Nova Scotia Wool Has An Excellent Name Abroad

Mr. Frank Stanfield Talks Interestingly of Trip to Upper Provinces—Business, Politics the Crop and the Tercentenary.

Mr. Frank Stanfield returned Tuesday night from a business trip to the Upper Provinces, says the Colchester Sun. He went as far as Toronto.

"What of the business outlook?" queried a Sun representative, when he met Mr. Stanfield on Wednesday. "None too good, from the general standpoint," was the reply.

"How about Stanfields, Limited?" further queried The Sun.

"Our mill is the only one of the kind in Canada that is running full time. Recently we have employed people that came from mills that are only running part time. Not only so, but our mill running steadily but we are turning out as many goods, just as many, as we did last year. However, I must admit that the outlook for next year is not so bright, though we are hoping for the best. Well, we must bear our share of the depression. Business men in the Upper Provinces look for a dull winter."

Continuing, Mr. Stanfield said: "Wool is a drug on the market in the Upper Provinces. It is commanding only twelve cents a pound, and dealers are thinking of dumping it on to the Old Country market, where it will sell for fifteen or sixteen cents a pound. Stanfields, Limited, is paying twenty cents cash."

"No other firm in the Maritime Provinces or in any other part of Canada for that matter, so far as I know, is paying that figure. Nova Scotia wool stands high in the Upper Provinces. I do not think I am wrong in stating that to a certain extent at least, the credit for this satisfactory state of affairs, that is, as regards making it known abroad, is due to Stanfields, Limited. During the last ten or twelve years we have spent about $50,000 advertising our goods, and the words 'made from Nova Scotia wool' always occupy a prominent place in our advertisements."

"Since the beginning of this month five days ago, we have shipped fifteen carloads of goods, valued at $100,000, (chiefly to Ontario). This is the third large shipment we have made this summer."

"By the way, in this connection I want to say a word in behalf of the freight porters and other officials employed in the I. C. R. freight house here. They, considering the circumstances, gave our goods splendid despatch. Mind you, it is no fun to have fifteen carloads of goods dumped in on to you for re-handling in the space of a few hours. Some people think I, C. R. freight workers do not earn their money. I am not one of them. I believe they are a hard-working lot of men—and poorly paid."

"How about the Tercentenary?"

"Don't mention it. Already the word 'grat' is being used in connection with it. The charges were outrageous. Today you hire a room for one dollar, the second day the price is jumped to five dollars, and the third day eight dollars."

"What has become of the money?"

"The appropriations do not meet the demands. There, as I was told, will be a deficit. The affair was not largely attended by the people of the East and West; it was chiefly a Province of Quebec affair."

"Owing to the hot dry weather the crops in parts of Ontario and Quebec are not satisfactory. In that respect Nova Scotia is ahead of any other of the provinces I visited."

Severe Electrical Storm in New England

Boston, August 6.—The electrical storm which developed over New England yesterday was felt with especial severity in the southern and western sections, and much damage was caused there. Many buildings in Connecticut and Rhode Island were struck by lightning and in Springfield, Mass., a lightning bolt struck and exploded a gas tank at the plant of the Springfield Gas Light Company. Telegraph and telephone service in many districts suffered interruption by the storm.

In the spectacular play of lightning over Long Island Sound in the day, the wireless apparatus of the steamer Priscilla of the Fall River line was put out of commission.

In Newport, R. I., and neighboring villages, lightning hit a dozen buildings in the course of an hour's continuous bombardment, and in Wyandham county, Connecticut, the damage was equally as severe.

Twenty barns were set on fire and many cattle killed, while the rain was so heavy as to level standing crops.

It was the most disastrous electrical storm which has visited that section in years. Haverhill, Milford, Clinton and Hudson, in this state, and Concord, N. H., also felt the effects of the storm severely. Much damage was done by lightning.

Death Sentence Committed

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—Three commutations of death sentences in two days was the record established by the Cabinet yesterday afternoon. On Tuesday the death sentence passed upon a Prince Edward man named Barrette who shot his stepson last spring was commuted on the ground that the killing was not intentional. Yesterday, on the recommendation of the Minister of Justice, the death sentences of the Hamilton Italian, named Grecco, and of Oger Rochette of Quebec, each of whom were to have been hanged this morning, were commuted to life imprisonment.

Grecco stabbed a fellow countryman during a quarrel and the latter subsequently died. It came out in the evidence, however, that death might not have been due to the stabbing, but rather to tuberculosis from which the victim suffered. The trial judge, Sir William Mulock, recommended that the sentence be commuted with the proviso that the Italians of Hamilton should form a society to do away with the carrying of stilettos and other dangerous weapons by their compatriots in this country. This was done and Grecco will not go to the gallows.

In the case of Rochette whose trial excited so much interest in the Province of Quebec last May, the evidence was purely circumstantial and inconclusive. The prisoner has been given the benefit of the doubt.

In Memoriam

MRS. EDWARD E. McDORMAND.

Daily the bell tolls a requiem for the passing of the dear daily the pall is spread and the mourners weep about the streets. Heedless of the availing prayers, ever over the faint scenes hovers the black wing of the destroyer, ever on unwilling ears sounds the beating of the surf along the shore where the silent Boatman waits.

"Thank God we are not left comfortless. Through the darkness reaches out the strong hand of 'Our Father,' touching us with the strength of God. Upon the bruised and broken spirit falls gently the divine voice of the living Christ. 'I am the resurrection and the life—He that believeth on me though he were dead yet shall he live again.'"

On Monday, August 3rd, Mrs. Edward McDormand, of Round Hill, after having for nearly six years been compelled to lay aside the active duties of life, when the "day was done" and the hush of night fell upon the world, gently to her waiting soul came the great call, and the freest spirit, lovely in life and beautiful even in death, beheld beyond the shadows the brightness of an immortal day.

Mrs. McDormand was the only daughter of the late Isaac W. and Amelia Healy, both of whom slept on the green hillside of the silent city. In 1888 she was married to Mr. E. E. McDormand, of Round Hill, where in her pleasant home, surrounded by much that makes life bright and happy, nearly forty years of happy married life passed all too rapidly away. Then the silent shadow of a wasting disease crossed the threshold, relentlessly pursuing its victim until the end.

Through the wearisome days and nights of those six long years, which she bore with unflinching fortitude and sweet submission, the tender and never failing love and care of a devoted husband and children smoothed the wearisome way, going with her to the very verge of the dark valley, now comforted by the thought that in one of the many mansions of the Father's house she rests in the perfect peace of God, and if thought of earth may mingle there with those of the eternal, perchance she watches with them still.

Her kind, unselfish disposition and bright, sunny spirit won for her the warm regard of hosts of friends, who mingle their tears with those of the lonely husband and sorrowing children.

Thus at the age of sixty-two years she passed beyond their loving care, leaving behind her the fragrance of a noble life filled with kindly and unselfish thought for all within her circle, strong in faith in God, serving only for the tears of those who loved her.

Of her children, there are two sons, Robert M. and Chas., of Bridgewater, holding responsible positions, who, in their annual home-comings, will miss a mother's glad welcome, and one daughter, Mrs. L. G. Hervey, whose privilege it was to minister to her with all a daughter's love during the last trying weeks of her illness, and who did so much to help and support the grief-stricken husband.

And so they laid away all that was mortal on the green hillside, beneath the flowers she loved, in sure and certain hope of the resurrection into the immortal life.

"She may not return to us, but we shall go to her." —COM.

Disaster on Lake Winnipeg

West Selkirk, Man., Aug. 7.—The steamer Wolverson, in news tonight of a terrible disaster on Lake Winnipeg, at Warren's Landing where six lives were lost in a fire, which destroyed the steamer Fremier the finest boat on the Lake. The ill-fated vessel was lying at her dock there freighted for a return trip to this point, when suddenly fire broke out about one o'clock on Thursday morning, when her 38 passengers, all tourists, were peacefully asleep in their state-rooms. The flames spread with such terrible rapidity that it was impossible to arouse them all, and eight of them met a horrible death. The others escaped in night-robes only.

Exterminator Found for the Codling Moth

It is now believed that the destructive reign of the codling moth is at an end, and that the thanks for it will be due to Clarence G. Gillette, professor of zoology and entomology at the Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins.

For more than eight years Prof. Gillette has devoted much time and energy to perfecting a spray which would successfully kill off the codling moth, and at last success has crowned his efforts.

His discovery of a method to annihilate the codling moth is not exactly of recent date, but year by year he has improved upon his solution for an effective spray, and recent experiments have proved his complete success.

Up to within the last fifteen years the dread codling moth has destroyed annually from fifty to seventy-five per cent. of the yield of Colorado apple orchards, and its devastations have been proportionately great throughout the entire world. For the codling moth is not a native of this State. It was imported here years ago, just as were other fruit parasites and plant lice, and probably had its origin in Asia.

To estimate the damage the codling moth has done in dollars and cents to the apple orchards of Colorado within a quarter of a century, reaches up into the millions, but in the future this will be saved.

When he first advanced the theory of spraying just after the blossom fall, Prof. Gillette advocated the use of a mixture composed of Paris green and London purple. That brought certain good results, but in many instances the arsenic killed the foliage.

The spray he advocates now is arsenate of lead. It is almost entirely indistinguishable. A person could hold enough of it to cause death in the mouth all day without being able to dissolve enough to do any harm.

But if it were eaten and swallowed the gastric juices of the stomach would dissolve it, and death would follow. This is how it kills the codling moth. It is sticky and will adhere to the tree all the year, and no amount of rain or moisture can interfere with its efficiency, but let the moth nibble on it and he dies.

The discovery of Prof. Gillette could probably also be used in the East and North-East against the Egyptian moth and the brown tail moth, which annually play such havoc with the orchards here.

Killed by Saw-Mill Explosion

Windsor, N. S., Aug. 7.—As the result of an explosion in the saw mill at Canoe Lake, twenty miles from here, at seven o'clock this morning, Edward Keith, the engineer was killed and three other employees were severely, perhaps fatally, injured.

The saw mill is owned by the Parsonage Lumber Co., and had been running a short time, when suddenly, without the slightest warning, the heavy boiler burst with terrific force. Keith, who was standing near the boiler, was buried with terrific speed against the wall of the mill, and was killed instantly. Three other workmen, Lowe, Swinhammer and Leary, who were standing near, were terribly crushed and bruised. After the first confusion following the explosion, word was telephoned to Windsor, and Drs. Black and Morris, accompanied by Coroner Reid, started at once for the scene of the accident.

Engineer Keith was about forty years of age, unmarried and belonged to Oxford, N. S.

Swinhammer is scalded all over the body, and has a compound fracture of both bones of his leg, and his condition is considered dangerous. Lowe, who belongs to Lunenburg County, is also terribly scalded, and he will probably die. The injured were attended by Drs. Bret, Black and Morris, the latter remaining with Lowe all day.

Sixteen feet of the mill was blown into Canoe Lake, and the second boiler, supporting the one that burst, was also blown in the lake. The explosion was heard two and a half miles away.

A Brilliant Wolfville Wedding

FITZHUGH—STARR.

The Wolfville Baptist Church was the scene of a social event of much interest on Wednesday evening, September 3, being the marriage of Miss Emily Portia Starr, eldest daughter of C. R. H. Starr, to William W. Fitzhugh, Jr., assistant superintendent of a large business house in New York.

The church which was crowded to the doors with relatives and friends of the contracting parties, was artistically decorated. A large screen across the front of the church was of unique design, ornamented with chrysanthemums and white roses, the chancel being a complete bank of greens and ferns. At eight o'clock to the strains of the Bridal Chorus, played by the organist, Mrs. J. C. Ringwald, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, and preceded by her bridesmaid, Miss Helen Starr, and took her place beside the groom under the wedding bell, the impressive ring ceremony being performed by Rev. A. C. Chute, D. D. The bride looked lovely in an exquisite gown of chiffon over white satin, an train with veil and orange blossoms and carried a beautiful bouquet of roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Evelyn Starr, as maid of honor, who was prettily gowned in a cream point d'esprit, and her friend, Miss Josephine Botwick, of St. John, who wore a handsome gown of green silk chiffon, both carrying exquisite bouquets. The ceremony was attended by his friend, Mr. Kirkland, of New York, the ushers being Messrs. Richard Starr, brother of the bride, Dr. Avery DeWitt and Mr. Fitzhugh, of New York.

At the close of the ceremony, congratulations were received, after which the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride, Westwood Ave., where refreshments were served and after a social hour, Mr. and Mrs. Starr, left on a trip to the Adirondacks, after which they will reside in New York. The bride's going away gown was of brown rajah silk. The groom's suit was one of the most nicely accomplished, charming and popular of Wolfville's young ladies, was the recipient of a large number of elegant and costly gifts, the groom's gift being a valuable pearl pendant.

Many of the influential families of Cornwallis, Kentville and Wolfville were guests at the wedding.

A Tragedy of Seventy-five Years Ago

The edition of the Yarmouth Herald of seventy-five years ago contains a tragic item of news from Annapolis county as follows:

Wilful Murder.—A coroner's inquest was held in the Dalhousie settlement, county of Annapolis, Nova Scotia, on Monday, the 15th inst., before Peter Bonnet, Esquire, on view of the body of Catharine Inglis. After five evidences had been sworn and examined the Jury returned their verdict—"That she was wilfully murdered by John Gregory."—A coroner's warrant having been issued, Gregory was immediately arrested, and is now in goal at Annapolis, to take his trial in September next. The deceased was a very respectable and aged woman, and has left a husband and four children, and three grand-children, to lament the loss of an affectionate wife and tender parent. The body was brought into Annapolis, and there entered with every mark of respect—Much credit is due to Edward H. Cutler, Esquire the High Sheriff, and a number of gentlemen from the town, for arresting the murderer.

Mysterious Camper in Nova Scotia Forest

What Became of Him? Had His Forest Retreat Any Particular Significance in Connection with Disappearance of Prominent Man?

(Special to the Monitor-Sentinel.)

In the fall of 183— I happened to be in Boston and picking up a daily paper I read something like as follows:

"Mr. B—, Cashier of the National Bank, has absconded, taking some $20,000 of the bank's funds with him. The most careful search has failed to locate him or furnish even the slightest clue as to which way he has gone. He was known to be in the city in August and, as he was in the habit of spending his vacation in the Maine woods, where he has several camps, it was thought by some that he might be rusticated there, but the most diligent search has disclosed the fact, that none of his woods camps have been recently occupied. His whereabouts is a mystery."

I remembered that after reading the above paragraph I thought over the situation and wondered if the detective system that our cousin brag about was all that they claim for it. However, in a short time the incident dropped out of my memory and for more than twelve months it did not occur to me.

A little more than a year from the time of reading the paragraph first mentioned I had occasion to get some information about the level of certain lakes in the interior of Nova Scotia, for the purpose of having dams built for reservoirs for stream driving. There were three or four small lakes that it was thought could be made use of to hold water by building dams at their outlets. I also had to ascertain if water could be brought from one brook to another by cutting a cheap canal.

I had two assistants and had nearly completed the work, and as supplies were running low concluded that we had better try for some trout to replenish our stock of provisions. Leaving one man to keep camp, and taking the other with me, we got in our canoe and were soon at the inlet of the lake, where the chances seemed to be all right to catch a few fish.

Instructing my man to catch some fish if he could, and taking my rifle, I started to look around. I had travelled perhaps half a mile from the canoe, when I saw fresh signs of a bear. There were two of them and they had only been gone a few minutes. Following their trail very cautiously I expected to see them and get a shot. I had only gone a little way when I saw where they had both jumped and run some distance. Feeling curious to know what had started them, I moved very carefully listening all the while. I had moved out of the swamp and was on the edge of a fairly open growth of hardwood, which sloped to the southeast. Looking carefully around I noticed some cutting done very recently; a small fir tree had been cut to get brush. It was quite evident what had started the bears.

Following the trail of the brush over the ridge it led down to a little softwood thicket along side of a small brook, and not far from the cove of a small lake. Here, in an ideal place, was a camp, rather roughly built, but showing evidences of being occupied and particularly so by the small wreath of smoke that was going up from it. Approaching the door, which was open, I heard voices inside; when I got near a man looked out and saw me. He seemed very much surprised and made a movement as if to shut the door but seemed to think better of it and stepped outside as though he did not want me to go in.

He appeared to be a man about forty years of age, somewhat stooped but rather tough and wiry looking. I bade him "Good morning," asked if he were fishing, and was getting ready to ask more questions when some one apparently in distress, called from inside, "George, come in here, quick." George started to go in, and I followed. The camp was built of small logs and well called with moss. The roof was made of slanting poles and covered with bark; a pane of glass in each end let in some light, and a small stove occupied one corner. On one side, in a very comfortable berth, lay a man, neatly dressed, quite fleshy, and apparently slightly older than the first man. He was cleanly shaven and his iron grey hair was closely cut, one foot was bandaged and seemed to be bleeding. After glancing at him, my first question was, "What is the matter?" He seemed quite surprised at seeing me, but after bidding me "Good morning," said, "I was out using the axe and unfortunately have cut my foot. It is bleeding a good deal and pains me." I offered to look at it and assist him if I could in dressing it. He rather reluctantly consented and getting the bandage off (I found he had cut it in the instep, but not seriously) with George's assistance I dressed it and he seemed to be much more comfortable.

During all the time we were at work he kept talking, told me his name was—, had been living in St. John a short time, had come there from the West coast, liked the woods and was just resting there, thankful to have me call but would not detain me for anything, did not care much for visitors as George was all the company he wished. In fact showed me in a well bred, but plain, way that he did not want my company. I noticed a number of Boston papers lying around.

After bidding him good day I went back to my man, who had caught a nice string of fish.

Completing the work I had on hand we came home, and I have never seen my strange encounter since.

The following summer I had to send a couple of men into that district. I told them of the camp and where to find it. They went there, found the camp, all right but it was empty. On looking around they found several Boston papers, and nicely folded up itself was one bearing the date September 183—, and containing the paragraph I had read in the fall of that year. Whether this is coincidence or fact the reader can judge for himself.

Canada's Greatest Military Spectacle

Hours before the opening of the review the city streets were massed with moving troops. The marines, over five thousand in number, landed at nine o'clock, and with their guns marched to the ground. In the carriages between the companies rode the officers, British, American and French occupying places in the same carriages.

Canada's Greatest Military Spectacle

At 11:10 the bands sounded and the marines started their march past from the eastern end; first the French marines, with their white caps and red tassels on top, next the Americans, with the eagles on their shoulders, the British Blue Jackets, stout but sturdy, and the Tricolor, Stars and Stripes, or Union Jack was carried in the ranks of each. As the British marines approached in their white straw hats Earl Roberts rode along the line to meet them.

Canada's Greatest Military Spectacle

With them they dressed along the guns, pointed in the all-weather gray of the navy; the commander of each of the warship contingents saluted the Royal Standard as he passed. The band of his Royal Highness was raised in answering salute and rounds of applause greeted them as they came along.

Canada's Greatest Military Spectacle

At last they had passed, and the volunteers came on, headed by the Governor-General's Foot Guards, passing the stand at 11:45, and 45 minutes before the long line was to start. Now there was a movement in the rear of the massed bands, as the regiments took a right turn, and began moving to the east to get into line. And west came the soldiers on the march past, and continued to pass the other regiments—a dazzling double movement.

Canada's Greatest Military Spectacle

Now came the Highlanders of Montreal, and the Scotchmen put a great cheer. Earl Roberts now moved east to meet some infantry, as half an hour before he rode out to meet the British troops. Earl Roberts, playing the "Royal Grenadiers," soldiers in black with red stripes, and with his aides the Field Marshal turned about and placed himself at their head—behind the honorary colonel of Toronto's Queen's Own Rifles.

The Terrible Voyage of the Caranarvon Bay in Southern Seas.

J. F. Whitney & Co., of New York are in receipt of the story of the British ship Caranarvon Bay, which collided head on with an iceberg in the southern seas but nevertheless reached her port of destination, Hamburg, sound in her hull.

The adventure of the ship, which was loaded with grain and making the passage around Cape Horn from Portland, Ore., is one of the most remarkable and at the same time fortuitous accidents, in the sense of not entailing real, downright bad luck in the books of marine mishaps.

With the arrival of day, announced by the bell, rather than by the increased light, Captain Griffith, worn from the uncertainties of the night, sought his bed and had been there but a short time when there came a mighty crash forward, followed by the falling of rigging and a roar.

The ship shook and then stood stock still. Sails flapped, and steel plates cracked, spar crossed the sound of feet racing aft in frantic flight told Captain Griffith what had happened. When he reached the quarter deck he met a scene such as few mariners ever behold and live to tell afterwards.

Into HUGH ICEBERG. In the fog, an iceberg at least 250 feet high hung over the ship, her bows and all. The front of the iceberg as he rode past, into which the Caranarvon Bay had thrust her bowsprit, part of her bow and foremast had been side.

Working the ship clear of the monster was a most delicate and trying series of manoeuvres. The iron bowsprit had buckled in two places. The stem and twisted, the anchor stock bent and even the mainmast on the fore deck sprang out of place.

THE GARDEN CITY

A NOBLE EFFORT TO TRAIN BOYS AND GIRLS TO BECOME USEFUL CITIZENS.

(Boston Globe.) In an effort to teach the boys and girls of the "Island district" of Worcester—of whom there are 20,000, representing twenty-two nationalities—how to become useful citizens...

He has established a city within the city and his municipality is engaged in the work of reclaiming a waste section of Worcester. At the same time, it is keeping the boys out of mischief, teaching them to respect the rights of others and living their training on lines that may be of benefit to them in later life.

The city council was inaugurated a few weeks ago with exercises which attracted a bigger crowd than ever attended the inaugural program of the real city. In the latter case, it has been the custom for a few hundred men and women to fill the Municipal hall.

PUBLIC DUMP TRANSFORMED INTO GARDENS The Garden City, as it is called, is a public dump filled with the refuse of a crowd estimated at ten thousand persons, and representatives of the real city took part in the program and showed their appreciation of what the boys and girls are doing by congratulating them on their work and encouraging them to continue on the lines mapped out for them.

The Garden City has already worked a wonderful transformation in a part of Worcester that was formerly a public dump filled with the refuse of a crowd estimated at ten thousand persons, and representatives of the real city took part in the program and showed their appreciation of what the boys and girls are doing by congratulating them on their work and encouraging them to continue on the lines mapped out for them.

Water for the gardens was provided by making a connection with a neighboring house for barrels set around the gardens, each child getting his supply from these barrels and taking it to his own garden. The crows have prospered better than many of the grown-up gardens around the city this year, because the children saw that their gardens were watered daily, something it was impossible for the grown-up to do with their big plots of ground during the drought.

Vegetables have already been harvested from some of his gardens, and Mayor Logan has a special prize on their bill of fare ordered from the children. Many of the families of the island district are enjoying for the first time in their lives vegetables fresh from a garden, and many of the children have made a few cents by selling some of the garden truck.

Some of the girls have come in for prizes more than for vegetables, and there are 240 flowering plants in the section, most of them in Graton square, which is named after Mrs. Henry C. Graton, who has proved herself a friend of the underlings in several ways.

Prizes are to be given at the end of the season for the best garden—50 of them—and all the children are planning to make displays in the horticultural society's exhibits in August and September. Every child exhibitor will be given a certificate, whether he wins one of the special prizes or not, and these certificates will give each child a return of 5 cents on his original investment of 5 cents early in the year.

KEEPS THE BOYS OFF OF "THE GANG" BUT the financial reward is nothing compared to the lessons the children are learning. First of all the movement keeps the boys off the streets out of the "gangs" and out of crime. Last year the police received complaints of twenty teams being driven away by the boys of the district. This year there has been a team driven away by a boy in the district.

Last year, the night before the Fourth, Willie Dunn was caught at the head of a "gang" pulling into a dump a wagon of a poor junk dealer as fuel for a bonfire the boys were to have. He was talked to by Rev. Mr. Floody like the "Dutch uncle," and this year "Mayor" Willie Dunn and his gang sat up all the night before the Fourth to guard their Garden city from a raid by boys from another section of the city.

They have been taught the value of property and the meanness of stealing. They have been taught thrift and how to make use of waste places. They are given a start on practical lines of card-making, and are given an idea of business methods by seeing what a return they get

THE FRUITS OF THE EARTH

SEEM TO BE NATURE'S PROVISION FOR KEEPING MAN HEALTHY AND WARDING OFF DISEASE.

Cereals, vegetables and meat supply the elements needed for man's nourishment. Yet fruit—though it has very little food value—has proved to be absolutely necessary for perfect health.

General investigation has shown that all the common fruits act on the liver, kidneys, bowels and skin. These are the organs that rid the body of dead tissue and waste products, and the fruit juices stir them up to more vigorous action. Thus keeping the whole body clean and healthy.

But few people eat enough fruit. Realizing this, after several years of experimenting, a prominent Canadian physician succeeded in combining the juices of apples, oranges, figs and grapes in such a way that the medicinal action is many times multiplied. There has added to these fruits and made the combination into a health-giving "Fruit-Active" tablet.

Some of the little gardeners had a very vague idea of what they were expected to do at the start, and their knowledge of seeds and planting was amusing. One child wanted seeds to raise eggs, another wanted rosy seals because he thought he could raise puppies from them, and another he would get a harvest of spinach seeds.

When the gardens were ready for planting in the spring, Rev. Mr. Floody distributed 2,900 packages of seeds among the children, most of the seeds being given by Congressman Charles G. Washburn, Walter D. Ross, Theodore A. Small, and Adin A. Hixon, secretary of the Worcester horticultural society. The tools for working the gardens, including hoes, rakes, wheelbarrows, etc., were contributed by David A. Scott, Dr. Melvin G. Overstock, Charles McLean and Duncan & Goodell.

Water for the gardens was provided by making a connection with a neighboring house for barrels set around the gardens, each child getting his supply from these barrels and taking it to his own garden. The crows have prospered better than many of the grown-up gardens around the city this year, because the children saw that their gardens were watered daily, something it was impossible for the grown-up to do with their big plots of ground during the drought.

OCCASION FOR REJOICING.

Recently the usual morning exercises of a school were interrupted by a knock at the door. After reading a note which had been handed in, the principal announced that one of the teachers would be unable to be at school for several days, owing to a slight illness. Immediately two boys began to whisper. Upon asking what the trouble was, the boys said they were only talking about the selection of a hymn.

"Count your blessings," was the quick response. "And what would you like to sing?" said the teacher. "Oh, Mr. Green, I shall have to raise your board to $5."

Mr. Green had been paying $4 a week for board. His appetite constantly increased. Finally his landlady saw that she must either sell out and quit or raise the boarder's rate. One day after watching him devour plateful after plateful she picked up courage and said: "Mr. Green, I shall have to raise your board to $5."

Mr. Green looked up, with a start. Then in a tone of consternation, he said: "Oh, Mrs. Smith don't! It's as much as I can do to eat $4 worth."

Oh, for a seat in an ocean cave, Where the crabs and the lobsters play, Where the sharks and the whales sit upon their tails, And soak and snore all day!

Oh, for a plunge in a polar sea, For a slide down a hill of snow, For an ice cream cone and a frozen treat, And a hut on a heaving reef!

A woman on the train entering Grand Rapids asked the conductor how long the cars stopped at the Union Station. He replied: "Madame, we stop just four minutes, from two to two and two."

The woman turned to her companion and said: "Madame, we stop just four minutes, from two to two and two."

Little Harold—Papa, did Solomon have seven hundred wives? Papa—I believe he did, my son. Little Harold—Was he the man who said, "Give me liberty or give me death?"

VENGEANCE. She was very, very fat, And she sat upon his hat; Seven dollars gone to smash, With the quickness of a flash— But she settled down again, With a sigh of sweet content, At the nibbled saucer of cream. "That silver bracelet, but, Think of that!" Gentle reader.

Oh, the man was raving mad, 'Twas the only hat he had— But he didn't dare to swear, He could only sit and stare— "Think of that!" Gentle reader.

When the angry man came back, With a visage thunder-black, Maiden's hat, Covered o'er with feathers sweet, Rested on the poor man's seat— "Think of that!" Gentle reader.

While exultant leaped his mood, And he sat upon the hen's head, With a horri-fying thud— "Think of that!" Gentle reader.

No; she did not so innuend, But she never smiled again! And they buried him next day, In the stinky yellow clay— "Think of that!" Gentle reader.

Oh, he did not swally by poison, He had overlooked the botlin, In his anger, he did— "For a hat, Gentle reader, Think of that!"

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 12, 1908.

The depression in the lumber market is causing considerable anxiety in business circles and a number of lumber mills are closing down, owing to the stagnation in trade in both American and British markets. Large quantities of lumber are ready for export, awaiting demand. The St. John Sun, interviewing a number of manufacturers, ascertained that the iron and steel market was considered by lumber men as a barometer of the times. It steel rises it indicates that railway construction is increasing and industries are building. This, of course, affects the lumber business. Lumbermen have watched the changes which has just taken place at Pittsburg where thousands of unemployed men have been given work. They believe, is a sign of better times soon, and upon it they build their hopes for the future.

Seventy-five years is a rosy age for a weekly journal to attain. This is the milestone reached by the Yorkmouth Herald, which passed its seventy-fifth birthday last week, and celebrated the occasion by the issue of a special number containing cuts of the town past and present, and other interesting matter referring to the Herald's career. It also issued a facsimile of the first copy of the paper. One feature which is remarkable in the paper's career is the fact that the Herald has been issued continuously by father and son during its entire existence. The present proprietor, Mr. J. Murray Lawson, is a prominent member of the Nova Scotia press fraternity, and the Monday joins heartily in the chorus of congratulations he is receiving and trusts he may long continue an exponent of what is honorable and admirable in Journalism.

Owing to the falling off numerically of domestic cattle and the consequent scarcity of good meat, some persons have suggested the advisability of establishing deer preserves throughout the country for the purpose of overcoming the stringency as regards animal food. It is contended that deer meat is much preferable to the domestic animal meat on the market at present. The proposition is looked upon by many as a good one. It is further pointed out that deer will eat and thrive on food that domestic animals will not touch, and that the deer preserves can be made a source of revenue to the Government, which would of course control the preserves and dispose of the deer carcasses to the meat dealers.—Colchester Sun.

DEPARTURE OF LORD ROBERTS.

The people of western Canada will cheerfully bow to the inevitable in the matter of bringing to an abrupt close at Ottawa the sojourn of Lord Roberts, who reached that city Sunday afternoon. The sharp attack of illness from which he suffered at Montreal has convinced his medical advisers both here and in England that he ought to cancel all his western engagements, and, like the good soldier he is, he does not hesitate to deign himself of a journey that would otherwise have been to him a continuous source of pleasure. At his advanced age the strenuous work of the centennial program and the extreme heat of the weather seem to have been too much for even so war-hardened a veteran, but it is perfectly legitimate to indulge the hope that a sea voyage and prolonged rest will restore him to his normal state of health and activity.

A CURE FOR INDIGESTION.

Jordan Branch, Shelburne, N. S., writes: "The last fifteen years I have had occasional attacks of dyspepsia. I have often purchased medicine from doctors and druggists which did me no good. Three months ago I was forced to give up work. I tried drug taking for six weeks. In the end I found myself worse. I then tried Reed's Earth Cure; this absorbent gave relief. I have used two boxes. I consider this amount has been worth more than $100.00 to me. I have great faith in R. E. C. O."

Obituary.

MR. EDWIN B. MARSHALL.

It is our sad duty to record the death of Edwin B. Marshall, who passed away on Friday, July 31st, at his home, Dalhousie street. He was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Marshall, and was 33 years of age.

He was familiarly known as "Eddie" and was respected and beloved by his many friends, who cannot speak too highly of his unselfishness and patience, especially during his illness.

About three years ago he married Miss Emma Westhaver, of Bridgewater. Their short married life has ended in a particularly sad way.

Only a month ago their baby girl and only child, Marcell Alice, was taken home after a period of intense suffering.

Much sympathy is felt for the doubly bereaved widow, the sorrowing parents, and the five sisters, the eldest of whom, Mrs. Schurman, resides in the United States.

Mr. Marshall was a consistent member of "All Saints" Episcopal Church, and was chapel-warden until last Easter.

"Call not back the dear departed Anshored safe where storms are o'er; On the border-land we left him. Soon to meet and part no more. Far beyond this world of chances, Far beyond this world of care, We shall find our missing loved one In our Father's mansion fair."

Rev. Abner P. Newcombe, recently of Bethany Baptist Church, Roxbury, Mass., has arrived in Halifax, and has moved into the parsonage on Cogwell St. Mr. Newcombe will be his work as pastor of the North Baptist church, September 1st. During the month of August, he, with Mrs. Newcombe, will spend a brief vacation at Bear River and Digby. Mr. Newcombe has been the Boston correspondent for the Maritime Baptist and other periodicals. He is a specialist in young people's work and is well and favorably known among Y. M. C. A. and temperance workers in Boston.

A Halifax Journal suggests that the dip-of-death bicycle act be eliminated from their exhibition program. It believes that the citizens can find lots to thrill them without a feature such as that. The suggestion is sensible. A "loop-the-looper" has just been killed in Ohio, and a girl engaged to do a double somersault has been killed at Pittsburgh. The Toronto Mail and Empire observes that the public passion for something dangerous is like the old spirit that inspired people to attend executions, and it is a species of barbarism. At any rate it is about time that the routine of death were stopped.

"I was walking in front of a lighted safe, and I felt so sick and miserable that I stopped for a pick-me-up. Then I considered that if I took one drink I would probably, in my present state of mind, not want to stop under twenty, and I decided I had better leave it alone. But my nerves were jumping like a frightened rabbit, and I felt I must have something to quiet them, or I would go crazy. I reached for my cigarette-case, but a cigarette seemed hardly adequate, so I put it back again and took out this cigar-case, in which I keep only the strongest and blackest cigars. I opened it and stuck in my fingers, but instead of a cigar they touched on a thin leather envelope. My heart stood perfectly still. I did not dare to look, but I dug my finger nails into the leather and I felt layers of thin paper, then a layer of cotton, and then they scratched on the facets of the Czarina's diamonds!

"I stumbled as though I had been hit in the face, and fell back into one of the chairs on the sidewalk. I tore off the wrappings and spread out the diamonds on the cafe table; I could not believe they were real. I twisted the necklace between my fingers and crushed it between my palms and tossed it up in the air. I believe I almost kissed it. The women in the cafe stood up on the chairs to see better, and laughed and screamed, and the people crowded so close around me that the waiters had to form a bodyguard. The proprietor thought there was a fight, and called for the police. I was so happy I didn't care. I laughed, too, and gave the proprietor a five pound note and told him to stand every one a drink. Then I tumbled into a chair and allowed off to my friend the Chief of Police. I felt very sorry for him. He had been so happy at the chance I gave him, and he was sure to be disappointed when he learned I had sent him off on a false alarm.

"But now that I had found the necklace, I did not want him to find the woman. Indeed, I was most anxious that she should get clear away, for if she were caught the truth would come out, and I was likely to get a sharp reprimand, and sure to be laughed at.

"I could see now how it had happened. In my haste to hide the diamonds when the woman was hustled into the carriage, I had shoved the cigars into the satchel, and the diamonds into the pocket of my coat. Now that I had the diamonds safe again, it seemed a very natural mistake. But I doubted if the Foreign Office would think so. I was afraid it might not appreciate the beautiful simplicity of my secret hiding place. So, when I reached the police station, and found that the woman was still at large, I was more than relieved.

"As I expected, the Chief was extremely chagrined when he learned of my mistake, and that there was nothing for him to do. But I was feeling so happy myself that I hated to have any one else miserable, so I suggested that this attempt to steal the Czarina's necklace might be only the first of a series of such attempts by an unscrupulous gang, and that I might still be in danger.

"I winked at the Chief and the Chief smiled at me, and we went to Nice together in a saloon car with a guard of twelve carabinieri and twelve plain-clothes men, and the Chief and I drank champagne all the way. We marched together up to the hotel where the Russian Ambassador was stopping, closely surrounded by our escort of carabinieri, and delivered the necklace with the most profound ceremony. The old Ambassador was immensely impressed, and when we hinted that already I had been made the object of an attack by robbers, he assured us that his Imperial Majesty would not prove ungrateful.

"I wrote a swinging personal letter about the invaluable services of the Chief to the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, and they gave him enough Russian and French medals to satisfy even a French soldier. So, though he never caught the woman, he received his just reward."

The Queen's Messenger paused and surveyed the faces of those about him in some embarrassment.

"But the worst of it is," he added, "that the story must have got about; for, while the Princess obtained nothing from me but a cigar-case and five excellent cigars, a few weeks after the coronation the Czar sent me a gold cigar-case with his monogram in diamonds. And I don't know yet whether that was a coincidence, or whether the Czar wanted me to know that he knew that I had been carrying the Czarina's diamonds in my pigskin cigar-case. What do you fellows think?"

CHAPTER III.

SIR ANDREW rose with disapproval written in every lineament. "I thought your story would bear upon the murder," he said. "Had I imagined it would have nothing whatsoever to do with it I would not have remained." He pushed back his chair and bowed stiffly. "I wish you good night," he said.

There was a chorus of remonstrance, and under cover of this and the Baronet's answering protests a servant for the second time slipped a piece of paper into the hand of the gentleman with the pearl stud. He read the lines written upon it and tore it into tiny fragments.

The youngest member, who had remained an interested but silent listener to the tale of the Queen's Messenger, raised his hand commanding.

"Sir Andrew," he cried, "in justice to Lord Arthur Chetney I must ask you to be seated. He has been accused in our hearing of a most serious crime, and I insist that you remain until you have heard me clear his character."

"You!" cried the Baronet.

"Yes," answered the young man briskly. "I would have spoken sooner," he explained, "but that I thought this gentleman—the inclined his head toward the Queen's Messenger—was about to contribute some facts of which I was ignorant. He, however, has told us nothing, and so I will take up the tale at the point where Lieutenant Sears laid it down and give you those details of which Lieutenant Sears is ignorant. It seems strange to you that I should be able to add the sequel to this story. But the coincidence is easily explained. I am the junior member of the law firm of Chudleigh & Chudleigh. We have been solicitors for the Chetneys for the last two hundred years. Nothing, no matter how unimportant, which concerns Lord Edam and his two sons is unknown to us, and naturally we are acquainted with every detail of the terrible catastrophe of last night."

"Will you be long, sir?" he demanded.

"I shall endeavor to be brief," said the young solicitor; "and," he added, in a tone which gave his words almost the weight of a threat, "I promise to be interesting."

"There is no need to promise that," said Sir Andrew. "I find it much too interesting as it is." He glanced ruefully at the clock and turned his eyes quickly from it.

"Tell the driver of that hansom," he called to the servant, "that I take him by the hour."

"For the last three days," began young Mr. Chudleigh, "as you have probably read in the daily papers, the Marquis of Edam has been at the point of death, and his physicians have never left his house."

BOTTLE AND HOUSE.

(The Wesleyan)
The Charlestown Guardian writes: "As a gentleman was driving from West, his horse dropped dead at Marlborough Corner. This gentleman went back to Somerset and examined and left the horse where he fell. Some neighbors who had reasons to be bitter, thrust a bottle at his head to show where he lay, and so came to his death."

We presume the Guardian uses the term gentleman in a satirical sense. We desire to put in a plea for the horse. This robust animal, next to man, has, next to man, suffered most from the bottle. Drunken masters, drivers and hostlers have brought much misery into his life. As he cannot speak for himself, others should and must speak for him. The drunkard's yell, as a last resort, can, protest, seek redress, or leave him, but his poor horse must mutely suffer until, as in the above case, he drops dead from his torture. No drunkard should be allowed to own, drive or care for a horse. In this connection the Society for Prevention of Cruelty has a sphere of operation worthy its more active attention. Why, for instance, in the above case, should not the cattle-man (save the mark) be brought to task and severely punished? Every policeman and constable should have authority at sight, without warrant, to take out of possession of any drunken man any horse which he may be driving, whether it belongs to himself or some one else, and he should be obliged to pay all expenses. We have sometimes wondered at livermen keeping drunken boys' legs about their premises, and hiring horses to drunken men, or men who in all likelihood will be drunk and abuse their horses before they return. In every case in which a drunken man returns a horse which has evidently been abused the liverman should report the case to the S. P. C., so that it may be prosecuted without his personal expense. Let a merciful public take up the case of the horse, most useful and noble of animals, and let the drunkard be made to understand that he will not be allowed to abuse him with impunity.

TRAVERSING THE AIR.

The following interesting article on the general subject is from a New York journal:

"In the great crowd that watched Henri Farman wing himself about the Brighton house Sunday week, perhaps the man or boy who will some day solve the problem of flight. It is yet a problem. Farman and the Wright brothers and Zeppelins are just beginning to learn a little about air currents—as much, perhaps as Christopher Columbus knew about the currents of the sea and the geography of the earth when he sailed into the unknown west. The mechanical engineers upon whom aeronauts must depend for better engines are still experimenting—and they may require fifty years more before they will develop a motor light enough and strong enough to propel an aeroplane. But by human beings will, just as surely as they will conquer heat and cold, and even poverty and crime and disease. But progress will be slow. Centuries elapsed between the time when savages crossed the first river on logs and the advanced day when the first sail was spread on a windward-working boat. The Frenchman cannot make a steam carriage in 1869 that ran two and a half miles an hour and carried four persons. It cannot be made in a year, and its inventor was sent to jail for disturbing the peace. It was not until 1827 that steam carriages were successfully operated in London. They ran twelve miles an hour, and some of them ran as far as from London to Brighton. But there was never any necessity of speed or lightness to protect the passenger against them. Meanwhile Stephenson was building railroads and locomotives and laying the same sort of a foundation for present railway systems that Farman, with his kite-pinnacled apparatus, is laying for the future business of navigating the air. It is perhaps because there is no shouting need for human flight that progress toward it has been slow. Steam serves most transportation requirements fairly well. Electricity has made it possible for men to travel to and fro in great cities with a little comfort. Development of practical common sense has been to that comfort by controlling monopolies and making it difficult for traction magnates to indulge in their natural propensity to greed. But practical air vehicles would make movement still more easy, and upon movement depends progress. What Farman and his fellows are seeking now is capital. Awaiting the interest of a very rich man in flight—Mr. Rockefeller or Mr. Carnegie, for example—would hasten the time when no terrestrial obstacle could impede travel, and when bridges and tunnels and long lines of steel rails would be alike useless. But what is still more important is arousing the interest of young men with brains in aerial transportation. The Germans are writing and talking and building balloons like the much-lamented dirigible will one day find a better way than there. It will make the practicability of flying so clear that capital will rush to it. As it rushed to railroads in the days that saw the passage of the stage coach."

Keep Your Child From Fear

"My little boy is naturally a timid child." "My little girl is so easily frightened."

Yet, according to Clara Louise Burdett, who writes in "Applet's Monthly" for April on "How to Keep Your Child From Fear," almost all children are born without fear.

Nature, she says, generally hands the child to the parents physically perfect, and still more often she hands him over full of optimism and faith.

"I'm afraid" begins too many of the remarks parents make to their children, says this author.

Parents constantly disobey the Bible which is full of commands to "Fear not."

Par, disaster, sickness, should not be talked of in the presence of children. Even though they may not seem to understand it at the time.

Another thing this writer strongly denounces is the "strange tradition" that into every parsonage or play for the entertainment of children.

Work if You Would Forget Your Worries

Since you are the only one who has to live all the time with your nerves, try to keep them in such shape that they will make endurable companions.

When there is no dodging an occasion upon which your nerves undergo the torture of suspense or when they have suffered the shock of disappointment or sorrow, don't sit limply down and feel them ache and quiver, but set to work.

Best Gift for Wife

The very best gift that a husband can make his wife is an insurance policy. It carries with it a conviction of starting out right; it is a guarantee that living or dead his protection will be the constant atmosphere of her life.

"No amount of money spent on little luxuries for the wife, no unbroken record for Saturday boxes of candy, no loyal observance of birthdays and other red-letter days of the calendar of love, no acts of thoughtfulness, nor graceful attentions or easy-going liberality in household expenses, can ever compensate for the reason for being omitted in forsaking the duty of insurance.

The husband's square inevitable duty is to insure his life if he can possibly meet his premiums. The amount of his policy should be as large as he can afford with due regard to his other responsibilities.

McCormick and family. Miss Catherine Filnel, of Weymouth who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. W. McCormick, returned home on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Andrews and their daughters, of Halifax, are the guests of Mrs. Andrews' parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wood. Rev. and Mrs. A. J. H. Fraser and Miss White were the bridesmaids at the Misses Camerog, returned to St. Croix on Saturday. Mr. E. Cassidy, at one time a resident of Annapolis, spent Friday and Saturday morning in town, leaving on the noon train for Boston. Mr. Harry Corbett left today for Summerland, B. C., where he has a large farm. Miss Corbett, accompanied by Mrs. C. Corbett, accompanied him as far as St. John. Warden Clark and County Councillors Fitch, Healy and Porter, met in town on Monday last to discuss matters pertaining to the ferry service, between Annapolis and Granville. Rev. H. H. and Mrs. McNeil left Monday to enjoy a couple of weeks well earned rest. On account of Mr. McNeil's absence there will be no service in the Methodist church next Sunday. Mr. Hugh Riddell was taken to Halifax on the Bluebonnet on Thursday and was operated on that evening for appendicitis. We are glad to report he is making good progress toward recovery. Quite a large number came up on the steamer Granville from Bear River and spent Saturday in town. A large ball match between Bear River and Annapolis was played in the afternoon, resulting in a victory for Annapolis, score 9-0. The garden party held by the ladies of St. Luke's Church on Friday last proved a grand success. The church grounds were prettily decorated and the different booths tastefully arranged. The ladies of the church are to be congratulated upon the success of the affair. About $188.00 was cleared. Misses Edna and Margaret Anderson, of Halifax, Miss Marion Clarke, of Boston, Miss Helen Dunn, of Bear River, Mrs. F. W. Pichele, Miss Hill and Lombard, Miss Hazel King, Mr. Roland Fraser, of Halifax, Mr. Rine of Weymouth, and Mr. C. C. King are camping at C. C. King's cabin at Lake La Rose. Fifty years ago the Presbyterian church here was built and opened for worship. There are but one or two of the then membership now living. This little church stands as a monument to the generosity of that little band. Meetings are called for this week to take some action to commemorate this event and it is not unlikely that this people, who in the past have shown such devotion to their house of worship, will readily respond to the occasion. It is suggested that a forward movement be made in securing a Manse, and that the balance of cost of same be raised at once.

Bear River.

Blueberries are quite plentiful this year. They are retailing at 6 to 8 cents per quart. Butter, eggs, small fruit, etc., meet with a ready sale now. Upwards of one hundred visitors are in the place, which also makes it lively for the owners of bookstands and motor boats. Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Archibald, lately of Woonsocket, R. I., who came to spend the summer with Mrs. Archibald's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Purdy, at Bear River, have lately taken advantage of the opportunity to get some sea air, and are now spending part of the time, the guests of Mrs. A. E. Copeland. Mr. George E. Weir has his engine installed and will be ready for threshing and grinding this week. From the appearance of some of the grain fields, the time of waiting will be very short. The engine is one of the Lloyd Manufacturing Company's "Special Model," and is a dandy. Mr. R. W. Purdy, who has been joining the work, completed the necessary connections Saturday afternoon, and made a short trial run which proved very satisfactory.

In all, we expect to export somewhere in the vicinity of 350,000 feet.

A FAITHFUL FRIEND. "I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since it was first introduced to the public in 1872, and have never found one instance where a cure was not speedily effected by its use. I have been a commercial traveler for eighteen years, and never start out on a trip without this, my faithful friend," says H. E. Nichols, of Oakland, Ind. Ter. When a man has used a remedy for thirty-five years he knows its value and is competent to speak of it. For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN, W. WADE AND BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE, BEAR RIVER.
