THE SCARLET PIMPERNEL

BY BARONESS ORCZY.

(Continued.) "You will forgive me, Lady Blakeney," said Sir Andrew, now as calm as she was herself, "if I resume the interesting occupation which you had interrupted?"

CHAPTER XIII. Either—or? "The few words which Marguerite Blakeney had managed to read on the last described piece of paper, seemed literally to be the words of Fate. 'Start yourself tomorrow...'"

CHAPTER XIV. ONE O'CLOCK PROBABLY! Supper had been extremely gay. All those present declared, that never had Lady Blakeney been more adorable, nor that "damned idiot" Sir Percy more amusing.

CHAPTER XV. "Marguerite Blakeney was in her most brilliant mood, and surely not a soul in that crowded supper-room had even an inkling of the terrible struggle which was raging within her heart."

CHAPTER XVI. "The minutes ticked on with that dull monotony which they invariably seem to assume when our very nerves ache with their incessant ticking."

WINTER PORTS Commenting on a recent gloomy article in the Globe on the subject of west side dredging and wharf building, the Bangor Commercial says: "St. John people are fine fellows, they make clever cousins and we like them, but they can never compete with us as winter shipping ports for the west freight from the great west to the mother country."

HEARST AND MURPHY The Telegraph's New York correspondent gives expression to the view of many persons in that city, when he says that if Hearst gets the Democratic nomination for governor "his chances of election would be very good and he would figure as a menacing candidate for the presidential nomination in 1908."

EXAMPLES AND SUGGESTIONS The southern states of the American union have attracted attention in the last few years because of the growth of new industries. Advance is also being made in practical education, suited to a growing industrial development. Manual training high schools are regarded as a necessary part of the educational machinery in the cities, although in a number of cases public spirited citizens have endeavored to make the beginning. Such a citizen, for example, gave to the city of Louisville a complete manual training high school, which is now regarded as one of the most useful institutions of the city. More than four hundred students have been enrolled and there is now a demand for enlargement. This school, says the Courier-Journal, has been the means of furnishing employment to many in the practical pursuits of life, opening new avenues of business for its graduates where formerly there was no such source. "Many young men," says our contemporary, "who formerly would have been restricted to the overcrowded professions, have found in it a valuable aid in fitting them for various mechanical fields suited to their natural bent. Its whole influence has been elevating, and in its success it has reflected great credit not only upon its philanthropic projector, but upon those who have conducted it so admirably and developed it into such a useful institution."

The Montreal Witness says: "The proposed general convention representative of all the Canadian boards of trade for the purpose of discussing questions affecting the commercial and financial interests of the dominion, as well as interprovincial trade, will not be held until next summer at the earliest. The council of the Montreal board of trade has unanimously decided to hold such a congress, but the date will not be decided on until the boards of trade throughout the dominion have consented to be represented."

The Houston Post makes this appropriate remark: "One of the New York papers says the Independence League movement will be checked long before the elections. It has been pretty liberally checked already, as Mr. Hearst's bank account will doubtless show."

The Brussels street Baptist church congregation is a unit for union with that of the Waterloo street church. The latter will tonight decide the question. It may be hoped that if the city purchases a new dredge the machine will not be over-manned and made an excuse for paying unnecessary salaries. The dominion government has decided to fly the Union Jack from the parliament buildings every day the house is in session. Present achievement often is the foe of all possibility.

proprietor by the city had been augmented by the generosity of some public spirited citizen, as was the case in Galveston when Mr. Adcox gave $10,000 to be devoted to manual training. Probably it will not be long before some citizen will take such an interest in this most useful branch of education as to recognize the timeliness of such aid. There are hundreds of young men in Houston who would rejoice if they could at this moment enjoy such opportunities. They would render themselves efficient factors in our industrial life, whereas they are now poorly equipped for any important undertaking. The experiment upon which the Houston school system will embark during the forthcoming term will, however, constitute a good beginning and perhaps it will not be many years before a manual training high school will be established, either by the city itself or through the philanthropy of some wealthy citizen."

At a conference on Home Economics, at Lake Placid, N. Y., last week, referring to trade schools and their relation to general education, Mrs. Mary Schenck Woolman, director of the Manhattan Trade School for Girls, said that continental Europe was far ahead of English speaking nations in the matter of trade schools, affording foreign manufacturers an advantage over American and other competitors, who often-times were obliged to place their industries in foreign countries where they could have the advantage of this peculiarly skilled labor. The uplifting influence of trade education and the beneficial effect upon character had been notably illustrated, said Mrs. Woolman, in France and Belgium, and the Manhattan and Boston trade schools were cited by her as institutions which had done much to advance their pupils socially as well as industrially in the United States.

Coming nearer home, it may be noted that in his address in Winnipeg this week, the president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said: "The Technical Education Committee of the Association has presented a memorial to the Dominion government, asking for the appointment of a commission for the purpose of indicating a national system of technical training. This is greatly needed in Canada, and if we are to keep pace with the United States and European countries, we must give our people every opportunity to attain skill."

In the province of Nova Scotia, an exchange notes that Dalhousie College for some three years past has been conducting evening classes under the direction of its alumni in the industrial centres of Cape Breton, and that fall similar classes were begun in Pictou county, with Stellarton as the teaching centre. It is now proposed to go a step farther, and while instruction in mining and its varied branches will be continued at Westville and Stellarton, it is thought that work in other departments, such as mechanics, mechanical drawing, industrial chemistry, etc., and similar subjects, might with advantage be started in New Glasgow.

This question of making education more practical, more suited to the needs of the age, is more insistently pressing in fact upon the minds of practical men in all English speaking countries, and those communities which first realize and meet the demand for technical training will prove themselves the most progressive, and most mindful of the welfare of their children, who must go out into a world of highly specialized effort to earn a livelihood.

"EACH IN HIS OWN TONGUE."

Of poems published within the last fifteen years, three or four have at once become popular—none of them more so than "Each in his own tongue," by William Hubert Carruth, professor of Germanic Languages in the University of Kansas. About this poem Mr. Carruth has received scores of letters from all parts of the world—some protesting, others lauding. With all its radicalism, the poem seems to have found special favor with the Episcopalian. It has been quoted entire in a sermon in Westminster Abbey; also at Yale by Dr. Rainford when addressing the undergraduates: A fire mist and a planet, A crystal ball and a gem, A jelly-fish and a saurian, And a cave where the cave-men dwell; These a sense of law and beauty, And are stirred from the dead— Some call it Evolution And others call it God.

IN LIGHTER VEIN In her trim little bathing suit she sat on the white sand. "I staid in intelligent!" she cried. "So do I," said he. "All the same, though, beauty and intellect never go together. And do you think me intellectual?" she faltered. "No," he confessed, frankly. "With a faint blush she murmured: 'Fatterer!'—concluding inquiry."

A PRECAUTIONARY MEASURE. Mother—"I heard that Mr. Jones had the impudence to kiss you at the station. What did you do?" Daughter—"Oh! I kissed him, too, so as to let the people think we were related."—Stray Stories.

GETTING AROUND A DIFFICULTY. An instructor in a certain boys' school is noted among his pupils for his difficult examination questions. One of the youthful students, after struggling over a particularly strenuous list of questions in geography, came upon the following query, which completely stunned him: "Name twelve animals of the polar regions."

PENITENCE. Of the penitence of a corporation that had been found guilty of corrupt business methods, Senator Ellman said with a smile: "The sorrow of these people at once dissipated and amused me. As I consider it, I think of a druggist at Paint Rock. The druggist, being in a hurry to get off to the ball ground, made a mistake in compounding a prescription that contained arsenic, and in consequence of his error the patient died. "When the druggist heard of the man's death he struck his forehead with his clenched fist and groaned: "Wretch that I am—he was my best customer!"

AN IMPORTANT ARRIVAL (Boston Journal). A woman teacher of court etiquette has arrived in New York. It is her purpose to show American girls how to meet royalty. She is Irish, according to one of the New York newspapers, but that seems impossible, for no true Irish girl would teach her American cousins to meet royalty—and especially British royalty—otherwise than with concentrated scorn and a tilted nose. This imported teacher of court etiquette rejoices in the name of Ethel Barry-Palliser, which is not even plausible "Scottish-Irish." Moreover, she is a great-granddaughter of Miss Aldrich, "who was dancing mistress in the courts of Napoleon I., King George IV. and King William IV." That ought to establish her hereditary authority on court etiquette, if it does not fix her race definitely.

A great-aunt of Miss Palliser taught the present King of England and other children of Queen Victoria "how to meet their parents correctly." That is something which American children ought to learn. Shall they treat their parents as social equals? Shall the latter be permitted to be present while the heiress of the family is explaining to a bouquet of her intimates what a "dreadfully lovely time" she had at Bogside Farm during the season just closed?

If Miss Ethel Barry-Palliser, the alleged Milesian apostle of correct deportment, succeeds in preparing and enforcing a schedule of social relationship between children and their parents in this country, the task of teaching children how to meet royalty, at the race track or at Monte Carlo, ought to be comparatively easy.

BASE BALL ON THE DIAMOND

Catcher "Jack" McLean has made a very good impression in the games he has played with Cincinnati.

Blankenship, the catcher drafted by Washington from the Pacific Coast league, batted for 330 this season.

Catcher Sullivan of the White Sox says he will be ready to get into the game when the New Yorks reach Chicago Sept. 21.

The Boston Nationals have blanketed every team with the exception of Cincinnati and have held that team down to one run five times out of six.

It is given out that the popular manager of the Boston Americans is to wed Miss Julie Harmon of that city some time after the close of the playing season.

The St. Louis Nationals lost no time in gathering Pitcher Fomme, the Springfield Three I league pitcher who was with Chicago Cubs down to one run and three hits.

The effectiveness of the Chicago White Sox pitchers is shown in the 25 situations administered opposite clubs. Cleveland has 20 shutouts, Philadelphia 15 and Boston 5.

The New York Highlanders won seven out of nine games at Boston this season, making the remarkable record of shutting out Boston four times on the latter's administered opposite clubs.

The Brooklyn are getting a great reputation for double-headed victories. They have twice won double-headers from McGraw's team this season and have landed a doubleheader in Philadelphia. Donavan will annex fifth place all right, and that will be a great triumph for him.
