STOCKHOLM ROUSED

Meeting of Protest Against Secret Diplomacy" to be Held.

By Courier Leased Wire

Mexico City, Sept. 15.—Heinrich von Eckhardt, the German minister to Mexico last night made a statement, denying everything in connection with the disclosures of Washington that he had been employing a former Swedish charge d'affaires to convey information to the Berlin foreign office. Von Eckhardt declared that he had never sent any communication through Folke Cronholm and that he never wrote any communication recommending Cronholm for a decoration for his services to Germany.

Von Eckhardt further declared that he did not know Cronholm personally, only having met him at diplomatic receptions or through the offices of the introducers of ambassadors, or some such formal meetings. Von Eckhardt makes a complete denial of everything in connection with the Washington disclosures and in reply to an assertion that Washington had full proof of his complicity, declared that this was merely an American intrigue for the purpose of casting discredit on the representatives of Germany.

London, Sept. 15.—Count A. Wrangel, the Swedish minister to Great Britain and the Countess Wrangel, left London to-day for the continent on a few weeks leave of absence. Count Wrangel yesterday had a long conference with Lord Robert Cecil, the British under secretary for foreign affairs, presumably on the subject of the Swedish-Argentinian disclosures.

W. F. Bostrom, counselor of the Swedish legation here, will take charge during Count Wrangel's absence.

Stockholm, Sept. 15.—Hjalmer Branting, the Socialist leader, writes in the Socialist Democrat that Baron Loewen, the Swedish minister in Buenos Aires, will be granted a holiday because of sickness. "This official," he adds, "who acted as a telegraph agent at Stockholm from Buenos Aires without considering the contents of our messages removed, but this is insufficient." The newspapers announce that a meeting of protest against the secret diplomacy responsible for the scandal will be held on Sunday.

Situation Little Improved by Suppression of Revolution; Cabinet Construction Again a Live Issue at Petrograd; Clemency May be Shown to Korniloff in Case of His Surrender

Petrograd, Sep. 14—The political equilibrium, which the country had expected as a result of the collapse of the rebellion, has not yet been reached. The cabinet crisis continued all day. The evening newspapers agree that Premier Kerensky is in a very difficult position, The Birjeviya declaring that his resignation is not yet excluded from the possibilities.

The cause of the trouble is an acute revival of the old struggle for power. Premier Kerensky, persists that the entry of four Constitutional Democrats into the cabinet is indispensable, but opposition to this is growing among members of the Left. Kerensky might give way on this point, but he also is negotiating through Minister of the Interior Kishkin for the entry into the cabinet for representatives of the Moscow industrial workers and these declare that they will not accept portfolios if the Constitutional Democrats are expelled. The Social Democrats and the Social Revolutionists while continuing to oppose the Constitutional Democrats declared they are also against the formation of a purely Socialist cabinet.

The problem is complicated by the attitude of the Petrograd Council of Deputies, in which at last night's meeting the Bolsheviks for the first time gained an overwhelming majority of 279 against 115 in favor of an extremely radical program. This program declares that not only the Constitutional Democrats, but also representatives of propertied classes, must be excluded from power; that the policy of compromise must be abandoned, as it is merely a cause of counter-revolutionary plotting and that exceptional powers of repression claimed by the government must be relinquished.

It also demands the immediate declaration of a democratic republic, the abolition of private property and land, with the transfer to peasants of all stock and machinery on estates, control by the working classes over production, the nationalization of the chief branches of industry, "merciless taxation" of capital and the confiscation of war profits.

The resolution demands further the publication of secret treaties, an immediate invitation to the warring states to conclude peace, the expulsion of counter-revolutionaries from commands in the army; the satisfaction of the demands of Ukraine and Finland, the dissolution of the Duma, and the council of empire, the immediate summoning of a constituent assembly, and the abolition of privileges of nobles.

M. Tseretelli, former minister of the interior, vainly warned the meeting against extremists, declaring that the reactionaries await with impatience the transfer of power into the hands of the Council of Workers' and Soldiers' Deputies, which will give them excuse for a new attack on the revolution. The Bolsheviks retorted that only proletariat could save the revolution.

Premier Kerensky was engaged in negotiations all day Friday, but a settlement of the difficulties is not yet in sight.

MOHILEV UNDER SIEGE

Petrograd, Sep. 14—Mohilev, the staff headquarters has been declared by General Korniloff in a state of siege, according to information received. Orshidav Junction, a point eighty miles to the northward, has been occupied by government troops and all officers and soldiers arriving there bound for the north are being arrested. A request by Korniloff to send provisions to Mohilev has been refused and an effort by Korniloff to communicate by telephone with Orsha said Korniloff daily was expecting the arrival of General Alexieff for a conference.

Pskoff is in the hands of the government troops.

Korniloff's Fate
Petrograd, Sept. 15.—The question of the probable fate of General Korniloff is exciting public opinion. Indications are that the government must face serious difficulties over the matter.

A feature of the conflict is the creditable absence of bitter feeling, and clamor for vengeance. Having re-established capital punishment at the front however, the government, if it executed common soldiers for less serious offences, and it would be virtually impossible to impose the death penalty in the future. Against this are the facts of Gen. Korniloff's brilliant service, his chivalrous and personal character, and the happy circumstance that there has been no bloodshed so far.

There are indications that the government is seeking a way out. As an instance, M. Kishkin, the new minister of the interior, declares that the government has decided not to take extreme measures against Korniloff, as it does not wish to appear vengeful.

"The story," M. Kishkin said "is so tangled, that only an inquiry by a commission can elucidate the truth. Meantime we have reason to believe that the revolt was due to a misunderstanding with Korniloff's emissary to Kerensky, Valdimir Lyoff, who has not the reputation of being a responsible man."

Interest Revived
Petrograd, Sept. 15.—Judging from the tone of press comments, party and individual expressions of opinion which are raining in, the Korniloff episode has had the effect of quickening interest in the war and convincing the public that only a well disciplined army with a vigorous fighting programme can save Russia. General Palechinsky, the new commander of the troops in the Petrograd districts, in an interview assures the public that the revolution has not had the slightest unfavorable influence on the fighting capacity of our troops.

Telegrams from the front announce that the spirit of the soldiers is good, while an official dispatch refers to the devoted bravery displayed by the soldiers fighting at Okla. It is stated that the revolting troops everywhere are returning to their positions. General Stecharbatheff, the commander on the Roumanian front, has issued a stirring appeal declaring that it is the supreme duty of the soldiers to defend the Fatherland against the foreign foe.

Michael Stroud of Mount Patrick Renfrew county, Ont., died at the age of a hundred and two years and four months.

Wireless From Vessel Under Shell Fire Gives Warning of Presence of U-Boat in Western Atlantic Waters

By Courier Leased Wire.

An Atlantic Port, Sep. 15—A British steamer that arrived here to-day reported that early yesterday morning, a wireless "S. O. S." call was heard stating that the ship from which the message came was shelled by a German submarine, the locality being 65 miles east of Nantucket lightship. The name of the ship attacked did not come clear, only the word "Abby" presumably the last half of the name, being caught.

Additional information that a submarine was in the western Atlantic was brought by another British liner which arrived here to-day from an English port. Officers of the liner said they had been instructed to watch out for U-boats when nearing the American coast. There are a number of vessels, both sail and steam, of which the "abby" is a part of their names now engaged in Atlantic trade.

ELECTION ACT PASSES HOUSE

Two Liberals Voted With Government on Third Reading.

MACKENZIE-CURRIE Latter Member Replies to Scurrilous Attack of Former.

Ottawa, Sept. 15.—The war-time elections act, passed the House of Commons under closure, at an early hour this (Saturday) morning and goes on to the Senate. Closure was instituted when the House met in the afternoon, on the motion of Premier Borden. It was adopted on division, the vote standing 65 to 32, with Messrs. Hugh Guthrie and J. G. Turpin (Liberals) voting with the Government. Dr. Michael Clark was still absent from the Chamber. The debate upon the third reading of the measure then proceeded under the twenty-minute schedule.

Col. Currie's Reply.
Col. J. A. Currie, caused most of the excitement of the evening in a speech in which he vigorously defended his name from the slanderous attacks recently of Mr. D. D. Mackenzie, who said that Col. Currie was in a dugout at the battle of Ypres. Col. Currie showed that he was in the front line trenches through the thick of the fighting and when the order came to retire he was the last man to leave. He had never sought promotion. Col. Currie made a counter-attack on Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Mr. Mackenzie's ally.

RED CROSS CAMPAIGN NEXT WEEK

Brantford Will Give to Italian Fund on Sept. 21 and 22.

CENTRE OF CAMPAIGN City Will Be Headquarters for Activities in Wide Field.

Though Brantford is to have its campaign for the Italian Red Cross Society on Friday and Saturday of next week, the city will be the center of activity for the many campaigns to be conducted throughout Southern and Western Ontario until mid-October. Headquarters for the Italian peninsula division for the Italian Red Cross Campaign in Canada this year until the Southern and Western goal of $100,000 is reached will remain in Brantford, in the Temple Building, with L. P. Shawway and L. Porter Moore, divisional directors and campaign organizers in charge.

Brantford's tentative objective in next week's campaign has not been fixed. Doubtless the money may be shot at will be determined at the final general meeting of men and women of the Citizens' Committee and co-operative organizations to be held Monday night in the Temple Building, at 8 o'clock.

Kitchener's three-day campaign and Waterloo's two-day effort for the Italian Red Cross which close to-day, had set respective goals of $3,000 and $1,000 and from all indications, the marks will be over reached. Stratford opens its two-day campaign Tuesday next.

The local campaign and the simultaneous effort in Paris, with $500 the nearby community objective, will be the next campaigns for the Italian war relief funds in Southern and Western Ontario.

Including the Toronto total of nearly $40,000.00 with the campaigns that have gone before, it is estimated by Divisional Director Moore that approximately $70,000 of the $100,000 set as a tentative goal then will have been given by various communities in the division. Many of the larger cities, including London, and about 150 smaller towns and villages will make their efforts between now and mid-October.

Colonel Noel Marshall, chairman, executive committee, Canadian Red Cross Society, when approving the Italian Red Cross campaigns in this division, requested that if possible the appeals be over by mid or late October. The campaign administered from Brantford will be over by that time, according to the divisional director.

The Royal Italian Consular Agent, Giovanni Danovaro, official representative of the Italian Government in Southern and Western Ontario, with headquarters at Welland, is president of the division. The divisional secretary and treasurer is Dr. Edward E. Blinn.

Chevalier L. Zanni, the highest appointing representative of the Royal Italian Government in Canada, its general consul, with headquarters at Montreal, is honorary president for Canada. All funds raised are remitted to him, and by him to Italy.

NEWS OF NORFOLK

Town Council at Simcoe Held Lengthy Session Last Night.

INCREASE TO POLICE Pte. Donald Smith, 133rd, Recommended for D. C. M.

Write Simcoe Agency Box 311 or phone 356-3 all matters regarding delivery or subscriptions; News items or advertisements.

Simcoe, Sept. 15.—(From our own correspondent)—The adjourned regular meeting of the Town Council was held last night. Members all present.

Communications: From Architect Taylor, of Brantford, acknowledging cheque for payment in full for plans and services in connection with proposed fire hall. Filed.

From the Chairman of the Dominion association of Fire Chiefs, urging the giving power to firewardens with respect to prohibiting practices, conditions and accumulation of waste which increase fire hazard. No action.

From the Utilities Commission requesting reconsideration of order for a light on Bank street and a report of deliberations to the Utilities Commission.

The question of appointing an auditor to check the municipal accounts throughout the year and give a thorough audit, was discussed at length and passed over till next meeting.

W. C. McCall, clerk, was granted an increase of $50 per year and freed residence telephone.

In thanking council for the increase Mr. McCall stated that this was his third increase. When he took the position over 21 years ago there were 1126 names on the assessment, paying $20,703.30 taxes, to-day 1989 ratepayers paying $50,313.31, general tax and local improvement besides. His salary then was $325; at present $500.

Police Records.

The police records submitted to council showed that B. W. Whitford was served on Sept. 12th with two summons from the chief constable, Toronto.

On Sept. 12th six loaves of Britton's bread weighed 9 pounds 6 oz. Other matters recorded have been previously reported in these columns.

Metals.—Tenders for sidewalk were received as follows:—

Alway and Post: sidewalk, 30 cts. per sq. ft.; extra crossings, 25c per sq. ft. Town to supply crossings plank.

Manle Leaf Paving Co.: Sidewalk, 28c per sq. foot; crossings 30c. Town to supply crossing plank.

The latter tender was accepted. The contract calls for the work to be completed by Sept. 30th.

Water Rates.

Reeve Carter gave notice of motion that at the next regular meeting of council he will introduce a by-law to lower the water rates.

Fire and Light Committee Active.

Alderman Jacques reported for the Fire and Light Committee. This was one of the best committee reports of the year.

Mr. Beardon had failed to attend a meeting of the fire and light committee to agree upon the payment of damages to fire hose. He has apparently declined to make good his promise to Mayor Williamson in the matter.

Some 18 street gas light pillars had been taken down by the committee. Two had been set up according to instructions, several were broken or damaged through the carelessness of the men handling them, but most of them can be put in first class order.

Quarters were being found in the market building for the new chemical motor truck, which had been tested and returned to the shop for minor alterations.

Contracts had been made with the gas company regarding the lights east of the railway on McCall and Wilson Avenue at $1 per month per light.

The report was tabled till next meeting.

About three hours of the long session was spent in discussing police matters. Finally an increase of five dollars per month was granted, to take effect from October first, contingent on the members of the force signing the usual agreements with the corporation and exercising a somewhat more rigid enforcement of the law and by-laws.

The agreement will require the police to report fines to council monthly.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Interest in the wholesale grocery trade during the week centred around the activity in canned salmon. With the recent announcement of prices by the packers there was a scramble on the part of retailers to get all available stocks of last season's salmon pack. As a result many of the wholesalers were entirely cleaned out of their salmon stocks during the week. Intimations have been made by the Food Controller that the recent embargo did not apply to canned pork and beans, the term beans being used to signify canned string beans or golden wax beans. Wholesalers are accordingly proceeding with the sale of this commodity.

The embargo on the export of Canadian bacon is beginning to cause more concern than at first evident when the announcement was made. It was felt by packers that bacon was needed in Great Britain and that some means would undoubtedly be devised through a purchasing commission to secure supplies from Canada. Packers have been left in doubt about the probable outcome and accordingly have been casting about for a development of the local market. Shutting off the export trade would undoubtedly mean lower prices in Canada. Good production of butter and eggs is being made at the present time; but prices are holding steady.

Advances have been recorded in mince, olive oil, package peas, bicarbonate of soda, canned haddie, white codlines have been recorded in lima beans and Rancho beans. Two sugar refiners reduced their price during the week, the level of the other refiners. There is every indication that lower prices will come in the Canadian market in the not distant future. Flour prices held steady. Arrivals in Hamilton of the election of the Board of Control, in view of what has been awaited with keen interest. Trade in grocery lines shows signs of more business during the week, but business is becoming more of a bank-to-mouth nature.—Canadian Grocer.

home from France, states that Pte. Donald Smith, of the former 133rd, has been recommended for distinguished service medal. He is the first of the unit to be in an Imperial Battalion, so is Lt. Riggs and Lt. Norman. Lt. Foote is in the 24th; Lt. Diamond with the 19th. He speaks of seeing Lt. Dugit leading his men up to the front for the last time.

More About Bread.

Mr. Emil Schellburg, received yesterday the following letter:—

Port Dover, Sept. 13th, 1917.

Mr. E. S. Simcoe, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I have just been notified that you are cutting the price of bread in Simcoe, thus forcing the bakers in Simcoe to sell at 16 cents. If you purpose cutting the price I will not be able to supply.

Yours truly,
JAS. B. LEANEY.

The letter came in a box of bread. On reading it, Mr. S. phoned Brantford at once and had in one hundred and fifty leaves in one hour and a half. The Dover man sent along a box in the afternoon too.

Gentleman From London.

Mr. Schellburg says that while absent in London on Thursday, a London representative called here to advise him as to the retail price at which he should sell bread, and he regretted not being at home to receive the gentleman. He says bread is selling in Dover, Brantford and London at 16 cents and it had to come to that here, even should he be compelled to build an oven himself.

Simcoians with stake in the town are beginning to take concern about what appears to be a factor in the cost of living here, that is not likely to attract population.

Press Photographs.

Their niece, Mrs. Jennie Clark of Detroit, and Mrs. Lula Clark, of Ottawa are visiting Mr. and Mrs. D. T. McIntosh and other relatives in town.

Dr. Burt returned from a trip down east of Toronto.

Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Eaid attended the London Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hodson, are spending the week in London and points west.

THE SITUATION.
Cadorna's men have taken Mount San Gabriele and other important points and the Embassy at Washington declares it to be "the greatest victory gained by the Italians since their entrance into the war." A terrific struggle, which has now been raging for twenty days, has reached this notable triumph, and the gaining of the entire objective steadily comes nearer. The mountain is reported to have been drenched in blood, as the Austrians and their Allies have offered tremendous resistance and are still putting up a vigorous offensive but there can be no doubt that the triumph has been complete.
Renewed fighting of a marked nature has taken place in the neighborhood of Verdun. At one point the enemy penetrated some trenches, but it is clearly a vain hope for the Crown Prince to imagine that he can make any definite impression against the valiant defences of the men of the fleur de lis.

The British Admiralty has broken a long observed silence with regard to submarine destruction to give brief descriptions of eight encounters in which as many as eight, and possibly nine of said craft, were destroyed. The incidents are simply related as a sample of the all round activity in checking up the under water craft. An attack north west of Lange-marek enabled the foe to reach the British lines, which stood as firm as a rock and the assaulting waves suffered huge losses. It is said that the offensive was in the nature of a try-out of the strength of Haig's defences and the answer ought to prove conclusive.
Russia continues to pass from one crisis to another. Now it is with regard to the Cabinet, and Kerensky is said to be in a very difficult position. The possibility of his resignation is even hinted at.

Rippling Rhymes
LOOKING FORWARD

The world will be a better place when Kaiser meets his doom, for then the well known human race will see true liberty in bloom. For years the Kaiser's boot is a threat, when he talked of peace the most; he made the whole world go in debt for ships and guns and armored host. If some one lives next door to me of whom I live in constant fear, I may be nominally free, but freedom of that sort is dead. I have to keep a bullet gun, a loaded shot gun and a crease, a large stuffed club to beat him up, if he attempts to break the peace. I never know when he may come, on some excuse, all full of fight, to knock my plexus out of plumb, and so I cannot sleep at night. It's vain to tell me "I am free, that laws protect me and police while that man lives next door to me, all empty is your boon of peace. Thus to the world has Kaiser Bill a menace been, a nightmare threat, while talking peace he yearned to kill, and soak the globe in carnage wet." Because of him the nations bore a load that sapped their strength away, and manufactured tools of gore, instead of tools for balling hay. When Kaiserism is suppressed, when it goes down with sickening thud, the world will have a long sweet rest from all this talk of war and blood.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

THE CANADIAN CRISIS

There can be no doubt about the ardent undesirability of a war time election.
Those who did not hold that view previously, have already had their eyes opened, and they will realize the fact still more completely before the thing is through.

Sir Robert Borden clearly saw the undesirability of a conflict, and he used every possible means at his disposal to avoid one, even going to the extent of offering a union administration on a fifty-fifty cabinet basis. This was not in any sense because of his personal desire to cling to the premiership—no man in public life has less lust for power than he—but for the reason that he clearly saw that the inevitable distractions and bitterness of such a conflict would work incalculable mischief and cause divisions when in this time of crisis Canada should be presenting a united front.

The one man who specially desired a contest, and who has forced it, is Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It was he who not only refused point blank the union offer, but in addition to that he has also balked at attempts to come to such an understanding with others of his followers. Dred in the wool Liberals may extol the "white plumed knight" all they like, but they cannot get away from these facts. He had a chance to rise to a high level of statesmanship, and he has failed.

Moreover, Sir Wilfrid is irrevocably opposed to any form of selective service for the needed aid of the brave Canadian boys now fighting at the front.
He says that if he is returned to power he will have "a vigorous and compact system of voluntary enlistment" when everyone knows the recruiting method has become exhausted, and he also proposes to go to the Imperial authorities for a police, as if forsooth everyone with half an ounce of observation and common sense was not already fully aware that the need is fully known and pressing—that of men and still more men.

Still further, if the voluntary system should be tried again and fail, as it must, the Liberal chieftain distinctly refuses to say that even then he would favor any form of enforced aid. In the language of his personal organ, Le Canada, of Montreal.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier has formally stated and repeated in the House that he is irrevocably opposed to compulsory service.
"Should the war last indefinitely and voluntary enlistment become inadequate to fill the ranks of our army, Canada, under a Liberal Government, will rather endeavor to intensify and multiply its co-operation in foodstuffs and munitions."

There you have it.
This Dominion, if Laurier should win, would be the first of the Empire nations, falling more volunteers, to leave its forces stranded at the front, and to sneak from the conflict on the basis of no more men forthcoming.

The struggle having been forced, the administration has introduced a war franchise act, of which the two main provisions are:
1. That every female shall be qualified to vote who "is the wife, widow, mother, sister or daughter of any person, male or female, living or dead, who is serving or who has served without Canada in any military forces, or within or without Canada in any of the naval forces of Canada, or of Great Britain in the present war."
2. Naturalized enemy aliens, as specified in the act, shall not vote if born in "a country which forms part of the territory of any country with which His Majesty is at war."

The object of the first clause quoted is to give the women folk a chance to exercise a vote whose men have offered to make, and in many cases have made, the supreme sacrifice. Of all others such men should have the right to exercise the franchise, but many of them will not be able to do so, while many more are in the last, long sleep. Laurier for the first time in his life, claims that all women should have the ballot, and others, unthinkingly, assert that these left out have been robbed of the franchise. As a matter of fact, they have never yet had it in Federal affairs, so that the robbery cry is all moonshine. The extension of a nation-wide franchise to the fair sex is not a thing to be hastily entered upon. There are many thousands of illiterate foreign-born women in this country, who, as one observer puts it "have no knowledge whatever of Canadian affairs and not the slightest sympathy with Canada's action in relation to the war." Are they and their voting power to be let loose indiscriminately at a moment's notice, to the undoubted detriment of what should be Canada's war purpose? Mrs. L. A. Hamilton, president of the Equal Franchise Union, and herself a warm advocate of "votes for women" takes the right stand when she says "that she and other loyal women are content that female relatives of soldiers should alone have the right to cast their ballots in the coming contest, on the ground that it would be unwise to enfranchise foreign women until the enemy is beaten.

The attempted hullabaloo with regard to alien foreigners is amazing. Those men are exempted from serving and their sympathies are with the Hun. Why in the name of all that is reasonable then should they be given a chance to exercise their voices in this life and death decision? They have been cut off and very properly cut off, and those who bemoan the fact are simply espousing the cause of the enemies of this country, and of this Empire, and of human liberty.
It would have been suicidal to the honor and the purpose of this great nation, to allow all the inimical elements to yoke up with a solid Quebec and to throttle the voice of the men and the women of all shades of political belief, who believe, and the Courier thinks rightly so, that Canada is in the testing time as to the honorable discharge of a plain duty or renegade apostasy.

SOME GOOD THINGS MADE OF GRAPES AND QUINCES

Delicious Recipes for Making Grape Juice, Jam, Conserve, Jelly, Catsup, and Spiced Grape Butter—Quince Marmalade, Etc.

SPICED GRAPE BUTTER
Wash the fruit carefully, remove the stems, and separate the pulp from the skins. Heat the pulp to the boiling point in an enamelled saucepan and drain through a colander. Put the skins and pulp together and to each five pints of fruit add four pints of brown sugar and two tablespoons each of ground cloves and cinnamon. Boil the mixture for one hour, add one cup vinegar and continue boiling until the butter is thick. Seal as for jelly.

WILD GRAPE CATSUP
Mash thoroughly two quarts of ripened wild grapes, cover with vinegar and heat them. Cook for fifteen minutes, strain, pressing hard, and add one cup of sugar, one tablespoon of ground cinnamon, one teaspoon of ground cloves, and teaspoon of paprika. Cook down the mixture slowly until quite thick and store as for tomato catsup.

QUINCE MARMALADE
Cook the skins of the quinces in boiling water nearly one hour, then drain off the water and pour it over quartered unpeeled quinces from which the seeds have been removed. Let all cook until the quinces are very tender, then press through a fine colander. Measure and allow three-quarters of a cup of sugar for each cup of the quince pulp, and cook the pulp for twenty minutes, stirring frequently. Then add the heated sugar, cook to the consistency of marmalade and store as for jelly or conserve.

QUINCE JELLY WITH HONEY
One of the reasons that there are so many failures in making good quince jelly lies in the fact that the quince seeds are cooked with the fruit. These tend to produce a mucilage-like syrup that is very hard to "jell" no matter how carefully it is cooked. To make a jelly with honey, boil the quince juice, secured in the usual manner, for about twenty minutes. Use three-quarters of a cup of sweetening to each cup of the juice, secured in the usual manner. Pare half a dozen quinces and drop them into cold water. Cover the skins with boiling water and let cook rapidly until a skimmer, add to the liquor a pound of sugar for each pound of quince, and a half a pound of sugar for each pound of apple. Boil the syrup for five minutes, skim and add the fruit and let cook slowly until transparent and a good color. long cooking gives a dark tinted preserve. Drain out the fruit, pack in sterilized hot jars and pour the boiling hot syrup over, filling the jars to overflowing. Seal airtight as for canned fruit.

THE EUROPEAN WAR will end on July the 28th, 1918," is the prediction of Miss Carter, who accompanies Carter, the magician himself, who is entertaining at the Grand Opera House for the last two days of this week, with his mysteries. The date when peace will be consummated was given by Miss Carter, in reply to a question written on a piece of paper by one of the audience. Miss Carter, seated on the platform, will her eyes blindfolded, and many feet from her allotted quarters, answered a number of questions. Carter, the magician himself, to the impersonation of mysteries, and his tricks, baffling to the intelligence, are nevertheless interest compelling and a large audience was held spell-bound last night throughout the acts of the performance. The concluding act in which is carried out largely in pantomime, and in which a huge lion is featured, is decidedly effective, and is a fitting conclusion to a unique programme, replete with original tactics.

Military Service Act, 1917
Explanatory Announcement by the Minister of Justice

THE MILITARY SERVICE ACT has received the assent of the Governor-General and is now part of the law of the land. It will be enforced accordingly, and the patriotism and good sense of the people can be relied upon to support it. Resistance to its enforcement, however, by word or act must and will be repressed as resistance to any other law in force must be.

Reinforcements under the Military Service Act immediately required
It is the intention of the Government immediately to exercise the power which the Act confers and to call out men for military service in order to provide reinforcements for the Canadian Forces. This is necessary since the military authorities report that the reserves available or in sight for reinforcement will shortly be exhausted unless this step be taken.

First call limited to men between 20 and 34 who were unmarried or widowers without children on July 6, 1917
The present call will be limited to men not in the schedule of exemptions who were unmarried or widowers without children on 6th July, 1917, are at least twenty years of age, and were born on or since 1st January, 1883. Of this Class all those will be entitled to conditional exemption whose services in their present occupations, agricultural, industrial or other, are essential in the national interest, and whose business or domestic responsibilities are such that serious hardship would ensue if their services be required. Conscientious scruples based upon a prohibition of consubstant service by the articles of faith of the religious denomination to which men belong will also be respected. The men first required to serve will consequently be those who can be called upon with the least disturbance of the economic and social life of the country.

Civil Tribunals to deal with exemptions
Questions of exemption will be determined, not by the military authorities or by the Government, but by civil tribunals composed of representative men who are familiar with local conditions in the communities in which they serve, who will generally have personal knowledge of the economic and family reasons which those whose cases come before them have had for not volunteering their services and who will be able sympathetically to estimate the weight and importance of such reasons. Provincial Appellate Tribunals constituted from the existing judiciary of the respective provinces will be provided to correct mistakes made by Local Tribunals, and a Central Appeal Tribunal for the whole of Canada, selected from among the present Judges of the Supreme Court of Canada, will be constituted in order that identical principles may be applied throughout the country. In this way every man may rest assured of the fair and full consideration of his circumstances and the national requirements both civil and military.

Proclamation will announce the day
A proclamation will issue calling out the bachelors and widowers referred to and fixing a day on or before which every man must report for service to the military authorities unless he has before that day made an application for exemption.

How to apply for exemption
Applications for exemption may be made by written notice on forms which will be available at every post office, and will be transmitted, free of postage. They will not, however, be required to be made in this way, but may be presented by the applicants in person to the exemption tribunals. The cases of those who have given written notice in advance will take precedence, and appearance in person will therefore be likely to involve considerably more inconvenience and delay to the men concerned, so that it is recommended that advantage be generally taken of the facilities for written application.

Exemption Tribunals in all parts of Canada
The local exemption tribunals will be constituted with the least delay possible, consistent with the selection of representative individuals to compose them, and the instruction of the members in their duties. There will be more than one thousand of such tribunals throughout Canada, each consisting of two members, one of whom will be nominated by a Joint Committee of Parliament, and the other by one of the Judges of the existing Courts. Every effort will be made by the wide distribution of tribunals, and by provision where necessary for their sitting in more than one place, to minimize the inconvenience to which men will be put in obtaining the disposition of their cases.
A Registrar will be appointed in each Province, who will be named in the proclamation and to whom enquiries may be addressed. Each Provincial Registrar will transmit to the appropriate tribunal the applications for exemption which have been submitted in advance of the sittings, and men who have sent these in will not be required to attend the tribunals until notified to do so. Other applicants should attend personally on the tribunal without notice.

How to report for service
Men who do not desire to claim exemption will report to the military authorities for service either by mail or in person at any time after the issue of the proclamation. Forms of report by mail will be found in all post offices, and, like applications for exemption, will be transmitted free of postage.

Early report advantageous
No man who reports for service will, although he may be medically examined and passed as fit, be required to go into camp or join a battalion until after a day fixed by the proclamation sufficiently late to permit of the disposition by the local tribunals of most, if not all, of the applications for exemption which may come before them. Thus no advantage will be gained by delaying or disadvantage incurred by prompt report for service on the part of those who do not intend to apply for exemption.

Facilities for immediate medical examination
Immediately upon the issue of the proclamation, medical boards will sit at every mobilization centre for the examination of men who report for service or who, subject to their right within the time limited to apply for exemption, desire to have their physical fitness determined in order to allow any doubt as to their physical condition, or to know definitely and in advance whether there is a possibility of their services being required. Certificates of physical unfitness issued by these Medical Boards will be accepted without any further investigation by exemption tribunals when they sit. Men found physically fit who have not reported for service may nevertheless apply for exemption on any of the prescribed grounds, including even their physical condition if dissatisfied with the Medical Board's conclusion.

Notice to join the colors
As reinforcements are required, notice to report at the nearest mobilization centre will be given from time to time to the men found liable and passed as fit for service. Disobedience of such notice will render the offender liable to punishment, but punishment for failure to report for military service, or to report subsequently for duty when called upon, will be imposed ordinarily by the civil magistrates; offenders, however, will remain liable for the performance of their military duties notwithstanding any civil punishment which may be imposed and will be liable to military punishment in cases in which civil proceedings are not taken.

Watch for the Proclamation
Notice of the day appointed for the making of a claim for exemption or for report for military service will be published as widely as possible, but, as no personal notice can be given until the individuals called out have so reported themselves or claimed exemption, men possibly concerned are warned to inform themselves with regard to the day fixed, since neglect may involve the loss by them of important privileges and rights.

Fancy Prices Paid For Minor League Pitchers

Cardinal Owners Had to Dig Deep to Land Goodwin—Other Big Deals Famed in the Major Circuits.

New York, Sept. 14.—While some big league baseball magnates, and possibly all, are going a little slow in the matter of investing in minor league talent for next season, because of the uncertainties bred by the war, nevertheless the baseball market not only is not dead, but it is surprisingly active.

The minor magnates appear not to understand that baseball may be in a precarious position next season, if it exists as a major league proposition at all, and are demanding prices such as were paid in the flush times just prior to the Federal league climax in 1915. Oddly enough, some of the minor magnates are getting what they ask, and only recently notable deals have been completed.

The most conspicuous deal was that by which the Chicago National league club agreed to pay the Baltimore International league club $15,000 in cash for outfielder Barber, who bats left-handed, and leads his league in long-distance hits. Barber is not to report to the Chicago club until after Baltimore's position in the race has been determined.

In addition to Barber, the Cubs are said to have paid $10,000 in players and cash for Charles Kofcher, a boy phenom and shortstop, with Portland, Ore.; Roy Leslie, a first baseman, from the Waco, Texas league, has cost the Cubs $7,500, and James Roy Walker, a pitcher from New Orleans, Southern association, has cost them $5,000. The one contingency about these sales seems to be that the money will not be paid if the men are drafted into the army.

In fact, the national commission may have to promulgate a hard and fast rule on that subject to cover cases where the buyer neglects to have it inserted in the contract.

Big Bidding.
That the Cubs should pay large sums for players is not surprising, but that the St. Louis Cardinals should buy the market was unexpected, as they have been making a rather rocky road financially for several years. Even with the multitude 1,000 stockholders and all the other municipal dodads connected with their operations as a club, the Cardinals are none too flush.

The man bought by the Cardinals was Marvin Goodwin, a right-handed pitcher, who had a first-rate record with Milwaukee, and who, when he joined the Cardinals, allowed two earned runs to his first two games. This youth set the Cardinals' stockholders back $5,500 in cash and catcher Paddy Livingston, outfielder Bob Bescher, pitcher Lou Kopy and Shortstop Sam Bohne. These athletes, according to St. Louis writers, were estimated at $2,500 apiece on the hoof, so that the total cost of Goodwin has been set down at $15,500, but the $15,000 in hard, downright cash paid by the Cubs for Barber, the Baltimore outfielder, gives Barber the edge as the most expensive rookie of the year to date.

Meteoric Career.
Goodwin's rise has been meteoric, peculiar and stormy. He will be a marked figure in the game apart from his performance on the field, and it is well to know a little about him.

He is 24 years old and was born in Gordaville, Va., where he had his first experience as a semi-pro pitcher. At the age of 22 he received a trial with Martinsburg, W. Va., in the Blue Ridge league, and attracted the attention of Clark Griffith, the Washington manager. Griffith has been fortunate in picking up quite a number of useful athletes from the small leagues in the south.

Griffith after signing on Goodwin, seems to have forgotten him, and spent on his rights, or what is more probable did not care to clutter up his roster with him, and took a chance that nobody else would be attracted to him. Goodwin won 13 games and lost 12 with Martinsburg in 1916, fanned 165 batters in 271 innings, and allowed 2.33 earned runs.

That was a pretty good record in such haphazard company, and it was bruited abroad, reaching the ears of the Milwaukee owners. The Milwaukee folks stuck in a draft for Goodwin and got him, whereupon C. Griffith became exceedingly red behind the ears and howled loudly and dismally, but to no purpose. Goodwin went to Milwaukee and made good so rapidly this season, that half a dozen clubs went after him.

In St. Louis baseball folks are divided into National and American league camps, and the clubs representing the two leagues devote an unseemly amount of time to snooping around and trying to hustle each other on the bean with any financial or legal trick that comes handy.

The Headley, B.C., local of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers have opened up negotiations with the mine owners looking to a substantial increase in wages based on the insufficiency of existing wage schedules to meet the present high cost of living. The mine owners are earning enormous dividends through the higher value of metals as the result of war conditions, but heretofore have shown no disposition to recognize the fact that the purchasing power of wages has declined.

Sporting Comment

Two new-comers in the ranks of major league shortstops this year have made good with a capital G, says Jack Velox. They are Swede Risberg, who romps the short grass for the Chicago White Sox, and Billy Kopf, the new shortstopper of the re-named Cincinnati Reds.

Risberg, was greatly handicapped before the season was many days old with an injury that kept him out of the game for two weeks, but once he got back into the harness and was able to play every day he buckled into the work with the bull dog tenacity of a son of the Norse countries, and the fans around Chicago are agreed that he will do. Billy Kopf started off the season like a whirlwind, and with the exception that his hitting has not been up to the strong pace at which he started—he was hitting better than .350 for a time—he is making a strong bid for honors in the National League. He deserves a world of credit when it is remembered that he has such rivals as Rabbit Maranville, Banerjee, Fletcher and Hornsby to compete with.

Is Tough Task
Digging up a shortstop to take the place of some star who has faded, is one of the toughest tasks a major league scout or manager has to face. The average recruit who gets a trial has some vital weakness that soon sends him back to the minors from whence he came. He may be a flash as a fielder, but in about eight out of every ten cases he can't hit the side of a barn with a brick. The shortstop who shows fielding ability and fairly strong hitting power is often counted out because he lacks brains, and so it goes.

In the case of Risberg and Kopf, the White Sox and Reds have been fortunate to find two performers who are apparently well supplied with baseball brains, and, though neither is a terrible hitter, they more than make up for it in fielding, pegging and covering the keystone bag.

When the season opened there were four shortstop fighting for major league berths. With the two already mentioned were Laverne Fabrice of the Dodgers, and Chico Ward of the Pirates. Fabrice was a wizard for a few weeks. Then he faded so suddenly that Uncle Wilbert Robinson's dream of his greatness was shattered completely, and Ivan Olson was sent back to his old berth, Ward, who is still making his fight to hold a regular berth with Pirates, is still an experiment.

According to the record of the Department of Labor at Ottawa, the month of July was a most disastrous one in regard to industrial fatalities in the Dominion, there being 132 fatal accidents, an increase of 73, as compared with June, and an increase of 58 as compared with July, 1916. SIDELIGHTS ON THE STAGE AND SCREEN

THE REX.
An exceptionally balanced programme at the Rex Theatre for the latter part of the week is headed by "The Awakening of Venus," an original miniature musical comedy in which some real comedy is presented. This offering is easily the best of the vaudeville attractions and musical comedies that have appeared on the summer programme of the Rex theatre this year, and the applause of the crowded house last night testified to the appreciation of the audience. Some snappy clean jokes, good humor, attractive costuming and good singing of the latest song hits are the good features of the Maza Mazos, a company of ten people who present this headliner.

"The Criminal," a Thos. Ince production, featuring Clara Williams and William Desmond is one of unusual interest. The story is located in Italy and the Italian quarter of New York, and depicts the problems confronting the immigrant upon his arrival in America, and shows the mode of living in the slum district of the large metropolis. The concluding episode of Pearl of the Army, in which the mystery of the Silent Menace is solved, and a rollicking frolicking Mack Sennett comedy, "A Bathhouse Blunder," are other numbers on the bill.

A ROMANCE OF THE REDWOODS
In accordance with his progressive policies and desire to give his patrons the best in films, Manager Moule of the Brant Theatre has just arranged for the presentation of Mary Pickford's new Arcturion picture, "A Romance of the Redwoods," Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

This production was staged under the personal direction of Cecil B. De Mille, who also wrote the story in collaboration with Jennie Macpherson. Mr. De Mille, it will be remembered, is the producer of "Joan the Woman," the famous cinema spectacle concerning the Maid of Orleans.

The art of Mary Pickford, the super-star, combined with that of Cecil B. De Mille, the producing genius, means a new standard of excellence on the screen. In direct contrast to her previous triumph, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," Miss Pickford's newest vehicle presents a red-blooded story of the West, replete with dramatic situations as well as incidents of typical Pickford charm. Supporting the star in her forthcoming picture is an unusually attractive cast including Elliott Dexter, the popular leading man and husband of Marie Doro, Charles Ogle, Tully Marshall, Raymond Hatton and Winter Hall.

THE BRANT.
A powerful motion picture bill offered at the Brant for the last of this week includes Vivian Martin and Tom Forman in "A Kiss for Susie," Ruth Roland in "The Neglected Wife" and Lonesome Luke in his latest comedy "The Messenger." Fleming and Miller, the Pitter Patter pair present an act sufficiently out of the ordinary to merit approval. For next week, Princess Mapella and company, a quartette of talented musicians, offer a high class singing and musical number, while for the last of the week the Edith Richaras trio, classy singing and dancing comedians, are the attraction. Fatty Arbuckle is featured all week. Two of his latest comedies, "Fickle Fatty's Fall" and "His Wedding Night."

THE GRAND.
A glimpse at Manager Whittaker's book of engagements reveals the following stellar attractions as some which will be seen at the Grand Opera House during the fall and winter months—Albert Brown in "The Love of a King," comedy drama; "Pretty Baby," one of the musical comedy hits of the season; "Flora Bella" and "Henpecked Henry," ditto; "The Sky Pilot" drama; "The Lilac Domino," and "Mutt and Jeff," musical comedies; "The Daughter of the Gods," feature motion picture starring Annette Kellerman; "Everywoman," the morality play; "Jack and the Beanstalk," a feature motion picture for the kiddies; "The Bird of Paradise," drama, and "The Honor System," a stupendous Fox picture preaching the gospel of prison reform.

"THE LOVE OF A KING."
Players await with eager anticipation the appearance of Albert

Lenore Hopes, Canada's youngest leading lady—with Albert Brown in his latest success, "The Love of a King," at the Grand Opera House, on Tuesday night, September 18th.

Brown in "The Love of a King" at the Grand Opera House, Tuesday evening, Sept. 18th. Paul Kester, its author, has already delighted so many thousands by his earlier romantic pieces like "When Knights and Ladies Meet" and "The Quaker Home." She has been presented as a most vivacious girl, and George has been thrown on her good offices by an accident in the hunting field. Little knowing his rank, she falls in love with him and agrees to let him come to see her when she goes to visit her uncle, a Quaker merchant in London.

The second act sees the courtship well advanced. George still preserving his incognito and behaving as a good and chivalrous youth. Forgetful of the cares of state he induces her to consent to a secret marriage, which is no sooner performed than the sudden death of his grandfather George II claims him for the State.

The third act is the most touching of all. Hitherto it has been all comedy. George still concealing his rank has established his bride in a charming home at Hampton and lives there part of the time as a simple squire, while his time until he can get matters into his own hands and proclaim her Queen of England. Lord Bute, the most powerful man at court, and the dominant mother of their race, hunts the lovers out in their nest and here a wonderful scene ensues, between Hannah and the mother. At last Hannah is induced to perform the supreme act of renunciation, destroy her marriage certificate and run away.

In the last act or epilogue the lovers meet again in the same old garden after fifty years. The King, a half-blind, unhappy old man; Hannah a sweet old lady who has lived on her dream for fifty years. Words fall to describe the tenderness of this scene, which though pathetic cannot fail to thrill an audience.

The part of the Prince makes a great demand on Mr. Brown, ranging as it does from bittheous comedy to deep emotion, and the same is true of the role of Hannah, which will be played by Lenore Phelps, a young actress of the highest promise. The minor characters are numerous, and for them a splendid company has been selected, while great attention has been given to the matter of costuming and scenery.

many of them, and needless to say—much of it was not at all forgotten. Mr. Tellegen himself, however, is an adept at the art of snowshoeing and made an extremely picturesque figure as the handsome trapper, Andre Dubois in his moose-trapper, "The Long Trail" is a stirring tale of primitive life in the great northwest.

"PLAIN JANE"
Bessie Barricade and Charles Ray are co-starred in "Plain Jane," the newest Triangle-Ince feature, to be seen at the Rex theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

This picture, whose story is from the pen of C. Gardner Sullivan, is a simple, homely tale of a romance between a poor young student in a small college town and a much poorer "slavey" in the wretched boarding house where his circumstances compel him to make his home.

"Jane, the Orphan" is the name by which the leading character in the play is known. She has known nothing but drudgery and privation. She had no money and no friends, no sufficient time from her work to "fix herself up" and thus discover that she is really a very good-looking girl.

When the young man comes from the more expensive boarding house where he has been staying to live within his means in the abode of Mrs. O'Grogan, it is to Jane as though she were a stranger. Michael had walked in upon her, all his heavenly panoply. She worships in silence and trepidation. She cleans the boots of Mr. John Adams. She sews for ways to do him service.

Meanwhile John's charms are also perceived by Ethelida Rathbone, daughter of a professor, who angles for him with persistence and craft. It may as well be said right now that Ethelida does not get John and that Jane does get him, though she has an awful time before she lands her prize. You might think it would be her case, that she wins a beauty contest, her photograph taking first prize, but it doesn't because the photograph, taken by a friendly old photographer who wants to see Jane "put one over on the college boys" is a bit décolleté. This gives John a severe crick in his neck, but he manages to recover and for Jane in spite of the fact she has a lovely neck.

Wilfred Lucas, in "The Runaway," a Triangle feature, will be the attraction of the first of the week at the Rex, together with two high class vaudeville acts.

THE LONE TRAIL
Animal lovers will revel in Lou Tellegen's latest Famous Players picture on the Paramount program. This is "The Lone Trail," a Canadian story written by Eve Unsell. In it are seen many dogs, of the ordinary variety, some Eskimo dogs, especially imported for work in this picture, and a handsome high-bred Scotch collie who is Lou Tellegen's special favorite, and "makes his screen debut" in this picture. In addition is the beautiful horse of the Mounted Police officer who has won several blue ribbons for his proud owner. "The Lone Trail" will be the attraction at the Brant theatre the first of next week.

Trudging through the forest on snow shoes, wearing blanket coats and furs that weigh one down like so much lead, isn't very much fun with the thermometer at 25 degrees below zero at least! So said the little group of Famous Players, directors and camera men who had been at Saranac Lake for the filming of "The Lone Trail." They had been taking the part of "tenderfeet,"

MISCONCEPTIONS ABOUT MOTOR CARS

POPULAR FALLACIES TO WHICH MOTORISTS CLUNG FOR A LONG TIME HAVE AT LAST BEEN EXPRESSED

Every one knows that when descending hills it is desirable to save the brakes by allowing the compression of the engine to partly retard the car, the brakes being used merely as an auxiliary. Very few, however, know that it is not the compression which retards the car, but the friction of the engine. True enough, each piston as it rises on its compression stroke draws the energy necessary to compress the gas from the motion of the car, but this energy is given back on the next stroke when the gas expands with the downward movement of the piston. Practically all the energy is returned, although a little is lost in the form of heat which passes to the cylinder walls during the compression, and whatever leakage takes place is a dead loss. So a car with leaky valves is a better brake than one with tight valves.

Any skeptical reader may satisfy himself that it is the friction in the engine and not the compression which does the braking by shutting off the ignition and running with both opened and closed throttle down a hill. There is no appreciable difference in speed, yet when the throttle is closed, there is practically no compression in the cylinders. It is only when the throttle is open that compression reaches its full rated value.

One of the arguments sometimes advanced in favor of the long-stroke engine is that the larger crank throws off increased leverage for the transmission of power to the crank shaft by the connecting rods, and the greater leverage gives greater power. Speaking generally, it is true that greater force may be applied with a longer lever, but power cannot be increased thereby because power is energy and energy is immutable; it cannot be either increased by the length of a lever, or any other mechanical device.

A recent examination disclosed the fact that most men consider that a splash system of engine lubrication does not require a pump. The popular idea of a splash system is gained from the word splash, and the usual description is that the oil is simply dumped into the crankcase and the connecting rods splash it around.

But every splash system must have a pump of some sort. Furthermore, the connecting rods do not simply splash around in the oil reservoir, but a tiny spoon on the end of each rod dips into its own oil trough which is supplied with oil by a pump which obtains the liquid from the reservoir below. Excess oil drops back into the reservoir from the troughs. The spray created by the connecting rods lubricates all parts of the engine.

The natural question is: "If this is a splash system, what is a force feed system?" In the latter the pump forces oil through pipes to the main bearings, and passages in the crankshaft carry the oil from these points to the connecting rod bearings, and possibly also to the wrist pins.

The terms backfire, backkick, and muffler explosion are not synonymous, yet they are frequently confused. The most common error is to call a backkick a backfire, and there is good reason for this mistake, not only because of the similarity of the two words, but also because a backkick is invariably accompanied by a backfire. The backfire may be defined as the explosion of the charge in the carburetor and may be caused by slow combustion in the cylinder, the lingering flame igniting the incoming charge as soon as the intake valve is opened at the beginning of a new stroke, or by a leaky intake valve which will allow some of the burning gases to escape into the intake manifold while combustion is taking place in the cylinder. The slow burning of the charge in the first case may be caused by a retarded spark, cold engine, or by an imperfect mixture, particularly a lean one. This, in turn, may be due to dirt or water in the carburetor, air leaks, or sticking parts. A backkick is the rotation of the engine in the wrong direction when it is being cranked, and is the result of the spark lever so that the spark occurs before dead center is reached by the piston. Consequently, the explosion takes place while the piston is still on its upstroke, the pressure drives the piston down.

The expression, "muffler explosion" is self-explanatory. It is the explosion of a charge which has passed through the cylinder to the muffler without exploding because of defective ignition. The flame causing the explosion is supplied by the next cylinder exhausting.

Sure! High Heels Cause Corns But Who Cares Now

Because style dictates that women can't do without their high-heeled shoes, they suffer from corns, then they cut up and trim at these painful pests which merely makes the corn grow hard. This suicidal habit may cause lockjaw and woman are warned to stop it.

A few drops of a drug called freezeone applied directly upon a sore corn gives quick relief and soon the entire corn, root and all lifts out without pain. Ask the drug store man for a quarter of an ounce of freezeone which costs very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

This drug is an ether compound and dries in a moment and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. Clip this out and pin on your wife's dresser.

MOLDERS SUPPORT FELLOWS AT FRONT

Members of Union on Active Service Remain in Good Standing.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 15.—By a vote that lacked four of being unanimous, accredited representatives of the International Molders Union of North America, in convention here, have voted to continue in good standing members, who in the past, present or future, should serve in the armies or navies of any of the allies or engage at sea in any pursuit to aid the allies. The objectors stated that they favored the action in principle.

The action means that the full sick benefit will be paid to Canadian or American members who have or will enter war service if they are wounded in war, and if they are killed in war or in sea service for the allies, the regular union death benefit will be paid to their surviving dependents.

Investigation of the records of the Canadian army to learn what members of the union are, through death or injury, entitled to the privileges of to-day's action, was authorized.

MILLIONS OF WHEAT DESTROYING WHEAT CROP IN AUSTRALIA

Dodge Brothers Dealer Says Country Needs Ships to Move Grain.

Until preventive measures become effective, countless millions of miles worth of wheat in the wheat crops in Australia, according to Chas. Neunhoffer of Melbourne, now visiting in the States. The farmers used poison, water and even gas and every other means that suggested itself in their desperate effort to eliminate the pest, their efforts proving fairly successful.

"The crops are not unusually heavy," said Mr. Neunhoffer, who spent several days at Dodge Brothers' Works in Detroit, "but there are no facilities for handling them. Ships—this is the country's most crying need to-day. Until tonnage is provided it is useless for the farmers to complete their harvesting, as it requires only a small percentage of the crops to supply the domestic demand. Heretofore great quantities of grain have been shipped to England. Some is being shipped to-day, but far too little, as wheat was never more dearly needed by England and the other allies."

These conditions may explain why I am so deeply interested in the progress of your shipping program in America. Once your marine scheme is in operation the whole world will feel the tension lifting. The relief will be immediate and universal."

Mr. Neunhoffer, who is a dealer in Dodge Brother Motor Cars in the Melbourne district, expresses an optimistic view of business conditions in Australia both during and after the war. He will make an extended tour through the States and Canada before returning.

Scandinavian Writer Looks for Revolt and Overthrow of King.

New York, Sept. 15.—Edwin Bjorkman, writer and translator of Scandinavian literature, just returned from Stockholm to his home in Woodstock, N. He states that a great mass of the people is intensely anti-German in sentiment and as pro-ally as the precarious condition of the country permits, and gives it as his opinion that Sweden may be forced into the war on the side of the Allies.

World of Labor

Gleaned from Exchanges and Other Sources.

St. John, N. B., painters and decorators, as a result of trade union organization, recently secured an advance in wages from $18 to $21.60 per week.

The minimum wage rate for bricklayers in Vancouver, B.C., is seventy-five cents an hour, time and a half for overtime and double time for holidays.

The Department of Labor reports that according to reports received for the second quarter of 1917, there were 150 changes in hours, affecting approximately 81,800 workers. 145 of these were for straight increases in wages, one for reduction of working hours only, and four were for increased wages and reduction in working hours.

The civic employees of North Vancouver have organized a real live old-time union, and got in line with the local labor movement. Many previous attempts to organize these workers proved unavailing but the spirit of unionism is in the air at present, and the civics have come to realize if they desire fair wages and working conditions, they must be in a position to go after them right.

The various locals of the Boot and Shoe Workers' International Union in Canada nearly all find a slackening up in business with a considerable number of the members unemployed, most of whom, however, have secured temporary jobs in other fields of activity. All however report that the movement is in splendid shape, the chances in good condition and the craft better organized than at any previous period in its history.

Since the war began there has been an enormous increase in bank clearings in Montreal. Those for the week ending August 30 were $74,969,187, compared with $54,554,604 for the same week last year, and $49,393,867 for 1915. It is satisfactory to know that all Canadian cities made a proportionately good showing during the same period, which is proof positive that the war has not hurt the Dominion's banking facilities.

Recent investigations have shown the great coal field west of Edmonton is amply sufficient when developed to supply all the requirements of western Canada without any importation from the United States. It is not generally known that west of Edmonton are extensive deposits of attractive coal that is equal in quality to the best obtainable in the Pennsylvania district and what makes them especially valuable is the fact that it is not necessary to mine under the water line, as the deposits are situated right to the side of the mountains and can be uncovered with practically very shallow surface work. The west has been looked upon largely as a great agricultural region, but lately discoveries show it is rich in coal and oil and minerals. The last great west is apparently the best great west of them all.

Miss Kelleher, the organizer of the United Textile Workers of America, expresses the most optimistic views in regard to the organization of the workers of that craft in Canada, but most particularly in the province of Ontario. Miss Kelleher has certainly done great work north of the international boundary line during

THE FOOD VALUE OF FISH

People have got more or less into the habit of eating fish on Friday only. Fish are just as appetizing and nourishing on Tuesdays and Thursdays as on Fridays, and if you and your neighbors will buy fish any day in the week, you will get cheaper fish and better fish. Hundreds of carloads of fish are exported from Canada because the people living here do not appreciate the value of fish as a food, and do not buy it as often as they should.

Fish supplies the body with material for building and repair, and with energy for heat and muscular work. The value of any food to the body is reckoned upon its yield of digestible nutrients, chiefly in the form of protein, fat, starch and sugar. The demand for it frequently depends upon the cost.

Like meat, eggs, and milk, fish yields a great deal of protein (the chief body-building material), and in many cases at considerably less cost, e.g.,

One pound of protein obtained: From salt mackerel at 10c per pound will cost 61c. From fresh codfish at 10c per pound, will cost 90c. From halibut, at 15c per pound will cost $1.18. From sirloin steak at 35c per pound will cost $2.13. From milk at 12c per quart will cost $1.52. From eggs at 50c per dozen will cost $2.80.

The energy value of a food is reckoned in calories. The calorie is the unit of heat or energy generated in the human body by the assimilation of a certain amount of food. In other words, the heat necessary to raise four pounds of water one degree Fahrenheit is one calorie; or, the amount of energy required to raise one pound one foot, is one calorie.

The energy value of fish, especially of the oily fish, compares favorably with other foods:

- 1 pound of salt mackerel at 10c per pound gives 998 calories. 10c worth of salt codfish at 15c per pound gives 360 calories. 10c worth of fresh haddock at 10c per pound gives 335 calories. 10c worth of sirloin steak at 35c per pound gives 360 calories. 10c worth of eggs at 50c a dozen gives only 190 calories. Generally speaking, fish has about the same digestibility as meat, the non-oily kinds being more easily digested than the oily ones.

The calorie rating of different foods is not an absolute measure of their value. A better test is the proportion absorbed by the human body as tissue and blood-building elements. From this point of view fish foods rank very high.

PURCHASING.

The fish appears on the market in the form of fresh, salt, dried and smoked, shredded, frozen and canned fish.

In purchasing fresh fish, see that the eyes are bright and prominent, that the flesh is firm, and the gills red.

PREPARATION.

When fresh fish are prepared by scaling or skinning, they should be wiped with a clean, dry cloth, and placed in a dry place. If put in cold water, food substance will be dissolved, and so lost. Before boiling, salt fish must be soaked for several hours in cold, unsalted water to remove some of the salt. This water should be changed several times, or, better, place the pan containing the fish under a tap, which is allowed to drip, thus ensuring constant change of water.

Frozen fish must be placed in cold water to have the frost drawn out. When this is completed, clean and prepare as any other fish, and cook in any desired form. This kind of fish is just as nutritious as any other fish, and its cheapness should make it more widely known.

Our Heroes—Sign the Food Service Pledge

In the last several months, not only has she succeeded in building up a splendid organization in the city of Toronto, but has helped to materially increase the membership in Guelph and Peterboro and has laid the foundation of new locals in other parts of the province. This has been one of the hardest trades in Canada to organize, and the international union is deserving of the greatest praise for the way in which it has taken hold of the situation, which is altogether responsible for the splendid progress made. Miss Kelleher predicts that inside of another year the craft will be solidly organized right across the Dominion.

There is no doubt that from now on, the shipbuilding industry is going to be a factor that will make immensely for the prosperity of British Columbia. Already new shipyards are under way, and those already in existence are making large extensions to their plants and ships have been turned out that are the equal of work of a similar nature turned out in any part of the world, and will go a long way to supply the shortage of tonnage due to wholesale destruction by the German submarines. While this has already provided employment for a large number of workers it is as nothing to the number that will be required, as the plants are extended and one satisfactory feature is that the international unions are right on the job to enforce a living wage and union hours of labor.

(From Friday's Daily.)

Such spirit was not altogether new in his experience, but it wasn't every day one met a girl who had it; what- ever her social status, here was rare- ness—or the promise of it. Nor had he undervalued her.

His lips tightened, his eyes glim- mered ominously.

And she was, in a way, at his mercy. If what she said of herself were true, he need only speak a word and she would be as good as thrown out. Even Abigail Bosnoid couldn't protect her, insist on people invit- ing a shop-girl to their houses. And if such drudgery were really what she should break her heart rather than forfeit all this that she had gained.

And then again she had been all for him from the very first. She had admitted as much out of her own mouth. Only the surprise of it, his own dumb unreadiness, his un- wonted lack of ingenuity and diplo- matics had almost lost her to him. Not quite, however; it was not yet too late; and though the risk was great, the penalty heavy if he were discovered carrying on an affair un- der this roof, the game was well worth the candle.

Thus Mr. Lytleton to his con- science; and thus it happened that when she turned to go, he stepped quickly to her side and said quietly: "Oh, please, my dear—one minute." The unexpected humility of his tone, mixed with the impudence of that term of endearment, so struck her that she hesitated despite the counsel of a sound intuition.

"We mustn't part this way—mis- understanding one another," he in- sisted, ignoring the hostility in her attitude and modulating his voice to a tone whose potency often had been proved. "Three words can set me right with you, if you'll only lis- ten—"

She said frostily: "Well—"

"Three words. He drew still nearer. "I've said them once to- night. Will you hear them again? No—please listen! I meant what I said, but I was carried out of my- self—clumsy—bungled my meaning. You misunderstood me, construed, and before I could correct you I'd lost my temper. You said cruel things—just enough, no doubt, from your point of view—and you put words into my mouth, read thoughts into my mind that never were there. And I let you do me that injustice because I'm hot-tempered. And then, I'm not altogether a free agent; I'm not my own master, quite, and that's difficult to explain. If I could make you understand—"

Grown a little calmer, she couldn't deny there was something reasonable in his argument. She really had given him little chance; impulse and instinct had worked upon her, caus- ing her to jump at conclusions which however well-founded in fact, were without excuse in act. If he had kissed her, it wasn't without provo- cation, nor against her will; she had got no more than she asked for. The trouble was, she no longer wanted it. She had been the dupe of her own folly, blinded by her own romantic heat and the magnetism of the man to the essentially meretricious spirit clothed in the flesh of his engaging person.

It had been a simple and perhaps inevitable infatuation of a mind all too ready to be infatuated, needing heroic treatment—such as she'd had and blushed to remember—to curs- And the shock of waking from that mad dream, had made her franti- c and unreasonable. She could but admit that and, admitting it, be gen- erous enough to let him clear him- self.

If only he would not insist on his declaration of love, that she knew to be untrue, as if the compliment of it must be a balm to a spirit as brusque as her own!

He went on: "And all this be- cause I seemed to hesitate—because I did hesitate, knowing I couldn't say all I wanted to. And before I could explain to you the absence of emotion that should have warned him.

"Of course not. But I'm depend- ent, and good for nothing in a busi- ness way. My income is from my family, and depends on their favor. What can I say? I love you—I do—on my soul, I do!"

He put his arms once more round her shoulders, and she did not resist him, but none the less held her head up and back, eyeing him steadily.

"I love you desperately, but I can't ask you to marry me until I get the permission of my family."

"With no more warning he drew her to himself but before he knew what was happening she had broken his grasp and he was reeling back with a head that rang from the impact of an open hand upon his ear.

"You shrew!" he chattered. "You infernal little vixen! And I thought—"

He sprang toward her, beside him- self with a purpose that failed only through the intervention of a third party.

A man swinging suddenly round the end of the hedge shouldered be- tween Lytleton and the object of his rage—a man whose bulk, in the loose flannels of a lounging suit, seemed double that of Lytleton.

"Oh, here!" said Trego impatiently, but without raising his voice. Come, come!" He caught Lytle- ton's wrists and forced them down. "Don't be an idiot—as well as a cad. Do you want to rouse the household? If you do, and get kicked out, you'll never get another chance on this is- land!"

"Damn your impudence!" Lytleton stuttered, sufficiently recalled to his senses to guard his tone, and wrenches at his wrists. "Let me go! I'll—"

"Sure I'll let you go," Trego agreed cheerfully. "But unless you want more in this room, that she shared it with an alien Presence—a share of misty pallor, filling the armchair, silhouetted vaguely against the moon lit rectangle of the window.

And she faltered and stopped stock-still, with a strangled whimper due in part to sheer surprise, but mostly to semisuperstitious dread.

The Presence did not move; but she was frightfully aware of the fixed regard of its cold, hostile eyes.

"Who are you?" she demanded in a choking whisper. "What are you doing here? What do you want?"

"Where have you been?" the Pres- ence retorted in a level voice in- stantly identified as that of Mrs. Standish. "What have you been doing?" a spectral arm gestured vaguely toward the terrace—"out there?"

CHEERFUL CRITICISMS.

If any one had told you he had brought some article and you knew he couldn't change it, would you at once hasten to inform him of some- thing better?

Of course you wouldn't. And yet I'll wager that you know lots of peo- ple who never miss such a chance.

Why do they do it?

Let me tell you the experience of a friend of mine. She has been fur- nishing a summer cottage. She is new to the business of homemaking. The house has cost her rather more than she planned (and there ever a house which didn't?) and so she cannot readily afford to correct any mistakes she may make. Everyone knows this and yet this is her ex- perience.

Yet Most People Like Aluminum

She was showing me the cottage. "My dear," she said, "if you know of any glaring mistakes I've made please don't tell me about them. I'll know if you're enough and it seems as if people did nothing else but tell me I'd bought the wrong thing."

"Now there's my aluminum," she held up a shining new kettle. "I was so proud of it, and the minute Mrs. G. saw it she said, 'Oh, I wouldn't have aluminum in my kitchen. It is so hard to keep clean. And then it gets so hot that you're always burning your fingers on it.'"

(And yet there are innumerable nice things one can say of alum- inum.)

"And there's my sink," she pointed to a white enamel sink. "I thought I was getting the best there was, and Mrs. M. said they were a nuisance because every speck of dirt showed and your dish pan was so apt to scratch it!"

She Had One Once And It Was No Good

"And when Mrs. R. saw my oil stove she said, 'Oh, dear what did you get that kind for. I had one once and it was no good at all. I wish you gotten one like mine.' I suppose she meant to be kind but she knew I had this one and there wasn't any use in discouraging me. And the funny part of it is that it's really much better than hers, but I didn't know that then."

She sighed. "Now what do you think I've made a terrible mistake in?"

I Wonder If I Should Have

Thus challenged, I (naturally) did not point out any mistakes.

I hope I should have had the tact not to anyway.

Had it been one woman who made all three of those cheerful criticisms one might have said it was her un- fortunate manner.

But it was three women. And three otherwise nice women, too. I suspect this variety is like most branches of tact, mere thoughtless- ness.

Let us try and think.

Good Night Stories

FAIRY DREAMS

David was lying on the cool, green grass in the shade of the maple tree watching the maple seeds as they floated away on the breeze.

"I wonder if they could be fairy wings," he mused, picking up one that fell near him and turning it over in his hand.

"The little green wings quivered and David saw a tiny fairy peep from under them."

"Hi! Hi!" said the fairy. "Those are fairy wings, every one sent on some errand. I'm hunting Princess Ant, who has disappeared. Have you seen her?" asked Tid-bits.

"No, but maybe I could help find her," exclaimed David, who was very fond of adventures.

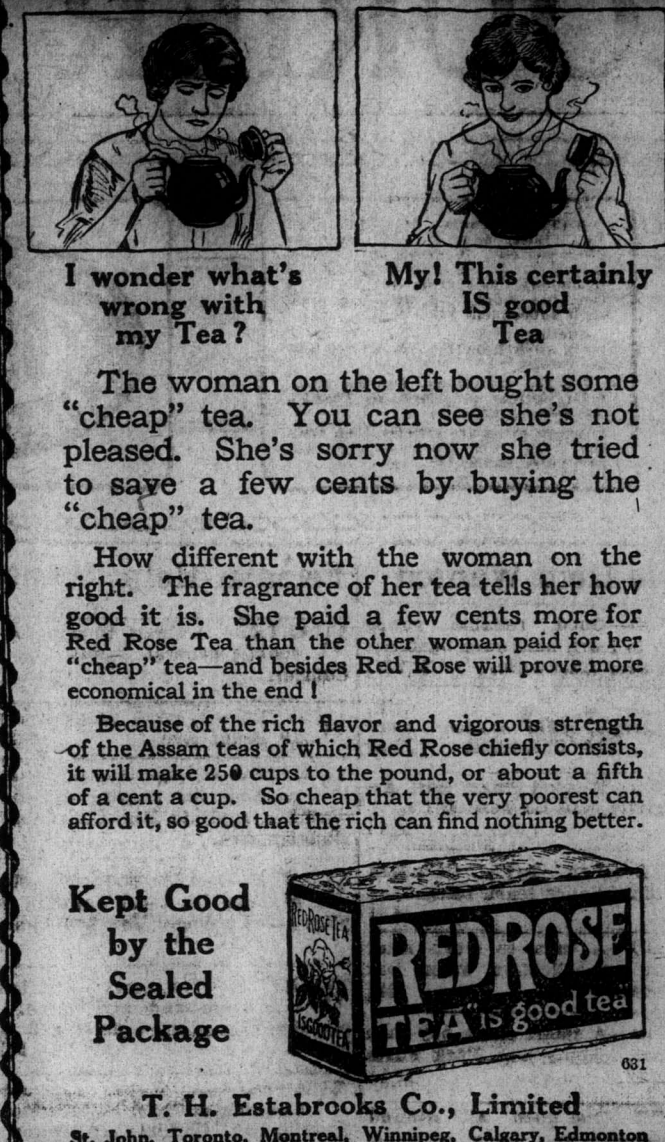

"Good!" cried Tid-bits, waving her magic stick as she sang: "Come one, come two, come three, Magic power comes to me; Help make this little man Just as small as ever you can." David began to grow smaller and smaller until he was no larger than a running bug. Tid-bits fastened a pair of the little wings on David's shoulders and away they flew to- gether.

"Some one saw her going down the road," Tid-bits explained.

David looked at the road under him.

"There's something moving near that butter-and-egg plant," cried David.

"They sailed to a blade of grass that grew near the butter-and-egg cot- tage. An army of big black ants was trying to fight his way through the line of dwarfs that guarded the but- ter-and-egg cottage.

"I'll bet she's in there," exclaim- ed Tid-bits. "Listen."

A big ant stepped in front of his companions and demanded Princess Ant.

"Let her out and we will return home," he cried.

But the dwarfs laughed and tried to trample the army under their feet. "Can't we help them?" asked David in a whisper.

"If you were big you could pick that butter-and-egg blossom and tear open her doors and rescue the Prin- cess," replied Tid-bits. Then she gave David a grass, and sang:

"Come one, come two, come three, Magic power comes to me; Make David bigger grow. He'll let the Princess go."

Almost at once David found him- self big again.

He rushed among the dwarfs, up- setting them in the grass. The ants scampered away and David ran to the butter-and-egg blossom. One by one he opened the golden doors. A busi- ness sound came from the inner oak and David quickly tore the blossom walls apart and lifted Princess Ant from her prison out to Tid-bits' side. "I found a lovely cup of honey and when I went inside to get more the doors closed on me. If you hadn't rescued me I should have died there."

cried Princess Ant, and thanking David for saving her life, she quick- ly ran home.

"I never know those pretty blossoms held a prison cell," exclaimed David.

"Oh, yes," answered Tid-bits. "When an ant passes one of those golden doors he never sees the light again. She entices them with the odor of her sweet honey into her well below."

David blinked his eyes in amaze- ment and looked at Tid-bits, but there was no Tid-bits anywhere, only a maple seed with two wings on its head.

"I wish fairy dreams would come true. I'd like to rescue a princess," sighed David. Then he got up from under the tree and clasping the maple seed in his hand, ran into the house.

MISS' OVERDRESS. By Anabel Worthington.

Among the things which ought to be included in every girl's wardrobe is a sleeveless overdress which she can slip on over any waist she may choose. It lends variety and at the same time is easy to slip into, as it goes over the head and has no fastenings. It is cut in a long V-shape at the front to allow freedom and has very deep armholes. A square collar of satin gives just the right touch of color. The good looking horse- shoe pockets are stitched over the hips at each side and trimmed with buttons.

The miss' dress pattern, No. 8425, is cut in sizes 14 to 20 years. The sixteen year size requires 3 1/2 yards of 36-inch material, with 2 yards of 36-inch contrast- ing goods for trimming.

To obtain this pattern send 40 cents to the office of this publication.
