First Quarter of 1925 Encouraging, But Commission Advocates Economy.

DEFICIT ACCEPTED

Wenigo Pessimistic As 1924 Report Is Adopted-Richards Has Suggestion.

Greater economy in operating expenses of the London and Port Stanley railway was advocated today at the May session of the London railway commission. Purchase of supplies for the cafeteria by tender was recommended, and further cuts in overhead expenses were urged.

At the same time General Manager Richards was able to show a favorable pickup in freight traffic for the first quarter of 1925. Revenue increased $1,700 altogether, and expenses were cut by $8,000. The gross profit for January. February and March was $0...83. Last year there was a deficit in the same term and the year previous the surplus was less than $200.

Wants Purchase by Tender. Wants Purchase by Tender.

Commissioner George Burdick favored purchase of foodstuffs by tender. General Manager Richards pointed out that all manner of purchases had been experimented with during the past ten years. At one time stocks were laid in before the season opened and $30,000 expended before a meal was purchased at the cafetgria. It was found inadvisable to tie up funds in this way, and that goods could be in this way, and that goods could be purchased more cheaply as they were eeded.

The commission recommended that tenders for the supply of food, month by month, be called for, and that urchases be made as required. Mr. Burdick wanted the railway to forego any painting at the port work on buildings there could go for another year. He also checked up on a number of section hands, carpena number of section names, carrienters and other employees. No definite recommendation was made for cuts in these classes of employees.

1924 Report Adopted. The annual report for 1924, showing a deficit of $102,000, was adopted on the recommendation of Commissioner Donald Wright. Mayor Wenige took occasion to stress the losses of the railway during the pas losses of the railway during the past few years, and offered no remedy for the situation. He blamed national conditions for the road's losses. "We've got to be optimistic," de-clared J. P. Moore, vice-chairman. "Cut down overhead expenses to the lowest notch" suggested Com-missioner Burdick. "That's all you can do, unless you can suggest any.

"No, I'm only asking a question," returned his worship.

Manager Richards pointed out that the railway has $25,000 available from the railway has $2,000 available from an insurance fund. It had been the original pian to build a $100,000 insurance fund, but this scheme has never been carried out. The railway also has $30,000 in available sur-

'Personalize Calvary,' Declares Rev. W. R. McIntosh, D.D., in Sunday Sermon.

Personalization of Calvary was urged by Rev. W. R. McIntosh, D.D., in his Mother's Day sermon in King street Presbyterian church last night.

"Oftimes religion is claimed to be a curse instead of a blessing," observed Dr. McIntosh, "and therefor? what we need to do is to put more of mother into our religion. We need to personalize Calvary by comparing it to our experience with our mother here, and thus religion will become both sweet and helpful."

Stressing "the mother love of God,"
Dr. McIntosh took his text from Isaiah: "As one whom his mother comforteth, so I comfort you"
"There is a great need for comfort today," declared the speaker. "The world is upset with distress amongs both the churches and the nations. The Bible is a good place to turn for comfort and now is a good time to seek comfort. We should not forget the benefits of God. We are too prone to be forgetful of His mercies because they are so common and because they "God's supreme comfort and mercy is His mother love," asserted Dr Mc-Intosh. "Especially is it revealed to us in creation, the gifts and joys of life in His constant providence, the confidence He places in us when everyone else forsakes us and lastly everyone else forsakes us and lastly in His redemption on Calvary.

"We frequently hear of a mother's love redeeming her boy from a life of sin—by her patient assuming of his shame the boy is won back to virtue. And so it is with Christ," concluded Dr. McIntosh. "By Christ taking our sin and shame and by His suffering on the cross He brings us to repentance and everlasting life."

Six infants were baptized at the Six infants were baptized at the morning service in King street church and about 12 four-year-old boys and girls were promoted from the cradle roll to the primary division. This ceremony is carried out very beau-tifully and vividly by having the children pass through small gates signifying the taking of a step in their church life. Tell Her She's "Different" -Compliment Her on Her Looks.

A young man asks: "What line of conversation holds the girls?"

Well, son, God made women easy to please, so far as men are con- altar of many ferns and spring cerned. So almost any line of chatter, provided there isn't too much of it, and it isn't too overwhelmingly egotistic, goes with the fair sex.

Once upon a time I interviewed a higamist who had wooed and won Hawaiian trio numbers by the Misses and married thirty-seven wives as to make a woman fall in love with talk to her about herself."

This was the opinion of one who for the atternoon. Various booths, all prettily decorated, were arranged about the rooms and were convened by the following: Mrs. Sydney Huggell. Mrs. J. F. Calvert and Mrs. Rose Pickering, at the home-made baking table; the Misses Mary and Daisy Dixon, candy; the Misses Marcella Hodgins, Lila Baskette and Mrs. T. W. Thomas, fancywork. A pleasing feature of the event was the presentation of a fountain pen and an station of a fountain pen and an summer are described as an expert in sentimental affairs, and I do not think you can do better than to take his advice. The one subject in which all of us are eternally interested, and of which we can never hear enough, to a girl about herself she will not only lend you a willing ear, but when you pause to take breath she will you pause to take breath she will sit up and beg for more.

Do not fear that you are likely to bore a girl when you tell her how beautiful she is, and what a willowy figure she has, and that her eyes are like stars, and that you don't know how she walks on such tiny little feet, and that her black or brown or mouse colored hair has such ravishing shades in it that she really should have some painter fellow do a portrait of her.

As long as you hand out this line of conversation she will regard you as a silver-tongued orator who could give William Jennings Bryan points and then knock him for a goal.

Girls like to be told that they are somehow different from any other girl a man ever met. Something inexplicable, you know. Vague. Intangible. Maybe something deep and weird in the eyes, or something in the smile, or perhaps just the way she says things that give a thrill, and make him feel that he has met the one woman that he has always been looking for and never found be-

Goodness knows why girls fall for that kind of spiel, but they do. They simply lap it up. Just tell a girl that she has some sort of weird personal ity, and she will hang on your words as long as you will vivisect her.

Another line of talk that makes hit with girls is the bold, bad-man stuff. Virtually all women are born with the reformation complex. They have a mania for making people over according to their own little cut paper patterns, and nothing allures them as much as does the black sheep who has strayed away from the fold. Also, they have a morbid interest in hearing about sins that they would have liked to have committed, but lacked the courage to commit.

So never hesitate to make a your mother confessor. She will listen enthralled while you tell her all the crimes you have committed, and can make up as you go along, in your revelations of a secret desperate life. that has been camouflaged to the general public under the guise of the blameless existence of a shoe clerk. And when you tell her that her sacred influence alone can save you, she will qualify on the spot as your guardian angel, and will regard you as the most fas-cinating devil she has ever met.

Of course, young girls like boys who can kid, who have an inexhaustible line of jolly, who can make near-love amusingly, and make a girl deel pleased and flattered and satisfied with herself, without being able to put her finger on anything the man has specifically said. It is a great art to be able to talk nonsense entertainingly, and women particularly delight in gay fooling.

A line of conversation that never fails to win out with older women is to talk to them about their souls. This is why doctors and clergymen and college pro-fessors and poets are so peculiarly fatal to the fair sex.

When the ordinary man desires to ingratiate himself with a woman, he pays her a compliment on her looks and tells her what a peachesand-cream complexion she has. This doesn't make much impression on the woman because it is the conventional thing for the man to do, and a thousand other men have told her the same thing.

But when a man tells her what a wonderful mind she has, what discernment, what understanding, and that there is something psychic about her, the flattery of it goes to her head like wine and sweeps her off of her feet. She could listen to it forever, and she is willing to marry any man who holds out a promise of giving a continuous performance of this ing a continuous conversational line.

The bride, who was given in mar riage by her father, was a pretty pic-ture in white georgette and lace, and her bridal veil of filmy tulle was arand married thirty-seven wives as to the best method of making a hit with the ladies, and he said:

"Oh, it isn't any trouble to make a noman tall in lone with a bandeau of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies-of-the-valley and wore the bridegroom's gift, a diamond ring. The bride entered the drawing-room through an aisle of white ribbons, a negrety of tied at the ends with nosegays of forget-me-nots, which were held by dainty wee ribbon-bearers, the Misses Isabel and Marshall Pearson.
Miss Isabel looked very sweet in a sleeveless ruffled frock of powder blue georgette with poke hat and socks to match, and Miss Marshall wore a smart white sailor suit. The bridesmaids, Misses Isabel Macdonald and Jessie Faill, looked lovely in French frocks of orchid and yellow georgette with hats to match and carried arm bouquets of mauve sweet peas, tied with gold and mauve ribbon. Mrs. Faill, mother of the bridegroom, wore a French model of almond green beaded in lvory, with hat to match and carried Ophelia Mrs. Macdonad, mother of roses. Mrs. Macdonad, mother of the bride, was wearing a chic French toilette of gray georgette, with lace hat and corsage of pink roses. Miss Agnes Faill, who wore a French gown of blue with pastel beading, played the wedding march from Lohengrin. Mrs. Hylton Long of Hamilton, in a gown of flame georgette with matching hat, sang "Calm As the Night" Harold Malone acted as best man. Later Mr. and Mrs. Faill left by motor for Quebec, returning through the Adirondacks to Niagara Falls

GOES TO SEE NEGRO PARTIES AT HARLEM SUPPER CLUBS

Julia Hoyt Finds "White People" Politely Unnoticed.

UTTER FREEDOM

By JULIA HOYT.

New York, May 10.—Last night I was taken on a tour of some of the negro supper clubs in Harlem. The first and second places we went to were entirely disappointing from the point of view of novelty or interest. At the tables there were nothing but white people, and the only thing about it that was negro were the waiters and the show. The long trip uptown was quite unnecessary, for we might have been at any Broadway restaurant with a negro revue.

Quite discouraged on leaving the second place, we took our taxi chauf-feur (who happened to be a negro) into our confidence, and asked him if he would take up to a place that was really negro—guests as well as waiters and performers. He "lowed" waiters and performers. He lowed he knew such a place and he lived up to his promise. We went down some steps into a basement, which some steps into a basement, which some steps into a basement, which some steps into a basement to the london Drama League.—Portrait by Sanders studio consisted of one room, packed to the door with negroes. We were the only white people in the place.

Pleasantly Unnoticed. What to me was charming was the fact that, with the exception of the proprietor, who led us to our table, and a very pleasant young man arisen from nownere, who con mented us by sitting at our table, we were entirely unnoticed by any-one in the room. If an east Indian or any equally unusual person came into the Lido or one of our Broadway restaurants, it is easy to imagine the excitement he would cause. Yet we were an unusual sight in this place, and we were not made un-comfortable, nor to feel that we were in the slightest way out of place.

The man who sat with us (I don't know what was his idea in doing so, unless to help us feel at home) was very pleasant and unobtrusive and in the course of conversation informed us he had once been valet to a famous actor. We stayed perhaps three-quarters of an hour, and the entire time that we were there the orchestra never stopped playing. end. All through the music a drum kept throbbing steadily, strange, even beat, and it began to affect me as the never-ending of the drug in Eugene O'Neill's "Emperor Jones."

Around me everyone was having a splendid time. Few couples danced but whenever any one felt like it they treet, baby buggy; Mrs. Busch, would get us and give a solo dance wand avenue, milk for one family or one week; Misses Betty and Nora got up did as good a clog as I have seen in a long time, and as suddenly sat down again. W. says he had forgotten some important papers which he needed to take with him to America. This I don't believe. Too obvious an excuse! Says also that being on the spot he thought it well to burn a lot of things which were no longer of any use. I do believe he burnt the things but not because longer of any use. I do believe he burnt the things, but not because

W. has an enemy who would go any length to injure him. But it wasn't quite cute enough. Either the person was planned it couldn't get the skeleton of a woman, or didn't suppose that it would be or didn't suppose that it would be daughter. This was only a side-issue possible to detect the difference in however, of the new theory as it a few bones after they'd been nearly burnt to cinders. There could be two objects only in burning that skeleton (putting aside the idea that R. W. himself may have done it for some unknown reason); one, to make it appear that Eve had been murdered; the other, to make it appear that R. W. was the murderer.

"Now what would happen to R. W. if it could be clearly proved that he had lured Mrs. Haste into some secret trap in his own house, killed her, and attempted to cremate her ody in a furnace?
"He would, of course, be hanged.

"Was enough evidence built up against R. W. to convict him? 'If the skeleton hadn't turned outo be that of a man, thus suggesting a trick, there might have been enough provided that the girl Pandora Haste had not taken the guilt upon herse by bringing forward several proofs.

"Dashed if I can see any motive except love for R. W., and a wish t save him at any cost to herself. "Would a girl make such a sacri-fice for a man known to be in love with another woman? If she would, with another woman? It she would, she'd be an unusual kind of girl. Most women will do anything for the men who love them, and jolly little for those who don't. Still less for those head over ears in love with some one else.

"Even if P. H. was willing to damn that mean she knew the proof against him was overwhelming, and that without help from outside he was surely lost? That's the way the thing appears to me at present, which pretty well means she must have been acquainted with other facts that

She had herself arrested, let's say, because she wished for one reason or another to be thought guilty of 'doing away' with Eve Carroll, as she put it. Why, then, vanish before she'd had time to establish her own guilt in the mind of anyone?

"Was she kidnapped? "If she was, the man or woman responsible for Eve's disappearance or death did the trick. He—or she—wanted R. W. to be convicted, and feared the scheme would fail because of P. H. if she stuck to her guns.

A Few Simple Hints on Electric Ranges

ELECTRIC cooking pos-sesses such definite advantages that every woman now wants an electric range. More Moffat Electric Ranges are sold than any other make, because they have so many exclusive and superior features. A woman cooking on a Moffat Electric, for instance, finds that:-

A. A Moffat has a marvelous oven. It roasts meat and fowl with very little shrinkage of meat, which preserves all the juiciness, flavors and tenderness.

B. This oven requires very little attention. Does 99% of the work itself. Will cook a whole meal hile you go shopping or to

C. Has a mercury thermometer on the oven door to tell the oven heat.

D. The range top elements heat up with great speed. Will bring food to the boil faster than any other

E. These wonderful elements, under average conditions, will last for from seven to ten years.

F. The range top is "electra" porce-lain enameled and made all in one piece, as smooth as a table top. G. It is the cleanest range made. No corners or crevices for dirt or spilled food to hide in. You can clean the whole range in a few minutes. The "electra" porcelain enameled surfaces are smooth as glass and very durable.

H. Everything on a Moffat Electric is so handy and easy to reach. A woman never gets tired cooking on a Moffat.

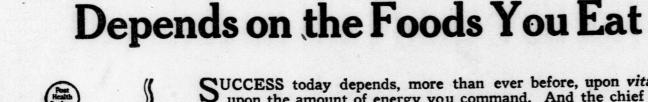

I. It is built so strongly and of the highest-grade materials. J. Its electric heat is so admirably controlled, so quick in getting to work.

Electric cooking is the simplest, cleanest, most effective and satisfactory method in use today. It will improve a woman's cooking to a surpris-ing extent. It is better for roasting, baking, broiling, stewing, frying and boiling.

Write us for our interesting new booklet, "Kitchen Freedom"-free, of course, and ask for a Moffat demonstration at your regular electrical dealer. Moffats, Limited, Weston, SUCCESS today depends, more than ever before, upon vitality—upon the amount of energy you command. And the chief source of energy and vitality, say health experts, is your daily food.

Yet-and this is what doctors stress most strongly of all-food may have just the opposite effect if it does not come to you in the proper form. The most nourishing foods may become your chief source of lack of energy and vitality, of "break-downs", of even acute or chronic disease. The important elements which they contain, which should build you up and renew your body cells, may be contained in them in such a form that it is almost impossible for your body to make use of them. The carbohydrates, as these precious elements are called, must come to you prepared for quick, easy digestion.

In Grape-Nuts you get the nourishment of whole wheat and malted barleyabounding in carbohydrates-in the most nourishing form of all. Grape-Nuts is slow-baked for 22 hours, during which the carbohydrates are transformed into dextrins - a form in which they are ready · for instant assimilation.

The Amount of Energy You Command

Grape-Nuts is ideal for breakfast or lunch. Its crisp, crunchy kernels—its rich, full flavor—will stimulate your appetite and add zest to the whole meal. Serve Grape-Nuts with milk or cream just as it comes from the package. It costs very little-four teaspoonfuls, sufficient for each person, costs less than one cent. Sold by grocers everywhere in wax-wrapped packages-always fresh and crisp.

Guilty Parties in Divorce.

Dean Inge of St. Paul's, London, in his parting address at New York, said he favored "hanging the guilty parties to divorce so that the innocent parties might marry again without has heretofore not been available. There has been a complaint among educationists that the medical field is crowded, and that too many young doctors are being graduated. Dr. Banting demonstrated that there was a great field in which to work, and Dr. James and Dr. Macdonald have given further evidence that there are great open spaces waiting for the explorer who has a passion for discovery and a genius for concentration.

The village of Melbourne can be pardoned if it feels a glow of pride in having produced Dr. James, and the same can be said of the medical school of Western University. But greatest of all will be the knowledge that Dr. James and Dr. Macdonald have given to the thousands who suffer from high blood pressure a treatment that

Human Nature

A chap can be a decent guy and pass unnoticed forty years, but when he slips we holler out and pour the news in hungry ears.

Perhaps it's strange that we should see the faulty things that pass each day, and round them weave the bitter things that we all hasten forth to say. It's on such things we weave our speech and pour out words both hard and hot, and blink at singin' of the chap who has a high and worthy thought.

A chap who is a decent guy may live here forty years or more, for him we tune no harps to sing, nor bring bouquets unto his door. He pays his way and does his best each task that comes his way to do, there be no crowds to cheer him on or holler when his task is through.

But when he makes a miss some day and trips from out the beaten way, 'tis then we gather in a ring and name him as a shiftless

We know right off for some years back he's been a traitor in the camp, but wise enough to keep his wrong from flickerin' in the public lamp. We speak not of the forty years when he had been an honest guy, but put a charge into the gun to smite him as he's passin' by.

A preacher serves his lifetime through, and does the very best he can, he's set aright the erring youth and reasoned with the wayward man. But one day he comes out and says a view not pleasin' to the crowd, the pew it wails high heaven out and cries in chorus fierce and loud.

It may be what he said was wrong, but they forget the good he's done, the sacrifices he has made, the noble course that he has run. They center on the one weak spot and there they rear a cross for him, as though he had no goodly streaks, but was just dipped and baked in sin.

Great men have builded year on year, and made a goodly structure too, a-thinkin' as they passed along what kindly thing they'd find to do. Until some person strollin' by he finds a flaw a foot or two, and then proceeds to tell the town the building's rotten

It's just a way the world has got, we point at burdocks by the way-but take for granted shrubs and flowers that grow and blossom every day. Much sweeter far if we reversed and spoke a word as on we go, about the goodly things that be and pluck the violets as they grow.-ARK.

Is It True? "Clothes Make the Man"

If the old Roman poet were living today he would sing, not of Greek and Trojan warriors, but of the great number of Canadian businessmen and professional men and workingmen who are fighting their individual battles today in a highly competitive civilization. He would sing of clothes and the man-and of the value of good clothes in the success struggle.

Perhaps it is wrong, strictly speaking, to say that "clothes make the man." But they certainly go a long way toward his development.

Hunters Scare Ingersoll Pets

Special to The Advertiser.

Ingersoll, May 10.—Complaints are being made that the wild ducks, which several residents have been feeding at Carroll's Pond, near the center of the town, have been molested by hunters. Several shots were fired at the flock by unknown parties on Friday morning, and all of the ducks have now disappeared. Prosecutions will follow if the names can be ascertained.

Three singles, a walk and an error put four runs across in the first frame. Smith's back-bending circus catch of Monk's fly to start the second discouraged the Cats for a time, but two walks and a single by Graham clustered up the runways in the third. "Tiny" Monk whiffed here, his first of five times, three of them with men jamming the traffic.

Riseboro, who was the hitting hero and slugging fool of the tragic afternoon, started the fourth with a triple, his only extra-size clout in six he made during the afternoon. Lindsay came through with the first two-base infield hit ever registered at Tecumsen park when he uppercut a skyscraper pop and Pring gave an exhibition of how hard it is to catch one of those balls thrown off the Washington monument. Market Sidelights

"The British resumption of international specie payment is extremely worable for business," says the Brooknire Economic Service in a recent bultin. "It will have a marked beneficial iffuence on American-Canadian business, and will promote general international trade both export and import."

The Hindenburg election on the ther hand, can hardly be construed as avorable, according to this authority, which sees in it a victory for those broces least inclined to support the awes plan wholeheartedly. These forces re known to prefer a monarchy to he republican form of government, and he genereal effect has been to cause incertainty on the long-time features of European construction. This, unquestionably, will act as a check on Europe s a market for American goods.

POLICE SUPPRESS

Disorders Prevented Serious On Joan of Arc Day in Paris.

Associated Press Despatch. Paris, May 10.-The most imposing police forces mobilized in Paris ince May Day, 1919, and the great energy they displayed in suppressing incipient disorders, were responsible for the Joan of Arc celebration today remaining free from bloodshed, which was feared in official quarters. Several clashes between manifestants and the police occurred, but no one was severely injured.

Fifty thousand persons filed past the statues of France's national saint on the Place de St. Augustin and the Rue Rivoli, while about 5,000 police patrolled the streets between these

"We will no longer permit any manifestations in the streets, no natter from what quarters they may be organized," the prefect of police, M. Morain, informed the cor-respondents, in explaining the imrespondents, in explaining the impressive police array. "The streets must be made safe for pedestrians, and political factions may no longer use them as a battlefield."

The nationalist evening papers bitterly assail the police for what they call rough work and unnecessary violence. Among those who suffered violence. Among those who suffered was General De Castelnau, former chief of the general staff, who La iberte asserts was beaten by plainclothesmen while leading a proces sion of the patriots' league. The trouble occurred when the patriots attempted to form in line and march own the boulevards in the vicinity f the Madeleine and the Place de Concorde.

Other papers print stories about ttacks on women and priests.

Joan of Arc Day, although a na-lonal festival since 1920, remains essentially a day of royalists and Catholics.

Windsor, May 9 .- Several promi nent border residents are interested in a plan to link up Windsor and Detroit by a double tunnel under the Detroit river, the construction details of which were announced today by Hugh Kellner, chief engineer at Windsor waterwor' who planned the project. He says it can be built at a cost of $10,000,000, and that it would be at least two-thirds cheaper to build than a bridge. This is the second proposal to link up the two municipalities to be announced within the last few weeks. At the present time, the municipalities of Windsor and the other border centres, on the one hand, and Detroit, on the other, are considering considered, the German delegation announced that while sympathizing with its tenor for gradual simultaneous disarmament, it would abstain from voting because it felt that the clause stating that the council recog-nizes "that nations will not agree to disarm until they feel some sense of security" involved political questions still under discussion among several governments.

Princess Cantacuzene of Rumania contended that the resolution did not tread on political grounds, but Lady Aberdeen, the president of the coun-cil, disagreed with her. There was no debate, but a Ger-man delegate presented a statement declaring that she and her colleagues in the council would work for coin the council would work for co

St. Thomas, May 10.—At the fourth meeting of the quarterly board held in the Central Methodist church parfor last week, and the final meeting to be held as a Methodist church, plans were made for the burning of the church mortgage on Monday, June 8.

Dr. H. T. Crossley will conduct the ceremony, as this renowned evangelist was an early builder of the church. He will be present at the Sunday ser-plete control of the coal, lumber and builders' supply business at 450 Talbot street, formerly known as the Lewis & Turville, Limited. The establishment has been doing business since 1870.

The Mendelssohn Glee club will give a concert in the Methodist church at Aylmer on Monday even-ing. E. H. Caughell reports that several requests from outside points for engagements with the club Jur-evening presented parts two and three of Handel's "The Messiah." T. H. Nixon, organist and choir leader, directed the production. The solo parts were taken by Dorothy Belle Johnes, soprano, Mrs. Robert Durst, contraito, Mr. William Greatrex, tenor, and Mr. H. B. Jones, basso.

The play, "She Stoops to Conquer," which has brought much praise to the students of Alma college, who present it, will be repeated at the college next Friday evening under the auspices of Wellington street Home and School club.

George Lewis Fitchett, 58 West avenue, for many years an employee of the St. Thomas cemetery board, passed away this evening after two weeks' illness. He was born 72 years ago at Sterling, Ont., coming to this city fourteen years ago from Brigden, where he had lived for 35 years. Survivors are the widow, a daughter, Mrs. George William McConnell, Windsor, and a brother, William John of Brigden.

The funeral will be conducted at his residence Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 by Miss Fidler of the City Mission, assisted by Rev. David Rogers of this city. The remains will be forwarded to Brigden for interment on Wednesday afternoon.
