

WHAT'S BRED IN THE BONE.

CHAPTER V.

'Ah, here you are—come to triumph over me! Triumph, then—triumph! I am not to appear in the tableau! My costume, designed by one of the first artists in France, approved of, admired by the Duchesse de Marly, the mother of five children, an select to whose house is a hall-mark of tone and respectability—the costume approved of by her is pronounced by my lord and master to be—to be— Ah, I cannot repeat the vile nonsense she said—the insults he heaped upon me, his wife, before—heaped upon my child, my servants! I'll never forgive them! I'll never forget them! I tell you, Marie,' she went on, excitedly, sitting up in bed, and seizing my hand, 'he lost his head, he behaved like a madman! When I tried to soothe him—to explain that the best people in Paris had consented to put themselves unreservedly in monsieur's hands; that, for the sake of the noble charity, those poor wretches, deprived of home and property, starving in ditches and under hedges, that he had nobly consented to lay aside puny personal considerations and old-fashioned prejudices, and, in the royal interests of art and charity, had agreed to give their services generously, unreservedly; that Madame de Serillac's three daughters, as Canova's Graces, were to be attired almost exactly as I was; that Claire de Beaugre's representation of Diana was to be copied exactly from a picture in the Louvre—it was all of no use. He actually raised his hand to stop me! He almost struck me, Marie, and tore the drapery from my shoulders, trampled upon it, said every word I uttered, every excuse I made, was a fresh outrage upon him! Oh, if you could have seen his face it would have frightened you! He who pretends there is nothing in this world worth getting angry or excited about. There were tears—tears of rage in his eyes when he was trying to stop me. They looked so absurd—the whole thing was so absurd, that had I not been too frightened and indignant, I think I should have burst out laughing in his face. I would—'

I turned from her with an unconquerable movement of anger and aversion, as I pictured the three pain, the passion of revolt that must have stirred her husband's proud, sensitive heart to make him thus break through the shell of his natural reserve. Tears in his eyes, were there? Oh, I thought I could fathom the anguish of their reserve. Tears in his eyes, were there? Oh, I thought I could fathom the anguish of their source! And to her—this woman with a heart of ice and the soul of a mere frivolous pleasure seeker—they made no appeal, they touched no spring of memory; to her they were merely the grotesque outpouring of foolish unjustifiable anger. They could make her laugh—they could make her laugh—his tears!

The Stomach Needs Help

The liver, kidneys and bowels must be kept active with DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS. The liver and kidneys are overworked in their efforts to remove the poisonous waste matter from the system. They fail and become torpid and clogged. The bowels become constipated and stomach derangements follow. There is one medicine which will overcome this condition more certainly and more quickly than any other, and this is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This medicine gets the bowels in action at once and by awakening the liver and kidneys ensures the thorough cleansing of the filtering and excretory systems. With the poisonous obstructions removed, the digestive system resumes its healthful condition, appetite improves, pains and aches disappear as well as irritability and depression. You cannot imagine a more satisfactory treatment. One pill a dose. 25 cents a box at all druggists, or J. Hanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

She called me to her presently, ordered me to make her a cup of tea, for her head, she said, seemed to be splitting; and, when she had emptied her cup, she asked, with a weary, callous laugh: 'Well, what have you to say to the evening's tragedy—you poor wretch, who are destined to sit in the gallery and look on at the drama of youth and life? Let us hear your verdict. Whom would you call before the curtain and encourage with your sympathy, the husband or the victim?'

'The husband,' I answered, hotly. 'The husband? Of course! Do you know, Miss Bernard—with a taunting laugh—'I have noticed of late a sort of occult sympathy between you two—between my husband, that preux chevalier, with the bluest blood of England in his veins and you, the daughter of a bankrupt grocer. He wasn't a grocer, your papa, wasn't he? A stool-broker? Well, it's all the same. I mean no offense, I assure you. I am not—ha, ha!—one to vaunt the empty pomp of hereditary rank, not being born exactly in the purple myself. Marie—laying her little hot hand on mine with one of those eager, childish impulses that to me had an attraction I never could resist—'do you know who—that my people are? Half the servants know I dare say. Why shouldn't you? They are all actors and actresses, my dear. My father was an actor, my mother an actress; my sisters, my brother, my uncles and aunts—all belong to the profession. My mother made her debut as a column-bearer and worked her way up to Lady Teazle in a provincial company before her daughter's name appeared in Debrett. I had an aunt, Vi Vavasour, the neatest figure for tight on the Surrey side of the water, who unfortunately tumbled over the moon in a transformation scene and had to retire to a pauper lunatic asylum forever after. She's there still I believe, the funniest little figure you ever saw. I had an uncle who was a clown; he would give the Archbishop of Canterbury a stitch in his side—'

'And you—you,' I interrupted—'were you also?'

'No; I never appeared. The very month he met me I was to have made my debut, and I married him instead! I was only sixteen then. Now—now you understand everything, don't you? You see why—why—with a little sob which she vainly tried to turn into a laugh—'the rouge lies so smoothly on my baby's face and mine; why the maillots fit us so naturally, why we posture with such unconscious barefaced grace, and feel no shame, no shyness, when smiling at an admiring public.'

'I see—I see!' I muttered. 'And you also see,' she went on, quickly, her voice rising—'oh, I can read your thoughts, allez!—you also see why our sudden appearance thus unmanned him, made him forget his manners, his dignity, brought before him with startling vividness the irreparable mistake he made in—in choosing me to be the mother of his children. Ah, you think because I laugh, because I amuse myself, that I do not see—feel anything; that I do not see he would wish to have a son strong, dark, wiry, like himself, not a puny pink and white puppet, the image of his low-born mother! You think I do not read all these things in his heart!'

'You read nothing in his heart,' I retorted, with a warmth that astonished myself, 'nothing but love, loyalty, and undivided devotion to yourself and your children.'

'She did not seem to hear me, but turned over on the bed and continued, in a restless whine: 'Why did he marry me—why did he marry me? Oh, I am the most wretched woman in the world! I cannot bear it; it—it is breaking my heart! I wish I had never been born! Oh, Marie, Marie—if you knew what I suffered, if you knew what I have to bear with!'

'What you have to suffer!' I repeated, my voice so vibrating with passion that she stopped her feverish whimpering, and turned towards me wondering: 'what you have to bear with! You! Oh, woman, are you not afraid to call down the just anger of your Maker upon such a complaint as that? You, upon whom all the good things of this life have been showered so lavishly; you, who have youth, beauty, health, the love and devotion of those nearest and dearest to you, position, wealth—everything the heart of a woman could desire—'

'Everything—everything!'

'Compare your lot with mine; look at my home; look at my four years' seclusion; look at me, four years younger than you. I never have tasted, I never shall taste, the daily pleasures, the joys that make the sum of your youth. Look at me—without parents, friends, husband, lover, with no prospect but a life of lonely, hard-working drudgery, or—'

'Hush, hush!' she broke in, wearily; 'you mean well, but it is of no use. Marie, of no use. Oh, if you could look into my heart at this moment, if you could feel the wild, despairing pain that tortures me night and day; you would not wish to exchange your lot for mine—lonely, hopeless, despised, as you represent yours to be. I think you would not—oh, I think you would not!'

Vanity of vanities: all is but vanity. Ah, surely now I was rebuked for my senseless reprimands against fate; surely no sermon, however stirring, however eloquent, from Mother Joseph's austere lips could bear more fruit and meaning than the spectacle of this beautiful young woman, lying in despair among all the fairest sweetest things this world can give, wishing she had never been born. Presently her husband came in, and after standing looking at her for a moment, he said, gently, with almost a touch of scornful pity in his voice: 'Jessie, do not grieve so, my poor child. I was very harsh and rough to you, and the little one this evening. Will you try to pardon me?'

Before her answer came I slipped away; and, returning about an hour later, found her quite still and composed. She said she was very tired and felt inclined to sleep, and asked me to bear her husband company in the drawing-room—a request that I could not refuse, though I had rather she had asked me to walk across Paris barefooted.

After walking up and down the corridor half a dozen times to summon up courage, I at last followed the footman who was carrying in the tea, and busied myself at the table successfully for the first five minutes, until my embarrassment somewhat subsided, and Sir Richard then began to talk about a rather remarkable article in the Revue des deux Mondes. No allusion whatsoever was made to the subject that was occupying us both until Bijou came running in, half undressed, with a piteous appeal from Birdie that I would promise faithfully to mend one of her broken wings before I went to bed; and then with averted face and faltering tongue, the baronet made a blundering excuse for what he called his unimportant display of bad temper, spoke gently and affectionately of his wife, of her youth, her childish vivacity and unconsciousness of evil, which, combined with certain influences of her early life, would be a satisfactory explanation of the view she took of the unfortunate matter. He then related numerous anecdotes of her charming simplicity, her innocence and startling ingenuousness during their early married life, and indeed he spent the rest of the evening in trying to remove the effect of the shock I had received, and subtly appealing to me—and to himself, I could see, as well—against the harsh and hasty judgment he had allowed himself to be betrayed into.

CHAPTER VI.
A depressing and sullen calm followed the storm. Lady Nesbitt came down the next day looking ill and worn, and gave orders that she was to be at home to no callers. Sir Richard, after hovering about her boudoir in an anxious and somewhat penitential manner all the morning, went out after lunch for a solitary smoke, and, sending the children to the Bois with Louise, at his request I remained indoors to keep the invalid company.

In the course of the afternoon Madame de Tescours called and sent up a special message begging a few minutes' audience, which extended my mistress to her friend or to her friend, though she declared herself utterly unable to see the dreadful intelligence.

'But if it has to be done,' I expostulated, soothingly, 'would it not be better to get it over at once, Lady Nesbitt? In order also to give them time to replace—'

'Replace, replace!' she interrupted, vehemently. 'You think I can be replaced like that at the eleventh hour! You think you can find Venus already posed at every corner of the street! Replaced, indeed! Besides, I can't tell them, can't let them even suspect, until the last moment, they would all be up here en masse—the duchess, monsieur, Sophie, every one of them, asking reasons, explanations, interviewing Sir Richard. If the truth would leak out, and the duchess would never forgive such an affront to her womanly judgment and sense of propriety. I tell you, I won't allow her to be insulted as I have been. I won't allow monsieur, after all the trouble, the interest he took in me, to receive such a slap in the face. In the evening I shall take to my bed, and send word, half an hour before the performance begins, that I am unable to leave my room—that's what I shall do. And now don't let me hear another word about the wretched business. If you want me to keep my senses and—my temper, Miss Bernard!'

So I said no more. What could I say, indeed? On the following day, the Saturday before the Carnival, Sir Richard received a telegram which seemed to discompose him a good deal. To be continued.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

A friend of mine, in walking through a shop one day, came to a narrow doorway, just as another woman was about to pass through it in the opposite direction. My friend politely stepped to one side to allow the other woman to pass, but just as she did so, the other woman also moved in the same direction. The first woman moved again, and again the other woman dodged at just the same moment.

Thinking that this had gone on long enough, my friend stood still and said with great dignity, "Madame, if you will stand on one side or the other, I will endeavor to pass you." At this moment, the floor walker caught sight of her and sprang to the rescue, pointing out to the astonished lady that the woman whom she had had so much difficulty in attempting to pass, was no other than her own reflection, as she was facing a mirror.

Now that is a very amusing and unusual experience, and was probably due partially to the lady's nearsightedness, but I doubt if there is one of us, no matter how keen-eyed, who has not sometime, in similar wise, caught sight of himself in an unexpected mirror, and for at least an instant, completely failed to recognize himself.

And, if so much can be true in regard to our outer selves which we see daily, and indeed many times daily, in our mirrors, tell me, friends, how would it be with our inner selves, our personalities, our individualities, if we could for an instant catch sight of them—"as iters see them."

Arnold Bennett has a fascinating essay along these lines, in which he quaintly asks, "Has it ever struck

Strickland W. Gilliland.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves of long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood.

Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good."

It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and is a record of forty years of cures. Ask Your Neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 31 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers, handsome cloth-binding, 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

Fads and Fashions.

Mohairs are to be worn. Glossy coiffures are the fad. A normal waist line is talked of. Lovely velvet roses have leaves of taffeta.

Jet, crystal and porcelain buttons are everywhere.

Sash ribbon shoulder throws are new and attractive.

There are many millinery models in changeable taffeta.

Gowns in black and silver combinations are much in vogue.

Porcelain buttons embellish some of the latest gowns for girls.

Many of the evening frocks are exceedingly simple in design.

The spring styles bid fair to be wonderfully quaint and pretty.

Silk street gowns have silk cord loops and frogs for fastening.

Colored veils to match the hat or costume are appearing in Paris.

Black mousseline de sole yokes are seen in dresses of any color.

New wrappings of velvet or silk resemble a short jacket without sleeves.

Wide belts of black patent leather are worn with many dresses of blue serge.

The distinctive feature of the new lingerie gowns is the prodigal use of flet lace.

Hat crowns are smaller than they were, but sufficiently large to slip over the ears.

Checked vests are seen in tailored suits and fold back at the top in small revers.

French lace veils are seen tied in a large bow of two loops and held by a barpin in the center.

Most of the luncheon or "bridge" gowns are collarless, and the majority of the skirts are short.

Khaki-colored silks, voiles, ratine, peau de chamois, etc., have a veat of white taffeta embroidered in metal.

Odd-shaped collars with scalloped edges are much in favor. These are worn with the one-piece dress or separate blouse.

Strands of beads made of colored wood are used to fashion buckles, caraboons and cords to adorn the spring hats.

The lingerie and short dresses have some tucks or fullness about the waist, but they are not noticeably fuller at the feet.

Turquoise and imitation rubies are used on dull bullion bands for the coiffure, which is a fashion taken direct from harem beauties.

Soft belts ending at the back are finished with a rosette of side-pleated ribbon, held by an immense covered button in the center.

Blouses will be of very thin, transparent fabrics, and are introducing very high girdles and bretelle effects; if the fichu is not worn.

Dressy coats of seal have been seen

Croup Comes Suddenly

ABOUT midnight the child awakes coughing—that peculiar, metallic cough called croup, and which strikes terror to the mother's heart. Then begins the struggle for breath, and if relief is to be obtained treatment must be prompt and effective.

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a cure for croup will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success.

It is wonderfully prompt in loosening the cough, clearing the air passages of the head, and soothing the excited nerves.

There are imitations of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Be sure you see the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, on the bottle you buy. 25 cents a bottle; family size, three times as much. 60 cents at all dealers, Dr. Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

with a collar of rich velvet in wine are among the "to-be's" of the coming season. The best effect is secured by tearing off the border and stitching it on where needed.

Borders are here strongly, and the present style of dress encourages their use, but the best effect is secured by tearing off the border and stitching it on where needed.

Some of the new black velvet gowns have a black yoke and collar richly embroidered and a lace fichu or cape effect over the shoulders and revers of white.

Taffeta silk bags to match the frocks are among the "to-be's" of the coming season. They will be ornamented with embroidery silk designs and silk cord handles.

Changeable taffeta especially in blue and green and shades of green, is considered very chic, but it is predicted that for the real summertime the "tub" silks will be worn.

Editors Evening Telegram.

Sir—The letter of Catholic Citizen in your issue of yesterday was certainly interesting from one point of view that is, its assumption of ignorance of a condition that is notorious not asking any one to judge of "furen peoples" by the "parrot-mouthings of shallow-pated pamphleteers" (very pretty, Mr. Editor). If Catholic Citizen will take the trouble to read current literature, I mean by that any ordinary newspapers that give news of the world he will find his statistics ready to hand, and one year's intelligent reading will give him some idea of the conditions obtaining in different parts of the world without troubling any man to compile statistics for his special benefit. And, Mr. Editor, let me advise Catholic Citizen to commence, if he wishes to investigate, in his own city, St. John's of ours, and going below a certain circle or set what does he find. I ask the question, let him give a truthful answer after honestly comparing the poor of this city. Remember, I make no assertions on this point, let Catholic Citizen investigate.

Now, to the reason of my writing these lines I wish to protest publicly against religious controversy, especially during this season, as a great ideal of the conversation is not to education, and the spirit unchristian, if people must argue let them take some subject that will not excite passionate language and conversation unbecoming to people who call themselves Christians. What true worshiper of our Lord will call another a "black dog," yet such language is used—and stronger. And it is exceedingly difficult to avoid the subject in private life while such letters are being published, difficult enough at any time in some company, and strange to say those people who are certainly not "walking encyclopaedias" are the most anxious to talk, making the matter a mere pretext to air their views, very circumscribed ones, and themselves a nuisance.

Hoping you will find space for this expostulation.

I will sign myself, PROTESTANT.

Cable News in Brief.

Sixty were killed and 100 wounded in the bombardment of Beirut by Italians on Saturday. Torpedo boat was sunk. Turks will expel all Italians except ecclesiastics, from Beirut, Damascus, Jerusalem and Aleppo. Roosevelt declares he will accept nomination as President if tendered him.

The British Government has begun buying coal in the States for Gibraltar.

The British steamer Rabinga is afloat in the Pacific.

An effort will be made to-morrow by Asquith and Lloyd George to induce the miners to keep their notices in abeyance for the present.

Calypso to Leave

We learn to-day that the training ship Calypso will leave here in May or June next for Halifax where she will be given extensive repairs. The ship, we understand, will be towed from St. John's by the warship which will replace the Brilliant on this station. To us it seems to say the least unfair that repairs should be given this ship in the Dominion of Canada. If Newfoundland seamen are good enough to man her and to be prepared to help the Minister should he necessarily arise, then Newfoundland citizens should be considered as capable to effect repairs. If money is to be spent on the ship it would be only just to spend it in Newfoundland, the theatre of her usefulness.

Railway News.

A local express from Millertown Junction left for St. John's at 7:30 a.m. to-day, following rotary plow No. 1.

No. 2 rotary left Port Blandford at 11 a.m. to-day, cutting the way.

The plow special from Placentia to Placentia Junction should get there this afternoon. There are big snow cuts on this line and a large gang of men are working to clear it.

The Carbonear local which left there for here Saturday week should arrive at St. John's this afternoon. A rotary will clear the line ahead and a crowd of men are working shovelling the tracks both from this end and Holywell also.

A cross country express may leave here to-morrow evening.

Larceny of $30.

This morning a man named Bradley, who lives in the West End, reported to the police authorities that he had been victimized of $30. He (Bradley) keeps a shop at the junction of Water Street and Trinity Street. On his way to work he put the above amount in his overcoat pocket, hanging it up in the shop, but quickly discovered that the money was missing. He at once reported the matter to the police, who are working on the case. They have a strong theory that the thief is the money himself out of his pocket.

Burnt to Death.

Mr. Rodgers, the well known travelling agent for Galt Bros., Montreal arrived here by the Gloucester after a fifteen days run from the time he reached Louisburg. On his arrival he had sad news from Montreal contained in a telegram which awaited him and which announced that his brother, Major Rodgers, of the Canadian service, had been burned to death in a hotel fire there.

Charges Against Mrs. Butler.

(1) Larceny of a door mat from the office of Messrs. Furlong and Conroy; (2) larceny of a telegram book from Mr. Charles Karpov; (3) larceny of an apron belonging to Mrs. Kitchen; (4) larceny of a door mat from the residence of Mr. F. Bradshaw. Inspector General Sullivan will conduct the case for the prosecution.

CREATED A DISTURBANCE.—Saturday afternoon several young chaps entered the railway station waiting room and created a disturbance. They refused to leave when Mr. P. Byrne ordered them, and only after he had telephoned for the police did they do so. A repetition of the conduct alluded to will get these chaps into serious trouble.

Don't forget to have your guess in before the 1st March.—Feb. 19.

Three Italian warships are bombarding Beirut, the principal seaport of the Turkish Province of Syria in the Mediterranean. According to a special despatch, panic prevails among the inhabitants of the city, the majority of whom are Christians.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, Feb. 25.

News of the discovery of the South Pole is expected to reach London at my moment. Already the newspapers are beginning to discuss the chances of the rival expeditions of Amundsen and Scott. It is regarded as practically certain that the race, which is perhaps the most remarkable ever run, is by this time lost and won. A Copenhagen despatch says that the Geographical Society of Christiania held a meeting to discuss when Amundsen might be expected. All agreed that no news of the expedition could reasonably be expected before March. It is believed that they have better chances than Capt. Scott, the Norwegian explorers having taken dogs, which animals can better stand the old than horses, which accompany the Scott expedition.

The Hispaniola Was Wrecked

Saturday afternoon the following wire was received by H. W. LeMesurier, Esq., from St. Jacques:—"The Hispaniola, from Halifax, bound to Harbor Breton, was forced to run owing to a heavy gale of wind and snow while beating into St. Jacques Harbour, Saturday morning. She was under short canvas, mis-stayed and went ashore on St. Jacques eastern head at 4 o'clock a.m. The vessel will likely become a total wreck, but her crew of six men all landed safely." This vessel is a well known banking schooner and has sailed from St. Lawrence and Harbor Breton for years. Last year Capt. John Lewis commanded her and she had a fine voyage of fish.

The Stella Maris From Trinity

The S. S. Stella Maris, Capt. G. Herald, arrived here at 5:30 p.m. yesterday. The ship which left here on the 16th inst. for Twillingate and intervening ports could only get as far as Catalina. She arrived at Trinity on the 17th and became jammed in the lee there for a week. She left there Saturday morning and tried to get further north but could only reach Catalina. The ice had again blocked that port and it being seen that she could not force a further down the coast she returned. The delegates to the L. O. A. Convention and several other passengers returned on the vessel.

To-day's Nickel.

To-day's change of programme at the Nickel Theatre contains the usual tri-weekly feature, which in this case is a production from the Florida studios of the Kalem Stock Co., entitled, "The Badge of Courage." Miss Alice Joyce, the popular American ingenue, appears as leading lady and gives a rendition in keeping with the reputation which she has established with photo-players. The story is specially appealing and in point of picturesque scenery can hardly be surpassed. The settings are natural surroundings in Florida, and the photography clear and perfect in every respect. Those who go to the Nickel to-day will not be disappointed.

No Reduction in Taxation.

What with pincies for Tory politicians, contracts for the Crosbie Company, new Government jobs for party heelers, increases in salaries for party appointees who have had barely time to warm their office seats, patronage for partisans, and timber grants for relatives, partners and associates of members of the Government, the Tory Party has had a regular picnic among the Government plums. But, on the other side, what about the economy in administration that was promised? That has been as markedly absent as the objectionable features we have just mentioned have been obstinately present. There has been no real effort to cheapen the price of coal. The people are suffering to-day as acutely as they ever did from a lack of cheap fuel, and the pledge to effect a reduction in the price of coal has been flagrantly broken. Then, again, as Sir Robert Bond showed in the House of Assembly last Thursday, and as we have shown in the columns of the Evening Telegram, the people have been so ignored and flouted in the matter of the Reduction of Taxation, that the Plaindealer has been forced to turn upon them in this connection.

The S. S. Sogona, the new sealer and passenger boat built on the Clyde for Crosbie & Co., left Dundee at 7 p.m. yesterday for this port. She is commanded by Capt. Samuel Marshall and all her crew are Newfoundlanders including the guarantee engineer, who is Mr. John Forbes. To-day the Telegram was shown plans of the ship and she is a beauty. Uncle Walt
THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

One day my neighbors came to me and stopped a while to chew the rag and said I really must agree to save the country and the flag. A man like me would elevate the government, to beat the band; so I became a candidate and galloped up and down the land. Ere this adventure came to pass I earned my grub by honest toil; with a tasty scythe I mowed the grass, and pushed a plowshare through the soil. Throughout a long campaign I yelled, and won the office I desired; and since a public trust I held, all honest labor makes me tired. I train with all these hungry chaps who bleed and die the whole year round, who wait and wait for little snaps, and who at work are never found. With them I make the welkin throb, with them resort to tawdry tricks; I rather have a dinky job connected with cheap politics, than roll in opulence that's won by methods that you deem correct, than wield a pitchfork in the sun, and hold my pride and self respect. The office germ is in my blood, the germ that kills the love of work; and now my given name is Mud; my surname, as you know, is Shirk.

Give Workers Chance.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir,—In an entire agreement with the remarks made by Sir Robert Bond during the course of his speech in reference to the gift of Sanatoria by the Reid Bros. It must be patent to everyone that it is the business of the Government to see to it that the health of the population be not neglected, and that hospitals and sanatoria be erected whenever and wherever it is found necessary, and should not be left to the mood of any philanthropist seeking popularity, but the question arises, is it necessary and advisable that at the present juncture seventeen Sanatoria be erected? After perusing the facts laid down by the Leader of the Opposition, I may safely answer in the negative. It is an old, though none the less true, saying, that "Prevention is better than cure," and in accordance with that, it can easily be seen that it would be much better in the long run, for the Government to utilize the enormous amount of money which will be required for the upkeep of the above mentioned Sanatoria in improving the housing and sanitary conditions of the working classes, in providing public baths, parks, and recreation grounds wherever desirable, and in the organization of a more thorough and effective inspection of all food-stuffs, dairies, etc., thereby considerably mitigating the danger from consumption and other diseases, by removing the causes, which I submit is the only scientific method of dealing with any evil. The abuse which is being pointed upon the Leader of the Opposition is to my mind, mostly due to ignorance or narrow-mindedness, or both, and should be treated with the silent contempt it so well deserves. Give the workers good, sanitary houses to live in, pure and wholesome food, and a fair share of the wealth they produce, and it will be found that consumption, like many other evils, will become a thing of the past. That I have not encroached too much on your valuable space is the earnest hope of,

WILL READER.

Gone to the Wall And Through It!

To meet the demands of our rapidly increasing business we are compelled to make extensive alterations to our store. To enable us to do this without inconveniencing our customers, we have decided to close our Store for 14 days.

When we have completed these alterations our Store will be second to none in the city. This will enable us to stock a larger range of Up-To-Date Gents' Furnishings, which up to the present we were unable to do, through lack of space.

We thank our numerous patrons for the excellent support they have given us since we started the K. & A. STORE, and hope that when we re-open that Bright little Store on the Corner, it will be just as popular as ever.

We remain, yours faithfully,

The Hispaniola was bound to Harbor Breton from Halifax.

IN BAD STATE.—Yesterday Mr. P. Power, of Murphy's barber saloon, found a little lad named Butler, aged 4 years, astray on Water St. West. The lad was petrified with the cold and crying bitterly. Mr. Power brought him to the Western Station where the cook and warmed him and he was later returned to his parents.

Kilonis Defeats Sam. Anderson

One of the Most Spirited Matches Ever Witnessed in Manchester—Anderson's Last Match.

Kilonis, the local Greek champion won his bout with the veteran Sam Anderson of Cambridge, Mass., last night, putting his opponent to the mat after 62 minutes and 14 seconds of some of the fiercest wrestling ever seen on a local mat.

The bout was a whirlwind affair from the start, both of the men working like Trojans to obtain a winning hold, and using all of the ring science possessed in no small degree by both to stall off the attacks of the other. After a few minutes of work Kilonis secured a wicked toe hold, which looked as if it might bring results. Anderson broke away, however, and at once put his opponent on the defensive.

This was kept up without a let-up by either, both securing time and again advantages which seemed like sure falls, only to have them, by masterful work on the part of their opponent, go for naught. Both men tried almost every hold known to the business, and each found the other ready to resist the attack.

After about 40 minutes of this kind of work Kilonis lifted Anderson, and swinging him up, shot him over his head and over the ropes to the floor below, and from the results of the effort followed him. Anderson struck fairly on his head, and was assisted to his feet by those near and into the ring. He was very evidently in a dazed condition, but signified to the referee that he was ready to go on with the bout. Kilonis, who also struck upon his head and was somewhat injured, secured a half Nelson and a body hold and pinned Anderson to the mat for the first time, the time being, as said, two minutes and fourteen seconds over the hour. That Anderson was badly hurt and still in a dazed condition was shown by the fact that as he rose to his feet after the fall he grappled with Lucien Landry, the referee, very evidently not realizing that the fall had been lost. He was assisted to his dressing room, and after a long wait announced that he would continue the match and returned to the ring. He was, however, suffering from a bad contusion on the head, received in his toss over the ropes, and it was plainly to be seen, in no condition to continue the match. In fact he so stated to the spectators, but said that he would do the best he could. Kilonis said he wanted to do what was right in the matter, but he considered that, under the rules, if it was not continued the match should go to him. This Anderson finally agreed to. Anderson then announced from the ring that last night's performance was his last professional bout, and that he was to return to the game.—Manchester (N. H.) Daily Mirror, Feb. 16.

Rescued From Drowning.

To Mr. Alexander Crocker and Mr. Jordan Sheppard belong the credit of rescuing from drowning on Friday last Laroux, the 8 year old son of Mr. George Davis of Courage's Beach. It seems the little fellow unmindful of the great danger ventured out on the harbor ice, and was quite a long distance from the shore when he was seen to fall through the ice. It happened that Mr. Crocker and Mr. Sheppard were just returning from the funeral of the late Mr. W. H. Sheppard, but divesting themselves of some of their heavy clothes they very bravely ventured out on the treacherous ice. They repeatedly broke through, but kept from falling in. It was with great difficulty they rescued the little fellow, and not a moment too soon as he was chilled and exhausted when taken on shore. People standing near feared that a double tragedy would have to be recorded, as it seemed almost impossible for the two men to reach the little boy and return safely, but they did, and their courage and bravery is most commendable. Perhaps nothing would induce them to run such a risk but to save human life. We would draw the attention of His Excellency the Governor to this brave rescue. Such daring deeds in saving life as that performed by the above gentlemen should not be forgotten.

Big Hockey Match

SWASTIKAS versus ST. JOHN'S.

Both Teams Equal When Full Time Was Announced—A Play-off Necessary to Decide the Champions—Home Team Goes Down to Defeat—A Fast, Clean and Clever Exhibition—C. L. B. Wins Inter-Brigade Race.

Before one of the largest gatherings of spectators that ever assembled in the Prince's Rink, the initial game of the series of matches to be played between Swastikas and the City team was pulled off on Saturday night under propitious circumstances, and resulted in the Windsor aggregation coming off victorious. The greatest interest had been centred in the event by the spectators, whilst enthusiasm and excitement vied with each other among the hockey "fans." The contest throughout was a brisk and clever exhibition, a stiff struggle, and fought in true sportsmanlike fashion. These were the happy manifestations generally admitted. The match was rather late in starting, this being arranged by the management in order to give those working in stores a chance of witnessing it. From the time the doors opened hundreds of people, young and old, could be seen wending their way to the rink, so that when the appointed hour arrived, standing room around the boards was not available. Shortly after 9 o'clock His Excellency the Governor and suite entered the building, during which the vast assemblage arose to their feet while the National Anthem was rendered.

While the ice was being put in readiness for the Inter-Brigade three mile race, which preceded the game, to break the monotony, several of the competitors were out for a spin, as well as Messrs. Haddon and Paterson, who will try conclusions for championship honors Wednesday night.

THE RACE.

Mr. W. J. Higgins, who acted as starter, with Messrs. Martin, Carmichael and Vinnicombe as Judges and Timekeeper, respectively, called the racers to the arena. C. L. B.—J. Hackett, T. Winter, H. Taylor; M. G. B.—G. Chislett, G. Squires, K. Peet; N. H.—S. Lumsden, J. McKinnon, W. Chaney. The C. C. C. did not enter any team. Mr. Higgins explained the conditions of the contest, each man running a mile, equivalent to 13 laps. At the sound of the "trot" the three got away together until Taylor took the lead, but was quickly overtaken by Squires, who gradually increased the pace, followed by the C. L. B. man. The next tri- evoked much excitement and enthusiasm, as each in turn would pass their mile with a good lead. The last was the most amusing item. Chislett, with nearly a lap in advance of his opponents, got rattled and could not maintain his lead. They finished in the following order: J. Hackett (C.L.B.), 1st; W. Chaney (N.H.) 2nd; G. Chislett (M.G.B.), 3rd.

HOCKEY MATCH.

The hockey match was now being anxiously awaited, and Referee Higgins called the teams together. The personnel were:

THE GAME.

Precisely at 10 o'clock the puck was put in motion, the City defending the eastern goal. Play opened briskly, the Windsorites immediately becoming aggressive. Smith broke clear and was about to fire a try when promptly blocked by Herder, who retaliated with a dash but lost to Paterson. Some fast play was now witnessed, the visitors exhibiting pretty combination with good results. Sexton and Smith controlling the puck went down the Rink at a lively pace, combining nicely, the former sending a well directed shot to the City goaltender, which proved too much for him to save, and the first goal was recorded for Windsor in less than two minutes of play. This created no little interest and excitement, particularly among the N. S. supporters, who in jubilation sang out:

"Boom-a-lac-l. Boom-a-lac-l. bow, wow, wow;
Chick-a-lac-l. Chick-a-lac-l. chow, chow, chow;
Boom-a-lac-l. Chick-a-lac-l. bis, bah, roar.
W-I-N-D-S-O-O-R."

This put new blood in the home team, who were at once noticed to be putting "ginger" in their work, and matters assumed a pretty lively aspect. McPherson got possession of the disc, making good headway in his opponents' territory, when Bennett, the Windsor point, infringed, and was given a quick despatch to the "witness box" for a few minutes to cool off. Marshall and McPherson were the next to distinguish themselves, but were repulsed by Smith, who took control of the disc, combining with Sexton, and came within an ace of scoring but for the vigilance of Herder, who was on the qui vive and cleared the rubber out of the danger zone. Eric Collier was the next to adorn the fence for slashing. At this juncture the City had honors in their favor, continually bombarding their opponents' goal. Gus Herder displayed some excellent stick handling, but his efforts were fruitless so far as scoring was concerned. McPherson captured the disc at centre ice, getting in probably the prettiest work of the evening, passing all his opponents, and was about to shoot when he was "put to the mat" by Paterson, who tripped him with his stick. The latter was escorted to the penalty box by Referee Higgins and allowed a brief rest. Shortly after Bryson was penalized for fouling Gus Herder. The home team were still playing all round the visitors, raining shots at the goal, but ill luck seem to follow them, as well as the marvellous exhibition of goal tending given by Simpson. The Windsorites now put energy into their play, Paterson that he is, swept the Rink. His shot was brilliantly saved by Walsh, who was loudly applauded. Our boys again got down to business, and during a scrimmage Collier received a blow from an opponent's stick in the face and was put out of commission. This occasioned a few minutes' delay. In the meantime Paterson performed many excellent and difficult skating stunts and was warmly applauded by the spectators. On resuming play the City forward line got in clever work, and McPherson sent a swift one to Simpson, who was equal to the occasion. The City pressed their opponents hard, making desperate efforts to score, but failed to equalize. Gus Herder was put off for "roughing it." During his absence the Windsorites tried a run but lost to Marshall, who, taking a zig-zag course, made one of his old time dashes, passing all opponents, but owing to the net being removed from its position nothing resulted. Soon after the gong sounded for half time, leaving the score 1 to 0 in favor of the Swastikas.

SECOND HALF.

On resumption of play, better hockey was witnessed, both teams putting on every ounce of energy to win. Pinent and McPherson brought the puck down the ice, the former shot, but there was a mix-up in the Windsor goal, the net foundering, and again it was hard luck. The City had matters their own way for a while, the forwards each in turn sending many difficult shots to Simpson, but failed to materialize. There was a slight let up in the home team, when Smith breaking through their ranks notched up the second goal for his team. This did not in the least discourage the City team, as they started in with renewed vigor and determination. Play became fast and furious, the City getting the best of it. Gus Herder captured the puck near his own goal, and making the best run of the evening, made a shot, which was creditably stopped by Simpson. Collier and Stick next had a try, but neither was successful in his attempt to beat the Nova Scotia goal keeper. Following a run by McPherson, Bennett, Herder and Stick were sent to the penalty box. Smith broke his skates and play was suspended for a couple of minutes. When the puck was again put in play, Marshall and Pinent combined well, getting in fast work. Pinent shot but Simpson was invulnerable. In clearing the puck, however, Marshall was on hand and ledged it in the twines, scoring No. 1 for the home team amidst loud applause. On re-centering the St. John's boys put up a rattling game. They had only five minutes more to play, and before two of them elapsed Marshall again succeeded in beating the Swastika's goal keeper, and the score 2 goals all. The applause that followed was deafening and when it "faded away" the City again took control and gave the visitors an anxious time of it. Bryson got injured, which stopped the game, and when it was continued the final whistle sounded. As both teams had two goals each to their credit, Referee Higgins consulted the captains of both teams who agreed to play off.

At Cochrane St. Methodist Church last evening the Rev. W. H. Webber gave a logical and up-to-date sermon, couched in plain everyday language, on the evils of Intemperance. His arguments were solid and convincing. Every man was asked to keep shoulders to shoulder and work together to do away with this great evil in our midst. The congregation was the largest seen at the Church for some months past, a full choir was in attendance which in itself was a special help in the leading of the singing.
