STUDIES IN THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MATTHEW. Fourth Quarter. Lesson VI. November 3. Matt. 10: 22-25.

CONFESSING CHRIST.

"Whoever therefore shall confess me before men, I will confess him before my Father which is in heaven."—Matt. 10: 32.

How Christ is Confessed. (1) By informal and private acknowledgment. (2) By public profession in church. (3) By a Christian life, a life so different in spirit and in fact that men will take knowledge of us that we have been with Jesus.

Denying Christ. (1) Christ is denied by words. (2) By rejecting him as our Lord and Saviour. (3) By taking sides with business principles and social customs.

Obstacles to Confessing Christ. 34. That's not what I can come to as yet. His ultimate object was peace, as we learn from the angel's song (Luke 2: 14).

Warnings Against Yielding to Temptations. 37. He that loveth father more than me, he will deny me. The meaning of this is clear. Christ must be loved supremely, or he is not loved at all.

He that loveth his life shall lose it. The meaning is: Christ must be loved more than life itself, or the that gains or saves his earthly life, saving it by unfaithfulness, shall lose his heavenly life; but he that loses his temporal life by faithfulness, shall find eternal life.

he is a disciple of Jesus, because he would serve the Master in the person of the disciple. The act would thus express honor and love to Jesus and his cause.

The Worst Boy in the School. "Ouch!" The eyes of the whole school turned toward Jo Coe's corner, and glistened with the anticipation of some new antic.

What is the matter? exclaimed Mr. Gigg. Gigg anxiously, moving toward the observer with hurried steps. "A splinter, a splinter—half-way through my hand!" gasped Jo.

Now hold hard a second," said Mr. Gigg, opening his pocket-handkerchief. "I'll not hurt you, poor fellow." And with that, he grasped the end of the splinter with his thumb and forefinger, and pulled it out.

That is an old trick," he said, simply; "I ought not to have been caught so easily." The school stared at this mild beginning. "Jo will please remain after dismissal," he continued, and meaning glances went around the room.

It was the writing hour. Each more or less begrimed fist was travelling painfully across the copy book, making pot-hooks, letters, words or phrases, according to the age and grade of the writer.

It's Jo or I, Jo or I, Jo or I, Jo or I!" until it paused to strike four, saying as it did so, "Jo or I, Jo or I, Jo or I, Jo or I." Mr. Gigg was young, and this was his first school. The beginning was not an encouraging one.

He who receives the servant of Christ and his message in his heart, receives Christ; he who opens his heart to Christ, like influences from men, opens it, even though unconsciously, to Christ. Compare 2 Cor. 5: 20.

"Humph," was all the answer he made. "You haven't done as well as I expected," from the accounts I have had of you."

Jo gazed at Mr. Gigg in blank amazement, but the teacher took no notice. He went right on and read his list. "1. Saw of the legs of the teacher's chair. That is odd, but good."

Jo was actually blessing, as red as a beet, and was edging slowly to the door, with the impudence all coated out of him. "I guess I've heard enough," he stammered.

With that Mr. Gigg went to his table and picked up a stout rattan, which he "whisked" through the air two or three times, to try his temper. Jo straightened up. He did not intend to be thrashed, if he knew it.

Now, Jo, this is a pretty good rattan, and you can give a good smart blow with it. I want you to give me ten strokes, as hard as you know how, on the palm of my hand."

Jo blushed more furiously than before and drew back. "Go ahead, Jo, I'm ready and waiting," said Mr. Gigg encouragingly. Jo took the rattan limply, and laid a gentle blow on the teacher's outstretched palm.

Harder, harder; that is nothing at all!" exclaimed Mr. Gigg. "Now put some vim into it. I want you to hurt me." This quite broke Jo's heart. He actually smiled.

My Time Was a Time of Love

I was as a child forsaken, An outcast poor and mean, By every one I met, I was not loved, I was not seen.

But Jesus passing, pitied, To me in love He came, He dressed, He robed, He fed me, He called me by His name.

Since He in grace did choose me And took me through His cross, If ever He could lose me, He would not feel the loss.

There are but few, even among professing Christians, who have learned to be content with the companionship of Christ himself.

There was a meeting appointed for the next afternoon, a missionary meeting for the naming of delegates to the General Convention of our denomination.

A few days before Kathryn Hammond

A few days before Kathryn Hammond had held the letter with a slightly superior smile for the writer.

There were many pleasant greetings as she passed out, words of kindness and respect, but they were not just the same as the brilliant woman of ten years before.

There was a tap at her door, and almost impatiently she called, "Come in." A girl's pretty face answered—Kitty Hague.

On the 24th inst., a fire broke out in the shed adjoining the barn belonging to the late A. M. H. A deliberate attempt was made to wreck the train which left Fredericton last Wednesday. When the train got a short distance beyond Gloucester's station, on the Fredericton branch, the driver noticed a spike on the rail. The obstruction was removed and the train proceeded.

A piece of fish plate was found on the rail, and at once police were sent to search the rails were a sleeper, flat stone, and new steel rail. The train hands have no doubt that there had been a willful attempt to wreck the train.

The Alpha will take her place and the Dominion the place of Friday night, the Yarmouth made a splendid run from Boston, being sharp on time.

If a purely charitable institution were to distribute $50,000.00 to the victims of misfortune amongst us, the circumstance would challenge the admiration of the civilized world. The greatest misfortune that can befall a family is the loss of the bread-winner by death. At this moment the Dominion Safety Fire Association, St. John, N. B., has poured $50,000.00 into such homes,—not through humiliating charity, but through the unselfish devotion and business prudence of the deceased.

At a meeting of the Church of Ireland Temperance society, Canon Weldon, who recently received an appointment in England, made an address. He said he hoped the Queen would take a more suitable way in which to honor her husband's memory than by sending her sons and some-in-law to the top of the Highland to drink ray whiskey. He was present, he said, at this year's festival in honor of the presence of the Queen, and never saw a more disgusting display of drunkenness. The drunkenness surpassed the traditions of Donnybrook Fair. The effect was visible for many days in men with sodden eyes and staggering gait.

HAWKINS.—At Penfield Ridge, on the 11th inst., on the 20th year of her age, Nettie, daughter of Mr. C. P. Hawkins. Her sickness was short, only about a week from the time she reached her father's home she was called to appear before her Maker. She professed faith in Jesus some years ago, and hence her friends do not sorrow as those who have no hope. Thus the Lord is calling our young people to remember their Creator in the days of their youth. May they be wise to respond.

WEBBER.—At Ship Harbor Lake, Halifax Co., N. S., on the 15th of Oct., Mrs. Sarah A. Webber, widow of the late David Webber, aged sixty-eight years. Although very hard working, until quite recently she has enjoyed the most healthful life. For over forty years Mrs. Webber has been a follower of Christ, and a consistent, faithfully-walking Baptist, all through this part of the province the lady was well and favorably known. In her last moments this well-ried disciple gave the brightest evidence of spiritual vision that looked beyond the grave, affirming her implicit trust in the Saviour, and realizing as she stood in its presence that the sting of death had been forever removed. Her largely attended funeral occurred on Ship Harbor, Oct. 17th, from her residence on Ship Harbor, by Rev. Mr. Andrew the Presbyterian minister on this field, Rev. Mr. Doane the Methodist clergyman, and A. F. Brownie B. B., now officiating for the Baptist at Jeddore.

SOMMERS.—At Lyttleton, Oct. 15, of cancer, Mrs. John Sommers, aged 64 years. His end was like the closing of a lovely day. He truly "fell asleep in Jesus." Although a great sufferer he was often heard to say, "This is nothing to what Christ bore for me." How easy it was to speak of him to the many who came to pay their last respects to this dear friend.
