Dear Sir Arthur

When I met you here on your victorious return from the front; you were good enough to say that you had known of me and my work, I appreciated that very much - as I enjoyed your great address at the Canadian Club in the Hotel Vancouver.

I would be very grateful if you would read the enclosed in regard to the proposed filming of my book "Policing The Plains" which is looked upon by men who know, as the last word on this great subject.
You will note the reviews (attached) in Ottawa have bought 100 copies for their detachments all over the Dominion.

We in Canada have been crying out for films and pictures under our own flag - and about our own people. There is an opportunity for men whose patriotism is worth while. I think this would be a good investment in every sense. - It would appeal to the heroic element in our young people. There are scores of men in Montreal in your circle that could invest a few thousands without any effort - and you could reach them. Bringable

To quote a few names like your own and others would help the Company - if men knew that you had interest in it. The shares are $100 each.

I am not on the financial side of this but I would like to see it Capt. Harwood Steele is mainly the man trying to put it through at my request. I hope he will make something out of it. His father Sir Sam B.
Steele died in poverty in England after 42 years of service. Lady Steele has a very small pension.

My people colonised this western land 110 years ago - we have worked and fought for it - but have not made anything out of it; Men and women who are in big business should not forget the pathfinders - Personally I am used to frugal living but I would like to make this contribution to the country's life

Yours very sincerely

CANADIAN FILMS.

It has long been a subject of regret and of some surprise that more enterprise has not been exhibited by Canadians in producing national moving pictures. With unrivalled scenery, a history exceptionally romantic, teeming with adventure, pathos and thrilling incident, all the ingredients for gripping pictorial dramatization are present, and yet this rich field has remained practically neglected, and we are dependent on alien producers, out of touch with the genius of the country.

At last a real attempt is to be made to remedy this defect. The Canadian Historic Features, of Vancouver, are about to produce a "made-in-Canada" film, which ought to supply the long-felt want. The subject chosen for the first experiment is founded upon the Rev. R.G. MacBeth's well-known book, "Policing the Plains," the graphic story of the North-West Mounted Police, which has been read and admired by all who love their country and its institutions and has received the highest praise from literary critics. Mr. MacBeth wrote from an intimate personal knowledge, and has produced a book of absorbing interest.

The story of the Mounted Police, as it will be presented in the picturization of this narrative, is the story of the settlement and growth of Western Canada. It is a topic which appeals to young and old alike, an epic of courage, of endurance, of virile achievement. The dangers and tragedies of the early days, the noble accomplishment of the great pioneers, the railway builders, the gold-seekers; the suppression of rebellion and the tracking down of criminals - it may well be believed, as the prospectus claims, that such things "properly portrayed as a living panorama, with the Mounted Police as the central figures, will dwarf into insignificance the fictional productions."

It is hoped that other works of prime interest to Canadians will be produced later, and all will wish for the success of the enterprise. If the company holds to its intention to produce a series of educational films of this character, presenting authentic history in a manner to entertain and impress itself on the minds of the audiences, it will be doing a serviceable work for cinema patrons, and at the same time will be contributing a to an important national movement. We have been too long fed from extraneous sources, and are becoming surfeited with that kind of diet.

My dear Reverend MacBeth:-

Let me acknowledge receipt of your letter of July 12th.

I am very glad a project is on foot to use your book "Policing the Plains" as a basis for a film. I can imagine nothing from a Canadian point of view more interesting or more inspiring. Even outside of Canada I am sure such a film would be very acceptable and I wish Mr. Steele all success in his efforts to give such a film to the public.

The making of these films is, of course, a very costly project. It is not a matter of a few thousands, but a matter of many tens of thousands and I cannot imagine any set of business men taking it up unless they were in such a business, nor would men invest money in the project if the idea were to make this film and this film alone. There are, of course, many wealthy men in Montreal who give most liberally and generously to all charitable and patriotic endeavour. This, though, is not a patriotic thing and would be regarded solely as a business venture and Capt. Steele would have to impress them with the merits of the scheme. I remember him very well and I am sure I wish you both every success, for the project is a worthy one and ought to succeed.

Yours faithfully,

Principal.

Dear Sir Arthur

I am grateful for your kindly letter, and appreciate your good wishes as expressed therein.

I still think, however, that this film is a patriotic project. It is intended that this Company shall put other historical and educational films on the screen. It is about time we ceased from being dependent on the United States for our films and for the interpretation of our history as taught by the screen.

Also, in other cities like Ottawa and Winnipeg and Sault-St. Marie ordinary business men, in their public spirit, have gone into the motion picture undertaking. But there were no pictures with such a prospect as this one with sincere personal regard

Yours faithfully

R. G. MacBeth
