God Understands.

It is so sweet to know, When we are tired, and when the hand of pain Lies on our hearts, and when we look in vain For human comfort, that the Heart Divine Still understands these cares of yours and mine. Not only understands, but day by day Lives with us while we wait the earthly way. Bears with us all our weariness, and feels The shadow of the faintest cloud that steals Across our smouldering, even faces again. The depth and bitterness of human pain. There is no sorrow that He will not share. No grief, no burden for our hearts to bear. Without His help no care of ours we could To cast on Jesus, let us rest Him all— Lay all His faith, the story of our woes, And in His arms, His love, His grace, His peace.

Bismark's Definition.

In the newspapers of to day we very often find the words entente cordiale. Most readers understand the meaning of the expression, but it is rather difficult to make a translation that expresses the exact meaning of the original French. Prince Bismark gave a good explanation when his daughter asked him what the entente cordiale really was.

"Well," he said, "it is not so easy to define literally. It means a cordial understanding, but it has a little different significance. For example: You were out in the court yard this morning when I came from the garden with Nero; Diana was in the yard gnawing a large bone. My Nero saw her and ran to seize the bone. Then there was a little fight, until I struck them a few sharp blows with my cane. After that the bone lay in the middle of the court, while both dogs stood off at some distance, and looked eagerly at it. Each dog, in fact, was as anxious to keep the other away as he was afraid of my cane, and therefore neither ventured to seize it. You see, that is what they call it in diplomatic circles an entente cordiale."

Boys and Sleep.

One thing a growing boy wants to be long on is sleep, and yet he is most apt to be careless about it. It is during sleep that a boy grows most and catches up. During waking hours he tears down and burns up more tissue than he builds. Good, sound and sufficient sleep is essential to growth, strength, and endurance. A boy should sleep at least nine or ten hours of sleep out of every twenty-four. If you lose out of this amount on one day make it up the next. Whenever unusually tired or out of trim stay in bed a few hours more if it is possible. A boy should wake up each morning feeling like a fighting cock. When he doesn't he ought to get to bed earlier that night. Sleep is a wonderful restorative and tonic. It helps to store up energy and conserve strength.—Boy Scouts of America.

Gentleness.

Gentleness is like a fragrance of a flower by which it reveals its identity and its character. Gentleness is part of the sweetness of Christianity when it blooms in a human life under the sunshine of the Lord's presence. It reveals to others the sympathy in the heart, the tenderness in the mind's thought and even the sublimity of the body itself to the usefulness of the spirit. Gentleness in the tone of voice indicates a kindly affection; in the form of speech it reveals consideration of the effect upon the feelings of others; in the gesture of hand or its friendly grasp, it implies a sweet humility and a sense of fellowship. Gentleness is always in keeping with strength, whether in repose or in action; and harshness and overbearing are characteristic of the weakness of selfishness.

Politeness.

There is a difference between politeness and etiquette. Etiquette can be defined, classified, formulated. You can tell young people to take their soup from the side of their spoons, to eat with their forks; not to make a noise in eating; all these and countless more, such injunctions are important. But I would rather eat a hundred dinners with my knife than laugh one malicious laugh at someone else who did so.—Cardinal Manning.

Books Written in Prison.

A publisher was talking about Oscar Wilde's strange book, De Profundis, with its pathetic cover decorations of a bird beating its wings against the bars of a cell.

"Wilde is not the first good book to have been written in jail," he said. "In fact, seems to be a good place to write books in. Literary men surpass themselves there. John Bunyan wrote Pilgrim's Progress in jail. Cervantes wrote Don Quixote in prison. Defoe laid the plans for Robinson Crusoe during a term of confinement imposed on him for the writing of a pamphlet called The Shortest Way With the Dissenters. Leigh Hunt wrote Rimini in jail. Sir Walter Raleigh, during his fourteen years' imprisonment in the Tower of London, wrote his excellent history of the World. Silvio Pellico and Tasso both did their best work in jail."

Mother (sternly)—Young man, I want to know just how serious are your intentions toward my daughter.
Daughter's Voice (somewhat agitated)—Mamma! mamma! He's not the one!

A Strong Man Cast Down.

A recent Scott Act case in Kings Co., N. S., has furnished a spark for a growing conflagration which endangers some interests in high circles. In a case decided by Squire J. E. Macdonald, of Canning, against the Montreal, an appeal of certiorari was granted by the Supreme Court. During the trial before Beckwith, counsel for the accused had attacked the jurisdiction of the magistrate, on the ground that he was a member of the County Temperance Alliance. Along with the evidence which was to be reviewed by the Supreme Court, some interested parties attached affidavits derogatory to the character and fitness of Beckwith, which ex parte and unusual evidence were made exclusively the ground of the decision of the court, and the language of Chief Justice Townsend was so sharp that Wilson, of Montreal, made it into a circular to advertise the 'Invalid Port Wine,' the sale of which Beckwith had condemned as intoxicating and a violation of the Act. The court reversed his decision, and although Beckwith asked for the falsity of the affidavits against him, it was refused and he was dismissed. The case was discussed in the House of Assembly, and a delegation from Kings County waited on Premier Murray, but got the reply that he must take the counsel of the county members, which means to foster the work of the disreputable rhyolite element of this county.

Effect of Open Air Life Upon the Business Man.

"The American man, the American business man of forty or forty five, has got a new shape," said a tailor. "He's got a lean, straight shape—full chest, narrow hips. But if you could have seen him a generation ago!"
"The business man of forty expected to be fat a generation ago. He rather admired, in fact, a fat, soft shape. The richest business men were fat and soft, and that made a fashion of it, just as Queen Alexandra's lameness made a limp fashionable in Victorian times."
"What stomachs our fathers had at forty or forty-five—leather bell stomachs, which they balanced by bending backward! A big stomach was a sign of success, a sign of gentility. If you were lean—why, you must be a laborer. Perhaps you did not get enough to eat."
"What is the cause of the slender figure of to-day? Open air and exercise, that's the cause. Golf is the cause. Motoring is the cause. 'My friend,' the tailor impressively ended, 'my books show that the middle aged business man of to-day is four inches bigger around the chest than the middle aged business man of 1850 and eighteen inches smaller around the stomach.'

Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The announcement is made that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will pay a visit to the Maritime Provinces sometime during the present month and will address public meetings in Halifax, Moncton and Charlottetown as well as hold conferences with the party leaders in Eastern Canada.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's visit to these provinces in the campaign of 1911 was not productive of much good from a party standpoint. Indeed, we are well within the truth when we say that it was disappointing. Much was expected of him and he failed to live up to the expectations. We had, in the charm of his striking personality, forgotten that he had lost much of his power as a platform orator. Not one-third of any of his audiences could hear him, the force that placed him in the forefront of political leadership were gone. He is regarded today more of an historic character than the leader of the Liberal party. He has played a great part in our national life and while we trust that he may be long spared to Canada yet we cannot disguise the fact that even now he is sacrificing his closing years for the benefit of his party. A parallel will be found in the career of Sir Charles Tupper who essayed to lead the Conservative party to recover in 1900. He was eighty years of age and although a man of marvellous vigor, remarkable memory and wonderful attainments, yet he was out of touch with the young life of Canada and this is largely a young man's country. Sir Charles, at eighty, endeavoring to win new laurels for the great Liberal Conservative party was a rather pathetic figure and Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1900—a great character but belongs more to the past than the present or future. He is acting wisely in limiting his addresses but his personal association with the young life of Canada and with the party leaders in the east may lead to his old comrades in arms putting up a good fight for him although as in the case of Sir Charles Tupper, history is likely to repeat itself.

Wicked New York.

"Bob Jones, the Southern evangelist, who many believe will be a second Billy Sunday, and who has visited dance halls and tango teas in the New York restaurants for the past week, broke out Friday in a storm of denunciation."
"New York is dancing on the brink of hell," he cried. "I shudder to think how many slim, well shod, twinkling feet are going to carry their owners over into the abyss."
"And then he exclaimed: 'Drink and dance—dance and drink. That's the program. There are three mile posts on the road to ruin—drink, dance and cigarettes. And the fashionable women, the society leaders, are leading young and innocent girls along this glided path.'
"In a whirl of epigrammatic denunciation, he continued:
"Nowhere else has the devil been so cleverly disguised. Vice in the small cities is ugly and naked. Here its hideousness is disguised. If I had the choice between three hours in the lobster palace and three hours in hell, I'd choose hell."
"The only difference I can see between Manhattan and hell is that Manhattan is entirely surrounded by water."
"I'vey hit a trick and subterfuge of costume seems to me to have been added together—really I should say subtracted—to make the New York girl's attire serve the one single central purpose of these appeals."
"If God had meant women to dress like that, he surely would have covered their backs with hair. I had to wait until some of them stood up from the tables to tell what they had on."
"If I had a daughter of eighteen I'd rather see her dead and in her grave than have her whirling, close pressed in some fellow's arms, in the midst of this swarm of silly, cigarette-smoking, cocktail drinking, half clad, empty headed votaries of the modern dances."
"The cause? The artificial, abnormal plane of New York's life. The debasement of home life. The 'new freedom' of women, which so many of them have converted into license men."

Good Times Ahead.

In a review of the present industrial States and Canada, Hon. W. S. Fielding, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Finance Minister, traces the history of the depression to the tightness of the money market in Europe subsequent to the Balkan war, with the consequent effect on the purchasing power of the people, leading in turn to the overstocking of factories and wholesale houses. This re-acted on the manufacturers who closed down part or the whole time, and the earning and circulating of money was to a great extent suspended. Mr. Fielding analyses the situation, especially as found in the United States and then proceeds:

"The same conditions hold largely true in Canada. Mr. A. O. Dawson, General Manager of Canada Cotton Linted, in an interview given to the Journal of Commerce a few days since, emphasized the fact that the jobbers were buying to meet actual needs only, as was evidenced by the fact the manufacturers were doing an extraordinary large express business. Retailers also have kept their shelves clear of surplus stocks and so are in a position to buy heavily from the jobbers at the first favorable turn in the economic condition of the country. The prospects for a bountiful harvest in Canada are extremely good. Hundreds of millions of dollars will, in a very few months, be in the control of the farmers throughout the length and breadth of Canada. This will mean added purchasing power, the payment of notes to implement farms and the like. This will put the manufacturing industries of the country on a sound basis and permit them to extend their operations. The process of liquidation through which the country has gone during the last year has meant much for the same revival of trade and industry. The period of depression in Canada has almost passed, and we may confidently look forward to a revival of business such as Canada has never experienced before in her history."

Summer Complaints Kill Little Ones.

At first sign of illness during the hot weather give the little ones Baby's Own Tablets, or in a few hours he may be beyond aid. The Tablets will prevent summer complaint if given occasionally to the well child and will promptly cure these troubles if they come on suddenly. Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in every home where there are young children. There is no other medicine so good and the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that they are absolutely safe. Mrs. Edward Cavell, Lombardy, Ont., says: "A mother who has once used Baby's Own Tablets for her children will never fail to show her gratitude for them. They made a wonderful change in the health of my little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Books Written in Prison.

A publisher was talking about Oscar Wilde's strange book, De Profundis, with its pathetic cover decorations of a bird beating its wings against the bars of a cell.

"Wilde is not the first good book to have been written in jail," he said. "In fact, seems to be a good place to write books in. Literary men surpass themselves there. John Bunyan wrote Pilgrim's Progress in jail. Cervantes wrote Don Quixote in prison. Defoe laid the plans for Robinson Crusoe during a term of confinement imposed on him for the writing of a pamphlet called The Shortest Way With the Dissenters. Leigh Hunt wrote Rimini in jail. Sir Walter Raleigh, during his fourteen years' imprisonment in the Tower of London, wrote his excellent history of the World. Silvio Pellico and Tasso both did their best work in jail."

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., AUG. 7, 1914.

Editorial Notes.

The war spirit which has long been smouldering in Europe has taken definite shape. Following the declaration of Austria-Hungary against Serbia, Germany has declared war on Russia and France, and has summarily rejected the request made by the British government that the neutrality of Belgium should be respected. Having done all in its power to prevent a European conflict the British government has declared to Germany that a state of war exists between the two countries from 11 o'clock p. m. on August 4th. The war which is now actually in progress will be the most gigantic struggle in the history of the world, and comes home to the people of Canada with unusual interest. One cannot but be agast at the immensity of the struggle and its consequent horrors and its destruction of life and property. Upon Germany rests the responsibility and it should meet with disaster, as she seems very likely to do, there will not be many tears shed.

We understand that Messrs. Panet and White, of the Militia Department, will likely be in Kings county to distribute cheques to the Penton Raid veterans at the end of next week. THE ACADIAN has endeavored to get some authentic information for its readers, but has not been able. We understand the Commission will meet at Kentville and likely at Aylsford, and that it will be necessary for veterans of their legal representatives to present themselves to the commission to receive the cheques. The cheques which the veterans will receive are all payable at par at any chartered bank in Canada.

On the first page of THE ACADIAN this week will be found an article from the Weekly Witness, of Montreal, on the dismissal of Mr. E. M. Beckwith, which will be of interest to our readers. The writer is in error in saying that the finding of the magistrate in the case referred to was reversed. The conviction was quashed on the strength of the affidavits referred to.

'War Is Hell.'

The American general who said 'war is hell' coined the best three-word description of man-killing that the world has known.

In this great country of peace, one is inclined to feel, upon reading the manifestos of kings and emperors, that the world is still full of fanaticism, narrowness and incongruities. The aged Emperor of Austria invokes the Divine blessing on the carnage just begun because of a recent tragic incident in neighboring country, and in itself, a helpless nation. He says:

"In this solemn hour, I am fully conscious of the whole significance of my resolve and my responsibility before the Almighty."

"I trust in Austria-Hungary's brave and devoted forces and in the Almighty to give victory to my arms."

Then the Czar comes along and addressing the students of a naval school says:

"During your service as officers, do not forget what I say to you: Trust in God and have faith in the glory and greatness of our mighty country."

And King Peter is also invoking the aid of the Almighty. Others are to follow.

War is, according to history, ancient and modern, hell let loose. It is a time when the devil and all his legions are in their glory.

There is reason to be grateful and thankful that the statements of British have been doing their best to prevent bloodshed. The action of Sir Edward Grey stands out in bold relief in one of the blackest pictures presented to the gaze of humanity in many years.

The 'Eastern Question.'

To understand the relations between Russia, Austria and Serbia it is necessary to go back to the period prior to the Russo-Turkish war and the treaty of Berlin, and to consider also the effect of race and religious sympathy upon political affairs.

While Russia had great territorial ambitions and sought to secure an outlet for her fleet in the Mediterranean, she was also interested in the welfare of those peoples of Slavonic origin in the Balkan Peninsula, who were also members of the Orthodox Greek church. The people of Bulgaria, Serbia, Bosnia and some other portions of what was formerly the Turkish Empire in Europe belonged to the Orthodox Church and also claimed a national kinship with the Russian people. In Hungary, on the other hand, the Magyars, who formed the ruling race in that part of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, have always been more in sympathy with the Turk than with the Serbian, Bulgarian or Russian. Freeman tells us that the geographical function of the Magyars has been to keep the two great groups of Slavonic nations apart, and to his coming more than to any other cause we may attribute the great historical gap which separates the Slav of the Baltic from his southern kinsfolk in the Balkans.

Russia has never forgiven Austria-Hungary and Germany for their attitude when the treaty of Berlin was formed in 1878, at the close of the Russo-Turkish war. Russia had entered upon this war partly, no doubt, to enlarge her own territory, but also to emancipate Bulgaria and Serbia, and to set up in the Balkans buffer states which would regard Russia as their friend, and whose people were akin to her own in race and religion. After her victorious armies had arrived at the very gates of Constantinople, and were in a position to dictate the terms of peace, the other great powers intervened, and refused to ratify the treaty of San Stefano. By the terms of that treaty Turkey would have been compelled to recognize the independence of Roumania, Serbia, and Montenegro, all of which were to be increased in size, and there was also to be established the autonomous tributary principality of Bulgaria, extending from the Black Sea to Albania, and from the Danube in the north to the Aegean in the south. This would have practically blotted out Turkey as a European power. Bosnia and Herzegovina were to be granted extensive reforms.

England and Austria-Hungary refused to recognize the treaty of San Stefano, and gained the support of Germany, France and Italy. The Congress of Berlin was therefore called, and after a month of deliberations the Treaty of Berlin was signed, modifying and making such changes in the treaty of San Stefano that Russia, while not entirely satisfied, was obliged to accept it. It has never been overcome. Sixty years ago the latter had always opposed her movement toward the Dardanelles, but she did expect something from Austria-Hungary, and much from Germany. We are told that as the congress progressed, and the treatment of the Slav cause at the hands of the Germans and Magyars became more apparent, an intensely angry feeling sprang up in Russia, and so violent became the manifestations of the feeling against Germany and Austria-Hungary that Bismarck deemed it prudent to form an alliance with the latter power. This alliance was joined by Italy three years later.

By the Treaty of Berlin the area of Bulgaria was reduced by more than one-half. Bosnia and Herzegovina were placed under the control of Austria-Hungary, along with the Sanjak of Novi-Bazar, and while Serbia and Montenegro were recognized as independent principalities they only received slight concessions of territory.

There have been many changes in the Balkans since 1878, and Turkey has been shorn of more and more of her power. Austria-Hungary, however, has continued to be jealous of the growing power of Serbia, while the Serbians, perhaps encouraged by their consciousness of Russian sympathy, have been quick to resent any real or fancied grievance. The tension between the two countries has been all the greater because Bosnia and Herzegovina, which were handed over to Austria by the Treaty of Berlin, are inclined to be Serbian in sympathy, as many of the people are in race and religion. Indeed, millions of Austrian subjects are of the Serb race, and Austria's ambition has been to absorb more and more of the territory to the south.

The English humorist paper Punch recently closed seventy-five years of its history, and according to American critics it hasn't cracked a joke yet. These Yankees are too impatient.

Wolfville War Bulletin.

unfortunate selection of the locality in which it is spent. The term 'vacation typhoid,' coined because of the frequent appearance of this disease amongst those just completing or recently returned from a holiday trip, indicates but one of the dangers to which the summer health seeker is exposed. As the infection of typhoid is most commonly conveyed through water, or milk, or the various products of milk (including ice cream), one cannot be too careful about assuring one's self of the purity of these articles of diet.

One of the pleasantest as well as one of the most rational of holidays is that spent in camping, in a locality where fish and game give a special emphasis to the call of the red god. But the camper must not forget a duty to those whose health may be prejudiced by any carelessness in which he may indulge. Much camping is done on the shores of lakes and streams from which the water supplies of cities and towns are derived. Every care should be taken to prevent the pollution of such waters by any undesirable material.

It is known, for instance, that on an average, four per cent. of those who have had typhoid fever continue to harbor the germs of that disease, and to discharge such germs for a considerable period. A case is recorded of an epidemic of four hundred cases of typhoid which was traced to the infection of milk by a man who had had the disease forty years previously. During all these years he had been a 'carrier' of the infection, and quite probably had been the unwitting cause of infecting many other people. Moreover, numerous instances have been reported of typhoid 'carriers' who were unaware that they ever had typhoid. Such persons doubtless had the disease in so mild a form that it was not recognized.

The typhoid germ escapes from the stool and urine. If such discharges are so placed that drainage from them may find its way to a source of water supply, it can be readily seen that a whole community is thus subjected to infection of typhoid. Campers should therefore use every precaution against so disastrous a hazard to their holiday. Every permanent camp should be provided with a suitable chemical closet, which should receive the most conscientious care.

Similarly those who go to spend their holidays at farm houses where sanitary conditions are not always of the safest construction, should not only guard carefully against becoming themselves infected, but should be most careful not to leave behind them any infection from which they may at any time have suffered.

How to Secure Best Results from Fertilizers

Basic Slag, in itself is not a complete fertilizer, as it only supplies Phosphoric Acid and Lime. In order to derive the full benefit from the Slag, Potash (and in some cases Nitrogen) must be used with it, since the same underlying principle demands for plants as well as for animals a "balanced ration."

In Great Britain the beneficial effects from a combination of Basic Slag and Potash are so well known that the term "Slag and Potash" is one with which every farmer is familiar.

Old Country experience with these materials has been amply confirmed by numerous experiments conducted in the Maritime Provinces.

We can supply you with all high grade fertilizer materials, Potash, Nitrate of Soda, Acid Phosphate, Basic Slag, etc., at lowest prices. You can mix these yourself at home and save 25 to 40 per cent. in fertilizer cost. Call and see us.

Forest Conservation Convention.

Mr. James Lawler, Secretary of the Canadian Forestry Association, has returned to Ottawa from a month's visit to the Maritime Provinces, where he made preparations for the forthcoming Canadian Forestry Convention at Halifax, September 1st to 4th. Mr. Lawler visited Prince Edward Island and lectured in streets of the principal cities and towns of Nova Scotia. The attendance at these lectures indicated very general interest in the subject of forest conservation and there is every prospect of a successful convention in Halifax. The number of leading men from Canada and the United States who will attend increases that the papers and discussions will be valuable and full of interest. Mr. Lawler will now remain in Ottawa about a month before returning to Nova Scotia to complete the work here.

One point that is now attracting attention, is that while Nova Scotia does not depend mainly on lumbering, yet her coal mining, fishing and agricultural industries require pit props, apple barrels, fence posts and fish barrels, by the million feet and consequently people interested in these industries are discussing how the timber may be preserved to provide for these industries in perpetuity.

Mr. R. A. Stevens, of St. Louis, is visiting his uncle, Mr. Nathan Benjamin, and other friends here. Mr. Stevens removed from Gaspereau to the United States with his mother's family some fifteen years ago, a very young man. He is now resident manager for a large brokerage firm in St. Louis. His many old acquaintances here are delighted to welcome him again to the valley.

Germany's Position.

at John Star.

What can Germany hope to gain by rushing into war? What is behind her action in challenging Russia and France, and becoming even more belligerent than Austria-Hungary, whose quarrel with Serbia would probably not have embroiled Europe in war but for the attitude assumed by Germany?

The answer to these questions does not lie on the surface. The swiftness with which the present situation has developed baffles the enquirer who seeks for an adequate and justifiable cause. Neither is there any appearance of wisdom in the course pursued by Germany. The combined armies of the three powers and of Serbia should overmatch those of Germany and Austria-Hungary. In this war Russia will be fighting from her home base, and with her immense resources in men can keep her armies up to fighting strength for an almost unlimited period. Without in the least disparaging the fighting quality of the German forces on sea and land, and the added strength of this war that would compensate Germany for the losses she must sustain. It is therefore extremely difficult to assign a reason for the policy she has adopted. An awful responsibility rests upon Emperor William and his advisers. They seem to have deliberately chosen to deluge Europe with blood, when wiser counsels would have averted a catastrophe the extent of which no man can estimate.

Neat Grounds.

This is the time when the grass gets tall and unsightly, the birdcock begins to ripen and the thistles to scatter their seeds. Meticulous vigilance is the price of neat grounds both in town and in country. Cut over the unsightly grounds both for present appearance and to prevent the seeding of the crop for next year.

Stations not only increase the value of your own property but help to improve the appearance of the community.—E. S.

Boy Scouts.

It appears that a large number of boys will go to camp this year and a good time is assured. The Port Williams patrol will be a welcome addition.

Our scouts are more fortunate than any others that we know of, having a fine club-room and gymnasium in town and a large shanty almost completed in their camping ground. They also own four good tents, two of which, presented by Mr. Bullock, are large army bell tents. Thanks to Mrs. Black and Mr. Bullock they have two good boats, which are greatly enjoyed at camp.

With such attractions to offer as these it is not surprising that we are getting together a fine group of boys and it is most encouraging to find that the younger boys as a rule are not only anxious to enrol but make an honest effort to keep the Scout Law.

The list of provisions etc., to be taken camping will be given out this evening at the Club Room. All those who are going camping should attend.

Britain's Great Lace Industry.

At the time of Queen Elizabeth the majority of ladies wore makers of pillow lace as well as expert needle women. This pleasing pastime was also, as it is today, an important industry among the dwellers of Great Britain, but chiefly in the district of Buckinghamshire, the Cotswold Lace Makers of Buckinghamshire.

A writer once made the statement "that women who make lace, never grow old," and this statement is proved in a visit to the Cotswold Lace Makers of Buckinghamshire.

Below we give a portrait of one of the Cotswold Lace Workers who is now 87, and without the aid of glasses piles her interesting art and is a producer of the very finest quality of Buckingham lace—in every respect equal to the historic Buckinghamshire.

Miss Alice Miner is spending the summer at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Watson Miner. She has completed a course in a business college in New York, and will return to that city in September, to take up a position.

Miss Belle Powell, who has been spending some time with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Powell, at the parsonage, returned to Springfield, Mass., where she has taken a position as head nurse in a hospital.

Mr. R. A. Stevens, of St. Louis, is visiting his uncle, Mr. Nathan Benjamin, and other friends here. Mr. Stevens removed from Gaspereau to the United States with his mother's family some fifteen years ago, a very young man. He is now resident manager for a large brokerage firm in St. Louis. His many old acquaintances here are delighted to welcome him again to the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hill and family, of Black River, wish through the columns of this issue to thank their many friends who sympathized with them during their bereavement in the loss of their little daughter, Daisy May, also to Mr. Woodman and his class of young men for furnishing music at the funeral services.

Good Fruit.

The most successful fruit growers of the Annapolis Valley have for years followed the practice of applying Murine of Potash-mixed with Basic Slag and Bone Meal, or other Phosphate fertilizer, to their orchards, depending on a crop of clover to supply the necessary Nitrogen and Humus.

There is no doubt that the adoption of this ideal system is directly responsible to the remarkable color and quality of Nova Scotia apples, which features have gained for them so many awards and established their enviable reputation in the markets of Britain.

We can supply you with all high grade fertilizer materials, Potash, Nitrate of Soda, Acid Phosphate, Basic Slag, etc., at lowest prices. You can mix these yourself at home and save 25 to 40 per cent. in fertilizer cost.
