

THEY TELL THEIR NEIGHBORS

Women Tell Each Other How They Were Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Woodbridge, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles. I would have headaches, backaches, pains between my shoulders and under my shoulder-blades and dragging down feelings on each side. I was sometimes unable to do my work and felt very badly. My mother-in-law told me about the 'Vegetable Compound' and I got some right away. It has done me more good than any other medicine I ever took and I recommend it to my neighbors. You are quite welcome to use this letter as a testimonial if you think it will help some poor sufferer."—Mrs. EDITH SIMMONS, R. 2, Woodbridge, Ont.

In nearly every neighborhood in every town and city in this country there are women who have been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the treatment of ailments peculiar to their sex, and they take pleasure in passing the good word along to other women. Therefore, if you are troubled in this way, why not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial?

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from roots and herbs, has for forty years proved its value in such cases. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A BUSY SUMMER IN SHIPPEGAN

Brisk Little Hamlet At Tip of the Province to Have New Wharf.

Newcastle, N. B., Aug. 17.—A visit to Shippegan—pronounced "Shippegang" by the natives—by your correspondent last week, opened up a new avenue of knowledge of one of New Brunswick's most active but least heard of ports. Situated at the extreme northeastern corner of the province in a country where field crops show every evidence of yielding abundant harvest, are the hamlet and harbor of Shippegan. Its hosts of fishing smacks were either riding at anchor in the bay or pulled up along the wharves for a strong northeaster from across the Gulf of St. Lawrence had told the fishermen that it was to be a day of leisure, but many were busy mending nets and fixing sails while the odor of drying cod permeated the air.

Close by the wharf is the plant of the Monarch Cold Storage Co., which is the receiving station for the fishermen of the surrounding district. At the extreme end of the wharf is built a store room or receiving room where the fish are unloaded from the boats into large vans of running water which slide them along one at a time to a continuous belt which carries the fish to the cold storage plant where they are placed on pans, (about a dozen mackerel fill a pan) and then piled in tiers into the freezer, where a temperature wavering around zero is continually maintained. Here they are kept until placed in refrigerator cars and sent to the markets of the world.

Not a human hand touches them from the time they are packed, their every movement being governed by machinery. The conveyor from the wharf to the freezer is more than 2,000 feet in length and is said to be the longest fish conveyor in the world. Inside the freezer, where a chilly atmosphere, are piled tier upon tier the finest mackerel that one could imagine, thousands and thousands of them.

SPEND MORE ON FOREST PROTECTION

Sir Joseph Flavelle. Says People Themselves Must Act Promptly.

Specially written by Sir Joseph Flavelle, Bart.

That we, the Canadian people, who own eighty five per cent of all our forest area, should open wide the gates to unrestrained forest destruction is a spectacle quite unworthy of a nation lays claim to shrewdness and foresight. The people themselves must take on the job of protecting and perpetuating a resource that to the next generation just as much as to the people of 1923.

Do we fully realize that every square mile of standing timber is on a rising market and that vandalism, represented by human-set forest fires, enforced by a higher penalty today than at any previous time? We cannot carry on the business of Canada without forests. Let us face that fact and all that it connotes. There is hardly any price that we cannot afford to pay for the enforcement of forest protection. I do not think it is at all unreasonable to say that no government has any right to extract revenues from the forests to spend on ordinary civil purposes until every effort has been made, and every dollar spent, that will make the forest secure and self-perpetuating.

BOOTLEGGERS IN STIRRING FIGHT

Rivals Engage, In Three-Hour Contest Over Thirty Cases of Liquor.

New York, Aug. 18.—C. Walker, second mate of the steamship Paria, will be questioned by Edward Barnes, assistant collector in the Custom House. The Paria is operated by the Columbian Steamship Company, a subsidiary of the Clyde Line, and operates between the Caribbean and this port. The Paria was originally a United States Shipping Board boat. Mr. Walker will be asked to explain how he was able to sleep through a fight that took place on board his ship last Saturday morning between two rival bands of bootleggers. Hostilities opened at 3 o'clock and at 5 a decision was reached and one of the groups withdrew with thirty cases of liquor in their boat, part of a shipment of benedictine, creme de cordon and old Scotch whiskeys later discovered by customs agents.

At 2 o'clock on Saturday morning the business of bootlegging was being peacefully conducted on board the Paria as she lay in pier 49 North River. About eight men had taken launch alongside and had agreed to buy thirty cases of liquor. The liquor was about to be lowered over the side when larger launch with at least a dozen men aboard put in an appearance. These were "hijackers" who hold up the usual type of bootleggers.

With energy, these twelve assailed the original eight and the battle waged furiously. Through it all the second mate, whose watch it was, slept undisturbed he said. In the end the smaller party was defeated and the twelve got the thirty cases aboard a lighter that was near. The man who commands the lighter crept quietly to the thirty cases and appropriated one. The customs officers later recovered it. After a few minutes the twelve returned and took their twenty-nine cases.

The boatswain, called E. Olsen, went with the twelve, it was reported.

All this would have remained mere gossip in the circles of those who trade in rum, but one of the defeated party told the Custom House about the affair. Several men were sent to the Paria and there in the mail room, which is between decks, ninety-seven cases of outlawed drink was discovered. Capt. L. L. Hayward was greatly surprised when he saw the liquor and said that he had searched the ship about three days before the docked and that the room at that time was devoid of any beverage. He said that he was not on board when the fighting took place. The Paria carries a crew of thirty.

SURGERY IN A TWO-INCH BOX

THE ONLY MEDICINE THAT DID ANY GOOD

Mrs. W. Symons of Moncton, N. B., Was So Sick That Everything She Ate Gave Her Indigestion—Her Husband Tells About Her Sufferings and Her Cure.

Another victory over suffering has been credited to Drecto—that marvelous herb, root and leaf remedy, given by Nature to suffering mankind. Mrs. W. Symonds, of 21 Foundry Street, Moncton, N. B., a woman of 60 years, has suffered interminably from stomach trouble, indigestion, kidney trouble, rheumatism and liver trouble, together with kindred ailments until she discovered Drecto.

Mr. Symonds says: "My wife suffered greatly from stomach trouble and indigestion. Everything she would eat seemed to make her sick. She was also troubled with rheumatism and kidney trouble, but I must say she is making her end and is going to continue the treatment. Drecto is the only medicine that has helped her, even when everything else had failed, and I can strongly recommend it to anyone."

What Drecto did for Mrs. Symonds, it will do for you, who suffer from stomach trouble, indigestion, constipation and similar ailments.

Drecto is being specially introduced in Campbellton by Wran's Drug Store, and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.

INTEREST OF WEST IS AROUSED

Premier Veniot Asked For Further Information Concerning Eastern Problems.

Halifax, N. B., Aug. 18.—The appeal which Premier Veniot made before the Canadian Women's Institute and the Weekly Press delegates concerning the right of the Maritime Provinces, particularly from a standpoint of national trade through "our own ports, has had good effect. He, the Premier, has just received a communication from the secretary of the British Columbia Women's Institute which reads in part as follows:

"I am taking the liberty to ask for information regarding the progress of the Maritime Provinces in connection with the national port at Portland. You explained this so clearly in your address to the press and the Women's Institutes at Fredericton. You asked for the co-operation and support of the west in this cause. Would it be too much to trouble you to send a short, concise statement, one which I could submit to the members of our Institutes in support of British Columbia's ask their support."

Premier Veniot has furnished this request that he have prepared a statement of the winter port case as well as the claims of the port of St. John for summer trade as against Portland.

As the Seasons Pass.
In winter when my eyebrows freeze and skies are cold and clear,
I read about the summer breeze
And wish that it were here;
But when the heat-wave mainstems
And sunshine makes me ill,
I sit and read if Winter comes,
And hope to goah it will.

Danger in Delay.
Alice—Would you advise me to marry the first man that proposes?
Madge—By all means, dear. Don't wait that long if you can help it.

Bots in Horses Restoring Run-Down Soils
In-And-Outers
 How often has the remark been made "When we have a good crop we get nothing from it. The only time prices are good is when we haven't anything to sell?" An old market gardener who made a good living off five acres and retired used to explain his system of cropping in these words:
 "When tomatoes are cheap one year I grow tomatoes the next; when tomatoes are dear one year I don't grow them the next. He was an in-and-outer, but his policy was the opposite to the one so naturally followed by the people who complain that the market always bores them. When pork is selling at twenty-eight cent-a pound dressed, it looks like a profitable product and there is a great demand for four week old pigs at six dollars each. By the time these are ready for market the price of pork has dropped to about half and, in disgust, the in-and-outer goes out of pig raising only to find that, in six months pork is again bringing a good price. Of course, the fact that fall litters are harder to raise and mature than spring litters is a contributory cause of this ebb and flow in pork production, but it is not the main one.
 When the price of pork is high, some farmers try this system but most of them get in again, richer in experience if not in pocket. What then is the lesson? When, if ever, does it pay to follow the "in-and-out" plan? It can be done safely by the farmer who knows his market thoroughly and can watch the operations of his fellow producers and when necessary can get a better price for his product than the average man's consideration.
 The only practical means of adjusting supply to demand is through a very effective continuous appraisal of the world's markets and producers and highly organized co-operative commodity marketing associations.
 Both of these are on their way and he would be a rash prophet who would say they are not worth the average farmer's consideration. But at present the solution of each man's problem must rest with himself. Let him grow the crops which are best suited to himself, his soil and his marketing facilities, and he will be able to handle his own supply and demand in the future markets.
 The man who grows only a single crop is gambling on the market all the time. It is not good policy to carry all your eggs in one basket when so many other people are going to handle the basket.

Western Financier Held By Two Deputies—Losses Exceed Five Million Dollars.
 LOS ANGELES, Aug. 18.—A. W.
 Coote, formerly head of the brokerage firm of A. W. Coote & Co., which closed June 18, after the failure of Knauth, Nached & Kuhne in New York, which he had headed here, was yesterday by the Grand Jury of an indictment charging him in seven counts with embezzlement. Ball was fixed at $50,000, and he was held in his apartments by two deputies instead of being taken to jail.
 Losses will total between $5,000,000
 and $7,000,000, according to W. H.
 Moore, Jr., appointed receiver for the company, while a creditors' committee said they would not exceed $2,000,000.
 Between 4,000 and 7,000 persons were affected by the failure, which was established by embezzlement. Coote was alleged to have started in the brokerage business here in 1902 with $500.

CONDITIONS BAD
IN PENAL COLONIES
Declared to Be Little Better Than Slavery At It's Worst.
 Paris, Aug. 21.—Great prison reforms, in which French prison colonies will adopt the American idea that it is always possible to make criminals profitable citizens, are to be undertaken as a result of a report published and started by one of the leading Paris newspapers, which has shown life in the "Devil's colony" at Cayenne to be little less than slavery at its worst.
 As a matter of fact, French jurists who condemn convicts to serve time in one of these prison colonies far below the equator apparently have not been aware they were condemning first to penal servitude for life, though though the sentence read only seven years. But a curious phrase in the penal code declares that those condemned to periods less than five years must remain on the island as "free prisoners" for a term equal to their sentence, whereas those condemned for longer periods must remain as free prisoners till death liberates them.
 Consequently, their terms served,
 the prisoners spend years writing to the president of the republic asking pardons, and at length join the ranks of those willing to do anything so long as they can earn enough to buy an occasional sheet of paper, and forget their farming pay. Quite true. The farmers are the easiest people in the world to persuade that anything is right if the facts are behind the talk.
 They will want to know, for example, just what entered in to the cost of the experimental farm, manager, when they calculated their outlay to be large to the acre for the cultivation of oats. Overhead expense is not all confined to labor and materials and intelligent farmers will require information as to how the statements were made up.

Campbellton
 The editor of the Western Star, Carling, N.M., has the following about Campbellton in a recent issue: "The editor was here in June.
 At Campbellton there was also much industrial activity, nobody seemed idle. Like Newcastle it is built on the bank of a magnificent sheet of water, and it is an important fishing port. The scenery is beautiful in this section of New Brunswick, somewhat resembling western Newfoundland.
 Only a few years ago Campbellton was practically wiped out by fire but an extensive town has since been built. The background of the town is formed by Sugar Loaf Mountain towering 2000 feet above sea level,
 from which a magnificent view is obtained of the surrounding country."

 then turn down a newspaper advertising solicitor on the grounds that advertising does not pay."

ASSIST THE FARMERS.

Because of the exceptionally poor crop of hay in northern New Brunswick the farmers of this district are facing a serious problem. They must import hay at a very high price or kill their stock for beef this fall. If the farmers are obliged to kill off their stock the whole country will suffer, and to prevent this a remedy for the hay shortage is being sought. Throughout some districts of New Brunswick, notably along the St. John river and in Nova Scotia hay is an abundant crop and is being sold at from 88 to 112 per ton. If a reasonable freight rate could be obtained our farmers would be enabled to winter stock for about $20.00 a head which would prevent the necessity of killing them off. Councillor Murchie has offered the following resolution at today's meeting of the Union of N. B. Municipalities:—

"Whereas the crop of hay has this season been almost a complete failure in the northern part of New Brunswick, and the farmers residing there have not a sufficient quantity of hay to feed their stock during the coming winter. Be it resolved that this Convention urgently request the railroad authorities to reduce the freight rates on hay for farmers only, to enable the said farmers to supply their needs at a reasonable transportation cost; and it is further resolved that copies of this resolution be forwarded to the Premier of this Province and to the Minister of Agriculture, with a request that they take the matter up at once with the railway authorities."

It is hoped that the passing of this resolution will have some weight with the railway authorities, but it will need the co-operation of every person possible to bring this matter to a successful issue.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

Estimates of a wheat crop of more than 300,000,000 bushels for the Province of Saskatchewan are made by officials of the Department of Agriculture.

An English inventor has succeeded in reducing the amount of carbon monoxide in household gas to a degree which will render it harmless when inhaled.

How French Got Nickname.
The nickname "frogs" was first applied to the people of Paris by the courtiers of the streets. They were so quaggy that the inhabitants of the city of Paris called them "frogs" (John Frog); while the city was known as "Lutetia" or "Lutetia."

PROPER PLACING OF MIRROR.

Master to Which Housewife Should Give Careful Attention.
A mirror in a dull gold frame is a very decorative and useful item in the bathroom. It is to be placed carefully thought out. A long mirror at the end of a narrow sink is not a wonder towards giving a sense of light and space, especially if it runs right down to the sink, with a few flowers in an old brass pot standing in front of it.

A mirror along one side of the bath will protect the walls and impart an air of cleanliness to a stuffy bathroom—an apartment which in small flats so frequently suffers from lack of light and air. Over the dressing room mantelpiece is a favorite place for a large mirror, but it is rather an ordinary idea, and may be improved by placing the looking-glass across one corner of the room, in front of a small table bearing a china. If this corner is directly opposite the door, so much the better; it will give quite a vista to the room.

Never hang a mirror on the wall facing the head of the bed. It will irritate the occupant, and throw any light it catches straight into the eyes.

At the base of a staircase mirror is perhaps found of the greatest advantage, and it hangs in such a position there should be nothing else near it, and the walls should be either plainly distempred or papered.

STERNOUS KIND OF SPOKE.

Angling With Rod and Line for the Swordfish.
Swordfishing for broadbill swordfish with rod and reel no doubt heads the list of the most strenuous kinds of angling. The remarkable form of sport has been practiced for a number of years on the Pacific coast in the neighborhood of Santa Catalina Island and to a less extent, and more recently, on our own Atlantic seaboard. It is the most fascinating of all forms of fishing. The fisherman fishes in the Health Builder. There is considerable difficulty in finding the progressive fisherman as they visit the sea, and more yet when found in persuading them to bite. Once hooked the swordfish is a very resourceful antagonist. The angler never knows when the fish is going to attack his boat. No matter how productive of superlative catches the swordfish is a season's triumph. Many have gone down after year for swordfish without success, but they keep on doggedly in the knowledge that a lucky turn of events may at any moment bring achievement.

NEVER AGAIN TO SEE HIS MOTHER.

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., Aug. 21.—The man without a country has a rival here in Fred Litson, 27, who is under court orders never again to see his mother, Mrs. Harriet Litson, 71. Litson was convicted in justice court of assault and battery, it being charged by his father that he beat the aged woman and threw her out of the front door of the family home into the street.

After sentence had been passed the father turned to his son and said: "Please stay away from me too. I don't ever want to see you again."

BANDITS HOLD UP TRAINS IN TEXAS.

Bartlesville, Okla., Aug. 21.—Missouri Kansas and Texas passenger train No. 133, south bound, was held up by bandits south of Okesa, Okla., at midnight. The train crew engaged the bandits in a gun fight, and at least one man had been wounded. An ambulance from Pawhuska was ordered to meet the train at Nelogany. The robbers escaped with 20 packages of registered mail. Value is unknown.

U. S. TRAINING SHIP SUNK IN ST. LAWRENCE GULF.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The U. S. S. Gopher, a training ship attached to the Ninth Naval Reserve district, was sunk yesterday in the Gulf of St. Lawrence during a gale, according to a message received by the Navy Department, which said there was no loss of life.

The ship went down in 36 fathoms of water, said the message, which was sent from Quebec and was signed "Signal Service." The telegram to the United States Navy Department followed:—

"Following message received from radio station at Grandtrot, Magdalen Islands: 'Following from United States Steamship Wadnah 10.10 a.m., U. S. S. Gopher sunk in Gulf of St. Lawrence in northwest gale. Thirty-six fathoms of water; latitude, 46 degrees, 47 minutes north; longitude, 62 degrees west. No loss of life.'"

A variety program, in which comedy will predominate in the bill for Friday and Saturday at the Opera House, "Mud and Sand" a screaming burlesque featuring Stan Laurel is the feature of the program. This three reel comedy is a special looking and comes highly recommended as a laugh producer. Then there is the usual series of instrumental "The Days of Buffalo Bill" and in addition a special number of the Pathé News, a splendidly illustrated review of the glorious career of the Asop's tables series.

Altogether a well rounded out bill worth anyone's time to see.

COOL WEATHER IN THE DOMINION.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Cool weather, accompanied by rain in some parts, is prevailing in nearly all sections of the Dominion. White River, Ontario, apparently did its best to maintain its reputation by resisting frost, but only managed to sink the mercury to 34 above, as the lowest during the night.

Prospects are for continued coolness all through the Dominion for a day or two, without likelihood of frost, but at least not south of the Arctic Circle.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Corinne E. Verner The news of the death of Mrs. Corinne E. Verner, which occurred Saturday, August 18th at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Belle-Isle, Rochester, N. Y., was received here with profound regret.

Mrs. Verner was the wife of the late Doctor Verner of this town. After a high mass of requiem at St. Augustine Church, Rochester, N. Y., on Monday, the remains were brought to Campbellton, the funeral taking place on Wednesday morning from the home of Mr. John Harquet to the Church of Our Lady of Snows, where there was a short service, Reverend Father Berube officiating.

She leaves to mourn her loss, the following children: Mrs. J. C. Belle-Isle, Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. J. E. Pinault, Mont Joli; Miss Corinne Verner, Montreal; and six sisters, Mrs. W. J. Tremblay, Quebec; Mrs. Hamel, Quebec; Mrs. Hudlet, Paris, France; and the Misses d'Estimenville, of Montreal, Quebec and Montgarny, respectively.

Among those who attended the funeral were Colonel J. E. Pinault, Mont Joli, Que.; Mr. J. C. Belle-Isle, Rochester, N. Y.; Miss Aggie d'Estimenville, Montgarny, Que.; and many friends of the late Mrs. Verner.

MacLEAN-RAMSEY

At the manse, Dalhousie, N. B., on Tuesday evening, Aug. 21st, 1923, there occurred a pretty wedding when Dorothy A. third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Ramsey of St. Leonard, N. B., the bride of Edmund MacLean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. MacLean of Dalhousie Junction, N. B., the Rev. E. J. Shaw officiating. The bride was becomingly attired in navy blue with hat to match and for nosegay.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the groom's home, Dalhousie Junction, where the happy couple received the congratulations of their many friends, after which Mr. and Mrs. MacLean left on a brief wedding trip.

MOTOR CLIMBS TREE

Vineyard Haven, Aug. 21.—One of the queerest of motor accidents happened on the state highway in West Tisbury, when a small car struck an oak tree bent to an angle of 45 degrees, shinned up the entire height of the tree and made a perfect catapult curve, landing in the middle of another tree 20 feet away.

A branch of this tree turned the car over and fell to the ground. Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Richards, who were in the car, were sped into the underbrush, but were not seriously hurt. The police could hardly credit the story of what happened, yet the scrap of board and bent tree were mute witnesses.

Amundsen Plans to Make Trip to the North Next Year. Nome, Alaska, Aug. 21.—Captain Amundsen, who arrived here last night on the coast guard cutter Bear, announced that he would try next year to fly to the North Pole from Spitzbergen. Captain Amundsen, who last spring abandoned an attempt to make a flight over the pole from Wainwright, Alaska, because the landing gear of his plane broke in a test, said yesterday that the machine was unsuitable for the project. He declares that it had not sufficient power to lift two persons and the fuel necessary for a flight to the north pole.

Smallpox vaccination generally regarded as a modern practice, dates back more than 2,000 years, according to Dr. W. G. McCoy, director of the Hygiene Laboratory of the United States Public Health Service. "When the ancients noticed that recovery from the first attack gave immunity from others," says Doctor McCoy, "they began inoculating their fellows, first by exposing well persons to others ill with the disease and later by inoculation."

Bachel's Tomb Jewish Shrine

Bachel's tomb, about a mile from Bethlehem, is a sacred shrine of the Jews. It is the only spot of Old Testament interest to which the Jews have exclusive rights, and the chief temple of Jerusalem has the key to it. They assemble there from time to time for prayer. They do the same with regard to the graves of their forefathers. The Moslems refuse this privilege to them.

Solving Some of the Problems of Teaching Good Manners

Where, if not at home, shall our children learn good manners? They are made to behave according to certain standards at school, but the manners of good breeding are only learned at home. A certain amount of good manners is required before a pupil is accepted in so-called "finishing" school, and if manners are not taught at home, they are picked up here and there as the child realizes their need. But they do not know why they do certain things or the laws that govern the courtesy expected from one who is well-bred. This is all up to the home teacher and she should do her part if she wants her pupils to be a credit to her and take their places in the sun.

First comes the politeness and consideration one owes another expressed in everyday life—not in company manners—gentle of voice, kind in criticism, polite to one another and servants, being slow to ask favors, but ready to grant them to those who ask things in reason. They are attributes to be fostered—the polite that comes from knowing what to do and when to do it comes as the result of careful training.

Table manners need constant attention until the child is so sure of itself that mistakes seldom creep in. This means that the home table must be kept right up-to-date, so that manners learned there will bear fruit elsewhere, as well. Carelessness should not pass uncorrected, but as the child—not before others—of its shortcomings. It is apt to make a child stubborn and resentful to be corrected in public, and so the lesson is often lost.

A good dancing school is often an excellent medium for teaching the little courtesies between the children of the dance age. Envy and jealousy often creep in regarding dress at such schools, and the wise mother has a plain talk with her children and explains that it is her wish that they dress very simply—in fine materials, but nothing elaborate—until they are of a suitable age. It matters not whether rich or in moderate circumstances, simplicity is always in the best taste. They are to learn deportment and dancing, not to be fashion models. Children always are happier after plain talks with mother and understand them than they are not being stingy, but has a definite reason for not fussing them all up.

Another too often neglected field is that of letter writing—formal as well as social. There are certain letters we are called upon to write and it is a good idea to learn the polite forms for them. It is only after maturity that we can afford to be individual in these things. The importance of the "bread and butter" letter is so often overlooked, and it is such a little thing to do to openly acknowledge one's gratitude to a hostess who has taken no end of trouble in order that we might have a good time in her home. Letters of sympathy to bereaved friends are often neglected or side-tracked because people "don't know what to say." The art of writing formal letters of this sort should be taught. It is a part of the social structure of good manners. Then the letters of acceptance for invitations, both formal and informal, should be considered. The period of time in which they should be answered and the forms of answering change very little with the passage of time, for the best way has been chosen and is generally followed. It is knowing about these things and bowing to them that stamps us as being well-bred.

It is an art to write a letter asking a favor—for a donation to something with which you may be connected, or to ask for a job. This letter of approach should be courteous, direct and to the point, clear and well-worded. It is the letter oftentimes that wins the position rather than personality. The social letter is a question that

Recipes for Delicious East Indian Dainties

The pickles and sauces made in India are not as well known in our country as they deserve to be, for they are very delicious and make a most agreeable change from those familiar to us. Many come ready put up at fair prices, and there are a number of practical recipes that may be used to prepare those for which the materials may be bought here. Some substitutes can be found also for the things not to be found here in our markets. Apples, pineapples, citron, yellow peppers and yellow tomatoes, crab apples and cauliflower heads, take the place of a number of native things used in their pickles and chutneys.

Cleanliness is the first requisite of perfect pickling. Wash all fruits or vegetables before cutting them up. Use a stainless steel knife, stir with new wooden spoons and cook in porcelain-lined or agate-ware kettles. Use enamel strainers, cheesecloth squares instead of towels for wringing out the vegetables under cold water to keep them from turning black until cooked. Have bottles, cans, jars or crocks all ready scalded to receive the cooked produce. Use the best salt with the "free-running" grade of brine. Many of these recipes call for brown sugar and many for green ginger.

Dal Chutney.
Halve and stone two pounds of good dates, seed one pound of large raisins, wipe, halve and stone two pounds of fresh apricots—ripe and firm. Put in a preserve-kettle with a pound of brown sugar, a half-cupful of salt, two peeled and chopped garlic bulbs, four seeded and coarsely chopped peppers, four ounces of washed and chopped green ginger root, a quart and a pint of mild vinegar and a teaspoonful of mixed ground spices. Melt all together, then bring to boiling-point and boil gently over a medium fire for two hours, stirring frequently as the mass rocks. If it gets too thick, add a little more vinegar when done. When cool, bottle and seal.

Best Chutney.
Peel two small bunches of young beets. Quarter them and put into a preserve-kettle with just enough vinegar to cover and parboil them until tender. Drain and then chop the beets very finely with two ounces of garlic and two ounces of green ginger root. Return to the kettle, adding a quart of fresh vinegar, one-half cupful of salt, a pound of brown sugar and a half-teaspoonful of mixed spice. Boil all together until the mass is of jam-like consistency—but not too thick. Cool, then bottle and seal. The vinegar in this beet chutney may be used up in salad, as it is flavored and colored with the beet juice.

Pickled Eggs.
Boil hard two dozen fresh eggs. Cool and shell them without breaking. Put into the preserve-kettle two ounces of chopped sweet peppers, two ounces of thinly-sliced garlic, two ounces of sliced green ginger root, one ounce of black pepper, eight ounces of salt, one ounce of cloves, one ounce of brown sugar and a quart of vinegar. Boil for one hour, then strain. Return to the kettle, lay in the eggs carefully and boil gently for one hour. Add a little more vinegar if it has boiled away too much. When cool, pack in wide-mouthed jars, cover with the vinegar and stop away.

is open to a great deal of criticism. There must be a reason for their correspondence and an interest that makes it worth while, if it is to be successful. Subject matter should be of interest to both writer and recipient. Excuses, apologies, compliments and unpleasant subjects are to be avoided. Bright, newsworthy gossip letters—are always a pleasure to receive, and it takes training and thoughtful interest to write them.

WOMEN WORKERS INVADE NEARLY ALL OCCUPATIONS

There is Scarcely a Line of Endeavor Formerly Restricted to Men in Which Women Are Not Making Good Today—Some Instances of Their Success.

According to the 1920 census, more than eight and a half million women are employed in the United States, which is to say that every four working persons in the country is a woman. These figures, which are a factor in a sphere formerly professions formerly restricted to men. Increasing numbers of women appear enrolled as florists, poultry raisers, dairy farmers, stock raisers, gardeners, florists, fruit growers and nursery culturists, owners and managers of timber plantations, operators of mechanical and electrical engineering, architects, designers and draftsmen, apprentices, engravers, chauffeurs and dentists.

Women doctors have become a matter of course; women lawyers scarcely less so, and women in the ministry, according to the census report, increased from 685 in 1910, to 1,785 in 1920. The Society of Friends has, like the Salvation Army, stood for sex equality from the beginning, and in the United States at least forty sects receive women freely into the pulpits. Recently a conference of the reform wing of Jewish rabbis passed a resolution allowing women to be ordained on equal terms with men.

Some Professions for Women.
The Women's Activities Exhibition, held last September, under the auspices of the New York League of Business and Professional Women, showed the number of new avenues continually opening. It was remarkable to find a growing movement among women to own and manage such individual businesses as small specialty shops, book shops, tea rooms, beauty parlors and shops for the sale of confectionery, handmade jewelry, handicrafts of all sorts; but it was surprising to note the less usual occupations indicated by the exhibition, such as banking, investment, building, insurance and manufacturing.

One woman was selling real estate; in the booth adjoining, her neighbor sold all securities. Miss Katherine Blanc, of Brooklyn, an optician by profession, has an elaborate exhibit, including apparatus for the grinding of lenses. Miss Sarah Barclay De Forest was there, representing the big varnish factory that she owns and manages, and a third, Brookville, Miss Mary Ryan, represented the large paint business which she took over from her father six years ago and carries on successfully. Other women appeared in their professional roles of landscape gardeners, purchasing agents, caterers, decorators, stained glass; there was even a woman miller, all the way from Kansas. Mrs. John Wallace Riddle, wife of the United States Ambassador to Argentina, maintains, under her maiden name of Theodore Pope, an architect's office in Madison Avenue, where she employs a staff of men to carry out her ideas. Eleanor Raymond, Wellesley 1909 girl of the Boston firm of Frost & Raymond, has engaged in the new field of so-called "domestic architecture" combining the arts of landscaping, house-planning and interior decorating.

Last fall, at the convention of the American Bankers' Association in New York, appeared a goodly number of women delegates; not only cashiers, but managers and even presidents of the organizations that they had been deputed to represent.

Sells Structural Steel.
Out in Terre Haute, Ind., is a woman who sells structural steel. Mrs. Jean Sharrers places competitive bids on buildings, and, according to the contracts she has won, is proving this to be a good field for women. Her preparation for this work included a thorough study of steel, which fitted her to make necessary recommendations as to quality, price, etc. In cases needing quick handling, she frequently makes bids. It is said, without any preliminary consultation with the home office in Chicago.

By way of contrast of the time-honored tradition as to women's work, it is interesting to note that a survey of the Patent Office at Washington shows, among the inventions and discoveries attributable to women, an internal combustion engine; also a black signal system. At the Mount Rice Power Plant, which generates electricity for the Kansas City Railway Company, a girl graduate of the mechanical department of the University of Illinois is employed. Miss Clare Nicolet tips the scales, incidentally, at 95 pounds, and among the huge turbines which she works in overalls, it is remarked that she "uses waste as deftly as a powder puff."

The direction of being the first woman certified public accountant in Rhode Island and the second in the United States, came recently to Miss Adele Egan of Providence, who passed the examinations held by the State Board of Accountancy with an almost perfect marking. She is employed as a woman. These figures, which are a factor in a sphere formerly professions formerly restricted to men. and assist them with their purchases. From overseas comes tidings of a woman diver, Miss Naylor, who has been employed to search at Tobermory Bay, in Scotland, for treasure lost by a ship of the Spanish Armada. Miss Naylor frequently makes dives of ten fathoms.

Every moving picture studio now finds it expedient to employ some body, usually a woman, to take down notes on the scenes as they are filmed and make sure that the costumes check up properly from day to day. Likewise, when the final film is run off somebody has to survey the final product as a whole and make the necessary cuts.

This she arranges by sending notices to the society columns of the newspapers whenever celebrities register at the hotel. Likewise, she endeavors to drum up trade for the establishment—wedding parties, receptions and other social affairs by calling up society persons who might be in line for such service and explaining the advantages to be obtained at that hotel beyond all others.

Out in Vancouver, B. C., has been started a taxicab company, "wired and controlled and entirely "manned" by women; many of the chauffeurs were motor corps girls in the war, when they gained their necessary experience. There are several licensed taxicab-drivers in Greater New York.

In Massachusetts a short time ago, Mrs. Jennie Crocker, of Cliftondale, wife of the skipper of the schooner, "Bath Manly," applied for a license as master of sailing vessels empowering her to command and navigate any sailing vessel on any waters.

The large department stores offer sundry opportunities for women outside and beyond the usual buying and selling ends of the game. In the personnel department a woman gives special attention to the recreation of the employees, her job being to organize picnics, dances, choruses, clubs, athletic teams and an amazing array of varied activities. Every day has its "comparison shoppers," who visit the other department stores to observe, and often buy the goods of competing merchants in order that information on prices, assortments, qualities, etc., may be available for the buyers and merchandise managers. Training is not necessary for this work, but it demands a woman with an interest in merchandise, some knowledge of it and good powers of observation. The MYSTERY OF THE SMOKE LIGGER

BY RANDALL PARRISH

ILLUSTRATIONS BY J. H. AEWELL

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—In a New York jewelry store Philip Weaver, District Attorney, notices a small boy who attracts him. He purchases it. Later he discovers in a secret compartment a writing giving a clue to a revolutionary movement in this country leading to overthrow the Chinese government. The writing mentions a rendezvous, and Weaver decides to investigate.

CHAPTER II.—Finding the place mentioned in the writing apparently deserted, Weaver visits a saloon in the vicinity. A woman in the place is met and, seemingly by appointment, and Weaver, his suspicions aroused, follows her. They go to the designated meeting place, a abandoned iron factory.

CHAPTER III.—Weaver, grown accustomed to the gloom, made out dim outlines, encouraging further exploration. Discovering simple spaces, and what felt to my feet like a walk, I turned the corner in search. At that moment the gate latch clicked sharply, and I sank down into the black ground below, every nerve tingling with alarm. The gate opened almost noiselessly, yet my straining eyes could detect its stealthy movement, and hear the crunch of a heavy footstep on the cinder path within. The fellow evidently had the key, and even in that darkness, for there was no hesitancy in his movements, no uncertainty. He faded away along the wall, and I became aware that he had turned about the further corner. That would naturally mean that he had rounded the corner and bumped into me. I had evidently been searching the wrong side.

Assured the man had vanished, and that he sought entrance to the building through some passage well known to him, I crept forth along the end wall, crouched low to the ground, using every precaution against discovery. All that was venturous in the line held high carnival and nothing of sinister now could have held me back. I reached the corner around which the fellow had disappeared, but in the intense blackness could perceive no movement beyond, no sign of any presence. I listened eagerly, scarcely venturing to breathe, and in another instant was rewarded by hearing the gentle tap of knuckles on wood a few feet away; there could be no doubt of the number—two raps, a pause, three raps; the very signal mentioned in the letter. I waited, still breathless, until certain what had occurred, yet perceived the man ahead had been given entrance.

Unable longer to withstand the strain I took a step forward into the darkness. At that instant the latch of the gate clicked behind me.

CHAPTER III.

Within the Factory Walls. I stood as though paralyzed, with one foot uplifted, a hand pressed against the wall, unable to move. There was nothing I could do to avert discovery, no place in which I could crouch in hiding. The room moved swiftly, knowing his way through the darkness, and I had scarcely opportunity to even glance backward when he rounded the corner and bumped into me.

"What the h—ll?" he exclaimed, started at the encounter. "Why, I—"

"You're Charlett, ain't you?" "Yes," I muttered, the assurance frightened out of me; then added humbly, "I couldn't remember the sign."

The fellow laughed softly, releasing his grip on my coat.

"If you attended more meetings you'd be better perfect," he said, his English without an accent. "Where have you been the last month—out of town?"

"In Washington," I ventured, praying the swift answer might suffice.

"Oh, I see," more heartily. "So you were, the one Alva sent? Did the woman come back with you?"

The woman! Who could be mean but the same girl who had been waiting in the saloon? I had ventured already too far to draw back; I must take yet another chance, an answer.

"Not with me; that would be too risky. She is here, though."

"Good enough. That means money. Let's go in."

He pushed past, and I followed, to be able to determine in my own mind what to do. The fellow in the darkness evidently mistook me for some one of the gang. His confidence in my identity as Charlett might give me entrance—but what then? That I was not Charlett would certainly be received by the first gleam of light, and I would be hapless. I was alone, unarmed, and these fellows, beyond comparison, were engaged in a desperate game. I am sure I should never have ventured it had not my companion suddenly turned and grasped my arm, leading me by straight ahead, concealed by the hanging curtain. I stopped, cautiously forward, listening for some guiding sound from beyond that barrier, afraid to draw it aside and take a blind plunge into the unknown.

Several of these speaking Spanish, yet in such low tones I could distinguish only an occasional emphatic word. There was no door between us; only that thick, hanging curtain, and I ventured far enough to draw this little apartment to peer through with one eye. Beyond was a reasonably large room, but so dimly lighted as to be scarcely visible from end to end. I could discern men peering scrutinized. I held my breath expectantly.

"Who is there?" the voice was a mere whisper, so close as to startle me. "Gasper Wine" was the answer, in the same low tone, "let."

"What?"

"Cervantes."

"But there are two of you."

"Oh, that's all right. It's all right. Just: I'll vouch for him."

The fellow inside grumbled something in indistinguishable Spanish, but opened the door silently, just far enough for us to slip through one at a time. I felt Wine press past me, and was aware that the guard closed and barred the door, but could see nothing, not even my own hand before my eyes.

A latch clicked softly, and a dim ray of light broke in upon us from a revealed passage beyond. It was so faint as to scarcely reveal features visible, and as my coat collar was upturned, I pressed forward close behind Wine without discovery. I could perceive something of the fellow now,

HAD DELIGHTFUL OUTING.

About twenty-five members of the Campbellton Baptist Church Choir enjoyed a motor drive and general outing Wednesday afternoon. The party gathered at the cottage of Mr. H. J. Currie at Upper Charles and all had a most delightful time despite the fact that one auto had to be propelled by hand power for a distance of nearly two miles.

ALLEGED SLAYER OF GAME WARDEN.

St. Florence, Que., Aug. 18.—Arrested this morning in his home, the day after his daughter had been married to a resident of this parish and while the festivities were still going on, Edmond Girard, a lumberjack, will have to answer the charge of murder preferred against him by Chief Detective Rioux as a sequel of the shooting of Joseph Blaquieres. The latter, a game warden, was found shot on the banks of the Bonaventure River, a few miles from here, two weeks ago.

B. C. LUMBER MILLS DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Vancouver, Aug. 22.—Fire last night destroyed the mills of the British Columbia Lumber Company on False Creek, causing a loss estimated at $300,000. The flames were driven by a heavy wind and had gained great headway when the fire department arrived. It is believed that the fire originated in one of the saw-dust burners. The drying shed and the kiln were the only buildings saved.

OLD EUROPEAN TOWNS

NAPLES IS MUCH MORE ANCIENT THAN IMPERIAL ROME. Naples is the Oldest City in France Having Been Built by a Colony of Phoenicians, and Even in the Far Off Days of the Emperor Augustus it Was an Important Seaport.

It is a common notion that Rome the "Eternal City" is the oldest city in Europe. It is true, Rome was founded upward of 700 years before the birth of Christ, and the ruins of three successive cities lie more than 60 feet deep, under many of the present streets. Yet, Rome is many centuries younger than Naples, just as Naples, so long famed for its climate, beautiful bay and throngs of beggars, is itself ages younger than the oldest city in Europe, though it is the successor of a town occupying almost the same site at the foot of Vesuvius, centuries before its first recorded eruption by the ancient Greeks. Ghent, Bruges, Antwerp, and Amsterdam, looking upon its old towers, are middle-aged only in comparison with many others. They took their rise from the revival of commerce in Europe at the close of the so-called Dark Ages. Yet they are older than the cities of the Mediterranean, including the Venetians, who had built their huts in the marshes of the Sirois, and the cities of the north, in the middle of the twelfth century, and from the houses clustering round the bay for protecting the towers arose. Berlin is a strippling in age alongside Cologne, for the latter was built by the Romans during the reign of Augustus and was considered ancient before Berlin ever was.

Felt the Bishop Was Safe. When Phillips brooks, the great "low church" bishop of Massachusetts, made his visitation at the Church of the Advent, Boston, celebrated for its elaborate ritual, the rector considerably inquired if the bishop would like the usual service simplified. "Oh, no," was the reply. "Turn everything on!" A young but well-trained acolyte was told to attend the bishop, and before the towering figure paced, with impressive dignity, the small rec-chauked aisle.

Early Architecture. Imhotep was the earliest architect to put up a building of stone masonry. He flourished just after 3000 B.C. and his name deserves far greater fame than those of the early sages or conquerors themselves. The erection of Imhotep's terraced buildings was but a step toward the construction of a pyramid. A generation later, so rapid was the progress, the king's architects were building the great pyramid of Giza (2800 B.C.). From the earliest piece of stone masonry to the construction of the great pyramids, the art of architecture and a half elapsed. Most of this advance was made during the thirteenth century. B.C. Such progress is the control of mechanical power can be found in no other period of the century.
