princes, who went to Algiers at the time of Louis XIV. He is a cattle dealer at Bougie, in Algeria.
—The Island of Iona belongs to the Duke of Argyll, and it is said that he allows no one there to keep a public house. Consequently, although several hundred people live on the island, there is not a policeman among them. The nearest public house and the nearest policeman are some five or six miles away.
—Every one, probably, has heard the story that when James T. Fields invented the name of Manchester-by-the-Sea, and wrote a note dated from there to Dr.
Holmes, the poet replied in a note dated "Beverly-by-the-Depot." It is said that Whittier, egged on by the irrespectable Autocrat, also wrote one dated "Danvers-among-the-Holly-hocks."

—Into her guest chamber the Duchess of Westminster puts a curious Swiss clock on which appears the printed words: "Please do not touch," and she says that of all the men who have occupied the chamber only one failed to ask the reason for the prohibition. The exception was Mr. Fawcett the late postmaster general. Mr. Fawcett was blind.

—Henry Bigelow Williams, of Boston, became a bankrupt in 1878, owing nearly $200,000. Recently he was released from bankruptcy by due judicial process, after paying dollar for dollar and six per cent interest. Some of the creditors who objected to receiving instead of the money what they considered a mere token, were told by Mr. Williams that they must take all or nothing.
—In a quiet corner in the west of London, lives Florence Nightingale.
Her pleasant rooms are crowded with remembrances from grateful friends and admirers—books, bric-a-brac, medals, and the like; but more even than these she values the letters she constantly receives from America, and the testimonials from our own and the French government for her achievements in improving hospital service in time of war.

—Mme. de Billi, wife of the Danish ambassador to the court of St. James, is an American by birth. Her husband was Chancellor Zabriskie, of New Jersey, and before her marriage she was noted, not only for her beauty, but for her vivacity and wit. Many stories illustrating her love of fun are told of her. One of them relates to her first meeting with her husband. It was at a great reception, at the close of which Mrs. de Billi, who had been in the country only a short time, came up to her and asked her what was the convention all proper thing for him to say to his hostess on bidding her adieu. With a perfectly sober face, she replied that in this democratic land the only proper thing to say was "Madame, by golly, I have had a bully time." "Bully time?" said she, "What is that?" "He thus delivered himself. The old chronicles of Jersey City say that when he first discovered the joke he was furious, but his fury was short-lived, and he married the beautiful belle.

—Princess Jeanne Boaspart, the wife of the Marquis de Villeneuve, is the grand-niece of Napoleon the First.
In her early years she tasted the bitterness of poverty. Her mother was a last-resort, tried a military establishment in London, but the experiment failed.
Then Jeanne learned the art of an engraver, and by working for the illustration of books earned a livelihood for her mother and herself. She made a fortunate marriage, and is now one of the most popular of Paris's young hostesses.
The Villeneuves are among the oldest nobility in Provence—so old that they are going to celebrate a thousandth anniversary in a couple of years' time.

—An accomplished woman, who has been adopted by the Seneca tribe of Indians and who takes a deep interest in their welfare and advancement, is Mrs. Harriet Maxwell Converse, who resides in New York City. In 1792 the Senecas adopted her grandfather, giving him the name of Ty-yah-yez, which means honest trader. In 1804 her father was adopted by them, and it was but natural that she should have great influence with them. Some four years ago she made Mrs. Converse a "chief," she being the first woman to receive such an honor. They call her Ya-ye-wah-ah, which interpreted is to the effect that she has watched like an eagle over their interests. Mrs. Converse has many magnificent wampum belts of great value.

Our Canadian Sisters.
THEIR GOOD QUALITIES SET FORTH BY AN ADMIRING WRITER.

Canada is the land of happy home life.
It is often objected that the Canadian woman is too much absorbed in her household duties, that she neglects her music and other accomplishments after marriage and does not continue to "improve her mind." There is truth in the criticism. Limited means and many responsibilities sometimes compel the sacrifice; but, on the other hand, some Canadian women are notably good housekeepers and find time for mental culture. Canadian girls now attend the university extension courses.

The Canadian woman has not yet made many contributions to literature.
The works of Angela Mackay, of S. P.
Harrison, to Sara Jeannette Duncan, author of "A Social Department" and other books, and of Lily Dougall, author of "Beggars All" and "What Necessity Knows," have earned reputations beyond the borders of the dominion. The Canadian girl is permitted more freedom than her English cousin, and like her American neighbor, she uses this freedom without abusing it.

The Canadian girl at home knows how to enjoy herself. In winter she goes to skating, snowing, sleighing, and tobogganing parties, and she delights in dancing music and private theatricals.
She spends much time out of doors at picnics and in "camping out." A married woman must accompany the party as chaperon, but if possible she will choose one whose spirits have not been much weighed by household cares, and fact that the girl must sometimes dispose of the work of a household and not interfere with her amusements. She disposes of her work and is free for her play.

She can often "swim like a fish." A young man and his betrothed were on a vessel that took fire. While the girl looked for means of escape for herself and others, the man dashed past her and leaped overboard. As he sprang he exclaimed, as if suddenly reminded of his responsibilities, "Joan, you can swim!" Joan swam. She struck out boldly for the shore and arrived there.
The young man met her and offered her congratulations. "They were received coldly—so coldly that he went hotel-ward to warm himself. Joan is still single. The man was not a Canadian.

The girl is generally brave, and sometimes recklessly venturesome. A girl of 16 years expelled as an orphan from one day her father, returning from his office, saw a crowd on the bank of the lake and went to ascertain the cause. In the distance was a dark line, that suggested an outlying cutting its way through the rough water.
"Why did you let her have it?" asked an excited young man of the builder, who had boats for hire.
"She said she must have it, and everyone knows that what Miss Audrey says she will have she does have!"
"Miss Audrey!" The father shuddered. Was it possible that his young daughter, Audrey, was two miles from home, in an outlying—A trail shell in which a practiced oarsman could only be comparatively safe in that rough water? Audrey reached the shore safely.
She was disturbed by her father's anxiety, but greeted him with apparent unconcern. "I had no idea that I should have a sensation," she said. "Helen's sister rows an outrigger, and if any other woman can't you should try it! But the adventures spirit of youth is now subdued and transformed to a force which often enables the sedate matron to cope with many difficulties.

In the early spring of the year of the Northwest rebellion a young married woman, who had been brought up in a luxurious home in Ontario, was alone in her prairie cottage with two babies.
It was necessary for her to convey some information to a household four miles away, and there was not a white woman between her and that house. She harnessed her horse and set out with her babies. There was a bridge over a small lake of pond, but an Indian stood on it. She thought the horse would shy at him, and she tried to drive across the pond, supporting the ice would bear the weight. About the middle the horse broke through. He extricated himself, overturned the sleigh, got loose and ran off. Carrying both children and wadding through snow waist high, the young woman made her way to her destination.
For from being disheartened by her adventure, she said: "Of course I was anxious about the horse and the children, but I had to sit down in the snow and laugh when I wondered what my friends at home would think if they could see me with one baby hanging round my neck and the other tucked in my skirts."

Despite the rigors of winter and the heat of summer, the Canadian woman has generally a good constitution. She suffers less from dyspepsia than her American neighbor, for she takes more outdoor exercise and less pie and hot bread; but she is not so robust in appetence as her English cousin. As a rule unless she is personally interested in some statement she takes little interest in politics, and is not so well informed on political questions as the English woman or the American. But though not a politician, she is a patriot. She has a strong family attachment to the mother country and to existing relations, and looks with disfavor on any suggestion of severance.—New York Tribune —Lady Burton, the widow of Sir Richard Burton, the celebrated traveller, possesses a gruesome necklace of human bones, given by the King of Dahomey to her husband when he made him brigadier-general of his celebrated corps of Amazons. The necklace was intended for a wedding gift to the new commander's favorite squaw when he should have selected her.

—Ambassador Bayard, recalling the fact that the English have placed the busts of Lowell and Longfellow in Westminster Abbey, is quite sure they will place that of Holmes there also.

Moncton's Fatal Fire.
P. P. McNaughton, proprietor of the Park Hotel, died Thursday morning as the result of the fire which was discovered in his room about one o'clock that morning. McNaughton was alone at the time and it is supposed that the fire originated from the explosion of a lamp which was left burning by his bedside. The first person to discover the flames was his brother, Dan McNaughton, who was about the house at the time.
He says while he was standing in front of the house he caught a glimpse of a flash of light, and at the same time thought he heard cries coming from his brother's room. He ran up stairs and rushed into Peter's room, only to be greeted with fire and smoke.
He found about half of the bed clothing in flames and detected a strong odor of paraffine. When he opened the door Peter rushed out, his clothes ablaze.
Mrs. McNaughton rushed out of her apartment and threw a quilt around the body of her son, thus extinguishing the flames. The young man was removed to a neighbor's house and medical aid summoned. The upper part of his body and face were badly burned, the flesh dropping off in layers. He had taken some papers to his room and it is supposed fell asleep while reading them.
The first intimation he probably had of fire was when he was awakened by fire in his clothing, and in a half-suffocated condition he then attempted to get out of the room but was unable to find the door. He remained until eight o'clock this morning, when he died.
The deceased had retained consciousness, but suffered from internal, having inhaled a quantity of paraffine. The deceased was 25 years of age and removed from Charlottetown to Moncton about three years ago. He was a native of Ireland. His father died some years ago and since that time he has been the support of his widowed mother and younger members of the family. The remains were taken to Charlottetown. His life is insured for $3,000. The building was not badly guted.

An Old Trans' ation.
The following Scotch translation of the 23rd psalm is said to be 200 years old:
The sheep-keepin' o' the Lord's kind an' canny, and he gets a howl at lang last. David keeps his sheep; the Lord keeps David.
Ane heigh-lilt o' David.
1. The Lord is my herd, nae want

2. He louts me till I am green hows; he airts me atwair by the lown waits:
3. He waakens my wa'-gaen saul; he weikes me roun, for his ain name's sake, untill right roddins.
4. Na! tho' I gang thro' the dead-midnight, I'm nae there, an' I dread nae

The Piano Came Back.
A JUDGMENT OF IMPORTANCE TO INSTAL-MENT PLAN MERCHANTS.
(Montreal Witness)
Judge Tait rendered a very important judgment for boarding-house keepers this morning in the case of Tho. F.
G. Foug vs. Louis Calvis and Dame Julie Morin, intervenant. This was a seizure proceedings on a piano sold to defendant for $450, on the instalment plan, and on which $39 was still due.
The piano was seized and taken away from the residence of Mrs. Morin, where Calvis was boarding, and she filed an intervention, claiming a lien on the instrument for board due by her by the defendant. The Court maintained the intervention and held that the lien of the boarding-house keeper, who has furnished food and lodging, must be interpreted to apply to the baggage and property in the possession of the boarder occupying the premises. The learned judge quoted a decision of Judge Maredith applying this principle even as against the real owner, and declared that he was disposed to accept the same view until a contrary decision was given by a higher tribunal. He instanced the fact of a traveller stopping at an inn, when nobody would ever think of questioning the innkeeper's lien on the horse fed by him, no matter who might be the real owner of the horse.
Further added that he was not disposed to extend the already large privileges of contracts of the kind referred to, and the boarding-house keeper in this case was certainly justified in filing her intervention to a seizure made by an undisclosed owner, after she had kept the defendant in her house for several months, having every reason to believe that the piano was his own.
The piano therefore reverts to the landlord in default of the money due by the boarder.

THE SAME OLD THINGS.
'Twas just a little while ago we heard robin sing—
The very first that come, you know, to tell us of the spring:
'Twas only just the other day we watched a budding rose, But now the fields are sere and gray and cold the wind that blows.

Yes, winter's coming on again in just the same old way.
And water pipes will freeze and burst and plumbers will be gay:
And furnaces will give us smoke while heat goes up the flue And otherwise conduct themselves the way they always do.

The snow from here and everywhere will gaily sweep Upon our walks and pile itself in mountains wide and deep;
And men who tightly close the door of every snug day.
In summer time, all shortly strive to leave them all ajar.

The very same old couples in the parslor, pretty soon,
In just the very same old way will bill and coo and spoon;
And "yes," who says for gas and coal, will make the air turn blue In just the very same old way the father's always do.

Once more upon the icy street we'll slip and slide and fall, And use the very same remarks such incidents recall;
And we, who howled in summer during every sultry day, Will lie and say we liked it in the very same old way.

SACKVILLE, N. B., NOV. 8th 1894.

SIR LEONARD TILLEY IN SACKVILLE.

It was to be regretted that Sackville is not an incorporated town, and able in a corporate capacity to welcome Sir Leonard and Lady Tilley, on their visit here last week, still the intention was good to give him a right royal welcome, and in the program marked out by Mr. and Mrs. Wood and the college authorities, his time and attention were fully occupied. He remained in the large chamber in the college residence on Friday night, that it is now about thirty years since his last visit here, when he addressed a meeting of electors at Lingley Hall on the subject of confederation. Since that time, history has been making rapidly and Sir Leonard Tilley in his long, useful and distinguished career has since been connected with nearly every important movement in our national life and has left his mark indelibly on the future of Canada. It is given to few public men to emerge from the political cauldron, with so clean and at the same time so successful a reputation to himself in his venerable age and to his family, that in him we possess a Nestor in wisdom, there is also added the traits of an Aristides in honesty.

In not recommending young men to enter the political arena, Sir Leonard was treating public life from the individual rather than the public point of view. The government of the country must be carried on by somebody. It is well that these somebody should be honest and well trained men and not pushing self-seekers and political log rollers. There is always a place on top for the right kind of men. We hope and believe that Mount Allison and especially the Eurhutorian Society is the right training ground to make men that will go on top. Anyway it is the worst kind of mistake for a young man to start out in life imbued with determination and with such an ambition guiding, no man can be a failure, even if he achieves no marked success and plods on in the cool sequestered vale of life.

Sir Leonard Tilley also referred to the desirability of our sons being able to secure an Agricultural training at Mount Allison. There was no more noble pursuit, he argued, than farming, and yet it had become unpopular because of the lack of intellectual life connected with it—the schools taught everything but these things, that go to make good farmers. In reply to Sir Leonard's proposition, we clip from a recent issue of the Kings College (N. S.) Record, the following:

Starting with the principle that the people were not made for the universities but the universities for the people, I support the proposition, we clip from a recent issue of the Kings College (N. S.) Record, the following:

Thus, out of 140,000 people the special training of less than 5,000 is provided for by our colleges! Yet who is there to deny that the training of the other classes is so important as the training of the few? Who needs a special training more than the farmer with his most complex occupation, requiring, in these days of keen competition, the side that counts knowledge and the side that counts practical men? Is there not a demand for practical men everywhere—miners skilled in metallurgy, quartermen with "sacks" of knowledge, with their mechanical and mechanical engineers—builders of houses, mills, work-shops, ships, railways? This country, with its stupendous natural resources and its splendid future, has need of all its sons to meet the demands of the future; but her sons will never meet them, as long as the system of education is not revolutionized; adapted to the practical needs of the whole people, irrespective of those classes who can afford not to be practical.

At the Eurhutorian Meeting on Friday the name of the late Amund Landry father of Hon. Judge Landry was mentioned by one of the speakers. The name of this eminent Acadian deserves to be kept green, for the lesson in good old fashioned homely virtues that it teaches. Mr. Landry was not known to be a man of wealth, social position, learning or eloquence, yet as the names of the public men of the French Acadia of this Province, he secured for his people political recognition, an extension of political powers and the hearty respect of the dominant race, results achieved largely through his own personal character and conduct. He became known as a man of incorruptible honesty, one who could resist all temptations, who was a public man for the people and not for himself and his political power. His trust to politics marked a flood in the tide of Acadian fortunes.

We trust the time is not far distant when another Amund Landry will rise and lead his people forward to cherish the idea that they are no longer Acadians so much as they are Canadians; that they belong to Canada first and last and all the time; that as individuals and not as a race it is given to them to enter the lists for the industrial, commercial, and political prizes this country affords.

The Montreal Trade Bulletin says: "The receipts of Canadian eggs in Great Britain for last September were 497,620 doz., against 220,000 for the corresponding month last year, being an increase of over 100 per cent. The imports of eggs into Great Britain during the past nine months ending Sept. 30th were less than 78,106,210 doz., of which the imports from Canada were less than the one-hundredth part, showing to what an extent our trade with the mother country may be carried.

Ship Railway Matters.

Hon. Mr. Foster was interviewed in London on 31st ult., by the shareholders as to extensions of time limit. He stated that the representations made would receive earnest consideration, that they need have no doubt of the sympathy of the government.

The successors of Sir John A. MacDonald accepted without cavil the assistance of the shareholders, and they are doing business, but they are hesitating to carry out the obligations, he said at that time imposed. The assets and liabilities ought to descend together. If it ever comes to the time that the Tory party repudiates its fair liabilities, its usefulness as the governing party becomes discredited and it takes the first step to abrogating the Administrative functions. We trust the government will in the end neither repudiate Sir John's measure nor the obligations of the party.

One of the most earnest supporters of the Ship Railway in England is Lord, namely Mr. Edwin Clark. The London Times says of him:

Mr. Edwin Clark, M. P., died on Monday, at Marlow, where he was born in 1814. He worked under Robert Stephenson, and as resident engineer had control of the construction of the Britannia Tubular Bridge. For many years he was chief engineer to the Electric Telegraph Company. He patented the hydraulic testing dock and the hydraulic canal lift, and was inventor of the block system of railway signalling. He constructed the famous harbour of Calcutta, in Persia, and carried out engineering works in various parts of the world. Mr. Clark was a keen student of astronomy, and was a Fellow of the Royal Astronomical and Meteorological Societies.

Farming Matters.

—Potato Day, is a harvest celebration held on 10th ult., Greeley Col.

Some 700 bushels of potatoes were baked in long trenches and two beavers were roasted barbecue fashion. The city was en fête, and the country side attended, and were fed. There were exhibits of other crops.

These magnificent displays showed the possibilities of irrigation in Weld County, as all the produce exhibited were grown in fields watered by artificial means. But while wheat and alfalfa prosper wonderfully large yields under the irrigating process, the potato is king. Fields containing from forty to eighty acres are easily and perfectly watered, and the growth of the crop is advanced or retarded at the will of the farmer. Potato-farming is followed on a large scale by those engaged in it, and the results are eminently satisfactory, the yield running from two hundred to eight hundred bushels per acre.

After planting, the field is watered at regular intervals, until the crop matures, when an army of men are employed to harvest it. The "harvest" is most interesting. The illustrations give but a faint idea of the magnitude of the undertaking. In the first place, the tubers are turned out of the ground by a digging machine. Then they are picked up by baskets by men and boys, who are called "spud runners" in the Western vernacular. After the potatoes are sorted, they are placed in the "sorter," where the little ones are thrown out, and only the large and perfect ones are dropped into the sacks, after which they are hauled to the "store" and stored until the price justifies their sale. When the potatoes come to market great wagon trains loaded with them may be seen on the streets of Greeley every day in the week. The crop this year is estimated at 7000 car loads, or nearly 20,000,000 bushels. This year, at the present price, will place over $1,200,000 in the pockets of the World County farmers, and this is why they celebrate Potato day.

Argentina shipped in 1892, 22 million bushels of wheat; in 1893, 45 million bushels. This year it promises to be 125 million bushels. The Argentine promises to become a formidable rival to United States in supplying the European markets with cheap wheat, as the soil is extremely fertile, the climate mild, clothing, housing, food, and wages cheap. That competition will also affect the demand and prices for our North West wheat and indirectly tend to keep down the prices for farm lands in the Maritime Provinces. The moral for our people is this; raise more sheep and cattle and make more dairy produce.

Lumber Notes.

The Parrabro Leader says that this winter the lumber operations in Cumberland county will be conducted on a larger scale than ever before. In some sections, the fires of the past season have made it necessary to cut extensively to avoid a large quantity of lumber going to waste. The Shubenubee Lumber Company will probably get out about five times the quantity ever cut a single season. Upwards of 60 or 70,000 pieces of piling will be taken out and 6,000,000 feet of sawed lumber. At present they have 10,000 pieces of piling yarded in the water, forty or fifty houses are being put up and 100 men. By the end of November there will be 150 horses and 300 men in the woods at different points working for the company. Two portable mills will be run all winter.

The other operators who lost heavily in the late fires will be forced to cut extensively.

At Mount Messrs Rhodes, Curry & Co. will operate about as heavily as usual. They expect to get out about 24 millions. Says the Telegraph: "Mr. C. L. White of Apple River, N. S., was in the city yesterday. He said his cut of lumber this winter would be about as the last season, viz., 6,000,000 feet. He was unable to tell exactly at this early date as it might be larger. The price of lumber was slightly better than it had been and the outlook was favorable.

Alex. Gibson has finished his season's lumber operations. His shipments of deals during the season aggregated over eighty-three million feet, the largest aggregate for one season in all his experience. He operated no less than eleven saw mills, besides his own at Marysville and Blackville.

Mr. Silas Copp shipped a rotary mill on Monday from Sackville to West Brook near Parrabro where he has a property of 2000 acres. He expects to cut a million feet this season and will employ altogether about 30 men.

The lumber cut of Mr. C. L. White of Apple River, N. S. this winter will be about as the last season, viz., 6,000,000 feet.

C. P. Pickard will get out at Brookline this year one million feet to be shipped from Cape Tormentine. Mr. J. Pickard is also cutting about 100 cords hardwood at Westcott and a quantity at Midgie for the Sackville markets.

An Australian firm has made a shipment of canned meat to a Canadian firm.

China Sues for Peace.

THE CELESTIALS FRANKLY ADMIT THEIR INFERIORITY TO THE JAPANESE AND ASK THE POWERS TO INTERFERE.

A despatch from Tien Tsin, says that the representatives of all the powers were assembled on Saturday last, by the Tsung Li Yamen to hear the Chinese governments statement respecting the critical situation of affairs.

Prince Kung, president of the Tsung Li Yamen, the despatch adds, calmly avowed the inability of China to withstand the Japanese attack, and appealed to the powers to intervene, saying that China was willing to abandon her suzerainty over Corea and to pay a war indemnity.

The ministers appreciated the frankness of this confession and promised to support Chinese appeal to their respective governments with a view to the restoration of peace and in order to avoid dangers threatening all interested. The French minister believed in taking a leading part in the proposed intervention.

"He rests from toil. The portals of the tomb Close on the last of that immortal ban."

—And now that hand is still; no more its touch Shall make the marble shroud of death so warm. But still its soft strains sleep in hearts of such As "never sing."

That good right hand is still; no more its touch Shall make the marble shroud of death so warm. But still its soft strains sleep in hearts of such As "never sing."

His hand we miss. The grim grasp of the grave Closes on the last of that immortal ban. A hand which the little heart of the poet gave The gift of song—

The age whose organs tremble men's souls made true; The age that great and softly sang of June— This hand has gone to meet its Patron-God With hearts in The cherry man who felt himself a boy, Although his hair was of a somber grey, With saintly keel seemed by an angel's joy, Has passed away.

The one-horse day which he nightly sang Through all its weeks of years was made more strong; Thus sang he kept his great heart every year And filled with song.

Always a boy—his age—Who cares for that? Who says that he is dead are laughing fools! For in our hearts the gentle Autocrat Still lives and rules.

Crimes and Casualties.

—Capt. Lindon, of Canoe, N. S., and several of the crew of the schooner "Lion," which was wrecked in June, 1888, on a voyage from Canoe to Halifax, have been arrested charged with wilfully casting away the vessel to escape from Nova Scotia Marine Insurance Company.

The accused are now in jail. Two of the crew are said to have confessed and will be used as witnesses against the others. A most dastardly attempt was made on Thursday, 25th ult., to murder Miss Kate Burns, postmistress at Pleasant Ridge, Charlotte county, and her niece, Miss Minnie Burns. About midnight, when they were sleeping soundly, they were alarmed by the breaking of the window and the smell of powder in the room. Upon examination it was found that some malicious person had thrown a bottle partly filled with powder and small stones and a piece of lighted fuse with such violence through the window that it struck against the door opposite and broke the bottle, thus preventing the desired catastrophe.

A sad accident happened at Dalhousie on Saturday last. Two boys named Menthol and Harquail were playing with a cartridge shell. They filled it with powder and shot, placed it on a table and fired it by means of a match. The cartridge flew back, striking Menthol on the head and injured him. It is believed that to what the ultimate result will be.

—Upwards of 100 of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Doherty of Joliette, assembled at their residence on Monday night to celebrate the 10th anniversary of their marriage. The whole thing was a grand affair and every one went merrily. "Twas was in profusion.

—The remains of Mr. Capt John Buck were brought here yesterday from St. John for interment. Mrs. Buck was formerly a resident of Dorchester but was taken to St. John some time ago to be treated. She had much improved and was boarding at a private house where she was taken with Typhoid fever, died after a short illness. The remains were accompanied by her son John S. —It is significant of the overdone condition of the steam transport business on the Atlantic when we find steamers of the Allan, the Dominion and the Beaver line being laid up in Liverpool. Not only this but it has been resolved to wind up the Canadian Shipping Company (Beaver Line), which has not paid a dividend since 1890.

—Illegal packing and fishing have wrought considerable damage with the industry of Nova Scotia lobster packers. In certain parts of the coast of Westmorland and Cumberland shanties and camps exist in abundance in the woods. Here the packers carry on their operations, and should they receive information of an inspector's approach they keep carefully informed of his whereabouts—the camp is easily broken up, and the fruits of their illicit operations removed. The Dominion Parliament during the last session dealt with this matter, and the Department of Marine and Fisheries has been instructed to remove the lobster camps which have been legally caught will be officially stamped or marked with all such packages are so marked will be seized, and unless satisfactory proof is given that they have been legally packed, will be confiscated. Customs officers and Government railway officials are requested to see that all packages of lobsters are officially marked before passing the same. This regulation should do much to sustain the good name of our lobster packers abroad.
