Of this number the bodies of two persons were taken to White River Junction, and thence to their homes; 22 were brought to an undertaking establishment at this city, and one is at a hospital at Hanover.

Thirteen of the dead have been identified.

Hanover, Sept. 16.—Twelve of the twenty-seven persons who were taken to a hospital suffering from injuries received at the railroad accident at West Canaan yesterday, which caused the death of twenty-five persons, had recovered sufficiently to leave the institution today, and but fifteen persons still remained there. None of the injured persons still at the hospital was in a dangerous condition, the injuries in the main consisting of slight contusions, bruises and sprains.

The body of an unidentified boy, about eight years old, who died during the night, remains at the hospital.

The injured persons at the hospital included:
Charles St. Pierre, Isle Verte, Que.
Philip Gagnon, Sherbrooke, Que.,

White River Junction, Vt., Sept. 15.—A fatal head-on collision between the southbound Quebec express and a northbound freight train on the Concord division of the Boston and Maine Railway occurred four miles north of Canaan station early today, due to a mistake in train dispatchers' orders, and from a demolished passenger coach there were taken 25 dead and dying and 27 other passengers more or less wounded.

Nearly all those who were in the fatal car were returning from a fair at Sherbrooke, Quebec, 160 miles north.

The conductor of the freight train was given to understand that he had plenty of time to reach a siding by the night operator at Canaan station.

Fair Board Will Have Surplus; Just How Much Is Not Yet Known

Secretary Hunt Makes a Statement to The Advertiser—Expenditure Not Heavy.

The Western Fair board will have a surplus in spite of the bad weather encountered during the first part of last week. That was the statement of Secretary Hunt this morning to an Advertiser reporter.

The fair board will have a surplus, a right, declared Mr. Hunt. "Our receipts were not as large as last year, but neither was our expenditure so great. I do not know what the surplus will be, but it will be fair. I cannot approximate it yet. We are paying out the prize money today, and making up our prize sheets. We will know approximately tonight when the finance committee of the fair board meets."

460 KILLED AND 603 INJURED IN YEAR'S RAILWAY ACCIDENTS

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Ottawa, Sept. 16.—The returns of railway accidents made to the railway commission for the 12 months up to April 1 last show that there were 460 killed and 603 injured. This is made up of 42 passengers killed and 210 injured, 212 employees killed and 317 injured. Others killed were 206 and 76 injured. There were 41 persons killed and 22 injured on level crossings 95 were killed and 32 injured by trespass on right of way, and 46 were killed and 29 injured in working on the tracks. In head-on collisions 44 were killed and 109 injured. Sixty-one bodies were found on the track and railway bridges.

A Big Demand for English Papers

Local newsdealers seem to be equally divided on the question of the report which comes from Toronto to the effect that the sale of English literature has greatly increased in Canada in the past few years and that the Canadian public is becoming educated to the foreign newspapers.

One very prominent newsman stated this morning that his business in English papers had increased over three hundred per cent in the last two years, while another equally as prominent a dealer declares that he was continually cutting the English publications off his list as they were a poor paying proposition. The English people, he declares, were not consistent. One week they would cry out for one of their home papers, and the next week they would have become educated to the local sheets. As far as Canadians buying foreign papers, he didn't sell one a month in that manner.

The newsdealer who had enjoyed an increase in his sale of foreign papers gave the opinion that the reduced rates at which the English papers were now sold had a great deal to do with the increase in sales.

An English paper that formerly sold for five cents could now be obtained for three cents. English magazines were still rather high in price, and were not profitable for the dealers for the reason that the better class books could be found in the public libraries, where they can be read free.

Dundas Car Struck a Laundry Wagon

Presumably becoming imbued with the notion that his driver was staying away too long, a horse hitched to one of the wagons of the Reliable Laundry Co., which had been left standing midway between William and Maitland streets, on Dundas, tied to a light ball of iron, Saturday evening took a notion to move on and stepped in front of a west bound street car with the result that three wheels of the wagon were completely demolished and the shafts considerably damaged.

The wagon and horse were standing in the north side of Dundas street facing the east, while the car was coming from the opposite direction. The car, which was No. 94 on the West London line, was coming along rather slowly, and apparently the motorman thought that the horse and wagon would clear the track in time to avoid a collision.

The horse was uninjured. The young Chinaman who had charge of the horse and wagon was in a nearby house delivering some laundry at the time of the accident. When he learned of the collision he stated that in the future he would use a heavier hitching weight.

Engineer Graydon Sounds Warning

City Engineer Graydon has taken into consideration the large crowds who are anxious to hear His Lordship, Bishop Ingram at St. Paul's Cathedral tomorrow, and has written a letter to Canon Dann warning him that no chairs must be put in the aisles of the cathedral under any circumstances, and refers him to the city bylaw governing such cases.

Mr. Graydon had been informed that chairs were already being put in the aisles to accommodate the large number of people who were not seated. He will detail police at the cathedral to keep the aisles clear.

CLEVELAND DYING

Former United States President Has Not Long to Live.

New York, Sept. 15.—"We must all be prepared for bad news from Princeton," said a Democrat of prominence tonight who passed through New York City on his way to his home up the country, "because Mr. Cleveland's health is falling rapidly. He is troubled with gout in his feet, which is spreading to his knees, and has fallen off in weight 40 pounds within three months. Mr. Cleveland does not quite appreciate his condition, but Mrs. Cleveland does."

From other sources it was learned that Mr. Cleveland has given up all interest in public affairs and is prepared for the worst.

OFFICIALS DENY THE BLOCKING OF CROSSING

G. T. R. Men Put Another Light on the Richmond Street Affair.

Grand Trunk officials deny that the Richmond street crossing was blocked 25 minutes Saturday noon. No. 6, the train in question, came in at 11:53 a. m., and went out at 12:03, just ten minutes. These are the figures given by the officials of the road, and registered. The officials claim that the company has enough to answer for without taxing it with sins that were not committed.

ALVEN S. CLAY KILLED

Owen Sound, Sept. 15.—The remains were brought here on Friday night of Alven Stanley Clay from Byng Inlet, near which place he was accidentally killed as a result of a gun accident on Wednesday. In company with another young man, Herbert Hooey, Clay was hunting some miles up the Still River, and a glancing shot from Hooey's gun, which had struck a tree, hit Clay fair on the cheek, entering the brain. Death followed in a few minutes. As they were some distance inland from the river, Hooey was compelled to carry the body of his companion to the canoe and bring it down the river to Byng Inlet. The deceased was in his 28th year, unmarried, and at the time of his death was a partner with Hooey in the coast trading business in the small schooner Mermad. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. M. Clay, Peel street, this town. For two years he was employed at the sawmills at Byng Inlet prior to going into the trading business with Hooey.

LABOR MEN MAY RUN MAN; TRADES CONGRESS ANXIOUS

Important Telegram From Winnipeg Received by Secretary J. L. Goodburne.

A labor candidate for the Commons at the coming election is the talk of the street this morning.

At present the Labor Congress for Canada is meeting at Winnipeg, and a telegram was received by Secretary Joseph L. Goodburne, of this city, so it is said, advising him that the executive of the congress had discussed the political situation as it effected London, and had come to the conclusion that a labor candidate should be selected for the city, as the only method of clearing the situation.

The candidate should be selected as soon as possible and put in the field for the by-election.

Would Not Deny Report.
J. L. Goodburne was asked by The be.

Too Many Studies for the Child; Rev. Mr. Mitchell on Education

Pointed Criticisms of the System in a Sermon Preached in St. James' Church.

Rev. Mr. Mitchell of New St. James' Presbyterian Church preached a very able sermon last night on "The Child." The sermon was the second in a series on "The Seven Ages of Man." Mr. Mitchell pointed out that there were three great educative influences in the life of the child, the home, the school and the church. The first he dealt with on the previous Sunday. The last two were the foundation of his sermon last night.

The school was of more importance in the educative life of the child than the church, he said. The public school had the child five days a week and six hours a day, while the church had but one day. The school taught with authority, but the church no longer speaks with authority, as it was lost its coercive power. It was very important then what the child was taught in the public school.

A Workingman's Bishop of London; Interesting Sketch of the Prelate

Never Spares Himself in His Efforts to Do Good—Is Indeed a Grand Man.

The Bishop of London, who will arrive in London this evening via the C. P. R., was a bishop at 45, and the head of the most populous diocese in the world at 45. He is now nearly 50, one of the most respected, one of the hardest worked men in Great Britain. Here is a description of the great dignitary from the pen of a popular, if somewhat breezy writer:

Unlike the Type.
The popular notion of a bishop is a man with a pompous manner, a portly frame and spindle-shanked legs clad in gaiters. Barring the gaiters, Dr. Ingram does not look a bit like this type, which, I regret to say, English cartoonists have made so familiar. He is slight, spare and lean. He is always on the move, which keeps him trained down fine, like an athlete. He is too rushed to bother with dig-

Pistol Shots Alarm the Residents

Citizens residing in the vicinity of Mount Pleasant Cemetery, near the city line, on Forward avenue, were startled last night by hearing a number of pistol shots fired in rapid succession. The police were at once sent for but were unable to find any clue to the source of the shots, although it is thought that some of the many gangs of rowdies which infest that end of the city fired off pistols just to scare those living nearby.

Three policemen in charge of Sgt. MacDonald, visited the scene of the shooting today, but learned nothing beyond the fact that a large gang of loungers were seen about that locality last night just previous to the shooting.

Ward Said to Have Assaulted Tenant

As a result of having apparently lost his temper on Saturday, William Ward, an east end contractor and property owner, will have to answer to a charge of assault preferred by Abraham J. Marsh, an aged tenant of the accused.

The complainant resides with relatives in London Township in a house owned by Ward. Saturday, it is alleged, Ward asked his tenant for admission to the house in order to make some repairs. While there it is further alleged that he made some complaint to the old gentleman in reference to a hole which he found in one of the walls.

"Oh, you have no cause for complaint," Mr. Marsh says he replied, "many houses in this city are in far worse shape. Besides, we will repair any injuries we may inflict on your property."

The defendant is then alleged to have threatened to eject the old man from the premises, whereupon the latter retorted that the late from the house had not run out, the owner has no right to talk that way to his tenants. Ward is then alleged to have assaulted Marsh, with the result that the latter's spine was severely injured.

Squire Chittick will hear the case tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

THE NEW PERE MARQUETTE RAILWAY BRIDGE.

The above cut shows the new bridge which the Pere Marquette is erecting on the L. and P. S. R. over the Thames at London.

The company claims the city will have to pay the cost of the new structure—about $25,000—and the city claims the company, under its lease, must replace the old bridges.

Hence the city and the company are like to become embroiled in a tough legal battle.

There are 103 tons of steel in the new bridge, which rests on piers, and has no superstructure. There are 1,100 yards of cement in the new piers—one at each side and one in the center of the river. The old bridge has almost entirely disappeared.

YANKEE TOURISTS LOOT HOTELS

Bearing Off Mementoes of Foreign Travel Has Become a Craze.

London, Sept. 15.—A party of Americans went over St. Paul's cathedral on Monday. They explored the crypt, stared at the statuary, and then climbed the stairs to the top-most gallery.

Then one of them hung back from the party. He was presently discovered trying to chip flakes of stone from one of the ornamental pillars.

"I guess I only wanted a piece of St. Paul's to take back with me to America," he drawled by way of explanation.

Souvenir hunting has developed into a craze, and there is no institution of any size that has not suffered from the ravages of the souvenir hunters. The late Mr. Wall, when librarian of the Stratford Memorial Theater, used to tell of a visitor who offered a substantial sum for a few plinches of the dust that reposes upon Shakespeare's tomb. Now the souvenir collector is not satisfied with purchasing or bribing. He appropriates.

The Spoons Stolen.

The management of a restaurant on a liner said yesterday that in one voyage he "missed" twenty-six of his spoons. "We thought it better not to make any commotion," he said.

All our national institutions are the prey of these kleptomaniacs, and the utmost vigilance has been exercised to keep our treasures of art and science intact.

One enterprising stranger at the British Museum tried to secure a strip of a mummy case, and another snipped a button off the coat of an attendant.

A group of women who visited the Tower on Monday were lamenting their inability to purloin a sample of the Crown Jewels, but one managed to console herself with a twig of a tree which she broke off surreptitiously.

A music hall manager said to a representative yesterday that all the London theaters have their resources taxed to the utmost in protecting their property.

"Opera glasses disappear by the score," he said. "There was one man who, when I caught him putting a pair in his pocket, coolly explained that he thought he had secured the cheapest souvenir in London for the sixpence he had paid for them."

Hotels Looted.

The managers of famous hotels have to exercise unceasing vigilance. Pens and notepaper are constantly disappearing. "But this is comparatively harmless," said the manager of one.

"Water-bottles, glasses, cutlery, and even plates have disappeared, and gone into the pockets of souvenir hunters.

THE SOCIALISTS NOT "UNWASHED"

Obvious Respectability of Delegates to the Stuttgart Congress.

Stuttgart, Sept. 15.—One of the most curious features of the International Socialist Congress, just concluded at Stuttgart, was the obvious "respectability" of a vast majority of the delegates. The average onlooker who expected to find a gathering of working-men, clothed in conventional working-class holiday garb, must have been puzzled to see nine-tenths of the representatives exhibiting every sign of a comfortable prosperity.

The congress, in fact, consisted largely of well-dressed and well-nourished men. As they lounged about the passages of the Lieberhalle, or smoked their cigars and drank their beer in the restaurant they lent an air of ease and comfort to a gathering whose revolutionary nature might never have been suspected by a deaf man. From the prosperous-looking printer, Paul Singer, who was the permanent chairman, to the neat little Parsee, Kama, who was immaculately dressed in a gray morning suit, and beautifully groomed, there was hardly an individual who did not wear the hall mark of unimpeachable respectability.

Even the uninvited representative of the "Natural Lifers" did not escape this description. It is true he walked through the beautiful streets of Stuttgart, and into the congress with bare legs and feet, but his cinnamon knickerbockers, his fawn vest, and his graceful brown cloak were of the best woolen material, and their cut was probably of the very latest fashion of the forest. Emil Vandervelde, the Belgian member of parliament, presented the picture of a dapper gentleman in his well-fitting white waistcoat. The Japanese delegate, Dr. Kato, came from Paris, appropriately dressed for the fashionable Schutzgarten of Stuttgart.

The majority of the German delegates could not have been picked out from their fellow-countrymen who thronged the entrance of the hall as idle spectators, but for the red-winged delegates' buttons in their coats. The bustling Americans, the bubbling Frenchmen, the ponderous Dutch, the suave Italians, the gloomy Spaniards, and the nervous Russians, all presented a general picture of well-being. They put up at the best hotels, and sometimes drove to the congress in pair-horse carriages. They ate and drank of the best "wurst" and wine in Wurtemberg, and feasted and feted each other at the best gardens.

The Socialist gentlemen included litterateurs, journalists, professors, financiers, commercial travelers, secretaries, members of parliament, aldermen, statesmen and the son of a peer of England.

ALMOST STRANDED ON MOUNTAINS

Wellman's Airship Has Grim Battle With Storm Over Polar Sea.

Berlin, Sept. 15.—Walter Wellman, head of the Wellman Polar expedition, has sent the following cablegram to the Local Anzeiger from Tromsø: "After the steamer Express cast off the cable, the balloon America did excellently, but an increasing wind soon gave us a hard struggle and the storm drove us toward some high, jagged mountains near the coast, where the airship would have been destroyed if she struck. Then there ensued a hard fight between the storm and the motor. The latter triumphed and we slowly rounded the north end of Foul Island in the teeth of the wind. Our confidence in the America had increased in the meanwhile that I gave the order to start for the North Pole.

"The wind, however, increased to twelve miles an hour and snow fell so thickly that we could not see a quarter of a mile. The storm passed failed to act, owing to defective construction. We were completely lost in a snowstorm above the polar sea, and threatened with destruction. "After a brief deliberation we decided to try to get back to the Express to rectify our compass and start again. It was impossible, however, to keep in one direction, and we were again carried in dangerous proximity of the mountains. Vaniman, the engineer, then made the motor run at top speed, and the America moved a second time against the wind, which probably was blowing fifteen miles an hour. She circled three times in the teeth of the wind. We saw the Express for a moment, but immediately lost her again. Under the circumstances the only thing possible was to try to land. With this idea we stopped the motor and let the America drift over the glacier.

"After crossing the glacier we opened the valve and landed on the upper glacier, a half-mile in shore. The landing was effected successfully. "The numerous delicate instruments were not injured. The self-registering barographs, meteorographs and manometers continued running after the landing. The slight damage to the mantle of the balloon can easily be repaired.

"The America was in the air for three hours and fifteen minutes, and covered about fifteen miles with her own machinery. She made three loops against the wind, proving her power and capability of being steered. "The ascent was successful in every respect.

"Later in the same day the Express found us, and fetched the steamer Frithjof, with men and sledges, from the camp. The crew of the America lived for three days comfortably in the gondola while the work of rescuing the balloon was in progress. They could have lived there for nine months, had it been necessary. The entire airship, including even a part of the gasoline, was returned to camp in three days.

"The balloon hall and the entire outfit has been made ready for the winter and three men have been left on guard.

"After this successful attempt we are all convinced the America in normal summer weather can make her way to the pole."

BESANT AGAINST A MORAL CODE

Doesn't Want a Rule Expelling Undesirables From Society.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Mrs. Annie Besant, of Adyar, India, recently elected world president of the Theosophical Society, today addressed the delegates to the twenty-first annual convention of the American section of that organization, declaring strongly against the adoption of a moral code, a question that has agitated theosophists in this country for some time.

"The question was debated at length, but no definite action was taken. Mrs. Besant declared that all theosophists are one in their eagerness to raise the moral tone of the society. Where the members of the society differ, she said, is on the question, 'Shall moral ideas be enforced by penalty or not?'

"None of the great religions," said Mrs. Besant, "has a penal code enforcing its commandments by exclusion. On the contrary, they regard it as a primary duty to try to improve their evil-doers, not to cast them out.

"Some religions outcast or excommunicate their members, but we may presume that the Theosophical Society does not wish to copy their examples. Religions leave to the civil power the punishment of offenses, and strive to reform and purify rather than penal.

"A penal code among us would be the denial of brotherhood. We all eager to feel our unity with the gods, with the Christ, with the saints; but no such lopsided unity is possible. Only those can be one with the highest who are also one with the lowest.

"If we make a rule expelling from the society our undesirable we shall sink below the level of all great religious bodies, even below the level of ordinary scientific, philosophical and literary societies.

"For my own part, I shall steadily resist any attempt to impose a penal code on the society. I stand for the affirmation of the law of brotherhood, and for strenuous efforts to live up to them.

"I appeal to the unfolding divinity in man and not to the beggarly elements of coercive laws; I gladly affirm my brotherhood with the lowest, as I reverently hope to be accepted as brother by the highest."

HILARIOUS SCENES AT BEAUTY SHOW

Great Fun at Annual Event in London Suburb of Southend.

London, Sept. 15.—The great joke of the Southend season, the annual beauty show, took place in the Kursaal last night in the presence of a crowded and hilarious audience of 4,000 people.

Although more than a hundred young women had entered for the competition only a score had the courage at the last moment to venture on the stage, but they were amply rewarded by the terrific applause which greeted them.

They sat in a row of chairs like a Christy minstrel troupe and indulged in gentle giggles while the manager made a speech declaring that the show was one of which Essex was proud, and which Southend would be sorry to lose. This sentiment was greeted with cheers, but when he added that most of the ladies needed no eulogy from him, the audience indulged in mocking laughter, varied by cheers.

Of the score of competitors, only four were blondes. The manager brought these forward one at a time for the audience to judge.

The Competitors.

The first was a little girl with curls down her back. The next had frizzy hair hanging over her shoulders, while the third was tall and slim with long flaxen curls, and wore a white dress nearly down to her ankles, and a Cambridge blue sash.

The blonde applause which greeted Nos. 1 and 2 broke into a tempest when No. 3 stepped forward, and she was at once given the blonde prize. No. 4, a plump little girl, being almost forgotten.

The fun came when the fifteen or sixteen brunettes took their turns at the footlights. To put it kindly, some were prettier than others, and the audience dealt with them quickly and uproariously. No. 1, in a pink dress, was allowed to depart almost uncheered. No. 2 was mildly applauded. No. 3, a small girl in a red blouse, was greeted with cries of "Oh!" and "No. 4 was overlooked. Loud cheers rose for No. 5, a young girl with long black hair, but as No. 6 came to the front the cheers turned to a huge roar of laughter. The abashed maiden ducked her head, laughed, and dashed back to her chair.

Shrieks of laughter sent No. 7 back blushing, and the audience rolled back in its chairs when it had a glimpse of No. 8. But there was criticism in its hilarity, and when No. 10, a tall trim girl, with her brown hair very neatly done up, stepped modestly forward, the laughter suddenly stopped and the house cheered again and again.

Paroxysms of Hilarity.

No. 11 and the following numbers sent the audience into fresh paroxysms of hilarity.

The manager then observed that the competitors could not help feeling flattered at the very nice way they had been received.

Three of the brunettes were again brought forward, and the house, by its vociferous applause, decided in favor of the young lady with the neat brown hair. The winners were: Blonde—Charlotte Cross, Westcliff.

Brunette—Helen Grant, Kensington. A dozen of the girls then let down their back hair, and Mary Woodward, of Edgeware road, London, was adjudged to have the most luxuriant tresses. Her hair was long and black. Part of the audience fiercely demanded for ten minutes that the prize should be given to the little fair girl, but the manager was adamant.

The thousands of persons went home satisfied that they had had the best six-penny-worth of fun in Southend.

The three great industrial Nations, England, France and Germany, each consumes about 80 per cent of the manufactured goods produced at home. The United States sells only 5 per cent of manufactured goods abroad.

The Empress Dowager of China, says a Peking decree, "finds to her sorrow that of late there has been no change from the habits of her officials 'to seek merely to make things look well on the surface, without paying attention to the quality of the substance.'"

The capital of the Japanese-Chinese Company to work railways and mines in Southern Manchuria has been fixed at $55,000,000, paid up.

IS YOUR CHEST SORE?

That's how inflammation of the lungs starts—neglecting a sore chest. You must rub on Nerviline, rub it in good and hard tonight. By morning you're cured. Nothing so penetrating and pain-easing as Nerviline. It's King of all Liniments; the biggest 25c worth in the drug-stores; a staple for nearly 50 years.

CRIME IN GERMANY ON THE INCREASE

Latest Statistics Show Remarkable Increase in Last Quarter of a Century.

Berlin, Sept. 15.—The Imperial statistical office has published some remarkable tables which show that during the last quarter of a century crime in the German Empire has been steadily increasing, and at a rate far in excess of the natural growth of the population.

Twenty-five years ago there were 104 convictions for 10,000 of the population; the number of convictions now is 124. Of three categories of offenses treated, namely, offenses against property, against the person and libelous charges, theft of all kinds has decreased to a remarkable extent, and is evidence of the increased prosperity of the nation, but crimes against the person, especially violent assaults, have increased to an alarming extent. There are relatively twice as many as they were twenty-five years ago. Libel convictions have also increased at a similar rate.

It is by no means the industrial districts of Germany which are signaled by the prevalence of crime. The agricultural provinces of East Posen and two provinces of East and West Prussia show the highest crime rate.

Most free of crime are the two Duchies of Mecklenburg, Schleswig-Holstein, Schaumburg-Lippe and Waldeck, Bremen, with its surrounding district, is pre-eminently the most crime-laden city in Germany. Hanover is the town freest from crime. Berlin occupies a middle position.

HAMLET IN JAPANESE

But the Famous Soliloquy Has Been Cut Out by Translator.

London, Sept. 15.—The Japanese are beginning to introduce western ideas into the dramatic art of their country, and the fine national theater which is to be built at Tokio will be constructed on the lines of European playhouses in many respects.

The report that the Mikado has given a grant of $500,000 for the construction of the national theater is not credited, however, at the Japanese embassy in London.

"We have had no official news of such a grant, nor do we think it probable," one of the embassy staff said yesterday. "The Emperor is not a great patron of theaters, which he visits very rarely."

The new national theater will be lit with electric light, I believe, and the scenic effects will be on the lines of western theaters.

"Several Shakespeare plays have been presented in Japan recently, but they have been adapted to represent Japanese life. The most popular has proved to be 'Hamlet,' but 'Othello,' which I saw myself in Japan, did not enjoy a great success. The difficulties of translation are too great for the plays to be properly appreciated. "Hamlet was described as the son of a titled Japanese studying at the university, meets his father's ghost, and learns of his parent's murder. The famous soliloquy, 'To be or not to be,' proved too difficult to translate, and was omitted altogether."

THE NEW THEO

The White Cat

[BY GELETT BURGESS, AUTHOR OF "VIVETTE,"
Copyright by Bobbs-Merrill Company.]

I had seen Edna but twice, but from what had happened I was able to form a fair idea of her character. She was, in the first place, by no means the equal of Joy's true self. Mentally she was less developed; in some respects, as Joy had said, a mere child. She was inclined to be untidy, full of animal spirits, and constructive, in a mechanical way. She was not fond of animals; not, at least, of the dogs, and the same strain showed itself, I thought, in her prejudice against Leah as a colored woman. There was something of that lack of charity, also, in the fun she had made of Uncle Jerdon, something of which Joy herself would be incapable. Edna was inclined to be belligerent; Joy was indubitably a sulphuric. Joy, therefore, what would I call it?—indifference?—forwardness?—in the way she had "made up" to me that last evening I spent with her.

Here, perhaps, was a suggestion as to how I might manage her. All was not pleasant; the less so because I must necessarily keep it from both Joy and Leah. From Joy for obvious reasons—I could not think of permitting her to suspect that, even in this other phase, she was in the least lacking in delicacy—from Leah because she was, in her way, finer even than Joy. It would cause her, in fact, the keenest suffering to know that any such thing was going on in the house. And yet I could not quite bear to act, even in these circumstances, secretly. The matter had been left to my judgment; but I could not yet make up my mind what was right. It was a choice of permitting perhaps, but the thought of permitting even the lesser one to obtain troubled me. In a few words, Edna was apparently fond of me. I didn't care to put it any more strongly than that at present, nor to say that I would admit this basis of friendship as a condition in which I could not age her. But the thought was affording me a little more of the problem Leah came down.

Advertiser Patterns

DESIGNED BY MARTHA DEAN.

AN ATTRACTIVE NEGLIGEE—6871.

It is during these cool days that a woman takes the keenest delight in her negligees, and these are, therefore, a part of her wardrobe to which she never fails to give thought to attention. A very restful and pleasing gown, which suggests the kimono in style, is here sketched, and will prove most charming for the home dressmaker to fashion. It is backless, front and back to yoke, deep, so that plenty of fullness is provided for the skirt portion. The gown falls free from the shoulders, and may be slipped on easily. The Japanese crepes and crepons are best adapted to the development of this gown, but any soft silk or wool fabric would serve. For the medium size 6 1/2 yards of 44-inch goods are needed.

6871—Six sizes, 32 to 42 inches, bust measure.

The price of this pattern is 10 cents.

"She fell asleep while I was undressing her," she said, taking a chair. "I have never seen her so absolutely exhausted. She'll sleep late tomorrow; and," she added with a shudder, "she'll not wake up herself."

"Well, then, we'll have to be prepared for that," I replied. "I'm so afraid of tomorrow," said Leah. "Not for myself, you know, Mr. Castle. I'm willing to endure anything. But if she insists upon my leaving her again, what shall I do? I simply can't leave Miss Joy! What would she ever do without me?"

"I think I can manage it," I said, though, indeed, I was far from being confident. And then, to draw her out more, I added: "What I'm wondering is, if we hadn't better send for Dr. Copin."

"Oh, don't!" she pleaded. "You must take hold of this alone, Mr. Castle. He's been down here several times since you left, and I'm more afraid of him than ever. More even than I am of her."

"Why, what has happened?" "Oh," she cried, "that's just what I don't know. She sent me away usually, and often they were alone together all day. Sometimes they went off on long walks, too."

"With her—with Edna, I mean, or with Joy?"

"Oh, with Edna, of course—never with Miss Joy herself."

This gave me more to think about. If she had acted with the doctor as she had with me, a good deal depended upon the kind of man Dr. Copin was.

"You saw nothing, then, to arouse your suspicions?" I asked.

I saw immediately, from her embarrassment, that she had; but she finally said:

"No, nothing to amount to anything. I think it was easy to see her motive in this denial. I thought, she could not bring herself to say anything that might seem like an accusation of her mistress, even her mistress in this other person. She went on:

"There's another thing that worries me. She's been telephoning to the doctor almost every day. She never did that before, and I can't understand it. I don't think of any reason she can have, for physically she's quite well."

"You mean Edna has?"

"No, Miss Joy herself. Of course Edna does all the time."

"How long since Joy has been doing so?"

"About two weeks—she began, I think, soon after you left."

"And the doctor has been coming oftener?"

"Yes."

"Does the doctor come usually when Joy is here, or when Edna is?"

"Almost always when it's Edna."

"How does Dr. Copin know when she is here?"

"That's a mystery. I've wondered myself about it, but I don't know."

"Leah," I said, after thinking a while, "do you think you can trust me whatever you should happen to notice that seems, let us say, a bit too much like what the doctor might be imagined as doing?"

"You mean?" She drew a quick breath. "Oh, that? Why should you suggest it? Don't ask me to, please!"

"It would be better than permitting you to be driven away, wouldn't it?" I insisted.

She did not answer.

"I don't say that any such thing will be necessary," I added, "but I don't want you to be surprised at anything. I don't want in any way, to be underhanded with you."

It seems that you must, in any case, leave it wholly to me. That is, of course, provided there is no one else you can call on."

"Oh, there's nobody else! Miss Joy has no near relatives, and anyone we might send for would perhaps be only too glad to have her shipped off to an asylum so that they could get hold of her property."

That's what has always complicated it. That's why she lives here alone. It might be, too, why we should watch the doctor himself. She stretched out her hands appealingly to me. "Oh, Mr. Castle, you must have heard of such cases—I'm told they're common. Can't we drive her away forever?"

The doctor probably knows a good deal more about that than I. I replied, "I think that's probably why he's so much interested. But, if you don't trust him, the very fact that he does know so much about the subject makes him the more dangerous. I must have a talk with him. Do you know when he'll come again?"

"He may be here at any time. There's no telling. I don't think Miss Joy knows, but I have an idea that he may have arranged it with Edna. You can find that out for yourself to-morrow, can't you?"

"I think that I may be able to find out a good deal, if you'll only close your eyes."

Again that quick, indrawn breath, as if she were struck with a sudden pain, and she rose and stood before me.

"Oh, Mr. Castle, I can't help trusting you! I must trust you!"

"Will it help you," I said, looking her straight in the eyes, "if I tell you that I like Joy immensely—that, in fact, I'm very, very fond of her?"

She took both of my hands in hers, kneeling before me. "Oh, Mr. Castle!" she cried, "if you only do! If I could believe that, it would be such a comfort to me! I've wanted to believe it ever since you first came down. She's so alone—she has no one in the world but me! She needs you so much! Oh, you could do so much for her!"

"There's nothing," Leah, that I wouldn't do for her, believe me. Nothing! Do you know what that means? It means that I may have to do what she herself would never consent to have me do."

That was as far as I dared to go with the girl; indeed, it was almost as far as I had gone with myself. I could see hints of what it might possibly come to; but just how it would work out, I had no idea. It would be time enough for that, when it was time. But, on the whole, Leah was pacified and strengthened by my confession. As she was nearly in a state of collapse, by this time I sent her to bed, and remained to smoke in the library.

The question was, now whether Edna wouldn't wonder why I had come down. I had, of course, the excuse of my motor car to account for that, but I thought it likely that she wouldn't be exigent in the matter of excuses, and would be quite ready, for her own reasons, to welcome me to Middledown. At any rate, I decided that I would stay, whether or no. Joy I most certainly wanted me here, now that the White Cat was out of the bag, and I was quite prepared to strain a point if necessary, to induce Edna to be hospitable.

It was now ten o'clock, and excited as I was, I found myself in no mood for sleep. So hearing King grinding coffee in the kitchen, I walked out there to make his acquaintance. As I came in, he looked up and grinned serenely.

"Hello! You come back?" he said, affably.

"Yes, I'm back, King," I replied, and stood with my hands in my pockets watching.

"I thought you come!" he said, nodding his head wisely.

"Oh, you did, did you?" I inquired. "Why?"

He went on automatically with his coffee mill, still grinning insanely. "You like Miss Fielding?" he asked audaciously.

"Heaps much!" I said, laughing. He laughed with me.

"Aren't you lonesome here, King?" I asked next. "Not many Chinamen around here, are there?"

"Oh, Chinamen no good! All time make trouble." He poured the ground coffee into a canister and took down a pot.

"There's a Chinese laundry over at the Harbor. Don't you go over there sometimes to smoke a pipe?"

"Aw! No good smoke pipe. More better stay here."

Now this was contrary to the habits of Chinamen as I had known them, and I scented something interesting.

"You no play fan-tan?" I asked.

"Aw! Fan-tan no good." King replied contemptuously. "All time lose heap money. No good!"

He shook his head again as he shook down his fire, poked it and went to the sink to wash his hands and wipe them on the roller towel. I watched his deft, precise movements; he was like an amachine in the accurate way in which he handled everything.

"What tong to you belong to, King?" I asked presently.

He gave me a cunning look. "What-a-matter you?" he demanded.

"What for you want to know?" "Hip Sing?" I persisted. "See Yup? Sam Yup? What tong?"

"You sabbee China tong?" he asked.

"Oh, sure! You tell me, King. I keep him quiet. I no tell."

"Says!" he exclaimed, approaching me, grinning, "sometime you help me get away?"

"You in trouble, eh? What's the matter? Hatchet-men after you?"

He still grinned in the absurd way Celestials have, when the subject is most serious. "No catchee me!" he declared.

"Oh, I see. They're trying to find you, eh? What's the matter? You steal China girl? You take tong money? You kill Sam Yup man, maybe?"

He kept his grin and his secret. "That's all light, no catchee me!" was all I could get out of him. But I thought I had a suspicion as to why he was contended to stay alone, so far from any of his race, and never go to town or even smoke opium or play fan-tan at the Harbor.

BLOODY BATTLE ON BARK

San Francisco, Sept. 14.—One hundred and fifty Japanese and Chinese cannery hands engaged in a desperate fight with knives on the high seas during the voyage of the bark Electra to this port from Mushagak, and the encounter terminated only after a dozen of the contestants had been wounded, and as many more placed in irons in the vessel's brig. Hardly had the vessel set out to sea from Mushagak before a fight occurred between three Japanese and a Chinaman in the bark's forecastle. This was only a forerunner to the real scrimmage, however, and on Aug. 29, a struggle between the two races began in earnest. Assembled on the forward deck, the Chinese, who outnumbered the Japanese, started trouble over the appropriation of food. A desperate fight followed, resulting in a victory for the Chinese.

SOME LOST CITIES HAVE TURNED UP

Interesting Discoveries Made in South America by Prof. Saville.

New York, Sept. 14.—The Times says: M. H. Saville, professor of ethnology at Columbia University, returned from a trip to Ecuador on the steamship Panama yesterday, and said that he had discovered the ruins of cities near the coast which contained many evidences of a race hitherto unknown to present day scientists.

The professor's researches extended along the Pacific coast about 50 miles to the north, and about the same distance to the south of the equator. Somewhere between those points, and at a distance of about 100 miles inland, he found evidences of a city of antiquity. The city, he said, had streets lined with houses of "skilful construction. Though the dwelling had been made of light material, a sort of palmetto or thatch, they had been constructed very evidently with a view to withstanding the shocks of the frequent earthquakes of the region, and were intact.

In them were found utensils for cooking and other domestic purposes, made of pottery and wood and the like. Professor Saville said he believed the city had contained 3,000 or more people 500 years ago.

In his opinion the race was one of the highest in civilization living in America previous to the coming of Columbus.

No Good Flour Can Be Made

EASILY. It takes time, trouble and the closest attention to the minutest detail of every milling process, to say nothing of adding considerably to the cost of production, to make a good flour.

You know you must watch your bread carefully during every process, from the mixing to the baking, but however close the attention you may give it, your trouble will be wasted, unless you are using a flour which has been made with corresponding care.

No brands on the market today are made more carefully than our "FIVE ROSES" and "HARVEST QUEEN." The grain itself is cleaned by the newest and most perfect machinery before being ground, and the flour is sifted and tested by experts at every stage of the milling in order to insure the nearest approach to perfection it is possible to obtain by modern methods.

If you use these brands and give corresponding attention to the details of your baking, you will have as a result bread which cannot be equaled for quality and nourishing value.

ONE ON THE KAISER

Has An Amusing But Expensive Experience With Rulers of Siam.

New York, Sept. 14.—Kaiser Wilhelm, says a Berlin dispatch to the Sun, has an amusing and expensive experience in remembering the King of Siam's birthday. The king, while the Kaiser's guest, expressed admiration for the Kaiser's two intelligent dogs that follow their master everywhere. When the king went to Hamburg he expressed a wish to possess a similar pair to take with him to Siam. The remark was communicated to the Kaiser, together with the fact that the king's birthday would occur in a few days, and he gave orders to procure a number of the best specimens of the breed and sent seven pairs for the king to choose from.

The ruler of Siam was so overcome

A LONG TRIP BY TROLLEY LINE

No End of Pleasure in the Journey From Boston to Chicago.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 14.—There may be some discomfort in a 1,500-mile trolley trip from Boston to Chicago, but a Boston man who made the trip found no end of pleasure in the venture. The cost was not great and the time consumed was not excessive.

The Boston man wanted to travel, but he did not care to go by railroads. He desired to see something of the country, so he tried the trolley.

He reported that he had one of the most enjoyable vacations of his life. He did not lack companionship. He saw Niagara, and he looked on all the beauty of the middle west. He dropped in on all the friends whom he had heard of. If there was a chance to see a good attraction at the theaters in cities through which he passed, he brought out his dress suit and was among the well-dressed.

He saw city and country, mountains and prairie. When finally he reached Chicago, ten days after he had left the Hub, he was able to speak intelligently of the States which he had traversed, and he had a good conception of the resources of his country, and he had greater faith than ever in the merits of the average individual.

He boarded a trolley car one morning in Boston. His baggage was in a strong dress suit case. It consisted of a dress suit, a few changes of underwear, a few shirts, a raincoat, toilet articles and several books.

The total weight was about forty pounds. It felt forty pounds plus a ton long before he arrived at Chicago. He learned the lesson that experienced travelers try to impress on novice friends—take the minimum of baggage.

From Boston to Tarrytown, N. Y., there is an unbroken trolley line, save for a few feet at the Stamford (Conn.) bridge. The traveler found the weather delightful. The whirl of the electric cars made him drowsy at times. A fine panorama of scenery moved by him.

In New York he had two days of calling on friends, attending the theaters and seeing the things which every visitor to New York wishes to see.

From Tarrytown across New York State it was a case of leaving the railway for the railroad, getting back to the trolleys and keeping the eyes open. Mr. Trolley spent a day in a side trip to Niagara.

At Westfield, Pa., he came upon one of the finest stretches of trolley line in the country.

In Ohio the traveler found the ideal trolley country. Electric traction has been developed further than in any of the eastern states. There are interurban lines that open the eyes of every man who goes that way.

From Cleveland to Toledo was by far the best stage of all the journey. The cars moved along at the rate of about 35 miles an hour. The country is of the greatest interest to the wide-awake traveler.

From Toledo to Detroit the traveler went whizzing along through a country almost New Englandese in its appearance. From Detroit to Kalamazoo is a country of high grass and tall timber, cool white farmhouses and drab colored villages. Ann Arbor was distinctly worth while, with its University of Michigan.

From Kalamazoo to Hammond, Ind., is the longest break of the long trip. The trolley car wobbled along in a sandstorm.

This is the itinerary in detail: From Boston to Chicago he covered 1,497 miles—1,055 miles by the electric traction, 438 miles by steam car, two miles by stage coach and two miles on foot. To cover this distance required 63 changes of cars—57 trolley and 10 steam—for which he had to go pocket dipping just 30 times.

The cost statistics are as follows: Trolley fare, $15.33; railway fare, $8.80; stage coach, 25 cents; lodgings, $17; food, $3; amusements, theaters, fairs, etc., $20; souvenirs, postcards, etc., $2.50; guides, maps, books and magazines, $5; and kodak films, $3.60; total, $68.54.

SEASICKNESS CURED BY LOOKING-GLASS

Old Salt's Novel Remedy for Neptune's Toll on His Domain.

London, Sept. 14.—A new remedy has been discovered for seasickness. An old sailor has proved that a pocket looking-glass is an infallible cure.

The looking-glass cure must be taken immediately the sufferer steps on board ship. The prescription directs the patient, when the first indescribable feeling comes on, to take out the pocket looking-glass and look himself fair and square in the face.

The result is alleged to be that the rolling of the ship, and even the smell of the engines, will pass unnoticed, and a little perseverance will transform a bad sailor into a good one.

"It is a very curious fact, and one for which it is difficult to account," said a noted city physician yesterday, "that a casual glance in a looking-glass may arrest seasickness. It may be that the woe-begone countenance is responsible for introducing a vein of humor, and the sufferer resolves to 'cheer up.'"

"Personally I think there is a more scientific reason. It is well known among sailors that the rise and fall of the horizon is responsible for the early stages of this distressing malady. Physicians in consequence often recommend their patients to try to fix their eyes on some immovable object, such as a ring on their finger or a book held firmly on the knee. The looking-glass is probably the same kind of antidote to the movement of the ship."

"It would be necessary, of course, to hold the glass firmly, and fix the gaze steadily on the reflected image."

"The looking-glass remedy may be something in the nature of a faith cure. If the attention can be absolutely concentrated on the image in the glass and all thought of illness banished, there is an excellent chance that the voyage will have no bad effects."

"With regard to the length of time required for the cure, it is a general fact that if sickness can be successfully ward-off for several hours, the symptoms are not likely to recur, except in cases where no remedy will relieve the unfortunate intercalary sickness."

LIVING PRICES HIGH IN LONDON

Coal and Provisions Rise, and Weather Men Predict Severe Winter.

London, Sept. 14.—Already, and several weeks earlier than usual, the flight to London from coast and country has begun and the chill September is cutting short the season which hotel proprietors and boardinghouse-keepers were relying upon to compensate them for the great losses sustained in May, June and July. Pleasure steamboats have had a most disastrous season.

But, bad as the summer has been, there are indications, so say meteorologists, of a hard winter, and to make matters worse there is to be a serious increase in the cost of living.

Coal already is going up in price, being higher now than has been known in any September for many years. All kinds of foodstuffs also are going up in price. Flour is soaring, and bakers claim they are making only the narrowest margin of profit, and with further increase they might raise the price of bread. It is estimated that plain loaves will cost from 40 to 50 per cent more.

In the matter of silly season topics the newspapers are unusually interesting this year, and an excellent cartoon in Punch this week shows how Dame Fleet Street will have nothing more to do with the sea serpent or the big gooseberry. Their day is gone and their places are filled.

London is not frenzied over such a first-class controversy as raged last year round the question, "Do we believe?" but the pens of innumerable correspondents are busy on the deceased wife's sister act.

This discussion is growing more bitter every day and revealing a wide divergence of views among the clergy and laity alike. Women novelists and physicians have entered loyally into the man versus woman debate, in which opinion as to the relative merits of the two sexes seems pretty equally divided.

Other acts of seriously minded folk are fighting over topics like imprisonment for debt, Christian Science, the income tax, while the proud mother, common sense women, men and willowy girls are engaged in a hand-to-hand combat on the question of tight lacing.

Still another fight has begun in an interesting conundrum, "Are English a stupid people?" and it is suggested by the positive assertion by George Bernard Shaw that they are.

INSURANCE ARBITRATION

Underwriters Decline To Pay Claims for London Wire Fence Factory.

London, Sept. 14.—Reports upon the arbitration in progress at Portage la Poudre, in which over $40,000 is involved for insurance. The factory of the London Fence Company, Limited, was burned, but the insurance companies object to paying the loss. An abundance of evidence has been secured, all of which indicates that the London Fence Company's loss was much greater than the insurance companies offered to waive all loss claims and pay the insurance companies $12,600 if they would replace the factory as it was before the fire.

The arbitrators are N. Garland, Toronto; R. Wood, Winnipeg, and J. D. Irvine, Portage la Poudre. A. R. D. Patterson, of Winnipeg, is in attendance in support of the underwriters.

ED DOWL DEAD.

Teheran, Persia, Sept. 14.—Mushir-Eddowl, ex-grand vizier, and ex-foreign minister of Persia, who was regarded as being chiefly responsible for the Shah's receipt, granting a national assembly, died suddenly today of heart disease.

KING CUTS OUT STATE CONCERTS

Old-Time Entertainments Are Declared Obsolete—Princess Mary's Education.

London, Sept. 14.—King Edward has decided that there are to be no more state concerts at Buckingham Palace, holding that they are purposeless and obsolete entertainments, and, although appropriate enough in the reign of the late Queen Victoria, when no balls were given, are no longer practicable.

It is found that it is easy to ask 1,500 to 2,000 guests to attend a state ball without any inconvenience, whereas at a concert no more than 1,000 at the outside can be accommodated. Now, this number is too small for what is known as the general circle and too large for the King's private friends, hence the abolition of concerts.

This does not mean, however, that there will be no more music at Buckingham Palace. On the contrary, there will probably be several small private concerts, which will be all the more enjoyable for their intimacy and exclusiveness.

Lady De Grey is the royal adviser in all that concerns music and her influence will continue to be paramount.

The King has returned to Buckingham Palace from Marlborough, but his stay will not be long, for next he is off to Doncaster for the races, after which he goes north to Balmoral for shooting and deer stalking. While he is at Balmoral his nearest neighbors will be Captain and Mrs. David Beattie, who have taken a lease on Vercauld, on the banks of the Dee. Beattie, who is a daughter of the late Marshall Field, and her two children have been staying in Vercauld during the last few months.

The King is an intimate friend of Captain Beattie and his charming American wife. They were entertained by the King at a dinner at Balmoral last year, and His Majesty one day went shooting with them over the moor, which the captain rents from Alexander Farquharson, who owns extensive estates west of Balmoral.

The Princess of Wales, it is said, has definitely decided that her only daughter, Princess Mary, shall go to boarding school for a few years, and it is stated that the school at present selected is a well-known establishment at a popular seaside resort on the south-western coast. The little princess is only just ten, so she is not likely to be sent to school for at least another year. In the meantime her education is closely supervised by her mother, who makes it her regular practice to give a certain number of hours to her every day. The wee princess is expert with her needle, and it is probable that some of her work will be on sale next season at different charity bazaars. She recently has been receiving riding lessons in the grounds at Frogmore, and is said to have made surprising progress at this accomplishment, while she is also to be taught swimming next summer.

HERE'S A RECORD.

Montreal, Sept. 14.—Nine hundred passengers were landed in Montreal yesterday from three vessels, which creates a record for a Friday this season. Three passenger boats arrived, the Ottawa from Liverpool, the Parisian from London and Havre. In addition these boats landed a large number of steerage passengers at Quebec. The customs officials were kept busy as all three boats arrived within four hours of each other.

MARKED GROWTH OF SOCIALISM

Europe in Dread of the Great Propaganda That Daily Gathers Strength.

Winnipeg, Sept. 14.—An interesting progress of the Socialist movement in all parts of the world which were submitted to the Stuttgart congress have been published now in two large volumes. One would infer from the perusal of these enthusiastic records from twenty-six countries, extending from Japan to Chile, that mankind was about to adopt the tenets of Socialism en masse. It is well to give full recognition to some of the facts which these volumes present, for it is clear at least that the movement has gained largely and is still growing in following in nearly all countries. Thus, in Germany, despite the setback of lost elections, the Socialists are numerically stronger than ever.

In France two great wings of the Socialist party have united and become a political factor of large importance. In England an attempt to combine Socialism with trade unionism, though far from successful as yet, is making progress. Throughout every country the Socialist leaders claim an enormous growth of popular support.

The keynote of the Socialist propaganda of late has been its international solidarity. This point, which they emphasize so strongly and which all agree upon, is a theory which threatens to destroy them in practice. The leaders realize that all nations must make the plunge into Socialism together, if at all. Any country which attempted alone to abolish private property and turn all economic functions to the state would be of course speedily ruined. But the idea of international solidarity received a crushing blow at Stuttgart. The delegates there represented so many shades of opinion and such wide and irreconcilable differences that it seemed an absurdity that they could all get under any banner.

The division in the movement is well represented by two reports from the United States which are fairly contradictory. They were presented by the Socialist party. A picture is presented of the situation in America.

"The march of capitalist progress has degenerated into a mad, frenzied race for a fortune," says the report. "Thousands have mounted the walls, but millions have fallen into the ditch and been trampled under foot. Deep rooted discontent has been engendered by recent developments in the industrial and political life. It has taken firm hold of the mass of the population. They will never again be reconciled to actual conditions and existing inequities. They are prepared to join hands with any opponents of the present system, and for some time probably they will fall easy prey to charlatans and political adventurers who have no radical or reformist flag. But these reformist movements, no clear philosophy, no definite social ideal, no uniform action, and they do not represent in any consistent fashion the economic interests of the working class. They are destined to disgust their followers and to disappear."

All these reports, however, are chiefly remarkable for what they don't contain, and there is not a word of the dissensions which found expression on the floor of the conference. The proceedings of the congress itself will furnish, indeed, a conclusive and destructive answer to all the imposing array set forth in two volumes.

WOULD GOVERN THEMSELVES

Leader of Egyptian Nationals Asks the British to Withdraw.

Paris, Sept. 14.—The Martin publishes a long letter from Mustapha Kamel Pasha, leader of the Egyptian nationalist party to the British Premier, reminding him that today, Sept. 14, is the twenty-fifth anniversary of the British occupation of Egypt, and urging him to remove the "stain" upon England's name, by the fulfillment of the long outstanding promise to turn Egypt over to the Egyptians, who long since have been capable of governing themselves.

RAISULI ASKING MORE

Now Demands That He Be Made Governor of Hill Tribes.

London, Sept. 14.—"Raisuli" no longer asks for British or other protection in return for the release of Caid Sir Harry MacLean, the Englishman, who has been his prisoner since early in July," says the "Tangier" correspondent of the Daily Mail.

"He is more ambitious, and is demanding that he be made governor of the hill tribes inhabiting a great part of Northern Morocco. Furthermore, he seeks compensation for a multitude of flocks and herds which he alleges have been taken from himself and his relatives, insists that some of his former friends be put in chains and wants to be supplied with machine rifles and ammunition."

"Sir Harry MacLean," the correspondent continues, "is well. He now has his own tent and bed and his own servants."

Woman's Kidney Troubles

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is Especially Successful in Curing This Fatal Disease.

Of all the diseases known, with which women are afflicted, chronic kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless early and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives.

Being fully aware of this, Lydia E. Pinkham, early in her career, gave us a exhaustive study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for a woman's ills—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—was careful to see that it contained the correct combination of herbs which was sure to control that fatal disease, woman's kidney troubles.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the only one especially prepared for women, and thousands have been cured of serious kidney derangements by it. Derangements of the feminine organs quickly affect the kidneys, and when a woman has such symptoms as pain or weight in the loins, backache, bearing-down pains, scalding or burning sensations or deposits in the urine, unusual thirst, swelling of hands and feet, swelling under the eyes or sharp pains in the back running through the groin, she may infer that her kidneys are affected and should lose no time in combating the disease with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the woman's remedy for woman's ills.

The following letters show how marvelously successful it is.

Mrs. Samuel Frake, of Prospect Plains, N. J., writes:

"I cannot thank you enough for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I first wrote to you I had suffered for years with what the doctor called kidney trouble and congestion of the female organs. My back ached dreadfully all the time, and I suffered so with that bearing-down feeling I could hardly walk across the room. I did not get any better, so decided to step out with my physician and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am thankful to say it has entirely cured me. I do all my own work, have no more backache and all bad symptoms have disappeared."

"I cannot praise your medicine enough, and would advise all women suffering with kidney trouble to try it."

Mrs. J. W. Lang, of 626 Third Avenue, New York, writes:

"I have been a great sufferer with kidney trouble. My back ached all the time and was discouraged. I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure my kidney disease, and I began to take it, and it has cured me when everything else had failed. I have recommended it to lots of people and they all praise it very highly."

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from kidney trouble, or any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. The present Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, her husband before her decease, and for twenty-five years since her advice has been freely given to sick women. Out of the great volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than likely she has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

A Change.

The Seaford Expositor has heard it reported that there will be a change in the Grand Trunk timetable about the end of this month. The train from Toronto, reaching Seaford 11 a.m., will leave that city earlier and get to Seaford about 10 o'clock. This would seem to refer to the morning flyer to Stratford from Toronto.

Was Well Known Here.

The late William Hull, who died a few days ago of typhoid fever after a week or two's illness, at his home in Lansing, Mich., was well known in London. He had for a number of years been employed as foreman in the Oldsmobile motor works in Detroit, going with that company to Lansing. The deceased was in his 34th year, and was married eleven years ago. He is survived by his wife, his father and mother of Delaware, also four sister, and seven brothers.

These will be included in the rural traveling libraries. The action is taken at the solicitation of many of the farmers of the province.

Batten-McCutcheon.

On Friday, Sept. 13, at Elkan Vannin, West, Wisconsin, the residence of the late William McCutcheon, his second daughter, Maud M. C., was united in marriage to John William Batten, of Detroit. In the presence of only a few friends of the family, the ceremony was performed at high noon by Rev. H. A. Graham, pastor of the Methodist Church, St. Marys. The young couple left for a short trip to points in Western Ontario, and will reside in Detroit, where the bride will be at home after Jan. 1.

Thrown From Wheel.

Master Clifford Berryhill, of this city, met with a painful accident last night about 11 o'clock. Berryhill, who is a messenger boy, was delivering a message in London West, and while riding over a bad piece of road he was thrown violently from his wheel. He alighted on his head and face, and was very badly injured. He was picked up by a man in a rig, and taken to Dr. Ernest Williams, who dressed his injuries. The boy's face is badly cut, it being necessary to put a stitch over his eye. He was badly shaken up also. It will be a couple of days before he is around again.

Civic Holiday Error.

A dispatch from St. Thomas last week announced that Port Stanley was enjoying its Civic Holiday, and that the place was deserted, owing to the number who had gone visiting. Now the mayor of Port Stanley writes as follows: "Civic Holiday, Port Stanley—Having received a requisition signed by 75 citizens of the village, requesting me to proclaim a public holiday, and, complying with the said request, I proclaim Thursday, Sept. 19, a public holiday."

He holiday, and request all citizens to observe the same. A. McDONALD, reeve." As the mayor ought to know, it must be stated that the summer resort's Civic Holiday is yet to come.

Dog Poisoner Again.

Some miscreant dropped a piece of meat on which strychnine had been shaken on Talbot street yesterday, and when Mr. Lou Bowers, manager of the Grand Opera House, took his valuable Boston terrier Gyp out for a walk, the terrier found the meat and ate it. Only the prompt work of a vet saved the little animal's life. Mr. Bowers is willing to give $100 to locate the person who put out the poison, and a number of his friends are willing to supplement this by giving $10 each extra to anyone who will find the fiend.

REV. J. J. ROSS' FAREWELL SERMON

Preached to Large Congregation in Talbot Street Church Last Night.

The Rev. J. J. Ross, of the Talbot Street Baptist Church, preached his farewell sermon last evening to a very large congregation.

"The conclusion of it all," was the topic which was chosen by Rev. Mr. Ross. He went on to say that "Jesus Christ was the same yesterday, today and forever," pointing out that Christ never varied.

Before bringing his sermon to a close he expressed his regret at leaving the church, but desired to thank the congregation for their many kindnesses during his ministry at Talbot Street. He also thanked the other denominations of London, and the press. He paid a very high tribute to his successor, Rev. A. T. Vining, who will deliver his initial sermon on Sunday, Oct. 6, and hoped they would support Mr. Vining as they had supported himself.

CHIEF BORLAND AND HIS ASSISTANT

Former London Fireman Wants to Dispose of His Deputy.

The Woodstock Express says:

No definite action was decided at the meeting of the fire and light committee, which was held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, to consider the recommendation of Chief Borland (formerly of London), read at the last meeting of the city council that assistant Chief George Johnson be relieved of his duties. The committee was in session for an hour or more, and then adjourned until next Friday evening. On that occasion they will decide on some line of action and report to the city council at the meeting on the Monday evening following.

Chief Borland and Assistant Chief Johnson were both before the committee. The chief was asked to give his reasons why his assistant should be replaced. They were it is understood that Mr. Johnson, while possessed of many admirable qualities as a man and a citizen, was incapable of properly performing the duties pertaining to his office on the fire department, and so should not be retained any longer, as when the force was limited to five permanent men, one inefficient member seriously crippled the efficiency of the entire brigade.

Assistant Chief Johnson denied that he was an inefficient fireman, and claimed that there was no valid reason why his services should be dispensed with.

Both men were cross-examined by the members of the committee, who, however, refrained from giving any opinion as to the merits of the case.

The Kerry Gow.
"Kerry Gow" was the attraction at the Grand Opera House on Saturday night, and a large audience greeted this old London favorite. The leading role was taken by Bernard Daly, whose singing made a deep impression. Mr. Daly is possessed of a very fine tenor voice, and sang the old Irish ballads with fine style. His acting was not so impressive, although his part was well taken. The other roles were in capable hands and on the whole the performance was very good.

Brilliant dialogue, two score of musical numbers, a most sumptuous scenic production, a vast array of silken finery from the millinery kings of two continents, and an imposing assemblage of grace and beauty, are a few of the salient features of the new American extravaganza, "The Top o' the World," which the Shuberts will present at the Grand Opera House for one night, Wednesday, Sept. 18. The chorus will number nearly 70 people. The piece will be in two acts and four scenes, the latter laid in the Klondike.

Clyde Fitch's latest comedy of New York life, entitled "The Girl Who Has Everything," will be the attraction at the Grand next Thursday. The production, which is under the direction of Liebler & Co., brings out as a star that delightful comedienne, Isabel Irving. Miss Irving is so charming, so refined, and exercises her art with such delicate discrimination, that she always makes her points tell whether they lie in comedy or sentiment.
