REGINA RAVAGED BY CYCLONE

Terrible Loss of Property.—Many Persons Killed or Injured.—Three Thousand People Homeless.—Some of the Very Finest City Buildings in Ruins.

REGINA, July 1st.—The most appalling disaster in the history of the Canadian North-West visited Regina on Sunday afternoon, when the city was struck by a cyclone, and an immense destruction of property and large loss of life resulted. Forty-one are now known to be dead, and two hundred and fifty are injured, while three thousand people are homeless.

District Swept Clean.—The force of the storm is almost unbelievable. Houses were levelled, churches demolished, great warehouses overturned, and some houses have pieces of timber driven clean through the roofs. The north end district, which is populated by foreigners was swept absolutely clean. Nothing is left of whole blocks but the foundations, and the ruins of houses have strewn the prairies for miles around. How anyone has escaped alive at all, is a miracle.

Three Blocks in Ruins.—The area covered by the storm was three blocks wide, through the heart of the residential section, the railway yards, the wholesale district, a district inhabited by the laboring classes, and a portion of the business section. Everything in the path of the wind was practically demolished. Starting at the south end of the city, the storm whirled straight north, leaving a path of destruction in its wake. Fully five hundred houses were absolutely wrecked, most of them nothing but a mass of tumbling timbers.

Miraculous Escape.—When the Telephone Exchange collapsed, the men rushed to the scene and worked like mad to save the girls. "We had twenty girls working at the time, and how they were saved is an absolute miracle. Look at that building. I cannot imagine how everyone was saved," said Superintendent Sutherland today. "It will be a terrible tangle to straighten out; why, that switchboard alone, will take weeks alone to replace. It may be three weeks before we will be able to give Regina a service."

It all came so suddenly that there are few able to describe what really happened. A few minutes before five o'clock it was one of the brightest of Sunday afternoons, in the twinkling of an eye the storm broke. First, all its fury fell upon the lake. There were some, the number is unknown, enjoying a quiet middle, or drifting lazily on the surface of the water, all unconscious of the impending tempest.

Quicker than it takes to read these lines, the wind swept down. With it was the torrent. Boats and canoes were upset and pleasure seekers were plunged to the bottom of the lake. How many there are will not be known until the lake is dry. It is expected that the death list in the water will be large. There were dozens on the lake.

Sunday School Out in Time.—The centre of the storm was the beautiful Central Park. This beauty spot—the pride of the City—surrounded by the city's best churches and finest public buildings is a horrible wreck. The two hundred thousand dollar Metropolitan Methodist Church is but a mass of twisted timbers, stone and smashed brick.

The Sunday School was only dismissed about half an hour earlier or the loss of life in that one building alone would have reached into the hundreds. No one could have got out alive. The great church is almost flat. It is still possible there may be bodies crushed beneath the tons of ruins but it will be several days before anyone knows for certain.

A Total Loss.—Some of the stones weighing well on to a ton were hurled from fifty to a hundred feet. On the opposite corner the Baptist Church has been unroofed and part of the wall buried in, and part of the building is left standing. The Presbyterian Church facing the Park, is also in ruins. The roof is gone and two sides are smashed in, while the tower is in ruins. The church is a total loss. Two men sought shelter on the north side of the church, one was killed, and the other will probably die.

Scene of Devastation.—Regina's choicest residential district presents a scene of devastation unparalleled in Canadian history, many beautiful homes of leading citizens are totally or partially wrecked. Thirtieth and Fourteenth Streets are absolutely swept clean. Large brick residences are levelled, and frame houses smashed to kindling wood. The storm played strange freaks. Some of the houses have the sides torn out, leaving the bedrooms untouched. Those that are standing are so twisted and torn that they will have to be demolished. In the choice residential district about four hundred houses are totally or partially wrecked.

The Land of Evangeline

F. D. Curruthers, a former Tennessean, but for fifteen years a New Yorker, has this to say about the Land of Evangeline:

"Longfellow, with a foreseeing eye laid the way to fame for a stretch of landscape as deserving of it as any place that could be found in the whole world. I say this in no spirit of exaggeration. I have travelled abroad, and the states of the union are as familiar to me as Long Island. I can most aptly describe Annapolis Valley by saying that the beauty spots of Pennsylvania's valley farm country, the prettiest part of rural France, and the choicest of Kentucky's blue grass section, all rolled into one, will be but a fair counterpart of the valley that lies between North and South Mountains. Here you have marine views, mountain scenery, prairie vistas and rural beauty unsurpassed. It is hard to realize that such a strip of country exists in what the people of 'The States' think of as the cold, bleak north. 'Peaceful Valley' would be a good synonym for 'The Land of Evangeline.'"

Narrow Escape of Excursion Steamer

Calais, Me., June 27.—Low tide prevented a heavy loss of life early today when the steamer Grand Manan, carrying 600 excursionists, struck a dredge in the St. Croix River. The second engineer of the dredge, James Carr, of East Boston, who was asleep in the captain's room, was crushed to death. No one else on either the dredge or the steamer was injured.

After sinking the dredge, the Grand Manan began leaking and the passengers were transferred to another steamer in small boats. There was no danger of sinking as the tide was low. A misunderstanding of signals is believed to have caused the accident. Captain John Ingessoll was in command of the steamer which is owned by the Grand Manan Steamship Company. The dredge was owned by the Bay State Dredging Company of Boston and had a crew of about a dozen men. Engineer Carr was about 47 years of age, and married and had two children. The Grand Manan took a party from St. Stephen, N. B., on a moonlight excursion. They went to St. Andrews, N. B., and were returning when the accident happened.

About the Stars

WORLD SEES SOME OF THEM AGAIN AFTER THEIR BIRTH.

(London Globe)

It is an amazing reflection that for every star which the naked eye can perceive on a clear night there are countless others, and one gets some idea of the immensity of the worlds beyond our own and the distances which separate us from them when he recalls that the light coming from certain stars visible to those on earth is the same ray which flashed forth from the star itself 500 years before, and which, though travelling at an unimaginable speed, has taken millennium to make itself visible to mortal eyes. Thus in the light of certain stars we live in the light of the fifteenth century.

There are few studies more entrancing, few more scientifically allied with the almost unbelievable marvels of a scientific age, than that of astrology. From the earliest ages the scientists of those days, and the astrologers, consulted the planets and the stars, occupying themselves chiefly in determining their influence, imaginary or the reverse, on human and terrestrial affairs. That stars in certain positions and combinations may exert an influence on human beings does not seem an impossible theory for the dynamic forces embodied in a star are not known, and either individually or collectively such a force or forces may exert an "electric" pressure on the earth which may really have some effect on such a highly sensitive organization as the human body. Be that as it may, the inhabitants of old Egypt were wont to perform strange things after consulting the heavenly lamps, and perhaps the desert sands, the pyramids, the ancient ruins, may yet yield up secrets of the stars which though then well known, even commonplace, to the magicians, may fill up twentieth century earth dwellers with an amazement, bordering on dismay.

In the seventeenth century a kind of quack astrology was much in vogue in England and King James I had great belief in it, while the unfortunate King Charles and the duke Cromwell are both said to have consulted astrologers. A celebrated "astrologer" of the day was Dr. Richard Napier, but as he privately avowed that he was able to perform cures by his alleged interviews with angels, rather than by any communications from the stellar bodies, his title is a misnomer.

The name of Galileo Galilei, the first observer of the heavens with a telescope, will never be forgotten. His first attempt—made with a pair of spectacle glasses in a tube—produced a magnification of three diameters but soon afterward the astronomer made one capable of thirty magnifications, and began observations on the moon, on Jupiter and on other planets, stars and satellites. The chief opposition Galileo encountered was from his fellow searchers, who clung to the Aristotelian views, one of them—Martin Horky—declaring that "I will never grant that Italian his new stars, though I should die for it!" The opposition continued, and as his spectacle-glasses failed to believe the truth contained in the heliocentric and other series, it is not wonderful that Rome and the cardinals somewhat persecuted "the starry Galileo."

Among the most interesting star phenomena to the lay mind at all events, are falling stars. During three following years—1831, 1832 and 1833—November 12 was marked by a wonderful display of these falling meteors. The first meteoric shower was observed off the coast of Spain, the second in the Red Sea, off Mocha, and the third and most impressive display of all extended between longitudes of 61 degrees the Atlantic and 100 degrees in Central Mexico and from the latitude of the North American lakes to the West Indies. At the Falls of Niagara the scene was magnificent.

A writer describing it says: "The two leading powers in nature, water and fire, engaged as it were in an emulative display of their grandeur. The awful roar of the cataract filled the minds of the spectators with an infinitely heightened sense of sublimity when its waters were lightened up by the glare of the meteoric torrent in the sky."

In many parts of the country the people were terror-stricken, imagining that the end of the world was come, while those whose education and vigor of mind prevented them from yielding to such terrors were, nevertheless, vividly reminded of the grand description in the Apocalypse: "The stars of heaven fell upon the earth, even as a fig tree casteth her untimely figs when she is shaken of a mighty wind."

On a clear night, when the moon's crescent can be plainly seen and the Little Bear is visible, it is an education "in big and little" to go forth and watch the heavens. The stars twinkle unceasingly and now and again a meteor falls bow like across the sky, sometimes moving almost slowly, so it seems. The Great Bear looms up near the horizon and the Milky Way lies directly overhead. With a companion who knows this con-

Annual A. C. R. A. Matches.

The annual matches of the Annapolis County Rifle Association for its various Cups, etc., were held on the Paradise Range on Saturday last. A large number of competitions were present, and the interest was very keen. The following are the various matches shot, with names of the winners and some of the highest scores in each.

Had Thousands of Bank of Montreal Notes

Detroit Police Arrested Two Men Supposed to be Implicated in Vancouver Bank Robbery.

Detroit, Mich., June 27.—When Martin Powell was arrested here as a suspicious person, because he went from store to store, buying small articles, and always paying with a ten-dollar bill of the Bank of Montreal, currency of that nature amounting to four thousand dollars, was found on his person, and in his room at the Griswold House, Frank C. Davis, a pal, also was taken into custody.

The operation of the men led the police to suspect that they were connected with same big bank robbery in Canada and the police of all large Canadian cities were notified. This impression was strengthened yesterday afternoon, when a circular, sent out by the South Vancouver Branch of the Canadian Bank, was handed to a detective department by a Pinkerton sleuth, giving description of the two men wanted for lifting $365,000 dollars from that institution, which tallied with the two men arrested here. It was learned that the men have been going from one city to another changing Bank of Montreal tens to American bills of small denominations. Evidence has been found to show that all the bills had been treated by a process, common among burglars, for transforming crisp new bills into tattered, dirty ones. It is believed that the new bills given by the men are false. They denied knowing each other, but were identified by parties who had met them often on the streets.

The Vancouver Bank was robbed in January, 1911, a notorious Australian crook, John McManara, alias Australian Mack, looted the Bank and made a clear get-away. Later he was captured but defied the Canadian authorities to convict him or recover the loot.

Since then large numbers of the bills stolen have been found in circulation, but the hiding place of the booty never was discovered. Detroit police believe that if Powell and Davis are not actually the robbers, they are the distributing agents for the principals.

The Northward Moving Tide

It is worthy of note that of 4,451 homestead entries made during April, 1912 were made by Americans, who were not Canadian returning home. Of the latter there were but sixteen.

The last issue of Canadian Finance gives a reason for the large number of American farmers who are coming to Canada, and for the vigorous effort which is now being made in the United States to stem the northward moving tide. It says:—

"The logic of the situation is with Canada. More liberal homestead regulations and systematic land settlement plans on the part of the various states will doubtless stimulate the movement back to the land. That they will measurably check the stream Canadian-wards in the immediate future seems unlikely. As mentioned a fortnight ago, the average value of farm lands in the United States at the beginning of the present century was $15.50 per acre. During the succeeding decade the price had more than doubled—to $32.49. This is the root reason for the northward trek of American farmers—which no governors' embargo, nor exposition boycotts of Canadian exhibits can check under existing economic conditions. The report of the United States Tariff Board, issued last year, gave the average price for Minnesota farm lands as $46 an acre, compared with $29 in Manitoba, $22 in Saskatchewan, and $20 in Alberta."

WENT TO CHURCH IN AEROPLANES.

London, June 27.—Dorothy C. Taylor, daughter of B. L. Taylor, of New York, was married to Claude Graham-White, the English aviator, at Widenord, a small town in Essex. The bridegroom, with a number of other aviators, arrived at the church doors in aeroplanes.

BANQUET AT THE ST. JAMES.

Two Prominent Citizens of Bridgetown, L. D. Shafner and E. G. Langley, on the Eve of Departure for British Columbia, are Banqueted by a Large Number of Bridgetown's Citizens.

Last evening (Tuesday) the many friends of Mr. L. D. Shafner and Mr. E. G. Langley assembled together from Bridgetown, Amherst, Annapolis, Bear River and other points at the St. James' Hotel to bid farewell to these gentlemen on their departure to the far West.

The guests at the banquet included Mr. H. Ruggles (Toastmaster), who had on his right and left, Mr. Shafner and Mr. Langley, and Messrs. A. Chute, A. C. Charlton, L. Piggott, A. Young, M. Graves, J. Randolph, T. Ruggles, S. Mitchell, Rev. B. Porter, J. S. Moses, A. McKenzie, B. Neily, C. Silver, Curtis Longmire, A. J. McLean, A. Woodrow, W. Lockett, Dr. DeBlois, Dr. Burns, Dr. Armstrong, Dr. Anderson, H. Hicks, E. Hicks, J. Hicks, A. Bishop, F. Cresskill, J. I. Foster, E. Saunders, S. Pratt, J. W. Salter, A. Williams, A. Anderson, C. Piggott, Bert Messenger, G. Hartt, J. H. Hicks, F. Beckwith, O. S. Miller, C. Chipman, F. Fowler, H. Egan, S. Riordan, L. Gesner, G. Spurr, F. Micklewright, E. MacCormack, F. Milner, T. Buckler, G. E. Corbett, W. Miller, A. Edwards, R. Gesner, F. Harris, and many others.

Mr. N. Neiley, as host, displayed his usual skill as an accomplished caterer, to the entire satisfaction of those present. With Mr. H. Ruggles as toastmaster, his amusing sallies evoked considerable mirth, and added to the enjoyment of the evening. The first toast, "The King," was duly honored by the company upstanding.

"Our Honored Guests, Messrs. Shafner and Langley," was the next toast, and with it were coupled the names of Messrs. F. Milner and O. S. Miller to respond for these gentlemen. Mr. F. Milner, expressed astonishment at the honor which had thus been allotted to him, being unprepared for the same, and said that it was quite a surprise. He remembered his own departure from Bridgetown, and sympathized with Mr. Shafner. Mr. Milner drew a very vivid word-picture of the land deals in the West, and prophesied a brilliant future for Mr. Shafner as a millionaire in ten years, and hoped that after he had acquired wealth he would return and settle down amongst his old friends in the East.

Mr. O. S. Miller, responding for Mr. Langley, also expressed surprise at thus being called upon. He said he had been a guest at Mr. Langley's home for a long time, and it was during the time he was there that Mr. Langley's abilities appealed to him. Our very best people were leaving, and were going to help build up some other portion of the Dominion. The speaker expressed great regret at the departure of these gentlemen, and hoped with Mr. Milner that they would come back and spend their millions here.

"Canada" was responded to by Mr. George Corbett in a very patriotic speech. He had fought for federation and was proud of it. After dealing with each province separately from West to East, Mr. Corbett in resonant tones declared that Nova Scotia was good enough for him, and that Nova Scotia was on the threshold of becoming a very prosperous province.

The Rev. Mr. Porter, replying for "The Clergy," said that in losing Mr. Shafner, for which they were all sorry, they were also losing a musical friend, and one they were glad to lose. With Mr. Shafner's departure would also disappear the donkey (laughter), and one might now reasonably hope for some balmy sleep in the near future (renewed laughter).

"Our Banking Institutions" was briefly responded to by Mr. Woodrow and Mr. A. J. McLean. "The Corporation of Bridgetown" brought forth responses from Councilors MacKenzie, Pratt and Capt. Salter.

Mr. H. Ruggles paid a very high tribute to Mr. Shafner's civic abilities, he having occupied the chair as mayor for three years, and had also been a town assessor for many years. He was also fully conversant with the subject.

Bee Keeping

A Guide to Apiculture.
 By direction of the Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, a timely bulletin on bee-keeping has been issued by the Federal Department of Agriculture. According to a statement of the author, Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist, this work has been prepared to meet a very persistent demand, for information by persons who wish to learn how to begin and to continue the industry of apiculture. It was the further object of the author to increase the number of bee-keepers in Canada by indicating the advantages of bee-keeping. It is pointed out that bee-keeping returns the direct profit of a honey crop and the indirect one of improvement to yields of clover seed and fruit. It is observed that a bullock after being fed and cared for during an entire winter will not realize much more than the produce of a colony of bees in a single season. Beginners are recommended to start on a small scale with one or two hives increasing the number annually as experience is gained. This treatise of forty-five pages, which is helpfully illustrated, covers in plain language, the whole field of apiculture, honey and wax, diseases, legislation of the various provinces against bee diseases, etc. It is designated "The Honey Bee," Bulletin No. 2, Division of Entomology and No. 69, Experimental Farms. Copies may be had free by applying to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

THE CRY OF THE DREAMER.

I am tired of planning and toiling
 In the crowded hives of men;
 Heart weary of building and spoiling
 And spoiling and building again.
 And I long for the dear old river
 Where I dreamed my youth away;
 For a dreamer lives forever,
 And a toiler dies in a day.

I am sick of the showy scolding
 Of the life that is half a lie;
 Of the faces lined with scheming
 In the throng that hurries by.
 For the sleepless thoughts of endeavor
 I would go where the children play;
 For a dreamer lives forever,
 And the toiler dies in a day.

I can feel no pride, but pity
 For the burdens the rich endure;
 There is nothing sweet in the city
 But the patient lives of the poor.
 Oh! the little hands too skillful
 And the child mind choked with weeds,
 The daughter's heart grown willful,
 And the father's heart that bleeds!

No, not from the street's rude bustle,
 From the trophies of mart and stage,
 I would fly to the wood's low rustle
 And the meadow's kindly page.
 Let me dream as of old by the river,
 And be loved for the dream away,
 For a dreamer lives forever,
 And the toiler dies in a day.

WESTERN HARVEST FIFTY PER CENT. GREATER.

Edmonton, Alberta, June 21—Alberta is threatened with a grain blockade more serious than that of the previous year, is the belief of Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of Municipalities. Mr. Stewart declared that he had found the crops almost uniformly excellent throughout the Province. The growth is three weeks in advance of last year at a similar period, and the present prospects are that the harvest will be fifty per cent. greater.

Aim in Life.

The British Insurance Act is rapidly getting to work, and 5,000,000 persons have already applied for its benefits. The total to be brought under the Act is 14,000,000, each of whom will be insured against sickness and disability. The measure goes into operation on July 15th, which promises to be a red-letter day in the history of social reform.

MARY AND JIM

When Mary came up to the city to flat-hunt with Jim a month before their marriage and found that he would not even look at apartments in the fashionable localities where she had been in the habit of visiting—she as the cost of living was climbing, nothing over $35 a month could be considered—she put her foot down firmly on the housekeeping question. Jim lived in a boarding-house that was 'known' in a neighborhood that was 'right,' and she figured that it would be much better to live there for a time, even if they had only two small rooms, than absolutely to ostracize themselves by going into an unrefined and, to Mary's friends, un-known neighborhood. In all her twenty-three years she had breathed nothing except a fashionable atmosphere, and she did not propose to launch her matrimonial ark in alien waters, nor to have the girls from home up in the city shopping, think that her enthusiastic description of Jim's circumstances had been wide of the truth.

She had really been conscientious in all she had said. On all sides she had heard of Jim's splendid prospects. Now his talk of "going slow" until business was firmly established was all nonsense. Of course, she realized that for a time they could not keep up the pace with the majority of their friends, but they could at least be in the running.

The first few months of life in the boarding house were delightful. Jim's friends seemed to visit with each other with little attentions to the bride. It was a constant round of luncheons at fashionable hotels, theatre parties, club afternoons. Mary really began to feel that conditions were better than if they had taken the elaborate apartment she had planned. Then the change came.

The invitations were not extended so frequently. She was not whirled here and there, one day in Mrs. Tompkins' electric, the next in Mrs. Sawyer's limousine. It suddenly dawned on her that she was expected to reciprocate.

"Well, go ahead," Jim had said when she spoke to him. "Make a clean sweep of it; they refuse further invitations. It's all on too big a scale for us just yet."

That was the man of it, she thought bitterly. Never stopping to consider what it meant to stay at home and view from the window beautifully-gowned women tripping down the steps to their waiting cars, sit through the afternoon dreading the dinner hour, when the gorgeous function would be the principal topic; to hear the remark that was becoming so monotonous, with its accompanying smile: "It's too bad, Mrs. Jim, you didn't accept," all the time knowing that there was no legitimate reason why she should not entertain and be entertained, why she should not have her own electric pull up to the curb. Major Brownlee was constantly telling her that Jim's business was booming, and he knew, because he was really like a father to Jim. Of course, he usually spoiled it by adding: "You and he have sensible ideas, and you want to keep it; no splurging, yet awhile."

His advice she tucked away as being of no consequence, but the fact that business was booming she constantly kept to the front. Nevertheless, Jim was obdurate. He did not object to a quiet little theatre party but he refused absolutely to sanction the costly entertaining Mary claimed was necessary to "hold her own."

"Jim," she said to him one night, "I don't know that I would not just as soon go back to Mertonville to mother as live this way any longer."

He glanced at her for a moment over his magazine; then continued his reading.

"You needn't look at me that way!" the petulant voice took on an angry tone. "It's the same performance here every evening. While others are going to something that counts, here you and I sit, bored, stupid—"

"I heard Mrs. Dudley ask you to go down and have a game of bridge."

"I hate bridge!"

"Yes," calmly. "How about music? Mrs. Peyton is singing. She's got a great voice, too, and—"

"I don't care if Calve is singing!" she cried, passionately. "I want to get out. I want to see things, do things, as I did before I was married. I don't care whether you like it or not—I would rather be home! I had a better time—"

His gesture as he threw the magazine on the table interrupted her. His eyes flashed as he said: "Do you know I'm getting uncommonly tired of hearing that? If you're not willing to take things as they are for a year or two—I've got some hard digging ahead of me—if you're unhappy here with me, perhaps—his eyes narrowed as he paused—"you'd better go back to mother."

The announcement of Mrs. Jim's contemplated "visit" home, coming on top of the slight, though apparent, coolness that had come between the young couple, was received with quite an exaggerated amount of surprise. Mary was uncomfortably conscious that, somehow, Jim's friends saw through her and did not altogether approve. Once she was told by a woman old enough to be her mother, "Don't stay away too long, little girl. Now's the time when he's at the struggling stage, that your husband needs you near him." Then, with a little pat on the shoulder, she had added: "Make a home for him, my dear, no matter on how small a scale. Time enough for all those frills when he can afford it." Major Brownlee, too, their best friend, Mary had come to consider him, said nothing, but looked reproachful. That was harder to bear than anything.

It was a few days before she was to go that the Major proposed the theatre. "Just sort of a little good-bye, you know," he had said, smiling. It was the first time he had referred to her departure. He brought it up again when they were waiting in his box for the rise of the curtain.

"Going to be pretty lonesome in a few days, eh, Jim?"

Jim had muttered something inaudibly and the cold, unapproachable look that had become habitual, deepened.

"I know how you feel," the Major went on. "Had a dose of it once myself—oh, years ago," as they looked at him inquiringly—"but mine was freer; yours—just a few weeks."

In his surprise Mary did not notice the significant pause. "But you were never married, Major?" she ventured.

"No. Yes, I was. We had about one year of happiness." A faraway look came into his eyes. "We haven't cease enough to keep it. We allowed dissatisfaction to creep in; then, worse. We drifted apart until she was living her life, I mine. The inevitable happened; and afterward—she's another man's wife now." He brought his glance to bear on the eager faces before him. "Youngsters," he said, earnestly, "it was a hard pill to swallow then. Sometimes it hurts now."

The curtain went up, and he turned to the front of the box.

The musical comedy presented was in its zenith and Mary had thought she would enjoy it, if anything could give her pleasure just then, but she sat and stared at the stage and saw nothing. She was thinking of Major Brownlee. What if she should have his experience? If Jim should forget her and some time she should meet Jim's wife. Jim's wife! The hideous thought brought the crimson in a rush to her face. A choked-back sob seemed to strangle her. She felt the smart of tears in her eyes. Bravely she tried to focus her mind on the stage. Then a name, caught her. Involuntarily she turned to Jim as the words "And we'll all be longing for you, Mary," came to her. But he was looking at the stage, and his face was cold, non-committal. She did not believe he felt anything. He would not "long" for her and soon—

She gave up at last and sat far back in the box. Tears were a relief, and they came thick and fast. She wanted the song to cease. Don't forget to come back home," to her was such a mockery. No one would want her. She could stay in Mertonville, and—

Suddenly Jim looked around. A look of wonder leaped into his eyes. Then he smiled a queer smile, a knowing one. His chair was pushed back and his hand found Mary's by her side.

"What is it, little girl?" he whispered.

"Jim," she said, "I—I don't want to go home. Let's find that flat."

A subdued laugh broke from him. "Let's!" was all he said.

THE HOPE OF THE DAY IS IN THE YOUNG MAN.

"Visions of Better Things" Will Cure Materialism—Address by Prof. Bowles.

"The only real cure for the materialism of our day is for the young men to see visions of better things," said Rev. Prof. R. P. Bowles, of Victoria College, preacher of the sermon at the Metropolitan church yesterday morning, when fourteen young men, received into full connection with the Toronto Methodist Conference on Friday evening, were ordained to the ministry. Prof. Bowles' theme was "Visions and Dreams," based on Acts II, 17.

"Every sermon," said he, "should be a new discovery for the preacher; he should sympathize with the poet who wrote, 'Then felt I like a watcher of the skies, when a new planet swims into his ken.' The preacher should see the vision of the truth incarnate. This, I think, the characteristic of our day—practical, visualized truth, the vision of the Kingdom of God, not in the heavens, but upon the earth."

GOSPEL SHOULD BE INTERESTING.

"The last thing that should be uninteresting is the proclamation of the Gospel of the Son of God, for I take it that the hallmark of a sermon is the touch of inspiration, and it is not in the proclamation of the Word, it is doubtful if the word is really proclaimed to men.

"The prophet is a seer, not a visionary. I know the pulpit is accused of being impractical; that it is said that the preacher is living in another world, that he does not understand man, that he is blissfully oblivious of the facts of everyday life. In the pulpit and other places are men taken up with phantoms and chimeras; they plan things they cannot induce others to work out. But the seer is a man gifted to see what others do not see, a man of ideals. Preaching cannot be too practical, but it may become materialistic, and the preacher may no longer be a prophet. He should be a seer, but not peering down into the abysses of thought so much as looking forward and up to God."

"If you see the vision," concluded the preacher, addressing the young men to be ordained, "others will; if you do not, others will, if not in the church somewhere else, for God will not waste His splendor upon unresponsive eyes, though they be in the church and call themselves sons of Abraham. If you see the vision, hope will never die in your heart, and there will be a great longing in your heart, crying out that the evils that are here must be done away; you will follow the gleam—you cannot stray."

Since the first actual records were taken in New York City in the middle '60s, the rate of mortality has been reduced from thirty-five deaths in each thousand inhabitants to about fifteen or sixteen. This reduction has resulted from the control of infectious diseases. The saving thus made relates only to the period of life under fifty years. There is no saving knowledge regarding the organic diseases of advancing years, which afflict especially those who have been active in affairs and who are taxed with large responsibilities.—Christian Herald.

"Old Limpy"

He was a young man, and he had only recently been promoted to the position of conductor; so for both reasons he made the mistake of thinking that a pert, authoritative manner increased his importance.

One day as the train was ready to pull out of the station, and he stood on the platform with hand on the bell rope ready to give the signal to start, he noticed a middle-aged plainly dressed, lame man, standing quietly outside and evidently waiting to take the train.

"Get aboard, old limpy," his accent on the pert and condescending, "get aboard old limpy, or you'll be you'll be left."

As he gave the signal the old gentleman quietly stepped aboard and walking into the car took a seat by himself. A little later, when the conductor in taking up the tickets came to him, with the brusque demand, "Fare," he answered:

"I do not pay fare on this road."
 "Then I will put you off at the next station," was the snappy reply. And without giving the old man chance for an explanation he passed on a little more swelled up with importance than before.

A few seats farther on a passenger who had noticed the incident, as he handed out his ticket, asked:

"Did you know that old gentleman?"

"No, I did not," with a haughty strut.

"I thought not. Well, he is president of this road."

The young conductor flushed and bit his lips. At once he realized what his mistake meant to him. But it was too late to undo it. In a moment he had undone all the hard and faithful work that had gone before, and as all his hopes and ambitions crashed down around him he grew almost sick. There was, he felt, but one thing for him to do. He went on and finished the task of taking up the tickets. When that was done he walked back to the seat that held "old limpy" and said simply:

"Sir, I resign my position as conductor."

The bluster was gone from his manner, the insolence from his tone. The old gentleman looked at him keenly. He was accustomed to reading and judging men, and he saw the real mettle in the lad.

"Sit down here, young man," he said, kindly, making place for him. "I do not wish to harm you; but you must understand that we run this road for profit, and to accommodate the public; and we make it an invariable rule to treat every person with perfect civility, whatever clothes he wears, or whatever infirmity he suffers. This rule is imperative upon every one of our employees. I shall not remove you for what you have done, but it must not be repeated."

"Sir," the young conductor's voice was not quite steady. "It never shall be. I have had my lesson."

This is a true incident. The "old limpy" was the Hon. Erastus Corning of New York, a member of Congress, and at that time one of the leading railroad capitalists of the country.

As for the conductor he had learned the lesson so many boys lack, that to treat the poorest-dressed stranger rudely is not only ungentlemanly, but unsafe.—The Boys' World.

ONE ON THE LAWYER.

"You say," asked the cross-examining lawyer, "that you can swear to having seen this man drive a horse past your farm on the day in question?"

"I can," replied the witness, wearily, for he had already answered the question a dozen times.

"What time was this?"

"I told you it was about the middle of the forenoon."

"But I don't want any 'abouts' or any 'middles.' I want you to tell me exactly the time."

"Why," said the farmer, "I don't always carry a gold watch with me when I'm digging potatoes."

"But you have a clock in the house haven't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, what time was it by that?"

"Well, by that clock it was just nineteen minutes past ten."

"You were in the field all the morning?" went on the lawyer, smiling suggestively.

"I was."

"How far from the house is this field?"

"About half a mile."

"You swear, do you, that by the clock in your house it was exactly nineteen minutes past ten?"

"I do."

The lawyer paused and looked triumphantly at the jury. At last he had entrapped the witness into a statement that would greatly weaken his evidence.

"I think that will do," he said, with a wave of his hand, "I have quite finished with you."

The farmer leisurely picked up his hat and started to leave the witness box.

"I ought, perhaps, to say," he added, "that too much reliance should not be placed on that clock, as it got out of gear about six months ago and it has been nineteen minutes past ten ever since."

BLOTTED OUT.

Evening parties are usually very jolly functions, but there was one held in the suburbs recently that bade fair to end disastrously.

"Can you tell me," remarked a fair lady of her partner at the supper table, "who that exceedingly ugly man is? I mean the one sitting opposite you?"

The gentleman smiled sardonically.

"Oh, he's my brother," came the reply.

The lady went scarlet, and her countenance was most painful.

"Oh, I'm sorry," she stammered, apologizing profusely. "You see I did not notice the resemblance between you."

A moment later she turned to her neighbor on her left, who happened to be a woman.

"Do you see that handsome fellow over there, twisting his mustache?" she asked. "He's been watching me, and making eyes at me all the evening. Who is he?"

The other woman turned scornfully and angrily upon her.

"Oh, he's only my husband!" came the biting reply.

HIS FRIDAY CONSCIENCE

A hungry Irishman went into a restaurant on Friday, and said to the waiter—

"Have yez any whale?"

"No."

"Have yez any shark?"

"No."

"Have yez any swordfish?"

"No."

"Have yez any jellyfish?"

"No."

"All right," said the Irishman. "Then bring me ham and eggs and a breakfast smothered wid onions. The Lord knows I asked for fish."

IT LOOKED LIKE IT.

"Oh, mother," sobbed the young wife. "I've found that John doesn't trust me."

"Why, child, what has he done?"

"Well, you know, I cooked my first dinner for him today, and he invited a friend to dine with him."

The sobbings broke out afresh, "And, oh, mother, the man he invited was a doctor."

Raising Red Raspberries

There is perhaps no fruit so poorly succeeded with in general as the red raspberry, yet when properly cultivated it yields well and is profitable to grow, says The American Cultivator. Especially is this so with such varieties as the Marlboro', London and Outhbert. These are all fine, firm appearing berries, capable of being shipped to market in good condition, and they are also nice for canning. The Outhbert, however, excels in flavor and this is therefore the kind advisable to grow.

For hill culture, set this raspberry in rows six feet apart and the plants six feet apart in the row, or one foot apart if to be trained in a narrow, continuous row, and if the soil is at all suitable there is no reason, with proper cultivation, why success cannot be attained. The first season potatoes or beans can be grown among them, during which the cultivator should be run shallow among them, keeping the land level and entirely free from weeds. If when about one foot high the ends of the canes are pinched off, there will be a low-spreading patch of them almost covering the ground by the first of October. In order to facilitate cultivation and prevent bearing, which would overburden and weaken the vitality of the patch before it got firmly established, these the next spring should be pruned off about one-third, and all young suckers or plants that come up around the bearing canes and between the rows destroyed as they appear from time to time through the summer by shallow cultivation with a wide-toothed cultivator.

NIIPPING BACK.

This nipping back is of the most vital importance. On it hinges the success or failure of producing red raspberries. Properly done, it tends to throw the nourishment derived from the soil into the plant instead of the cane. Particularly is this so if the plants when it is done are in a growing condition. All that is necessary is just to pinch the ends of the cane off when they are in full growth. Growth is thereby checked, causing fruit buds to form and the plants to branch like bushes. This form of growth is also desirable, because when in full fruit the canes have a heavy load to bear, and unless they are low and sticky it is going to be too much for them. A red raspberry plant nipped back bears its fruit just below where the nipping is done and on the short branches that sprout out from the main stem. But if allowed to run wild it soon exhausts itself in producing cane, and only bears a few berries on the end of the cane. Hence it will not do to neglect a red raspberry patch in this respect in the least.

The third year the plants in hill culture should be staked early in the spring, from which time it is not necessary to keep quite so low and stocky. Good, heavy stakes should be used, driven in the centre or very close to the hills, and all the canes tied strongly and securely to each stake, so that they won't be moved about by the wind. Or, if in rows, wires can be strung to stakes, driven at regular intervals, for the canes to rest against. In either case all extra growth wants to be removed next to the canes, and the suckers kept out between the hills and rows this and all succeeding years, just the same as if they were weeds; connected with which there must be no neglect in nipping back and thinning out the old and new canes each year. If the soil is rich and in good condition, there is no reason, then, why big yields and excellent berries cannot be obtained.

BEST KIND OF MANURE.

It will not do, however, to get the soil too rich in nitrogen. Stable manure may be used on the corn crop preceding the raspberries, if that was the thing grown, but after the plants are set no more stable manure should ever be applied, unless after the patch has been in fruit several years it showed lack of vitality, and then it would be necessary to use only a shovelful of well-rotted manure about each hill, put on in the fall or spring when the plants were dormant.

Commercial fertilizers rather should be applied, and a high-grade one, consisting of it, is better than one of low grade, using more of it. Red raspberries as a rule, need lots of phosphoric acid and potash; hence a fertilizer containing about two per cent. nitrogen and ten per cent. each of potash and phosphoric acid, or with the ingredients in these proportions, should be adequate. Treated in this way, a red raspberry patch becomes better adapted to withstand the winters, let alone yielding well.

BRITISH FARMER WILL DO BETTER IN THE EAST THAN THE WEST.

(Dartmouth Patriot)

Immigration must be directed to three maritime provinces, Quebec and Ontario to replace the drain made upon them. British farmers will do better in the east than in the west. They will bring highly scientific methods of intensive culture. With the addition of from twenty to fifty thousand people each year from Europe, of the right type, the east will soon be just as prosperous as the west. The natural resources of the east fully equal the west. That is acknowledged.

This is the work our statesmen should attempt and carry through. Men of vision are needed; men who can see into the future and provide against it.

The Maritime provinces deserve well of Canada. They have proved their value. Not all the favors should go west. Every thing up.

The Patriot hopes to see great steamship lines coming to this port the year around and the great railways coming here to meet the steamships. This paper hopes to see the better class of immigrants brought here in large numbers and it hopes also to see a great increase in manufacturing, although it will be infinitely better if only one thing can be done to develop our natural resources when the manufacturing end will take care of itself. To fill up the province with skilled farmers, stock raisers and fruit growers is the thing that will make this country prosper as nothing else can.

POULTRY REQUIRE SHADE.

Around the average farmer's buildings, where the poultry have free run, it is usually quite easy for the chickens to secure protection from the hot midsummer sun by seeking the north sides during the noonday hours. In cases, however, where the chickens are put out into fenced poultry runs, it may be necessary to provide shade of some sort. Trees will do very well, but if these are not present a little sunshade can easily be fixed up with boards. Some people arrange these runs in conjunction with the regular poultry houses. This may be all right, so far as shade is concerned, and again it may be all wrong. It depends largely upon how clean the poultry house is maintained. Did you ever try to spend an hour in a really dirty poultry house during the middle of a very hot day? If you ever did, you would realize how stifling and unwholesome such a place, with its piles of rapidly decomposing manure, giving off great quantities of gases, really can be. Much better have the shade out of doors, where the fresh air circulates freely.

STRENGTHEN YOUR WEAK SPOTS.

With caution, courage, self-respect, industry and will as allies who or what can withstand you?

"But," you cry, "I am physically inferior." Then seek inspiration from the examples set by blind Milton and puny Alexander Stephens, and deaf, dumb, sightless Helen Keller.

"But," you plead, "I am not educated."

Neither were Lincoln and Johnson, who tutored themselves into the White House, nor was Franklin, the Chandler's son, nor was Edison, the train butcher.

"But," you whine, "I lack capital." The good workman demands but tools, and you are equipped. Your mind and your hands are unpaired. Laboring and thinking created all the capital on earth.

Figure it any way you like—you can't dodge this—you are responsible for your failures.

Search for the weak spots in your make-up and you will see fewer flaws in the scheme of creation.

Victim of Brutal Assault is Dead

H. K. Lea Killed at Port Williams by Three Graves Brothers, Passed Away at Infirmary.

The deceased is said to have been the victim of tricks by certain parties in the vicinity of his farm and the tragedy was the culmination of these annoyances. He was about 45 years of age, and came to Canada about ten years ago. Later he purchased the farm at Port Williams on which he resided. After settling in Nova Scotia he went to England and married, bringing his wife here with him, who is now a widow with two young children. He was the son of a very wealthy man, his father owning tea plantations, and tea imported from the plantations by Mr. Lea has been handled in Halifax and other parts of Nova Scotia.

Holding an Enquiry.—Mr. Lea was a frequent visitor to Halifax and was held in high regard by all who knew him. Rev. Mr. Nash, a brother of Mrs. Lea, only arrived in the city a few days ago, planning to spend the summer at Port Williams, but instead left for Port Williams with his sister yesterday under very distressing circumstances.

The body of Mr. Lea has been taken charge of by Snow & Co. who have instructions to prepare it for shipment to England, where it will be sent the end of the week. Medical Examiner Finn is making an inquiry into the circumstances connected with the affair.

KENTVILLE, June 25—Charged with assault with intent to do bodily harm to the person of Henry K. Lea, who died in Halifax this morning, the three Graves brothers are confined to the jail here awaiting their preliminary examination, which takes place on Tuesday next.

Never has public feeling in Kings County been so aroused as by the assault made upon Mr. Lea by the prisoners on Sunday and which has resulted in his tragic death. On Sunday afternoon the three men, it is alleged, then under the influence of liquor, called at the home of Mr. Lea, at Starr's Point, several miles from Port Williams and demanded to see one of the domestics, a young English girl but recently arrived in Nova Scotia. The girl was not at home, and when apprised of this fact the unwelcome visitors adopted first abusive and then aggressive tactics. When the men refused to leave the house Mr. Lea threatened to shoot, and at the sight of the gun produced by Mr. Lea one of the men rushed toward him. In self defense Mr. Lea used his gun as a club, striking his assailant a glancing blow upon the head, causing the gun to break at the stock and the charge of shot to enter Mr. Lea's body near the femoral artery, in the upper part of the thigh.

Attacked Victim.—Seeing the helpless condition of their victim, it is alleged that the three men rushed upon him and assaulted the wounded man in a most brutal manner. Not content with this they then dragged Mr. Lea out on the lawn and continued to beat and kick him until he was insensible and almost dead. Attracted by the shot and the cries for help raised by Mrs. Lea and her maid, who were alone, a near neighbor, Mr. Starr, rushed to the Lea home and was able to drive away the Graves long enough for him to carry the unconscious victim of the assault into the house. WEDNESDAY, JULY 3, 1912.

The British Government has conceived a plan to girdle the world, through the British possessions, with the wireless. An agreement with the Marconi Company provides that the British Government supply the Marconi Company with $3,000,000 dollars, with which to build five great wireless stations, Australia and Canada to furnish their own, the seven to form a chain which will girdle the world.

A wireless circle will then be formed around the globe. The points will be in England, Australia, India, Port Said, Canada, and probably South Africa and Hong Kong. When completed, which is expected to be within a year, England will have a circuit of communication around the earth independent of cables.

Each station is to be a fortress, capable of defence in time of war, and will be, though built by the Marconi Company, the property of Great Britain.

The Secret Service

The Secret Service, as people are aware, is one of the most important departments of the government. To serve the country in that capacity one must be possessed of unlimited nerve and aptitude. The remuneration is not commensurate with the risk entailed, as recent reports will go to prove. Within the last few weeks, both in England and Germany, spies of the respective countries have been sentenced to terms of imprisonment, varying from five to twenty years; yet, notwithstanding, there are always a number of members of both sexes ready to undertake the dangerous mission of investigating an enemy's resources. To do this, it sometimes becomes necessary for the spy to live in the country a number of years, and engage in some business, thus becoming acquainted with the best class of people, through whom he is subsequently enabled to obtain the information he requires. The means are not exactly honorable, but in such a case "it is a means to an end."

In the military play "A Soldier of the King," which the Colonial Stock Company are presenting in the Primrose Theatre on July 10th, is shown very forcibly how a German spy succeeds in obtaining for his Government details of new fortifications; and will prove of the greatest interest to those who have any patriotic sentiment whatever.

This is one of the most stirring military plays ever offered, and has been adapted for the Colonial Stock Company by Mr. Oliver, from the original English version. All lovers of good wholesome drama should turn out to see the Colonials offer this excellent production on July tenth.

TOUR ON JULY 23rd.
Montreal, June 27—It is semi-officially announced today that the Duke of Connaught and Royal Party will leave Quebec on July 23rd en route to the Maritime Provinces, where the principal cities and points of interest will be visited. The itinerary of the trip has not yet been arranged.

Parkers Cove

Parkers Cove, July 1st.—Sch. Lieut. Capt. W. H. Anderson, arrived from St. John the 20th, with a general cargo of merchandise.

Sch. Ethel May, Capt. R. E. Hudson, sailed for Delap's Cove the 21st. Mr. Milton Rice came home on the 21st. He has been on a lengthy voyage down South. We are always glad to welcome our boys home.

Quite a number of our people attended the funeral at Hillsburn of Mrs. Henry Longmire, who died at her home on June 25th, at the age of seventy-two years. We sympathize with the bereaved ones. She was a kind loving wife and mother and will be greatly missed by many in our community. Rev. Mr. Cornwall, (Baptist) officiated at the house and grave to a large congregation.

Outram

Outram, June 29—Mrs. George Andrews has returned home, after spending the winter in Wellesley, Mass.

A very enjoyable entertainment was given on Wednesday evening, June 26th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Slocumb, by their daughter, Alberta, who is attending Acadia Seminary, and Mr. Harry Bray of Bawell, England. Miss Slocumb gave a number of choice readings and piano solos, while Mr. Bray gave a choice selection of vocal solos, which were much appreciated by all. Much praise is due Miss Slocumb and Mr. Bray for the enjoyment of the evening, and we trust that before long we shall have the pleasure of listening to them again. Mr. Bray has only been living here a short time, but he has won many friends here.

Vacation has come again. Much credit is due our teacher, Miss Tompkins for the interest she has taken in the school.

Apple Crop Threatened by Black Spot

(Special to Monitor-Sentinel)

Owing to the Black Spot making its appearance upon the apple crop this past few days, we consider it is our duty to throw out a warning to the Fruit Growers who have been using our spray.

If good results are not obtained, even through carelessness on the part of the user, Lime-Sulphur will get the blame. Hence our reason coupled with our interest in fruit growing for writing this article.

Upon close observation from different parts of the fruit-growing countries of Nova Scotia, we feel safe in predicting that a large percentage of this year's apple crop will be worse than valueless, that is, if the ravages of the Spot continues as it has during the past week.

In some sections of the country we find orchards where the fruit growers think they have been spraying, with very little spray upon the leaves. These are the orchards where as one man said only yesterday, "Why half of my Gravensteins are already spotted."

Again, we could name a few orchards where about every leaf upon the trees bear evidence of thorough spraying. We hope later on, with the owner's permission, to publish the names of these fruit growers, for without doubt these orchards will be a monument to show up surrounding carelessness or indifference. Right here we want to say to the man who is making a forty-gallon barrel of spray go over a dozen large apple trees in full foliage, they must not blame Lime-Sulphur if they do not attain good results.

Prof. Caesar, of Guelph College, Ontario, says it takes from six to ten gallons to thoroughly spray a large tree at one spraying.

How many orchardists in the Valley have applied half of it? Yet the same Fruit Growers say, "Why I sprayed thoroughly" and in the end will only encourage some "doubting Thomas."

Our advice to those who have already made two or three sprayings is, to continue, and those who have not if there are any such, to immediately get busy and cover the surface of their apples and leaves to prevent the clean ones from Spot and its spread over the ones already infested. According to fruit crop reports recently at hand, apples will be worth something this year, and every barrel of otherwise No. 1 apples packed as No. 3 will cost the owner from $2.00 to $3.00 per barrel.

In conclusion we wish to say that spotted apples this year will have to go either into the No. 3 barrel or the cider mill. The good work the Co-operative Companies are doing will not allow trash to ruin the reputation of honest packing.

Fruit growing is getting down to a science, and those who do not believe in efficient and thorough spraying had better court some other livelihood.

SALVIA

The Daintily Perfumed Hair Tonic

Creates a Magnificent Head of Fluffy, Luxuriant Hair—Men and Women of Culture use Salvia, the Latest Paris Hair Dressing and Tonic—It will Make Your Hair Grow or Your Money Back.

SALVIA—the Pridof Paris Hairdressing and Tonic—at once goes to the roots of the Hair and turns harsh characterless hair into beautiful wavy hair, full of character and life—hair that changes the whole appearance.

SALVIA destroys the dandruff and will positively make hair grow. SALVIA is not a sticky sulphur preparation, but a pleasant nonsticky and daintily perfumed. Ladies of taste and refinement wouldn't think of using any other. All actresses in every country now use SALVIA continually.

We claim and absolutely guarantee that SALVIA will create new growth of hair. If your hair is getting thin, commence using SALVIA at once. It will soon stop your hair from falling out and make the hair grow. SALVIA is compounded by expert chemists, who have made the hair and its diseases a life-long study.

If your druggist doesn't happen to have SALVIA in stock, insist on his getting it for you; don't allow him to sell you "something just as good," because there isn't anything "just as good" as SALVIA. All wholesale druggists in Canada sell SALVIA; and your druggist, if he is up to date keeps it. Refuse substitutes.

The summer time-table of the D.A.R. went into effect last week, including "Bluenose," express and accommodation trains daily, and the Owl train west on Saturday night and east on Monday morning.

The schools closed for the summer holidays on Friday last. Three of the teachers, Miss Phinney, Miss Wheelock and Miss Graves have resigned, and their places will be filled by Miss Florence Cochrane, Miss Constance Lloyd and Miss Edith Chute.

The marriage of Mr. Timothy B. Chipman to Miss Ethel Hayward of London took place in that city on June 13th. The bride and groom are expected to arrive the last of this week to take up their residence in Bridgetown on the property recently purchased by Mr. Chipman from Mr. Langley.

The trip to the Maritime Provinces of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught is not to be postponed as was reported. The program does not include a visit to Bridgetown, but the Middleton Outlook reports that the Royal party are to visit that town on August 17th from 9.30 to 11 o'clock a.m.

The Royal Bank of Canada, for its Valley branches, has very generously donated a special prize of $50 towards the prize list of the Horticultural Exhibition. A large number of special prizes have been secured by the energetic Secretary-manager, R. J. Messenger, which will be of much interest to orchardists.

The Middleton Outlook says:—The contract for the erection of the new Crowe-Elliott Co. block has been awarded to J. F. Bent. The building will be 60 x 45 feet, two story and of brick veneer. It is to be finished by the end of September. It will be on site of the old Parsons-Elliott Co. block on Commercial street.

Rev. S.S. Poole of Middleton narrowly escaped serious injury on Monday evening of last week. While driving his horse took fright at an auto, and jumping, broke the whiffletree and dragged Mr. Poole over the fender and along the street. Fortunately the reverend gentleman received only bruises from the mishap.

Miss Irene Bewley, reader and entertainer, etc., will return to Bridgetown Thursday of next week to give a concert. The Epworth League of the Methodist church is handling this concert, and will devote a generous amount of the proceeds to the Cemetery Improvement Fund. Full particulars by poster. Watch for them.

A despatch from Digby says:—Seven hundred thousand feet of lumber, owned by Harry H. Marshall, M.P.P., was destroyed by fire on Friday night. There was a heavy gale from the southwest at the time. Sparks from the mill are supposed to have caused the fire. The insurance is only $3,000. The mill is situated seven miles from Digby.

PERSONAL

F. L. Milner, Esq., of Amherst, is in town.

Miss Muriel Lockett is visiting relatives in Bear River.

Miss Angie James is spending the summer in Halifax.

Miss Jane Piper is visiting Mrs. E. B. McDaniel, Annapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Mitchell made a trip to St. John last week.

Miss Lyle McCormick has gone to Halifax to remain indefinitely.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Rumsey left on Monday for a visit in Truro.

Mrs. H.I. Munro is in Halifax visiting her daughter, Mrs. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Corbett of Annapolis, visited Miss McCormick last week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Bustin have gone to Melvern Square for their summer holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Noble and two children left on Monday for Clementsport to spend the summer.

Miss Florence Dodge and brother, Arthur, of Los Angeles, are visiting their parents, Mr and Mrs. Wanford Dodge.

Miss Chambers, of Frant, England, returned from British Columbia last week, accompanied by Miss Marjorie Snape, and her two brothers, is now staying with Mrs. Noble, of Central Clarence.

Rev. I. D. Little and Mrs. Little have gone to Caledonia, where they will remain until September, when Mr. Little expects to go to New York and resume his studies at Colgate University.—Exchange.

Dr. Walter Chipman, a former Bridgetown boy, now of the staff of physicians and surgeons at the Victoria Hospital, Montreal, had the honor to be the attending physician of the Duchess of Connaught during her recent illness.

Mr. Harry J. Crowe was in town over the week end, on route to Newfoundland to New York. On his return, "a week's time," to Newfoundland, Mrs. Crowe and two sons now visiting her father, Mr. Quirk, will join him and go to Newfoundland for the summer.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Lt. Col. E.F. McNeil returned from the Petawawa Military Camp on the 26th ult. He informs the Outlook that the Camp for Nova Scotia will assemble at Aldershot on the 10th of September for twelve days training. The following units will be in attendance, 14th K.C.H.; 69th; 75th; 76th; 18th; and 94th Infantry Regiments.

The prisoners Carter, Greenlund and Sabean, tried at the recent session of the Supreme Court at Digby and found guilty of burglary in two cases, were sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for each offence, making six years for each. Harry Wilson, found guilty of man-slaughter in killing his brother, was sentenced to a life term in Dorchester penitentiary.

No preparations having been made for celebrating Dominion Day in Bridgetown, the larger number of her citizens went out of town, dispersing themselves according to their tastes. Many went to Middleton to see the horse races and base ball matches, while others visited the tea-meeting at Port Lorne, which was a pronounced success, a large attendance being present. Many others enjoyed picnics or other holiday recreations. The weather, which in the morning was rather cool, became through the day all that could be desired.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS.

As autos multiply the number of accidents increase, despite regulations and penalties. Winnipeg has been the scene of several regrettable accidents already this summer. Carelessness and unconscious negligence there may have been in some or all of these cases, but he would be a bold man who would say that there was any wilful negligence in any instance. Every driver in his sober senses who runs his machine against a pedestrian is as greatly surprised as the victim. He is shocked; he is stricken with remorse. He thought he was exercising due caution and keeping within the speed limits and other regulations.

The trouble is, says the Winnipeg Free Press, that few drivers realize the tremendous power and impetus of these motor vehicles. For the matter of that, few realize the powerful impetus of an individual who is walking rapidly along the street. Let a hurrying man strike his head unwittingly against some obstruction and he may receive a blow which will render him senseless; sometimes such an impact proves fatal. How much more dangerous is the impetus, the dynamic force of a motor vehicle rolling along the pavement at even a twelve-mile-an-hour clip—to say nothing of those going at a much higher rate of speed?

The driver, filled into a false security by the easy, gliding movement of the vehicle, never dreams of danger until that which could not be remedied or undone has occurred.

The majority of automobile accidents could be avoided if drivers only understood the power of their machines when in motion and the probable result of a collision with a living human body.

METHODIST CONFERENCE.

Amherst, June 25—The Methodist Conference which has been in session here since Wednesday last, closed at eight o'clock this evening. Today's sessions were marked with many events of more than passing interest. Rev. Joseph Coffin who has been actively associated with the Nova Scotia Conference for fifty-three years, goes into well-earned retirement this year, and his passing from the active to the retired, brought forth a resolution from the Conference expressing the esteem in which Mr. Coffin was held by his brother ministers.

PRESENTATION TO REV. DR. JOST.

The Rev. Dr. Cranwick Jost, another veteran who steps aside this year after a faithful half century of labor, was presented with a beautiful gold-headed cane by the delegates from the Annapolis district. The presentation was made by Rev. Leander Daniels. The Committee on Sabbath Observance, brought in a strong report regretting the increase of Sunday liquor in the Sydney district, and also condemning the placing of Sunday passenger trains on the I. C. R.

FIVE THOUSAND FAMILIES ARE HOMELESS.

The Loss at the Town of Chicoutimi is Two Millions and a Half.

Chicoutimi, Que., June 26—The fire which raged throughout yesterday in this town did damage to the extent of $2,500,000. Only one-third is covered by insurance.

The beautiful Cathedral, the Hotel Saguenay and hundreds of houses were destroyed, while 5,000 families are without homes.

It is thought that the conflagration was started by an overheated stove in the Hotel Saguenay. The flames leaped from the hotel to the Cathedral steeple. With a high wind and poor water supply the fire rapidly spread through the whole town and ultimately consumed it. There was no loss of life. Financial help is being asked for.

For soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercises or injury, there is nothing better than Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment also relieves rheumatic pains. For sale by druggists and dealers.

Farmers of the East Present Their Views

A Series of Interesting Conversations Reported by the Canadian Farmer.

Talking freely with a number of farmers who gathered at the different points where the "Better Farming Special" stopped on its eastern tour—the representative of the Weekly Globe and Canada Farmer accompanying the train became very much interested in many of the suggestions and ideas he heard, and some of these we have taken the liberty of quoting below:

HAD LUCK WITH ALFALFA.

"After experimenting successfully with alfalfa, I have become a very strong advocate of it for the farmer with much live stock. I just had half an acre last year, but it produced in two cuttings at the rate of over seven tons per acre. A good third growth was produced, but I decided not to cut it as security against insufficient winter protection and a weakening of the plant from too severe cutting. The soil on which this alfalfa grew is from limestone basis, is well drained, and I think quite ordinary in other respects. My neighbors last winter were paying out their hard-earned cash for bran and middlings while I had produced the equivalent of over seven tons of bran on an acre of my farm and had not to spend a cent for extra feed."—George St. Croix, Doak N. B.

BELIEVES IN BIG SEED.

"For a good many years now I have tested all my seed before sowing, and I have found that there is a point in the business that even Government men overlook. They talk about the plump seed, the germinable seed, and the seed that is weed-free, but it struck me a few years ago that the main thing I wanted was big seed and it has proven to be right. The reason is that the big kernel has more plant food stored up to furnish nourishment to the young plant until it can draw its strength from the soil. I test for germination, and I not produce more than fifty per cent. avoid weed seeds, but I insist on big kernels going into the ground. At the test, I have found a field of cereal good seed."—J. G. Sealey, FEED HEAVY THE FIRST YEAR.

"You may talk about feeding an animal until it is a good size, but I intend to follow my own rule of feeding strong from the first. I believe a large number of the young animals on the farms today are starved during their first year, and many of them all through their existence. The time to feed an animal is when it is growing, and that is the time when the majority of farmers neglect their stock. After two or three years a man often begins to think they are worth something, and he goes to work and cares for them somewhat. That is starting wrong, according to my opinion. They should be fed right from the beginning, and fed better the first year than the second."—Amie Lavalee, Cookshire, Quebec.

RED CLOVER FOR PIGS.

"In raising pigs red clover is the best feed to make quick returns. I have had an acre of red clover produce four hundred pounds of pork, which is better than rape, or even peas. I have not kept account of what rape makes in pork, but I have heard it is only about one hundred pounds at the most, and peas about three hundred and fifty pounds from an acre. Skim milk is also a big pork producer, and fed in the proportion of about three to one has given me as much as from sixty to seventy-five cents a hundred in my feeding account. It would not give that if fed carelessly, as I have often seen it done, sometimes the most of it being wasted. Last winter I fed small potatoes to my hogs and found that about five pounds were as good as a pound of meal and much better than an equal amount of turnips or mangels."—William Farreau, Farnham, Quebec.

"SHAKING" METHOD FOR BEES.

"I had foul brood had among my bees last year, and I think now I have got rid of it. I used the shaking method, which is simply separating the bees from the infected honey by shaking the combs. The healthy brood in the infected combs may be saved provided there is enough to make it profitable by piling up combs from several infected hives on one of the weakest of the diseased colonies. After a week or so all the brood that is worth saving will have hatched out, and then it is necessary to have the combs removed and the colony treated. The plan worked well for me. I might say, though, that it is advisable to do the shaking at a time when the other bees in the apiary will not rob and thus spread disease; generally in the evening is a good time to do it, as the bees have stopped flying."—R. J. Grimston, Watford, Que.

"SPARE PARTS" FOR HUMANS. GOD'S UNCHANGING LAWS GOVERNED LOSS OF TITANIC

It was not generally known until recently that the Rockefeller Institute in New York is a sort of department store, where may be obtained properly "canned" and labeled parts of a human heart, nerves, blood vessels, spleen, many of the smaller glands, the cornea of the eye, various bones, and body cartilages to be used in repairing diseased human frames.

The announcement was made to the American Medical Association at Atlantic City by Dr. Alexis Carrel, in charge of the research work of the Rockefeller Institute.

Not long ago a Chicago surgeon needed a cartilage for a knee disease operation. He telegraphed a rush order. The cartilage was shipped by express in a tiny refrigerator, was used and the patient is now well and now walking with it just as if it were his own.

The doctor told his colleagues it had been found possible to make tissues from the dead live and grown nine months after they were taken from the body. For six years the experiments have been going on. A piece of the heart of a chicken pulsed and was alive 104 days after it had been removed.

In the course of experiments such tissues are kept in cold storage, where they continued to live and grow until successfully transplanted. The experiments being completed and proved successful, the institute is now prepared to furnish such articles on short notice. All a surgeon has to do is to break the seal of the refrigerator, fasten on the new organ, or whatever it is, and it will soon become as valuable a part of the patient as if it had always belonged to him.

Men who daily handle large sums of money should not be put in the way of temptations by being poorly paid, if indeed not underpaid.—Klugstein Standard.

THE WOMAN PAST FIFTY.

Men Who Say Her Greatest Intellectual Growth Comes Then.

Careful studies of the histories of men and women, their growth and development, extending over a long period of years, reveals some facts not recognized in the literature of the day, writes a physician in the Dietic and Hygienic Gazette. A man and woman, both college graduates, married at the age of twenty-five years. They both possessed culture and training above the average and were in excellent health.

During the first twenty-five years of their married life he attained great eminence and did fine intellectual work. Then he became a mental invalid, and remained at a standstill, without any special cause. During this time his wife had given all her attention and time to the care and education of her children and domestic duties, and while regarded as a very strong woman seemed not to have risen above the level of her surroundings.

Then suddenly she realized her husband's decline and entered into the work which he was engaged in, and showed rare intellectual vigor and power, and in a very short time attained a reputation. This continued until her death. Her husband, in the meantime, failed to keep up his previous reputation and gradually declined, although he was not in ill-health. His intellectual work was over, but her's began where he had stopped and went on to great heights.

Thus in almost every community there are women not recognized as anything more than the average in intellectual attainments and wisdom, who suddenly, after fifty years of age, broaden out into strong, vigorous thinkers and become great powers in the community.

Joseph Cook said: "The most intellectual audiences I have ever addressed were women past fifty years of age. I have found them most appreciative and critical, and when I have asked for questions to bring out further explanations of the subject their wisdom has astonished me, as well as their clearness of knowledge and breadth of judgment."

The late Professor Shaler affirmed that, all things being equal and with a degree of average health, the real intellectual growth of women is more rapid after fifty years of age and from then on to seventy than in man.

Usually men at about fifty years of age begin to decline in productive, literary or constructive work. The rest of life is spent in gathering up and perfecting work that has been outlined before. Many men who live rationally and carefully exhibit no halt in intellectual growth until after seventy. The best work of life is done in the last fifteen or twenty years.

In women it may be stated as a rule that their highest attainments begin and go on after fifty. The term "grand old man" should more literally include the woman, who is the best illustration of all that is broad and strong.

THE SLANDERER.

(By Joseph Freeman Tupper, Anglican missionary in Cape Breton.)

"Thou shalt not bear false witness"—Ninth Commandment.

Of slanders there are three kinds. One will slander his neighbor in order to do him injury, another in order to appear witty. These two do but very little harm in the world. Their object is soon discovered and their subject enjoys his three meals a day just as he did afortime, and perhaps sweaters his tea or coffee while joking with his friends over the folly of mankind. Should he happen to be one who serves the public, of course, he takes compliments and criticisms as ordinary points of the game and after grows in the favor of a larger circle of worthy individuals through the free advertising done by his would-be opponents.

But the slanderer to be avoided is that innocent, careless, thoughtless gossip who repeats what he does not know to be true and blames it all on "they say"—an individual or being by the way, to whom nobody has ever received an introduction or as yet been able to locate, still existing at all times and in all places and exerting a wonderful influence over the human race.

We should be as honest with our tongue as with our fingers. If it is wrong to steal from a man's purse it is worse to steal from his character. A man can easily go out and earn more money, but he can hardly change the idle gossip which takes from him his reputation.

Let us reason. We would not think of judging the water in our neighbor's well by that which passed through colored soil. But we will, too often, accept as truly about our neighbor talk that has passed through the highly-colored imaginations of the best-known gossips in the community.

To repeat what we do not know to be true is a bad habit we should all get rid of. To repeat what we know is not true is as bad as to make a lie and tell it, for the Commandment reads plainly and unconditionally: "Thou shalt not bear false witness."

MOUTH HYGIENE.

The savage has good teeth, without regard to dentists, or tooth brush and powder. The Indian's and the negro's teeth wear out by use if they live long enough, says the Popular Science News. The civilized man loses his teeth in spite of the dentist and the best of care. Why is this, and has cleanliness much to do with it? One reason why the savage has strong teeth probably lies in the fact that they are better nourished than the teeth of the civilized man. They eat harder food, which gives abundant exercise to the jaws, enlarges the muscles and blood vessels of these parts and keeps them well supplied with blood, while the civilized man eats soft food, which does not exercise the jaws and their muscles or blood vessels, nor bring abundant food to the teeth to keep them strong and healthy. If we need any proof of this the larger stronger jaws of the savage furnish it.

Dentists tell us that the modern youth has contracted jaws, not even large enough to hold his teeth without crowding them together, and that the jaws are thus contracted for want of exercise on hard food. Country boys suffer less than those of the city, but even they are not free from the evil. One of the remedies, then, for tooth defects in our youth is less soft and sloppy and more hard food. Teeth well nourished will be strong and able to resist the influence of these micro-organisms which cause decay. Hard food causes an abundant supply of saliva, and thus cleanses the teeth quite as effectively as the tooth brush. Cleanliness, however, should at the same time be insisted on, and also the phosphate found in whole grain flour, instead of white flour, which is only starch.

SCORES THE COMMANDER OF THE CALIFORNIAN.

London, June 26—A bitter attack upon Captain Lord of the Leyland Line Californian for not going to the aid of the Titanic when her distress signals were flashed as she was going down, was made at the summing up in the Board of Trade inquiry today by Clem Edwards, Counsel for the Federation of Maritime Workers. Edwards declared that there was no doubt that the lights seen by survivors in lifeboats were those of the Californian, and he held Captain Lord's explanation that he thought the distress rockets were private signals to be the "merest excuse."

HOW TO KILL FLIES.

To clear rooms of flies use carbolic acid, heating a shovel and pouring on it twenty drops of the poison. The vapor will kill the flies. Another method: Burn pyrethrum powder in the room. The flies will fall to the floor stupefied and may be swept up and burned. The powder should be moistened and molded into cones, and after drying each cone should be placed upon a dish and lighted at the top. It will burn slowly and the odor is not disagreeable.

Flies pass the winter hidden in cracks and holes in attics and cellars. Many of these may be killed in the spring by the two methods just described.

Almost a Centenarian.

At the ripe old age of ninety-seven years, James P. Foster, of Port Lorne, Annapolis Co., passed away on Monday, June 10th. It is said he never had a sick day in his life to within a few days of his death. For years he was a successful ship owner. He was for many years a school teacher in the valley, and during this time made hundreds of quill pens for the people. He was a splendid penman himself. In February last, on the birthday of one of his pupils—one hundred and one years old—he sent a card of congratulations, the writing on which would be envied by any teacher at the present time. He was a justice of the peace, and for many years a postmaster.—Exchange.

AUTHORS QUARREL OVER THE TITANIC.

George Bernard Shaw and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, two of England's best-known writers, are having a bitter controversy in the columns of the London Daily News about the Titanic disaster. It was precipitated by a letter from Shaw in which he analyzed the matter coldly and drew the conclusion that there had been a lot of mock heroics about the affair.

Sir Arthur replies: "As to the general accusation that the occasion had been used for the glorification of British qualities, we should indeed be a lost people if we did not honor courage and discipline when we see it in the highest form. That our sympathies extend beyond ourselves is shown by the fact that the conduct of the American male passengers and very particularly of the much-abused millionaires, has been as warmly eulogized as any strange feature in the whole wonderful epic. But surely it is a pitiful sight to see a man of undoubted genius using his gifts in order to misrepresent and deny his own people, regardless of the fact that his own words must add to the grief of those who have already had more than enough to bear."

SHE CAME AND WENT.

(James Russell Lowell) As a twig trembles which a bird lights on to sing, then leaves unheeded, So is my memory thrilled and stirred I only know she came and went.

As clasps some lake by gusts unriven The blue dome's measureless content, So my soul held that moment's heaven I only know she came and went.

As, at one bound, our swift spring leaps The orchard's full of bloom and scent, So clothed her May my wintry steps I only know she came and went.

An angel stood and met my gaze, Through the low doorway of my tent;

The tent is struck, the vision strays, I only know she came and went. Oh, when the room grows slowly dim And life's last oil is nearly spent, One gush of light these eyes will bring Only to think she came and went.

Mrs. George Andrews and family, who have been spending several months in Wellesley, Mass., have returned to their home here.

While good housekeeping is a most desirable qualification for every woman, who is the centre of a family, a truly motherly spirit is yet more to be desired; and there is sound wisdom in the question, which framed and glazed, sometimes looks down upon us from a living-room wall—"What is Home Without a Mother?"

"MOUNTAIN OF LIGHT"

GREAT JEWEL GOES ONCE MORE TO INDIA.

The Koh-i-noor Came Into the Possession of Great Britain a Little Over Half a Century Ago When Dupleep Singh Was Conquered and Lahore Came Into the Empire—Sir John Lawrence Forgot It.

At the great Durbar at Delhi, Queen Mary will appear in the same robes that she wore at the coronation, but to the gems in the crown has been added the famous Koh-i-noor, out of compliment to the Indian empire, said a London paper recently.

In India the superstition obtains that if the diamond is worn by a man dire disaster will befall him, while if the wearer be a woman, fortune will shine upon her for the rest of her days. So strong is the belief in this legend that when it was announced that the late King Edward intended to have the gem set in his crown many leading Indians petitioned His Majesty to give up the idea. The result was that the Koh-i-noor, instead of appearing in the King's crown, was mounted in Queen Alexandra's diadem. It has now been transferred to the crown of Queen Mary, and before the close of the year this historic gem will be seen once more in the hand from whence it came. And how did it come? This is the story:

In the palace of the Maharajah Dupleep Singh at Lahore, on the afternoon of October 12th, 1849, was held a historical and impressive meeting of native princes and British officials. The Maharajah's domain had been conquered by the British, and the purpose of the meeting was the formal surrender of the native king.

The ceremony was business-like in the extreme. One of Queen Victoria's officers, Dr. Logan, stood before the throne where sat the Maharajah, surrounded by men of high degree. That Maharajah was eight years old. In three languages—English first, then Hindustani, then Persian—Dr. Logan read the Queen's proclamation. After naming the conditions of the surrender, the document stipulated that the boy king was to become a British subject, and that he was to accept a pension of $125,000 a year, and that the historical diamond, the Koh-i-noor, was to be given to the British crown.

The boy king signed the document not quite understanding what all the fuss was about. Then a dignified Brahmin stepped forward, unknotted a silken ribbon which was wound about the young king's wrist, took therefrom a brilliant about the size of a bantam's egg and of unsurpassable beauty, and handed it to Dr. Logan. It was the diamond of a "thousand tragedies"—the Koh-i-noor. The meeting was at an end.

The "Mountain of Light" or Koh-i-noor, the largest diamond in the world after the Cullinan stone, has now been in the possession of the British crown for more than half a century. For three hundred and fifty years previous to its acquisition by Queen Victoria it is supposed to have been handed down from one to another in turn by some twenty different princes of India.

Omitting all traditions, the authenticated melodramatic incidents surrounding this enormously valuable stone begins with the transfer to the British conquerors by the child king of Lahore, as already described. In 1550, Dr. Logan took the diamond to London, and turned it over to Sir John Lawrence, a member of the Board of Administration for Lahore, and the Queen. Sir John, a very busy man, put the gem in a pocket of his waistcoat. On his return home that night he changed his day clothes for his more gorgeous court attire, and proceeded to Buckingham Palace, where he had been summoned by the Queen. No sooner was he presented to Queen Victoria than Her Majesty asked to see the extraordinary diamond that had that day arrived from India.

Imagine Sir John's consternation! He had left the most valuable gem in Europe at home in the pocket of a garment that he had carelessly thrown aside! He excused himself, and left the palace, to return later with the Koh-i-noor, which the Queen gazed on for the first time. She at once ordered the stone to be re-cut. Costar, of Amsterdam, the most expert diamond cutter of his day, was installed in Windsor Castle and put to work under the Prince Consort set in motion the wheel used in the cutting process. At the end of thirty-five days the Koh-i-noor, now reduced to one hundred and eighty-six carats, and set in a brooch, was worn by Queen Victoria at a court ball.

Meantime the young Indian prince, Dupleep Singh, was brought to England, and was educated at Eton as a ward of the crown. On his twenty-first birthday, during the coronation of Her Majesty to look upon the diamond that had come to him from his ancestor, the "Mountain of Light" was produced, and, after fondling it awhile, the prince said:

"I would give away this stone as a bride when I signed away this stone as a bride. Now that I am a man, I should like to place the diamond of my ancestors in the Sovereign's hand of my own free will. And I have handed the Queen the Koh-i-noor with a gesture that was afterwards described as 'half angry.'"

From that day the prince became a fanatic. He brooded over the fancied wrongs of his people, and in time even broke into open rebellion against the British. Then he left the country. Thereupon his pension was stopped, and he was reduced to living upon the proceeds of his land, and wrote a most discourteous letter to the Queen imperatively demanding the return of the "stolen" Koh-i-noor. He was verbally told that it would be an excellent thing for his welfare if he would "keep the peace."

This community has again been visited by the death angel and the venerable G.H. Jackson has been called home, at the advanced age of eighty-eight years. Our departed brother had been gradually failing for some time but it was not anticipated the end was quite so near. In early life he made a profession of religion and united with the Clarence and Paradise church, under the pastorate of the late Rev. N. Videto. He was a man of strong convictions, making the word of God his guide through life. His funeral took place on Friday afternoon from his late residence. The services were conducted by Pastor McNinch, who spoke to the large audience who had gathered to pay their last respects to a citizen honored, respected and beloved, from Job 14: 14. He leaves a widow, three sons and four daughters. The pall-bearers were L.W. Elliott, J.E. Elliott, Alfred Wilson and W.B. Foster. The funeral was in charge of Wm. FitzRandolph.

The annual opening of the mite-boxes of the "Lend-a-Hand" and Maple Leaf Mission Bands took place on Wednesday evening, the 26th. A departure from the usual order was made this year. Instead of the exercise being carried on by the children the Aid Society was fortunate in securing for the evening, Miss Barbara Mould, returned missionary, who by her pleasing and attractive manner, held her audience in close attention from beginning to end. The "Lend-a-Hand" Band raised $11.75 during the year and the Maple Leaf $6.45. Offering for evening $3.10. Total $21.30. Meeting closed with benediction by S.N. Jackson.
