CHAPTER XXVI.

"But I desire you to do so," Elsie said, with a flash of her old spirit. "This is merely idle prevarication. I will not submit to it."

She faced him angrily.

"Miss Sterne," the lawyer said, looking steadily at her, "I am sorry for you, but you force the last bitter strait from me. If Sir John dies, you have not the shadow of a claim to one penny of your father's money. He knew this when he made some will of which I have heard but never seen. It is quite possible that he himself destroyed it afterwards, though Mr. Vallance believed that it was stolen—stolen with other documents that may some day turn up to condemn him."

"You are his bitterest enemy," Elsie said, almost fiercely. "Heaven help me! Why did I not see it before?"

She half-turned to the door, adding: "You and Mr. Noel Campbell appear to have plotted together for my father's ruin, and I believe that he half-suspected this at the last. I shall ask you for no further advice, Mr. Grant, and if need be will place my affairs in the hands of Justice, through the courts."

She spoke with much bitterness and anger.

"My dear Miss Sterne, why do you misjudge me?" was the bland rejoinder, though the lawyer's deep-set eyes flashed vindictively. "I told you that you insisted upon forcing the last unpalatable truth from me. I say that you have not the shadow of a claim, in the event of Sir John's death, to even the personal property that he may leave. One-third of the estate, together with the title, goes to the male heir in succession. This includes the Park, and is one of the reasons why the baronet has hated the son of the man he killed. There being no will, young Campbell takes all, because Sir John leaves no legitimate child."

Elsie sprang forward with flashing eyes and burning cheeks.

"What dare you imply next?" she cried. "Oh, why have I no one to protect me from such creatures as you? I may yet ask you and Mr. Noel Campbell to return the will and the other papers that have been stolen! It appears to me that I am surrounded by traitors!"

She wrung her hands bitterly.

The lawyer's face had grown white, and hard while she was speaking.

"I have been too gentle with you," he said, sneeringly, "and this accusation you make against me and my client's outrages! Let me put the whole thing in plain language, and have done with it, and at the same time advise you to make the best terms you can with the Earl of Somerton. He wishes to marry you, notwithstanding the fact that you are penniless, and have no claim even to the name you bear. Miss Sterne, your father was never married to the woman who was your mother!"

She clutched at the wall for support, and the lawyer started forward, frightened by her ashen face, but she waved him back, with a snort that however forgot, and staggered from the room.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Elsie groped her way down the dimly lit staircase and out into the court of the Temple, nevertheless not hearing. Her senses were too filled with rage for her to realize the full force of the terrible calamity that had befallen her.

She sat down on one of the seats in the Gardens, and there Annette found her half-an-hour later.

She gave utterance to a little shriek, startled by Miss Sterne's deadly pallor.

"You are ill! What can I do for you? Dear Miss Sterne, will you come home with me to my people? My father and mother live on the Old Kent road."

Elsie looked up, a piteous light in her soft eyes.

"Not now, Annette, thank you. I may be glad to do so to-morrow, or next day. I must return to Bladwood at once, and after I recover myself a little, I think that it will do me good to confide in you. I have no other friend in the wide world."

"You have heard bad news?" said Annette. "Oh, I am so sorry, but it will be all right again soon. I am sure that it will."

Elsie shuddered. "Don't, please," she whispered. "Your sympathy, your kind words, only add to my pain, because I know that it can never be."

Annette listened in wonderment and sorrow. She had returned from her shopping expedition overflowing with gladness. She had intended telling her young mistress of all the beautiful things that she had seen, and now safely hidden in the folds of her dress was a handsome silver watch which she had bought for her lover.

They walked slowly through the foot of the stairway, and at the foot of a dark stairway led to a score of offices beyond, Elsie paused involuntarily—and paused and read among other names, painted on the wall, in solid, black letters:

NOEL CAMPBELL, Barrister.

"Do you see that, Annette?" she asked, half-hysterically. "That is the name of my father's enemy; that is the name of the man who is hunting him to death!"

Elsie stared at her again, then passed swiftly up the steps, and Elsie hurried into Fleet street, hailed a cab, and the girls were driven to the Waterloo railway station.

Annette dispatched a telegram to Blairwood Park, ordering the carriage to meet the five-fifteen train, and partake of some refreshments in the waiting-room set apart for ladies.

"We have half-an-hour to wait," she said. "I am so sorry that I stayed so long in Oxford street, but the time flies when one is surrounded by so many beautiful things."

TODAY I AM REAL WELL

So Writes Woman After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Jamestown, N. Y.—"I was nervous, easily excited and discouraged and had no ambition. Part of the time I was not able to sit up as I suffered with rheumatism in my back and with weakness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound both the Hair and Skin Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash for inflammation. Today I am a rooming house and the work is regular. I give medicine to every woman who complains, and you may use my letter to help any one else. I am passing through the Change of Life now and I keep the Vegetable Compound in the house ready. Mrs. Mary A. Davis, 203 W. Second St., Jamestown, N. Y.

Often some slight discouragement may cause a general upset condition of the whole system, indicated by such symptoms as nervousness, loss of appetite and general weakness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine for such troubles. In many cases it has removed the cause of the trouble.

have no proof to lay before my enemies; I cannot refute what they say. I am a helpless girl, a waif in the teeth of a whirlwind!"

A little, foxy-eyed man paused at the foot of the stairway, and eyed the girls for a moment. He was clean-shaven, but for a wisp of sandy hair on each side of his face. He had a hooked nose, and a wolfish mouth.

Elsie was impelled to look at the man, and at once conceived the idea that it was her cousin, Noel Campbell. So despicable a villain could not be otherwise than distorted in body, as he was wicked and vicious in mind.

He stared at her again, then passed swiftly up the steps, and Elsie hurried into Fleet street, hailed a cab, and the girls were driven to the Waterloo railway station.

Annette dispatched a telegram to Blairwood Park, ordering the carriage to meet the five-fifteen train, and partake of some refreshments in the waiting-room set apart for ladies.

"We have half-an-hour to wait," she said. "I am so sorry that I stayed so long in Oxford street, but the time flies when one is surrounded by so many beautiful things."

Shall We Ever Get Rid of Tips?

ITALY'S EXAMPLE TO THE REST OF EUROPE.

(By ALAN HARRIS.) Courage is a strange thing. It braces men to make false income tax returns or even to refuse to pay rates, both involving some risk of unpleasant consequences; yet probably not one of these men would face the fury of an untipped taxi-driver. Still less the decorous contempt of an untipped manservant.

Few people have any precise idea of how much they spend on tips in a year.

If they had, some would probably be surprised to see how large an item they form in their budgets. Merely going to dine at a restaurant and on to a theatre generally involves tipping at least eight separate individuals.

Giving a tip implies one's social superiority, and, apparently, the bigger the tip the more unquestionable the superiority. People who are anxious to consolidate their positions tend to tip extravagantly; so do timid people, especially men, because they are terrified of being thought mean. Generosity in such matters is an aristocratic virtue; therefore, to be mean with any assurance, one must have started by being unquestionably noble.

No doubt the tipped are quite content (unless they have thoughts above their station) with this aspect of social inferiority. But the "smile on the face of the tiger" undoubtedly belongs to their employers.

It seems incredible that society should have agreed to pay, over and above their other charges, a large portion of the hotel and restaurant waiters' and the railway and cab companies' wages bills, but the fact remains. Else why should it be worth chalking up in certain rare places where tipping is not allowed that "the staff is adequately paid by the management?"

It would be best if the whole system could be abolished altogether (as has been done in Italian hotels); and quite a few lion-hearts, if they would only combine, could probably send it packing. But one sheep waits for another to do something about it, and meanwhile the flock goes on being fleeced.

There is, however, one part of the curse of which we can get rid, at least in public places. That is the terrible mental agony involved in estimating the right amount to give, which to most people is far more distressing than the expense.

The usual object is to make the maximum show of generosity for one's money. "Suppose I give the head waiter so much and the chambermaid so much, then the boots gets . . . and then one finds that the lift-boy will get as much as the hall porter, which would certainly cause a revolution. So one has to start calculating all over again.

The system of having 10 per cent added to the bill for service and distributed among the servants does at least obviate all that. It is already well established in Italy and is gaining ground in France, and is an undoubtedly improvement. It removes invidious distinctions between the richer and the poorer visitors, and is really much fairer to the staff itself. For, under the present system, more often than not the hardest work goes unrewarded. —Daily Mirror.

The truth is that the majority of non-Anglo-Saxon immigrants since the Revolution, like the majority of Anglo-Saxon immigrants before the Revolution have been, not the supermen of their lands, but the hooligans of their lands, and unfit.

Whenever ideas enter the United States of America from without they come by way of England. What the London "Times" says to-day about Ukrainian politics, the revolt in India, a change of Ministry in Italy, the character of the King of Norway, the oil situation in Mesopotamia, will be said week after week by the "Times" of New York, and a month or two later by all the other American newspapers.

She clutched at the wall for support, and the lawyer started forward, frightened by her ashen face, but she waved him back, with a snort that however forgot, and staggered from the room.

Bulgaria Apologises To Jugo-Slavia.

Earthquake Shocks Felt in Spain, Mexico, and California—Empire Trade Receives Further Preference—Imperial Conference is Over—Greenland is not for Sale.

BULGARIA APOLOGISES.

SOFIA, Nov. 7.—The Bulgarian Government to-day sent out part of its programme of apologies to Jugo-Slavia over the recent attack on that country's army attaché, Colonel Krastitch, who was the most galling to the Bulgarian pride. This consisted in sending a company of soldiers, led by officers, to the gate of the Slavian legation, where the regimental band played the Jugo-Slav anthem and the troops saluted the Slav flag.

ANOTHER EARTHQUAKE SHOCK.

GALEXICO, Cal., Nov. 7.—An earthquake even more severe than that of Monday rocked this city at four o'clock this afternoon. The tremors continued for two minutes and the inhabitants abandoned their homes in the rush for safety. Cracks which opened in buildings on Monday were widened and the window dis-

PLAYED SHOWED NO SPEC-TACULAR DEVELOPMENTS.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Geo. Hamilton, Canadian Staff Correspondent. When the Imperial Conference closes tomorrow, should it keep to schedule, members will be able to look back until the report is published, admittedly the greatest value of the conference has been in bringing overseas Premiers together. A many evidenced belief at first the Conference would prove a "Santa Claus," bringing a "solution to all knotty problems" and it is probable that in the end the dramatic there will be disappointment.

WARSZAWA RIOT CASUALTIES.

WARSZAWA, Nov. 7.—The casualties resulting from the riots and bombings growing out of the strike of Railway Workers gives the number of killed as twenty-five and thirty slightly injured.

SAYS MOVE UNNECESSARY.

HALIFAX, Nov. 7.—The trustees of the International Fishermen's Cup made the following statement to-night with regard to the raising in Toronto of funds for the schooner Bluenose. "The move to raise such a fund in Toronto is quite unnecessary; we have adequate funds available to meet requirements. The question of expense money for the Bluenose has not yet been taken up, but will be shortly, when the Bluenose will be fairly dealt with."

PROTECTING EMPIRE TRADE.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The Imperial Economic Conference to-day decided in favor of tax of ten shillings per cwt. on foreign canned salmon. Empire salmon will not be taxed. The Conference also favored increasing preference on tobacco by one-fourth of the present duty. A tax of six pence per gallon on foreign fruit juices, including lime juice, was decided upon, and also a tax of ten shillings per cwt. on foreign honey, and five shillings per cwt. on foreign fresh apples. Empire products will be free. The Conference decided against any attempt to increase Empire trade by means of subsidies, import licenses or stabilizing prices.

BRICK'S TASTELESS.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The Reparations Commission has decided to comply immediately with German request for hearing on reparations question, as proposed by the German Government's note of October 24th. If the several Governments, including the United States, are unable to agree regarding the setting up of an advisory investigation committee, the Germans in their note of last month asked the Commission to commence an investigation into Germany's capacity to pay, to allow a representative of the German Government personally to examine the situation and the measures Germany had taken for reforming her currency. They likewise suggested that German delegates be heard regarding documents embodying the Belgian technical studies of the reparations problem.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 7.—In order to provide a direct and convenient route from Scandinavia to Canada, the Swedish American liner Stockholm will call at Halifax on westbound voyages after the new year, according to an announcement here last night of C. THREE HOURS VERSUS THREE YEARS.

"Well, I don't live with another son who had just seen how Molly Jackson can say such things about her mother-in-law. Molly always said she was disagreeable, and that she said the sharpest hateful words and was very sarcastic. Well, I met her yesterday and I never was surprised in my life. She's really delightful. We were together most of the afternoon. It was down at the church getting ready for that entertainment, and I enjoyed her so much! She's very young looking and so full of energy, and so interested in everything. If Molly had my mother-in-law she might talk. She doesn't know when she's lucky. I'm surprised at Molly, really I am."

Yet Molly is a Good Scout.

Molly's critic ended in a tone that showed she was disappointed in Molly as well as surprised.

Not knowing Molly's mother-in-law any better than the critic does, I couldn't act as counsel for the defendant. And yet—well, I just wonder.

Molly is a pretty good scout. As a rule she doesn't talk about her relatives except in a pleasant way. Of course a great many women seem to think any in-law is fair game for any kind of criticism, even if the own family is to be held sacred. But I can't feel that it's all the in-law virus, because I have heard Molly say very nice things about her sister-in-law.

Molly lived with her mother-in-law three years when they were first married. Then the mother-in-law went to the States.

With Congressman McGaugh I walked through the village street; a blustery wind was blowing, with rain turning to sleet. This woody weather is simply a disgrace, so let us come together in honor and in base." The statesman showed defection, but made me no reply, and after some reflection I saw the reason why. Such weather though men hate it—may help the prunes or oats, and if he should be rated it well might lose some votes. He might offend some granger who overheard his kick, and then he'd be in danger from that indignant kick. And there were also dealers in rubber overshirts, and they'd be sore on spileurs who would the rain abuse. And merchants dealt in slippers, the fancy ones and plain, and they'd detect the kickers who boasted about the rain. It isn't safe to utter the feeblest kind of kicks, if one would safely flutter around in politics. But I have no ambition to run for any snap; I'm pleased with my condition. I am a humble sap. And when my anger's growing I know with skill and tact, while Congressman McGaugh is doing every fact, I make a dautness showing, the lurid language flies, while Congressman McGaugh is merely looking wise.

COMPETITORS IN TRAINING FOR BIG BOXING MEET.

Boxing fans and the public in general are reminded that the big Championships Boxing Meet takes place in the C.L.B. Armoury on Wednesday November 14th. Owing to the number of entries pouring in, it has been found necessary to arrange special time for holding the preliminary bouts. The C.L.B. Armoury will be given over for the purpose Tuesday next. The various bouts are to be keenly fought and very interesting. The contestants will undergo a strict training for months past, and each man will be in the pink of condition ready to do battle for his Club or nation. The programme of competition consists of all the various classes, each of which will be fought by all-comers. The class weights are the standards of New England. The meet will be held under the auspices of the A.A.A., and all will be governed by the rules adopted by the A.A.A. last week.

Those who have not had the privilege of training at the various boxing gyms, recently established in the city, are reminded that the gymnasiums are open to all. The contestants desirous of competing are to be held over for the C.L.B. Armoury on the 14th. All those desirous of competing, and nothing has been done by the Committee to encourage all competitors. Many of our local boys are fast becoming proficient boxers, and many fine bouts will be witnessed on night of the competition. Entries may be received by Mr. Arthur Allen, and Judging by the list of already received, the success of the 1923 Boxing Tournament is assured.

The game was played at Belfast in ideal football weather, and was witnessed by a crowd of about 7,000.

Henderson was the pick of the Scotland forwards, but the Rangers' centre was well supported by a trio of halves; Kerr, Morris and Dougal.

The Irish forwards were not convincing. MacKenzie, Croft and Andrews, were the most prominent.

At back for the Irish team, Curran gave a sterling display of magnificent football.

U.S. "KICKS" AT OLYMPIC ROWING DATES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—America will have to withdraw from the Olympic rowing regatta or send an inferior, untrained band of oarsmen to Paris, American Olympic officials said today.

The Paris committee in charge of the games refused to postpone the regatta dates beyond July 13, and this early date will make it impossible to send a worthy American crew to France in time to train and get ready for the races.

Displeasure was voiced by the American committee men as they said France had urged the fullest American participation in all the events of the games and had allowed the rowing dates to be set without consulting the United States or Great Britain.

AMERICAN BOWLING LEAGUE, LAST NIGHT'S GAMES.

Poppies For Remembrance.

In Tuesday's issue we referred to the price that was paid in precious lives and injured bodies by those who responded to the call of Duty during that long period of bloody warfare. Their bodies formed the bulwark that kept back an implacable foe.

Some of them returned whole of limb it is true, but bearing the marks of the struggle imprinted indelibly on their lives. Others rest in the ground on which they fought and fell; others returned showing the scars of many battles, or broken in health by the hell on earth through which they had to pass.

We cheered madly when we heard from time to time of their deeds of daring; we treated as heroes those who came back when the war was over: we gave of our time and our money freely while our hospitals were full to overflowing with the disabled soldiers and sailors. Then, the danger which threatened over our interest in them waned, and our own concerns again demanded the whole of our attention.

It was not that we did not appreciate the services of those gallant lads, nor was it that we were intentionally selfish in allowing our personal affairs to occupy our thoughts to the exclusion of all else. The hospitals gradually emptied, the wounded in uniform disappeared from the streets, and with the outward and visible signs of the days of stress removed, we concluded that all was done so far as we were concerned. True, there are some in the community who have taken the trouble to follow the career of the war scarred veteran into his home, and so far as possible to help him along; others have concluded that the Government pension scheme amply provided for those who were incapable of earning a living. Pension scheme! What pension scheme ever devised by the most benevolent of Governments could make adequate provision for the man whose health has been so undermined as to make it impossible for him to remain at work for any length of time, and who has a family depending upon what he can make? What amount of pension compensates a fisherman or other tradesman who has lost a limb or his eyesight? It requires more than a Government can do to meet our obligations in this matter, and it is our responsibility as much to-day as it was when their return was the signal to celebrate victory.

Let us never forget their services. Let us never forget that they have first claim on us. They stood fast when death, and worse than death stared us in the face—the outraging of our women, the butchering of our children, and the shams and humiliation of defeat. Newfoundland was too far, at the moment, from the scene of activities of those ghouls in grey to have her ports thronged by ravaged Belgian women and children who found shelter in England. Had that relentless horde not been stopped by the troops in Europe and the sailors in the fleet, the scenes that were enacted in Belgium would have been repeated here. Can we repay these men who stood between? We can do our bit.

The Great War Veterans Association is formed with one object in particular, to care for those who on account of services rendered are in distress. They can do nothing without the cooperation of the public and, as in the past when they have been called upon for assistance they have generously responded, so they are asked on Saturday to co-operate again.

Give a thought to those broken down heroes. Wear a poppy for remembrance and you will help.

Monday Not a Holiday

The Executive of the Importers' Association met yesterday afternoon in the Board of Trade Room and unanimously agreed after considerable discussion that it would be impossible for the stores to close on Monday next. It was felt that closing down business for the day would not be fair to the many who are in the city from the outports, and to whom delay at this time of the year might result in heavy loss. Monday will, therefore, be a holiday with the Banks and the Government offices, but it will not be so observed by the mercantile community.

Residents Object to the Rock Crusher

We understand that the residents in the vicinity of the rock crusher are forwarding a largely signed petition to the Municipal Council to remove it. They claim that it creates a disturbance when it is working and that their houses are filled with the dust carried from it by the wind.

The rock which is quarried on Signal Hill, is conveyed to the rock crusher at present. We would suggest removing Mahomet to the mountain, thereby saving the cost of transportation of his "food," and at the same time relieving the residents of his objectionable presence.

Blue Puttee Friday-Saturday Specials: Moirs' "Dream" and "Motor" Packages. Regular Price, $1.20. Special, $1.05. All Fresh Stock. Also, Home Made Cakes on hand and Baked to order. Cakes and Ice Cream Bricks for sale Sunday, 12 to 1.—novs. 31

The Importers' Association is Criticised

We have received several communications referring to the decision of the executive of the Importers' Association that Monday will not be recognized as a public holiday so far as the business houses are concerned. Our correspondents are not sparing in their criticism of the attitude adopted, and point out that the Armistice was an occasion for rejoicing if it stood for anything. They further suggest that Monday could have been chosen, as it is generally agreed that it is the slack day of the week in business circles. Several firms it is said will not open in any case.

Storm Felt Down North

According to messages received in this city this morning, the weather conditions down North during the past few days have been most unpleasant. Much fog is in evidence, while heavy rain storms and boisterous seas are reported all along the coast. Last night the Prospero was compelled to shelter at LaScie, but it is presumed she left her early this morning on her run north. The Suez with a full cargo of freight on board was also forced to remain at Wesleyville over night. Several schooners which left port yesterday for the Northward with their winter supplies on board must have received a severe drubbing. A heavy sea is reported outside to-day.

Express Passengers

EXPRESS DUE AT 6:30 p.m. The following passengers crossed over to Port aux Basques by S.S. Kyle and are now on the incoming express due in the city 6:30 this evening:—Mr. Byrne, Mrs. J. Old Collegians Annual Meeting*CLINIC DEPARTMENT ENDORSED.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the Old Collegians Association was held in the Methodist College Hall last night. Mr. C. P. Ayre, President was in the chair, and the meeting opened with a true bill for murder. Summers, K.C., Deputy Minister of Justice moved that the accused he arraigned this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The consideration of the charge of murder preferred against Anthony Hawes will be taken up by the grand jury at to-morrow's session.

Organ and Piano Concerto by Mr. H. G. Christian, L.R.A.M. and Miss Oates; and songs by Miss Herder, Mr. H. Murray, Mr. F. Ruggles, Mrs. H. G. Christian, Mr. W. A. Tucker.

Mr. C. P. Ayre, in opening the business part of the meeting, reviewed the past history of the College and the work undertaken by the Old Collegians, heartily thanking the members for their valued support. He stated that it had been definitely decided to establish a Clinic Department in the College. A trained nurse will be brought here from England, one who has had experience in similar work in connection with schools, and scholars who are suffering from physical infirmities will have the benefit of medical advice.

The proposal was enthusiastically received by the audience.

The Secretary's report was submitted by Mr. Wm. White, showing a large increase in membership during the year. The Ayre Athletic grounds proved a great success, four tennis courts were used to the limit throughout the season, and the other portions of the grounds were availed of for football and other games.

The report of the canvassing committee was given by Mr. A. Soper and showed a great amount of work done by this committee.

Division A, captained by Miss A. Horwood, brought in the largest number of members, 207; Division B, Miss Jessie White, 176; Division C, Mr. George Peters, 170; Division D, Mr. C. Ayre, 142; making a grand total of 696 with more to come in to-day.

The team, captained by Mrs. Nicolle, received the prize and as each member of the team and the captain received their gifts they were enthusiastically applauded. The new members were proposed by Mr. A. Soper and seconded by Mr. Hiram Young and unanimously elected.

The report of the nominating committee was read by Mr. Gordon Bradley. Regret was expressed at the retirement of the President, Mr. C. P. Ayre, who did not wish to continue to fill the position of President while being chairman of the College Board of Governors; considering it advisable in the interest of the College to have a new President for the Old Collegians. The following officers were proposed and were seconded by Mr. J. C. Pratt and unanimously elected:—

DEVELOPMENT COMPANY FORMED.

CHEAP ELECTRICITY FOR ST. JOHN'S.

We understand that a local company is now forming to develop the water power of the Southern Shore for the purpose of supplying heat, light and power. The company proposes to supply the city of St. John's and several towns enroute. From a economic point of view the scheme has great possibilities. According to competent engineers an immense amount of power can be developed at a very low cost per unit so that the new company will be in a position to feature electricity for such domestic purposes as cooking and heating. Canada has set an example in hydro development and as a result of cheap electricity manufacturing centres are springing up everywhere. There is a big field for the company here as at present the cost of electricity prevents its extensive use. The company claims that they are in such a favorable position that rates can be cut in half.

our pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peters, LeMarchant Road, last evening, when Miss Marion Edith, daughter of the late Rev. William Curtis, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Leslie Roy Carter, second son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Curtis. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Curtis, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hammond Johnson, pastor of Lower Street Methodist Church, in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The bride looked pretty in a gown of ivory crepe, beaded with sequins, with lace veil and orange carnations, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations, chrysanthemums and sweet peas. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. E. F. Carter, who wore a gown of peacock green and gold, and carried a bouquet of yellow carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. John Curtis. Following the ceremony a reception was held. After the tea the bride and groom had their day honored, and amidst the congratulations from their many friends they motored to Donovans, where they entrained for Carbonneau morning, where the honeymoon was spent. The presents received from the contracting parties were numerous and costly, which testified to the esteem in which they are held.

Telegram joins with their many friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Curtis many years of wedded bliss.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR COUGHS

L. G.'s New Book

(Montreal Star.)

Just before he sailed for Canada and America, David Lloyd George published a book entitled "Is It Peace?" It consists largely of articles which have appeared from week to week in The Star with a small amount of new material. The book has naturally received much and varied comment from friends and foes in England.

The Manchester Guardian, which has never been extravagant in its praise of the British War Premier, speaks kindly of the work and praises its vividness and its reflection of the virile personality of its author.

"The keen student of politics (if there be any left now) who pursues a pastime that is really not less exciting than golf) will find a vast deal of splendidly controversial material in Mr. Lloyd George's book," says the Manchester paper.

"It is a collection of the most plangent of the articles and speeches for which Mr. George has been answerable since the break-up of the Coalition delivered him to cultivate journalism and to make only occasional public appearances. We need only say of the book that Mr. Lloyd George as literature is quite amazingly like Mr. Lloyd George as politics. Between boards, and neatly arranged in 288 pages, his notable personality is still vividly preserved."

The Times is not so generous in its praise and thinks that the book would have been better left unwritten and that Lloyd George could have delivered his message to the nation from his place in the House of Commons.

"Whatever may be thought of the manner in which it is expressed, no one will question Mr. Lloyd George's right to give his opinion," says The Times. "His own experience of Europe enables him to judge whereof his utterances are likely to make easier or more difficult the task of this country abroad, and that experience must be allowed to direct his policy. But if he wishes to make his views known he has at his disposal a medium of which he is an acknowledged master. He has his place in the House of Commons, or when Parliament is not sitting, a platform in the constituencies. He has no need to write a book, and we doubt his wisdom in attempting it. A correspondent quoted recently remarked made by Lord Morley on the conflicting claims of literature and politics: 'Politicians are, are a field where action is one long second-best.' Literature is a field with disaster, and men with great reputations won elsewhere stray into it at their peril."

Captain Peter Wright in The Daily Mail mingles his praise with some sharp sayings but still believes in the genius of the Little Welshman.

"Lloyd George seems rather to have gathered strength than lost force in a course which includes sixteen years of office and six years of absolute authority, the labors of the war and the strenuous political agitation that preceded it, the effort to reach the sublime summit and the opportunity to enjoy the deep cup of enjoyment that is to be found there."

"Few can ever have done all this and reached his age without showing signs of slackness or strain or exhaustion. But at the end of it, 'as this book shows, he emerges perhaps more vivacious, alert, and enterprising than when he started on this wonderful career.'

"The tenure of power, even when brief and subordinate, disintegrates most men, who cannot resist the flattering, intoxicating conspiracy of the world to relax and blunt and weaken their powers, though the public is debarred from knowing this often rapid degradation by the strict decorum of our political controversies."

"But this insidious assault has rebounded on Mr. Lloyd George, and supreme authority has braced and sharpened and fortified him as only struggles and adversity do most people. So, in spite of advancing years, Russell, Cudicura Soap saves without cure.

Mr. J. A. Spender, who has opportunities not given to many to observe Mr. Lloyd George, does not think that the latter is competent to act as censor of his own performances, and said:

"There is a great deal in Mr. Lloyd George's book with which every English reader must agree. There are eloquent pleas for reconciliation and forbearance, wise warnings against pressing an advantage too far, sharp sallies against M. Poincaré and Poincaréism to which the only objection is that they had better have been written by someone else who had not been Prime Minister of this country and who had not quite lately been engaged in controversy with the French Prime Minister. But one's agreement would be more cheerful if there were not running through the whole of the argument the claim, implied or direct, that the Treaty of Versailles was very good, that all the Governments were behaving very well, and that everything was moving in an orderly progression towards same and wise conclusions until a certain date in 1922 when a British Prime Minister was thrown from power.

"The passion of self-justification in politicians is, as we all know, stronger than love or death, and it would be unreasonable to expect Mr. Lloyd George to act as impartial censor of his own performances. But the history of the last five years will simply not be squeezed into this mould. There can be no one claiming the name of statesman who is not in his heart aware that if the events of the subsequent four years could have been foreseen in 1919, a large part of the Treaty of Versailles would have been written differently. There can be no reflecting man who does not think that the decision which threw a huge unsolved problem—the Reparation Commission was a disaster.

"Others are pleased, why not you? with Sam Eddy, The Taxi Man. Phone 1551.J.—nov5.tf

The Sunday Express in wishing the War Premier goodbye on the eve of sailing says:

"Men of all parties and men of none will join in wishing Mr. Lloyd George bon voyage. Although he is out of office he is still the most dazzling figure in our political world. It is not easy for us to see him in perspective, but as the Mauretania carries him across the Atlantic we can correct our vision. With all the defects of his qualities he is a great man of genius who is without a parallel in our contemporary life. He has not lost his punch, and sooner or later he will come back. His Canadian and American tour will reinvigorate Antaena. And, as we see him off the premises, let us remember that the judgment of the world is pretty secure."

Wonderful Guarantee!

Over a Million Bottles of Carnol
Sold, Only Four Have Been Returned

If you will read the second to last paragraph of the circular which accompanied every bottle of Carnol, you will note the following guarantee:

"If after taking one bottle of Carnol, according to directions, you find that it has not yet cured, that its action is not already recognizable, and you can say so sincerely, take back the empty (or partly empty) bottle, and get your money back. Remember we refund the druggist the purchase price—he loses nothing."

Do you think the manufacturers would make this guarantee if they did not know that it is a safe, effective, economical medicine?

But, would it be fair to say the Carnol does not possess merit when out of a million bottles sold, only four were returned?

If the other bottles sold had not proven beneficial, they also would have been returned.

The four bottles were returned and the money refunded without question, the only explanation being that Carnol had not given relief.

As disease is of slow growth it naturally takes time for any medicine to eradicate it.

To get the full benefit of Carnol it is clearly stated in the circular that it is not a panacea, but through enough people have been greatly benefited after taking one or two bottles.

Perhaps the reason these people didn't benefit by taking Carnol was because they did not take enough of it—besides it is not claimed for Carnol that it will do the impossible.

Carnol is sold by all good druggists everywhere.

Montreal's View

Should Combat American Schemes—
Major Martin Warns Chambe de
Commerce Against U.S.A. Canal Projects.

After members of the Chambe de Commerce, as a special banquet held at the Windsor Hotel, had voted to inaugurate an era of greater public activity on the part of the organization, Major Federic Martin told them their first move should be to unite with other commercial bodies and combat American-made canal projects destined to strip Montreal of its huge water commerce and to ruin its port.

The assembly formally resolved to open a campaign for more members; to study at once the project for erecting a $200,000 building that would occupy the present St. Gabriel street property and front on St. James street; and to raise annual membership fees from $10 to $15 a year.

Then the gathering was raised to the point of enthusiasm as J. F. Boulaire, suggesting that 100 members each contribute $1,000 to the new building fund, pledged his $1,000 subscription on the spot.

In the absence of Joseph Ethier, president of the Chambe who was sick, Joseph Daoust, vice-president, occupied the chair.

BLOCK AMBITIONS.

Major Martin said the city needed all the organized help it could get from its business men. "The Americans to-day are ready to spend $100,000 or $250,000,000 on the St. Lawrence Waterway idea, to be away from Montreal what Number has so generously given us to change completely the water transportation system. And we know that the Americans are too clever to spend that money unless they are going to benefit by it."

"You should organize with the other commercial bodies in Montreal and aid the people in stopping American ambitions that would strip our city of its water commerce, and of its future greatness." The Georgian Bay Canal scheme was still undecided and that was a subject the Chambe should study.

Alfred Lambert, ex-president of the Chambe, saw in the new building the possibility of making a centre for every branch of national activity in French-Canadian life. While Senator Gustave Boyer dwelt on what the Chambe could do to help the farm sector.

Sunday Observance

We have observed a hundred before and we cannot repeat it enough, the evil of non-observance of Sunday is far more serious than many people are prone to think. For ourselves the more we do it and the more we consider it, the more we are forced to the conviction that the Province of Newfoundland is to-day the victim of a condition which tends to "de-Christianize" and to rob it of that individual characteristic which until now, has been the right of the people of a province that will be Catholic.

Canada Turns Against Socialism

The definite swing-back of the pendulum from the highest point of Socialism in Canada is marked in many ways, and in no manner more significant than in a statement of Premier W. L. M. King at the Imperial Economic Conference. Premier King came out definitely for the development of nations by individual initiative, a policy that would have been politically fool-hardy for any Canadian statesman to promulgate in the nonsensical and dangerous after-war period, when the tendency was in nationalization everything.

Mr. King said: "There are limitations to what government can do. It would be well not to raise hopes in any direction as to what may come through government action." He added:

Moreover, I think it well at this time to recall the factors that have made British industry and trade the world over what it is—namely, that it has been individual initiative on the part of labor, merchants, manufacturers, and on the part of the investors of capital. It is to individual initiative that countries must look even more in future than they have in the past. The war led to a control of industry by government and a direction of industry by government to a degree that possibly the circumstances of the occasion may have justified, but to a degree certainly which has provoked to some extent a reaction against too much in the way of government interference.

Speaking my own view, I cannot but feel that one of the greatest services government can render to-day is, in so far as may be advisable and possible, to clear the channels of trade and communication of obstructions, of whatever character they may be; to make as free as possible, with due regard to existing conditions, the movement of men and money throughout different parts of the Empire.

The West, where socialism found the most converts, is also turning to private efforts. One Western city that owns its own telephone, street cars, electric power plant, and other public enterprises recently permitted private capital to put in a gas plant. The writer knows also of a Canadian financial man who is laying broad plans to take over many of the municipally-owned utilities in the West, and consolidate them under a gigantic central management scheme such as is represented by the Cities Service Company, Stone and Webster and similar institutions in the States. This man feels that in a few years admirable terms can be arranged with Western cities to provide better service for the communities. The dividends will come out of the savings of private ownership.

In connection with the market tendency from 1918 to 1922 to put everything in Western Canada, including farm mortgages and savings banks under governmental control; a Canadian bank man contributes some interesting views. This man was inspector for one of the four largest banks, and was attached to the Winnipeg office. He states that scarcely a dozen people realize how close the West was to actual Bolshevism in 1920. Many of the politicians then in power had plans to nationalize or rather provincialize utilities, credit organizations and industries, on plans that would have done credit to the Soviets in Russia. Many of these plans were carried out and conditions of operations were made exceedingly difficult in the West for banks, loan companies, public utilities, and some lines of industry. Governmental competition was damaging to these many concerns.

In the face of this situation, with the plunge into the abyss of Bolshevism a nearing menace, the heads of some of the larger banks became alarmed, and went further in meeting the demands of the West than sound business judgment would have warranted in ordinary times. Loans were made that caused the banks grave concern, but they were made in an effort to appease the public hysteria, and to stem the tide of state socialism. "My bank considers that its heavy losses in the West have been a small price to pay for the result of having prevented complete nationalization of all lines of endeavor. The danger of Bolshevism is over now, but it was very real and apparent to well-informed bankers at the time," says this banker.

If Lord Curzon's approaches to M. In that he may be mistaken. His own Note of August 11 was direct and produced a more wholesome effect on French public opinion than the communiqué which was interpreted as withdrawing it. He may also be mistaken in believing that we can do nothing without French acquiescence.

No Milk Strike

DEALERS REFUSED TO PAY EX-TRA FOUR CENTS.

The threatened farmers milk strike which was to have left Montreal milkless to-day unless the milk dealers paid an increased price which the farmers demanded, did not materialize to-day.

The dealers gently but firmly declined to pay the extra four more cents a gallon, demanded by the farmers, which left them at liberty to strike if they wished. But this morning, the date scheduled for the opening of the strike, all dealers reported that their milk supplies came in as usual—and consequently they experienced no inconvenience.

One or two farmers are reported to have failed to send in their usual quantity of milk, but the number who have failed to do so is not sufficient to cause any particular inconvenience to the milk trade, or any shortage in the supply.—Montreal Star, Nov. 1.

Canadian Weekly Trade Review

OTTAWA, Canada.—Canada is rapidly becoming her own banker, one of the best evidences of this being that following the marked success of the recent Dominion government loan, in which $200,000,000 were subscribed within 10 days, the provinces of Ontario has placed a $40,000,000 issue of five per cent. 25-year bonds with a home syndicate. It is thought that no trouble will be experienced in placing it.

Reduce U.S. Debt.

The placing of these large bond issues at home will reduce very materially, borrowings in the United States. Last year these amounted to $250,000,000, but this year they will hardly go $100,000,000. It may seem surprising that a country which before the outbreak of the great war, never took up anything larger than a $5,000,000 federal bond issue, should now do so well in this respect. The explanation is to be found both in the increase of wealth during the last decade, and also in the fact that the financial resources of the country are being mobilized for loan purposes in a way they never were before. Canadians are naturally very thrifty, but until recent years have taken much, as a people, to buying bonds.

Lake Ports Suffer.

American lake ports suffer when anything happens to interrupt the usual flow of grain from Western Canada down the lakes. Owing to their objections to the lifting of tariffs with the Canadian Grain Commission, American vessels have not got into the grain carrying traffic this fall to anything like the extent of former years the result being that United States lake ports are not getting their usual volume of Canadian grain. For example, the record of shipments from the head of the lakes for the period of September 22nd to 28th inclusive, shows that the amount that went out to Buffalo and other points on the south side of the lakes was 4,000,000 bushels below that for the same time in 1922.

Mining Industry.

The mining industry continues to report gratifying activity, and the value of the year's production is now certain to be much in excess of that of 1922. In this connection the recognition in the United States of the growing importance of the mineral resources of Ontario and Quebec is interesting. In a recent issue the Engineering and Mining Journal Press of New York says:

Ontario Rich.

"Ontario has a right to be self conscious as to its natural wealth and to feel that it must in the future devote its energies more and more to further development of districts not yet known and mines which produce about 85 per cent of the world's nickel; the greatest and most promising gold district in the world; and a district, though now in its waning days, which has astonished the world with the richness and total yield of its unique silver ores."

Business Outlook.

The business outlook for the Fall is good. After having spent a month touring the Western Canadas, during which time he covered over 10,000 miles, President Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway said: "The year's results cannot but be encouraging to the whole of Canada. In several parts of the country threshing returns have been considerably better than had been hoped, but I cannot offer an estimate of the total yield. That must be left to the statisticians, but there is little doubt that the amount will be well up to the most hopeful estimate." It may be said that yields running as high as 72 bushels of wheat per acre have been reported from Alberta.

Immigration.

Encouraged by recent demonstrations of its inherent financial strength by expanding exports, big crops and bigger production generally, there is no doubt that Canadian business leaders are preparing to take long strides forward. They are further encouraged to do so through the indications of a heavy immigration.

Team of Horses

Exert 2,000 Pull

Interesting Tests Show the Amount of Power Necessary for Various Jobs.

That a horse may develop as much as 21 horse-power in an emergency has been demonstrated in a series of experiments conducted by the Horse Association of America with a testing apparatus invented by E. V. Collins, of the engineering department of the Iowa State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, for the purpose of finding out just how much a horse or a mule can pull.

The test showed a team of good horses can exert a tractive pull of 2,000 pounds, or enough to lift a ton vertically. Such pulls as these are not needed on ordinary roads. It was shown that on a concrete road surface the amount of pull required to start a farm wagon weighing with its loads more than 7,700 pounds, was only 125 pounds.

The influence of the road surface was demonstrated by additional experiments, which showed that the same load on a good brick road required a pull of 200 pounds, while 300 pounds were required on an asphalt surface, and 520 pounds on a good dirt and cinder surface. In other words the same team can pull four times as much on a concrete road as it can on the best surfaced dirt road.

The new tests emphasized the value of breeding and of training in horses and have opened up new possibilities, their inventor says, in the direction of scientific measurement of performance of differing breeds and individuals. While the value of weight in draught animals was again demonstrated, a surprising result of the tests was that gameness counted almost as much. A little broncho team weighing 455 pounds less than its competitors, pulled larger loads in proportion to weight than any other team entered in the tests in any class. More extended tests will be made next year.

The apparatus consists essentially of suspended weights attached to a wagon-like vehicle in such a manner that it cannot be started until the weights have been lifted.

As soon as the horses exert enough power to raise the weights the wheels are unlocked.

Long or Short

Engagements?

AND SOME LITTLE PROBLEMS OF EARLY MARRIED LIFE.

(By T. A. J. in Weekly Post Special.)

There is a prevalent opinion among cautious people that a long courtship inevitably reveals every side of the characters of the two persons concerned. A man and woman meeting frequently during a long period, it is argued, must necessarily see every phase of each other's temperaments. Situations are bound to arise when the faults and virtues of the woman, the attainments and failings of the man, will be displayed before there is time either to modify or exaggerate them. Thus, it is said, each obtains a knowledge of the natural unforced disposition of the other.

To a considerable extent this opinion is a sound one. Undoubtedly the case for a fairly long engagement, as against a very short one, is overwhelming. But frequently little characteristics remain quite as unsuspected at the end of a twelve-months' engagement as at the end of twelve days' duration. The reason is not that any conscious duplicity has been practised, but that these traits are only called into play after marriage.

Knowing One Another.

This conclusion impressed me recently when I called on a friend who was married a few months ago. I had known the young couple during the whole of their courtship, and thought they knew each other through and through. But I was mistaken. Not until they had a home of their own did they realize that they had yet something to learn concerning one another. I discovered what it was during the evening.

Following my usual custom at my friend's old home, I dropped into an arm chair and stretched out my legs towards the fire. His wife immediately stooped down and straightened the rug where I had ruffled it. Then my friend pointed out an item of news in the paper to me. I read the paragraph, and while giving my opinion, placed the paper on the carpet at my feet. Immediately his wife picked up the paper and placed it on the table between us.

I was rather puzzled at these little attentions, and it was not until late in the evening that light came to me. We had been smoking, and my friend, wishing to re-load his pipe, knocked the ashes into the fender. He had hardly resumed his seat before his wife seized a brush and swept the ashes under the grate. My friend smiled faintly at me. Then I understood why his wife was so observant of apparent trifles. She was house-pride!

After a Year's Engagement.

Since then I have learned that these two young people went through the close association of a year's engagement without once suspecting that on one point their views were totally divergent. For whereas the man places ease and comfort first, his wife is a worshipper of strict order and regularity in the home. The revelation has been delayed until now because previously, during their courtship, the point had never arisen.

Neither of them is to be blamed for this unforeseen difficulty. They were perfectly right in thinking that they understood each other thoroughly in the circumstances before marriage. But when it came to settling down under new conditions they found that, little though they expected it, they had still something to learn of each other's tastes.

Such little problems of early married life have to be faced by most young couples. Even the longest engagement cannot forecast exactly how a man or woman will regard some of the domestic questions that will ultimately arise. But if the period of engagement shows them to be really suited to one another, as in the case of my friend and his wife, no young man or woman need be apprehensive of after-marriage differences. These early questions will invariably find their own solution during the process of "settling down."

opinion that if such an enterprise was started it would prove a real failure, because little or no fish is to be taken there. In the latter part of September the Captain finished up his season's work, and made preparations for his return home over the same route whence he came. The last two weeks was spent at the Company's headquarters, Moose Factory, and before he started to set out on the tedious and tiresome part of the journey, a trip of 11 days to Mattice, he was fortunate in securing a lift by seaplane to Rimi Lake, near Cochrane, Ont., a flight of 250 miles. The seaplane had been sent over to take Lt.-Gov. Cockshut, Premier Ferguson, and Canon Cody, of Toronto, who had been on a tour of inspection. The party, including Capt. Kean, were transferred from canoes to the plane, and, before rising, a sea trip of 50 miles was encountered. Later the giant seaplane rose to a height of 4,500 feet. The flight occupied two hours and ten minutes and, although the captain received his baptism for a first time, he enjoyed every moment of the trip and will never forget the hospitality tendered him by the party. After the first leg of the journey had been completed, he boarded the train at Cochrane, Ont., for home. While en route he made a brief stop-off at the principal Canadian Cities. Capt. Kean is enjoying excellent health after his experiences in Hudson Bay, and is already looking forward to another such trip within the next six months.

Mystery Element "Fair Lady" Feature

NOT A HINT AS TO IDENTITY OF THE "VILLIAN" UNTIL THE VERY END OF PHOTO-PLAY.

The element of mystery in the new Rex Beach picture "Fair Lady," was put to a severe and novel test before it was finally turned over to United Artists' Corporation for release, and the wide difference of opinion of experts on the solution of the mystery was taken as a positive proof that the public will not be able positively to anticipate the ending of this screen drama until the very last scenes. "Fair Lady" will be seen to-night at the Majestic Theatre.

When the production was completed it was shown to an audience privately, composed of officials from the United Artists, the chauffeurs employed by the officials and studio mechanics and clerks. None of those invited to the private showing were acquainted with the story of "Fair Lady." This was made a point in issuing invitations. Whitman Bennett, the producer, and Rex Beach, the author, as well as Dorothy Farnum, who prepared the script, were anxious to get an impartial opinion of the mystifying elements of the picture. When six reels of the picture had been run off, the lights were turned on and the spectators were asked "which was the villain." A tally of the various conjectures showed that every member of the cast was suspected of being the guilty party. Then the seventh reel was shown and the audience was left in the dark.

This speaks well for the entertainment value of the picture. It is very unusual when a production can go so near its completion without disclosing some hint of its ultimate ending.

The talented Mount Cashel Band will participate at the Majestic to-night and to-morrow night. It's something worth hearing.

The Season's Greatest Screen Drama

"QUINCY ADAMS SAWYER" AT THE CRESCENT.

The Crescent Theatre presents to its patrons for the week-end commencing to-night, that wonderful home-folk story, "Quincy Adams Sawyer." This is one of the greatest stories of its kind ever brought to the silver sheet, and is brimful of that sentiment that patrons of this popular house will appreciate. The story is complete with laughs, thrills, romance and adventure. So widespread is the interest in the picture that Grosset & Dunlap, publishers, have issued a photoplay edition of the book which will further augment the fame of the film. To-night Master Jimmie Bradshaw, who delighted the audience last night by his rendition of "In Flanders Fields," will again recite this immortal poem. The poem is very touching and should be heard by all who are interested in the work of the Great War Veterans.

Mr. Robert Shields, who has been filling an engagement at this theatre during the past four weeks, finishes his engagement this week. Mr. Shield's rich baritone voice has been greatly appreciated by his hearers, and all wish him a very successful career as he leaves St. John's.

The Amateur Contest set for to-morrow night promises to eclipse all previous affairs as a large list of names have been sent in. There will be no long waits—everything will be ready so make no other "dates" for Friday night.

Girl Guides' Rally

INSPECTION BY ISLAND COMMISSIONER.

The Girl Guides' Rally at the C.I.L. Armoury last night, not only proved a very great success in every way, but strikingly demonstrated the wonderful growth of this splendid organization in the city. Only a few months ago a guider was something of a curiosity, but last night nearly six hundred passed in review before the Island Commissioner and performed the various manoeuvres with the skill and confidence of veterans.

The Rally attracted a large gathering of citizens, among whom were many prominent in Church and State. His Excellency the Governor, who was officially received by the Island Commissioner, Commissioners and Col. Rendell, C.E.E., representing the C.L.B. Cadets, was a keenly interested spectator, and was highly pleased with the performance of the Guiders. The girls showed evidence of careful training and faithful work by their leaders; and at the conclusion of the programme very general appreciation of what had been accomplished was expressed. Lady Allardice, the Island Commissioner, and the Commissioners and other officers who work under her direction, are to be highly complimented on the wonderful progress which has been made in the building up of the organization and the efficiency displayed at last night's Rally. A flash light photo of the whole body of Guides was taken by Miss Holloway. The following was the program carried out:

Dr. Cook Still Insists He Got to North Pole

Discredited Explorer is Now Charged With Old Frauds in Fort Worth, Tex.—His Troubles Multiply—Divorced After Bald Finds Him Young Woman and Liquor in Hotel Room.

Fort Worth, Texas, Oct. 27.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who still insists that he discovered the North Pole, is in trouble again. With a case still pending against him, in which he was arrested with a young woman and a bottle of pre-Volstead whiskey in a hotel room, he was placed on trial in Federal Court charged with fraudulent promotion of stock sales. He has more than twenty co-defendants.

The trial of Cook and his associates marks the government's most dramatic battle to rid Texas of oil frauds and imprison their perpetrators. The Cook galaxy are among 100 defendants indicted here last April charged with misuse of the mallets.

Accused of Swindle.

By means of their machinations, the Attorney General's office alleges, a "sucker list," extending from coast to coast and from Mexico to Canada, was swindled out of more than $200,000,000.

The charges against Dr. Cook are for his manipulation of the Petroleum Producers' Association, of which he was the head. He and his associates are charged with perpetrating a fraud by use of the well known but still workable "merger system."

Complainants were organized, one after another, the Government alleges, and stockholders were advised that unless they forward twenty-five per cent more cash they would lose out, as the new company would absorb the old. Further, it is charged, the Cook companies paid dividends, which were rare, out of money sent in for stock and had no revenues from the sale of products.

Cook, who won world-wide fame in 1908 when he declared he discovered the North Pole but failed to submit proofs, came to Texas five years ago seeking peace and wealth. He got the latter but not the former.

Divorced by Wife.

His domestic troubles have been in Fort Worth courts for two years. What little oil he discovered was insufficient to smooth his marital trou- ples, and only a few months ago his wife was given a divorce decree, Cook failing to appear.

Before this happened the explorer was arrested at a Texas hotel one night by city detectives in company with a young woman and a bottle of pre-Volstead whisky. The explorer's promoter was charged in the Federal Court with illegal possession of liquor as a result of this raid, but the case has not yet been tried.

Trial of the present cases is expected to continue several weeks. They will be tried before Judge John M. Killits of Toledo, O. The prosecution is in charge of Henry Zwefel, United States district attorney, and assisting him is Sylvester R. Rush of Omaha, of the Federal Department of Justice.

Cook's company, in its advertisements, said it paid large monthly dividends, but the government alleges that its investigation has shown only two small dividends ever were paid and that they were six weeks apart.

and that the dividends were in stock and not in cash. The advertising of Cook further said that his company was in the midst of a drilling campaign and the government contends that no drilling was ever attempted by the Cook company.

Since the government began its widespread prosecution of frauds in Texas, high-pressure advertising has ceased, scores of oil companies which had only stock for sale quit business and more than a dozen oil dairies and weeklies suspended. However, the production in Texas fields has continued without let-up. There has been no curtailment of production.

Charge Frame-Up.

Dr. Cook daily and frankly denies every charge of whatever character ever brought against him. He still vehemently asserts he reached the North Pole. In fact he has spoken to several audiences about his famous "dash"; he insists that he provided well for his wife and daughter;

that she, his wife, framed up his arrest; that he had no whiskey with him at the time; that he never practised fraud in the oil game; that he really did climb to the top of Mt. McKinley—that the whole world, in fact, is in league against him.

Little Teddy Meaney Makes a Big Hit

AT THE STAR MOVIE.

This young lad, son of our well-known citizen, Mr. J. T. Meaney, was in the language of the street "an eye-opener," to all who had the privilege of hearing him at this popular theatre last evening. In conjunction with the Poppy Day drive on Saturday next, he recited "In Flanders Fields" and his every action denoted a stage performer of mature years and considerable experience. His pronunciation was faultless, and at once he held the entire audience, in the close-set of attention, so much so that at the finish there was a wonderful outburst of applause, whilst the gathering demanded an encore. For this the lad (and he is but eight years of age, and wonder at that) sang "County Down." This was the climax for the applause, it being deafening. The lad is deserving of all that can be said of him, and as he advances in years, he gives promise of being a star of no small ability, and his parents have every reason to feel proud of their son. He will appear again this evening, and all who can should make an effort to hear him.

For Friday Fawnette and Tesori are going "over the top" in their Fox Trot exhibition, and to all the patrons we would suggest being early so as to have all seats available for the second showing.

Chopped celery, chopped boiled ham and elbow macaroni make a good salad mixture. Serve on lettuce with French dressing.

INGROWING TOE NAIL

This painful affection is one for which sufferers have only themselves to blame. It is not a disease, but an artificially produced condition, to which narrow-toed shoes contribute.

The great toe is the one affected.

It has a broad nail. In the healthy foot, the end and sides of the nail are above the skin. The nails, like the hair, are always growing. At the root the nail is always active.

The root constantly forms fresh nail.

The nail is lengthened by the activity of the root. The nail being the same breadth at both ends is sides are parallel. So long as the sides are parallel, ingrowing toe nail cannot occur.

The straight sides hold back and prevent the skin folded against them from lapping over. If the skin laps over the end of the nail, so that the nail is underneath the skin, the growing nail diggs into the skin. The skin ulcerates where the nail forces its way into it, matter forms, every move drives the nail into the tender sore, and the patient is more or less crippled.

cannot be raised it may be possible by packing the skin away from dally, to raise the nail away from proper position. It is useless to tempt to heal the sore part by means or other application. Once the skin has been kept by packing away from the nail, he-will take place. In many cases, no but an operation can set man-right, and if the packing away of skin does not prove successful, a geon's aid must be sought.

There were originally twelve believe, but now there are only eleven men in the world who understand Einstein theories. The twelfth has decided the theories are not true.

Why is it that the bride and groom always look so serious during wedding ceremony? Their troupals haven't begun yet.

"A motoring costume, ma'am! What shade?"

"Half mourning, I guess. My estate goes dead about half the time."

To salt nuts, first blanch them boiling water, then dry in deep drain on absorbent brown paper
sprinkle with salt.

What To Do

An attempt should be made to lift up the side of the nail, whilst at the same time the skin is pushed away from it. If this can be done, the skin should be packed off the nail by the insertion of a tiny, very narrow, stirrup clean linen. Everywhere the nail

sprinkle with salt.
