"The Cloud With a Silver Lining"

CHAPTER XXXII

She lay back on the cushions of her arm-chair, languid and weak, feeling only that it was pleasant to be able to rest after the long weary day, that it was pleasant to be in warm rooms instead of out in the cold and snow. She had lost for the present the sense of misery, the keen intolerable pain which had not left her for a moment during the past twenty-four hours. She had forgotten in her intense weariness the danger which menaced her husband and the crime of which he had been accused. It seemed as if there had come to her a cessation in the battle of life, when she could rest for a while and gather up strength again for the next encounter.

She was so exhausted that her consciousness of outward things was but vague, her memory of what had passed during the day but a blurred and indistinct recollection; but there still hovered about her a faint consciousness of some danger which threatened her husband, and from which she wished to save him if it were possible.

Presently Dolly came in softly, in her tasteful evening dress, carrying some hot soup, of which Sidney took a little, not to disappoint her pretty attendant; and then, as the dressing bell rang, she drew the bright golden head down to hers and kissed the blushing face with a long lingering kiss.

"I am very glad, Dolly," she whispered. "I hope you will be very happy, dear," and Dolly returned the kiss warmly, but in silence; she could not trust herself to speak, looking at the lovely, wistful, miserable eyes, which met hers, at the tremulous pale lips which had tried to force a smile as they wished her all happiness.

When Dolly had gone down to dinner, her sister-in-law let herself fall back in her chair again, with a little shuddering cry of pain at the thought of the terrible cloud which overhung the girl's young life, the cloud that might burst at any moment and overwhelm her.

"But he will be true to her, even if it should come!" she murmured to herself, pressing her hands to her forehead, as if to crush out some painful thought. "He loves her; and what would not love overlook? Nothing, since—ah, great Heaven—since I love him still!"

Yes; there lay the keenest, sharpest pang of Sidney's great sorrow.

set on every side; and she almost yielded—almost, not quite. As she took from the little medicine-chest the bottle whose contents would so soon have ended her sad life, the horror of what she was about to do came over her. She put the bottle back in its place, and locked the little chest; then she crept back, trembling and faint, to her chair, and sunk into it, covering her white face with her trembling hands, and so sat shivering and cowering as the evening wore on.

And thus Mason found her when she came to see if her mistress needed anything before retiring for the night—a pale woman, with wild bright eyes and burning hands and parched-dry lips, who looked at the servant vacantly, uttering incoherent words—words without sense or meaning, words which sent Mason flying down-stairs for Miss Daunt and her master, who, hurrying up to the pretty dainty rooms, found Sidney there without sense or knowledge, muttering still with her fevered lips, yet becoming strangely silent as she saw Stephen, and pressing her little hands to her lips, as if to keep a seal upon them.

Those were dreary days which followed, while the young mistress of Easthope lay on her bed, with the shadow of the Angel of Death hovering over her—days of quivering pulses, and wide, bright, fever-stricken eyes—days when the little burning hands ceased their restless movements when the white lids never closed over the burningaching eyes—days of doubt, of fear, of seldom of hope.

How near Sidney drew in those days to the brink of the grave she had longed to rest in, how nearly the overshadowing wings had unfolded her, those around her hardly knew, except her father.

Stephen, indeed, in his grief, was almost despairing; but still he hoped through it all. She was so young, so beloved, Heaven would be merciful and spare her to them; and Heaven was merciful, for, slowly but surely she came back from the brink of the grave and from the arms of Death, and lay upon her pillows weak and feeble as an infant child, but conscious of their care and kindness, and grateful for both as she won her way slowly back to life once more.

Back to life, but hardly as yet to health. All present danger was over, the doctors said; but here was still especial need for care. It was but natural that she should be weak and languid after so severe an illness; but the weakness and languor lasted longer than should have been the case; the patient, for all her youth and sound constitution, seemed to have no wish to rouse herself from the lethargy into which she had fallen; there was a terrible lack of vitality. secretly said, if they could induce her to rouse herself, to take some interest in passing events! But all seemed unavailing, all their efforts and tenderness and care, until something came which roused her into terrible fear and dread again, something which drove her from all her weakness and languor, and made her strong once more to do and dare.

takes the greatest care to protect and nourish her skin and not to give the fatal wrinkles a chance to form. After cleansing her face she rubs in with an upward and outward motion a generous amount of Three Flowers Skin and Tissue Cream. The pure oils it contains are quickly absorbed by the tissues. The lady whose skin is inclined to be dry finds in this splendid cosmetic the means to replace the natural oil of her skin lacks, while the woman whose skin is inclined to be too oily finds that a thorough cleansing with Three Flowers Skin and Tissue Cream opens the overburdened pores and helps them throw off the excessive oils. Thus does this beautiful cream benefit every woman's skin.—oct22,th,m,t

Secrets of the Snores

This summer has witnessed one of the greatest exploits of mountaineering ever recorded—the conquest of Mount Logan, the highest peak in Canada, which rises to a height of over 19,000 feet.

The Canadian Alpine Club expedition, which triumphed over all obstacles and reached the summit of Mount Logan, originally consisted of eight members, but two of them had to abandon the attempt because of frost-bite and general exhaustion before attaining their goal.

Almost incredible hardships were suffered by the conquerors of Mount Logan, who spent forty-four days entirely on ice in getting to the summit and back again. Each man of the party had to pack about seventy pounds over two hundred miles of ridge and glacier. Dangerous storms were encountered, especially on the return journey, and only the most heroic efforts averted loss of life.

On the last lap of the ascent, when the party reached what they believed to be the highest point of the mountain, they found yet another peak towering above them. To attain this they had to descend a thousand feet into a valley between the two peaks before again beginning to climb.

This final peak was heart-breaking work, as the party had to make progress up a steep snow and ice slope, terminating in a knife edge that led to the summit. The temperature when they gained the top was four degrees below zero.

Musical Trees

In Barbadoes there is a whistling tree. It has a peculiarly shaped leaf, and all its pods have a split edge. The wind passing through the pods causes them to emit the sounds that have given the tree its name.

There is a long valley packed with these trees and when the trade winds blow across the island a continuous deep-toned whistle comes from the valley, the effect being extremely weird.

In the Sudan there is a species of acacia also known locally as the whistling tree.

German Officer the Brain

BEHIND ABU EL KRIM'S RESISTANCE IN MOROCCO.

Rifman Chief of Artillery is a Former Serbian Colonel.

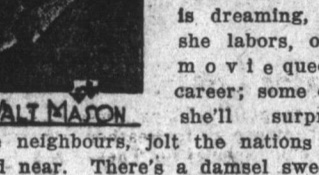

TANGIER, Nov. 8.—The brain behind Abu El Krin's resistance, a French intelligence officer, according to a German named Von Klemm, formerly a captain in the Prussian Guards, who before the war, owing to a scandal joined the French Foreign Legion, and in 1921 deserted to the Rifians and is now serving in Abu El Krin's army.

Ten German deserters who entered the Tangier zone recently were placed under arrest. They complain bitterly of Von Klemm's harshness and brutality, declaring that he shot the faint-hearted without the slightest compunction. He is known through the Rif as Radji Ala.

The same deserters say that the Rifman chief of artillery is a former Serbian colonel. Quiet prevails along the front.

MANY ARE CALLED.

In the farmhouse there's a maiden who is tired of humdrum chores; she is worn and heavy laden working in and out of doors. She is dreaming, as she labors, of a more quiet career; some day she'll surprise the neighbors, for there's a dame sweetly dreaming in the Gold Brick dry goods store, with the crowds around her streaming—but she won't be there much more; by her dreams she is uplifted, in that sordid, busy scene, for she knows she's strangely gifted as a movie actress. In the laundry there's a lady who is keen for wealth and fame; little dimpled, doll-like Sadie, she will try the movie game; other girls have proven winners—Mary Pickford and that crew; and she joins the other spinnors of sweet dreams that don't come true. Sober warnings cannot daunt them, and to Hollywood they go, thinking managers will want them, offering large chunks of dough, but the managers are hidden and are mighty hard to find, and the girls who came unbidden find their lives a weary grind. They are gifted, but the city throngs with lovely gifted maids, and they travel, more's the pity, in the unemployed parades. Where two damsels get their chances, forty damsels wait in vain, while the day of wrath advances, day of poverty and pain; soon they've emptied all their purses and can pay no household bills; then with chaste but earnest curses they go back to farms and mills.

Soviet Legal Lights and Authorities

GIVE A FINE EXAMPLE OF RED TAPE.

MOSCOW.—A striking case in which an attempt to carry out all the legal regulations literally resulted in an enormous waste of time and energy recently occurred in a village near Moscow.

One of the poor peasants of the village went into the forest and broke off a decayed branch of firewood. Unfortunately for the peasant a forester caught him in the act of breaking off the branch. Although the forester recognized that the branch was quite useless, he felt that the law against taking wood from the forest must be upheld, so he halted the peasant with the branch to the village soviet. Here several other peasants were called away from their work to serve as witnesses.

Is Your Back The Weak Point?

Then get your kidneys right by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Very few people are in perfect health. There is a weak spot somewhere. When you get tired or your system gets a little run down you feel the effects at your weak spot.

If your weak spot is your back, then you may suspect that your kidneys are not in perfect order. The back aches or is weak and sore; you may have headaches; there will be dizziness of the skin, pains in the limbs and disorders of the bladder.

The quickest way to regulate the kidneys is by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They are bound to be effective because they arouse the action of the kidneys, liver and bowels and thereby ensure the elimination of poisons from the system.

and to assist in preparing a long report on the case, to be submitted to the court.

Then a forestry expert was called in to appraise the value of the broken branch. He pronounced it worthless, and set a nominal value of 1 kopeck (half a cent). Then the case came to court. By this time protests could already be heard against devoting so much time and attention to the case of the broken branch; but the head of the court insisted that "revolutionary legality" must be preserved, and that they must go through with the case to the bitter end.

Ultimately the court fined the peasant a kopecks, three times the value of the broken branch. But the affair did not end at this point. Somehow the case came to the attention of a higher official, who decided that the peasant should not have been prosecuted at all. Because he was a poor peasant without a horse, and because he had a son in the army, he should have enjoyed special privileges in gathering wood. On these grounds the official ruled that the fine should be cancelled.

But it is no simple matter to get a fine cancelled in Russia, even though the amount involved may be only 3 kopecks. The higher official's decision meant filing new papers and applications, and at last accounts the peasant was still writhing in the legal meshes which he had unwittingly wound about himself when he took what seemed to be a promising piece of firewood.—Christian Science Monitor.

West Ham Surrender

MINISTER'S TERMS ACCEPTED.

Outright surrender was made by the Socialist majority of the West Ham Board of Guardians to Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Minister of Health, whose terms for further loans to the bankrupt union they have related for five weeks.

For nearly two years the board has been insolvent, because of its extrava-gant out-relief, and the Health Minister had insisted on:

The reduction of the maximum relief to be given in any particular case from 68s. to 55s. per week.

An alteration of the present scale of deductions so that where the in-comes (apart from relief) of mem-bers of a household exceed 40s. per week, 75 per cent. of the excess over 40s. in lieu of 50 per cent., as at present, should be deemed to be available for the general purposes of the household.

Because the guardians declined to comply the administration of relief has been handed over during the past months to the relieving officers, with instructions to grant 75 per cent. of the previous scales and then only in the form of vouchers for food and house-hold necessities.

Only the Communist section of the board held out for the resistance to be continued, but they were defeated by 33 votes to 14. The Socialists who voted with the Moderate members for acceptance of the Minister's terms did so only after the word "regretfully" had been introduced into the motion.

Throughout the debate they were at sixes and sevens in an effort to explain their capitulation, and all emphasised that they had been compelled to give way because the recipients of relief were unable to find penalties for their gas-meters and householders whose homes were furnished on the hire-purchase system were having their furniture taken away owing to arrears of payments.

This argument was exploded by the local Socialist clergyman, the Rev. H. B. Reiss, who pointed out, while seconding the resolution for acceptance, that the most serious item of the Min-istry of Health's conditions was with-drawn a month ago. This entailed a reduction of only 6d. per week in the total relief given to adults.

Socialist "Bluff"

Th real reason for the surrender was that Mr. Neville Chamberlain had ended the Socialist "bluff" in a letter in which he told the guardians that as they were "incapable of performing their statutory duties" he had no option but to make direct arrangements for the administration of relief.

Mr. Chamberlain added that he had established an advisory committee of persons experienced in Poor Law ad-ministration, and that he intended to put his new arrangements into operation next Monday.

There are 56 members of the board (52 voted), of whom 32 are associated with the Labour Party.

That the Socialist guardians have been taking part in a sham fight, merely to obstruct Poor Law adminis-tration, is apparent from the fact that the number of families who will be affected by the conditions is not more than 400.—Daily Mail.

Premier and the Miners
REPLY TO REQUEST FOR NEW CONFERENCE.

Mr. A. J. Cook, secretary of the Min-ers Federation of Great Britain (the miner's organization), received from the Prime Minister's secretary a letter stating that Mr. Baldwin had come to the conclusion that no good purpose would be served by his receiving a further deputation from the miners' executive.

The letter added:

If your committee know particular cases in which difficulty has arisen in connection with claims for unem-ployment benefit, and if the Miners' Federation would furnish the Ministry of Labour with particulars, the Minis-ter would arrange to see them. If it is desired to raise questions in which the Mines Department are primarily concerned, Mr. Baldwin would suggest that you approach the Secretary for Mines.

Mr. Cook, commenting on the letter, said:

The miners' delegate conference only agreed to take part in the Coal Commission on conditions that they believed would be granted. On behalf of the executive, I have now written to the General Council of the Trades Union Congress asking them to meet us to discuss the situation, because we have been refused an interview by the Prime Minister.

Empire Trade May Hurt United States

AMERICA WILL NOT PROTEST AGAINST MOVE UNLESS DISCRIMINATION SHOWN.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 31.—(A.P.)—“We cannot take exception to such measures as the imperial preference programme, whereby Great Britain is endeavoring to weld the British Empire into a stronger unit, unless, of course, there be some specific discrimination against United States merchandise as compared with that from other foreign countries. The only effective answer to such a programme can be found through the achievement of admitted superiority on the part of our wares in quality of price or service.”

Such was the advice given members of the National Association of Fur Equipment Manufacturers in session here today by Dr. Julius Klein, Director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the United States Department of Commerce. Dr. Klein had previously expressed confidence in the future of United States foreign trade and forecasted that exports to Europe from the United States this year would approximate $2,700,000,000.

Dr. Klein told the delegates that it was quite impossible to correlate purchasing with patriotism and declared such artificial devices as preference agreements do not seem to be entirely effective in blocking the normal currents of our trade.

“For example,” he said, “our pre-war shares of Australia's imports was about 12 per cent. That figure, according to latest tabulations, is more than doubled now, standing close to 25 per cent. Meanwhile England's contribution to Australian purchases has fallen from 60 per cent to 45 per cent.”

Some of the difficulties ahead for the United States trade in Europe and Latin America he cited were:

- Restrictions on essential raw materials, still remaining from wartime difficulties.
- Domestic propaganda against United States merchandise.
- Participation of Governments in business.

Where the Axe May Fall

TEN PER CENT. CUT IN STATE DEPARTMENTS.

The British Cabinet Economy Committee may favour imposing a compulsory 10 per cent. reduction in the administrative costs of Government Departments, leaving the heads of Departments to effect the saving as best they can.

Whether Ministers may ultimately be attracted by a scheme of all-round sacrifice, beginning with their own salaries and those of members of Parliament, remains to be seen, but such a plan is being advocated in some parts of Whitehall.

The substantial surplus, estimated at upwards of £50,000,000, now accumulated in the National Health Insurance Fund, may have an important effect on the proposals of the Economy Committee.

£6,000,000 Saving.

Indeed, this surplus has suggested the possibility of withdrawing the percentage grant of two-thirds now contributed by the State at an annual cost to the taxpayer of between £6,000,000 and £7,000,000. An alternative proposal is that the many additional burdens which have been accepted by the State from time to time should now be transferred to insurance organizations, with a small increase in the contributions of insured persons to meet the additional cost of medical and other benefits now borne by the State.

As regards expenditure on housing, this year estimated at £7,824,000, Ministers may consider whether the higher rate at which a subsidy is being given under the Wheatley Act as compared with the Chamberlain Act—and the latter is producing a greater number of houses—is justifiable, especially as during last year over 67,000 working-class houses were erected without any financial assistance.

But the Government, in considering savings here, would bear in mind the effect on the house-building output.

The reform of the Poor Law, abolition of boards of guardians, and Treasury control over the amount of grants from part of the Government's legislative programme, and it is hoped to pass legislation to this end during next year.

AN UNFAVORABLE OPINION.

It's my opinion calmly given out Beyond the slightest shadow of doubt. Considered carefully from any angle with due regard to every twist and turn. And all controversy which may rise My baby girl has most bewitching eyes.

Considering all things, this is my conclusion. Amid the world's great clamor and confusion, its strange ideas and its notions confused. And all the queer contentions waxing furious. Concerning life on earth and life hereafter. Nothing is sweeter than my baby's laughter.

I am no bigot; but I'll stick to this. Though mad fanatics round me snarl and hiss. And sect and cult assail and bid me alter. My voiced opinion, still I will not falter.

This is my judgment: Earth no charm possesses Lovelier than are my baby girl's caresses.

I will go further. This I now declare. To all who live on earth or in the air. My opinion, not in guise, con- sidered. This baby girl of mine, who mounts my knees Means more than she will ever know to me.

Mr. Churchill

PREDICTS GREAT PROSPERITY IN COAL CRISIS IS SETTLED.

Speaking at Loughton, Essex, recently, Mr. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said that the Government were studying conditions for improving the occupied ownership of land and the question of maintenance and development of small properties.

He had arranged with the Minister of Transport to allow a larger proportion of the road funds to be spent on rural roads.

Referring to the opposition to the Government, he said that the criticisms of the Labour and Liberal Parties were effaced by the criticism of their own Conservative papers.

He believed that the great Locarno Pact would make for prosperity; indeed, he was told that it would be the signal for a very large expansion of trade and industry throughout the country. It was not for the fact that we were somewhat overhung and overcrowded by the fear of a great industrial disturbance in May when the coal situation would have to be reviewed.

People were afraid to embark on enterprises because they did not know where they would be.

If it ever became a question as to whether this country was to be governed under the old Constitution or by some new form of Soviet, he was certain the people might rely on the Government fearlessly to do the duty to the end.

Fire Worship

The religion of fire worship, called Zoroastrianism, is a survival of faith of great antiquity. It flourishes during the fourth and sixth centuries B.C. and its adherents have always paid great reverence to the elements especially fire.

The devout Parsee engages in frequent daily prayers and worship, and when he worships turns his face to some bright object. The name “fire worshipper” was popularized by Moore's poem, “Lalla Bookh.”

Recently worshippers at the Temple at Rangoon appealed against the decision of the Supreme Court of Lower Burma to allow a woman Bella, born of a Christian father as a Parsee mother, to worship there. The temple and that they had to consecrate it.

Bella had undergone the usual Parsee rites: washing by the priest, which constitutes initiation, and the Priest Council who heard the appeal decided that, as she was born of a Parsee mother and had taken the usual ceremonies which were sufficient to make her a Zoroastrian, Bella was therefore entitled to worship in the Temple.

Realization of Our Country's Worth

It is only to be expected that any undertaking which is in the nature of a departure from the ordinary course of events is bound at first to be regarded with misgiving...

The question of developing tourist traffic in Newfoundland is a case in point. For years it was discussed, but until recently the public attached but little importance to the proposals.

Writing in the early nineties on this matter, the late Judge Prowse said: "At present we lie outside the strong currents of progress; our island lies remote, unfriended and practically unknown."

With all that this country has to offer to the stranger, it is a matter of surprise that the community for so long has failed to realize its real worth as a resort.

The country has emerged from those dark ages; rapid and frequent communication with the countries to the east and west has put an end to our isolation.

tracting much attention abroad, is rated as a country of rich potential wealth, and has in the past few years taken great strides in the development of its natural resources.

The effect has been to direct attention, among other promising projects, to the tourist traffic which in the neighbouring countries has been so highly developed, and which is proving so lucrative.

Familiarity with the numerous attractions that the island possesses has tended to cause us to undervalue them, or otherwise we should have been more careful to see that they were preserved.

Would not the stories of the gallant deeds performed in and around the harbour of St. John's, of the indomitable courage shown by early settlers in such places as Ferryland, of the chequered history of Placentia, and could not Harbour Grace, Carbonear, Cupids, Trinity, and many other settlements each be made to unfold a tale of the doings of the early settlers?

Would not such accounts, prove interesting to the youths of today, who are too prone to look for inspiration to the movie thriller rather than to the characters that have made history, owing to the fact that the latter have been allowed to be forgotten?

With all that this country has to offer to the stranger, it is a matter of surprise that the community for so long has failed to realize its real worth as a resort.

The country has emerged from those dark ages; rapid and frequent communication with the countries to the east and west has put an end to our isolation.

UNDER THE POPPIES

By P. FLORENCE MILLER.

Shall we forget them, though years have flown, And hearts are healed of their early pain, Even as war-torn lands have grown Velvet-sodded and fair again?

Those gallant hearts of the vanished years, Resting in silence long and deep, Headless of laughter, heedless of tears, As under the Poppies they lie asleep— Under the Poppies of Flanders.

Can we forget when their haunting red, Bright as glory and rich as blood, Flamed at the corner just ahead, And memory rushes in a flood— Scarlet Poppies they trampled through, Till their own life-blood stained the hue.

Oh, O our Land! As we taste in the earthy bread and wine Proffered us by a Christ's hand— The Body of Christ and His Blood divine, So read in each Poppy's vivid red A mute command from our glorious dead—

Those gallant hearts of the vanished years, Resting in silence long and deep, Headless of laughter, heedless of tears, As under the Poppies they lie asleep— Under the Poppies of Flanders.

I do not believe a candidate for re-election to Municipal honors should ask for votes. This does not mean that I do not appreciate your vote.

The point is that, after four years of service as a City Councillor, the citizens and the citizens alone are the ones to judge whether one's services as Councillor are acceptable or otherwise.

3rd TIME. THIS IS MY THIRD TIME OF ASKING.

That my actions at the Council Board the first time were appreciated, over eleven hundred people testified at the last election, and now at the request of a majority of those electors, I have again decided to comply with their request.

PLAYGROUND & RECREATION ASSOCIATION OF ST. JOHN'S.

The postponed Annual General Meeting of the Playground and Recreation Association of St. John's will be held in the Board of Trade, on Tuesday, November 10th, at 8 o'clock p.m.

The Second Time of Appearance

I do not believe a candidate for re-election to Municipal honors should ask for votes. This does not mean that I do not appreciate your vote.

The point is that, after four years of service as a City Councillor, the citizens and the citizens alone are the ones to judge whether one's services as Councillor are acceptable or otherwise.

3rd TIME. THIS IS MY THIRD TIME OF ASKING.

That my actions at the Council Board the first time were appreciated, over eleven hundred people testified at the last election, and now at the request of a majority of those electors, I have again decided to comply with their request.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,

I will be a candidate in the forthcoming Municipal Election, and would deeply appreciate your vote and influence. If elected I shall do my utmost to have measures passed that will make St. John's a cleaner, healthier and better city.

TO THE RATE-PAYERS OF THE CITY:

In selecting your six candidates, will you please see that FITZGIBBON is one of them, and elect to the Council Board one who will at all times jealously guard your interests.

Growth of Ten Years—Great Future Before It.

"Buying of public utility stocks has doubled and tripled values during the past year, but it is only quite recently that investors have awakened to the great potentialities of Brazilian Traction, Light & Power Co." is declared in a market letter by Truax, Carsley & Company.

"Much has been written of utility groups everywhere merging into what is called 'super-power systems', but here is a company whose numerous subsidiaries have for some years been welded into one vast and well-co-ordinated organization. This great Canadian-controlled company supplies tramway, light, power and telephone service to some three million people comprising the rapidly growing population of Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, and surrounding communities. Few other utility companies so thoroughly supply a community with vital necessities.

"The present company began its corporate career in 1921, and in virtually every year every branch of the company's services has shown substantial increase. As the following table illustrates, the volume of business has more than doubled in the eleven years ending with 1924:

Year	Passengers Carried	K. W. Hours
1914	245,835,927
1924	498,242,281

Earth Slide at Dry Dock

OPERATIONS UNINTERRUPTED.

Owing to the pressure of water from the river on the south side of the Government Railway Freight Sheds, the ground at the top of the dock where excavation work is going on, founded on Saturday morning, and about forty tons of silt dropped into the basin below. The cave-in occurred on the southern side just immediately east from the end of the completed wall. According as the work progressed, water commenced to pour in at the place from the outside, and to prevent an earth slide the foreman of construction work had piles driven along the side of the dock, and stayed by cables. Later in the afternoon the cables parted with the result that another cave-in occurred near the old gate. The employees were back on the job yesterday, and the work of removing the silt was completed before dark. The freight shed on the southern side has been moved slightly from its foundation. A rumor that the shed collapsed when the cave-in occurred, is incorrect.

Fatal Gunning Accident

Alfonso Duggan, aged 16, son of Patrick Duggan, Salmonier, passed away at 9 o'clock this morning, at the General Hospital, as a result of a gunning accident yesterday. It appears that the lad took the gun from a rack yesterday forenoon, whilst his parents were attending church and, going outside the home with it, tripped, with the result that it went off and the charge entered his stomach. Immediately arrangements were made and he was rushed to the city by motor car, his brother William accompanying. Very little hope was held out for his recovery and he passed away this morning. The body is being forwarded home to-day for interment.

Our Montreal Letter

(From Our Own Correspondent)

TO START WORK ON THE NEW McGILL BUILDING.

Construction on the new Arts Building at McGill University, is expected to start in December. Tenders for the architectural design will be received shortly and the long-awaited project will soon be a reality.

This project means more adequate accommodation for the ever increasing arts classes. It will mark another turn in the internal expansion of Canada's great centre of learning, thus rendering "the Gates of Opportunity" to the building will be ready for occupation next October, the session of 1925-27.

It is proposed according to the present plans to install a demonstration theatre in the edifice to be known as the "Moyse Hall," capable of seating 500.

NO INSURANCE AS BUILDING IS FIREPROOF.

Not a cent of insurance is to be taken out on the Quebec plant of the Ontario Gypsum Company, Ltd., which has just been completed in Montreal East. The two buildings, construction of which was started last July, are valued at $800,000.

The plant is of gypsum construction and the company is convinced that it is absolutely fireproof. Raw material brought from Nova Scotia will be manufactured into gypsum board, wall plasters of all kinds, plaster of Paris and insulux.

THE SPEEDERS GET HEAVY FINES

Judge Perreault reminded an American visitor from Cleveland, Ohio, that there were laws in the Province of Quebec and that they had to be observed when he fined the culprit $75 and costs for going at the rate of 40 miles an hour on Sherbrooke Street, between Guy and University Streets at 10.30 in the evening.

A local man was hitting it up at 30 miles an hour along Sherbrooke Street also, and he hit the dust to the tune of $25 and costs or 15 days in Bordeaux Jail.

Both gave as excuses they "were not thinking," but the Judge gave them something to think about, the loss of a part of their roll of bills.

RECORDEUR SEMPLE SCORES TWO OFFENDERS.

For imperilling the lives and morals of young children, offenders who appeared in the Recorder's Court recently, were lectured in no uncertain terms by Recorder Semple. When Louis Oberlin was arraigned on a charge of selling cigarettes to minors, the Recorder scored him as one of those who endangered the social fabric, by starting youngsters on the downward path and ignoring the laws made for the protection of family and home.

A Ducloux received an equally stringent dressing down, for driving his automobile at a dangerous speed in the vicinity of the Maisonneuve school and so risking the injury of the children of the vicinity. A constable testified that, when arrested the motorist was going at 25 miles an hour. He was fined $40 and costs and warned to mend his ways or suffer severe penalties.

OCTOBER A MONTH OF DISAGREEABLE WEATHER.

October of 1925 will go down in the history of the city as the most disappointing for years. Rain, frost, snow and wind caused many to feel unpleasant and also brought much sickness.

HEALTH LAWS NOT ENFORCED IN SOME EATING PLACES.

A project, introduced by Ald. Maurice Gabis, of St. Cuneode, ward, some time ago whereby he asks that all employees of restaurants be compelled to undergo a physical examination, has again come to the fore. The alderman has asked the executive committee what has become of his motion, which was approved by the council. Ald. J. A. Brodeur in reply stated that he and his conferees were studying the project, but did not state what action they would take in the matter. In explaining his motion Ald. Gabis said that many small eating houses were in a deplorable state of uncleanliness, hygiene is conspicuous by its absence, while the health laws are laughed at. He asks that the hired help do not wait on table in a slovenly state. The manner in which some of the meals are cooked should also be supervised.

GETTING RID OF SOME OF THE JUNK.

Eight of the smallest Canadian Government Merchant Marine ships have been sold, six to the James Playfair Company for service between Canada and Cuba, and two to N. M. Patterson, grain merchant of Fort William, Winnipeg and Montreal.

The six ships acquired by the James Playfair Co. are the Canadian Adventurer, 1,201 tons; the Canadian Sailor, 1,285 tons; Canadian Signaller, 1,455 tons; Canadian Sower, 1,201 tons; Canadian Trader, 1,283 tons, and the Canadian Warrior, 1,453 tons. All of

"SKIPPERS"

No fish more daintily delicious than "Skippers" ever came to table. The fish are plump and of delightful flavour, they have been selected with the greatest care, and they are packed in warranted First Grade Olive Oil.

"Skippers" are more than a delicacy, they are valuable food and weight for weight, are far more nourishing than butchers' meat. The genuine Olive Oil in which they are packed is in itself a splendid food for the little ones.

these ships were built in 1919 by either the Port Arthur Shipbuilding Co. or the Collingwood Shipbuilding Co. They have been in operation on the Great Lakes and are now lying at Midland, Ontario. It is said that they have not been in service this season.

The ships purchased by N. M. Patterson are the Canadian Pathfinder and the Canadian Engineer, sister ships of 1,499 tons register, built by the Collingwood Shipbuilding Co. They will be added to the fleet already in operation by Mr. Patterson.

THE AFTERMATH OF THE ELECTIONS.

The Federal Elections of 1925 have come and gone, and with the parties practically deadlocked, owing to the barrier in the way the Progressives from the West. But they are dwindling, and in this election they lost nearly two-thirds of their following. It's about time that third parties were assigned to oblivion in both Provincial and Federal elections. Your correspondent remembers well when they came into existence in Ontario over thirty years ago when Liberalism was at its greatest strength, power and glory under the sterling leadership of the late Sir Oliver Mowat. At that time Toryism was so weak that for years Liberalism swept the Province. The Tories tried their strength at the Polls under the name of "The Patrons of Industry" and had a few elected. A second venture brought a larger gathering under the leadership of Haycock, and they formed a third party in the House. Sir Oliver Mowat had no need of their services for his Government, as the combined forces of the Tories and the Farmers fell short by fifty or sixty to defeat it. Yet, on all Government questions, the "Patrons of Industry" always supported the Government being Liberals at heart. They finally passed out of existence until they formed again and got control of the Ontario Government, under the name of the "United Farmers' Association" and left a legacy of debt and stagnation, and were in session only one term when the Conservatives at the last Provincial Elections under the present Premier E. M. Ferguson swept them from power. They have invaded the Dominion Parliament under the name of "The Progressives," and had Premier King's hands tied for three years. And now they form a stumbling block if the St. Hon. Arthur Meighen will be called upon to form a Government. At the present time the standing of the parties is: Conservatives, 118; Liberals, 100; Progressives, 24; Labor, 2; Independent, 1. The Progressives under no consideration will vote with the Conservatives.

There were many surprises in the returns. Hon. E. L. Patenaude, the new leader of the Province of Quebec and hailed as a leader equal to the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Saviour of his country, was a front as well as a fiasco, not only being defeated himself but failing to get one French-Canadian Conservative elected in the Province. The moneyed men of the Party gave him a free hand. He campaigned the whole Province with a special car, orators and reporters, and had the Montreal Star at his disposal with page after page of glowing reports of his wonderful receptions and ovations, many of them being fiascos.

in office for another year, and by that time the full effects of partying would have been apparent. Already there were signs on every hand that we had turned the corner and that business was on the up grade. The Conservatives recognized this, and because they could not afford to wait they issued their challenge for an election before the time had passed when they could still use their 'blus ruin' cry. And when the election came they were able to exercise the old maxim 'Divide and Rule,' for in many constituencies where Progressive and Liberal candidates divided the Liberal vote, the Conservative candidate was able to romp home with a minority. The Liberal Government was defeated on a point of strategy when it acceded to the Conservative demand for dissolution, and it is paying the penalty of that initial mistake. The question now is whether the returns will give the Conservatives a working majority, and that at the moment appears doubtful.

THE OPINIONS OF THE FRENCH PRESS.

La Presse: "The general election can hardly be said to have advanced the country as regards the essential objective—a stable government. Neither of the two great parties have succeeded in obtaining a substantial, decisive majority. No party, therefore, is in a position to govern in an independent and stable manner. In a word, we are back to the position occupied in 1921—a precarious majority for the party that assumes power. This is not satisfactory, for everybody was in accord in acknowledging that what Canada needs most is a government possessing a majority at once substantial and capable of successfully carrying out a well-defined policy.

"But if the general result is indecisive we can see now the characteristic existence in the country of two compact groups—that of Quebec becoming a Liberal bloc of sixty members in opposition to the Conservative bloc of Ontario numbering sixty-nine. This is neither satisfactory nor encouraging from the point of view of the best interests of the Dominion, for necessarily the antagonism between the two provinces championing the two parties, Liberal and Conservative, will run a very great risk of envenoming the old rivalries—rivalries of language, religion and interest. Nothing could be more deplorable.

Nothing is pleasing, however. It is that the Progressive Party coming out of the fray in a crippled condition. The country therefore seems to be returning to a division of two parties. We are bound to appreciate that fact. It is too soon, perhaps, to draw definite conclusions from Thursday's results. We must wait until all doubt as to the final outcome is officially removed. But one thing it may be permitted to say. It is that before very long, perhaps in less than a year, it will be necessary to consult again the electorate with the object of obtaining a clear mandate for one or other of the two great parties."

Le Devoir sees as the outcome of the elections only a big point of interrogation. "If Mr. Meighen is called to power will he at once advise a dissolution of Parliament or will he attempt to govern for a few months, or weeks? And how, in this event, will he constitute his Cabinet? Those Conservatives who visibly wanted to get rid of him, will they resign themselves to his rule once more? Thursday's success is surely not of a nature to develop in the mind of Mr. Meighen a spirit of resignation. We are in the centre of a crisis, and the prospect of another general election in the near future."

La Patrie says that in Quebec the result is very disappointing to the Conservatives, notwithstanding that Patenaude had unlimited pecuniary assistance and spent it lavishly throughout the Province. The Patenaude movement aroused suspicion owing to the men behind the work. Hence the failure to capture at least fifteen seats.

American Bombers and Rif Babies

Some Americans will rejoice at the news that the American aviators who have been bombing the Rif are to be on furlough through the rainy season, beginning November 11—a furlough which some correspondents believe will become permanent. They especially disclaim that they have bombed villages filled with women and children and other non-combatants, dispatches have reached this country from time to time that the American flyers had scored many "sure hits" in dropping bombs on Rif villages. As was told in The Literary Digest of October 3, the Consul-General at Tangier was notified by the State Department that the American flyers were apparently violating the laws of the United States in giving military service against a people with which the United States is not at war. But there are reasons against this military service higher than any which depend on legal technicalities, in the opinion of some American observers. The Pittsburg Post prints this dispatch: "What was once a tiny hamlet with a few houses huddled together . . . is to-night a ruin testifying to American accuracy in air-bombing," and comments: "And what were once loving mothers and bright, beautiful, prattling babies, and feeble, harmless old men and women, the dispatch might have added, but doesn't, are to-night mangled corpses." Saying that these aviators do not represent America, The Post asks:

"Why are they fighting the Rifians in the past place? The United States has no quarrel with these Berber tribesmen, whose only offense against the French and Spanish is that they are trying to expel the foreign usurpers from their land. Probably the Rifians in the long run will be better off under European rule than as an independent nation. They are a semi-barbarous people with customs and practices which civilization disapproves. Still they may point to the killing of their women and children by the airmen as an example of barbarism on the part of so-called civilized people. The American nation traditionally has always felt sympathetic toward a country striving to throw off a foreign yoke. The American aviators would have been acting more in keeping with the spirit of their native land if they had volunteered to fight for the Rifians, instead of against them. There would have been something gallant and chivalrous in going to the aid of those brave mountaineers fighting for liberty against overwhelming odds.

"But there is nothing gallant or chivalrous in raining bombs on defenseless villages. It is unpeppably dirty business."

No matter what well-reasoned theories may be developed over the Moroccan situation, observes the New York Sun, "it is felt by the average American that the Rifians are a valorous and idealistic people." As The Sun looks at it further:

"They may be wrong in their present revolt, which is nominally against the Sultan of Morocco, but actually against the foreign overlordship of France and Spain. But right or wrong, liberty and independence are their watchwords, and to many American imaginations it is strange that men who should have imbibed a love for liberty in their infancy should interfere in such a quarrel and in such a way."

Bitter criticism of the American aviators comes from The Christian Century (Undenominational). It notes the "gusto" appearing in some of the dispatches telling how the American flyers have bombed whole villages off the map, and recalls:

"When Germans blew up French villages or dropped bombs on London districts these same American newspapers boiled with indignation. It was a part of war—always cruel and savage—but fought by nationals who at least had the excuse of patriotism. In the case of these American soldiers of fortune there is no excuse except the joy of the man-hunt. It is royal sport, and the fact that women and children who have the misfortune to have been born in these Rifian villages are victims means no more than the death of rabbits when one hunts big game."

On the other hand, the American aviators in the Moroccan service assert that their conduct is perfectly proper, both from a legal and a moral view-point. According to an interview with a correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune, Lieut-Col. Charles Kerwood, second in command of the American air squadron, says the Americans are volunteers in the guard of the Sultan of Morocco, and the officer asserts that the members of the squadron have never received official news or even official intimation that their activities were against the policy of the American Government. On the contrary, Colonel Kerwood says that they have received constant assurances that their participation in the Moroccan campaign was being well received by the people at home. He recites that Ambassador Herrick had sent the Americans a message, saying that if he were only young enough he would be delighted to join them in the work they were doing. To quote from the interview:

"The American aviators, Colonel Kerwood said, at first were annoyed by the criticisms that they were bombing native villages in which there were women and children. In this regard and to show the extent of the operations of the American flyers, he said that for the last three weeks eight machines showed more than 420 flying hours, the planes leaving the camp as many as five times a day to embarrass enemy concentrations. Frequently, he said, it was necessary to bomb villages which the enemy used as shelters, but this was avoided whenever the Rifians could be caught in the open."

"We are convinced," he added, "that the claims of Abd-el-Krim are against the law as laid down in the international treaties. Even the American Government has raised no protest against this attitude. Therefore, we have decided that we have the same right, even if we belong to a non-European nation, to aid in preserving peace and order to any individual would have to go to the aid of a Paris policeman who had been attacked by a group of murderers and bandits, openly defying established laws."—Literary Digest.

Bandit and Detective

DIE-FIGHTING, THE LATTER FIRST KILLING THE FORMER.

MUSKOGON, Mich., Nov. 2.—The bandit slain here Saturday night, after he had shot and fatally wounded Charles Hammond, city detective, was positively identified to-day as Dutch Anderson, noted thug and pal of Gertrude, a local woman.

The identification was made to-day by finger prints.

Anderson went to his death fighting. So did Detective Hammond, who, although fatally wounded, wrested the revolver from the bandit's hand in an alley in the shadows of the police station and then killed Anderson with the latter's own weapon.

The arrest was made after Anderson, who had $2,200 in counterfeit $20 bills on his person, had passed one for a box of candy at the Colonial Club. Suspicious of the bill, the cashier sent her brother to the bank across the street. The bill was declared a counterfeit.

Hammond was detailed to pick the man up. Finding him in the Town's main business street, the detective told him to accompany him to the Police Station. Anderson walked beside him for several blocks and then slipped a revolver from his pocket, and shot twice, both of which went wild. He then ran into an alley back of the Police Station. Hammond followed, and Anderson fired at close range, the bullet passing through Hammond's hand. Hammond wrested the revolver from Anderson and fired a shot into his body. The bandit dropped, and the detective, exhausted by his wound, sagged against the wall as Patrolman George Thompson, attracted by the shot, ran to him.

"Get him, he got me," said Hammond.

Thompson fired a shot into Anderson's body as he tried to rise—but it was the bullet fired by Hammond from the notorious criminal's own gun that killed him.

American Prying

FRENCH JEWELLERS' INDIGNATION.

Paris Jewellers to-day registered a solemn protest against the inequitable methods of the United States Customs authorities.

It is alleged that United States agents claim the right to inspect the books of jewelers to ascertain the exact cost of jewels imported into the United States by Americans returning from Europe. It was also alleged that the United States Customs, through unofficial agents, advertised in the French newspapers offering rewards to employees who give them secret information as to purchases of jewels made in Paris by wealthy Americans.

The French Government will be asked to send a protest to Washington against such practices. It was also decided that private business books should not be shown.

STRONG MEMBER CARRIES OFF AGGRESSOR.

Herr Eckhardt, in the Hungarian Parliament defended himself against an attack because, as a member of the Anti-Jewish Congress now being held in Budapest, he sat at the same table with Rumanian anti-Hungarians like Herr Guss.

Herr Fabian, the Jewish deputy, frequently interrupted, saying that he and other Jews were in the battle-field, but Herr Eckhardt never.

Herr Fabian, the Jewish deputy, the anti-Jewish faction, lifted Herr Fabian by the ears, shouting: "You little Jew, will you not talk to me?" But the Socialist deputy Herr Paver, with herculean strength, lifted Herr Gombos bodily and carried him across the floor amid the wildest disorder. The sitting was suspended.

- The back and front of a Lux Package are each worth 50 votes

- The large Lantic Red Balls which you cut off a Lantic Sugar Package are worth 50 votes each, and as there are 2 on a package the package will give you . . . . . 100 Votes
- Every Sunlight Soap Wrapper is worth . . . . . 100 Votes

All other Soap Wrappers & Sugar Containers are Worth Nothing in the Pony Contest

Take care not to lose your votes through buying the wrong kind of Soap or Sugar. Lantic Sugar is the only sugar which will give you container votes. The 2 large Red Balls which you can cut off, will give you 50 votes each, or 100 votes for the two.

The only Soap Wrappers on which you can get votes are Swan Toilet Soap Wrappers and Sunlight Soap Wrappers. Lux is the only flaked soap which will give you votes. A Lux Package will give you 100 votes, 50 votes for the front and 50 for the back.

Hudson's Super-Soap Powder

Costs Only Three Cents a Package

The Front of a Hudson's Super-Soap Package is Worth 100 Votes

Hudson's Super-Soap Powder is best quality English Soap Powder; it contains no sand or lime. It's cheaper than soap for scrubbing floors, washing greasy dishes and dish cloths, windows, etc.

Each week while the Pony Contest is on, count your Sunlight and Swan Soap Wrappers, your Lux package fronts and backs, your Lantic Red Balls and your Hudson's Soap Powder package fronts. Put them in an envelope, mark on the envelope the number of votes it contains, write your name and address on the envelope and bring it to the Majestic Theatre. Then get busy collecting another lot of votes.

NOW LET US TELL YOU ABOUT THE THOUSAND EXTRA VOTES THAT YOU CAN GET WITH THE SWAN SOAP TICKET OR COUPON.

You will get a ticket or coupon each time you attend the Majestic Theatre; it may be a Swan ticket or some other one, but if you prefer to get a Swan Ticket take care to ask for it. Say "I want a Swan ticket, please!"

WHEN YOU GET THE SWAN SOAP TICKET, bring it with you to the shop where you buy Soap and Sugar. Buy a dollar's worth of Sunlight Soap, Swan Toilet Soap, Lux, Hudson's Soap Powder or Lantic Sugar, and your shopkeeper will fill in and sign the Swan Soap Ticket, giving you a thousand votes, which will be in addition to the votes you get on the wrappers. If you don't buy the dollar's worth of goods you won't get the extra thousand votes, but your wrappers and container votes will still count.

You won't have any trouble making up a dollar's worth of these goods. You can buy a cake of Swan Soap, it costs only 10 cents; it's a white floating toilet soap made by Lever Brothers, who are soap makers to His Majesty King George, so you see it must be a first class soap. Then a package of Lux costs only 10 cents; your mother knows how good Lux is. You will want Sunlight Soap as long as you live, so you can buy 3 cakes of Sunlight, it won't be wasted. You certainly will want a package of Hudson's Super-Soap Powder, it costs only 3 cents, and the empty package is worth 100 votes. Now you always want Sugar in your home, and 8 packages (2 lbs. each) of Lantic Granulated will just make up your dollar, or 2 packages of Lantic Granulated and 1 pound package of Lantic Icing will square off the dollar.

If you wish you can buy a dollar's worth of Sunlight Soap alone, or of Lantic Sugar, or you may buy any assortment you like, and you may give your grocer the ticket and buy 50 cents worth one week and 50 cents worth the following week, but your ticket is not worth 1000 votes until you buy the dollar's worth.

REMEMBER! When you buy any of the above articles a cake of Sunlight Soap or a 3 cent package of Hudson's Soap Powder, etc. you get the 100 votes for the wrapper, etc., and when you buy a dollar's worth of any assortment of the articles referred to in this advt. you get one thousand votes in addition to the wrapper and container votes.

The Prince of Wales' Homecoming.

Wonderful Welcome in Spite of Persistent Rain.

The wonderful reception given to the Prince of Wales on his return to London yesterday after an absence of more than six months was acknowledged by the King and Queen and the Prince in the following messages issued last night:—

Buckingham Palace,

October 1, 1925.

The warm-hearted affection of the welcome given to our dear Son in London to-day has greatly added to the joy and thankfulness which the Queen and I feel in his safe homecoming.

His return marks the completion of those missions to the different Dominions of the Empire undertaken six years ago, and including visits to the United States and South America. I know that the millions who have been associated with him in these many countries will join with us in thanking God for the protection granted to him and his companions in their eventful and world-wide travels.

(Signed) GEORGE R. I.

St. James's Palace, S.W.,

October 16, 1925.

The Prince of Wales wishes to thank the thousands of people who, despite the rain, gave him such a kind welcome, which he deeply appreciates, on his return to England to-day.

There was a family dinner-party at Buckingham Palace last night, consisting of the King and Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York, Prince Henry, Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles.

REPULSE'S ARRIVAL.

THE PRINCE OF "COMRADES IN A GREAT UNDERTAKING."

(By G. WARD PRICE.)

Grey sea, grey sky, two grey destroyers lying alongside, and, just visible through the grey mist, a long grey blur that stood for Southsea—that was the view from the bridge of the Repulse as she lay at anchor yesterday morning for two hours at Spithead.

After months and months of sunshine there was no mistaking England again—damp, dismal, but very dear to her returning sons. At 11 the bugle sounded, and the whole ship's company, officers and men, fell in on the fore-castle. There the Prince spoke to them, with unmistakable sincerity in his tone, of the happy voyage this had been and of the unbroken excellence of the impression the crew of the Repulse had made in all the countries where she touched.

They and he had been, he told them, comrades in a great undertaking, all engaged in the same duty, with functions that varied only in degree.

THE LAST FEW MILES.

At 11 o'clock the Repulse weighed anchor for the very last stage of her long voyage—the five or six miles that separated her from the railway jetty in Portsmouth harbour.

With her two escorting destroyers leading her in line, she steamed slowly towards the gap ahead that is England's most historic naval gateway.

From the bridge, where the Prince, with Admiral Halsey and Captain Dudley North, of his staff, and Captain Hope, commanding the Repulse, was standing out, of the compass-platform, Portsmouth made a splendid spectacle, more imposing than anything we had seen since we left it seven months ago.

Ahead the embrasures of the old stone forts were spitting flame and smoke in a 21-guns salute. Beyond towered the great grey mass of H.M.S. Benbow, ablaze with many-coloured flags. Over the roofs of the houses the square yards of the old Victory could be seen rising from her concrete berth, dressed over-all with buoys. Monitors, aircraft-carriers, and other strangely-shaped vessels spoke to the many-sidedness of British sea-power.

ON BRITISH SOIL AGAIN.

Now came into sight the shining wet jetty, and the Prince, who had been waving his gold-lace cap to the people on the balconies and terraces of the houses which, Venice-like, rise from the waters of Portsmouth Harbour, turned his glass on to the group of uniforms that made a patch of colour beside the crimson-covered "brow" waiting ready to be run on board as a gangway. His two brothers, the Duke of York and Prince Henry, he picked out at once; then, one by one, he named a string of personal friends he recognized.

Just before the Repulse glided alongside the pier the rain began to fall in torrents. The Duke of York and Prince Henry hurried up the gangway and went into the Prince's quarters. It was not for three-quarters of an hour that the Prince again appeared, but the well-drenched crowd of onlookers had still another cheer for him as hearty as before.

Nothing however, could equal in volume and vigour the three farewell cheers of the whole ship's company of the Repulse, massed on the quarter-deck, as the Prince's special train pulled out.

From Portsmouth up to London the journey continued under conditions that made it hard to realise the tour was over. Every station through which we passed at full speed showed the familiar flash of waving handkerchiefs, and the quick gasp of a flying cheer came from bridges overhead or level-crossings beneath us.

Victoria Station was as silent as a cathedral as we glided in.

After the shouting and cheering that the Prince has had on his long tour, this quiet and dignified arrival in London must have been very welcome to him.

There could be no room for doubt that, whatever we had seen on our travels, both in outward show and inward essence Britain, after all, is best.

ROYAL FAMILY GREETINGS AT VICTORIA.

Out of the drizzle-laden mists down the line the Prince's train from Portsmouth steamed into Victoria while the station lay strangely hushed and all within it thrilled expectantly. Impatient, it seemed, once again to feel the ground of London beneath his feet, the Prince stood in the doorway of his Pullman car, and those who waited caught there a first glimpse of his face, bronzed by many suns, glowing beneath his black and shining bearskin—for he wore the uniform of colonel of the Welsh Guards.

Smiling proudly as the King, who wore the uniform of Admiral of the Fleet, and very regal, albeit motherly, looked the Queen, who was dressed all in silver-grey that darkened or gleamed as she moved. Her joy at seeing the Prince, again proclaimed itself in her quick smile and the flush on her cheeks when at last the train came to a standstill and the smiling prince stepped out, and somewhere in the background rang out the sharp order, "Royal salute!" and long grey lines of Grenadier Guards made a flash of lightning with their bayonets and the gold and scarlet standard dropped.

HANDSHAKES AND KISSES.

From clasping the King's hand the Prince turned at once to the Queen and kissed her on both cheeks—and very fondly the Queen kissed him on both cheeks.

There were so many waiting to kiss him and shake his hand that the Prince hesitated a moment in perplexity and excitement; then he saw Princess Mary Viscountess Lascelles and embraced her, and then he saw, peepily shyly out of a little blue hat, a very rosy, smile-dimpled face, and to it he quickly strode and kissed the dainty Duchess of York.

Now the bandmen of the Guards, concealed from view, struck up "God Bless the Prince of Wales," so for a moment or two the Prince needed his right hand for saluting purposes. As the last note died away, however, that right hand became exceedingly busy again.

It was wrong very heartily by the Duke of Connaught, whose happy laughter as he talked with the Prince shook the white plumes of his field-marshal's hat. Prince Arthur of Connaught and Viscount Lascelles also gave his hand a very enthusiastic shake, and then the Prince offered it, with a broad smile, to Mr. Baldwin, Earl Beatty and a score more, including those who welcomed him on behalf of the foreign Powers.

An Indian in an emerald-green turban bowed low over the hand as he took it, and he flashed the Prince a friendly smile.

THE CROWD'S WELCOME.

At last the welcomings were at an end, the guard of honor was reviewed, and the command "Royal Salute" rang out again. The Standard dipped to the ground and bayonets glistened, and up pranced the horses which drew the royal carriage. Into this stepped the King, the Prince, the Duke of York, and Prince Henry, and the drive to Buckingham Palace was begun. The escort of Life Guards smartly moved into position on either side, and, passing through guards of honor of Yeomanry, St. John Ambulance, and Boy Scouts, the carriage swept into rain and mist-velled London—and now London saw the Prince.

The shout that rose then and the cheers that rolled about the Prince and echoed among the tall buildings of Buckingham Palace—road rumbled back into the station, with the sound of a booming sea.

"WE WANT THE PRINCE!"

As the crowd waited outside the Palace after the Prince's arrival they shouted out with voices of determination: "We want the Prince!"—and now they had him before them.

As the roar of cheering continued, the Prince, looking out with deep pleasure at the enormous crowd, lifted his hand to his forehead in salute again and again.

At last the Royal Family began to leave the balcony. Just before the Prince turned away he lifted up his bearskin twice in greeting to the crowd—a happy gesture which aroused a fresh roar of delighted cheering.

A little later the Royal Family came out again to the balcony—this time to wave their own greeting to the Prince. As he drove out into the front courtyard of the Palace in an open carriage, accompanied by an escort of Life Guards on his way to York House, they gaily waved their hands to him, and, looking upwards to them, gallantly lifted his bearskin in response.

Prosperity in British Building Industry

When so much that is pessimistic in regard to industrial conditions is coming over from Great Britain, it may be worth while to take cognizance of the facts about one industry which is said to be flourishing—that is the building industry, according to information received by Bankers Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service. The building industry in Great Britain is experiencing a prosperous year, not only in the metropolis but throughout the country, with the possible exception of the shipbuilding areas and certain parts of the coal fields. Although building costs remain high, the latest report of the Inter-Departmental Committee, appointed by the Ministry of Health, after a survey of prices of building materials shows that there have been appreciable changes in prices in building materials since 1924. Some materials have increased a little in cost, but others have decreased in price, and on the whole it has been possible during the past 12 months to secure prospective building owners that final costs would not be much in excess of the original estimates. The price level, however, is so high to enable economic housing schemes to be undertaken for the accommodation of the poorer grades of the population, and yet with government assistance some 330,000 houses suited to the working classes have been erected in recent years, and contracts have been made for 55,000 more houses, while a further 73,000 have been authorized. Many houses of a comparatively small type, under $25 a year taxable value, have been built without any subsidy at all from the taxpayer during the past two years. In fact, since the beginning of 1923 no fewer than 160,000 houses have been built in England and Wales by unaided private enterprise. Many small builders have been making substantial profits out of building houses for sale, and some have not troubled even to claim a subsidy, as they did not wish to be annoyed with official forms and limitations.

Building in London has been of a very improved character due to the fact that within the last few years leaseholders have been falling in, and this has made it possible for the owners of the land to make new leases, and in connection therewith to require an improved form of building construction. This is said to be particularly true of the streets Regent, Piccadilly and Oxford Streets, where new construction has almost entirely changed the former appearance of the streets. This reconstruction has brought about a revolution in building, and has led to the use of steel in many ways. It has also caused the British architects and builders to adopt many of the methods which have for some time been so successfully used in the United States. It is hoped that for such construction it may be possible to develop a rustless material of this kind which is expected to present opportunities to engineers and architects to design buildings possessing elements of novel beauty and capacity.

In connection with house building many interesting experiments are being made. A number of houses are being built of steel plates, on light steel frames, and insulated by the use of a core of cork, covered with granite. In another group houses of cast iron are being erected and as 11 tons of pig iron are used in each house it is expected that should this method become popular it will mean a decided stimulus to the iron industry.

The building boom, if it may be so called, has helped many other subsidiary industries, such as the manufacturers of light castings, manufacturers of sanitary ware, and particularly the manufacturers of brick. It is stated that compared with 3,000 million bricks manufactured in England and Wales before the war, there are now 6,000 million bricks being made each year. One of the most encouraging signs of the present situation has been the decision of various branches of the trade, manufacturers of building materials, employers and others, to co-operate in research. This movement of co-ordination, if continued, is expected to result in the future, in more economical working and the greater prosperity of the building industry, which is one of the three largest industries in England.

Secondary School "Tabel"

Lord Justice Fry, Minister of Education, distributing the prizes at the Trinity County School, Wood Green, N., said there was a considerable tendency to regard secondary education as merely a means of getting out into the world with a secondary school label.

There was a danger of a form of snobbery growing up in the way of saying that only the professions involved brain work. He wanted them to steer clear of that and to choose as a definite aim whatever they could do for the good of the country.

By Ruth Cameron.

WHAT'S WORSE THAN RUDENESS!

How most of us do hate to be patronized!

I do think it is almost easier to forgive the rudeness of a person who shows frankly, and with no pretence of kindness, that he feels superior to you than the kindly condescending manner of a person who asserts his superiority by patronage.

Personally, I don't so much mind being ignored. It is quite understandable to me that many people I meet have no room for more in their lives. And I don't so awfully mind being looked down on. If I don't think the people have any reason to, it just amuses me and I retaliate by looking down on them. And if I do think they have reason, then I don't blame them.

But Oh, how I hate to be patronized!

"How Will You Trade?"

And I have found that a great many people share that feeling. A man I know who does not harbor many grudges surprised me the other day by showing his dislike of a man who in my slight acquaintance with him seemed very amiable to me. The reason was this. When my friend had his first little car, a flyover, the other man had just bought a big powerful machine and when they met at the railroad station one day he showed off his new purchase to the flyover owner and said with jovial condescension: "How will you trade?" The condescending patronage bit deep. That was several years ago. My friend has the better car now—and what's more, he's right to have it,—and there's nothing he enjoys more than passing the patronizer on the road.

She Wouldn't Be Rude For Worlds.

A woman who had come recently to the city where I had lived for several years, joined a club to which I had belonged almost ever since it was formed. She is one of those impressive gracious women with a maddeningly kindly manner toward those whom she considers inferiors. She wouldn't be rude to anyone in the world, but she would be so graciously condescending that most people would infinitely prefer rudeness. And her kindnesses took the form, in my case, of offering me guest tickets to my club. It took me years to get over that and other acts of patronage, and to realize there was really much of fineness and value behind that unfortunate instinct to patronize.

Everyone Feels Superior.

I have been told that the hardest thing in charitable work is to find workers who can go into people's homes and not have the slightest trace of patronage in their manner. I don't doubt it. I always loved the story of the social worker who when she bluntly asked: "Does your husband drink?" was bluntly answered: "No, does yours?"

It's hard not to patronize if you feel superior. And since most of us do feel superior to someone, it behooves us all to make sure that we avoid patronizing as sedulously as we avoid being patronized.

As Little Jack Rabbit was hopping home from the Circus Elephant's log cabin, where he had spent the night, as I mentioned in the last story, whom should he meet but Mrs. Bear. Under her arm she carried a big basket filled with honey jars. She was on her way to the Three-in-One Cent Store in Rabbitville. Maybe I have forgotten to tell you, Little Reader, that the Big Brown Bear had 20 beehives. Yes, sir. All the bees in the Sunny Meadow worked for him. Many a time when the sweet juice, had faded, they would come up to the Lollipop Tree that grew close to the Big Brown Bear's Cave House to feast on the sweet lollipops.

"I don't care if they eat a few lollipops," the kind old bear would say, as the bees buzzed and hummed about his precious tree. "They give me more than half of all their honey. Many a dollar the Three-in-One Cent Store has paid me for the honey I've sold."

"Hello, little Hippy Hop," said Mrs. Bear, on seeing the bunny boy. "I'm going to the store. Want to come along?"

Of course the little rabbit answered yes, just like that, quick as the wind that blows off your hat, and the next minute he and the kind lady bear were hurrying down the Winding Trail through the Shady Forest, which wasn't shady any more. No, sires. Trees have few leaves in November. But the little Furry Coated Forest Folk didn't care. The squirrels and chipmunks had stored away enough nuts to last them through the cold winter. Chippy Chipmunk's store room down under the ground was crammed full with nuts and kernels of yellow corn. Oh yes, he was well supplied with food.

Squirrel Nutcracker's nest little bungalow in the hollow of the Big Chestnut tree was also well stocked. Not only his bungalow, but many a hollow in the ground was filled with nuts and covered with leaves and moss.

"Where's Mr. Bear this morning?" enquired the bunny boy, as he hopped along, clipperty-clip, Hippy Hop, by the side of the good lady bear. When Mrs. Bear was in a hurry she was a fast walker, and the little rabbit didn't want to lag behind, so he hopped along at a good pace.

"He's out with Buster and Bouncer looking for firewood," answered Mrs. Bear. "He thinks we shall have a cold winter and so is making sure that we have enough fuel to keep us warm."

"Ha, ha," laughed the little rabbit, our woodpile is as high as a haystack. Uncle Lucky always sends us a load of wood and when the Yellow Dog Tramp pays us a visit, he chops it up into kindling. Dear me, I haven't been home this morning. I wonder who brought in the kindling for mother?"

"I did," all of a sudden shouted a voice, and there stood the Yellow Dog Tramp, a tattered straw hat on his head and an old hickory stick in his right paw.

There stood the Yellow Dog Tramp, a tattered straw hat on his head. "As I passed the Bramble patch I heard your mother draw the latch. Then on the little porch she stood And asked me to bring in the wood," sang that kind old dog. He was a poet, Little Reader. Yes, he had spent so many years in the woods listening to the songs of birds that he found it no trouble whatever to speak in rhyme. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Mr. Churchill's Reply

TO BUDGET CRITICS.

Mr. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, during a tour of his constituency, said at the Memorial Hall, Woodford, that the denunciation of the Government by its political opponents formed only a poor lot compared with the abuse lavished by newspapers which supported the Party at the election and ought to have been a little more steadfast in their support now.

Referring to the silk tax Mr. Churchill said he had always looked upon silk rather in the nature of a luxuriant adornment, but, of course, when a tax was put upon it it became the commonest piece of necessary underwear. The import duty on artificial silk had been paid up to the present by the foreign importer. (A Voice: "And always will be.")

Mr. Churchill added that if he were spared, physically and politically, to introduce another Budget, he hoped next year to be able to rub the noses of the critics in an abundant pool of indisputable facts. (Laughter and cheers.) The Government had given effect to Imperial Preference without in any way taxing the basic food of the people.

Sept 16, 1905, v. 1, n.

Dear Mrs. Housekeeper:

Far too little attention in this Country is paid to the prevention of disease. We wait until someone in the house is ill and then say "I wonder how he got that." Mr. Meehan, in his address to the Rotary Club rightly stressed the dangers of the house flies. Now there are places in which you cook and in which you sleep. The walls are probably papered. Besides the flies which wander over these walls, there are numerous germs which make their homes there. If you were to paint part of these walls and rub with two different swabs moistened with sterile water and squeeze out into plates of agar sugar, in which germs easily multiply, you would find a POSITIVE BACTERIAL GROWTH FROM THE UNPAINTED AREA whilst the PAINTED AREA WOULD SHOW A NEGLIGIBLE GROWTH. Realizing these facts, you should lose no time in coating all your walls with "MATCH-LESS" Oil Paints which can be washed, and thus ensure the health of your family.

Yours faithfully,

The Standard Manufacturing Co., Limited.

A "NEW TERROR"

Is a Judge at a boxing contest within his rights in ordering a second away from the ring? The question is being hotly debated in fighting circles as the result of the action taken by Mr. J. W. H. T. Douglas at the National Sporting Club recently, when he ordered one of Mick Hill's seconds out of the building because of his failure to stop talking. It is, of course, within the referee's discretion to issue any kind of instruction he pleases, but for a judge, who apparently is appointed to score points for and against the law into his own hands, is entirely novel. Boxers are already referring to the introduction as a "new terror."

GERMANS FOR WIMBLEDON.

Following the Security Pact Treaty of Locarno, an attempt is to be made to remove the ban upon German and other enemy lawn tennis players from taking part in English tournaments. This ban has existed since the war.

BACK TO THE RING.

There is every possibility that Joe Beckett and Jack Bloomfield, both former heavyweight champions of Great Britain, will return to the ring within the next few months. It is also quite likely that Georges Carpentier, before his trip to America, will make another appearance in a London hall. He is known to be anxious to try himself out.

BAN ON BOXING PROMOTER.

Strong action has been taken by the British Boxing Board of Control regarding the manner in which Mr. Harry Brown, the promoter of the Brown-Mason contest at the Royal Albert Hall, treated the referee, Mr. Moss Deyong.

At a meeting of the board at the National Sporting Club a resolution was passed that no certificated referee should officiate in future at any tournament promoted by Mr. Jacobs.

Following Mr. Deyong's decision in favour of Brown, which caused great uproar, Mr. Jacobs from the ring said: "No one can tell what is passing through a referee's mind. Moss Deyong will never referee for me again."

The World's Best Cakes

"MADE IN ENGLAND"

If Scotland were called the "Land of Oat Cakes" no Englishman could object, for certainly Scottish oat cakes are the best in the world. But for North Britain to assume that her people make more or better cakes than English people is absurd.

It is true that one of the finest of rich cakes is called the Dundee, but wherever that cake originated, the best are made in London. And look at the number of places in England with their own special cakes. Sherburny or Grimald cakes have been popular for generations; Banbury cakes are mentioned in the "Treatise of Melancholie," published three hundred and forty years ago. Then, too, those triangular ginger confections known as Court cakes have been made at Congleton for many years.

Bath's Famous Buns.

George III. was one of several Royal personages who delighted in the Bath delicacies known as Maids of Honour, and a supply was sent each week for Windsor. One thousand pounds was paid for the recipe during the eighteenth century. If Bath had never done anything else except produce the Bath bun, that in itself would have been enough to make the ancient city well known.

Scarborough appears to have been the original home of the Sinner cake, the best of all rich cakes.

The best wedding cakes are made in this country, and English wedding cakes are exported to every part of the world.

Wesley Church Notes
At both services yesterday timely and appropriate sermons were delivered on the subject of the "Christian Church and the World's Peace." In the morning, Rev. J. G. Joyce spoke from the words of "The Angels' Message." "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will towards men," and at the evening service, Rev. E. C. French delivered a very able sermon from Micah 3rd chap. 4th verse: "And they shall beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning hooks, neither shall the nations learn war any more." He referred to the observance of Armistice Day this week when the nation will commemorate with exultant joy the victory won by our brave men. But a critical hour is before Europe and the world at large, in an endeavour to ensure peace for a surely troubled world. Keenest thinkers tell us there is only one force, the only one power can save us now and always in the future from the awful horrors and devastating ruin of war, and that power is unity of the Christian Church. The charge laid in 1914 was that the Church should have prevented it, and the greatest compliment now paid it is that it holds the key to the peace of the world for the future. The same thing applies to Newfoundland. In the struggle to secure it, the churches, particularly one branch, need every effort, but enforcement became very halfhearted, because it was said the churches did not support the measure, but the church must again rouse itself and stand four square for right and prohibition. She can use her mighty power of protest against intemperance and war, the two greatest evils that curse humanity with its trail of crime and suffering. The reverend gentleman then referred to the inspiring promise made to Joshua, the successor of Moses, "I will not fail thee. There shall not be any man able to stand against thee." That promise was fulfilled and if one man was irresistible, what of the unlimited power of the Christian Churches. The preacher then looked back and recounted the struggles of the early colonists of America and later the abolition of slavery through Lincoln and others, and reiterated the point that the church must create that mind and resolve to bring about international peace and lift up her voice now in strongest terms in protest against war, and use all its forces to plant deep the barriers that will make it impossible for such bloodshed and waste of life and property ever to occur again. Think of the funerals of the shattered and mangled men that have taken place in this city during the last six years. A quotation from a very graphic address by General Jan Smuts in London a few years ago gave added emphasis to the speaker's impassioned oration, and his closing words were: "Let us pray earnestly that the time may come when the nations shall beat their swords into pruning hooks and an era of peace, the golden age may come, when the Peace of Peace shall see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied." The anthem was also in accord with the subject of the day and well sung, Mrs. Vey taking the soprano solo, the rearrangement of the seating of the altos and grouping of the sopranos being carried out by suggestion of "listeners in." There was a large number of outport friends present, and we are glad to hear that many miles away the timid and lonely folks that are isolated at Higgons, etc., are hearing the preacher's words of sage and taking part in the worship of God through radio.—A.W.M.

Obituary
DAVID M. DEMPSEY.
In the almost sudden demise last week of Mr. David Dempsey, the city has lost a valuable citizen of that type who in his every action his word was as good as his bond. Mr. Dempsey was only ill a day or two but according to medical advice had been a long time suffering from an affection of the heart which seriously impaired his physical condition and left him unable to resist the illness which prematurely ended his life.
David Dempsey was a true gentleman in every sense of the word. Possessed of a strong sense of loyalty to his religious principles, he invariably maintained a firm standard of honesty in his business dealings and was esteemed highly by all with whom he came in contact. Born fifty-two years ago in Bay Roberts, he moved to the city when quite a young man and engaged in the coopering business with his father until about fifteen years ago when he conducted a large coopership on his own account. Though quiet and unassuming he had a host of intimate friends, many of whom bitterly mourn his unexpected demise. For over a quarter of a century he was prominently identified with the B.I.S. and Star of the Sea Societies and at his death a Guard of Honor followed his remains to the graveyard.

Three Big Features at the Majestic To-Night
Renowned Dancer (Female); Mind-Reader (Male); and a Big Film Feature.
Everything is all set for the big show at the Majestic Theatre to-night, as will be noted by to-day's advertisement elsewhere. Seldom have such spectacular attractions been offered at one time in any Theatre in this city.
The principal, Miss Rita Johnson, is known throughout Canada and America as the Champion International Dancer. Miss Johnson holds the supreme position in her profession, and is in great demand throughout the theatrical and movie world. To-night the people of St. John's will have an opportunity of witnessing the artist's capabilities.
Second in consideration is MEM-OR-REA, the man who is supposed to possess a thousand minds. This man has been challenged, exposed, by noted experts who failed to prove their assertion that he cannot tell you anything you are thinking of. The public are not to be alarmed at this statement, inasmuch as that MEM-OR-REA will not make public his readings unless requested to do so by the individuals in the audience.
The third big item, whilst not the least, is a feature picture "Fools in The Docks," starring Estay, Ruth Miller, whose fame as a film star needs no further comment, excepting that the picture in itself is perhaps the best we have seen here. Altogether, the show is well above the average and

The Women's Vote
Dear Sir,—I notice by an advertisement inserted in this morning's News by T. J. Moran, Returning Officer, that qualifications for a woman voter are: "Every woman of 25 years and upwards, who is owner, occupier, tenant or lessee, and paying rental of $40.00 or over, has the right to vote provided they are not indebted to the City for arrears in taxes."
I beg to point out that under the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921, Section 3, the qualifications of electors are set forth as follows:
"All British subjects of the age of 21 years and upwards, who have been resident in the City for One Year immediately preceding the Election; and are owners, lessees, tenants or occupiers of property rated on the Assessment Books of the City, or who are liable to pay Poll Tax, and are not indebted to the St. John's Municipal Council for any arrears of taxes, and are duly enrolled on the Voters' List, and are not disqualified by mental incapacity."
I therefore fail to see how the age can be stated in the advertisement, viz.: 25 years and the payment of rental of $40.00. I obtained legal advice on this point and was informed that possibly the new Act enfranchising the women for General Elections in which the age is set forth as 25 years has been taken in error for the Municipal Election. Under Section 16 of the St. John's Municipal Act respecting elections, it is set forth that Municipal Elections shall be held and conducted as nearly as circumstances will permit in the same manner as for the House of Assembly, but this Section, I take it, covers the conduct of the Election and does not effect the qualifications of the voter. I submit that this matter should be looked into more carefully, as the qualifications as set forth in the advertisement would disenfranchise a great number of women.
Yours truly,
W. D. McCARTHER.
