(Extract from The Queen, September 20th, 1884.) ORIENTAL RUG KNITTING.—This work, which we introduced to our readers about a year ago, has proved a great success, and deservedly so; it is easy to execute, the materials are not costly, and the results are warm, durable mats, rugs and carpets artistic in coloring and excellent in design. Mr. PAUL SCHULZS, of Manchester, the inventor, has now brought out a valuable ad dition to the work, in the form of a book, with twenty-four colored designs, all appropriate for the work. The box, containing the materials, includes a wooden staff for winding the wool round previous to cutting it in lengths, a ball of Smyrna cotton, steel knitting pins, and pieces of wool cut in even lengths, beside the pattern to work from, which, by the way, is never intricate to carry out, although it looks so when finished. Anyone who can accomplish plain knitting, with these simple materials can work out a carpet or rug, and one advantage is that, however large ultimately, it can be knitted in strips or pieces and then sewn together, thus avoid-ing the heaviness and bulkiness, often inconvenient, in an important piece of work. The wool is thick, the cotton strong yet soft and the Oriental effect of coloring is most happily maintained throughout all the designs. This rug knitting is now practised in France, Germany and Holland, for instructions in their different languages are published as well as in English. We are not sur-prised at its spread and popularity, for it is simple to carry out, and most useful when finished ; and warm Oriental rugs are always welcome when a rug is wanted at all.

(The Young Ladies' Journal, January 8th.)

MR. PAUL SCHULZE, of Greenwood Street, Manchester, has prepared wool in Oriental colors, and designs on point paper, for working rugs and carpets that have all the appearance of costly Oriental carpets; they are knitted on the most simple principle, and can be made in pieces and afterwards sewn together, so that there is no excessive weight to hold in working. For hearthrugs, sofa and piano rugs, they will be extremely useful and handsome. Directions for working, also a clever little contrivance for measuring the wool, so as to cut it evenly, is prepared for the work, and Smyrna cotton for knitting the wool. The attention of ladies generally should be given to such work, as an article of real value may be manufactured by the employment of spare hours; and the Oriental carpet making has a further advantage—there is no strain upon the eyos. Smyrna bores, with specimen of work, all requisites for trial strip and instructions (copyright); also Smyrna wool, Smyrna cottan, designs, design books, and all accessories.

Benyon reflected a moment. "If he dores you, you are all right. If our divorce is pronounced, you will be free, and then he can marry you properly, which he would like ever so much bet-

"It's too touching to hear you reason about it. Fancy me telling such a hideous story—about myself—me—me!" And she touched her breasts with her white fingers.

Benyon gave her a look that was charged with all the sickness of his helpless rage. "You—you" he repeat-ed, as he turned away from her and ed through the door which Mr. Roy had left open.

She followed him into the hall, she was close behind him; he moved before her as she pressed. "There is one more reason," she said. "I wouldn't be forvidden. It was my hideous pride. That is what prevents me now."

"I don't care what it is," Benyon anwered wearily, with his hand on the knob of the door.

She laid hers on his shoulder; he stood there an instant feeling it, wish-ing that her loathsome touch gave him the right to strike her to the earth-to strike her so that she should never rise again.

"How clever you are, and intelligent always-as you used to be; to feel so perfectly and know so well-without more scenes — that it's hopeless — my ever consenting ! If I have-with you -the shame of having made you pro-mise, let me at least have the profit." His back had been turned to her, but at this he glanced round. "To hear you talk of shame _____!" "You don't know what I have gone through; but, of course, I don't ask any through; but, of course, I don't ask any pity from you. Only I should like to say something kind to you before we part. I admire you. Who will ever tell her, if you don't? How will she ever know, then? She will be as safe as I am. You know what that is," said Georgina, smiling, He had opened the door while she spoke, apparently not heeding her, thinking only of getting away from her forever. In reality he heard every word she said, and felt to his marrow the she said, and feit to his marrow the lowered suggestive tene in which she made him that last recommendation. Outside, on the steps—she stood there in the doorway—he gave her his last look. "I only hope you will die. I shall pray for that!" And he descended into the strengt and here here into the street and took his way. It was after this that his real temptation came. Not the temptation to re-turn betrayal for betrayal; that passed away even in a few days, for he simply away even in a few days, for he simply knew that he couldn't break his pro-mise, that it imposed itself on him as stubbornly as the color of his eves, or the stammer of his life; it had gone forth into the world to live for itself, and was far beyond his reach or his authority. But the temptation to go authority. But the temptation to go through the form of a marriage with Kate Theory, to let her sup ose that he was as free as herself, and that their children, if they should have any, would, before the law, have a right to exist— this attractive idea held him fast for many weeks, and caused him to pass some haggard nights and days. It was perfectly possible she might learn his secret, and that, as no one could either suppect it of have an interest in bringsecret, and that, as no one could either suspect it or have an interest in bring-ing it to light, they both might live and die in security and honor. This vision fascinated him; it was, I say, a real temptation. He thought of other solu-tions—of telling her th t he was mar-ried (without telling her to whom) and is dwithout telling her to whom) and inducing her to overlook such an acci-dent, and content herself with a ceremony in which the world would see no flaw. But after all the contortions of his spirit it remained as clear to him as before that dishonor was in everything but menunciation. So, at last, he re-nounced. He took two steps which attested this act to himself. He adattested this act to himself. He ad-dressed an urgent request to the Secre-tary of the Navy that he might, with as little delay as possible, be despatched on another long voyage: and he returned to Boston to tell Kate Theory that they must wait. He could explain so little that, say what he would, he was aware that he could not make his conduct seem natural, and he saw that the girl only trusted him—that she never under. only trusted him-that she never under She trusted without understand ing, and she agreed to wait. When the writer of these pages last heard of the pair they were waiting still. THE END.

Island government, connecting St. John's with the farming lands of the interior and the mining districts. The immediate result of this enterprise should be increased settlement and the development of the coal and copper industries. The excellent natural pastures of the interior combined with the mild and moist climate should make Newfoundland one of the best grazing countries of America, while her nearness to Europe would facilitate the export of live stock.

The future possibilities involved in the possession of millions of acres of farming and grazing lands, and large fields of coal and copper, besides forests of white pine and other timber, are great. When we add the advantages of situation and climate, there is no reason but one why Newfoundland should not be in a sense the Britain of America.

Toronto's So-Called Gas.

Editor World: People in Toronto appea to be perfectly satisfied to put up with all sorts of intolerable nuisances rather than protest. For example, bad gas. This winter, as far as my experience goes, the light graciously afforded us by the gas company is about equal to a farthing dip

How many times when the tempter lured us on, has the memory of those sacred hours, that mother's words, her faith and prayers, saved us from plunging into the deep abyss of sin. Years have filled great drifts between her and us, but they have not hidden She laid hers on his shoulder; he stood there an instant feeling it, wishing that her loathsome touch gave him the right to strike her to the earth-to strike her so that she should never rise again.

"How clever you are, and intelligent "How clever you are, and intelligent always—as you used to be; to feel so perfectly and know so well—without more scenes—that it's hopeless—my ever consenting! If I have—with you -the shame of having made you pro-mise, let me at least have the profit." His back had been turned to her, but at this he glanged round.

"You don't know what I have gone through; but, of course, I don't ask any pity from you. Only I should like to say something kind to you before we part. I admire you. Who will ever tell her, if you don't? How will abre to be the physicians. "To hear you talk of shame !" "You don't know what I have gone

When I was young and went to school, She's very shert, but seems quite tall From wearing heels so high ; Incr foot is large, and yet looks small— Her figure boasts a lie.

She seems to be a buxom maid, As plump as pumpkin pie; But 'tis not true—as I have said, Her figure tells a lie.

Figuratively Speaking HT AABON FLEDGER.

In days long since gone by, They told me 'twas a settled rule That figures never lie,

But this idea I have outgrown, And with good reason why, For nowadays it is well known That figures often lie.

The lady who your love has won, Whose hand to win you try, Is really but a skeleton— Her figure tells a lie.

^bTis done with bustle, corset, stays, And lacing tight; O, fie! By these and many other ways Her figure's made to lie.

So recellect what I have told, And heave a thankful sigh, That you have not as yet been sold By figures that do lie.

Old-Fashioned Mothers.

The Watchman and the President. The guardians of the treasury depart-Thank God, some of us have old-Thank God, some of us have old-fashioned mothers. Not a woman of the period, enameled and painted, with her great chignon, her curls and bustle, whose white, jeweled hands never felt the clasp of baby fingers ; but a dear old-fashioned, sweet-voiced mother, with eyes in whose clear depths the love-light shone, and brown hair, just threaded with silver, lying smooth upon the faded check. Those dear hands, worn with toil, gently guiding our tottering steps in childhood, and smoothing our pillow in sickness, or reaching out to us in yearning tenderness. nent building at Washington are inexorable in enforcing the rule which forbids the dmission of visitors after 2 o'clock. Even Mr. Gresham, a few days after his appointn yearning tenderness.

Mr. Gresham, a few days after his appoint-ment as secretary, not being recognized by the watchman, was at once denied entrance until he proclaimed and proved his iden-tity. One day President Arthur went there to see Secretary Folger, and was not recognized by the guard until the latter had said, mechanically, "After 2 o'clock, sir." The president understood the situa-tion and said good-naturedly, "I don't care to come in; just take a message to the secretary." "But I can't leave my door, sir," said the watchman. "Well, I'll keep door for you while you are gone," sug-gested the president, and actually kept watch at the door until the watchman returned, Blessed is the memory of an old-fashioned mother. It floats to us now, wooded blossoms. The music of other voices may be lost, but the entrancing memory of hers will echo in our souls forever. Other faces may fade away returned,

-Jacob H. Bloomer of Virgil, N. Y., writes: "Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty-four hours was entirely cured." and be forgotten, but hers will shine When in the fitful pauses of busines life our feet wander back to the old homestead, and crossing the well-worn threshold, stand once more in the room she hallowed by her presence, how the feeling of childhood, innocence and de pendente comes over us, and we kneel

He had opened the door while she spoke, apparently not heeding her, thinking only of getting away from her forever. In reality he heard every word she said, and felt to his marrow the lowered suggestive tene in which she made him that last recommendation. Outside, on the steps—she stood there in the doorway-he gave her his last look. "I only hope you will die. shall pray for that " And he descended into the street and took his way. It was after this that his real temp tation came. Not the temptation to re-turn betrayal for betrayal; that passed away even in a few days, for he simply knew that he contan't break his pro-mise, that it imposed itself on him as stubbornly as the color of his eves, or the stammer of his life; it had gone forth into the world to live for itself, and was far beyond his reach or his authority. But the temptation to go through the form of a marriage with Kate Theory, to let her suppose that he was as free as herself, and that their children, if they should have any, would, before the law, have a right to exist-this attractive idea held him fast for many weeks, and caused him to pass some haggard nights and days. It was perfectly possible she might learn his secret, and that, as no one could either suspect it or have an interest in bring-ing it to light, they both might live and die in security and honor. This vision fascinated him; it was, I say, a real temptation. He thought of other solu-tions—of telling her th the was marninister it. ried (without telling her to whom) and inducing her to overlook such an acci-dent, and content herself with a core-mony in which the world would see no flaw. But after all the contortions of his spirit it remained as clear to him as before that dishonor was in everything but renunciation. So, at last, he renounced. He took two steps which attested this act to himself. He addressed an urgent request to the Secretary of the Navy that he might, with as tary of the Navy that he might, with as little delay as possible, be despatched on another long voyage: and he returned to Boston to tell Kate Theory that they must wait. He could explain so little that, say what he would, he was aware that he could not make his conduct that he could not make his conduct seem natural, and he saw that the girl only trusted him-that she never under She trusted without understanding, and she agreed to wait. When the writer of these pages last heard of the pair they were waiting still.

The Great Whispering Gallery.

In speaking of the most wonderful canon known on earth, the Arizona Champion says that the "transmission of sounds along the Grand Canon of the Colorado has for years been a matter of surprise to the prospectors and miners who frequent at intervals the isolated sections. Since the advent of the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad to the Colorado River there is a basis to form some idea of how far sounds are transmitted beof how far sounds are traininged by tween the walls of the chasm. A train of cars crossing the bridge at the Needles can be plainly heard on a quiet day at Cottonwood Island, a distance of eightyfour miles. The fife and drum at Fort Mojave are plainly heard at Bull's Head, a distance of eighty-four miles. The report of the sunrise gun at Fort Mojave can be heard at El Dorado Canon, a distance of ninety-six miles."

certain very coarse customs which our civilization encourages. There is no good reason why we should not have women physicians. The objection frequently made that they could not attend male patients in a variety of cases, applies with equal force to male physicians who are ex-pected to attend women in certain cases. It is demoralizing to thousands of women to subject themselves to the women to subject themselves to the services of the opposite sex. They re-spect their virtues less. MONDAY MORNING, DEC. 1, 1884. BERKELEY STREET CHURCH.

Meeting To-Night. The missionary services of the Berkeley street methodist church were held yesterday. At the morning service Rev. Dr. Carman preached from I. Cor. 9th chap., 12-14 vers. The doctor reviewed the his 12-14 vers. The doctor reviewed the his-tory of the church during the time of the apostles, and after that time proceeded to show how certain men toned down doc-trines, and how error and superstition crept into the church. The church had tried experiments. The British nation had also oscillated between revenue and pro-tective tariffs, and we are trying such ex-periments in this country. He then retective tariffs, and we are trying such ex-periments in this country. He then re-ferred to the oruel deaths the apostles suf-fered on account of their faith. "This was the character of the testimony of these men. At the close of the first century we had all told about 500,000 christians. About the years 105-6 Finney, a Roman governor, wrote to the Roman emperor, "that these christians they were persecut-ing were everywhere, and that their num-bers were multiplying." At the close of the second century we had 2,000,000 chris-tians, and at the close of the next century 4,000. The text declared that those who preach "the gospel should live of the gospel, which simply meant that the men in charge of the truth should preach the whole truth and nothing but the truth, as it is in Christ Jesus. and Mutual streets, has been in a state of what might be termed incipient rebellion. Numerous charges have been brought against Mr. Kirkpatrick of would be tyranny, undue self assertion and out-and out arrogance in the discharge of his sacred office, many of which if trae (and they are founded on the most reliable testimony) would be worthy of a religious despot. Some time ago the "solid" members of the congrega-tion secured the appointment of a presby-tery commission to investigate the cause of the troubles. This action brought down the wrath of Mr. Kirkpatrick, who appar-ently did not see that they had any right to officize his way of doing things. In his sermon last Sunday morning he refer-red to the action of these members as very "unpresbyterian." He had always striven to do his best for Cooke's church and felt that there was still a field of work d felt that there was still a field of wor and left that there was still a held of work before him in the congregation." He ac cursed the members of the church of work ing, during his absence on holidays, to ibring about an amalgamation with the Carlton street church. They had invited Rev. Mr. Wilson to preach in his pulpi without his consent. Rev. Mr. Wilson to preach in his pulpi without his consent. Before the morning service was held hait Sunday a meeting of the session was called by Mr. Kirkpstrick for the purpose of having a meeting of the congregation last night to learn the sense of the meet ing as to whether it was satisfie to have him remain as its pastor or not To this proposal, it is stated, the session demurred and itthen broke up wit the understanding that no meeting was t be held on Monday night. At the close of his sermon, however, Mr. Kirkpatrick an nounced that he decided to call a meetin of the congr git on for Monday evening and asked overy member to come out an vote "aye" or "no" on the question of -h leaving.

Reducing a Detective.

There was a flutter around police headquarters Saturday afternoon when it was years ago appraised at 30 marks a booke, known that the police commissioners were in session. They were engaged in sharpen-ing their guillotine, and the first head to come off was that of Detective. John Reid, who has been on the force for over twenty years. A charge of habitual neglect of duty was preferred against Reid and he was reduced to the rank and pay of a first class constable. Mr. Reid could not see it that way and promptly resigned altogether. Other decapitations it is said will follow, and there is a wave of deep suspense among the members of the force.
