

Vote Early,

Then see that your neighbor or friend does likewise. Much may be lost by delay.

Our Returning Heroes.

It is inspiring to reflect that the cause for which you men of Canada went to fight is the cause of justice and the cause of humanity, civil rights and of religious liberty.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Welcome Home

London Receives Her Returned Heroes With Open Arms.

Citizens Turn Out En Masse to Do Honor to the Boys From Africa.

City Ablaze With Lights and Streets Crowded With Joyous People--Big Military and Civic Procession--Stirring Scenes on Arrival of the Train and at Victoria Park--The Mayor's Warm Words of Praise for Their Achievements--Banquet at the Barracks.

War-worn, sun-scorched, stained with the dust of toil, and battle-scarred, they come--victorious. We greet them--cleave the air with cheers and fling our banners to the winds; We raise triumphant songs, and strew their path-- To do them homage--bid them "Welcome home!"

We bid their country's honor in their hands, And sent them forth undoubting; said farewell. With hearts too proud, too jealous of their fame To own our pain. Today glad tears may flow. Today they come again and bring their gift-- Of all earth's gifts most precious-- trust redeemed. We stretch our hands, we lift a joyful cry. Words of all words the sweetest-- "Welcome home!"

Oh, brave, true hearts; Oh, steadfast loyal hearts! They come and lay their trophies at our feet. They show us work accomplished, hardships borne, Courageous deeds and patience under pain. Their country's name upheld and glorified. And peace, dear purchased by their blood and toil.

What guerdon have we for such service done? Our thanks, our pride, our praises and our prayers; Our country's smile and her most just rewards; The victors' laurel laid upon their brows. And all the love that speaks in "Welcome home!"

Bays for the heroes: for the martyrs, pains; To those who come not, who "though dead yet speak." A lesson to be guarded in our souls. While the land lives for whose dear sake they died-- Whose lives, peace sacred, are the price of peace.

Whose memory, thrice beloved, thrice revered, Shall be their country's heritage, to hold Eternal pattern to her living sons-- What dare we bring? They, dying, have now all. A drooping flag, a flower upon their graves, Are all the tribute left--already theirs. A nation's safety, gratitude and tears, Imperishable honor, endless rest!

And ye, O stricken-hearted! to whom earth Is dark, though peace is smiling, whom no pride Can soothe, no triumph-paen can console, Ye surely will not fall them--will not shrink To perfect now your sacrifice of love.

—Annie Rothwell Christie.

Adjectives are inexpressive and superlatives fall in their suggestiveness, when used in an attempt to describe the prodigious outburst of enthusiasm that made the welcome of the soldiers of South Africa last night. London seemed topsy-turvy pandemonium, and Londoners fairly lost control of themselves in the most remarkable demonstration that has ever been seen in the city. To describe this tremendous expression of public approval of deeds well done would be an impossibility. To appreciate it in its entirety, the tumultuous, joy-maddened thousands, the music, the pyrotechnical display, the frenzied, air-rendering cheering, it would be absolutely necessary to see and hear it, and by sheer contagion, understand its electrifying influence.

While speeding towards the city they left so little more than a year ago, the soldiers were met at Woodstock by the following men, who had returned sooner than they: Sergt. Barnhill, Corp. Russell, Corp. John Smith, Ptes. Victor Macdonald, Harry Donaghy, A. E. Woodward, Charles Finch, Archie McCulloch, Ed. Taylor, Sam Crockett, Harry Chapman, Joe Day. When these khaki-clad chaps rushed into the ranks they nearly tore their old comrades to pieces. There they were, in healthy flesh and rosy blood; the men whom they had left upon the battlefields and in the hospitals of South Africa, expecting, many of them, never to see each other again. Big, brawny fellows swung their guns from their knees as their chums trooped in. Then, literally charging each other, they hugged them, held them out at arms-length, looked in their happy eyes, and laughed and wept for the pure joy of meeting once more. No merrier knots of travelers ever swapped stories on the old Grand Trunk than these brainy, brawny trun-ces, who had done so ardently, so valiantly for their empire since those warm days of October, a year ago, when they steamed away from London. Some of the boys had parted after that fateful February day when Paardeberg was fought. Others had reached Bloemfontein together, or Koonstad, or Pretoria, perhaps. Many had helped to send some of the others to the hospitals after the wound-ridden day on the battlefield, and they talked with tongues of a long farewell, for none knew better than they the ravages of wounds and illness. So the meeting was happy, indeed, and the exchange of experiences made the time fly quickly. Suddenly some one said, "I can see the lights of London," and a mighty cheer went up, and was repeated again and again, as they looked upon the lights from the windows and platforms. A visible joy was upon their faces. They were intoxicated with the gladness of the homecoming.

The train sped into the city at last. Every street awakened recollections. "Oh, just wait till I get my mother and father," burst from the lips of one broad-shouldered lad, and almost as he spoke the train rolled between great multitudes, whose upturned faces were lighted with unusual happiness. "Stay on the case till the order is given," Sergt. George Macbeth was heard to shout above the sound of the "Home, Sweet Home" and the frantic cheers of the throng. The words were futile, for hardly had they been uttered when the train stopped and bunches of khaki were bounding upon shoulders all over the platform. Like passive corks on roaring waves they were carried by the swaying crowds. A procession was on the move, but for the time being the best-laid plans of reception committees, mayors, D. O. Cs. and anyone else were knocked into a cocked hat and stayed there, until the adulation of each clientele of hero worshippers ceased to be a fact. For while in the indescribable confusion it looked as though spontaneity and over-wrought excitement had combined to prick the bubble of a theatrical demonstration. A dismal failure of prearranged plans seemed imminent, but order was evolved out of the chaos. The policemen with their portly forms finally opened a way for the parade. Through thousands and thousands, upon whose countenances the gleam of the firework, the procession marched along Richmond Street and Central Avenue to Victoria Park. The order was as follows:

Police. Mayor Rumball and Lieut.-Col. Holmes, D.O.C. Aldermen and civic bodies, First Hussars, Sixth Field Battery, Seventh Band. The South African lads. The Seventh Regiment. The L. C. I. Cadets. The Medical School students. AT VICTORIA PARK.

The scene in Victoria Park was one that cannot fail to live long in the memory of every person that was present there. As the procession turned into the park and the band stood, the crowd momentarily increased, until it was with the greatest difficulty that the secret of police could force a way through it to the foot of the stand. The stand was mounted by the mayor, the members of the committee and the band of the 7th Regiment, and one by one, as each escaped from his circle of frantic admirers and friends, the returned soldiers mounted the structure, the appearance of each one on the stairs being the signal for a fresh outburst of cheering on the part of the multitude. It was many minutes before the last of the boys was permitted to mount the structure.

From that point the spectacle was an inspiring one. From the foot of the structure, far as the electric lights threw their illumination, the night was reflected back from the glittering arms and red tunics of the returned soldiers, and from the sea of upturned faces, flushed with joy and excitement.

"So great was the tumult that it was obviously impossible for Mayor Rumball to attempt to address the crowd, so he contented himself with the returned soldiers and those present in the stand. Even then, it is doubtful if one-half of these heard him. His speech was a model of brevity and directness. He said:

"I am with pleasure that I extend to you a hearty welcome home, to your own native land. "Words cannot express the glad welcome we feel towards you. When I was talking good-bye to the contingent, I expressed the wish that you would return crowned with victory and honor. I am glad to say that you have returned with both. I am glad to welcome you to the city.

"We are proud of you; you have done well. We have watched eagerly for news. We have scanned the papers at all times to get tidings of B Company, and our hearts swelled with pride when we heard of your successes. "We are proud of you, and the nation has a right to be proud of you. As Canadians, you have done more to unite the empire than all the long-headed speeches that could be delivered. "Actions speak louder than words. By your actions you have shown what kind of stuff Canadian soldiers are made of and the kind of men who live among us and who are able to excel anything done by our ancestors.

"Any speech of mine now would be out of place. You want to get home to see your fathers, mothers, sweethearts and friends. I am glad to come to the city of London. We are proud of you. When B Company comes home we are going to have a still grander demonstration. Then you will all be presented with a suitable souvenir in remembrance of your service. I have done for Queen and country. Keep prepared to attend, and we will give you one of the grandest times of your life. I ask you now to give three cheers for our Queen."

The cheers were given with a will, and were caught up and repeated again and again by the joyous crowd. One by one the boys in khaki descended the steps, to be swallowed up in the sea of humanity, and hurried away to other scenes of triumph and festivity. Slowly the crowd--one of the largest ever assembled in the history of London--melted away, some of them to keep up their rejoicing in the streets till a late hour.

THE RETURNED HEROES. The South African soldiers who marched, besides those above-mentioned, were: Sergt. George Macbeth, Corp. Archie Pines, Ptes. T. H. Hanney, C. D. McLaren, Frank Coles, W. G. Reed, Hugh Horner, James Duff, P. Barrett, George Taylor, Charlie Hodge, Fred Evans, W. Woodyard, Trooper J. B. Brierley, Pte. Frank Trolley, Alvinston, Pte. Phillips, Walkerville; Corp. McLean, Ailsa Craig; Trooper J. McCulloch, Northwest Territories; Trooper Harry Shobbrook, Mossomin, N. W. T.

All the soldiers were extremely grateful about their experiences. Several had been wounded, some had been ill, and others were stationed apart from the main body of their regiment, and ordered to proceed home on the Idaho. Sergt. George Macbeth, who had been laid up with a sprained back, in consequence of which he stayed alone on the plain for two days. He recovered while the regiment was north of Pretoria in pursuit of Dewet. He was forced to go to the hospital at Bloemfontein on Aug. 12.

Corp. Pines went as far as Eceetre Trecken, was neither sick nor wounded at any time. From Bloemfontein he went to the hospital at Cape Town, where he was laid up with a sprained back, and from a sprained back in consequence of which he stayed alone on the plain for two days. He recovered while the regiment was north of Pretoria in pursuit of Dewet. He was forced to go to the hospital at Bloemfontein on Aug. 12.

AT THE BARRACKS. One of the jolliest incidents in connection with the reception was the banquet that was tendered Corp. Sman and Ptes. Horner, Pines, Donahue and McMurphy, by the non-commissioned officers and men of Wolseley Barracks. The affair was hastily arranged, but it was entirely successful. The company surrounded three large tables. An excellent supper was served and enjoyed with a soldier's gusto. When it was over the men were presented to their hosts, whose personal welcomes were cordially enthusiastic. Col. Hemmings was introduced to the South African chaps, and in welcoming them home he told them how irksome it was to remain in the Yukon when the force was being made up. The supper was arranged by Sergts. Cranston and Cookburn and Corps. Taylor and Evans.

NOTES. A noticeable feature of the evening was the efficient manner in which the police who escorted the procession were on duty at the park did their duty. Difficult as was their task in clearing a way through the swarming masses, which on Richmond Street and in the park impeded the progress of the parade, they performed it firmly, but without unnecessary roughness. Not a single accident occurred to mar the rejoicing of the evening.

Private Chester McLaren received a right royal reception on arrival at his home, 28 Victor Street, South London. As soon as he made his appearance on the G. T. R. platform he was hoisted shoulder-high by his many friends, and carried in this manner until the procession reached the customs house, where he was met by a large number of friends. He was soon hurried away to his home in a waiting hack. The front of his parents' residence on Victor Street was gaily decorated with flags and Chinese lanterns, while a large streamer, "Welcome home, Chas," was stretched across the veranda. The interior of the house was brightly illuminated, and everywhere the Union Jack was conspicuous. A large crowd awaited the young hero's arrival, and gave him a warm reception. Pte. McLaren soon changed his travel-stained khaki uniform for more comfortable clothing, and during the evening was kept busy receiving hundreds of friends, among whom were many members of the Y. M. C. A. and Askin Street Epworth League. The young soldier-hero brought back the same happy countenance that always made him a favorite before he left for the war, and apart from a noticeable gain in physique, is just the same "Chas" as of yore.

HECKLED A BRITISH JUDGE. London, Nov. 6.--The South African hospitals' commission heard the last witness yesterday in London. Mrs. Richard Chamberlain, sister-in-law of Joseph Chamberlain, told the commissioners that she considered herself more capable of conducting hospitals than medical officers are, and told the president, Justice Romer, that he acted more like counsel with a brief from the army doctors than an inquisitor.

SERIOUS CHARGE. London, Nov. 6.--F. F. Hodgkinson, formerly British vice-consul at Bremen, was remanded at Bow street police court yesterday, on the charge of stealing and trying to sell to a foreign country a secret code book of the foreign office.

PLAQUE IN GERMANY. Bremen, Nov. 6.--A bubonic plague case has apparently developed in Germany in the person of a sailor named Kunze, who arrived here Oct. 27, on board the German steamer Marionburg, from South America.

OUT OF ORDER. Dublin, Nov. 6.--Amidst considerable excitement the lord mayor, at a meeting of the corporation yesterday, ruled out of order a resolution to confer the freedom of the city on former President Kruger of the South African Republic.

TIERED OF THE LILY. London, Nov. 5.--Hugo de Bathe, the young husband of Lily Langtry, has just returned from South Africa, and is spending his time bewailing the fact he ever married the fair Lily. It is declared openly that he wants a divorce, but is not able to secure evidence on which to base an action.

The fact of the matter is, he left for South Africa after a terrible scene with his wife. De Bathe has offered Langtry grounds for divorce--violence, it is believed--but she has treated his suggestion with scorn. She refuses to release him or give him any ground for divorce.

Meanwhile the young man is worrying, while his wife is playing to enormous business in the provinces.

Safest to Vote Early.

Tomorrow let nothing stand in the way of your voting early.
You are always in danger of being personated if you delay till the last moment.

An Omen for Tomorrow.

Thus stands the record:
Liberals elected—
Laverne, Arthabaska.
Charlton, North Norfolk.
Cottigan, Victoria.	-3
Ridings in which no Conservatives are running: Elgin West.
Beauce.
Lisgar.
Winnipeg.
Huron, S.
L'Islet.	-6
Total Liberal.	-9
Conservatives elected:
Seagram, Waterloo, N.	-4
Riding in which no Liberal is run- ning:
Lanark, S.	-1
Total Conservative.	-2

Foreigners cannot kill the votes of honest Canadians tomorrow, as they did under the infamous measure placed on the statute book by the late government.

Underestimates Londoners.

Mr. Mulock boasts that he "reduced the rate on postage to every man who has a letter to write by one-third." How many letters does the average man write in the course of a year?
We believe he buys ten plugs of tobacco to one postage stamp, and the price of his tobacco is raised.—London Free Press.

It hardly becomes the Free Press to hold our citizens up to the outside world as an ignorant and besotted community, entirely devoid of literary instincts or learnings. There is no more highly cultivated community in the Dominion than that of London, and to say that they "buy ten plugs of tobacco to one postage stamp," is a gratuitous insult to every resident of our fair city. It becomes our expected contemporary to disseminate such libels on our people.

Under the present administration this country has progressed and prospered as it has never done before. Let us not do anything to bring back the old quarrelling cabinet, with the stagnation and hard times that accompanied it.

On the Eve of the Battle.

The political campaign is practically over. It is all done except the final decisive stroke. On Wednesday there will be witnessed once more the spectacle of a nation quietly registering its choice on a matter of the highest importance to the country. The character of a nation is shown in the way in which such contests are decided. It requires the highest state of civilization, the truest freedom, and most real courage, to conduct such contests well.
The proper weapon is fair argument, candid statement of facts, and a spirit of kindly tolerance. Men may differ on political issues, and yet sustain most kindly relations in all other spheres of life. Hence our election contests should be conducted so as to leave as little sting as possible behind them. Nothing enables men to bear defeat well like the consciousness that they have fought the battle honorably, and the same feeling helps the conquerors to temper victory with moderation.
Therefore we hope that to the end the fight will be carried on in a spirit of fairness, and that the final struggle at the polls will be one that will reflect credit on Canada in the eyes of the world.

We desire victory because we believe that the policy and administration of the Laurier Government is at the present time working for the highest good of the whole country; therefore we can confidently urge Liberals to poll every legitimate vote, and use all fair influence on behalf of their candidates.
We desire to have on Wednesday night a victory of which all honorable men may be proud, one that proves that the country has responded to the appeal which is made to its patriotism as well as its interest; a response which will show that the whole situation has been fairly grasped, and that Canada understands the fact that she has entered upon a great career, in which we may expect not only commercial advance, but also increase of real national influence in the councils of the Empire.

Watch the chaps who engineered the atrocious corruption in the election of 1896.
They will be trying on some kindred method of preventing a fair vote or they will not live up to their record.

Sir Wilfrid Took the Right Course.

The London (England) Saturday Review is quoted by The Advertiser as saying that "Sir Wilfrid Laurier sent me to South Africa because Canadian sentiment demanded it." That's it exactly. No Canadian sentiment would have gone with the consent of the Government had not Sir Wilfrid realized that Canadian sentiment demanded it, and would not be denied.—London Free Press.

The Free Press casts this up to Sir Wilfrid Laurier as a matter of reproach. The Free Press is evidently ignorant of the proper attitude of Governments towards public opinion. In certain cases it is their duty and proper function to act as far as possible lead public opinion and proceed in advance of it. In other cases it is equally their duty to follow public opinion. This is well understood and laid down by all authorities on civil polity. Let us quote perhaps the highest, "Cox's British Commonwealth."

"It is a problem of great difficulty and great importance to determine when legislation should anticipate public opinion and when wait for it. . . .
A system of statesmanship which continually anticipated public opinion would be very apt to run decidedly counter to it, and to be thwarted by unanticipated difficulties. Legislation may be too soon as well as too late—may meddle as well as neglect.
Indubitably that is a most in-cautious policy which never waits for public judgment."

The case in point falls within the last mentioned of the above two categories. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's course was in strict accordance with the approved rule. Surely our esteemed contemporaries would not claim that it was Sir Wilfrid's duty to send the contingents quite irrespective of whether Canadian opinion approved it or not.
Our contemporary over-reached itself in sharpness that trip. Sometimes they do that jugulant se accumine.

Vote early tomorrow. The new law prevents you from voting often. So much the greater fair play to all.

Mr. Rowell's Chances.

Mr. N. W. Rowell's chances of election to the House of Commons as member for East York have brightened very much as polling day draws near, and the opinion is now general that he will defeat Mr. McLean, the man with the knife. The number of former Conservatives who are supporting Mr.
Rowell is considerable. For example, we have Mr. Wm. Kelly, for 40 years a Conservative, who has come over to Mr. Rowell's side, and he says he brings seven votes in his own household with him, because of Mr. Mc-Lean's proneness to knife friends with whom he may disagree.

It is a bad trait in a representative man that Mr. Rowell will not be guilty of. He will make a model representative.

The London Contest—Who Will Decide?

The elections so far have been compared with former elections, quiet and free from excitement. Speeches at public meetings have, on the whole, been fair, and the press for the most part has been free from anything objectionable; but the very quietness of the elections is one of the phases to be reckoned with.

On both sides, belonging to both of the great political parties are many not open to conviction. They obtained their politics as they obtained their religion, they were born into one or other of the great parties, and they never thought for a moment of changing. If their party was right they followed it, and if wrong they followed the same old beaten path.
"It was good enough for my fathers, and it's good enough for me."

There are, however, a large number also who do not claim a fixed allegiance to any party, but who claim and exercise the right to vote as to them seems right. Among this class are many thinking men, men well posted on public questions, who scarcely ever talk politics, and how they vote is unknown.

This class have much power in determining the fate of the Government and candidates. They are in some constituencies the balance of power, and as the majority of them vote so is the result.

Tomorrow they will vote in this city, either for Mr. Hyman or Mr. Beattie, and their vote will effect the result.
We think that vote will be cast for Mr. Hyman.

On the one side Mr. Hyman supports the Laurier Government, whose achievements have brought to Canada the sunshine of prosperity. Canada has become a nation. Its people have a conscious feeling of the future greatness of the country, and whatever criticisms may be made of the Government, the people feel that they are prospering as they never did before. Arguments that the Government is not efficient will not be believed when the result of that Government is felt to be good.

On the other side, Major Beattie is a follower of Sir Charles Tupper, and if the Government were defeated he would be compelled to form a Government out of the very material the leader of the Conservatives in the Senate declares he will not allow to be chosen. It must be quite plain, even to Mr. Beattie, that "the nest" still needs cleaning, and that it would be dangerous indeed to let those who quarrel so vigorously have the government of the country in their hands.

Between the candidates, apart from the parties to which they belong, Mr. Hyman is a man of experience and great ability, engaged actively and extensively in business, employing many men, whose respect he and his father before him have always had. He has for many years been in the forefront in the political contests in this city, and that fact has strengthened him. He has after each contest been more than before the prime favorite of his party. He possesses all the qualifications necessary to make a good parliamentarian.

Mr. Beattie has been tried for a term. He has been far in advance of his leader in loyalty—so far in advance that he was offensive to Sir Wilfrid Laurier with reference to his mission to England to represent Canada at the Queen's Jubilee. His leader at that time congratulated the country upon having so fitting a representative.
Mr. Beattie insults that representative. Again, he tries to hoodwink the workman. He does not understand him, and underestimates him. The workman knows as well as he does that no Government could ever enforce a law compelling ten hours' pay for eight hours' work; and knows that if during four years Mr. Beattie could not bring his eight hour bill up for discussion he has been slow to learn the mode of procedure.
The reason for this, of course, is that given at the nomination. He might as well hand the bill to Mr. Lowie and have him introduce it in Old London. Had he the power in the House of Commons of Canada, four years was long enough to have brought it forward for discussion. Mr. Beattie is not engaged in any business.

The class of electors to which we refer ought not to hesitate long between the united and successful Government in existence, and the one whose place it took and which fell to pieces of its own weight and internal dissensions.

Nor should they hesitate long between the candidates, admitting both to be personally free from objection.
Mr. Hyman is to be preferred for the reasons given in our comparison. He possesses what the Conservatives call the "instinct of government," which Mr. Beattie's four years of service show he lamentably lacks.

Vote early. Do not wait to be sent for.

Big Victory Foreshadowed.

The editor of the St. John (N. B.) Monitor, a non-political journal, does not close his eyes to the signs of the times. In the issue of his paper of Saturday last, he says:

"All the indications point to a return to power of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues on Wednesday next, Nov. 7, by at least 45 of a majority. There is no doubt whatever of the election of Hon. A. G.
Blair and Col. Tucker from the St.
John constituencies. The chances are that New Brunswick will be once more the banner Liberal province of the Dominion."

Why Clarke Wallace Will Be Defeated.

Out at Toronto Junction, there was a one hundred acre farm on which 575 persons, almost all Conservative politicians in Toronto, used to vote in Dominion elections. That was under the iniquitous Franchise Act of the last government. These men cannot now get out into West York and kill the votes of honest yeomen by the hundred. They can only vote once, and that in Toronto. It is a knowledge of such facts as these that proves how Clarke Wallace managed to defeat Liberal candidates in West York in the past. These faggot votes being killed, and the friends of Mr. Wallace being no longer able to bring in and poll the foreign and graveyard vote, there are many good reasons for the belief that Mr. Archie Campbell will defeat Mr. Wallace on Wednesday next.

Prosperity is not for one party, but for all the people of Canada, and for all classes and creeds. Let us vote to sustain the Government which has so managed the country's affairs as to add, rather than retard, national progress and prosperity, and has most effectively lived down the slander of its opponents—that Liberal rule would lead to national demoralization and ruin.

Militia and Strikers.

That stirrer-up of strife and retailer of unfounded information, the Montreal correspondent of the Toronto World, is filling his mission by alleging that the Dominion Government is responsible for sending the militia to Valleyfield on the occasion of the recent trouble there. The statement is manufactured out of whole cloth.
The civic authorities of Valleyfield were alone responsible for the presence of the troops in the town, they Let Well Enough Alone.

The Bradstreet Review, just received this morning, speaking of London, says: "The outlook for trade is bright." Better leave well enough alone, then, and vote to retain the Prosperity Government in power.—Advertiser.

Certainly, the outlook for trade is bright, but is there a business man in London who does not want to do better? If the Advertiser is satisfied to "let well enough alone," why does it not discharge its canvassers? Are they not always on the lookout to increase business?—Free Press.

Some idea of what The Advertiser means by letting well enough alone, may be inferred from the fact that the foreign trade of Canada increased $122,000,000 in Laurier's four years, while it only increased $66,000,000 in the Tupper eighteen years.

Supporters of the Government should pay no attention to eleventh hour roor-bauchs. Let them remember that Hon.
Alexander MacKenzie was tied out of office by his political opponents.

Avoid the Hoodoo.

The unprecedented expansion of Canada's trade under Liberal rule, as compared with its growth under Conservative rule, is accounted for by Conservative speakers by references to Providence or good crops. Are we to conclude, then that Providence had turned from us during the eighteen years of the incumbency of the Conservative party, or that there were no good crops during the whole of that period? If so, we want no hoodoo party at Ottawa.

Gentlemen of the Opposition, any more fakes? The public enjoy the humor of your desperate moves, but they take no stock in your abominable methods.

Lost, strayed or stolen—the Son of his Father, the man who runs away from his pledges. Any information will be thankfully received by his former partners in Winnipeg.

Canada is well satisfied with Laurier.

The forged Globe and Pamphlet No.
6 are being circulated by the Opposition up to the eleventh hour of election eve. They are exposed, however, and are making votes for Government candidates everywhere.

Old Liberals, young Liberals, Liberals of every age and condition, and men of independent character everywhere, will vote to sustain the Government, because it has proved a good Administration, because the country has prospered under its management, and because it is necessary to repel the infamous gerrymander, the intention of which was to let a minority of voters elect a majority of members, and thereby defeat the popular verdict.

SIR WILFRID'S RAPID TOUR

Splendid Series of Meetings Addressed by the Premier

At Various Points En Route to the Rally at Hamilton.

Toronto, Nov. 6.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's flying trip through the constituencies immediately west of Toronto began this morning under the happiest auspices. Punctually at 9:30 a special train swung out from the Union station, Toronto, bound on perhaps the most unique journey which has ever been undertaken by a Canadian statesman. The train consisted of a dining car, Pullman coach and the government car, which has practically been the abode of the premier during the exacting campaign of the past six weeks.

On board the train, in addition to Sir Wilfrid, were Hon. Wm. Mulock, postmaster-general; Hon. Geo. A. Cox, Hon. L. M. Jones, Messrs. John Bertman, S. Shennstone, W. E. H. Massey, J. S. Willison, S. W. James, G. S. Lindsey, Q.C., president of the Toronto Rotary Association; J. K. Keat, Q.C.; S. F. McKinnon, Liberal candidate for Halton; Walter Beardmore, L. V. McBrady, Thos. Mulvey, John A. McGrath and Alex. Smith, and a corps of newspaper reporters. The weather was of an ideal character. During the night and early morning showers of rain had fallen, but when the party assembled at the Union station the skies had cleared and bright sunbeams shone on the landscape.

FIRST STOP AT BRAMPTON. The train sped swiftly along, and at 10:10 Brampton, the first stopping place was reached. Here a crowd of several hundred persons had gathered, and they were addressed from the government car by Mr. G. S. Lindsey and Mr. J. K. Keat. The train bowed into the station and came to a halt. Sir Wilfrid stepped out, and the crowd sang with much vigor. "He's a jolly good fellow."

At 11:30 Georgetown, which is in Halton county, for which Mr. S. F. McKinnon is the candidate, was reached. Sir Wilfrid stepped out, and the crowd sang with much vigor. "He's a jolly good fellow." stintency to leave that gentleman at home.

The temptation to speak to such a large and enthusiastic throng at length was great, but Sir Wilfrid had to leave almost at once.

AT Caledonia. The scene of a grand gala witnessed along the route was repeated at Caledonia, in the county of Haldimand, which was made at 2:30. Just as at other points, the people were thickly massed in and around the station, and there was great cheering in honor of the premier. Sir Wilfrid asked the electors of Haldimand and Monck to choose Major Thompson in preference to Dr. McLaughlin, and to elect him for many years to sit with his father, David Thompson, the premier said, "and if the son is a chip of the old block, you will have a good man. A better man than Sir David Thompson, or a truer, nobler Canadian I never wish to meet."

DUNNVILLE'S WELCOME. From Caledonia the train moved at express speed to Dunnville, which is also in the county of Haldimand, and a former center of Conservatism. The crowd here was equally as numerous and enthusiastic as at other points, and the cheers were just as enthusiastic. A speech from Mr. J. S. Willison preceded that of the premier, who was a great ovation. Sir Wilfrid said among other things: "The message which I bring you is not only a message of peace and union among all the different elements which go to make up the population of Canada, but a message of victory." (Cheers.)

AT PORT COLBORNE. From the constituency of Haldimand the train moved into that of Welland, and a stop was made at 4:45 at Port Colborne, on the Welland Canal. The place was gaily decorated in honor of the premier's visit. A huge bouquet of red roses was handed to Sir Wilfrid when he stepped forward. The premier's appearance was the signal for a mighty roar of welcome. It was, he said, his first visit to Port Colborne, but he had been familiar with the name for many years past. Sir Wilfrid appealed to the electors to endorse the Liberal policy of making Canada a great and united country. (Cheers.)

AT WELLAND. Welland was the next place of call, and the train rolled in at 4:55. The station and its approaches filled with people. Great was the enthusiasm over the premier's visit. The crowd cheered incessantly, and the strains of music filled the air. Sir Wilfrid's speech was an eloquent plea for unity among all classes of the people.

AT ST. CATHARINES. At sundown, the weather, which had been beautiful all day, underwent a sudden change. A hurricane of wind set in, and the rain fell in torrents. Nothing daunted by this the electors of the county of Lincoln and Niagara gathered in thousands at St. Catharines railway station. The people were lined up on the station platform and packed together as tightly as sardines in a box. Sir Wilfrid said he knew the heart of St. Catharines and the county of Lincoln was in the right place, but now he had irresistible evidence of the fact.

He expressed confidence that the electors would re-elect him. "In him," said the premier, "you have one of the noblest sons of Canada, a man ever true to the right, a thorough Canadian and a thorough Liberal." (Great cheering.)

AT MERRITTON. It was quite dark when at 5:45 the train rolled into Merrittton, but the volume of cheering indicated the presence of a large crowd. In the illumination cast by the lights from the station they could dimly be seen, massed around on all sides Mr. G. S. Lindsey, Mr. J. K. Keat, Mr. S. F. McKinnon, and other Liberal supporters. Sir Wilfrid stepped out, and the crowd sang with much vigor. "He's a jolly good fellow."

At 6:10 o'clock Sir Wilfrid's train pulled into Beamsville, to meet a similar reception to that which he had received at Merrittton. Mrs. Gibson, wife of Mr. William Gibson, Miss Gibson and Mrs. Davidson boarded the train here and were welcome additions to the premier's party on the journey to Hamilton.

As an omen of good luck the young Liberals of the locality presented Sir Wilfrid with a horseshoe and he held this in his hand while speaking. He exhorted the electors to have nothing to do with the Conservatives, and to elect Mr. Gibson, and then, referring to the campaign generally said he had no doubt that the Liberals would be victorious on Wednesday.

AT GRIMSBY. Grimsby was the last point of calling before arriving at Hamilton. It is in the riding of South Wentworth, and the candidate is Mr. W. O. Sealey, a popular lumber merchant. The premier was welcomed by a reception committee. Mr. Sealey spoke a few words from the rear of a great number of people who had gathered at the station.

Cured of Constipation and Dyspepsia After Fifteen Years Suffering.

Mr. W. Ireland, whose place of business is 170 Queen street east, is one of Toronto's most enterprising shoemakers. Since he located in his present premises a few years ago he has worked up a splendid business, and is well and favorably known in the East End. His wife, who suffered a great number of years from Constipation and Dyspepsia in a most aggravated form, has recently regained her wonted health and vigor, when spoken to as to the means she employed, made the following statement: "I suffered from severe Constipation and Indigestion for about 15 years and have tried all sorts of remedies, but got little benefit from anything until I tried Laxa-Liver Pills."

"Before using them I endured torture, could eat very little, and what I did eat seemed to be heavy on my stomach. I got very much run down, became weak and lost flesh. Since taking the Laxa-Liver Pills, however, my appetite has improved, the Constipation has been relieved, and my food digests so well that I have gained in weight and strength, and have been able to ride a wheel all summer."

EIGHT-HOUR LEGISLATION.

The London Free Press this morning (speaking of Major Beattie's eight-hour bill) says that "the Dominion Parliament can regulate the hours of labor or anything else within the Dominion, as is well known, the forces of labor are particularly strong, and through disturbances of the last year or so the sympathy of a large section of the people has been given to the cause of the workingman. Major Beattie, in order to catch this vote, last session introduced into the house an eight-hour bill. It was given its first reading, but though it was called again from time to time, he had nothing to say in its support and it was silently dropped. But once the election contest began he had copies of it flooded and his consistency, representing to the electors that he was enthusiastic in support of the eight-hour cause. As a matter of fact he said not a word in its favor in the house. His conduct in regard to the bill was clear proof of his insincerity. But what makes this action worse is the fact that the Dominion Parliament has no right to legislate in regard to the hours of labor as that is left under the British North America act to the provinces.
The honest voters of London, it is hardly necessary to say, have by this time effectually sized up the major.

The Strauss Orchestra.

It is indeed a matter of regret that the home-coming of the South African soldiers should have conflicted with the engagement at the London Opera House last night of Eduard Strauss and his famous Viennese orchestra, for many citizens of London thereby missed the opportunity of a musical treat such as is not often afforded them, and a deserving and talented company of musicians were deprived of the encouragement and patronage which was their due. The orchestra, which is a splendid organization of 41 musicians, gave eminent satisfaction in the various selections, and evidenced in an unusual degree not only the native talent of each member, but also the excellence of their training and direction. Eduard Strauss in a remarkable degree fulfils the ideal of temperament and individuality into his methods as a conductor, and to this fact is owing very largely the unique reputation which his orchestra has gained. It is in the rendition of the Strauss music that the orchestra's work is especially noticeable, for it cannot be denied that there are several American orchestras that are fully equal, if not superior, to it in the rendition of the operatic and other music played by them. The work of the strings and wood wind is of the finest quality, but the brass is discordant at times. It was for this reason that the work of the orchestra excelled in the more delicate passages of their numbers, while their work in stronger parts fell short of the critical musical standard. The most ennobling number was undoubtedly the exquisite "On Wings of Song," while others worthy of special mention were Mozart's "Ave Verum" and the selection from "Elyvia" (Smaraglia); waltz, "Doctrien" (Eduard Strauss); "Ave Verum" (W. A. Mozart), arranged for string quartet and harp by Eduard Strauss; entracte and pizzicato from the ballet "Elyvia" (Debussy); potpourri from the opera "Pasciocco" (Leoncavallo); waltz, "Fledermaus" (Johann Strauss); song, "On Wings of Song" bauching the constituency. They are night and tomorrow.

Doctors Urge Upon the Hospital Trust the Need of Increased Accommo-

A meeting of the hospital trust was held in the city hall yesterday after-

A deputation consisting of Dr. John plastering, etc., of the third story of the hospital. They guaranteed its furnishing if the board would attend to making it fit for occupancy. The cost of the work would be between $1,500 and $1,600. The reasons advanced by the doctors was the utter inadequacy of the present accommodation for patients, though the unusually high number of patients at present is due to the prevalence of typhoid fever. In the course of the discussion the doctors referred to the overworked condition of the nursing staff, and the fact developed that at present three of the nurses are ill with typhoid fever. The trust

Fit-Reform and Its Mission...

Fit-Reform
was produced to fill three wants.

First—To give tailor-made clothing at ready-made cost.
Second—To give tailor-made style and fit without tailor-made delay.

Third—To do away with tailor-made guess work as to how a piece of cloth will look when made up.

Fit-Reform is not merely a name. Its name is useful only to distinguish it from make-shift clothing.

Fit-Reform led the way to good clothing ready made. It still leads where other branded clothing is unsettled and uncertain, following an idea without the experience to carry it out. Fit-Reform has passed through the primary grades and stands at the head of the ranks of the best.

"What About Tarte?"

Toronto, Nov. 4.—One of the interruptions which Liberal speakers have met with all over Ontario during the past campaign is the familiar cry
"What about Tarte?" Mr. Pattullo, M.P.P. for North Oxford, ran up against a number of animated interruption remarks at Mr. McKinnon's meeting at Glen Williams, in Halton county, the other night. The meeting was anti-Liberal, and apparently organized for the purpose of worrying the speakers. But Mr. Pattullo is one of our public speakers who improves on interruptions, and his ready wit and ability to answer all questions, soon made him master of the situation, and there was after a time perfect quiet, except from one auditor, who kept on the refrain, "What about Tarte?"

Turning on him, Mr. Pattullo told why Conservatives disliked Mr.
Laurier, and made a vigorous defense of the master of public works. In spite of all this, said he, when we show what the Laurier government has done for the country, we are met with the cry "What about Tarte?" When we show that labor is plenty and wages good, the answer is "What about Tarte?" When we prove that the policy of the Liberals has made the manufacturers and the business men and the farmers prosperous, there is the old refrain, "What about Tarte?"

Dropping his voice to very solemn tones, Mr. Pattullo went on to say that he supposed it would be so until the end of time. "Even at the last great day, when all things here shall dissolve, and the elements melt with ferment heat, when the last trump shall sound, and the politicians of the world be called together to receive their final sentence, even on that solemn night, away off in a far corner, there will be some restless, miserable little Tory, who will shake the ashes from his hair, kick the coals from about his feet, and interrupt the proceedings by growling, 'What about Tarte?'"

It took the audience a long time to get through laughing and to settle down, but Mr. Pattullo had no further interruptions that evening.

In the Fifth Assembly district one-third of the total vote had been cast at 8 o'clock. In Brooklyn also the early vote was very heavy.

Richard Croker, leader of Tammany Hall, surprised the election inspectors in his district by walking into the polling place five minutes after they had opened. Mr. Croker's ballot was No. 8, and ballot No. 9 was handed to his son Frank who accompanied him.

In Chicago the polls opened at 6 o'clock, and by 7 o'clock it was estimated that 20 per cent of the registered vote of 461,717 had been cast. Four years ago it was estimated that fully 80 per cent of the registered vote was cast during the first hour.

In Boston it was generally admitted that Bryan would receive a much heavier vote than in 1896, many gold Democrats having returned to the fold and a small percentage of anti-Imperialist Republicans having decided to vote for the Nebraskan. Four years ago McKinley carried Boston by about 15,000 plurality.

In Philadelphia the most bitter feeling prevailed, and disturbances were looked for by the police officials. Within the first hour several clashes took place, but there was no serious results.
