Happiness Secured AT A Heavy Cost!

CHAPTER XXXI.
A Terrible Suggestion.

In the midst of a little, admiring hush the ceremony begins. Now for the first time I have leisure to single out the bridegroom; and, with a little, derisive smile, as I think of Len—poor, dear, handsome Len—I look at him severely over.

That he is tall, and thin, and very shd I see at a glance, with a stoop to the shoulders, and a face that, even in his young days could never have had much pretence to good looks. But, oh, how old, and shrivelled, and commonplace he looks. I think, beside that radiant vision of youth and beauty, who in a few minutes will be his wife; and, alas, what a miserable mockery it all seems!

But the ceremony is over at last. The old organ peals forth the "Wedding March," the register is signed, congratulations offered, and the brilliant company return to their carriages over the stereotyped flower-strewn path, to be conveyed back to the wedding breakfast.

Nothing is wanting; nothing is left out that wealth or fashion can suggest or devise; and, envied, courted, admired and flattered by all, Mrs. Erroll sets out on the first stage of her married life, and with the departure of the last carriage I make my way out of the crowd and set out in the direction of home.

"Such a ridiculous old fright! Such a glaring illustration of May and December!" exclaims a merry, girlish voice, as I pass a group of laughing girls who are loitering at the gate to discuss the all-important event. "I asked, 'Again!' he repeated, 'You would not be the newly made Mrs. Erroll for twenty times her fiery and grandeur! I would rather have married that handsome artist from London, with whom she was flirting so desperately all the summer, if he were as poor as Job, than a man like Mr. Erroll if he could make me a duchess!"

"You mean to do the 'all for love, and the world will lost' sort of business when your time comes, Beattie?" asks a companion; and at the same moment a hand is laid on my arm, and, on turning toward the owner, I am surprised to behold my old acquaintance, Mrs. Martin, standing by my side.

She is looking very ill, I think, as she stands there, the bright October sunlight falling on her pale face, her thin, compressed lips, and rusty black bonnet and shawl and there is a worried, anxious look in her eyes that strikes me as the look of a person who has something on their mind.

"I'm in a bit of trouble, Miss Lesley," she begins; "and I thought as I should feel it a relief to speak to you about it, if you don't mind. It's about Mr. Warden," she adds, dropping her voice to a whisper, and stealing a curious, frightened glance around that somehow seems to send a little, apprehensive shudder all over me.

"I'm in a deal of trouble about him, Miss Lesley, and I'm afraid to say a word about it to any one but you."

"Mr. Warden!" I exclaim, my heart coming into my mouth with a sudden leap. "What of him, Mrs. Martin?"

"Well, miss, maybe it's nothing, after all, only that I'm getting a bit nervous," she replies. "It do tell on one's spirits, you know, to be shut up day after day like this with that poor, lost creature, and not a soul to speak to."

"But have you seen Mr. Warden very lately, since he left Hanbury?" I ask.

"Yes, miss; he walked into the cottage all unexpectedlike one evening," is the reply. "It was Friday, week, and he looked so bad and acted so strangely that I couldn't make him out at all. He came to tell me what arrangements he had made for Mrs. Lennox and me during his absence—that a certain sum would be paid monthly to my application at the office of the new lawyers in Hanbury. 'I tell you this, Mrs. Martin, so that you will know how to go on and what you will have to trust to,' he said. 'Until I see you again, sir, I suppose?' I asked. 'Again!' he repeated, 'You will never see me again, Mrs. Martin; but that will make no difference to you.'"

"I didn't think much of it at the time, miss," she adds, "though he did look awful bad and strange, to be sure; and yet not so much ill as miserable. He looked like a man who didn't care much what he did or what happened to him. He seemed like a person strung up to that pitch that he was ready to kill himself or anybody else that came in his way."

"And this was on Friday week, you say, Mrs. Martin?" I ask, remembering that it was on the evening of that very day that he visited Adelaide.

"What time was it?"

"In the evening—quite late in the evening, Miss Lesley," is the response. "He did not stay very long, however, but went away looking like a ghost. I stood at the door and watched him out of sight into the wet and darkness; and all at once, as I thought of how strange he looked and acted, the recollection of what he said came back to me like a blow.

"You will never see me again, Mrs. Martin; but that will make no difference to you, he said; and, somehow, as I thought of it, the question went through my mind: Was he going to kill himself?"

"If you will believe me, miss, the thought kept me awake all night. It has haunted me right and day ever since. It haunts me still, and do what I will I can't get it out of my mind."

"But you ought not to give way to such fancies, Mrs. Martin. It is the height of folly, I am sure!" I reply, speaking with an assurance I do not feel. "You have no reason to suppose that Mr. Warden would do anything so rash and dreadful!"

"Wait a moment, miss; that's not all!" she replies, with an agitation of manner pitiable to witness. "Two days after, a boy brought a hat to the cottage—it was Mr. Warden's hat—and he had found it on that lonely path across the cliffs; just at the spot they call Warden's Leap—you know the place, Miss Lesley, and you may have heard the story attached to it—of how, fifty years ago, a man named Warden—a desperate horse thief and murderer—rushed up to that dreadful spot when the officers of justice were on his track, and leaped to his death in the awful depths below! The sea comes close up to the cliffs when the tide is high, as it was that night; and that was the last ever seen of Warden, living or dead, from that day to this!"

"Good heavens, Mrs. Martin!" I gasp, turning so sick and faint, that I am obliged to rest for a few moments against some fence for support; "you surely do not mean to suggest that Mr. Warden has leaped over the cliff?"

"Heaven knows, miss, what he did or where he went that night! He was a miserable man, if ever there was one; and then, how came his hat to be lying up there on that lonely path—what could have taken him to the top of the bluff at that time of night?"

"Questions for which there might be a dozen explanations," I reply. "He might have lost his hat in the wind—remember how high it was that night—and not being able to find it went away without it."

"I thought of that, miss," she replies, with a mournful little shake of the head; "but I've found out that he did not go away from Hanbury that night; and, so far as I can hear, no living creature has seen him since!"

"But how do you know—how can you be so sure?" I ask, my heart sinking within me. "He may have walked into Hanbury, and have taken a late train without any one seeing him."

"But is there nothing else you can do, Mrs. Martin? No other direction in which you can make inquiries?" I ask.

"No, miss, nothing as I know of. He told me not to say a word to any one that he had been to the cottage," is the response; "and I don't care to disobey him for the world! He only came just to tell me what arrangements he had made about poor Mrs. Lennox, it seemed, and I asked him just as he got up to go whether he'd like to see her before he went, poor soul! I never thought he had any real liking for her, carefully as he had always looked after her welfare; but I shall never forget the look of horror and loathing he gave me. 'Yes,' he exclaimed, 'when she's dead and in her coffin. Until then, keep her out of my sight, unless you wish me to become a murderer!'"

"Poor gentleman," she pursues. "I really do think that he must have had some trouble, and that it kind of turned his brain; and I'm afraid of the worst."

"Don't—pray, don't say that!" I exclaimed. "I believe—oh, Mrs. Martin, I hope and pray that nothing of the kind has happened. But whatever you do, make no mention of your fears to any one. Mr. Warden may come back any day, and I believe he would never forgive you if you said anything about him." I add, alarmed lest any hint of Mrs. Martin's terrible suggestion should reach the ears of Adelaide.

"I know that, Miss Lesley," is the reply, "I'm afraid there is nothing to be done but to keep silent about what I fear. But it has been quite a relief to speak to you; and if you should hear anything to relieve my mind, I hope you will be good enough to let me know at once."

A promise that is freely and willingly given; and, wishing her good morning, I turn my steps toward home.

I do not quite believe in Mrs. Martin's terrible suggestion about Ernest Warden, and yet—

My heart turns sick within me as I think over the story I have just heard, and which, taken in conjunction with the desperate state of mind in which he took leave of me at the gate that evening—of his parting words, "Many a man less miserable than I am has put a pistol to his head and blown out his brains," excited a horrible fear in my mind, which for many a day to come makes me shrink like an undetected thief from Adelaide's sorrowful, questioning eyes, and that prompts me to steal away into quiet corners to search the papers unobserved, in sickening dread of some mention of the miserable tragedy of which I live in constant fear and dread.

White chiffon embroidered in silver thread and girdled broadly with silver cloth makes a charming dinner gown.

To reconcile us to wintry winds there is a navy blue velvet suit with vest and deep collar of beige angora.

The linings of coats and evening wraps are more brilliant in color and more intricate in design than the outer material.

Some smart women wear a perfectly plain veil over their hats and after it is securely on give separate dots on where it is most becoming.

"All, Miss Lesley, I cling to that hope as long as I could with all my strength, for he's been a kind, good friend to me, and I can't bear the thought of harm happening to him; but I went to the station and made inquiries," is the grave reply, "and I found out that no train leaves Hanbury after ten, as it was past that when he came to the cottage that night, looking white as death, and drenched through and through, like a man who has been walking about in the wind and rain for hours!"

"As he probably had," I think, remembering that it could not have been more than five or half past when he left us that evening.

"As cautiously as possible I made inquiries," Mrs. Martin pursues, "for I did not dare give any one a hint of my dreadful suspicion, and, so far as I could discover, no one saw anything of him after he left the cottage. Earlier in the evening he called at the Red Lion, it seems, and ordered a dinner to be ready for him at seven; but he never returned to eat it! And, oh, Miss Lesley, I'm mortally afraid that something dreadful has happened to him!" she adds, her lips twitching nervously, and her whole form trembling visibly.

A fear I am secretly sharing to the inmost depths of my soul, and which I would give the world to be able to dispel.

Fashion Plates

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Fashion Plates. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

A SUGGESTION FOR OUR NEW GOWN.

Waist—2392. Skirt—2400.

The pretty soft crepes, the new foulards and the smart ginghams, linens and shantung are all admirably suited to this style. It is also nice for combinations of material, and perhaps you could remodel a last season's frock on these lines. Waist and skirt lend themselves nicely to separate finish. The skirt of cloth or linen taffeta or crepe will look well with a waist of material. As so little trimming is now required, just a bit of bead embroidery—a touch of bright color or a little lace is all that you need. The Waist Pattern 2392 is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The Skirt 2400 is also cut in 7 sizes: 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches waist measure. The entire dress will require 8 1/2 yards of 36-inch material for a medium size. The skirt portion measures about 1 1/2 yards at the foot.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents FOR EACH pattern, in silver or stamps.

A GOOD STYLE FOR MATRONLY FIGURES.

Waist—2574. Skirt—2575.

This will be pretty in gray gabardine combined with taffeta in a matched shade, or in black satin, with crepe de chine for sleeves, trimming and drapery. The Waist Pattern 2574 is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The Skirt in 7 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. A medium size will require 3 3/4 yards for the skirt, 3 yards for the tunic and 2 3/4 yards for the waist, of 27-inch material. The skirt measures 2 yards at the foot.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents FOR EACH pattern, in silver or stamps.

WAR SUMMARY.

Over a front of thirty miles from the region of Arras to Peronne, Field Marshal Haig's forces have literally smashed the German front. The southern portion of the famous Drocourt-Queant switch-line, which has been heralded as the impregnable bulwark of the German defence in the North, has given way under the violence of the British onslaughts over its entire front from the Scarpe River to Queant, a distance of virtually ten miles, and Monday night saw the Canadian and English troops, who carried out the manoeuvres, hard after the defeated enemy some three miles to the eastward. Thousands of prisoners have been taken from the strongly resisting enemy, who at last accounts was fighting violently as he gave ground towards the Canal Du Nord. By this victory seemingly is ended the menace of the Hindenburg line to the south, which the British are gradually approaching over its entire front already. Thoroughly outfanked on the north and with the French well upon its south base, military necessity apparently will require the Germans to relinquish the Hindenburg fortifications and realign their front from Flanders to Rheims in order to avert disaster at the ends of their now swiftly moving antagonists. Already the roads to Douai, Cambrai and St. Quentin are thoroughly invested by the British and French armies, while north to Soissons the French and Americans are in a position of vantage from which to carry out turning movements which will outflank Laon and the Chemin des Dames and Aisne lines. The situation of the enemy, viewed from the map, is of the most perilous he has yet been in.

FEROCIOUS FIGHTING.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 2. (By the A.P.)—The British have pierced the Drocourt-Queant line in a fierce battle, which has been raging since dawn, and which will probably prove to be one of the most important of the war. Canadian and English troops at last reports had at one point driven in about five kilos or a little more than three miles, and were still going. The fighting was as ferocious as any since the war began, and increased in intensity as the British battled their way forward, meeting the ever-growing resistance of the enemy, who had put in every available man, and was rushing up reserves at the rear. Thousands of prisoners have been captured. The roads to the British rear are literally jammed with them. There has been fierce fighting in Dixy which has been taken by the British, and Mount Dury which the Germans held in great strength was stormed. The British went on after killing enormous numbers of the enemy. The Germans did the fighting here as elsewhere. Cagnicourt Wood and Cagnicourt have been captured, and Boisse de Doune, to the southeast, is reported to have been occupied also.

BATTLE RAGING ON A 120-MILE FRONT.

PARIS, Sept. 2. The Allies are keeping up the battle in the face of increasing resistance by the enemy, and more than that they have extended the fighting until it now embraces a front of some 120 miles from Ypres to Soissons. This is more than many well-informed observers had hoped for. Peronne has fallen, and with it the enemy's chance of holding on to strong defensive positions along the Somme. While the principal feints are now being performed on the British part of the battle line, General Mangin continues to forge ahead, adding every day to the enemy's losses and to his danger.

AUSTRALIANS' GOOD WORK.

LONDON, Sept. 2. The Australians who captured Mont Quentin with 1,500 prisoners, and thereby rendered the fall of Peronne inevitable, accomplished the feat within an hour and with a loss to themselves of only 25 men, according to the Daily Mail's correspondent at the British Headquarters in France. Continuing his narrative of the achievement of the Australians, the correspondent says that the latter part of the three German divisions crumbled to pieces before one Australian unit. The Germans appeared to have felt some sort of nameless terror, similar to that which takes possession of troops fighting against Indians in their native haunts. The capture of Peronne, according to the correspondent, should turn the enemy's present line and hasten his retreat. He has now in this southern quarter only one good position to hold before he reaches the Hindenburg line from St. Quentin northward.

AUSTRALIANS TAKE PRISONERS.

LONDON, Sept. 2. Le Transloy, the important point on the line between Bapaume and Peronne, where the Germans have been holding stubbornly, is considered by the British to-day as virtually in their hands. They have captured the village of Villers-au-Elos, to the north, and Le Transloy is now outfanked on both sides. The capture of Noreuil, northeast of Bapaume, was reported this morning. Between three thousand and four thousand prisoners were taken by the Australians in the vicinity of Peronne yesterday.

CANADIANS ATTACK.

LONDON, Sept. 2. The Canadians attacked this morning astride the Arras-Cambrai road on a front of five miles and broke through the Drocourt-Queant switch-line on a front of five miles. They have reached the western edge of Cagnicourt, about two miles northeast of Queant.

CANADIAN-ENGLISH LAUNCH NEW ATTACK.

LONDON, Sept. 2. (Official.) An attack was launched this morning by Canadian and English troops in the important sector of the Scarpe in the Arras region. The war office reports that good progress was being made to the northeast of Queant, and the village of Rencour-les-Cagnicourt, and the German positions south of that village were captured last night by the British, together with several hundred prisoners. Southeast of Bapaume the British have drawn nearer to the village of Le Transloy, and on the line between Bapaume and the Scarpe a further advance has been made toward Noreuil. On the Flanders front the British have advanced as far as the Lys River east to Estaires, while further northeast in the direction of Ypres the village of Neuve Eglise has been captured.

BERLIN REPORT.

BERLIN, Sept. 2. Ground was won by the British in Sunday's fighting in the Arras region to the north of Hendrocourt in the direction of Cagnicourt, says to-day's official statement. A German counter-attack, however, it is declared, drove back the attacking force to Hendrocourt. The town of Morville remained in German hands, the statement announces. The occupation of Peronne by the British is conceded.

AMERICAN STEAMER TORPEDOED.

A BRITISH PORT, Sept. 2. The American steamer Omega has been torpedoed. The vessel foundered on Friday night. Twenty-nine persons were saved and 28 are missing. Many bodies have been washed ashore. The Captain of the Omega was drowned, and his body has been landed.

WHEAT AT $2.30 A BUSHEL.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2. By a proclamation issued to-day President Wilson set $2.30 a bushel as the minimum price guaranteed by the Government for the 1918 wheat crop. A disinterested committee, the President stated, will be appointed next spring to see whether the increased cost of farm labor and supplies would justify an increase above that price.

RACE RIOT AT SYDNEY.

SYDNEY, Sept. 2. One man killed, two wounded and 35 arrests were made as the result of a race riot in Glace Bay last night. The dead man is Herman Yard (coloured), and the injured men are John Hart, of New Aberdeen, and Billy McLean, of Dominion No. 6. Mr. Hart is suffering from a bullet wound in the abdomen, and Billy McLean, who is about 15 years old, was shot in the thigh. Both are in hospital. The shooting was done from houses. Yard was killed while in his shack through a shot believed to have been fired from across the street. A picket of about fifty soldiers was sent from Militia headquarters with the police, and they arrested every person who acted in any way disorderly.

MORE HUN VICTIMS LAMB.

A CANADIAN ATLANTIC PORT, Aug. 31.—One hundred and fifty-nine men of five Lunenburg, Newfoundlands, and French fishing schooners and a Norwegian steamer arrived here Saturday after having been nearly a week in making land. They were picked up by a trawler off the coast of the Grand Banks. Thirty-one dories were

HEAVY FIGHTING.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FLANDERS, Sept. 2. (By the A.P.)—At Mont St. Quentin the Germans have counter attacked again and again at great cost, but the line there remains intact. The enemy seems to have removed virtually everything he had in Peronne, for he realized that the town must soon come into British hands, nevertheless there was heavy fighting there before the place was captured. There has been more hard fighting around Le Transloy, which fell to the British a few days ago. The Germans here were firmly established in the cemetery at the edge of the town, but the place has now been stormed and captured and the Germans driven south and east. The enemy delivered powerful counter attacks east of Fromoult, on the Bapaume-Cambrai road, the infantry being assisted, according to reports, by a few tanks. The Germans succeeded in penetrating a short distance, but the British immediately re-attacked and the ground which the Germans had occupied quickly became a shambles. In this operation the British captured many prisoners. Among the German dead at this point was a battalion commander. The British were also counter-attacked at Vaux-Vraucourt. The Germans gained a corner in the northeast section of the village and held it for a time, only to be driven off again. South of the Arras-Cambrai road the advance continues. During the night it was held up by a strong fire from a lone trench just south of the road. The Germans appeared determined to hold on here and fought desperately. Finally the British "kicked off" from their positions and charged the enemy. During the fight that followed the British either killed or captured every man of the enemy garrison, and in addition bagged fifteen machine guns. This was accomplished with casualties so light as to sound incredible. In fact the number was so small that it was not made known.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Sept. 2. In the region of the Canal Du Nord artillery activity was violent. The French repulsed two counter attacks by the enemy upon the village of Champagne, maintaining their positions. In the region of the Ailette the French made fresh progress in the wood west of Coucy Le Chateau and east of Pont St. Mars. One hundred prisoners remained in the hands of the French. In the Champagne an enemy raid in the region of Auberville was without result.

VILLAGES CAPTURED.

LONDON, Sept. 2. British troops last night captured the villages of Salliyel and Salliy Salliel, on the line north of Peronne, to-day's war office announcement states.

ALLIED CAPTURES—CORRECTED STATEMENT.

PARIS, Sept. 2. In the course of their offensive from July 1 to Aug. 31, the armies of the Allies have taken 128,802 prisoners, including 2,674 officers and have captured 2,069 guns, 1,734 mine-throwers, 13,783 machine guns and a considerable quantity of munitions, supplies and material of all kinds.

An Historic Remark.

History has placed on record many of the sayings of famous men, and if a certain Western Magistrate is reported correctly a phrase of his, in a recent smuggling case tried before him deserves to be inscribed in the national archives, and handed down to posterity. There is a grim humour in the remark ascribed to this representative of the judiciary, and a humour which is appropriately sarcastic. It hits off so accurately the condition to which the Government is reduced in its effort to obtain revenue commensurate with the orgy of extravagance in expenditure now being carried on, as well as to make good shortages in the Cashier's Department of the Customs, that its sting is plain, and whether the expression which we quote was studied or spontaneous it is very applicable to the situation, and means a great deal more than the maker of it, possibly, intended. That is, it shows up the desperate struggles of the Government to raise sufficient revenue from all the sources at its disposal, to meet current expenses. Those present in Court at the time must have noted inwardly, when this pronouncement was made, "That is how the Government has to get revenue to keep up the country." A truly Solomonian dictum, and one in which there is more truth than poetry. The occasion for this magisterial declaration was at the trial of the captain of a small power vessel, who was found to have some tobacco in his possession upon which duty had not been paid, and in imposing the fine for the violation of the law, the words above are alleged to have been spoken from the bench. The well has it been known to what straits the Government has been driven, but we think, surely, that it is supererogatory to have it proclaimed in this manner. What will outsiders think? What must our own people think or what opinion can they hold of a Department which sends out its detectives to get after the small law-breaker in the outports, and when caught, to have the most severe punishment inflicted, while the bigger violators of trust, nearer headquarters, may loot the cash with impunity and escape the penalty which the less fortunate culprit suffers. Is it fair or just that the men with the pull should be covered with the mantle of influence, thus having their misdeeds and defalcations concealed. The spirit of British fair play is not manifested so invidiously. There cannot be any spirit of justice in such discrimination. Of the offender the law demands punishment, codes are not framed with a view to allowing the major criminals to go free and the minor ones to suffer the penalty prescribed, at least not in the British Dominions. The outport fisherman who smuggles a few pounds of tobacco is a minor offender and justice should be meted out in proportion to his offence. The official who appropriates to his own use public monies is a major offender and the same justice should be meted out to him likewise in proportion to his offence, with an additional punishment in that he betrayed a solemn trust. His position makes his crime doubly heinous and indefensible, and therefore justice should not be sidetracked for sentimental or other reasons. In the case of the fisherman a heavy fine is inflicted; in the case of public officials who have been false to their duty, nothing whatever is done, and the consequences of their act may cause others to suffer. There must not be one course to pursue toward offenders in high places and another towards those who are more lowly conditioned. If there is, then it is time that there was a radical change, not only in the system of Departmental Government, but in the Administration itself. The people are beginning to see things as they are, not as they are made to appear, and shortly there will come a rude awakening to those who at present occupy, (in burlesque) the seats of the mighty.

Foch.

Grave-eyed he looks at us from printed page.
His face lean, worn and lined, intent, grim, sage,
Most soldierly yet with the thinker's brow,
Soldier of France and our great leader now!

Not with the Prussian War-Lord's bristling mien,
No air of pomp or of prestige; serene
Unchanging confidence is his whose might Springs from the sacred sense of being right!

No flow of windy words, no pagantry
Of arrogance and pride; the dignity
Of one whose plans spell victory, yet know
A code of honor to a perjured foe!

The son of a Republic, born to be
Its saving, softest "man of Destiny,"
Strong in retreat, yet stronger in advance,
The brain, the hope, the driving Will of France!

Grave-eyed and sad he looks, as one whose part
To wear the weary of battle o'er his heart.
The wounds of France are his—her grief sublimed
And her untarnished glory for All time!

Obituary.

PRIVATE WILLIAM PARSONS.
Private William Parsons of the Newfoundland Regiment, died this morning at Jensen Camp. Private Parsons was a man who had been, before his admission to the Regiment, an inmate of the Sanatorium on Signal Hill, but made such an apparent improvement as to deceive the Medical Authorities into accepting him as a recruit. Under the strain of training, however, he finally broke down after being put on a fortnight in barracks, his condition being such that he had to be transferred to Jensen Camp, where the end came this morning. He leaves two brothers in Mount Cashel Orphanage and a father in Sydney.

SQUID STRIKE IN.—People will be glad to hear that squid have struck in outside, and last evening large numbers were secured by the fishermen. We may now expect large catches of fish, as up to the time the bait gave out plenty fish was being taken.

LABRADOR FISHERY IMPROVES.—Since the beginning of the last two weeks' good weather, the Labrador fishery has improved considerably, and it is hoped that when the fishery ends, the voyage will not be so poor as was at first expected.

WOMAN SUICIDES.—The Deputy Minister of Justice received the following message from Magistrate Milfin, Greenspond, yesterday: "One Mrs. Penny, Salvage Bay, suicided by hanging this morning. Shall hold inquiry speedily as possible."

FIREMEN TO MEET.—The Firemen's Branch of the N. I. W. A. will meet to-night, in the L. S. P. U. Hall, to consider what action, if any, they will take in the matter of their men on the boats plying to and from Port aux Basques.

NOTICE.—Correspondents are requested to accompany contributions with their REAL NAMES, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. The editor refuses to accept any matter unless this rule is adhered to.

READY FOR LAUNCHING.—The Hon. J. C. Cosbie's new 400 ton vessel will be launched at Catalpa, Friday. She will likely be used by the foreign fish trade. After the launching of this ship work on P. J. Shear's new vessel will begin and it is expected that she will be completed in a few months.

BASEBALL NOTICE.
A meeting of Delegates and Officials of the League will be held at the Imperial Tobacco Company's Office this Tuesday evening at 8:30 sharp. Business in connection with Inter-Town challenge will be discussed and a full attendance is requested. D. J. FRENCH, Actg. Sec.—11

TORPEDOED CREW LEAVE.—The crew of the Norwegian steamer Bergedalen which ship was torpedoed without warning at 4 o'clock on Tuesday morning last, 120 miles off Cape Race, and who have been in the city since Friday last, left by to-day's express en route to Halifax from where they will proceed to New York.

MOTOR ASSOCIATION.—Messrs. Warren and Kelly having completed their work of incorporating the Nfld. Motor Association, a meeting to elect permanent officers will be held in the Board of Trade Rooms on Friday evening next at 8 o'clock. E. COLLISHAW, Acting Sec'y.—sep3.11

Captain of Schr. "Elsie Porter" Reached Port Yesterday. Hun Subs. Crew Tired of War.

This morning, the Telegram reporter obtained from the captain of the Elsie Porter, full details of the capture and release by the German submarine which sank his ship, Friday afternoon. He, his son and another member of his crew, were ordered aboard the sub to which they went in their dory, which contained water, food and clothing. When aboard the undersea boat, they were ordered below. Meanwhile, the sub. commander closely questioned them about their vessel, the fishing, and their business generally, which they answered according to their own discretion. As prisoners, they were used as well as can be imagined, the treatment received by them being of the very best and the kindest. The captain was invited into the officers' quarters, and there partook of refreshments and food. Cigars, cigarettes and food in profusion were served out. The bread eaten by the officers, was good white bread, while that of the crew was black, and having been preserved in tins, was not fresh, but tasted stale. The crew of the sub. also treated them very kindly and friendly, and in the course of their chatting, declared that they were heartily sick of war, and that they would like to have the privilege of going ashore. The captain and his two men, after three and a half hours of detention aboard the submarine, were told that they could go, and they found that their dory was still tied to the submarine. The water, food and clothing were all intact, but there were only three oars left, two having become broken, of these one was old and of no practical value. However they had a sail, which they raised at times, and which very greatly facilitated their progress. They had fine weather all the time, until Sunday evening, when it became very rough. About two miles off here, they met the schooner Harry Lewis, which they boarded. There they were treated to mug-up, and other kindnesses. Outside the Narrows a motor boat was sighted, which they hailed, and the man in charge gave them a tow in, and in other ways treated them with the greatest kindness, for which they are grateful. When leaving the sub, the captain and his crew were wished God-speed and good luck by the Germans. They are now staying at the Seamen's Institute, where every thing possible for their comfort is being done. The captain, by the sinking of his vessel, has suffered a loss of four or five thousand dollars, but says that as all the crew are safe, that does not trouble him, as he can easily begin again. The captain is a splendid specimen of physical perfection and looks as though he could stand all kinds of hardship. He is the type of man who has built up the British Empire, and made it what it is to-day.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Much excitement was caused in town on Saturday afternoon, when a young man of a foreign nationality, who had been in the employ of the Shipbuilding Co., was arrested under warrant.

Mr. Allan Parsons and his son, Mr. M. Parsons, arrived from St. John's by Saturday night's train. Our townspeople are pleased to have their former citizens with them once again.

Mrs. Phyllis Colbert, of Water Street passed away early this morning after a long illness. She leaves two sons and one daughter, Miss Theresa Colbert, R. C. teacher at Riverhead, to mourn their loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gordon arrived from Boston on Thursday last and will spend the winter here residing in their new house lately erected.

The children of the Presbyterian Sunday School, and those of the Methodist School will hold their picnic at Connell's Farm on Wednesday next, weather permitting.

Master Arnell Stewart, son of Mr. J. C. Stewart, of Bell Island, spent Sunday in town, returning to the island this morning.

At the evening service at the Kirk yesterday, Miss Doris Noseworthy, of Clarke's Beach, sang a very pretty solo, which was beautifully rendered for one so young, about 12 years.

Miss M. Pike, of Bell Island, arrived in town on Saturday on a week's visit to friends.

Mr. J. Duff, of St. John's, is in town in his car from St. John's.

Hon. R. A. Squires, of St. John's, was in town yesterday.

He was born on June 2nd, 1897, at Quidi Vidi Road, St. John's, and laid down his life at the early age of 21.

"Blue Puttees" Defeat City.

The much talked of football match between a team from the Blue Puttees and an eleven from the city was run off before a large number of spectators at St. George's Field last night. The game opened with the Blue Puttees defending the eastern goal, and in the first few minutes of play made several attempts to score but met with hard luck. The City next took a hand in the game and coming east drew first blood. Determined to equal matters the Soldiers made several onslaughts on the City goal tender and were successful in their efforts, Hennebury doing the necessary. Following the centre off the City again got down east and quickly scored another goal. Chafe, Maddigan and Stick, for the B. P's, who were just coming back to old time form advanced into City territory and after keeping Phalen busy for a considerable time managed to secure a corner. The ball being nicely placed the B. P's succeeded in equalling the score. At half time the teams crossed, the score being 2 to 2.

Publish the Results.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper for the following few words:

Notwithstanding the fact that the schools are now waiting for the results of the C.H.E. Exams, rumor has it that the said results are in St. John's this week. It is said that the Council is awaiting the re-opening of the schools to send on the results. In other words it is a game of hide-and-seek between the Council and the schools. Why not give the results to the press, might I ask. They would then surely reach pupils, teachers and all concerned.

Thanking you in anticipation of space, Mr. Editor,

I remain,

Yours sincerely,

After the War is Won.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Has it ever struck you what a lot of fun we are going to have after the war is won, doing all sorts of commonplace little things? For instance, making all the white flour bread we want; what fun it is going to be, just heaping in the white flour, with nary a substitute, and knowing that one is doing nothing out of the way!

And again, when the sugar that is being held up by lack of tonnage in distant ports, flows into the country, get fancy how we revel in pies and cakes and sweet lattes and candies and (say it with bated breath) even two heaping teaspoonsful of sugar in our morning coffee.

It Will Be Fun To Make a Cake.

Surely, just standing in the pantry and mixing up a rich white loaf of bread, will be a great adventure there once it was only a commonplace of the day's routine.

And then, think what fun it will be to be able to spend whatever money one can rightly afford, for just what clothes and luxuries one wants without half the double prohibition that impossible prices and food administrators now impose. Perhaps, in time, the other half of the prohibition will also be removed, but that may be so gradual that we shall hardly savor it.

Of course it will not take long to sing back into the old accustomedness, but there will probably be a brief period in which we shall appreciate anew some of the luxuries of civilization.

Poetic Justice.

And one thing is sure: the resurgence of joy in simple things, will come in greatest measure to the woman who has been doing her share. The women who have managed to evade regulations and have boasted, for instance, of having all the sugar they wanted, the women who have done only what they were absolutely obliged to, the women who have grumbled and hung back, according to the measure of their selfishness, will be denied this experience.

BE CAREFUL FOR YOUR EYES.

When the eyes are tired from reading by a glaring electric light or from fact from any other cause, you can wonderfully freshen and brighten them by a little attention. Lie down on a couch or large easy chair and rest for every muscle. Have a bowl of hot water near you with fifteen grains of boric acid to the ounce. Wet little pieces of absorbent cotton in the water and place on the eyes letting them rest there until dry.

It is a foolish woman who makes it a practice to read on a moving train as in this way the eyes are strained and this spells disaster. Something else that most of us do, regardless of the fact that it injures the eyes, is to read in a dim light, bending lower and lower over our book or bit of sewing.

And oh, the joy of ordering meat without half the double prohibition that impossible prices and food administrators now impose. Perhaps, in time, the other half of the prohibition will also be removed, but that may be so gradual that we shall hardly savor it.

Of course it will not take long to sing back into the old accustomedness, but there will probably be a brief period in which we shall appreciate anew some of the luxuries of civilization.

THE GOLFER'S YESTERDAY. We stood together on the tee; He wished to make a game with me. I innocently asked him how He played, and what strokes he'd had. He told me in his blandest way: "I took a hundred, yesterday."

I did not whimper or complain, I did not prick beneath the strain, I took my usual five and six Unmoved by all his clever tricks, And when the eighteenth hole was done I paid to him the balls he'd won.

I added up the score and found He'd taken 88 for the round. He caught my little smile, and said, With cheeks a trifle flushed and red: "Beyond my speed, I've surely played! That is the best I've ever made."

"Huch! Not a word," I made reply, "I only hope before I die To meet some golfer on the tee Who seeks to make a game with me, But does not innocently say: "Beyond my speed, I've surely played!"

"I've played with 'eighty' men before, And some who've made a lower score; I've played with expert members, who Do things I'll never learn to do, And, very curiously, they All took a hundred—yesterday."

The Navy and the Trawler.

(From the New York Times.)

Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, fails to understand why the navy, "with all its might, has been unable to seek out this little trawler," meaning the Triumph, which recently was seized and turned into an armed raider by the commander of a U-boat on the Atlantic Coast. "It cannot go under the water and hide," says the Senator of the raiding trawler, as if that settled the question. Has he heard of the exploits of the converted merchantmen Mow, which several times ran the gauntlet of the strong and vigilant British patrol in the North Sea and Channel and in two cruises sank 57,000 and 118,000 tons of shipping respectively? Did the Senator make a note of the annoying activity of the German raiders, Wolf and Wolf's Cub, which played havoc with government as well as with merchant ships in the Gulf of Aden, the Mediterranean, the Atlantic, and other waters, finally reaching the North Sea, and in the case of the Wolf, Kiel, without being intercepted? One of the Wolf's victims was the British mining steamer Turritella of 5,538 tons. The Seander, formerly the American ship Pass of Baltimore, led a merry life for seven months as a German raider, until she was stranded on one of the Society Islands; but as she confined her depredations to the Pacific, she is not so good an example. None of these adventures could "go under the water and hide," but can a North Dakota Senator be expected to understand that compared with the dimensions of a trawler the Atlantic Ocean is quite spacious? There must be a long list of German raiders that have played hide and seek successfully with the British, French, and Italian navies. "Why cannot the navy?" demands Mr. McCumber, "use some of its feet to capture this little trawler?" Give the Navy time, Senator, the little trawler has not been out very long under the enemy's flag. Moreover, our navy, with its convoying transports, helping the British and French to hunt submarines on the other side of the Atlantic, and co-operating with the British battle fleet in readiness for a sea fight with the German Navy, has other business to do of greater importance than ending the career of a small lone raider prowling about the Western Atlantic. Some of our keen naval officers are on the job now, and if Mr. McCumber will resign himself to waiting he may hear some morning that the little trawler has been sunk or captured—perhaps, through a ruse, which would seem to be in order.

USEFUL LABOR.

WILF MASCOL

I often hear a fellow say, when pointing to a neighbor, "I really think that idle, lazy should do some useful labor. He tramps the village selling books, and boring thus his betters; and in these times of war, gadabouts, we have small use for letters. He ought to beg or steal a hoe, and work out his salvation, and make a hill of spinach grow, to help to feed the nation." Perhaps the neighbour's wearing bells, as on his path he's drifting; perhaps the clothbound book he sells are loyal and uplifting. It will may chance his helpful tomes inspire some husky critter to go and cleave some Teuton domes, and make the kaiser bitter. I've never found it safe or sane to judge the other fellow, to say in the name of war, or that his motives all are vain, or that his course is yellow. We all can't labor with our hands, with energy untiring; we can't hew wood or till the lands, or keep the forge fires burning. For some must preach, or run the railway station, and some must take their clubs and teach the rising generation. The doctor cannot leave his sick who look to him for healing, because some loud offensive hieck of slackers still is speling. Before I'd throw out darksome hints, or whisper things abusive, I'd have to have the charts and prints and diagrams consultive.

Man who Sank Lusitania

REPORTED CAPTURED BY FRENCH PATROL BOAT.

Paris, Aug. 27.—Lieut. Schwieger, the man who sank the Lusitania, has been captured by a French patrol boat in the Mediterranean, according to Le Journal. A large submarine of which he was second in command had just torpedoed a British steamer between Malta and Sicily. The German was waiting to see the vessel sink when the French patrol boats emerged from the fog and sank the U-boat. Of the crew of 75 only one officer and four men were rescued by the patrol boats. While being taken to Toulon, the officer appeared ill at ease. When he thought no one was looking he tried to throw some papers overboard, but a sailor seized his arm. He refused to answer questions, but an examination of his papers explained his queerness. Le Journal asks if the man who committed "the most vile, the most barbarous and the most cowardly act in the annals of the war," is merely to be sent to a prison camp.

A despatch from Toulon last Friday which described the sinking of a German submarine in the Mediterranean by patrol boats, added that the mate of the submarine attempted to commit suicide when brought on board a rescue ship. The man appeared to be insane and was reported to have declared that the lost U-boat had torpedoed the Lusitania.

The German Admiralty, according to advices from London, on August 10, has admitted that Lieut. Schwieger was killed when a U-boat he commanded struck a mine in the North Sea. The despatch said that his death occurred in September, 1917.

Huns Could Not Sink "Bianca."

The captain of the Boston trawler "Commonwealth," which towed the shell torn but unsinkable trawler schooner "Bianca" into a Canadian Atlantic port, on Wednesday last, reports that he found the vessel adrift on the Banks, Monday, 28th August, and seeing that she was abandoned, put a prize crew on board, took her in tow and headed for port. The "Commonwealth," which has an auxiliary engine, was successful in reaching harbor without mishap, notwithstanding that the tow was a difficult one. It was on Monday that the Bianca was sighted on the Western Bank about one hundred miles off the Nova Scotia Coast, with some of her sails set. She was boarded and taken in tow. On Tuesday night the wind blew so heavily that Captain Watts decided to "let go" for the night, but stood by and in the morning the Bianca was again hatched up, the weather being then more moderate. One of the Commonwealth's engines (she has twin screws) was damaged and put out of commission, all the weight of the tow coming on the other engine which, however, stood the strain well. At the time the Bianca was sighted no other craft were in sight. The Bianca is to-day a tribute to the substantial handiwork of Nova Scotia builders, for the shock from the explosion of the bomb must have been considerable, nevertheless her hull stood it, and the strength of the fabric is proof of the good and true work put into the building of the vessel. The Commonwealth is commanded by Capt. Frank Watts, and carries a crew of twenty, all told. At the time of the rescue, the trawler had been out ten days from home and had a fare of 130,000 pounds of fish. Her skipper and crew will make a goodly sum out of the salvage, the Bianca having been libelred by the owners of the Commonwealth for $12,000. The ship is lying at the wharf of Campbell and Co., and part of her cargo of tobacco is being unloaded. In the meantime the divers are patching up the hull below the water line. Three planks were found to be smashed by the force of the explosion, and pushed out under the bottom. When sufficient cargo has been removed and the patching finished the Bianca will go to the marine slip for permanent repairs. Captain Burke is now with his vessel again having arrived from the port at which he landed.

St. Thomas's S.S. Picnic.

The annual treat for the pupils of St. Thomas's Church Sunday School will be held to-morrow, weather permitting, at Ross's Place, Quidi Vidi Lake. The children will meet at Canon Wood Hall at 12 noon, and the older ones will march to the grounds while the smaller folks will be conveyed in motor trucks. The ladies of the Women's Association of St. Thomas's are selling plain teas, ice cream and drinks at the grounds, the proceeds to be in aid of the Cartwright and Sandwich Bay (Labrador) Mission. A feature of the day's sports will be a football match between a team of Cathedral boys and one from St. Thomas's.

Silver Thimble Fund.

Very quietly and very effectively Mrs. George Carter, Winter Avenue, St. John's, is collecting for the Silver Thimble Fund. In England the Silver Thimble Fund has been responsible for giving hundreds of thousands of pounds for ambulances in all theatres of war. Bits of old silver of all descriptions, broken, battered, bent and melted down and their worth given in money, or the value of good pieces of silver is given. An opportunity has arisen to send across very shortly the collection which Mrs. Carter has made in St. John's, and if there is still anyone who could contribute some little bit of silver or gold, to swell the collection, Mrs. Carter would be very glad to have it as soon as possible—silver photo frames, umbrellas, tops, bangles, brooches, coins, cigarette cases, card-cases, studs, links, toilet mountings, etc. whether broken or in good condition. That already collected, Mrs. Carter has handed over into safe custody, and it will be insured before it is sent overseas.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to make a few corrections with regard to an item which appeared in yesterday's issue under the heading "A Narrow Escape from Drowning." As I happened to witness the accident, I should like to make a few remarks. No doubt about it but the boys were in a pretty bad fix, as only one of them, Myler, could swim. Dunn was in a bad position, being in the middle, but by holding on to the boat and being helped by Myler managed to hold on until Mr. Carl Trapnell came on the scene in his boat and towed the lads ashore. Patrick Brown deserves great credit as a careless of self he rushed into the water and arrived about the same time as Mr. Trapnell.

Thanking you in anticipation for this insertion, I remain,
Yours truly,
EYRE WITNESS.

What About It.

It has been suggested to us that owing to the evenings closing in so early and to-morrow being the last half holiday, the afternoon be given over to baseball and football. We are sure that a return game of football between the City and Blue Puttees and a baseball game between the Cubs and City would be what the public would like to see.

Everybody appreciates good clean goods. You should see our new Fancy Shirts at $1.50. W. R. GOBBIE, is just opp. Post Office. aug19,tf

After the War, FREEDOM FOR ALL For Ever

THE LATEST METHOD

of grafting skin over a severe burn or scald is by the Zam-Buk process. Zam-Buk contains herbal ingredients that literally grew new skin. How much easier, simpler and cheaper than the old method, which was by surgery!

Mrs. George Currie, of 124 Waterloo Ave., Guelph, Ont., writes: "My baby sustained a very severe burn, and although he received medical attention for eight weeks, he got very little better. Finally the doctor told me that skin would have to be grafted."

"Meantime I had heard of Zam-Buk and decided to try it first. This soothing balm soon drew out the inflammation, and in a short time I could notice a great improvement. New skin began to form, and in three weeks time the burn was quite healed over, without having to resort to surgery."

Zam-Buk is equally good for cuts and bruises, as well as for eczema, old sores, blood-poisoning and pimples. All dealers or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

Our American Letter.

Boston, Aug. 28.—The newspapers for the past week have been filled with despatches from Amsterdam, telling of starvation and misery in Germany and the open disloyalty of the people to the Kaiser and all that he stands for. Many people will take these reports seriously, not knowing that they are merely the preliminaries to a peace offensive by the German Government.

In the early days of the war such reports would receive general credence, but to-day intelligent people know them to be merely products of the great German lie factory sent out from a neutral country in the hope of putting the brakes on the Allied war machines. Germany at present is sparing for time and is taking this means to lull her opponents into a false sense of security thereby causing them to slacken their efforts to defeat her.

Beware of all news emanating from Germany. It is all meant to deceive. Not until the Hun has been so thoroughly beaten that he willingly accepts our terms of unconditional surrender, must there be any pause in the present drive against him. We are going to turn a deaf ear to all tales of German internal unrest until we have slain the monster and placed our heel upon his neck.

The German papers are denouncing Wilson in unmeasured terms. It is the cry of desperation from a nation which sees defeat and utter ruin staring it in the face. The reaping of the German whirlwind has begun. The practical junkers who drenched the world in blood have begun to realize that the nation they affected to despise has destroyed forever all hope of a German victory or even a negotiated peace.

The 1,500,000 American troops in France have made it possible for Haig and Foch to change their attitude of defence into one of vigorous and successful offense.

It must be unconditional surrender for Germany now or complete annihilation. America has put new heart into her Allies who realize that her resources are inexhaustible and that victory is nearer than ever before.

Frank Harris, Editor of Pearson's Magazine (New York) is in disfavor with the Government. His magazine is pacific and socialistic in its tendencies and before America entered the war was thoroughly pro-German. This is all the more strange considering the fact that Harris is an Englishman and was at one time Editor of the Saturday Review of London. His sympathy with the infamous Bernstorff was very marked and on the eve of the latter's departure for Germany he published an interview with him that placed upon Great Britain the responsibility for the war. Harris is a very brilliant writer and it is a pity that he should have used his talents in a reasonable attempt to uphold Germany's campaign of murder and brigandage. Harris was the bosom friend and confidante of the notorious Oscar Wilde, a life of whom he has just published. It is not necessary to say more.

A colored man in South Carolina has 13 sons in the Army, 5 at home and 17 daughters in munition factories. This is supposed to be the largest family in America.

Last night at nine o'clock the entire nation whether in the home, the office or the factory, arose and sang the "Star Spangled Banner." In Philadelphia 50,000 persons gathered in Independence Square and sang the awe-inspiring anthem with a patriotic fervor that has not thrilled the old Quaker City since the days of '76.

One outcome of the present war will be the changed attitude of the nations towards America. This country in the past has been looked upon as a nation of dollar chasers. They did not know that it is the most idealistic nation in the world to-day. America could have kept out of the war and piled up countless billions of dollars, but she chose the path of honor and sacrificed for principle more wealth than any nation ever dreamed of.

Patience and long she waited, but there came a day when her latent chivalry awoke and the shining sword leaped from its scabbard while from Maine to Oregon and from the Great Lakes to the Texas delta, 10,000,000 sturdy Americans heard the order "fall in," and left the desk, the plough and the factory to strike for the freedom of the world. And the starry flag which has never known defeat or the stain of an unjust cause once more fluttered in the breeze, the sacred emblem of liberty; and that flag will fly from the turrets of Potsdam Palace before the Beast of Berlin succeeds in his Satanic attempt to destroy human freedom.

There are many contests for seats in Congress in the country these days, but they are tame and lifeless compared with the political campaigns of other years. As the Governor of Massachusetts puts it, "It is no time to flout the merits or demerits of ourselves or others when the whole universe is trembling 'neath the pealing trump of doom."

The Blue Nose Potatoes

Grandmother Grew.

Alr: "The Old Oaken Bucket."

How dear to my heart are the scenes long forgotten,
The ones I beheld in the days of my youth,
The step dance so neatly danced by "Bally Cotton"

To the music they played on an old wooden fute,
There's the green-painted dresser with its lustrous jugs shining,
Brown cups and blue dishes which my infancy knew.

To-day all those scenes round my heart are entwining
With the blue nose potatoes my grandmother grew.
The blue nose potatoes, the lovely potatoes,
The blue nose potatoes grandmother grew.

I remember so well how when spread on the table
All "bursting their jackets", as white as a rose,
I remember her welcome: "Come eat all you're able,
You will find no potatoes to beat the blue nose."

A four-wheeled hoop on the table enclosed them,
No silly grimacing in those days they knew,
But just like brave Hoch face the Kaiser they faced them,
Those blue nose potatoes my grandmother grew.

The blue nose potatoes, the lovely potatoes,
The blue nose potatoes my grandmother grew.

There's others who dined on the swell "early roses,"
"Jenny Lind" for my table there's some folks would cry,
But grandmother used fer to praise the "blue nose,"
That she was an expert there's none would deny.

I see her to-day, as in fancy I ponder
Upon the old days and the pride of the new,
I fancy once more to her homestead I wander,
To the blue nose potatoes my grandmother grew.

The blue nose potatoes, the lovely potatoes,
The blue nose potatoes my grandmother grew.

On those were the days when our men wouldn't hanker
For the war profit money like now from the poor;
They needed no Dr. McPhail to cure cancer
Their hearts nor the "spuds" didn't know it of yore.

I oft cast a sigh for the days of my father
When fancy so fondly presents them to view,
For the pluck and the men of the old days I'd rather
And the blue nose potatoes my grandmother grew.

The blue nose potatoes, the lovely potatoes,
The blue nose potatoes my grandmother grew.

Why "Doughboys"?

The term "doughboy" as a nickname for the American infantryman is a very old one, dating back to the Mexican War of 1846.

In that year the United States regular soldiers first made acquaintance with the houses of mud-colored, sundried bricks that are seen everywhere, even to-day, in New Mexico, Arizona, and the southern part of California.

These bricks are called by the Mexicans adobes (pronounced "dobies") a term also applied to the small, squat, flat-roofed houses built with them.

When the American invaders entered what was then Mexican territory, the infantrymen found these dwellings—mostly deserted by their panic-stricken inhabitants—handy as billets, and promptly occupied them as such. But the cavalrymen who had to be near their picketed horses out on the open prairie, were unable to avail themselves of similar accommodation.

Partly in envy, and partly in good-natured chaff, these christened their more fortunate comrades "dobie-dodgers," afterward shortened to "dobies," a good, round-sounding nickname that was bound to stick, and which in course of time became corrupted into "doughboys."

U. S. Troops in Ontario.

For the first time in history, armed American soldiers paraded the streets of Sarnia on March 22nd. One hundred men of Co. F, 338th Infantry, of Michigan, headed by a band, 30 strong, were wildly cheered as they marched from the dock by way of Christian Street, to the City Hall, where a civic address of welcome was read by the mayor.

A single piece of jewelry, if it is really characteristic and beautiful, serves as the keynote of a costume.

A plaid gingham dress with pale soft coloring is given a gay accent by a ribbon girdle of some bright color.

Painfully this women should take advantage of the high collars which are as much in vogue as low ones.

Are You Deceived?

Have you been led to believe that the knife is the only cure for piles?

If so, it is unfortunate, for many thousands are being cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Some-times after operations have failed, and often when doctors have said that an operation was the only hope.

It won't cost you much to try this treatment in your own home. It is sure to relieve and usually effects complete cure.

Justiceia Affair.

(From the Manchester Guardian.)

The Admiralty statement to-night about the sinking of the liner Justiceia will clear away the loose talk that has been drifting round the event. From the first reports it seemed as though the great liner had been by herself fighting against—some said as many as eight—submarines from the Friday afternoon till midday on Saturday, and the question was asked where our destroyers were. When she was first disabled the convoy presumably went on its way, as it naturally would, with the part of the destroyer escort, while another part of the escort, which may have been one or more destroyers, remained with the maimed ship, which was being towed towards land. Now the protection of a huge ship of 32,000 tons, moving slowly in the water, from the attack of two or more submarines is obviously a very difficult task—indeed an impossible one for one or two destroyers. Certainly a British submarine would consider a big ship in such a case fairly easy game. The wonder was that it took so long before the submarines could finish their work. The smashing of one of the submarines and the capturing of its crew was some compensation for the loss. This is one of the few instances where the Admiralty have announced the sinking of a submarine. Temptation was considerable—the success of a destroyer tailed the Marine at such a time, the desire to show the public that a solitary triumph for the Germans, such as the sinking of this ship was, could not be won without cost, and the publicity which attended the event making secrecy impossible. However rare such events are, nevertheless people are uneasy about the sinking of the Justiceia and one or two other liners when on their way westward without troops. The magnificent organization and skill of the British and American navies, which have permitted more than a quarter of a million troops to come over each month without loss, have set a high standard. Can the outward convoy system not be brought to the same perfection?

Steamer Battled With Enemy Submarine.

A Canadian Atlantic Port, August 29.—Captain Mosher, of the fishing schooner Edna H., sailing out of this port, arrived early this afternoon, reporting that this morning he and his crew witnessed an exciting duel between a steamer and a submarine, five miles southeast of Whitehead. At ten o'clock he sighted two steamers which were moving at full speed in an easterly direction, and a few minutes afterwards he noticed that a submarine was in pursuit of them, about half a mile in the rear. It was a large one, and he could see the periscope and conning tower plainly.

A large number of the crew were on deck. Suddenly one of the steamers fired upon the submarine. The shell fell short, but ricocheted directly over the U-boat, creating a panic among the men on deck, and drenching them with spray. They retreated below, and a few minutes afterwards the U-boat submerged. About half an hour later it reappeared two miles seaward. The same steamer fired two more shots, both of which were very close to the enemy craft, but it could not be ascertained whether a hit was registered or not. The submarine immediately put about and steamed away in a southeasterly direction. It was not sighted thereafter. Several fishermen from Whitehead along the shore, who were out fishing at the time, also witnessed the duel, and corroborate the details.

St. Pierre, Miquelon, August 29.—Twenty-four men, comprising the crew of the fishing schooner Gloaming, of Lunenburg, N.S., were picked up in dories near here to-day and reported that their vessel had been sunk by a German submarine.

For Biliousness

Biliousness is a common form of indigestion. It is brought on by food-waste which the stomach, intestines and bowels fail to expel. If you will take a few doses of Beecham's Pills, when bilious, you will soon rid yourself of the impurities, relieve sick headaches, stimulate the liver and bile and tone the stomach. Healthy conditions are quickly re-established by using BEECHAM'S PILLS

AVIATION REPORT.

LONDON, Sept. 2.

The operations of the British aviators along the fighting zone are described in an official communication issued to-night as follows: "After the heavy rain of Saturday night, the weather improved on Sunday, and our airplanes and balloons carried on their work in a clear atmosphere and high winds. In spite of the opposition of enemy machines, over 1,000 photographs were taken by our air-men, and many reconnoissances effected. Contact with our advancing troops was closely maintained. Our observation balloons were constantly pushed forward, and these, with our artillery patrols kept our batteries informed as to numerous targets which were successfully engaged. Through-out the day, the area, in which the Germans were entering, was searched by our low flying airmen, who everywhere attacked enemy troops and transports with bombs and machine gun fire, causing heavy casualties and much confusion. Bridges and railway connections were heavily bombed in the enemy back area. In the air fighting enemy machines were destroyed and four driven down out of control. Six hostile balloons were brought down in flames by our airplanes. Eight of our machines are missing. On the following night bombing was continued both in the zone immediately beyond the battle line, and further east, a German air-drome beyond St. Quentin was heavily attacked and direct hits were observed. We lost one night bombing machine. During the 24 hours over 34 tons of bombs were launched on different targets.

The German Beast.

(From the New York Herald.)

Having first used poison gas on land, the beast is now first to use it on the sea. The incident of our coast at Smith Island is none the less serious because the lighthouse and coast-guard personnel were only lightly affected by the gas emitted by a German sea prowler. It is the sheer devilry and malignancy of such an attack which fire the whole nation with a righteous indignation and a fixed resolve to beat the universal enemy to the dust. A nation which does such things and a people which approves and applauds them are infamous. We know that if by some devilish contrivance they could exterminate the entire population of New York by empoisoning the surrounding waters or by casting down gas bombs from the air, they would unhesitatingly do so. The Americans now realize that they are fighting an enemy which shrinks from no deed, however atrocious; that a veritable beast has been let loose in the world and that for our own sake as well as that of civilization we must destroy it.

Fought With Reporters.

The misreporting of speeches, about which something has been heard lately in the House of Commons, recalls some mistakes by reporters which made quite a stir, both in the House and out of it. The famous quarrel between Daniel O'Connell and the gallery reporters was produced by an extreme case of bad reporting. O'Connell brought the matter up in the House as a breach of privilege. The reporter responsible for the newspaper version of the speech said, in his defence, that on walking back to the newspaper office, rain had trickled into his pockets and soaked the notes so that he could hardly read them. O'Connell retorted that it must have been the queerest rain ever heard of, because not only had it obliterated, but had also inserted a speech which he had not made. O'Connell's charges of misrepresentation offended the other members of the press gallery, with the result that they suppressed all O'Connell's speeches. He replied by "spying strangers" and so excluding the pressmen from the House. The feud lasted three days, and it was said that the speeches delivered during those days were the dulllest ever heard in the House.

To Encourage Pacifists.

Germans taken prisoners by the French and British in the present attacks say that the Kaiser's soldiers are sick of the war. One man from Baden hopes that his home state after the war will become an independent Republic. An indirect report from a German source records that a German battalion has refused to go to the front, and that every tenth man has been shot in consequence. Furthermore, Germans released from Russia have been brought to the west, but make indifferent fighting men and resent discipline. In this age of camouflage these reports must be taken with a generous helping of salt, a writer in the Boston Transcript warns. Similar stories percolated through the firing line before the last German peace "offensive" and the indications are very strong that the current stories of the enemy being sick of war, etc., are just so much perfidage intended to encourage pacifists and pave the way for another German peace drive. For soldiers who are war-weary and rebellious they are, it must be admitted, fighting unusually well.

The Kaiser in Canada.

The Kaiser would be always exhorting his subjects to spend all their money at home. They were never to buy anything that was not made in Germany or to invest their money in foreign securities.

That he has not practised what he preached is proved by the fact that before the war, he invested very heavily in Canada. Since the war began it has come to light that he had bought land in Alberta and in British Columbia valued at no less than twenty-nine millions of dollars. The property comprises timber and mining lands and town lots. It brings in a revenue of about four million dollars (£800,000) a year.

The agent in the matter was Baron Alvo von Alvensleben, and so cleverly did he camouflage his purchases for his royal master that the Kaiser's name does not appear in any of the Canadian Government offices. The most exhaustive precautions were taken to cover up the tracks, yet without avail. The Canadian authorities have unearthed these real facts, and Canada, it may be mentioned, has a law whereby all German property in the Dominion can be confiscated.

Facts About the Moon.

The apparent size and brightness of the moon depends upon its nearness to the earth, and the biggest and brightest full moon we have enjoyed this century was that of January, 1912, which came as near to the earth as any moon can ever come—about 221,520 miles, that is to say. For another moon to rival that we must wait until 1930.

The greatest distance the moon can ever recede from the earth is 252,830 miles; when, of course, she appears smaller and dimmer.

The phases of the moon, since she shines by reflected sunlight, depends upon the continually changing position with regard to the earth. It is because of this that the horns of the crescent moon in its first quarter always point to the left, while in the last quarter the position is reversed, the horns then pointing to the right.

She always turns the same face to us so that what the other side looks like we do not know. The probability is, however, that it does not differ materially in appearance from the one we are acquainted with, for the moon is a cold, dead world, a huge mass of burnt out slag.

Being destitute of either water or air it is, of course, quite incapable of sustaining any sort of animal or vegetable life.

The so-called "man in the moon" is really a group of extinct volcanoes, some of them more than twenty thousand feet high.

The moon exerts comparatively little direct influence on the earth, except in so far as regards the tides, which are due almost entirely to its attraction. Its reflected heat is almost negligible, being somewhere about 185,000 times less than that of the sun; while the light of the full moon, notwithstanding its apparent brightness to the sun's light, is as 1 to 618,000.—Suffolk Gazette.

The Roaming U-boat.

(From the New York Tribune.)

Germany's U-boat campaign on our Atlantic coast began in May and has been so far a highly futile, not to say a ludicrous, performance. Nothing of military value has been achieved. The toll is made up of fishing smacks, coal scows, a few coastwise vessels, and one obsolete warship. After the first shudder and thrill of interest, people began to treat it rather as a nuisance than a menace. The spectacle of a frightful submarine in combat with a tug and barges off Cape Cod threw the whole affair into comic relief. And as the U-boat continued to bag non-essentials in its heroic German way, the Navy Department was increasingly admired for the success with which it baffled the real purpose of this abominable visitation. Nearly three months have passed, and it is still to be appreciated that the great military line, through which one million of troops and immeasurable quantities of ammunition and sustenance have passed remains untouched. This is a fact of the highest importance. Military values come first. Nevertheless, the sinking of an oil tanker at the very gates of New York harbor is a disagreeable reminder that the German U-boats are roaming up and down the Atlantic coast with much impunity. Despatches from Washington say the Navy Department people would not be surprised to hear of the bombardment of an unfortified coast resort. Nor, in fact, would anybody else, for if a U-boat can sink a tanker just outside New York harbor, it can shoot up Atlantic City or drop shells on Coney Island. Probably the Navy Department's resources are so fully employed in protecting essential military shipping that the means of defending our vast stretch of coastline are inadequate. That, in fact, is to be assumed. We were unprepared to meet the U-boat on these shores. But in that situation, it would seem that the Government might issue warnings accordingly, so that people should know where danger is. A horrible German atrocity upon some unfortified seaside place is evidently possible, and if it should occur, the Navy Department would be blamed for having merely scooped at the military value of the U-boat's exploits.

Self-imposed Exile.

Germany's plans for "peaceful penetration" in Roumania have gone ahead very rapidly since the signing of the treaty of peace. According to advices from an authoritative source in Roumania, the resumption of railway traffic with the districts occupied by the Central Powers was followed by a great influx of German merchants, politicians and intriguers. Within a few weeks the pushing and overbearing Germans had become so much in evidence in Jassy that the Royal Family, including the King and Queen and the Crown Prince, felt compelled to leave the city. The Royal Family is now living in what amounts to self-imposed exile in the remote frontier village of Bicaz. Here in the depths of the Carpathian forests, the Royal Family is living in an old hunting lodge of King Ferdinand's.

Day by Day
Warner's Rustproof
Corsets

are winning friends for our Corset department. Are you one of them, or have you got to wear one of these famous Corsets to realize the comfort, style and service that they give?

What a satisfaction to know when you purchase your Corset that it will wear out only with time—not because it is faulty in fabric or bone, or off in cut. Of this you are confident when you buy a Warner's.

The shaping and comfortable fitting are assured through your selection of the right style for you,—and there is one.

PALMER
Marine ENGINES.

For Pleasure,
Work,
Speed.

Each type of motor boat requires a power plant of suitable style, horsepower and model, according to dimensions of hull, purpose used for and speed desired. The selection of the most suitable motor should not be guessed at, but should be the subject of careful consideration.

We sell the right motor for any power boat, whether used for pleasure, heavy duty purposes or fishing.

Where power and efficiency are of the most importance there you will always find

For the information of the Public it is notified that the regulations made under the War Measures Act, on the 23rd January last, providing that, as and from the said date the sale of Potatoes and other like vegetables within this Dominion shall be by weight instead of by measure, is still in force.

For general guidance, the following extract from the Weights and Measures Act is published:

23 (1) In contracts for the sale and delivery of any of the undermentioned articles, the bushel shall be determined by weighing, unless a bushel by measure is specially agreed upon; and the weight equivalent to a bushel shall be as follows:

Wheat, Pease, Beans, Potatoes and Clover Seed, sixty pounds.
Rye, Indian Corn and Flaxseed, fifty-six pounds.
Turnips, Carrots, Beet and Onions, fifty pounds.
Barley, Buckwheat and Timothy Seed, forty-eight pounds.
Hemp Seed, forty-four pounds.
Parsnips and Castor Beans, forty pounds.
Oats, thirty-four pounds.
Blue Grass Seed, fourteen pounds.
