

KEY TO THE ADVANCE ON LILLE, CAMBRAI AND DOUAI

—CAPTURED BY THE FRENCH SOLDIERS—

Upwards of 100,000 Germans Have Fallen or Been Captured in Trenches Between Arras and Bethune.

On the Heights of Notre Dame de Lorette, near Arras, France, July 10 (via Paris, July 11)—After battling 10 days for the hill country between Bethune and Arras, the French forces are in possession of all the eminences looking out upon the Plain of Flanders. Lille, Douai and Cambrai are visible from here.

The attack of last night was made under parachute rocket lights, the French burning bluish-white and the German greenish-white, covering the scene of the desperate conflict with a ghastly glow.

BEGAN MARCH 9.

The most desperate fighting has been along the short ten mile front from Arras to Aix-Neulette, which began March 9 with the taking of a few hundred yards of trenches on the watershed of Notre Dame de Lorette, where there are the ruins of an old Merovingian military road. Every day since then some section of the German trenches has been taken, lost or retaken.

Each side has been employing formidable artillery, both of small and heavy calibre, the French guns being somewhat the more numerous and served with unlimited quantities of high explosive shells.

100,000 GERMAN LOST

A correspondent of the Associated Press to-day went through five or six miles of the trenches formerly held by the Germans and reconstructed by the French, who now have abandoned them to move forward. Upwards of 100,000 Germans have fallen or been captured in these trenches, according to the French official account since the second week of March. The French losses, the correspondent was confidentially informed, while serious, have been much smaller than those of the Germans. There are thickets of little crosses made of twigs tied together, marking the graves between the trenches. Some of these graves have been torn up by the shell fire.

Almost every square yard of this region is marked by miniature craters caused by exploding shells. Spots where shells penetrated the earth without exploding are indicated by signs bearing the words, "Live shell."

TAKE LINE WITH GRENADES

One line of the German works was just below the summit of a steep slope, which, from the nature of the ground, could not be shelled without danger to the French position a little higher up. The Germans were sheltered in dugouts under the hillside, and their French assailants, sliding or jumping down into the trenches, were shot or bayoneted from caves. The line finally was taken by tossing grenades by the basketful into the trenches until so many of the defenders in the concave shelters were killed or wounded that they were too weak to resist an assault. Every curve or angle in the miles of labyrinthine cuttings has its story of tragedy and heroism.

In the party which went over this ground and into the firing trenches within calling distance of the German lines with the Associated Press correspondent were Owen Johnson, (Continued on Page 4)

AERIAL TORPEDO IS COMPLETED

Latest German Scientific War Instrument About to be Used.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

New York, July 12.—A cable to the Herald from London says:

The German military authorities have succeeded in developing an aerial torpedo which can be directed by Hertzian waves from a distant Zeppelin. The new weapon possesses all the destructive properties of the undersea torpedo and in general appearance resembles the weapon which is fired from submarines. Until now the Zeppelins have had no means of discharging bombs other than to drop them from high in the air over the object which it is sought to destroy. The result has been that many bombs have gone wide of their mark, deflected from the fall by currents of air or miscalculation. Refractory errors due to light and atmospheric conditions have contributed to the wild dropping of the German bombs, until it seemed that so long as the Zeppelin remained high in the air which of necessity they must do in order to avoid destruction from anti air craft guns, no accurate work could be assured.

TERROR NULLIFIED

To offset the erratic work indicated, the Germans have had recourse to lowering men below the Zeppelin by wire ropes in order to bring the operators nearer the object sought to destroy. At the best this recourse has proven merely a makeshift, and it has been no secret that the terror early inspired by the Zeppelins has been to a great extent nullified.

A SUCCESS

Now comes the startling information that the experimental stations of the Germans have demonstrated the absolute success of guiding torpedoes through the air by Hertzian waves after the same manner in which undersea torpedoes have been directed by electric batteries on land.

The new German aerial torpedo is shorter than the standard 18-foot torpedo, the length of the new German weapon being stated at seven feet. It is believed that this size is for the present limited merely to the practical question of affording to a Zeppelin a maximum number of weapons for firing rather than a very limited number of extra large size.

According to the information obtainable the new aerial weapon operates by buoyancy, gas and compressed air gas. The weapon is kept at any desired height by means of two underbody screws, actuated by a common shaft. The propelling power is afforded by two stern screws, and both the underbody and the stern screws are under control of the Hertzian waves sent out from the Zeppelin.

NO SURRENDER OF AMERICAN RIGHTS IS PRACTICALLY CERTAIN

—IS VIEW TAKEN BY THE OFFICIALS—

RIGHTS IS PRACTICALLY CERTAIN

Main Issue is Germany's Disavowal For Loss of Life on Lusitania—Such Attitude Constitutes a Critical Point.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Washington, July 12.—Work was begun to-day by Secretary of State Lansing on the draft of a note to be sent to the German Government expressing the attitude which the United States will take towards Germany's submarine warfare, and as it affects the rights of neutrals. When it is completed there will be a consultation between Secretary Lansing and President Wilson who will decide the policy to be pursued.

RELATIONS STRAINED

No intimation is obtainable as yet as to the course which the American government will follow, but there is every indication in official circles that the relations in Germany and the United States have become so strained as to make it necessary to weigh carefully the phrasing of the next communication and to measure fully the responsibility and consequences which may be required by its contents.

NO SURRENDER.

That there is to be no surrender of American rights in the new note is practically certain, according to the view taken by officials thus far, and it is also assured that the German proposals for the immunity of American passenger ships not carrying contraband will be rejected. Just what steps will be taken by the United States as a result of Germany's failure to disavow the sinking of the Lusitania is most uncertain. It is this issue—the loss of 100 American lives for which Germany has disclaimed responsibility—that has brought the situation to a grave and critical point.

It has been arranged that Secretary Lansing would go to Cornish, N.H., for a conference with the president as soon as the note had been carefully examined here, and the secretary had prepared a draft of the note. It may be, however, that the president will decide to return to Washington instead, and some announcement on the subject was believed to be likely later in the day.

LEARN INFORMALLY.

Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador here, will call on Secretary Lansing in a day or two to learn informally the attitude of the United States toward the German reply. It is understood he has asked for an engagement to discuss the situation, and is to be received by the secretary just as soon as the latter has examined the note carefully and made up his mind on what policy should be pursued.

So far as is known, the German ambassador will make his call without specific instructions from his government, merely following the custom of diplomats when notes have been exchanged, to learn the attitude of the recipient government and what may be expected as the next step in the correspondence. That there are to be no informal negotiations, however, on the subject is made plain, and the ambassador's call very probably will partake more of the nature of a call for information rather than discussion.

The ambassador is understood to be in thorough accord with his government on the reply, which he regards as satisfactory, and as lending itself to further negotiations.

GENERAL FRENCH PRAISES TENACITY AND COURAGE OF DOMINION TROOPS

Says Gases are Quite Unworthy of a Nation Whose Mastery of Warfare is so Complete.

The left flank of the Canadian position was left dangerously exposed to serious attack (by the inability of the French division to carry out its orders) on the flank and there appeared to be a prospect of its being overwhelmed. In spite of the danger to which they were exposed the Canadians held their ground with a magnificent display of tenacity and courage. The bearing and conduct of these splendid troops averted a disaster which might have been attended by the most serious consequences.

London, July 12.—Field Marshal Sir John French, reviewing operations on the British front from April 5 to June 15, delivers an eloquent indictment of what he terms the unsoldierly conduct of the Germans in the employment of asphyxiating gases. He pays tribute to the Germans as one-time exponents of the highest thought in methods of warfare, and expresses his surprise and regret that they should have adopted such an expedient against adversaries so worthy of such a body of troops. The operations themselves have been previously covered in official eyewitness statements and in unofficial despatches from the front.

SCATHING INDICTMENT

Following is a summary of the British commander's caustic review:

"It is with much regret that I have to report that during this period the fighting has been characterized on the enemy's side by a cynical and barbarous disregard of the well-known usages of civilized warfare and a flagrant defiance of the terms of the Hague Convention. All the scientific resources of Germany apparently have been brought into play to produce a gas of so virulent and poisonous a nature that any human being brought into contact with it is first paralyzed and then meets an agonizing and lingering death.

"The enemy invariably preceded his prepared and supported attacks by discharging a stupendous volume of fumes whenever the wind was favorable.

"As a soldier, I cannot help expressing the deepest regret and surprise that an army which hitherto has claimed to be the chief exponent of the chivalry of war should have stooped to employ such devices against brave and gallant foes.

"The gas was first used by the enemy on April 22."

IMPENDING TRAGEDY

Young Turk Party Hoards Funds to Prepare For Exile

London, July 12.—A Rome despatch to The Daily News says:

"Interesting information as to the situation in Constantinople, supplied from a reliable source, is given in the Tribune. A sense of impending tragedy is felt by the inhabitants. Over eighty thousand wounded from the Dardanelles are now in Constantinople and the number is daily increasing. The troops sent to the front realize that they are destined to slaughter and they are reluctantly persuaded by their officers and the Ulemas, who purpose to visit the barracks to preach a holy war. These efforts, however, are unavailing to arouse the soldiers to enthusiasm. An infantry division which was recently sent to the Dardanelles from Smyrna, marched through Constantinople.

Hatred of the German officers has increased to such an extent that over 400 have been murdered. Many German officers realize that their lives are imperilled. Enver Pasha's life is openly threatened. Advocates of a separate peace are no longer molested and are not considered traitors. The Young Turks are now openly embezzling and hoarding funds for future exile."

ARBITRATORS MAKE AWARD

Only Slightly Lessened Ice Company Gets $48,000.

Not long ago arbitrators in the case of Ignatius Schooley for Brantford Ice Company, made a finding that the Lake Erie & Northern Railway should pay $49,000 damages in connection with the effect of the railroad route upon two properties, one below Lorne bridge and the other across the canal by the Grand Trunk bridge.

The company appealed, and the case came up in Toronto to-day, with the result that the award was affirmed less $800 taken off for sawdust.

The Ice Company thus obtain something over $48,000.

IS THE SULTAN DEAD?

Paris, July 12.—La Liberté says that the Idea Nazionale of Rome has received the following note vised by the censor:

"News from Athens and Sofia advises us that the Sultan has been dead several days and that the Young Turks are hiding the news, fearing political complications."

DECLINED TO ANSWER

London, July 12.—A sheaf of questions designed to secure a discussion of the well known controversy and the differences between David Lloyd-George, the Minister of Munitions, and Viscount Haldane, former Minister of war, was posted in the House of Commons this afternoon, but Premier Asquith firmly declined to satisfy the inquiring members of parliament. The prime minister pleaded that any such discussion in the present circumstances could serve no good purpose and that it would be detrimental to the best interests of the nation.

LETTER FROM PTE. M. E. METCALFE, AN OLD COLLEGIATE SCHOLAR

Tells of Frightful Mutilation of Prisoners by Huns—Spirit of Men Fine.

The following letter from England was written by Alva E. Metcalfe, an old Brantford Collegiate boy, who enlisted in Calgary. The Courier takes great pleasure in publishing this epistle as it is very interesting. He paints with lurid colours his impressions of the war and their reading will no doubt stir many to follow in his tracks and avenge such vile doings.

June 12, 1915.

Dear Sam—This is Saturday afternoon and we are free. However, it is only because we started work shortly after four this morning and did our day's routine before dinner. The boys are willing to work hard over here—they do it cheerfully, but they do like a bit of time to themselves at the week-end. We have some pretty rough customers amongst us and I'm afraid there are no small few to whom a week is rather a long period to go without having a spree. However, they're all jolly good fellows and at heart they are of sterling quality. All told they believe in a code of morality and live up to it in a way that would put altogether too many of our church people to shame. We are nearing the firing line now and almost every day the distant firing of guns can be heard, yet the lads are in the best of spirits, looking ahead with a feeling of cheerful self-sacrifice and perfect confidence in the final outcome of the war.

During the last few weeks our casualties have been particularly heavy, chiefly owing to our shortage of ammunition. Our troops have been depending too much upon the bayonet in the use of which they far excel the Germans. The latter now them down in swarms with their rapid-firing guns and enormous stores of ammunition, wherever a charge is made. Only two weeks ago the British made 143,000 cavalry at one point, intending to use them in a flank attack as soon as our infantry had pierced the German line for them. But the infantry couldn't pierce it. Rush after rush was made at the one point and five trenches in all were taken, but the Germans simply retreated into further trenches and all the while kept up a fire that no force on earth could stand up against for any length of time.

More and more people are beginning to see that Lord Kitchener made no fanatical statement when he said

WAS THERE AN AIRSHIP OVER CITY?

Courier Investigates Stories of Strange Noises Last Night.

Mysterious midnight sounds, the whirr of machinery in the skies, the same details of the fact that an aeroplane visit to Brantford took place last night, were given to the Courier.

The information, coming as it did, would tend to verify suspicions slumbering but present in many minds that such visits have taken place.

Lights have trailed themselves across the skies, whirling with the precision of trained mechanical contrivances for aerial work, and circling over the city, taken flight northwards.

What is the explanation; is there a series of experiments being conducted in this neighborhood?

WHIRRING AND TURNING

The story deleted of names, is as follows, and is vouched for by one family living opposite the engineering plant, who have resided there for over ten years now, and so are familiar with most of the noises incidental to its vicinity.

About 1:30 a.m. this morning, two ladies were awakened by a "noise in the air"—a sound of the purring and drumming of a motor engine.

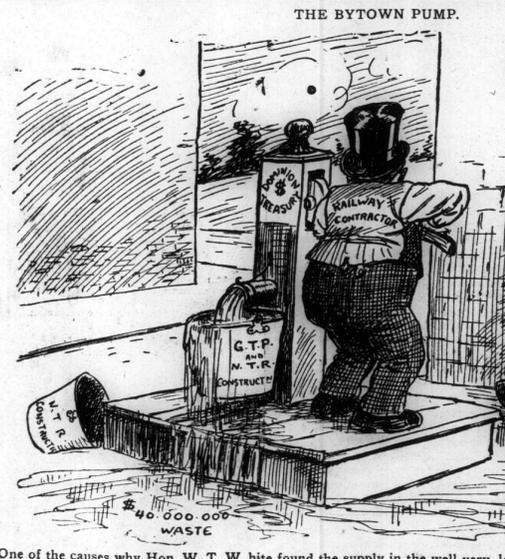

They looked upwards, but could distinguish nothing, and then as the noise hovered over the industrial plant it ceased; a silence ensued, then the noise of an engine being turned over and the whirring of dynamo action followed as it speeded away.

They are not imaginative people and are not looking for aerial raids, in fact they have never given the matter any thought until the untoward and unexplainable happening.

LADY INTERVIEWED

One of the ladies, when interviewed by the Courier stated: "It was about half past one this morning when we were all awakened by a peculiar whirring noise, which sounded for all the world like the engine of an aeroplane. We immediately rushed out on to the verandah to see if we could locate where the noise came from. Once outside we could hear the whirr quite plainly, and it certainly sounded like nothing else but the engine of a flying machine. From the sound we judged the machine to be directly over the factory, but were unable to see anything, not even a light. The sound moved away but the fac-

SERVICES AT COLBORNE ST.

Fine Inspiring Address from New Pastor.

In spite of the intense heat, a large crowd gathered last night to hear their new pastor, the Rev. W. E. Baker. Mr. Baker is a splendid preacher, possessing a strong clear voice and a command of a felicitous diction. He bids fair to become one of Brantford's most powerful preachers. Basing his sermon on St. John 9:25 the reverend gentleman struck the keynote of his work for the future by stating that he held a positive definite belief and that was the power of God to save all men at all times in all places. Christ passing the blind man by the wayside and sending him to the pool of Siloam to wash the clay from his eyes that he might see, is a living and perpetual illustration of Christ's relation to us to-day. He is passing now and we only have faith and use the means at our disposal as the blind man had and did. Then we too would see in matters of spiritual portent and would be true Christians. The means at our disposal were the Bible, the church, the Sacrament and prayer. The pastor was very insistent upon every Christian having a certain definite religious experience. Christianity was like business, it had to be learned by experience, not by theorizing. It was a practical thing. The best theologians in the world were the plain every-day people, who did the will of God.

During the service, Mrs. Dr. Leeming sang very sweetly, "Jesus of Nazareth is passing by."

Annual Picnic Great Success

The Gospel Tabernacle Sunday school held their annual picnic on Saturday at Slater's Island, about 20 children and parents taking in the trip. The journey was taken by special cars, booths were erected for ice cream, peanuts, etc. A good program of sports was arranged, resulting as follows.

All junior classes had races and prizes given for 1st and 2nd.

Baraca class race, won by Mrs. S. Davies.

Married women's race, won by Mrs. Gardner.

Girls' peanut race, won by Miss E. McKnight.

Single ladies vs. married ladies tug of war, won by single ladies.

Single men, vs. married men, tug of war, won by married men.

Mariborough St. Church vs. Gospel Tabernacle tug of war, won by Tabernacle.

The Rev. G. H. North was in fine form as pitcher in the ball game.

Mr. John Symons, Mr. Walter Biggell, Mrs. Symonds and Mrs. Creath handled the refreshment and sports part of the picnic, and everyone voted it as a decided success.

Mr. J. Drury, Supt., was unable to be present, owing to a sad bereavement.

Obituary

The death occurred on Saturday at his residence on the Cocksbutt Road, of Joseph Henry Norris. Deceased, who was 55 years of age, succumbed to heart trouble. He was a very fine citizen of the highest type, a fond husband and father and good neighbor.

For 28 years he had been a member of the Ancient Order of Foresters and he was an ardent member of the Wesleyan Methodist Church. In addition to his sorrowing wife he leaves six children, two to mourn his great loss, Mrs. Lillian, Winnipeg, C. Norris, Saskatchewan, J. Norris, Baldwin Avenue, Norman, Bertha and Edith at home. To the bereaved the sympathy of a large circle of friends will be extended.

A very successful patriotic picnic was held at Kettleby, in North York.

For the Children

By Mr. Fox and the Bunny.

Once upon a time there was a hen who, in order to be exclusive of her friends of the barnyard, built her nest up the road in a thicket under the fence and started in to raise a brood of chicks.
 Everything worked fine, but one moonlight night there came a sudden stop, for down the road came a fox, nosing from side to side, till all of a sudden he spied in the moonlight in the grass the head of Mother Hen on her eggs. Quick as a flash he grabbed her by the neck and dragged her off the nest, and away up the lane he went. Sooth to say, it looked bad for the eggs in the nest. But up from the barn in the lane came loping along, nosing from side to side, a little brown pup, when suddenly he lighted on the vacant nest. Creeping closer, he took in the situation, the warm nest and nobody home. Instead of destroying them the dear little fellow just placed his warm body on the eggs and took the place of the poor mother, kept them warm all night, and the next morning, which was Easter morn, he brought forth a brood of chicks.

Why Quassia Was So Called.

Quassia, that exceedingly bitter drug so largely used for medicinal purposes, owes its name to a negro named Quassi, a native of Surinam or Dutch Guiana, who brought it into notice as a medicine about the middle of the eighteenth century. It was the wood of the quassia amara, a small branching tree or shrub, all parts of which were very bitter to the taste and which was used for tonics. From Surinam it was introduced into Stockholm in 1756 and in quite a short time became a popular medicine all over Europe. At one time on the quassia was it considered that drinking cups were made of it for the use of invalids suffering from dyspepsia or similar ailments.

FOOD EXPERTS

Discovery That the Number of Food Experts in Canada and United States is Legion.
 "Since the announcement of the 'dietetic blended menus' on the C.P.R., Mr. W. A. Cooper, the manager of the dining car service, has discovered that the number of food experts in Canada and the United States is legion. Among other things he has been urged to supply only the best on the trains on the ground that, sour milk with a judicious culture of the bacillus bulgaricus is a sure method of securing longevity, and preserving the traveller against possible attacks of sclerosis, atheroma and Bright's disease. In vain Mr. Cooper reminds these people that he never set out to produce Methusalehs, but merely to protect people against the possible dyspepsia arising from injudicious eating on a transcontinental journey. In vain he sends them quotations from Dr. Harvey Wiley's standard work on 'Foods and their Adulteration,' in which the 'sour milk' air ship is riddled with scientific bullets. In return he is bombarded with tales and photographs of such as Marie Priou, who lived to the age of one hundred and fifty-eight on cheese and goat's milk and Theuse Abalva, who on her one hundred and eightieth birthday rose early in the morning and proceeded cheerfully to her daily breakfast of barley, bread and buttermilk.

THE SITUATION.

The efficient manner in which those come-backers, the Russinas have checked the Austrian forces in Poland has served to put a kink in the plans of Emperor William and his advisers.

Meanwhile the French keep nibbling away to good purpose. After fierce fighting, lasting for one hundred and twenty days, north of Arras, they have taken heights which dominate Flanders and their offensive position is thereby greatly strengthened.

The successful completion of Botha's mastery work in Africa—work which has very properly called forth special praise from Lord Kitchener—brings to mind the fact that had not the Boers been given self government they might very easily have taken advantage of the present crisis to rank themselves with Germany for they are very close racially to that people.

Then, again, had Italy stuck to her alliance with Germany and Austria, that fact would have added a very formidable obstacle to the task which the allies have undertaken.

In both essentials the reverse of what has taken place would have been serious almost beyond words, and we can all thank God that it has turned out otherwise.

THE GERMAN REPLY

The full text of the German reply as received at Washington makes no apology whatever for the sinking of the Lusitania, and no pledge that other slaughters of the same kind may not occur.

It does seem that nationalization of the systems might be the right course to pursue. Succoring them with further loans and guarantees also would mean that the public would require to pay higher freight rates forever afterwards.

It would cause the country to hustle for years to make railway ends meet, but it would result in a national policy of immigration and production being adopted, which would make Canada a great nation. We have fertile lands and abundant national resources but in the 48 years since Confederation have only gained five millions in population when there is room and opportunities for fifty millions.

True, every word of it. The sinking of the Lusitania was not an isolated event but merely one symptom of a general plan.

BRITISH OFFICER HELD.

Los Angeles, July 12.—Kenneth Croft, who claims to be a lieutenant of British mounted infantry, was under arrest here to-day on a charge of recruiting soldiers for the British army. He will be taken to San Francisco to plead to an indictment returned against him rests are expected in connection with the government's investigation here of alleged neutrality violations.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

THE RAILWAY MESS.

Everybody knows in a general way that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his government left matters in very bad shape with regard to railroads. In fact one of the main objects of the present visit of Premier Borden to the Old Land is to consult with British financiers as to what had best be done in connection with the situation.

The editor of the Ottawa Journal, who is in close touch with these matters at the Capital, points out that with respect to the Grand Trunk Pacific it was built on federal credit and its branch lines on provincial government bonds. It has issued nearly $200,000,000 bonds guaranteed by the various governments and the roads' earnings are not large enough to enable it to meet its interest liabilities.

The Canadian Northern is reported to be in a not much better position. Sir Robert Borden, it is understood, will consult with British financiers and through them convey to British investors an assurance that their investments will be protected. A possible outcome of the conference may be the despatch of a leading London financier and a prominent railway man from the United States to Canada to appraise the railways and the situation generally.

In Ottawa, it is believed that the Dominion is faced with state ownership on a big scale. The nationalization of these two systems is declared to be certain with the possibility of taking over the C. P. R. as well.

The C. P. R. is in a better financial position, but were the country to assume the other two systems, it would desire to be taken in rather than compete with the government owned railways.

The principle underlying government ownership is service at cost. Beyond operation maintenance and investment charges, they do not seek profits nor require to pay dividends to shareholders.

The capital of the C. P. R. is $455,276,084. That of the Grand Trunk Pacific is $402,792,715 and of the Canadian Northern $268,840,665. With their bonded indebtedness the total obligations of the railways are placed at two billion dollars.

It is a colossal proposition which faces the Dominion. Generally it is admitted that irreparable injury would be inflicted upon Canada's credit were any one or two of its transcontinental railways to go to the wall. Which horn of the dilemma should the country take: To pour millions into the railways to be returned without return; or purchase them and proceed to make the best of their possession?

It does seem that nationalization of the systems might be the right course to pursue. Succoring them with further loans and guarantees also would mean that the public would require to pay higher freight rates forever afterwards.

It would cause the country to hustle for years to make railway ends meet, but it would result in a national policy of immigration and production being adopted, which would make Canada a great nation. We have fertile lands and abundant national resources but in the 48 years since Confederation have only gained five millions in population when there is room and opportunities for fifty millions.

What this neck of the woods seems to really need just now is a little more rain.

There is a place in Quebec called Smellie. That's what Brantford was before the sulphuretted gas got kicked out.

The Courier is in hearty accord with the sentiments expressed in a letter which appears in this issue. The unsightly poles on Brantford's main business streets ought to go.

The Mail-Empire in an editorial note the other day, made fun of the Brantford baseball team as a cellar proposition. The attention of that paper is gently but firmly called to the fact that right now Brantford is heading for the top, while the Maple Leafs are en route for the underneath spot at a two minute clip.

The prize for the town with the most frivolous name, might go to Gay Head, Mass.—Buffalo News.

"Well, there's Lightfoot, Va.—Toronto Globe. "We would rather spend our vacation at Kissimmee, Fla.—Boston Transcript.

Falling that, how would Spooner, Saskatchewan, do for this osculatory gent?

Judging from the tone at Washington, Uncle Sam is not likely to force the issue on Germany. At the same time an admitted crisis of a very grave nature has arisen between the two countries. It is still to be hoped, from the standpoint of the allies, that Uncle Sam will keep out of it, but his self-respect, as matters at present stand, has most decidedly been impinged.

Describing this attack, General French says: "The effect of the gas was so virulent as to render the whole line held by the French division practically incapable of action. At first it was impossible for anyone to realize what actually had happened, as the smoke and fumes hid everything from sight. Hundreds of the men were thrown into a comatose and dying condition, and within an hour the whole position had to be abandoned, together with 50 guns.

"I wish particularly to repudiate any idea of attaching the least blame to the French division for this unfortunate incident, and to express my firm conviction that if any troops in the world had been able to hold these trenches in the face of such a treacherous and altogether unexpected onslaught, it would have been the French division."

GALLANT CANADIANS "The left flank of the Canadian position was thus left dangerously exposed to a serious attack on the flank, and there appeared to be a prospect of its being overwhelmed. In spite of the danger to which they were exposed, the Canadians held their ground with a magnificent display of bravery and courage. The bearing and conduct of these splendid troops averted a disaster which might have been attended by the most serious consequences.

The and London Heavy Battery, which was attached to the Canadian division, posted behind the right of the French division, being involved in their retreat, fell into the enemy's hands. It was recaptured by the Canadian, but the guns could not be withdrawn before the Canadians were again driven back.

ENEMY GUNS VERY ACTIVE "During the morning of the 27th the enemy's artillery was very active. His attacks along the whole front were supported by heavy guns.

"I issued orders on May 7 to commence a withdrawal to a new line, which was carried out deliberately, and with scarcely a loss, in the face of the enemy, who was in position, reflects the greatest possible credit on Sir Herbert Plumer and those who efficiently carried out his orders.

"On the whole of the 4th the enemy heavily shelled the trenches we had evacuated, being unaware that they were no longer occupied. "Up to the morning of the 8th the enemy made attacks at short intervals, always covered by gas, on all parts of the line east of Ypres, but everywhere they were driven back with heavy loss.

"The morning of the whole period, since the first break in the line on the night of April 22, all our troops have been constantly subjected to a violent bombardment from a large mass of guns with an unlimited supply of ammunition.

"The artillery bombardment was shortly followed by a heavy infantry attack, before which our line had to give way.

GREAT AERIAL RECORD "Referring to the work of the flying corps, Field Marshal French says: "Since my last despatch 60 air combats have occurred, in which no British aeroplane was lost."

In conclusion he says: "Some of the divisions of the new army have arrived and probably will prove a valuable addition to our fighting force."

Arnold Bennett, Walter Hale the artist, and George H Maif of the British Foreign Office. As they approached the lines one shot from a 4-inch gun burst within 25 yards of them, while others exploded only 30 or 40 yards away. This incident seemed to greatly amuse the soldiers in the trenches, who laughed heartily at the embarrassment of the civilians.

MODERN CAVE-DWELLERS The visitors were invited by the soldiers into their shelters, which are dry caves with narrow entrances and with clay floors covered with matting for seating, and faintly illuminated by the light which filters in from the entrance or by bits of candle on the inside. Men who had been on duty throughout the night were sleeping in these caves.

The men on the firing line express the utmost confidence that what was done yesterday or this morning they can keep on doing until the war has been won. They never hear the vague unverified reports circulated in Paris, sometimes of tremendous and impossible victories or sinister hints of disaster. They know what they have done since March 9, when ordered to act upon this part of the Aisne. They talk as a matter of course of another winter campaign, because they say it will take another year to break the German power.

The principal occupations of the soldiers when off duty, instead of worrying about the war, are eating and sleeping. The visitor hears more hearty laughter in an hour at the front than in a week behind the lines.

POWERFUL GLASSES USED Extreme watchfulness is exercised on both sides of the line. German artillerymen shell even one man sighted while walking within three or four miles of their front. Powerful glasses are used by the French, graduated lenses on the lenses showing within 50 yards the location of an object or an individual.

The members of the party were waiting at the rendezvous at the time agreed upon, four automobiles came within German range at dusk, raising speed. German six-inch shells began dropping in the roadway so accurately that five holes were torn in the concrete after the machines had passed. The shelling of the road continued with extreme precision for some time. One of the French officers remarked that if it were not a cloudy day it would be impossible for the party to move about with safety even a considerable distance behind the line, because in a brilliant light individuals can be seen miles away and are practised upon by the gunners. It is estimated that if one man is hit for every two men thrown the average is good.

17-YEAR-OLD GERMAN SOLDIER Some prisoners are taken every day. The party of which the correspondent was a member came across one who was being questioned by his captors.

He was a blue-eyed, blonde, weak-looking youth, who said he was twenty-one and a half years old, but who looked not more than seventeen. He had been in the trenches six months, and said he had not had enough to eat. The reason why was not quite clear, but he told an officer he had seen no food for two days. He and twenty-five others, mistaking the location of their post, had been captured.

To The Editor

A GOOD MOVE.

Brantford, July 10th, 1915. To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir,—It was with a great degree of satisfaction, that the writer noticed recently in your paper, that a movement had been made by the board of works, looking to the removal—at least from Colborne street—of the unsightly telephone and other poles, which are such an eyesore to every observer; as well as such a source of danger, and a menace to life in case of a fire; besides being such a serious obstruction to the efforts of our firemen in their work at such times—the liability to crossing, of highly powered wires—creates in such case a veritable death trap.

At the fire at the Crompton corner some months ago, these dangerous features were much in evidence, to which the fire chief the writer is sure will give his attestation. That such action is necessary, and in harmony with a progressive policy, which demands that Brantford should get away from the country village type of appearance on her business streets, the writer thinks that both you, Mr. Editor, and the Brantford citizens, will agree.

That the members of the board of works in this proposed action, have the endorsement of the citizens generally, and of the heavy ratepayers on the business streets in particular, they may be well assured. That such action will be without unnecessary delay carried into effect, is the hope and expectation of the writer, along with very many others who have given this matter their serious consideration. I am, sir,

Yours sincerely, A Colborne Street Ratepayer.

LUSITANIA'S DESTROYER CAPTURED BY BRITISH

Crew of German Undersea Raider Quietly Placed in Prison in England.

New York, July 12.—The German submarine which sank the Lusitania has been captured by the British in one of the English Channel nets, and the officers and crew imprisoned.

This was the statement made yesterday by Lewis Charles Lewis, fifteen-year-old son of a partner in the firm of Lewis and Lewis, of 581 Fifth avenue, who arrived with his aunt, Mrs. J. Simmonds, who corroborated the boy's story, on the American liner St. Paul.

The crew were quietly placed in prison and no mention made of the capture, because the British Government feared an uprising of the people and a general public demand that the crew be hanged.

The submarine was either the U-24 or the U-23. I don't remember which," said Lewis. "The officers, after their capture admitted it was their boat which destroyed the Lusitania."

BRANTS BROKE EVEN ON SATURDAY AND WON IN OTTAWA ON SUNDAY

Walker Pitched First Game and Played Well in Box and at Bat—Scored Homer in First—Burrill's Homer in Ottawa Responsible For Score.

The Brants are at last out of the cellar and will soon be fighting for first position. They have been playing good ball of late and with the breaks going their way, are now doing something. It has been a great surprise to fans who know the game, that the team has been floundering around in the scrap heap for so long. Booster's Day was certainly a success on Saturday for the stands were very nearly filled. Quite a crowd of rooters came up from Hamilton and helped to increase the attendance. Everyone went away pleased for they had seen good ball. It was an ideal day for the sport and gave the players no chance to complain of rheumatism or stiffness. In the first innings the Brants played poorly, but they rallied under Walker, and gave him excellent support. Gabby Ivers was back again on first and had most of the put-outs chalked up to him. The Crisallites only secured five hits, only one being a double. They would have been shut out if they had not taken advantage of the poor play on the part of their rivals in the second. Two errors, one belonging to Dunn and one to Dunlop, allowed Hermandy, the Hams' new Cuban player, to score. It was King who made the only double in the last frame. The home crew made sixteen hits and scraped together eleven runs in eight innings. It was through Walker's double and Dunlop's two-base hit that Burrill, Fried and Dunlop scored in the second. Then Fried smashed out to the centre fence in the fourth and allowed Mullin to score. In the sixth, with two out and two on bases, Walker showed his value as a slam artist. He picked out one of Schroeder's easy ones and placed it over the fence in the very farthest corner of left field. That old pill travelled farther than any of its predecessors this season. That made the score 7 to 1 in favor of the Warnerites. Three more were scored in the seventh, which was the longest frame of the afternoon; everyone had a turn at bat. Cooper started with a single. Burrill followed his example and placed one out in centre field and stole second later. Hermandez made a bone and allowed Cooper to score. Then Mullin rapped one out to centre field and gave Buster the opportunity to make his second run. Five more were up but nothing interesting was accomplished and three died on the bases. The Hams were indeed fortunate to get out of such a corner play with only three more runs against them. The last was made by Buster Bur-

When he knocked out a long, beautiful drive to left field, making third on it. This was the first triple that he has made this season. He scored on Mullin's single.

A snappy double play must also be charged to the credit of the home team. In the eighth, Lamond and Schroeder were put out, Fried to Dunlop to Ivers.

The team played splendidly after the first two frames and richly deserved the victory which pulled them out of the hole. Both Burrill and Walker played brilliant games. The speedy new pitcher made a homer and a double besides, entirely outguessing his victims. Burrill made a triple and two singles and scored three runs. He didn't have much to do in centre however. It looked as if the Hams were afraid to place them out there. The score:—

Table with columns A, B, R, H, O, A, E for Brantford and Hamilton. Brantford: 7, Hamilton: 1.

Doherty pitched so well for Hamilton that the Brants were very nearly shut out. Fried sapped out a single past third. Through a wild pitch he made second and then stole third. Creswell hit a bender for a single and Fried scored. But the frame came to a disastrous end when the Hams pulled off a double play. They played well in the sixth and also made another double play. Although the visitors made eleven hits and the Brants six, they were all singles. Linneborn played well for the Crisallites. He played on first in Gabby Ivers' place and batted 1.000. Creswell certainly had an off day but he was well backed up. Walker replaced Dunn in right garden, when Cooper had to go to the bench because of his split finger. Dunn filled his place well but was not very sure on a few pegs to second. Walker made two nice catches and received generous applause from the fandoms present.

S. O. E. HOLMEDALE These teams met at Tutela Park on Saturday before a small crowd. Holmedale turned out with 8 men and the game suffered as a result. The Sons pressed all through and were continually pulled up for offside. Holmedale played pluckily and nearly scored on several occasions, while on the other hand the Sons scored on nine occasions, half time score was 4-0, 5 more were added in the second half and the game ended with the score 9-0 in favor of the Sons. The second was scored in the following order by Dixon, McGration, Smith, Johnson 2, Hingely 4.

The Sons will hold a practice on Tuesday night at Tutela Park. All players are asked to be out. After practice time to play Paris next Saturday will be picked.

THISTLES 3, P. S. A. 1. The P. S. A. met the Thistles at Agricultural Park on Saturday and the Thistles had the second goal scored against them during the season. The game was fast and the Brotherhood boys put up a good struggle considering that only ten of their men turned out, one having to work late. The Thistles scored twice in the first half. After the interval the P. S. A. still tried hard and soon they were rewarded. A well placed corner kick was headed in by Joe Holland, who was playing in the forward line, for the second time. The Thistles scored another goal, thereby making it 3-1 in their favor.

Joe Beev played well in goal and deserved much credit. The P. S. A. did well to score on the Scotchmen. The P. S. A. club will hold a practice at Agricultural park on Wednesday night, but will not meet this week for their usual meeting.

Daniel Dresser, a well-known New York business man, committed suicide.

CIRCUIT CHIPPINGS

Ottawa Journal: Losing two out of three to the tail-enders doesn't mean anything. The Brantford team is only a tail-end as far as the standing of the league is concerned, but the playing of Warner's team is just about good enough for them to be fighting for the top instead of being down where they are. The team got away to a bad start, and it has been hard work trying to get out of the rut, but before the season is over the Red Sox are going to make it mighty interesting for those clubs that have pennant hopes. They land in Ottawa on Sunday for a few days, and if they make it as interesting for Shag and his men as they did the Ottawa's team's visit to the Telephone City there will be despair in the Senator's stronghold. However the Ottawas should just about clean up both the visiting teams here next week.

Guelph Mercury: Many a fan is working his think tank overtime trying to figure out why it is that Brown, the Guelph middle fielder, is playing in the Canadian league. The reason is simple. The local management have a signed and sealed document from the Toronto International management to the effect that he must remain with Guelph to the end of the present season. He is the property of the Toronto club, and you can bet your bottom dollar that the McCaffery bunch would have recalled him before this if they could have done so. Brown's hitting would be of inestimable value to the Toronto Leafs at the present time.

Hamilton Spectator: The Hamilton club has signed another pitcher, a chap named Jones, who was with the Jackson club in the defunct Michigan league. He will report here on Monday and upon his arrival Eccles will be released, as there are too many southpaw pitchers on the team. Hen-

Chicago and the Jackson club, has also been signed and will report at once. He is an utility player and will be played in right garden. He was hitting .297 when the Jackson club disbanded. Fenoff, an outfielder, who was signed by Crisall, did not desire to come here, and the Cuban was signed in his stead. Tony King, an outfielder, has also been signed. He was with the Jackson club and was hitting at .355 clip when the cyclone struck the league.

Underneath The Surface

An Incident That Brought Content to a Dissatisfied Woman.

By ROY RICHARDSON.

"I'm sorry we're invited," observed Mrs. Edmonds to her husband as they dressed to go out. "We shan't have a good time."

"Why?" her husband inquired. "I always liked Ned."

"Yes," responded Mrs. Edmonds. "I like them both, but, Will, try as hard as I may, they make me absurdly jealous. They have got so much, they live in such elegant style, give such splendid receptions and entertainments and seem to be getting more and more in the social swim all the time. They certainly do outshine us, and, while I know it is not right for me to feel so, I am jealous of them."

Mr. Edmonds grew serious. "The old excuse, Grace. I thought you had outgrown that bad habit. We've got so much that they can never have. There?" he cried, pinching her cheek. "Let's put it aside. We have each other, while you know they quarrel. We must have them here some evening soon. You can sing while I juggle the chafing dish. Ned Constable never could make a decent rabbit. His wife won't let him learn how."

Mrs. Edmonds sighed even at her husband's picture of a pleasant evening at home. "I shall depend upon you," she said as they rang the Constable doorbell, "to keep me contented tonight, Will."

It was quite an affair. Mr. and Mrs. Constable, whatever they might be when alone, were a charming host and hostess.

"How well they do it!" exclaimed Mrs. Edmonds to her husband as they sat eating. Then, with a dangerous tone in her voice, she said, "I wish, oh, so much that you and I—"

"There, there," Edmonds broke in gently. "We're not going to speak of that, dearie. By Jove!" he ejaculated suddenly. "I do believe there's old Tom Goodwin over there all by himself. You remember Tom, don't you, Grace—the fellow who was too poor to come to our wedding and who said he was sending forks instead of buying a railroad ticket? I haven't seen him for months. He writes things, I believe. You must meet him, good old chap."

"Do you know," Goodwin remarked a few moments later, seating himself beside his new-found friends, "I always promised myself the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Edmonds. And now," and his genial face beamed with good nature. "I see how true it is that an expected pleasure are the keenest. Funny thing, Mrs. Edmonds, but I didn't want to come here at all."

At this Edmonds smiled at his wife. "Neither did we. Now we are glad we did," he said. "But, Tom, why haven't you called? You might have found us before this in the directory."

"Oh, yes," Tom rejoined, "but you're such dreadful swells I didn't dare. You see," he explained while Mrs. Edmonds tried to tell him how modest they really were, "I'm just beginning. When you just begin to people don't like you, and mostly you don't take to them, and so I have thought it best to keep away by myself until I had done something worth while."

Goodwin made himself very agreeable, and Mrs. Edmonds liked him. Her husband got deep in debate with a business acquaintance, and the two men presently drifted to the other side of the room, so when the music began in the conservatory Goodwin took Mrs. Edmonds upstairs.

"It's awfully good of you, you know," he said to her as they seated themselves next a dense mass of palms in the ballroom, "not to insist on dancing, but to talk to me. You're so cheerful and seem so contented. Will is a fortunate man, Mrs. Edmonds."

"How odd! I was discontented and blue when I came here tonight," she said, "all because I was—well, I was covetous."

Tom laughed. "We all get that way at times, I fancy," he remarked. "Look at those De Puysters standing over there, the richest people here. You wouldn't believe it, but they are ridiculously jealous of the Four Hundred. How the Four Hundred fare we never know, but the De Puysters are them as far as they can, while some of us are silly enough to ape the De Puysters. I am glad you are not one of those."

Before Mrs. Edmonds could confess that indeed she was one of them there came to her ear from behind the palms by which they sat the sound of voices. They both recognized the tones of their host and hostess. It was an awkward position, but they could not have escaped without being seen from over the palms.

Constable was evidently remonstrating with his wife. "You can't mean to pretend," he was saying, "to be keeping pace with the De Puysters. One would think you were, to see us tonight. I tell you, Anne, I can't afford it, and that's flat."

"That's what you're always saying—'can't afford this; can't pay for that,'" cried Mrs. Constable, with considerable heat. "Why don't you go into bankruptcy and be done with it? You never used to complain."

"We would look well bankrupt, wouldn't we?" her spouse cut in. "I never used to complain, as you say, because I was getting rich fast then. It is changed now, and I'm often pinched for money to the verge of desperation. I've told you so, Anne. While I've no objection to your entertaining and having a good time, there's a limit to our means, you know, and where the money for this is coming from I don't see."

"You never told me!" cried Mrs. Constable. "You merely said you were worried. And I'll tell you right now, Ned Constable, I do intend keeping pace with the De Puysters and flatter myself I have done so."

"He struck me on 'change for $12,000 last week," muttered Constable. "You may be able to keep up the pace, but I can't at that figure, Anne."

There was a pause. Then he said pacifically, "You go at it wrong, and, as your husband, I must correct you. Look at Will Edmonds and his wife. They are poor, as the world takes such people, but they are richer and happier than we are."

"Yes," exclaimed Mrs. Constable, "and live in a little place where you can hardly turn around and where you meet stammering musicians, impecunious actors or authors who hope to startle the world some day. Perhaps you would like to change places with them."

"I may have to," Constable murmured, "before it is all over. Come, Anne; the people are going. We must get downstairs."

Goodwin and Mrs. Edmonds arose, he serious, she trembling.

"Tell me," he asked her, "should we have gone away?"

"Yes and no," she answered. "We couldn't without their knowing." Then putting her hand in his as they came to Mr. Edmonds, she observed seriously: "A little while ago I was jealous of them, Mr. Goodwin. Now I am not, and my little place where you can hardly turn around seems sweet and good to me. Come and see us in it. We will welcome you, and you may get an idea how nice humbly it is. Good night. I thank you for being here."

As Grace and Will stood again in their own house later that night she said to him as she kissed him, with tears in her eyes: "I thank the Lord, Will, dearest, for our little place where some people can hardly turn around. Shut your eyes, Will, and say it after me: 'Bless our little place where you can hardly turn around. Amen!'"

Sweating Gold Coins.
Short weight gold coins have made the appearance recently in several of the local banks in considerable quantities. A number of $5 gold pieces that were 60 cents short were discovered in the subtreasury, having been sent there by banks which received them from out of town connections. Experts say that the coins have been treated with a bath of nitromuriatic acid, which removes part of the gold in such a manner that only by weighing can the loss be detected.—Philadelphia Record.

England's Fried Fish Shops.
In every English city of any size fried fish shops are established where cooked fish can be had at reasonable prices, and these shops are largely patronized by the poorer classes. Since the outbreak of hostilities the price of fish has steadily advanced until it has now reached a price that is prohibitive as regards a large part of the population, and in other cases fish that under ordinary conditions was freely used is now a luxury.

Feeding Prisoners of War.
The British war office gives to its prisoners of war the following daily ration: Bread, one-half pound; meat, one pound; fresh or cold storage meat, three ounces or preserved meat, half ration; fresh vegetables, eight ounces; butter or margarine, one ounce; condensed milk, one-twentieth of a one pound tin; tea, one-half ounce or coffee, one ounce; sugar, two ounces; salt, one-half ounce.—Nurse.

Practical Health Hint.
Drinking Distilled Water. Eliminate the hazards of a naval officer, say the life insurance companies and he is the best risk in the world. Why? Because simple means are used to prevent him from contracting diseases which cause the arteries to harden. The strength of the navy and marine corps is between 65,000 and 70,000 men. The report of the surgeon general for 1913 tabulates one death from apoplexy and pieces arthritis as the least common of all maladies.

"I urge that the rest of the world live as we do, using distilled water, and live on and on, youths at sixty-five," writes Dr. Wedekind, commander of the hospital ship Solace, in the Medical Record. "We do not develop arterial degeneration, gout and rheumatism, though not surrounded by home comforts, regular seasons, regular amusements and home life."

In half an hour anybody can make a still larger amount for thirst quenching purposes. A tea-kettle, a copper coil, a piece of rubber tubing and a glass preserve jar or an ordinary pitcher are the materials required.

One thing in favor of forming the habit of drinking distilled water, as recommended, is that it can never prove harmful, even if no benefit should be derived in certain cases.

A daring German spy was arrested in Rome just previous to attending a banquet.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Diminutive Cricket Player and His Mighty Bat.

ENGLAND LOVES THE GAME.

British Lads Take to Cricket as American Boys Do to Baseball. Items of Interest to Small People. Puzzles and Games For Idle Hours.

The game of cricket is as dearly loved by the boys of Great Britain as is our game of baseball by young America. Cricket is played to some extent in the United States, but most boys know little about it. There are eleven players on a side, and an umpire judges the play, as in baseball. The terms used are entirely different from those of baseball. For instance, the pitcher is called bowler, and the catcher is called wicket keeper. The batsman is called striker. The aim of the bowler is to knock down the wickets. The striker stands in front of the wicket and with a flat bat does his best to guard the wickets. A striker is out when a wicket falls or when he is caught out on a fly. The little boy with the cricket bat was snatched in a London park during the Easter holidays. He probably thinks he is big enough to play, but his companions are laughing at him.

Game of Suggestions.
This is a game which people either like or dislike very much. The players sit around the room or a table, and one of them begins by naming an article, a water-faring pot. The words "water-faring pot" will immediately suggest something to the next player—say "garden." He therefore says "garden." The next may be reminded by that word of a bunch of violets she saw the gardener carrying that morning, and she says "violets." The next one, remembering the wild violets she found at Ventnor in the spring, says "Ventnor." That name suggests the seashore, and the next says "beach."

When the game has gone on for several rounds it will be seen that the minds of the players have been carried miles away from the original water-faring pot that started them.

It is interesting now to trace the series of suggestions back again to the starting player's remark. This is done by the last player mentioning not the last thing he thought of, but the thing that suggested it to him. The retracing is more difficult than the original suggestions.

In this game two things are important. One is that silence be maintained; the other that the word you give should be suggested to you only more fun to be quite honest about it and really say what was first suggested instead of making a choice.

Riddles.
1. Entire I am the opposite of fast; behind me, and I am the noise of cattle; curtain me, and I am an exclamation; behind me again, and I am another exclamation. This is done by the body that a mortal cannot exist without me. Yet I am not exclusively of an animal nature, for the earth also owns me. I am to be seen at Vesuvius. You can find me in rivers and in caves of the earth. Not even a cannon is made without me. With all the nominal race I am movable, generally noisy and can open or close at will. Answers—1. Slow, low, lo, O. 2. The mouth.

The Oldest Wrought Iron.
The oldest pieces of wrought iron now are probably the sickle blade found by Belzoni under the base of a sphinx in Karnak, near Thebes; the blade found by Colonel Vyse embedded in the masonry of the great pyramids and the portion of a crosscut saw exhibited at Nimrod by Mr. Layard, all of which are now in the British museum.

The First Telegraph.
The first telegraphic instrument was successfully operated by S. F. B. Morse, the inventor, in 1838, though its utility was not demonstrated to the world until 1842.
