There can be no doubt as to the way in which the Church of England will exercise its authority...

Now that the fate of the Reserves is decided beyond recall, it may perhaps be worth while to review some of the chief causes which led to the agitation for their secularization.

Of those who, being strict voluntaries, are not in any religious objections upon principle...

But the voluntaries on principle compose a decided minority of the community. They are repeatedly admitted by secularizationists...

It is perfectly evident that the Globe and other journals, such as the Examiner, which follow the leadership of Mr. Brown...

The state-churchmen appear to have tricked us at every turn of the present time, but we trust that the opposition in parliament will arrange some plan by which a measure so infamously distorted from its original purpose may be carried before it...

Now, let us see what the Canadian's argument amounts to. The state-churchmen say, "there has been some confusion caused by two versions of the communion clause in the Clergy Reserves bill..."

No one knows better than the Globe that these remarks of the Canadian are unadulterated nonsense. Just as the same, as would make an ordinary journalist who might inadvertently utter it ashamed of himself as long as he lived.

Upon one or two points we are glad to find that the ministry have been compelled to give way to the pressure from within and that the bill, though very far from perfect, is somewhat improved.

Now, in the first place, it will be seen, that the Globe says that the amendments in the Bill provide that individual Clergy alone can commute; and it is a matter of gratulation to us...

It is this that the "strong influence of the opposition," compelled the changes were just or otherwise. This is a point to which we desire the special attention of the country.

Now, in the first place, it will be seen, that the Globe says that the amendments in the Bill provide that individual Clergy alone can commute; and it is a matter of gratulation to us...

By the telegraph reports we were led to believe that some of the objections of Upper Canada Reformers to the Reserve Bill of the Communion Clause had been met by amendments...

Lord Palmerston had arrived in Paris, and had had interviews with the Emperor Louis Napoleon. Lord Dudley Stuart died at Stockholm, November 17.

On the evening of the 21st of November Messrs. Richardson, Senne & Co. report cotton fully 4 1/2 lower on the week; sales 6000 bales yesterday, and to-day 4000 do.; 2000 in the two days being for export.

The corn trade continues dull. A limited amount was done in wheat and flour at the quotations of Friday last. The quality of the new English flour is not mixed, which tends to restrict the market for it.

counts the exact state of the case; but it seems that the British had on the 23rd advanced within 300 yards of the Russian works. It appears certain, likewise, that extensive damage had been done to the fortifications of Sebastopol...

The reports from the English manufacturing districts show an active and a cheerful trade. At Birmingham in the iron market purchases could in some cases be made on reduced terms.

The alarm in England seems to be subsiding as to the position of the allied armies in the Crimea. A winter in the campaign in the Crimea will evidently take place, and wooden barracks for the winter are being supplied by the British Government.

Arrival of the "Union." The United States mail steamship Union, Capt. Adams, arrived last night, at 10 o'clock, bringing 4 days late news from Europe, having left Havre on the 21st ult., and Southampton on the 22nd.

The United States mail steamship Union, Capt. Adams, arrived last night, at 10 o'clock, bringing 4 days late news from Europe, having left Havre on the 21st ult., and Southampton on the 22nd.

Both armies had completed their 3rd parallel, which were connected together by means of a trench. The allies were obliged to form communications with the rear of the 7th and 21st divisions.

Further details of the battle of the 5th Nov. recalled the battle of the Inkermann, had been recalled by the arrival of the steamer Telemachus forced by the Russians to the 3rd parallel.

The French had one general killed and two wounded; 14 officers killed, and 21 wounded. The Russians, it is said, fired on the wounded as well as the detachments sent out to bury the dead.

The French accounts state that every thing was preparing for the assault, but was entirely postponed to postpone it until the arrival of reinforcements.

On the 7th the Russians were pouring large masses from the north, and reinforcements were required. The French accounts state that every thing was preparing for the assault, but was entirely postponed to postpone it until the arrival of reinforcements.

10th with Admiral Assan Pacha and 700 men, as previously reported. Napoleon's letter to the French troops in the Crimea says, a powerful diversion is to be made in Bessarabia.

Count Orloff, who is or was in the confidence of the Czar, is on a tour through Switzerland and Italy. Mahmood Pacha, the Ex-Minister of Marine, is banished.

It was reported at Kiel on the 23rd, by a telegraph despatched there on the 19th or 20th, that a portion of the Russian fleet left Heligoland and captured 2 British cruisers in the Gulf of Finland.

The departure of the British Fleet was further postponed to December 4. The navigation of the Gulf of Finland is still open—very little ice from Sweborg to Cronstadt.

The British Fleet is still in Kiel bay. A despatch from Vienna, dated 20th, says it is now affirmed that Austria has accepted, with some slight alterations, the propositions contained in the Russian note of the 16th.

Bavaria has announced her accession to the policy of Austria in the Oriental question, and promised her support in the German diet. If this be correct, the policy of Austria can hardly be that of the Allied Powers.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS, Nov. 28.—Corn trade very dull; white wheat 12s 6d to 12s 9d; yellow corn 4s 6d to 4s 9d. Demand for beef more active—stock lower than for several years.
