One in a Thousand, BUT TRUE TO THE LAST

CHAPTER XI.
A CONSUMMATE ACTOR!

"Perhaps not, but it's very unpleasant," he says, coolly. "Kiss me, baby."

"I wish you wouldn't tease so, Adrian," I say, crossly; "and don't call me baby; I don't like it."

He looks at me curiously for a moment; then, seeing by my face that I am serious, drops me, and says, with mocking solemnity:

"Allow me to give you a chair, Lady Charteris."

I do not laugh, as he expects I shall, but take the seat in grave silence. He looks at me in a troubled way, but does not attempt any explanation; and, when luncheon is all cleared away, and we are again alone, he lights a cigar and smokes it, leaning against the chimney piece. Still we do not speak, but once I cough.

"Does this annoy you, Audrey?" he says, alluding to the cigar.

"I don't mind it," I answer, indifferently.

"I say, baby," he says, presently coming to the side of the sofa, and looking the while very big and handsome. "Is anything the matter?"

I do not answer—only turn my face away from the gaze of those searching, gray eyes.

"Because, little woman"—sitting down on the extreme edge of the couch, and taking hold of my unresisting hand—"if ever I say anything to vex you, you must always tell me for I often say things which are stupid, or might mean something else without ever knowing it."

I do not answer; but I feel that the tears I cannot keep back are forcing their way under my closed lids.

"Why, my darling," he says, tenderly—yes his tone is tender, false though it may be—"is it that you are ill, or have I said anything to make you like this? Tell me, my dear, for I—"

"Lady Lasselles is announced at this moment."

Adrian rises hastily, with a word on his lips which is anything but complimentary to her ladyship, and stands, black as any thunder cloud to receive her.

"Don't put your cigar out," she says, sweetly. "I like the smell of tobacco—really."

"You are very kind," returns Adrian, courteously; "but it has been out some time. Audrey did not like it."

"I never said so," I put in, for I am not going to let Theo have any advantage over me.

"No, my darling; but you coughed, and that was enough," he answers, calmly.

"Well, I really like it," asserts Theo; "it prevents a room from smelling moldy."

"The last time I was at Park Royal," I put in, stubbornly. "Lasselles brought his cigar into the breakfast room, and you told him that if he stayed a moment longer you should faint."

Makes Hair Grow.

All drug stores sell SALVIA, and it is guaranteed to grow hair or money back.

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of. If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot disappears.

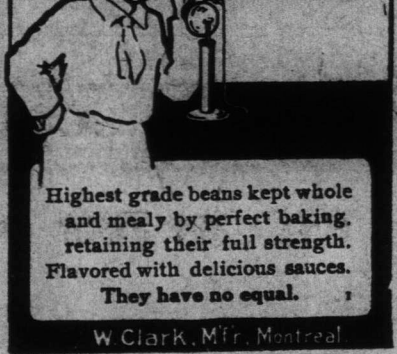

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair-Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that eats the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

SALVIA is sold by first-class druggists under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, top falling hair and itching in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word "SALVIA" on every bottle.

"Did I, really? Ah, well, I've grown wiser since then!"

"And you declared that it choked you even out of doors."

But to this Theo does not reply at all; she only looks up at Adrian, as much as to say, "See what a difference I make between you!" But, unfortunately, he is looking out of the window, and does not see her.

"And how are you, Audrey?" says Theo, presently. It was such a pity you couldn't come with us this morning.

"Oh, no!"

"What makes you shiver so?"

"Nothing; I was only—only thinking."

"Thinking! And what were you thinking about? Something disagreeable, I'll swear!"

But I do not answer; and Adrian draws me to him, and makes me sit down beside him.

"Now, tell me instantly what you are thinking of," he says, imperatively.

"I cannot."

"Nonsense! What business have you, I should like to know, to have a uncle thought you cannot tell me? You don't mean to say you have a secret from your husband—a whole secret, all to yourself, which you are so greedy that you can't, or won't, tell it to me?"

"Have you no secrets from me?" I say, quietly.

His eyes droop before mine, and a dark, crimson streak stains his forehead.

"If I have, my very dearest," he says, gravely, "I keep them because it would not add to your happiness if you knew them."

"Adrian," I ask, desperately, "I am your very dearest?"

The utterly puzzled, blank expression which comes over his face reassures me.

"Why, baby," he ejaculates, after gazing at me for several minutes, "what on earth has come over you? Have you taken leave of your senses?"

"I—I didn't know," I stammer.

"You didn't know, you stupid, little goose!" shaking me, and then holding me closer to him than ever.

"Whom do you think I am likely to care about besides yourself? Why, child, we have seen nobody but Theo, and, surely, you are not fancying—oh!" he breaks off, going into fits of laughter; "imagine me deserting you for Theo! Why, my baby, I should lose everything and gain nothing! In the first place, Lasselles would break my head, and very properly, too, if he heard of it; in the second—oh, I can't enumerate the disadvantages! But to change my own sweet, pretty darling for that mixture of ice and fire—well, catch me, if I had a chance, that's all!"

"Well, but—" I begin.

"Now, I won't have any 'buts,' so that's all about it," he says, lifting me onto my feet. "Do go and put on

"To Richmond?"

"Oh! Who with?" so eager is she that she forgets her grammar.

"With a very old friend of mine," answers Adrian; "in fact, the oldest friend I have."

"Yes? One of the Cuffrassiers?"

"Yes."

"Oh, well, it will be very nice, I fancy say! Now, I must be going. Good-by, Audrey; take care of yourself."

When Adrian comes back from seeing her to her carriage, he says he must start early, as it will be dark coming back.

"Who is this friend, Adrian?" I ask. "I never heard of him before."

"Many times," he asserts. "You know him perfectly."

"Really? I cannot remember," I begin.

"Goose," says he; "it is myself, of course!"

"Oh, then it is an excuse?"

"Exactly, most sapient of women."

"Theo is very anxious to have us."

"Very," he says, dryly.

"Did you tell me that she was cross this morning?"

"Yes, my dearest."

"What was she cross about?"

"I cannot tell you, my pet, so don't ask me. She was very cross—awfully cross. I had the misfortune to offend her—a matter very easy to accomplish, apparently—and I am a little surprised she came here this afternoon."

"I suppose she came to see how I was," I said, dubiously, for in my heart of hearts I know this was not the reason.

"I suppose she did; and, having done her duty, she has gone away, and we need not bother our heads about her any longer. Come, it is growing dusk; let us make the most of the time we have to ourselves."

I cannot understand my husband, if I had not heard what he had said to Theo last night. I should certainly fancy that he rather dislikes her than otherwise, and that he is heartily glad that she has taken her departure so soon. Oh, if I could but forget it all—blot it out, as though I had never heard it, and fancy I am the one woman he loves in the whole world! If I could—but I cannot; those words seemed burned into my brain, branded on my heart. "I married her because she was so like you, but—"

"Are you cold, darling?" says Adrian, noticing how I shiver.

"Oh, no!"

"What makes you shiver so?"

"Nothing; I was only—only thinking."

"Thinking! And what were you thinking about? Something disagreeable, I'll swear!"

But I do not answer; and Adrian draws me to him, and makes me sit down beside him.

your things, or we shall be having Theo back—and then where will you be? There—when I return, a few minutes later—you look all right again. Do you know, child, it's too late to think of Richmond. We'd better see what they can do in the way of dinner at Hoborn; and we can settle then where to go, while we are eating it."

I am almost happy again. He cannot be speaking falsely; he cannot be acting. Surely, no man could be so utterly blind to honor, so base as to speak as he has done, and not speak the truth. I will not believe it. I make a resolution when we are in the hansom that I will not think any more of the conversation I overheard at the opera. Probably, if I told Adrian all about it, he would, and would, explain it all to my satisfaction; but I will not tell him. I will do better than that, for, although appearances are against him, I will trust him, and think no evil.

"Baby," says Adrian, suddenly breaking the silence. "I shall have to go to the war office to-morrow morning."

"Oh, will you?" I say, blankly.

"Why?"

"About the majority, darling. I shall be away only till luncheon, or so. I had thought of trying for extra leave, but, as matters have turned out, I can't expect it—indeed, we may have to go back sooner."

"I don't mind," I tell him, putting my hand into his.

"Nor I," he says, heartily; "but I daresay we shall get very sick of Idminster. What shall we do to-morrow?"

"We have to dine at Mr. Herbert's," I answer; "and—oh, Adrian, I am so tired of London!"

"Well, do you know, and so am I," he says. "Let us take French leave, and finish our honeymoon all by ourselves."

"May we? Then suppose we go abroad?"

In making this suggestion I am actuated, not by a wish for sightseeing, but to get out of the way of the English nation in general. Adrian's reply damps my ardor.

"Utterly impossible!" he says, decidedly.

"Why?"

"Well, don't you see, to go abroad, I should have to apply for foreign leave, and the application must be sent in ten days before the leave commences; and, as we have only about a fortnight left before we must go back to the regiment, it would be of no use. So, you see, darling, it can't be done; but we can go down into Devonshire, or to Brighton, if you like. I think the north would be too cold for you."

"Oh, let it be Devonshire!" I cry eagerly. "Brighton would be no better than London, and I am so tired of seeing people we know."

"Great bore, aren't they?" says Adrian, as we stop at our destination; and he says it as if he means it.

Sour Grapes.

The Daily News editor is most peculiar. The other day he lauded Sir Edward Morris as the legitimate successor of the late Sir William White-way, although he never had a word of admiration for the latter while he was Premier, but was one of the bitterest opponents of the Whiteway administration and its leader, whom he now affects to admire. In 1897 he worked night and main to oust Sir William from the Premiership. For some months past, it has become customary, as though of set purpose, for Morris men to profess admiration for Sir Robert Bond, although they vilified him five years ago. The change hung upon the hope that Sir Robert would not be found leading a united opposition to them this fall. Not only were the Morris men prepared to crown Sir Robert with a halo, if only he would get out of their way, but their thoughts ran in the direction of material tokens of respect and admiration. Morris men were beginning to look upon Sir Robert as just the man to represent the Colony as High Commissioner in London, and even suggested, some time ago, Sir Robert as the right man to represent His Majesty the King at Government House. Unfortunately for Morris party hopes, Sir Robert cares for none of these things. He regards the suggestion of a High Commissionership as but evidence of a desire to play ducks and drakes with the money of the Colony, and considers it would be a degradation of his dignity and self-respect, to put himself in the slightest degree under any obligation to Sir Edward Morris. Sir Robert has no use whatever for the man who was fervent in his profession of loyalty in 1906, and who professed he would never forget how Sir Robert had stood by him after the Telegraph Award, and then deserted.

him in 1907. Sir Robert Bond is not banking for any laudation from the Morris party and looks upon their insidious approaches as insults and will in no way consent to be an object of their interested attention. Unfortunately for the hopes of the Morris Party, Sir Robert Bond has not qualified them by leaving the field of contest to benefit Sir Edward Morris. They have been hoping against hope that Sir Robert Bond would not be in the field, and their heart is sick with hope deferred, for they find day by day passes and their hope is unfulfilled. Their patience is now becoming exhausted and they are casting the "halo" they were getting ready, to the four winds and resorting to abuse of the man they were preparing to praise. They are now abusing him and declaring he is being ruled out of the leadership. This is a plain falsehood. Or that Sir Robert Bond has promised subservience to Mr. Coaker. This is another straight lie. And the Daily News concludes that Sir Robert Bond is no good any way as leader. This is but a case of sour grapes. The fox in the table fixed its eyes on the grapes, and the Morris men fixed their hopes of winning out this fall on Sir Robert's retirement. When the fox found the juicy grapes beyond its reach, the disappointed vulpine said, the grapes were sour, and now the Morris men are abandoning hope of winning by Sir Robert's retirement, the Morris editor declares Sir Robert is no good any way as leader. According to Mr. Robinson, he is not to be compared with Sir Edward Morris as a successful leader. The Liberal Party, however, pin their faith in Sir Robert as the leader who will carry the Opposition to victory next fall. The people of the country have faith in him. He is the leader the people want. They are sick of Morris and they are calling for BOND.

St. Bon's Re-Union.

To-day being the Feast of St. Bonaventure a reunion was held to mark the ceremony. An immense gathering of ex-students attended, including His Grace Archbishop Howley and a number of clergy from the city and outports. At 7.30 Mass was celebrated in the Cathedral by Rev. Joseph Donnelly, P.P. of Bay de Verde, who was a student at the College about the same time as his Grace. The servers were Hon. M. P. Cashin and Mr. W. S. Dunphy. After Mass the Benediction was imparted by the Archbishop. At 8.30 breakfast was served in the Aula Maxima of the College, at which congratulatory telegrams, received from His Lordship Bishop Power, of St. George's, and Rev. Bro. Culhane, of Halifax, were read by the Hon. Sir E. P. Morris, President of the Association. The orator of the day was Mr. M. W. Furlong, K.C., who gave an eloquent and practical address on education. This was followed by an illuminated address, which we append and which was presented to His Grace the Archbishop on the celebration of the 60th anniversary of his departure from St. Bonaventure's for Rome.

ADDRESS

From St. Bonaventure's Association, To His Grace the Most Reverend M. F. Howley, B.D., Archbishop of Newfoundland, as Senior Alumnus of St. Bonaventure's College.
May it please your Grace—On this the anniversary of the fiftieth year since your departure from the Hall of old St. Bonaventure's College, as a student, we, on behalf of your contemporaries, many of whom have been long gathered to their fathers, and on behalf of those who since have graduated from our venerable Alma Mater, take advantage of this our annual celebration, to tender you our most sincere felicitations, praying that you may long be spared to preside over the Diocese that has made so much progress under your fostering care.

During the half century since you concluded your studies here and took up higher ones at the fount of learning in the Eternal City, we acknowledge with feelings of deepest gratitude your untiring efforts for the promotion of the welfare of the school; and it must be a source of great gratification to you, as well as cause for fervent rejoicing in us, to note our Alma Mater's expansion year after year, till she has attained the grand position she now occupies in the forefront of the educational institutions in our native land.

Gathered together as we are to-day in fraternal re-union to celebrate our annual festival, and to warm into flame the slumbering recollections of the departed days; and to take a retrospective glance at the school and the scholars, we realize that you are the one ex-student whose connection with the College has been most continuous and most productive of beneficial results.

Your interest to-day is as keen as it was at the foundation; your intimate association with the days of the "fifties" as well as with the of long years that intervene, has indissolubly linked you with the history and traditions of the school.
And we, the collective Alumni, recognizing the disinterested labors so freely given by you on all occasions to forward its interests, heartily assure you that we share in common with you your earnest desire to see dear old St. Bonaventure's, in the near future, occupy a position amongst the Colleges, the peer of any in more favoured lands.

On behalf of the students of your period, and on behalf of the St. Bonaventure's Association, including the students of to-day, we beg sincerely to tender you the expression of our profoundest esteem and veneration; to wish you tenfold of days; and to pray that you will be spared for many years to direct the destinies of the Diocese and the welfare of our Beloved Alma Mater.

Presented at the Aula Maxima on the Feast of St. Bonaventure, Nineteen Hundred and Thirteen.
Signed on behalf of the students of your period and on behalf of the St. Bonaventure's Association:—

E. P. Morris, President; M. W. Furlong, 1st V.P.; F. J. J. 2nd V.P.; James McGrath, Secretary; W. J. Carroll, Treasurer; Edward English, F. J. Boyle.

The Herald Swimmer.

The Hon. P. T. McGrath certainly makes himself ridiculous when he speaks of the races and swimming. Many men go to the races to enjoy themselves and always do. We have never gone overboard in our clothes, and if we did we can swim. Can the Honourable say the same? Anyhow even dressed or in our apparel in taking a swim we need not feel much uneasiness in the presence of our contemporaries. But just think of the Hon. P. T. similarly circumstanced. Why those who know him are well aware that such a spectacle would afford as much amusement as a "bunch of monkeys." However, if the poor "little fellow" ever gets in the water it would afford us as much pleasure to get him out as it did a few years ago to get him over the stairway when these little accidents occurred. Why Byron, the hero of Hellespont, will be only a cipher to the Hon. P. T. if he starts to swim.

Mr. Piercey, buyer for James Baird, Ltd., returned from Europe yesterday. Mr. Piercey has visited the principal centres of Europe and America, and has brought out an excellent selection of goods.

BELFAST, July 13. Somewhat serious rioting occurred at the opening celebration of the 12th July festival here, in the course of which many windows were broken, and a number of policemen and civilians were injured. Rival factions of Nationalists and Unionists first fought each other furiously, then when a large body of police appeared and endeavored to separate them, joined forces and attacked the policemen. The fight raged along the streets for over an hour and a half. Sticks were freely used by civilians who threw showers of stones, which were accompanied by an occasional revolver shot. The police drew their clubs and charged. Hand-to-hand fighting went on until 5 o'clock when the crowds dispersed. Only one arrest was made.

LONDON, July 13. The trip to the north, of King George and Queen Mary, has been a more comprehensive and more exacting tour than has ever been taken by an English Sovereign. With the Earl of Derby's place near Liverpool, as the centre, they have practically covered the whole of Lancashire county. Every morning at 10 o'clock the royal car started out, returning at 6 p.m., having covered from 30 to 60 miles. Stops were made at a number of towns every day a short while being spent inspecting a workshop or a mill, and visiting one or two workmen's cottages. This is the fourth tour which the King and Queen have undertaken. These industrial tours are peculiar to the present reign.

Sailed at Last.

The New Bedford whaling schooner A. T. Gifford, after a lingering delay has sailed at last for Greenland waters on her whaling hunt. Whether or not the expedition will be a profitable and successful one is a matter of conjecture at present but certain it is that such a windjammer is a poor specimen to traverse the Arctic regions in quest of leviathans. Since leaving the home port over two months ago the craft has made some nautical history. After being twenty-two days out and while going through the Belle Isle Straits a defect was found in the gasoline engine and the Gifford put into this port for repairs; after being here a few days the crew learned the nature of their venturesome voyage, trouble with the captain ensued and later five seamen were taken into police custody for refusing to do duty on board. On appearing before the Magistrate they gave as their reason that their vessel was unseaworthy and that the clothes they had to wear in the climate of the north was only fit to wear at a "picnic party" or "ball game." Following this the captain engaged a shipwright to report on the condition of the vessel which was caulked and made tight. In the meantime the seamen were kept in custody until the craft was ready to sail. For the second time they were brought before the Magistrate and again stoutly declined to go to sea unless provision for "proper clothing" was made, also complaining of the mate's impudence. Eventually they were brought aboard the whaler on Saturday accompanied by a posse of police. At this juncture it was learned that the mate and second mate had deserted. Two local men were engaged in their stead and the Gifford left port.

An Appreciation.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Kindly allow me space in the columns of your paper to express my appreciation of the kindness and skill of Doctors Fraser (St. John's), Chamberlain and Scott (Grand Falls), and Smith (Bishop's Falls), who performed so successfully the operation which Mrs. Guy was recently called to undergo. Also our gratitude to Nurses Dave, Crocker, Fehand, of Grand Falls Hospital, and Moore, of Milton Hospital, Mass., U.S.A., and the many kind friends who, by their sympathy and help, sought by all means available to mitigate the sorrow of the ordeal through which we were called to pass.

In days of health and vigor many of us fail to appreciate the skill of those who devote their time and ability to rob Death in many instances of its prey, and those who in our hospital wards pour themselves into the lives of their patients.

The speedy recovery of Mrs. Guy is, no doubt, in a large measure due to the fact that a hospital is situated in this town, and every year there are many more who owe a similar debt of gratitude to this institution. Similar institutions, placed at convenient centres around our coast, would prove an inestimable boon to suffering humanity, and it is hoped that the day is not far distant when this will be an accomplished fact.

N. M. GUY.
Methodist Parsonage, Grand Falls.

ARCHBISHOP DINED.—His Grace Archbishop Howley accompanied by Rev. Dr. Kitchen, P.P., at Hoytestown, were entertained at luncheon on board the French Hospital ship St. Francois D'Assise yesterday.

Notable Services at George Street.

The pulpit of the Church at George Street was occupied on Sunday morning by Rev. Mr. Bryce, of Toronto, with Rev. Dr. Curtis as his assistant. Mr. Bryce gave a very pertinent and practical discourse on kindness founded on the text: "Be ye kind one to another." Mr. Bryce displays a remarkable aptitude for making his hearers feel what is in his mind and impressing them with the lessons which are so frequently overlooked.

Rev. Mr. Bartlett was at his post in the evening service with a forceful discourse on the text: "I have bread to eat that ye know not of." Mr. Bartlett's discourse may be put in few words namely, that Spiritual development, like physical development, depends entirely upon suitable spirit food and proper functional treatment in the activities connected with Christian service.

This was practically a record service. Mr. Bartlett announced that it would be the last service in which the old organ, as now constituted, would be used. Hon. J. B. Ayre's munificent gift would be availed of and the construction of a new organ, of a very superior quality, would now begin. It will take some weeks to construct the new instrument, but it will add very materially, in sound and symphony, to the volume of praise ascending weekly to heaven from the different churches in the city.

It will be interesting to note as a special reference for future years, that Mrs. Reuben Horwood played on the occasion of this service and that the persons occupying the singing gallery were the following:—

Mr. C. R. Steer, Mr. Reuben Horwood, Mr. H. Courtenay, Mr. Piggott, Mr. Mew, Mr. Stan Green, Mrs. R. Horwood (organist), Mrs. Cochrane, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Capt. Halfyard, Miss Tucker, Miss Miller, Miss Parsons.

During the time of the construction of the new organ all public services will be conducted in the basement of the Church.

A Deserving Case.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—There is living here in this neighborhood, not twenty miles from my door, a poor lone female—Eliza Hutchings—a cripple, who, while she was able to work did all in her power to live comfortably, and through her own industry and the little assistance she got from the Relieving Officer, managed to get along all right. But sickness came along, and the neighbors kindly did all in their power for her, even to acquainting the Relieving Officer of her condition, and requesting him to call and see the condition she was in—a condition I cannot explain to the public—suffice it to say she is a human being and is deserving of being treated as one. This morning a message was phoned to the Relieving Officer, and as he was in his garden the servant said she would tell him on his return. It is time to pay the Relieving Officer sufficient salary to induce him to stay in his office more and be less out of the heat in the garden. Perhaps the hot sun may harden his heart to the cries of the poor. Who knows. However, up to the time of writing, he has not called. It is a shame, and Sir Edward had better make a move and treat the poor as human.

Dancing to the pipes of the well-to-do won't work during an election year.

Yours etc.,
MARY.

From now on crews will settle down to practice in real earnest. The amateurs for the Nettle R., are practicing hard on the harbor morning and evening.

On Saturday evening, coxswains Eshary and O'Rourke had a number of crews out for a spin on the Lake.

We understand that the Press Race will be substituted by a contest for baseballers.

The C.C.C. boat house is nearing completion.

The man with the stop-watch is already in evidence, timing the boats.

FOR SALE.—A few second hand Organs and Pianos, in good order and guaranteed cheap for cash. CHESELEY WOODS, Agent.—adv.14

Extravagance.

Extravagance is a national pastime which consists of buying pleasure and allowing the beneficiary to pay for it with the proceeds of a ton-time life insurance policy. It is a much superior article to economy, which never permits a man to spend money until he can see some collateral at the other end of it. Extravagance is an easy habit to get into, and sometimes lasts until a few of the more irascible creditors tie a sheriff's sale around the windmill and convert the back forty into 10 per cent dividends. Many a prosperous citizen has released his hold upon a 160-acre farm in order to gaze fondly upon tangible wealth in the form of stock in a rubber plantation which never grew anything except certificates of hope in four colors.

Nobody can expect to keep in the swim nowadays unless he is supplied with so much extravagance that he can't meet his semi-annual lodge dues without drawing on his salary for month after next. The minute a man tightens up and refuses to invest $600 in an eighteen-hole golf links at the country club, his wife begins to get down in an evening gown with mother of pearl trimmings.

If there were less extravagance on the part of those who can afford it, there would be fewer displays of silk stockings during business hours by people who are on the pay roll at $6 per week.

Marine Engineers Given a Raise in Wages

Marine engineers throughout Nova Scotia, have received the desired increase from ten to fifteen per cent.

Steamship owners throughout the province, employing one hundred and fifty skilled mechanics, acceded to the demands of the National Association of Marine Engineers, prepared last March, and submitted to the steamship interests in April, with notice that they must go into effect the first of June. This request for increased wages was made collectively by the councils in Nova Scotia, and was applicable to about twenty-five steamers plying in Canadian trade chiefly.

Notable among those coming to an amicable settlement were the owners of the Yarmouth-Boston Steamship Company, who granted an increase of thirty-three and a third per cent, and the Dominion Coal Company's entire Black Diamond and collier fleet. On their ships that carry coal exclusively, a raise of five dollars per month dating from May 1st was given, with the stipulation of a similar advance next January. On the passenger ships, especially the City of Sydney, running from Montreal to points east the engineers' scale of pay is on an even higher basis.

It is also reported that all steam vessels plying through the Strait of Canso "came across" to the men, in addition to all tow boat operators. Others who increased the pay schedule were Pickford and Black, on their fleet of steamers on West Indies and Jamaica routes; J. A. Farquhar & Company, for the Seal; G. S. Campbell & Company, for their towing craft, and the Red Cross liners, and several of the coastal freight and passenger steamers.

Before the sealers Bonaventure, Bellaventre and Beothic shipped their crews for the Hudson Bay development excursion the greater wage proposition met the acceptance of those in charge.

Engineers are paid at Sydney and generally in the provinces for chief, $115; second, $85; third, $65; fourth, $55.

FURNESS LINE.—The S. S. Digby arrived at Liverpool Saturday morning.

OUT OF HOSPITAL.—Mr. Fen. Cornick, of W. Donnelly's barber saloon, who was in hospital for over six weeks, has been discharged from the institution. His friends will be glad to learn that his former health has been restored him and that he has resumed work.

Meeting of Ladies.

The lady friends of the Church Ladies' Brigade met on Saturday afternoon at the Synod Hall. They were received by Lt.-Col. Rendell, Rev. Canon White and Sir Joseph Outerbridge were also present. Canon White made a brief address stating that His Lordship the Bishop recently held a meeting of men and 2,000 circulars were printed and distributed, as it was thought the necessary funds to defray the debt on the armory would be received. It was then suggested that the ladies could assist the work and it was decided to hold a Bazaar during Easter week of 1914. These officers were elected: President, Mrs. R. G. Rendell; Vice-Pres., Mrs. P. Knowling; Secretary, Lady Horwood. A meeting will be held on a future date when further preparations will be made.

Boat Christened.

The ceremony of christening the race boat Mary owned by the C. C. C., will take place to-night at the club's boat house, Miss Mary Harris, daughter of Hon. John Harris, will do the christening. To-night the boat will be taken from Bowring's Cove to the Pond. All the lads of the Cadet Corps are asked to be present. The band of the C. C. C. will accompany the procession.

Kindnesses to Children.

A gentleman of very marked urbanity residing in the vicinity of Pleasant Street, has recently been presenting some very good object lessons in kindness to little children in that neighbourhood. I have observed him on several occasions stopping his motor car and taking these little ones with him—some poor afflicted and unable to walk without artificial support—without respect to physical conditions and giving them a run along the street to their great delight and enjoyment. On Saturday last the same gentle gentleman went along through the same neighbourhood with quite an armful of beautiful flowers and scattered them from his own hand, among his little admiring and confiding friends in the neighbourhood. While others in one way or another, have administered harsh rebuffs to the harmless intrusions and silent requests of these "little ones" this gentleman has said, "Come into me" and in this way has helped to brighten their lives, develop in them the very best and highest instincts of their mind nature.

Surely! this is an evidence of the best idea of that training which makes a man a gentleman and a Christian and adds its quota of proof to the old axiom—that "a Christian is the highest style of man."

The above item is in harmony with the observations of Rev. Mr. Bryce in George St. Church on Sunday morning—Com.

Nfld. Men Ordained.

Baltimore, M.D., July 7.—Two young men from St. John's, Newfoundland, having completed the requisite probationary period, pronounced their vows and were admitted into the Xaverian Brotherhood at the close of the annual Spiritual Retreat at Mount St. Joseph's College here yesterday.

The exercises were held under the direction of Father Oswald, of Dunfermline, N.Y. Ten young men were ordained into the Order, the two from St. John's Newfoundland, being Thomas J. Foley, who will henceforth be known as Brother Jovita, and William N. Malone, who assumed the name of Brother Faustinus. They commenced active work as Xaverian Brothers by attending a summer school opened at Mount St. Joseph's College today.

The courses will be for those Brothers who intend to teach in parochial and high schools. Brothers Jovita and Faustinus will both attend the school, which will be conducted by members of the regular faculty of St. Joseph's.

The ordination ceremonies yesterday afternoon were somewhat elaborate and were attended by a large congregation, among which were many friends of the two Newfoundland young men, and a number of their relatives.

It had been hoped that Cardinal Gibbons would attend, but he was out of the city enjoying a brief vacation.

STAFFORD'S LINIMENT USED BY PHYSICIANS.

Placentia Notes.

The godfishery in this bay has been the poorest for forty years. It is reported to-day that godfish are making their appearance. If these come it will greatly handicap the fishermen, and will cap the climax of one of the poorest fisheries for many years.

All the schools are now closed, and the teachers who have worked hard all the year are enjoying a well-earned rest.

The Rt. Rev. Mons. Reardon announced some time ago that he intended holding a garden party again this year on Lady Day, in aid of the Boys' Academy. The ladies from various parts of his parish met on Sunday, and organized committees to solicit donations, hold tables, etc. Great enthusiasm prevailed.

Mr. W. J. Connors is now visiting his parents after a three years' absence. He is making good in the land of Uncle Sam. He is first officer of one of the steamships of the Munson Line, which plies between New York and the West Indies. While at St. John's for a few weeks he attended the nautical academy, so ably conducted by Mr. Doyle, and then presented himself for examination for a master's ticket, and passed successfully. This young man deserves to be congratulated on his success, sobriety, energy and ability. He is very unassuming, and by the way, presents a striking contrast to some of our ungraded captains who have the audacity to lecture the Government occasionally on its negligence in not applying to them for advice and guidance in all nautical questions, more especially as to the best means to be adopted to prevent marine disasters in our coast, and at the same time if you asked them to define the difference between deviation and variation they would know no more about it than a boy in the primary grade.

These fellows strut the street with such an air of self-importance and pomposity that one would imagine they knew it all.

Politics are very quiet here now. I presume it is the ominous calm that precedes a storm.

Placentia, July 12, 1913.

The Rev. Alfred Woods, of the New England, M. E. Conference, was the preacher at the evening service and gave a profitable and interesting discourse on 1 Cor., 3, last two verses: "The Christian may well lay claim to all the best things for they are all his in Christ Jesus," said the preacher, and reference was made to the various things in the passage which were the possession of the true Christian. The world was his! His death, things present and things to come were all his, because in Christ he might realize the best of all these things. LONDON, To-day.

A Vienna dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says it is rumored here, but not confirmed, that a revolution has broken out at Sofia, and that King Ferdinand has been assassinated. The Secretary of the Bulgarian Legation said last night he had received no message from Sofia indicating a revolutionary outbreak or that King Ferdinand had been assassinated.

CONSTANTINOPLE, To-day.
The greatest military activity prevails here, and troops, artillery and provisions are being brought across to the Bosphorus from Asia Minor. The destruction in villages by returning Bulgarians has created bitter feeling here. The Porte is in communication with Belgrade, Athens and Bucharest, and is said to have received assurance that neither Greece, Serbia nor Roumania will conclude an armistice without consulting Turkey.

SOPIA To-day.

An official statement has been issued by the Government, Greeks dealing with the published calumnious statements accusing Bulgarians of massacres and incendiarism. In this connection it must be pointed out that Greek troops killed thousands of Bulgarians at Kirkilish and Dioran and burned villages. A number of refugees succeeded in escaping and have already arrived at Sofia. This in addition to the monstrous action against the Bulgarian garrison at Saloniki.

OTTAWA, To-day.
As a result of a visit by Mr. Swerve of Elphen Islands to Ottawa, Canada is likely to have a sealing industry. While Newfoundland have made much money by the sealing industry, Canadians have never successfully gone into it. Swerve for some time has been operating whaling establishments at Seven Islands. And as a result of his conference with the Marine Department a sealing industry will be set up by him. Seals are found in large numbers in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and taken by Newfoundlanders near Magdalen Islands and Anticosti.

St. Francois D'Assise.

Yesterday it was the pleasure of a representative of the Telegram to visit the French Hospital Ship "St. Francois D'Assise." She is a splendid little ship and is a standing object of what can be done by charity. She is not representative of the Government of France, but she does represent the charity of the Catholic Church in France. For years she has been on the Grand Banks ministering to fishermen of all nationalities and every denomination. Her commander is a gentleman well representative of the chivalry of France, courteous and obliging. His Grace Archbishop Howley was on board yesterday with Mr. George Shea. All visitors yesterday were shown through the ship and were entertained with the hospitality and courtesy for which the French nation is proverbial.

Minimise The Loss.

Practically farmers may easily minimise the loss, due to a backward and cold season, by the judicious use of Sulphate of Ammonia as a fertilizer. Sulphate of Ammonia contains over 20 per cent of nitrogen, as against 15 per cent in Nitrate of Soda, and is therefore more than 25 per cent better than nitrate of soda as a means of quickening and increasing the growth of crops.

The use of Sulphate of Ammonia has increased enormously of late years and it is recognized to be the most valuable fertilizer obtainable. By its judicious use the production of root crops per acre may be doubled, and the growth of late crops stimulated. We invite the attention of Farmers to our special pamphlet on the best methods of using Sulphate, copies of which will be forwarded free to any address on application.

The price of Sulphate is moderate, and our terms are accommodationary. ST. JOHN'S GAS LIGHT COMPANY. Board of Trade Building, St. John's, July 14.

At the Cathedral prayers for the dead were recited by Rev. D. O'Callaghan. The remains were interred in the family plot at Belvedere Cemetery.

One Kind of Grief.

I want to tell the fellow voter a bout my forty-horse power motor, the smoothest thing in town; no sooner do I start my spilling than he shows signs of ugly feeling, and wears a gloomy frown. As soon as possible he'll shake me; thus all my former friends forsake me, and dodge me on the street; they all refuse to hear my brag about my gorgeous chug-chug wagon; the car that can't be beat. They'll stand and talk for hours together about the cheap old jim crow weather or of the yield of peas; but when they hear my steps approaching, they know what topic I'll be broaching, and climb adjacent trees. They'll take four languages and spend 'em in thrashing out the referendum and things that have no sense; but rather than be cheered with stories about my auto and its glories they'll climb a barbed wire fence. I have the finest petrol buggy that ever yet, with music chuggy, along the road did whizz; and yet it gives me little pleasure, for when I'd tell of what a treasure the bladed thing really is, my friends disperse, my yarn's rejected; they act as though I were infected with leprosy or mumps; that's why you do not see me grinning my famous grin, so wide and winning; that's why I have the dumps.

Special S. A. Services.

The special services at the S. A. Citadel yesterday drew crowds. At the 11 o'clock service Ensign Miller was in charge and took his text from Exodus 6: 3, dwelling particularly on the ability of Jehovah to adapt Himself to the needs of every soul.

Captain Wells had charge of the afternoon service, which took the form of an old-time praise meeting. The Captain's address was listened to with deep interest by the large congregation.

The 7 o'clock service was a unique one, in that it was both a welcome and a farewell service. Captain Gilbert Best, son of Mr. Geo. Best, who has spent nearly six years in the S. A. work in Canada, and was recently married to Captain Maud Reid of this city, and are enjoying a short furlow, conducted the meeting. Long before the commencement of the service the large auditorium was packed. Adj. Hargrove, on behalf of the Corps, extended a warm welcome to the visitors, who upon rising were received with almost deafening applause. Both Captain and Mrs. Best expressed the pleasure at being back on native soil again. Mrs. Best, who possesses such a rare soprano voice, sang very nicely "I've found such a wonderful friend." The Captain's address was appropriate and convincing, showing that during his sojourn in the Canadian field he had done much to improve his platform abilities. The singing of the songsters led by Mrs. Hargrove rendered a most inspiring selection, while the songs of invitation by the Citadel band was a deep impression.

Next Sunday afternoon and night Adjutant Moses James, who is well known throughout the city, will conduct the services at the Citadel.

At North Sydney.

Job's steamer Diana having the MacMillan party, who are going to Crocker Land on a five years' expedition on board, was at North Sydney last week getting supplied with coal and dog biscuit. The party is comprised of Donald B. MacMillan, Ethnologist; Fitzhugh Greene, Engineer and Physicist; W. E. Eblaw, Geologist and Botanist; M. Tanguaray, Zoologist and H. D. Hunt, Surgeon.

Wedding Bells.

On July 9th, at the R. C. Cathedral, a very pretty wedding took place, when Mr. Garfield Pollard, of Messrs. Marshall Bros. dry goods department led to the altar Miss Jennie Coleman, of Carter's Hill, this city, daughter of the late Edward and Mrs. Coleman. The officiating clergyman was Rt. Rev. Mons. Roche. The bride looked charming in cream silk and was assisted by her sister Miss Josephine Coleman, Miss Ethel Maunder and little Miss Georgina Long, niece of the bride. The bridesmaids were dressed in cream silk; Mr. Gus Dunne, of Knowling's dry goods, acted as best man. After the ceremony, the party, including a large number of guests, drove around Quidi Vidi Lake and then to the home of the bride, where a very sumptuous repast was partaken of. Music, songs and dancing were indulged in until the wee sma' hours. Mr. and Mrs. Pollard will reside on William St., Georgetown. They were the recipients of very many pretty and useful presents.—Com.

Band Concerts.

Now that the fine weather has set in we are to have band concerts in the Parks. The City Band will begin Tuesday night in Banquerhugh Park and Thursday night in Victoria Park. The City Band gives some good music and the leader is a competent musician. However we have two excellent bands in our City Corps. They compare favorably with anything that has been heard here of late. Why not give the boys a chance also and let many a poor house frau who can't go out in the day hear some nice selections in the Park after tea from the excellent bands of the C. C. C. and C. L. B. Pay them as well as any other band, they will deserve it. They work voluntarily for charitable purposes.

The O'Reilly Concert.

In speaking of the O'Reilly concert by an inadvertence, it was placed in our paper as the 27th. Mr. O'Reilly's concert takes place in the College Hall on Monday, the 21st and will be the event of the season. Mr. O'Reilly's beautiful tenor voice was heard to perfection at last mass in the R. C. Cathedral yesterday. At the offertory he sang an "Inviolata" by Penneron. The different phases of this beautiful composition seemed to our modest ears to be left in capable hands. Mr. O'Reilly has a voice of which he may well be proud. With ease and certainly with melody he takes the most difficult notes. But then we do not wish to anticipate him. Music lovers, however, will be given a treat on the 21st.

Shipwrecked Crew

Capt. Lacey and crew of Jerrett's ill-fated schooner Bright Rose, arrived yesterday by the Prospero. The vessel was sailing through the Straits of Belle Isle a week ago when she struck an iceberg. In the commotion that followed and while the vessel began to settle, as she was leaking considerably, a seaman named Delaney, of Cupids, was lost over board. The rest of the crew including the captain landed in a boat at Belle Isle where they were looked after by the Marconi operator and Light House Keeper until the Prospero was joined.

The Black Prince

There is a splendid farce comedy at the old reliable show shop tonight, when the ever popular Rossleys will produce the Black Prince, one of the latest and funniest acts ever seen. Everyone knows the versatile Rossleys, and the patrons are always sure of a good night's enjoyment. Jack, the ever comical, will play the role of the Black Prince, and everyone will forget their troubles watching the adventures of this gentleman. Marie Rossley will appear as the lady who loves people of rank and title. The new pictures from England will be shown, and H. Ingram appears in beautiful ballads.

July 12th Celebrated.

The anniversary of July 12th, was celebrated in the city on Saturday. In the night, members of the various branches of the L.O.A., met at Victoria Hall where addresses were given by Messrs. D. McEwen, G. W. Gushue, J. Gilles, C. E. Hunt, and J. Penney. Following a few remarks from chairman Wheeler, Bro. Gushue unveiled oil paintings of deceased Past Masters Fraser, Rankin, Sir J. S. Winter and A. J. W. McNelly, K.C.

Opera Co. Plans.

MME. MARIA DE GABBI,
Prima Donna Soprano, Boston Opera Company.

Mme. Maria De Gabbi is one of the prima donna sopranos of the Boston Opera Company who will be heard at the Casino during the Grand Operatic Festival to be given under the direction of Edwin Bower Hesser, on September eighth, ninth and tenth. Mme. De Gabbi was one of the stars in the tour of the Maritime Provinces last year, when she sang the roles of Marguerite in "Faust" and that of Maddalena de Coligny in "Andrea Chénier." The leading roles in both of these operas being taken by Mr. Giovanni Gatti, primo tenore, who in private life is her husband. These artists first became associated in Italy, and their engagement to be married was announced at a joint honor night given to them at that most famous of opera houses, the Teatro del la Scala in Milan. They were chosen by the great composer Puccini to originate for Italy the principal roles in his great work "The Girl of the Golden West."
If the plans for bringing the Festival to St. John's are completed, these stars will be heard in the principal roles of "I Pagliacci," at least, and in other operas if the public so indicate their desire. Director Hesser, who is at Waterford Hall, would be pleased to receive suggestions as to the most suitable operas for presentation, or any such suggestion can be made to Mr. Power, at the Atlantic Book Store, where a subscription list will shortly be opened.
The operas, complete, which it would be possible to produce are "Cavalleria Rusticana," "I Pagliacci," "Il Segreto Matrimonio," "Secret of Suzanne," or condensed versions of "Faust," "Barber of Seville" and "Martha." These are all presented with scenery and elaborate costuming. The question as to the three most desired here will be settled before Mr. Hesser sails next Saturday on the S. S. Florizel.

Obituary.

MRS. HENNEBURY.

Another landmark has gone to the Great Beyond, in the person of Mrs. Dinah Hennebury, who passed peacefully away yesterday morning, after a brief illness, at the old homestead in Quidi Vidi. Deceased reached the advanced age of eighty-four years and is one of the last of the good old stock. Her husband predeceased her. Mrs. Hennebury was a splendid type of woman and well liked by every one who had the pleasure of her acquaintance. She leaves to mourn her four sons and one daughter, besides a large number of relatives and friends, to all of whom general and sincere sympathy will be expressed in their sad bereavement and in which the Telegram joins.

The death occurred at Montreal, on the 5th inst., of Mr. Alfred Thomas Boyd, who was well known in St. John's. The deceased succumbed to an attack of appendicitis. He was an Englishman by birth and was only four months married, his wife being Miss Moore, of this city. Mr. Boyd was in the service of the Reid Mill Co. before leaving here.

Hymenal.

A very pretty, but quiet wedding, took place at Cochrane Street Meth. Church, on Friday afternoon, when Mr. Lance Slater Downs was united in Holy Matrimony to Miss Flora May Field, daughter of Mr. Fred Field, carpenter. The bride looked very pretty costumed in cream silk with veil and orange blossoms and was attended by Miss Hilda Downs, sister of the groom, and Miss Jean Coultas; while the groom was attended by his brother, Mr. B. Downs and Mr. H. Parsons. The bride who carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white roses with maiden hair ferns looked charming as she entered the church leaning on the arm of Mr. C. Coffin who acted as father-giver. The groom's present to the bride was a gold pendant and to the bridesmaids gold brooches set with pearls and amethysts. After the ceremony a wedding supper and reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where the friends of the happy pair were present.

Fishery Report.

This has been received from Oporto:—
"Since our last report there has been a smaller demand and prices have weakened accordingly. The stock of Norwegian cure has been further increased this week by the arrival of two steamers with about 11,400 cwt. (not included in the above figures—10,550 quintals of 50 kilos.) We include the German and Iceland fish in figures for Norway, as it is impossible here to ascertain the origin of the parcels coming via Antwerp, Hamburg and Bremen."

Self Confessed King of Thieves

Whose Pupils, he Declares, Stole $5,000,000 a Year, Starts Upheaval in New York's Underworld.
New York, July 4.—Five million dollars a year, perhaps a little more, so the New York Merchants' Association declares, is the cash value of the loot that has been passing directly or indirectly through the hands of Isadore Rader and his now famous "larceny trust," which has been operating peacefully for at least ten years on the East Side.
This modern Fagan, now in the Tombs, has been the sole professor in a formidable school of vice, teaching the fine art of stealing on a big scale, aided and abetted by certain first-rank detectives, according to corroborative testimony furnished the district attorney following Rader's astounding testimony.
Working in conjunction with these "school" truck thieves and pickpockets, Rader confesses, big jobbers, auctioneers, trusted dock watchmen, shipping clerks and many women were a part of this gigantic trust which Rader conducted ostensibly as a respectable business man from his pool and billiard hall on the East Side.
In appearance Isadore Rader is a real Dickens character. He looks just as if he stepped out of a first edition of "Oliver Twist."
His power has rested chiefly in his ability to avoid arrest and conviction, not only of himself but of his confederates, who, like magic, at the will of their chief, have been removed from prison, often without trial and always without sentence.
His pupils followed his bidding with fear and trembling. His authority has been undisputed. All things examined by the district attorney since his confessions declare that it was absolutely necessary for any "fence" wishing to do business to "see" Rader, before they could hope for protection.
The chief aids to Rader's "scholar" were receiving clerks on the docks and trusted watchmen, who got their "piece" slipped to them in a match box, when they asked for a light, or by other ingenious ways, before turning deaf ears and blind eyes to the truck thieves' operations, which often amounted to $10,000 in a single haul. New York, July 4.—Five million dollars a year, perhaps a little more, so the New York Merchants' Association declares, is the cash value of the loot that has been passing directly or indirectly through the hands of Isadore Rader and his now famous "larceny trust," which has been operating peacefully for at least ten years on the East Side.

The booty being disposed of to "fences," auctioneers, jobbers, and the inferior quality of materials were often bartered in small lots to hard-bargaining push-cart vendors at the rate of ten, fifteen and sometimes as high as twenty cents on the dollar.

It would seem that the entire underworld is involved, judging from the number visiting the district attorney's office in the hope of turning state's evidence. Each one examined either corroborates the story of the preceding ones or offers new revelations.

Scientific Men of Many Nations

WILL GATHER IN CANADA.

Toronto, July 8.—Through the medium of the thirty-one excursions, arranged to be run in connection with the International Geological Congress delegates who will come from practically all the civilized parts of the globe, will see nearly all sections of Canada.

The Congress meets in Toronto from August 7 to August 14, and 12 excursions take place before the meetings, while ten come during the sessions, and nine after. Some idea of the cosmopolitan nature of the gathering here may be had from knowledge of the fact that thirty-six countries were represented at the last Congress, which was held in Sweden in 1910, with 625 members attending. This is the first time Canada has been honored by the Congress. Only once has it met in the United States, that being in 1891.

To Advance Knowledge Concerning the Earth.

The excursions will be devoted to the study of mineral deposits and geological conditions and of the flora and fauna of the sections visited.

The object of the Congress itself is the advancement of knowledge concerning the earth, both in the fields of pure geological science, and in its application to the arts and industries through the association, and co-operation of the leading geologists and engineers of all nations. Canada is likely to benefit in a marked fashion from the gathering of eminent men, who will spread to parts of the world the information they gather concerning this country's resources and possibilities. These men are the advisers of capital, the writers of text-books and authoritative articles, and the instructors in universities and schools, and their influence is sure to be felt in many directions.

After the Congress is over, a trans-continental trip has been arranged over the C.P.R. and C.N.R. and another over the C.P.R., G.T.P., and National Transcontinental lines, both lasting twenty-three days with side trips to Victoria and Rossland, B.C.

Other trips are across Lakes Erie and Huron; into the New Ontario mining districts; to Yukon and Malaspina; and to Prince Rupert and Skeena River, B.C.

Moving Pictures

To be Used by Methodist Church—A Chain of Theatres Proposed for All the Cities of Canada.

Toronto, July 8.—That the Canadian Methodist Church has gone into the moving-picture business and hopes eventually to possess a chain of theatres in all the principal cities of Canada, is the statement made here by a morning paper to-day. The movement started in Vancouver, where an option is held on a site on which it is proposed to erect a $100,000 building for the showing of educational and humorous films and for institutional work.

Dr. F. C. Stephenson, head of the Methodist Young People's work, stated last night that he was going to England this summer to negotiate with several firms and missionary societies with the object of forming a film exchange and association, as sufficient funds are forthcoming. A special operator will be sent to eastern countries to make exclusive pictures for the Canadian Methodists.

Militants Burn Sir W.H. Lever's Residence

London, July 8.—An "arson squad" of militant suffragettes set fire to and caused the destruction of the country residence of Sir William H. Lever, the founder of Port Sunlight, and the chairman of the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine, early this morning. The mansion, which is called "The Bungalow," is situated at Rivington, near Horwich, Lancashire. It was not occupied by the family, but contained valuable paintings and other precious objects, all of which were consumed by the flames.

A message was left by the incendiaries stating that if Sir William Lever had been as loyal to the suffragettes as Lancashire was to the King, who is now paying a visit to the industrial centres of the country, the fire would not have happened.

The damage to Sir William H. Lever's residence amounted to over $100,000.

Will It Snow Next July?

Do you think the thermometer will go to 95 this coming December? Do you think it will get down to Zero next July?

Or will they wear shirt waists again as they are doing this year? Will they put on light summer things once more—cool underwear and dainty lingerie, little tub dresses and so on? Or are these things done for, forever?

You can get all these things now for a very small part of what you paid a month ago. You can wear them for a couple of months yet this summer. And then you can put them away and have them ready for the first hot days of next year.

Most people buy clothes as if the end of the world were just around the corner, or as if a similar season would never come again.

Yet the seasons keep coming just the same. It is always hot in summer and cold in winter. People wear the same necessities year after year. Styles change a little, but necessities never change.

And right now in the stores that are holding their great Clearance Sales, these necessities can be bought so cheaply that another summer would find you with a full wardrobe and a full pocketbook with nothing to spend it on.

All these great sales are being advertised in this paper from day to day. These merchants must clear their stocks or their stores would soon be a clutter of old goods. The prices are cut to make these clearances complete. Now is your opportunity to cut your cost of living and increase your pleasure of living at the same time.

It is a little bit hot for shopping just now. A little uncomfortable. But anything worth while is worth undergoing some discomfort to get.

Every store ought to be crowded these days with eager shoppers. This is an opportunity that comes only once a year.

Shrewd people always take advantage of it. Careless people always miss out. The shrewd women are always well dressed. The careless ones are always trying to be. That is the only difference.

Better look over this advertising now and plan your shopping trip into the realm of bargain land.

There is many a good necessity being advertised now in which you can get full value at half price. And there isn't a woman in the world rich enough to overlook such offerings.

No woman ever had all the money she could spend.

Got Back The Wrong Watch.

A licensed victualler who went to Wye races was relieved of his watch on that race course, and mentioned the fact severely so that everybody knew. A few nights afterward a man came into the bar of the hotel and put down a small parcel on the counter in front of the landlord. "We didn't know it was you," whispered the customer. Winks and drinks passed. And when the landlord finally opened the parcel he found a mistake. The watch was worth thirty times the value of his own lost timepiece and had armorial carvings upon it.

Holy War Declared in S.E. Arabia.

Simla, India, July 8.—A holy war was declared to-day on the Sultan of the independent state of Oman, in south-eastern Arabia, by Sheikh Abdullah. The rebels, who have been fighting the troops of Sultan Seyyid Feysil Bin Turki, have been victorious in a number of encounters, and have taken several of the Sultan's strongholds. They are now threatening Muscat, the capital, a seaport of 60,000 inhabitants.

Three British warships have been sent to Muscat to protect British interests, and a regiment of Rajput Infantry has been ordered there from India to assist.
