FRENCH AND AMERICANS MAKE ADDITIONAL GAINS; SENSATIONAL HUN PLOT UNVEILED IN NEW YORK; LLOYD GEORGE SAYS THE ALLES ARE CONFIDENT

If Allies Fail It Will Be Sorry World To Live In—Lloyd-George

Premier in Address To London Printers' Society Said That One of Most Encouraging Things Was Superb Valor and Trained Skill With Which Americans Have Taken Their Part in Struggle and Defeated Foe.

It Is Impossible To Exaggerate Importance of the Significance of the Issues With Which We Are Confronted—Fate of World, Destinies of Men and Lives of Generations Would Be Fashioned By Our Failure or Triumph.

London, June 7.—Premier David Lloyd George, in replying to a toast to the success of the Entente Allied armies at the dinner of the Printers' Society of London tonight, said that Britishers have made unsurpassed sacrifices for a great purpose and a high ideal.

One of the most encouraging things, the premier continues, was the "superb valor and the trained skill with which the Americans have taken their part in the struggle and defeated the foe. It is a most encouraging thing, because there has been a great flow of those troops and we were depending on them."

If for any cause the Allies fail to succeed it will be a sorry world to live in, Mr. Lloyd George said.

"It is impossible to exaggerate the importance or the significance of the issues with which we are confronted today," he declared.

"The fate of the world, the destinies of men and the lives of generations would be fashioned by the failure or triumph of our cause.

An Anxious Time. "If the Prussians should succeed today, they would fling back civilization into the dark dungeons of the past. We are paying a big price, a big price, for victory, but the sum total of human wretchedness which has been paid will not equal in value that which we are defending. We are passing through an anxious day and the crisis is not yet past, but with stout hearts we shall win through and then we will be free. In the interest of civilization, in the interest of the human race, it must be stamped out. You cannot allow it to come again to darken the lives of millions and desolate millions of homes."

Gallant Americans. "In his reference to the Americans, the premier said: 'I have just returned from France where I met a French statesman who had been at the battle front soon after an engagement where the Americans fought. He was full of admiration, not merely for their superb valor, but the trained skill with which they attacked and defeated the foe. His report of the conduct of the American troops, a division which had been in action for the first time, was one of the most encouraging things that I have heard. We know that whenever they appear in the battle line they will fight in a way worthy of the great traditions of their great country. This is in itself a source of support, sustenance and encouragement to all those who with anxious hearts are watching the conflict going on in France.'

A Great Crisis. "In conclusion Premier Lloyd George said: 'We have faced a great crisis. We have heard Von Ludendorff's threat of hammer blows. Hammer blows would crush poor metal, but they harden and consolidate good metal. There is good metal in British hearts and it has stood the test of centuries. It will stand this, so will that gallant people across the channel who are fighting for the honor of their native land.'

La Belle France. "I never saw a sign of wavering in any French face. They are full of courage and determination, and it is a united France more than ever. 'Unity and resolution are two qualities we need. We have sunk our political differences. We have bigger things to think about. These controversies will come again, but for the moment we have one purpose. 'Let us to one people, one in aim, one in courage, and the resolve never to give in. Let Britain stand like a great breakwater against this torrent of God willing, we will break the force.'

ANGLICANS HIT AT BIG PROFITEERS

Production For Unrestricted Private Profit Morally Wrong, Declares Rev. Dr. W. K. Clarke.

Toronto, June 7.—Popular indignation with pork packers and millers was mentioned in the Toronto Anglican Synod today. It followed naturally upon the section of the social service report dealing with social research. "Your committee finds," said the report, "that in politics, in economics, in industry, in society, there is a growing demand for the substitution of the ideas of co-operation and service for those of competition and greed as a foundation upon which a stable foundation may be built up."

"We are in the midst of a changing economic and social order," declared Rev. Dr. W. K. Clarke, "What does all this indignation with pork packers and millers mean? It means that we are becoming conscious that production for unrestricted private profit is morally wrong, and where one is making profit millions are suffering loss—loss in money and loss in restricted life."

TURKS TAKE TOWNS

Washington, June 7.—A force of Turks, estimated at five thousand, in northwest Persia, have occupied several towns north of Lake Urmiah and the village of Saubulugh, south of Lake Urmiah, said advices reaching Washington today. The road from Tabriz to Urmiah has been closed.

SEVERAL VILLAGES TAKEN BY U. S. AND FRENCH SOLDIERS

Situation Last Night Showed Almost Complete Stabilization of Enemy's Advance Line Between The Aisne and The Marne—Americans and French Capture Veully La Poterie, Bligny and Bouresches—Germans Wait For More Artillery—No Further Attempt Against Rheims.

Special Cable to New York Tribune and St. John Standard. (By Hilaire Belloc).

London, June 7.—The situation this evening shows an almost complete stabilization of the enemy's advance line between the Aisne and the Marne. The enemy having brought in to date about fifty divisions hasn't for two days showed any fresh troops.

The American infantry, brigaded with French infantry at one point, has gone forward where the enemy advance was most threatened, half way between Chezy and Torcy. The accuracy of the American gunnery is especially to be noted. The total pushing back of the enemy at this point was about two-thirds of a mile. The interest of the action lies not in its extent, which was slight, but in the increasing presence of American troops and in the enemy suffering for the first time since May 27 from counter pushing on the south side of this salient.

The enemy has made no further attempts against Rheims, but rather, less than half way between that town and the Marne he made an attack on Bligny and captured the village, which was later retaken by British counter-attacks. A much more violent effort a few miles to the south at Champlot failed with over half the enemy lost.

In general the fronts for the moment are as fully established on the eastern side of the salient as on the western. We must remember, however, that this is the twelfth day since the attack on the front between Soissons and Rheims began. It is too early for the enemy to have repaired all his communications behind his advance and to have brought up the full weight of his artillery.

Paris, June 7.—The French and American troops operating against the German northwest of Chateau Thierry during Friday's fighting made additional gains of ground and captured the villages of Veully La Poterie and Bouresches, according to the French communication issued this evening. The text of the statement reads: "Between the Ourcq and the Marne we continued with success our operations of detail. 'The French and American troops have enlarged their gains north of Vinly up to Listeres, east of Chezy and took Veully La Poterie and Bouresches, and also in a general way have notably bettered their positions on the front of Corcy-Bouresches."

JAPAN MAY HAVE TO ACT IN EAST

Serious Situation Develops From Attack By Austro-German Force on Anti-Bolshevik Forces on Manchurian Border.

Shanghai, June 7.—General Semenov, leader of the anti-Bolshevik Siberian forces, has left the trans-Balkala front, according to an eastern news agency despatch from Harbin. His departure is attributed to dissensions among his forces. It is reported, the advices add, that he will disband his army and flee into Mongolia. Harbin, Manchuria, Sunday, June 7. (By The Associated Press)—General Semenov, leader of the anti-Bolshevik forces in Siberia, reports that Bolsheviki troops today crossed the Onon River, in Trans-Balkala and strongly pressed a number of attacks, which were checked. An Austro-German force composed of a cavalry brigade and four companies of infantry, is threatening General Semenov's communications. May Start Something. Washington, June 7.—Some time ago it became known that the Entente Al-

A GREAT FIRE IN CONSTANTINOPLE, AFFECTS 50,000

(Bulletin.)

Amsterdam, June 7.—Fifty thousand persons are homeless as the result of a fire at Stambul, the Mohammedan section of Constantinople, which devastated the whole eastern part of the Sultan Selim quarter, according to the semi-official Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung of Berlin. Buildings on both sides of the Mosque in that district were destroyed but the Mosque was spared.

Amsterdam, June 7.—According to a Kiev despatch sixty persons have been killed and hundreds injured in a fire and resultant explosions in a big Ukrainian munitions depot at Smernets, west of the Lwira River.

our activity was pursued at Bligny and gave us that entire village. The number of prisoners taken during the day exceeds 200. The activity of both artillery is fairly active on the north Ourcq and in the region west of Rheims. During the day of the sixth our aviators put out of commission thirteen German airplanes and set on fire four captive balloons. Our bombardment machines made numerous explosions over the regions of Roye, St. Quentin, Soissons and other places. Twenty-seven tons of explosives were dropped and numerous fires broke out in the places bombarded."

ADVOCATES CHURCH UNION IN CANADA

Anglican Bishop of Huron Addresses Presbyterian General Assembly—Plea For Greater Aid To Ministers Widows.

London, Ont., June 7.—Today's session of the Presbyterian General Assembly was taken up partly with a discussion over the allowance paid widows of ministers. In view of the faithful and great services given it was held by Rev. D. Tanner that the allowance was a ridiculously small Mr. J. K. MacDonald, of Toronto, made a strong plea for an increase, dwelling on the inadequacy of the present sum. The matter will be taken up again later.

Lieut. Col. Alex. Fraser, of Toronto, provincial archivist, urged that a historical record of the church be kept. He impressed his hearers with the importance of keeping the records as well as the experience of the army chaplains. Col. Fraser gave a touch of humor to the meeting by opening his address in Gaelic, the moderator being the only one who could understand him. Amid cries of "translate" and "agree" he switched to English. The assembly was addressed by the Bishop of Huron, the Rev. Dr. Hanson of Montreal replying.

IRISH HANG BACK

Dublin, June 7.—There has been no increase in recruiting since Field Marshal French's recent proclamation calling on Irishmen to come to the colors, according to the record in the Dublin recruiting office.

MR. SHEARER RESIGNS

London, Ont., June 7.—Rev. J. G. Shearer, superintendent of the social service and evangelism department of the Presbyterian church, tendered his resignation from that office today, and asked to be released by June 30th, in order that he might accept the position of secretary of the Dominion Social Service Council.

Seven Alleged Enemy Conspirators Indicted By Grand Jury of N. Y.

Indictments Involve Sinn Feiners, Two German Subjects and Others Who Are Charged With Conspiracy To Commit Treason and Espionage and With Foul Plot To Destroy Docks and Other Property.

Accusations Include One of Assisting Germany in Landing An Armed Expedition in Ireland and of Plotting To Blow Up Munition Factories—Woman One of Those Accused—Two of Defendants Missing.

New York, June 7.—Five American citizens and two subjects of the German Emperor, one of them a woman, are named as fellow-conspirators in two indictments returned by a federal grand jury here today. Investigations declared that the cases are the most sensational undertaken by German intelligence agents since the war began.

The indictments allege conspiracy to commit treason and conspiracy to commit espionage, the assembling and transmission of information relative to America's prosecution of the war as follows: The destruction of American piers, docks and troop transports with fire bombs; destruction of quick silver mines in this country to hamper the manufacture of munitions; assisting Germany in landing an armed expedition in Ireland; fomentation of a revolt against British rule in Ireland; raising of funds in this country with which to finance these operations, and destruction of munition factories and mines in Great Britain are charged as ramifications of the intrigue.

The Principals. The wording of the indictments, comprising thirty-six paragraphs, intimates that the conspiracy may be of even broader scope. This is suggested by a paragraph in the treason indictment which alleges that in July, last year, one of the defendants, sent a cablegram to Othen, Switzerland. The principals named in the alleged plots are: Jeremiah A. O'Leary, prominent American Sinn Feiner now fugitive from justice on charges of espionage action for distribution of alleged anti-draft literature in the magazine Bull, of which he was formerly editor. "Madame" Maria K. De Victorica, alias Baroness Von Katschman, a blonde haired German woman of striking appearance and about 40 years old. Carl Rodiger, who claims Swiss citizenship, but who is alleged to have come to this country from Germany under a fraudulent passport. William J. Robinson of New York, aged 30 and under suspended sentence for seditious "soap box" oratory here in behalf of Sinn Fein interests. John T. Ryan, a Buffalo attorney, alleged to have been active in spreading Sinn Fein propaganda in this country. Albert Paul Fricke, a Mount Vernon, N. Y. toy manufacturer, whose affairs are now being administered by an alien property custodian. Emil Kipper, prominently identified with Sinn Fein activities in New York City. Rudolf Binder and Hans Schweitzer, both of whom died last year, and the other two "citizen defendants" named in the indictments.

Plea of Not Guilty. The seven individuals listed are charged with complicity in both conspiracies. Madame De Victorica, Rodiger, Robinson, Fricke and Kipper, pleaded "not guilty," to both indictments before Judge Augustus N. Hand and were remanded to the Tombs to await trial. O'Leary, now wanted on three charges, and Ryan, have not been apprehended. The treason conspiracy indictment charges that "Madame" De Victorica and Rodiger, "from April 6, 1917, to the date of the presentation and filing of this indictment, were enemies of the United States, and secret agents and secret employees of said imperial German government," and still are. After naming Ryan, O'Leary, Robinson, Fricke, Kipper, Binder and Schweitzer as citizens owing allegiance to the United States, the indictment charges that they, "and divers other persons within and without the United States," whose names are unknown, conspired to commit treason in that they "would knowingly and willfully, adhere and give aid and comfort" to the German government and to Madame De Victorica and Rodiger by sending to the German government communications, "connected with and in prosecution of the war," by receiving from Germany official communications, "connected with and in prosecution of the war," by furnishing money and credits to Rodiger and De Victorica by concealing the presence from American authorities, and by furnishing messengers to the two suspects. In relation to the alleged bomb plot, the indictment charges that the five Americans assisted in securing chemicals and other ingredients for "the manufacture of bombs."

MANY U. S. SHIPS ARE LAUNCHED

Total For May, Seventy-One Hulls of 344,450 Tons, a Record-Breaker.

Washington, June 7.—Ship launchings in May, like deliveries, set a new record. Seventy-one hulls, totalling 344,450 deadweight tons, were put into the water. Thirty-nine of them were steel, with a capacity of 228,750 tons, and thirty-two wood, of 115,700 tons. The May launching record exceeded April by twenty-six ships and January by fifty-five ships. They also exceeded the highest monthly average of the United Kingdom made in 1915, with a record of 102,931 tons. They lacked only 57,886 tons of equalling the American launchings for the entire year of 1917, the record pre-war year in American shipbuilding.

AMERICANS AND FRENCH TAKE SEVERAL PLACES

TEUTONS LOSE VILLAGES OF TORCY, LEPORT AND VINLY

Striking Germans Northwest of Chateau Thierry, Where Enemy Legions Were Launching Their Heaviest Blows Few Days Ago, American Marines and French Push Back Tip of Salient Driven By Enemy In His Mad Dash For The Marne—British Get Into Bligny.

Striking the Germans northwest of Chateau Thierry along the line where the enemy legions were launching their heaviest blows but a few days ago, American marines, fighting with French troops on either side have pushed back the tip of the salient driven by the Germans in their rush to the Marne. They have recaptured the village of Torcy and at last accounts were disputing with the Germans the possession of the towns of Bousiars and Boursches.

West of Soissons the French have taken the village of Leport, which is located on the north bank of the Aisne. Further south, crossing the Clignon river from Gandelu, the French have recaptured the hamlet of Vinly and swept eastward from Veully La Poterie and driven the Germans out of a grove which they held there.

Gain All Objectives.

Just to the south the Americans launched their blow at the Germans and have taken extensive grounds. Reports from the scene state that virtually all their objectives were gained, which would appear to indicate that the attack was not a local affair, but a part of a well-defined plan directed by the Allied command. Belleau Wood, east of Torcy, was first reported cleared of Germans, but later advices made it appear probable that the enemy was still holding out in a portion of this wooded area.

British Gain Also.

On the front between the Marne River and Rheims, the British have gained a foothold in the town of Bligny, which is 9 miles from Rheims and in a sector which might become vital, should the Allies attack there in force. German official statements have mentioned the arrival of Allied forces in this particular region and the Allied aggressiveness there may be linked up with the activity on the western side of the salient in connection with what may be the launching of a counter-offensive against the Germans.

The blow now being struck against the German positions will have a tendency to prevent the Germans from withdrawing their crack troops for recuperation before launching an offensive on another section of the front.

Tired of War.

This gave them a strong and dominating position for continuation of their attack. Their total advance was approximately two miles on a three mile front. The total number of prisoners taken was not known last evening, but additional captives were brought in after the morning attack, which netted about 100 prisoners.

HOPEWELL HILL

Hopewell Hill, June 5—Sergt. Silas C. Wright of St. John, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Temple Wright of Hopewell.

led countries are perfectly ready to throw Russia over. Certain pacifist elements which have been sickened by bloodshed and have grown weary of the war, would gladly sacrifice Russia to German domination because they know it would hasten peace and shorten the war materially.

They are perfectly honest and their views demand respect. They prefer German supremacy in Russia to further fighting and some of them would go so far as to allow Germany to hold her territorial acquisitions if it would mean the end of the war.

Detest Bolsheviki.
Then there is another class which considers that the Bolsheviki are more deadly than the German militarists. A third class has hypnotized themselves into believing that Japanese intervention would draw German forces from the west and would lighten the frightful burden which Foch's army is bearing. This class, too, is perfectly honest.

In the aggregate these classes constitute a considerable force and influence national policy to no small degree. There is, unquestionably, evidence to support the first deduction, but by far the most important is the second. What policy has the president decided upon? Here and there are many who are keenly desirous of devoting their energy and efforts, systematically and practically to any scheme which would help redeem Russia and put her on her feet. They want a lead. President Wilson must give it.

Must Move Rapidly.
This group realizes that whatever happens in the west, Germany will have won the war if she comes out of it still dominating Russia. Germany is moving rapidly in the east, she is penetrating Russia faster than she pierces the Allied line in the west. Her conquests in the east bulk larger than her victories in the west.

Russia is hungry. She is short of clothes and shoes. She is in need of everything, including sympathy and moral assistance. Allied diplomacy in Russia since the rise of Kerensky has been sadly weak and no one knows this better than the Allied leaders themselves.

Today the Allies are treating Russia as an outcast. Their policy toward her has been a cross between that adopted toward an enemy and a neutral.

GERMANY MOVES RAPIDLY ON EASTERN SOIL

She Is Penetrating Russia Faster Than She Pierces the Allies' Line in the West—Misery in Land of Muscovites.

By Arthur S. Draper.

(Special Cable to the New York Tribune and St. John Standard.)
London, June 7.—When President Wilson said: "I intend to stand by Russia as well as France," it is natural to assume first that he thought that some statesmen favored abandoning Russia because they believed she could give no further assistance in the prosecution of the war, and second, that he had some definite policy of helping that country just as America is assisting France militarily, economically and financially.

There is plenty of evidence to show that some short sighted people in Al-

A Business Car

RECOGNIZED in its true light by the Government, the business world, and the individual buyer, the automobile has cast aside the title "Pleasure Car" and is now properly classified as a vehicle of real service—a present day necessity.

The owner not only lengthens his own business day, but he also lengthens his family's living days, thanks to the afternoons and Sundays spent in the Utility Car.

That which increases the busy man's accomplishments in the day, is no luxury.

That which widens your field of business endeavor is a necessity.

That which lengthens the life of every member of your family can well be afforded.

Owning that which saves health, time and money is true economy.

All these things are embodied in the possession of an automobile.

Don't wonder how your neighbor can "afford" a car, but use your sound judgment and ask yourself today "Can I afford to be without one?"

When you have purchased a car you have multiplied your efficiency. You have acquired a personal and business asset. Your selection should be a Ford.

Twelve Tire Tests No. 6

This series of twelve tests is designed to take the uncertainty out of tire-buying.

Tube-Shape

Perhaps you have noticed that some inner tubes become creased or cut or otherwise injured without any seeming cause. Such troubles are due nearly always to the fact that inner tubes, with the exception of Michelins, do not fit properly when inflated inside their casings.

Look at the photographs reproduced below. The tube on the right is a Michelin, the only tube made circular or ring-shaped to fit the casing perfectly and naturally. The tube on the left is typical of all other makes. Both are inflated to the same pressure. Compare the two.

Michelin Tubes are used by most motorists and endorsed by practically every tire dealer. They are unsurpassed in quality and yet are reasonable in price.

This tube is typical of all makes other than Michelin. Such tubes are simply straight pieces of tubing cemented at the ends. Notice the shape this tube takes when inflated.

This tube is a Michelin—the only tube made ring-shaped like the casing, thus insuring perfect fit, without destructive folds, wrinkles or thin spots.

Both of these tubes are inflated to the same pressure.

HOW CERTAIN SOLDIERS CAN GET ABSENCE LEAVE

SOLDIERS CAN GET TIME OFF FOR SUFFICIENT REASONS

All Applications Must Be Made To Officer Commanding Depot Battalion and It Will Be Considered By District Officer.

Ottawa, June 7.—The militia department has issued a memorandum explaining the method which has been adopted for dealing with applications for leave of absence from military service to last remaining members of a family, and in case of extreme hardship to dependents. The memorandum is as follows: "All such applications must be made in the first instance, to the officer commanding the depot battalion which the man joins. Full particulars of the case will be prepared, and if the circumstances appear to be such as to justify leave of absence, temporary leave will be granted while the case is under consideration. It will first be considered by the district officer commanding, and if he recommends the leave it will be referred to military headquarters and will be passed to the officer of the central appeal judge.

Will Be Classified.

"Arrangements have been made whereby a barrister who has been engaged on the staff of the central appeal judge during the past several months in the consideration of claims for exemption will take charge of and consider the applications as received, classifying them and disposing of such as present no unusual difficulty. In cases of doubt, the circumstances will be brought to the attention of the central appeal judge himself whose decision will be given.

"All applications will thus be considered judicially in the same manner as claims for exemption and leave will be granted or refused on ascertained principles, similar to those which have been hitherto applied by the central appeal judge in dealing with applications for exemption. Immediate notice will be sent to the district of the conclusion arrived at, and the man concerned will be advised of the result of the application.

"Only cases transmitted with the recommendations of the officer commanding the depot battalion and the district officer commanding will be considered."

BRAVE FRENCHMEN FIGHT TO FINISH

By Wilbur Forrest.

(Special Cable to The N. Y. Tribune and The St. John Standard.)

With the French Army in France, June 6.—A general tells me that he told his men to fight to the death. They did just that. It is true that the enemy crossed the Allette Valley and retook Chemin des Dames, and marched to the river Aisne, but they had to march over that thin line of dead men to do it.

As the enemy broke the line on several points, and marched their columns into open country, they met resistance constantly from forces ranging from foot soldiers, to cavalry and aeroplanes. The latter swept out of the sky frequently machine gunning marching columns with much German loss.

On one occasion a line of enemy artillery on march was abandoned by the Germans, fearing flying bullets from French planes. Aeroplanes surged above the advancing enemy hordes, in advance, sending invaluable reports of the progress of the invaders to commanders in the rear who in turn organized resistance, which in turn eventually halted the advance. The artillery dashed into the battle with horses, running guns, and caissons, just as was done in the Napoleonic wars, and done here probably for the first time in this war. Guns were unlimbered in the fields anywhere. They threw shells into the advancing enemy, until the enemy advanced too near them, then guns were limbered up to dash away to new positions.

Cavalry Men Fight Well.

The cavalrymen fought on foot and on horseback. Dismounted cavalry, through inferior numbers, fought off the enemy waves time after time, and held their ground. On one occasion these horsemen were encircled by the enemy and ordered to surrender. Racing outward, they cut through the Germans with the short bayonets which cavalrymen carry. Once free this valiant battalion, made no efforts to continue southward. It made a half turn to the right, and faced north and charged throwing the Germans back, filling

Would Wake Up Smothering

The terrible smothering and choking up sensations and stinking spells, the feelings of dizziness and faintness that come over those whose heart and nerves are damaged causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity. Mrs. A. M. Powell, Norval Station, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I suffered five years with my heart and nerves, but the last two years I have suffered terribly. If I went to bed I would wake up as if I were smothering. I did not get one night's sleep out of seven. I got so very weak that the doctor was called in, and he said it was my heart, and that I must take great care of myself. I saw your advertisement in your almanac for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and said I would try them. I have only taken two boxes of them and I feel a new woman. I will recommend them to anyone afflicted with heart trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

WINDSOR MAN KILLED ON TORPEDOED BOAT

Fred A. Smith Loses Life on Steamer Sunk by Germans.

The Germans threw their best troops, including the Prussian Guard into the valley Curcu in the region of Moroy demand, also in the direction of Portmilion, attempting by infiltration to slip around the southern edge of the forest. The French divisions not only smashed all efforts to advance but before Portmilion they barred the German march on Paris today with such valor, that the enemy's best coastline helplessness against it.

There are so many cases of individual valor, that they pale into weak insignificance. There is a case of two Breton polius who were cut off and swam down the Aisne, carrying their rifles. They saw an enemy plane flying low and brought it in with the captured pilot a prisoner.

As the big battle rages over the long front west of Soissons to Rheims, stories of towns or villages, taken and retaken several times are becoming common. It means that the present battle is the largest and fiercest from the standpoint of duration in the world's history. Death and valor are the cheapest things on the war market today.

Why the Allies Are Confident Of Winning the War

German apathy at home over the new drive, and the calm confidence of the Allied peoples in the face of reverse, both have one explanation. In the race between Hindenburg and President Wilson—to use Lloyd George's crisp characterization of the battle of the Western Front—the odds are running every day increasingly against the German. When the British Premier adds that "those who know best what the prospects are feel most confident about the result," he can only mean, notes the Omaha World-Herald, that "the United States is winning the race."

Allied shipyards are launching ships faster than German U-boats can destroy them; Allied navies are sinking U-boats faster than Germany can build them; Allied crops are promising record harvests in France and England that will release further tonnage to carry American men and munitions to the battlefield. At the same time for Germany, many observers believe, another year of war will spell bankruptcy alike as to her food supply, her finances, and her manpower. Hence the German thrust against the Aisne front is interpreted in Washington as another attempt to smash through the Allied armies to victory before American troops arrive in such force as to make a German victory impossible.

Read "The Digest for Impartial Information on the Conduct of the War"

The great war, the one subject uppermost in all our minds, has many angles and side issues. Democrats, even when engaged in a life and death struggle, are essentially vocal. They love to air their troubles and the papers here and abroad are full of questionings of investigations, and of criticisms of governmental efforts. How can you learn the truth in such cases, when the journals reporting the events are largely partisan? The answer is simple. Read THE LITERARY DIGEST, which presents the facts as gathered from all sources, with absolute impartiality and a single eye to the correct information of its readers. It provides you with all shades of opinion and makes you both judge and jury. Begin reading it today and keep accurately informed on the war and all other issues.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE EMPIRE—Every fighting unit we can send to the front means one step nearer peace.

THE FARMERS AND THE DRAFT.

It is difficult to believe that the majority of the 1,500 farmers in attendance at yesterday's convention in Toronto, when they lodged a vigorous protest against the operation of the Military Service Act as applied to farmers' sons, and urged a nation-wide Ontario and Quebec farmers' union to exempt as a class all the men engaged in political activities. Farmers as a class are intelligent men and surely, they see and realize that while the importance of food production is very great both to Canada and the Empire, yet it is even more important that our lines in France and Flanders should be held. The farmers of the country are performing a national service in the production of foods, but equal service is being performed by workers in many other lines of industry. Munitions, fish food, lumber, clothing, and many other articles that can be mentioned, are absolutely necessary, and yet it would be impossible to exempt as a class all the men engaged in their production. This matter of exemption must be dealt with according to individual cases and that is the way in which the Government and the military authorities have decided to deal with it. There is no desire to inflict unnecessary hardship or to rob the acres of this country of the men whose labor is necessary to make them produce. But food alone will not win this war, and our pledge to the men who have gone overseas, depending upon Canada for support, must be kept no matter what line of industry or production is affected.

Sir Robert Borden has made this point very plain and it is safe to say that the great majority of the farmers of Canada are ready to patriotically accept the situation and do their very best. At Ottawa a few weeks ago the largest delegation ever seen in the capital received the premier's final word on the situation and for the most part that word was accepted. Therefore it is not easy to think there is not a political motive, possibly, even an organized political movement, behind the convention in Toronto. It is much more difficult to believe the view of that convention represents the real opinion of Canada's loyal farmers.

REFITTING THE VETERANS.

Because it does not require much co-operation from the general public the work of fitting the returned soldiers for a re-entry into civilian life does not receive a great deal of publicity, but no more important undertaking is now being carried on in Canada than that which has this for its purpose. Few people have any comprehensive idea of the immense programme now well underway for the care of the veterans. Formerly much of the work was under the direction of the Military Hospitals Commission, but a great part of this has been combined with effort in other directions and coordinated under the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. This department is carrying out a tremendous work and the organization already effected and the extent of progress made indicate that it will be well and thoroughly done.

"Reconstruction," a bulletin issued by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, contains a list of work of much wider circle of readers than it is likely to have—contains information on what is being done in the way of fitting disabled men for useful occupation. Some idea of the scope of the work is conveyed by the fact that disabled soldiers are now being trained in 173 occupations. Courses of industrial re-education have been provided for 3,269 returned men and of these 2,600 have so far progressed in physical recovery that they have begun training for their new civil occupations. Most of these men have been discharged and are receiving vocational pay and allowances while they train. Others began receiving instruction before they were discharged.

The 173 occupations in which men are training cover almost the entire field of ordinary endeavor. They include agriculture, architecture, applied science, ad. writing, bench carpentry, business, bookkeeping, barbering, building inspection, banking, boot-making, cinematograph operating, cement and steel testing, drafting and designing, civil and electrical engineering, field and animal husbandry, gas and steam engine operating, harness making, health inspection, librarian's work, mechanical dentistry, medicine and surgery, music, monotype operating, navigation, stenography, tailoring, watchmaking, teaching, etc.

The Canadian disabled soldier is the recipient of the most expert advice and assistance the state can give him. Expert medical officers ascertain the dearly contemptible about the case of Rose Pastor Stokes. She was born abroad and reared in poverty. In the United States she was given opportunity to advance herself, to win an education and to enter, if her tastes had inclined her to it, upon a course of great influence. Instead of showing gratitude she bites the hand that feeds her, and gives comfort to the enemies of the country that provided her with a successful career. She deserves no pity, unless pity is due any woman so foolish and so devoid of ordinary decent feeling as she has proved herself to be."

THE CITY THAT LOOKS AFTER ITS CHILDREN

Most cities are built for adults; the city plans, with their streets, their alleys, their ornate parks and their speedways, clearly signify that only grown-ups are expected to inhabit them. Dayton, Ohio, has suddenly awakened to the fact that children form an important part of its population and it is reorganizing its physical organization with that as a starting point. Streets and alleys are all right for mature pedestrians and draymen, but mature never intended that children should live in them and derive from them their education. In 1915 the Department of Welfare established eighteen playgrounds, and each public school added a similar annex to its equipment. Now marble-shooting, jackstones, kite-flying, baseball, and swimming are regular municipal activities. Wherever the City Manager finds a vacant lot he immediately attempts to convert it into a baseball diamond. He has placed the full force of the city government behind the amateur baseball league; he is himself one of the most perfunctory "fans" at these contests and has personally established a prize cup. Play festivals are more important functions than the "inaugurations" that are still the great days in most American municipalities. On such occasions one may witness the folk games and folk dances of dozens of countries. There are municipal water carnivals, with row boat, canoe, swimming races and fireworks displays. Dayton lights the river-front for night bathing, and conducts a municipal dance-hall. And the city gives entertainment of a more intellectual kind. Its municipal concerts, where the Metropolitan Opera stars and the works of the greatest composers may be heard, have demonstrated the power of music as an educative force in a democracy.—Burton J. Hendrick in Harper's Magazine for June.

A BIT OF VERSE

THE LISTENING PATROL
With my bosom friend Bill, armed ready to kill,
I go over the top as a listening patrol.
Good watch we will keep if we don't fall asleep,
As we huddle for warmth in a shell-shoveled hole.

In the battle-lit night all the plain is a sight,
Where the grasshoppers chirp to the frogs in the pond,
And the star-shells are seen bursting red, blue, and green,
O'er the trench just a stone's throw beyond.

The grasses hang damp o'er each glowing lamp
That is placed on the ground for a fairy camp,
And the night breezes wheel where the mice squeak and squeal,
Making sounds like the enemy cutting our wire.

Here are thousands of toads in their ancient abodes,
Each toad on its stool and each stool in its place,
And a robin sits by with a vigilant eye,
On a grim garden spider's wife washing her face.

Now Bill never sees any marvels like these
When I speak of the sights he looks up with surprise,
And he smothers a yawn, saying:
"You mean the dawn?"

While the dustman from Nod sprinkles the dust in his eyes,
But these things you'll see if you come out with me,
And sit by my side in a shell-shoveled hole,
Where the fairy bell croons to the ivory moon,
When the soldier is out on a listening patrol.
—Patrick McGill.

Mrs. Blunderby—My dear, they never could stand it if they had something they stuff in their ear-gun cotton, you know.

Another "Howler"
On the examination paper of an engineering college one of the questions ran: "What steps would you take in determining the height of a building, using an aneroid barometer?"

Abswering this, one youthful aspirant wrote: "I would lower the barometer by a string and then measure the string."

Little Benny's Note Book

BY LEE PAPE.
Miss Kitty made the class rite a competition on dogs for homework today, this being mine.
DOGS.
Dogs are many kinds but only 2 sexes. People have them all over the world, and they can be told rite away by their bark, even in the dark. The dogs in Belgium pull little wagons to earn their living, but if some dogs in this country had they had to do that, they would get very indignant, proving everything depends on what you are used to.
Dogs express their feelings with both ends, having with one end wagging with the other. Little dogs generally have littler barks than big dogs, but they can bark about 5 times as fast as big dogs, thus making up for it. Dogs that bark the most are not always the most dangerous, altho the most people are afraid of them, which proves that aversion is a grate thing.
No matter how short a dogs tale is, the dogs rite to wag it when it wants to express itself with that end. Some dogs tales is so short that the dog has to wag everything else at the same time, making it look much happier than a dog whose tale wags all by itself.
Dogs favorite food is meat and bones and bones with meat on, but they have bin known to eat everything that anybody else ever ate.
When a dog is no spehll kind of a dog it is called a mongrel. It is not considered a honor to be a mongrel, but the mongrills dont seem to mind it, probably being because they dont know it.

THE WALKING CLUB GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

There is one form of recreation which I would rather be revived—the old-fashioned walking club.
So far as I am aware the walking club is now extinct. Here and there, perhaps, still will be found a few enthusiasts who go for long tramps through woods and fields on a Saturday or Sunday afternoon.
But they must be very few. The knell of the walking club was sounded when golf became the fashion and automobiles the rage.
I cannot help regretting this. Golf and automobile are delightful, I readily admit. They give us special advantages of no small value. Yet some things are lost which the walking club of other days afforded in rare degree.
Chief among these is a leisurely, intimate contact with Nature, producing a sense of quiet contentment, appreciation of life's deeper realities, and a sense of real social solidarity.
Golf, to be sure, is a "social" game. And it brings us into direct contact with Nature, as does the automobile.
But on a crowded golf course, and with mind intent on the game, the contact with Nature is all too slight.
Nor can the automobilist claim any great degree of intimacy with Nature as he goes whirling along at thirty or forty miles an hour. What he is after, and what he gets, is a sense of uncontrolled nervous and mental exhilaration.
Does he really need this, especially in these days of innumerable incitements to nervous stress?
Of course it is good for him to be out in the fresh air, as it is for the fowler.
But is not the supreme need for both soldier and fowler—for all of us—some mode of occasional recreation which, while giving us outdoor exercise, will free us from all feeling of strain and effort and once more give us that quietude of kinship with simple things?
This need the walking club used to meet when life was not nearly so strenuous as it now is. It might pay us well to organize walking clubs anew.
No expensive equipment is required, merely some rough clothes and a stout pair of boots, thick-soled and comfortably fitting. Then, in company with a little group of congenial people, to train or street car ride—or an automobile ride—to the open country.
Once in the country, remote from the hurly-burly of the city of our daily life, the walk begins. Perhaps it takes the course of a winding brook, perhaps over rugged hill-sides, perhaps across verdant meadows.
We need not walk many miles, and we need not walk fast. That would rob us of our chief delights—quiet observation of the country through which we walk and quiet conversation.
We shall find plenty to talk about. Themes will crowd in upon us, and different from those associated with the routine of life. Perhaps not at first, but surely we shall be led to raise our conversation to a far higher level than is our wont.
We shall discover in our friends possibilities—ideals, ranges of thought—which we never dreamed they possessed. We shall make like discoveries even with regard to ourselves.
Not exercise merely, but mental strengthening, spiritual broadening—that is what the walking club can and should give us. And that, clearly, is of great significance in the successful shaping of our lives.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad for Washing Hair

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.
The best thing to use is just plain mulsified coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.
Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

TOUCHING LETTER TO HERO'S MOTHER FROM N. B. OFFICER

Lieut. Barry Communicates With Newcastle Lady Regarding Death of Her Brave Son—He Died With Smile on His Face.

The following letter has been received by Mrs. Kathleen McCloskey, of Boiestown, relative to the death in action of her son, Pte. Willard McCloskey:

Dear Mrs. McCloskey, it is with the deepest sympathy and great personal regret that I beg to write you of the death in action of your son, Pte. Willard McCloskey, a member of my platoon, No. 15, of the battalion. Although with me only a short time, and previously unknown to me, I was beginning to look on him as one of my best, and consequently placed him in my Lewis gun section.
 During an artillery bombardment about 7:30 o'clock on Sunday evening, April 7th, he was instantly killed by fragments and concussion of a German shell which landed a few feet from him.
 He was not badly mangled but died with a smile on his face, as was characteristic of him in all his every day work.
 He was buried in a little military cemetery near the line with Rev. (Capt.) Father Wood in attendance.
 I collected all his personal effects which will be forwarded to you through the usual channels.
 It will no doubt be a consolation to you to know that just before going into the line he went to confession and communion. My platoon extend with me the deepest sympathy to you and your family and trust you may have strength to bear up under this great sorrow which so many have to bear.
 If there is any further information you require, dear Mrs. McCloskey, or if I can do anything to help fix up your son's affairs don't hesitate to write to me. I will always be at your service.
 Yours sincerely,
 A. L. BARRY, Lieut. D. Company.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Archie Forrest.
 Chatham, June 7.—The death occurred this morning of Mrs. Archie Forrest, after an illness of long duration. Besides her husband, a well known mason, she is survived by five children: Lella Loggie and Viola who have been nursing in Rhode Island; Della (Mrs. Fred Noar, of Chatham); Isabel, at home, and Archie, who is manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Merriton, Ont. The late Mrs. Forrest was formerly Miss

ROW IN CANADIAN CAR AND FOUNDRY CO. LTD. CIRCLES

New York and Montreal Interests Fighting the Present Management.

COLLECTING PROXIES FOR THE SHOWDOWN

Charges Made Against the President and Management of Big Concern.

Montreal, June 7.—New York and Montreal interests have issued a circular to shareholders of the Canadian Car and Foundry Co., Ltd., asking for proxies in connection with a campaign against the present management of the company.

The request for proxies is signed by Louis G. Beaubien, Michael Connolly, Montreal, and Willard H. Jones, Harry R. Hillard and William A. Shakman, New York.

In the circular accompanying the request charges are made against the management of the company and especially against the president, who is charged with entering into an agreement with the directors, whereby he personally was to receive a large bulk of the profits derived from a Russian shell order.

The circular also dealt with alleged tremendous shrinkage in share values and it is contended that A. Hicks Lawrence, who was elected a director at the last annual meeting to satisfy a petition of the shareholders, has not been given proper facilities to get into the affairs of the company.

Following up the charges made against the president the circular states that it appears from the records that commissions running into the millions have been directly or indirectly authorized by the board without details being disclosed.

The commissions on the Russian contract alone exceeded apparently the whole net profits on that transaction. Large sums, it is alleged, were placed in the hands of the management for distribution to parties whose names were hidden, notwithstanding the request of a director that they be divulged.

The directors, it was announced, will deal with the circular in a few days. One director today said that the statements contained in it were incorrect and misleading.

MOTOR STOCKS ARE STRONG FEATURES

Hide and Leather Makes New High For Year and Pittsburgh and W. Va. Scores Record at 71.

New York, June 7.—Prices came back in the early afternoon, recovering most of the forenoon losses. Strength of the Motors was a feature, rather surprisingly, in view of the great amount of talk concerning restrictions of steel supply to that industry. The movement was chiefly at the expense of shorts, and was based upon apparently well founded reports that leading Motor companies are about to receive large additional war contracts. Hide and Leather Preferred made a new high for the year and Pittsburgh and West Virginia Preferred made a record high at 71. Otherwise the market was not particularly interesting.

REGULATIONS ON FRUIT IMPORTS

War Trade Board Will Not Restrict Movement of Vegetables and Fruit Until June 16.

Ottawa, June 7.—Rulings were issued by the war trade board today in respect to restrictions governing imports of perishable fruits and vegetables covered by the recent order-in-council. The board has permitted the importation of certain fruits and vegetables considered essential for Canadian consumption will be permitted unless otherwise addressed, with the exception of the following:

Blackberries, gooseberries, currants, cucumbers, water-melons, artichokes, shallots, green peas, romans, parsnips, salsify, pome granates, quinces, rectorines, mangoes, egg plant, green peppers, Brussels sprouts, asparagus, mushrooms, parsley, endives, beets, turnips.

To prevent delay in securing individual licenses in connection with the shipment of perishable goods, collectors of customs will be instructed to permit entry, under blanket license of fruit and vegetables, except these specifically mentioned.

U. S. WHEAT CROP

Washington, June 7.—Production of 931,000,000 bushels of wheat this year was forecast today by the department of agriculture from June 1 conditions. The winter wheat crop was estimated at 687,000,000 bushels and spring wheat production at 244,000,000 bushels.

THE RAW MATERIAL HOLDING STOCKS GOOD INVESTMENT

Copper Stocks Being Strongly Recommended As Purchases on Declines.

TRADING MARKET IS IN PROSPECT NOW

Industrials Are Expected To Be Subject To The Greatest Pressure.

New York, June 7.—The best securities to hold for peace outside of the rail list are those representing raw material control, according to important interests which call attention to the fact, in this connection, that all governments are already taking action to protect their source of raw material supply after the war.

It is believed that companies which own their raw material supplies will enjoy prosperity for almost an unlimited period when peace comes.

Copper stocks are being strongly recommended as purchases on declines, based entirely on the raw material control theory. The high returns are taken into consideration, but where long life of property is indicated, as in the case of Inspiration for example there is absorption of the first grade to hold over the rehabilitation period after the war.

A trading market with reactionary tendencies seems likely in view of the latest developments showing radical taxation proposals by McAdoo, taking over the control of all the steel by government, agitation for postponement of higher railroad rates and reduction of copper dividends.

Industrials are expected to be subjected to the most pressure.

In banking circles a great deal of attention is being given to the crops situation which is inspiring much optimistic comment especially among investment institutions which are recommending to their clients the purchase of granger railroad stocks on the theory that while the war traffic may not be so heavy as that of eastern trunk lines serving manufacturing districts a great tonnage will be provided by the bumper crops.

There has of late been significant accumulation of reading, says a prominent wire house which is friendly to the railroads and is in a position to get accurate information from Morgan and First National bank interests. Cautious attitude is being maintained in these quarters with regard to the position of the industrials as a class.

N. Y. F. B.

REACTORY TREND ATTRIBUTED TO DOMESTIC DEVELOPMENTS.

RAILROADS' STOCKS BECOME SLUGGISH

Steels and Copper Shares Irregular To Heavy, U. S. Losing 1-3/8.

New York, June 7.—Representative stocks reflected selling pressure during today's dull and uneventful session, with a preponderance of losses at the close. The reactionary trend was again attributed to domestic developments, foreign advances being accepted as distinctly encouraging.

Secretary McAdoo's recommendations calling for a doubling of war taxes in the government to control distribution of iron and steel accounted in large measure for the sagging tendency manifested by war shares.

Rails were extremely sluggish, the protests of an influential element of holders of such securities against the so-called standard contract devised by the government attracting wide attention.

Pools abandoned their bullish tactics in equipments and tobaccos and the further delay in announcing the terms of Publication of the deal prompted occasional offerings of shippings.

Motors and leathers were the objects of intermittent professional activity at higher prices, but seasoned industrials, including steels and coppers, were irregular to heavy, United Steel closing at a loss of 1-3/8 points. Sales amounted to 415,000 shares.

Publication of the crop report in the last hour was without effect upon Grangers or other railway shares. Reading and other colliers soon forfeited their temporary interest in the market.

Bonds, including Liberty issued were firm, but contracted as to operations. Tokio 5's gained a point, but Paris 5's were flat.

Total sales (par value), aggregated $5,850,000. Old U. S. issues were unchanged on call.

BOSTON LUMBER MARKET STEADY

Eastern Dealers Short of Fresh Lumber Largely Due To Labor Shortage.

Boston, June 7.—The local lumber market presents few new features. Prices have not changed during the past week, nor are they likely to for some time, according to the trade. The Boston trade is giving the bulk of its attention and efforts to government work, rather than to the ordinary business, but in view of building restrictions, it does not amount to much. Government requirements continue extremely heavy.

The movement of logs in the Eastern States is backward and this fact possibly may cause a temporary shortage in certain kinds of lumber within the near future.

The eastern markets will be obliged to wait a week or so for fresh lumber. The labor question is a serious one, because of local supplies of lumber, most of the eastern sawmills reporting great difficulty in getting sufficient help.

AN OBSOLETE COMPLIMENT

It used to be considered a compliment to appoint a friend as Executor of your estate. But the estate often suffered so much from the Executor's absence, illness or death that the compliment proved a very expensive one. In appointing a personal Executor the maker of a will ought to consider that matters pertaining to his estate will be given just what share of his time the Executor has to devote to them.

Why not appoint a corporate Executor?

HITS COAL MINING

Scranton, Pa., June 7.—At a meeting of the coal operators and members of the ten draft boards of Lackawanna County last night steps were taken to unarmor and Schuykill counties in calling the attention of the federal government to the serious condition the anthracite coal industry is in these counties. The department for many men are being lost to the mines by reason of the draft.

WESTERN CROPS

Toronto, June 7.—The opinion expressed by the greater number of the agents of the Canadian Northern Railway in the crop report of the last week that but little permanent damage had been done the growing grain in western Canada on account of the frost, high winds and adverse weather conditions, is vindicated in the report received from 220 agents of the Canadian Northern at the head offices of the company here this morning.

ENORMOUS WHEAT CROP

Washington, June 7.—The second largest wheat crop in the history of the country is in prospect for this year's harvest. The department of agriculture today forecast a total of 931,000,000 bushels of winter and spring wheat combined. That is only 69,000,000 bushels less than the billion bushel crop the government had hoped for and continuation of the ideal growing conditions such as prevailed during the last month might yet produce a harvest of 1,000,000,000 bushels.

SCOTIA MAKES GOOD SHOWING

Furnaces and Mines Show Big Increase and Records Are Broken.

Sydney, N. S., June 7.—In spite of the labor shortage conditions, the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company's plants in the month of May broke all previous records for the production of steel and iron. The open hearth plant produced 14,558 tons of steel ingots and the blast furnaces 8,835 tons of pig iron as against 14,943 tons of steel and 8,016 tons of iron in March, 1917, when the best previous record was made. The net gain in 316 tons of steel and 818 tons of iron. The company's collieries also show a decided increase in the coal output for the month.

CORN QUOTATIONS SLIGHTLY LOWER

Chicago, June 7.—Improved weather conditions tended today to ease the corn market. Nervousness over possibility of damage in Iowa seemed to have largely subsided. It was pointed out that the bulk of crop in that state is on high ground and would receive benefit rather than harm even from the heaviest rains. Liberal arrivals here counted further as a bearish influence. Opening prices, which ranged from 1-1/8 to 1-1/4 cent lower with July $1.34 7/8 to $1.35 1/4, and August $1.36 3/8-3/4 were followed by a moderate additional setback. Oats sympathized with the decline in corn. The subboard showed but little anxiety over making purchases. After opening 1-1/8 to 1-3/8 cent lower with July 67 1/8 to 67 1/4, the market continued to sag. Provisions ascended owing to smallness of receipts and higher prices at the yards. Trade was light.

ADMINISTRATION

Many individuals who have been appointed Executors of Estates are unable, on account of their own personal affairs, to give the time and attention necessary for their proper management, with the result that both their own affairs and the interests of the Estate suffer.

They would find it an advantage to appoint The Canada Permanent Trust Company, to administer the Estates. Its experience and organization specially qualifies it to render such services. It is associated with, and under the same direction and management as The Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation, which was established in 1856.

 of England congregation last Sunday at the St. John's mission house.
 Rev. N. Franchette, being away at Grand Falls, and New Denmark for the day.

SHEDIAC
 "Another stellar selection was in touch with the present war, was Miss Webster's excellent impersonation of our wounded heroes. The lines were rendered with such simple sincerity that many among the audience shed tears and throughout they listened as though spell-bound."
 Miss Webster is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Webster of this town, and previous to going to Halifax was graduate of the High School, and a very promising pupil. The selection referred to was the popular and appealing letter poem "Fleur-de-lis."

HOPEWELL HILL

GENERALLY FAIR

REPORTING FOR DUTY. Eleven men came to the city yesterday on the Boston train. All were reporting for duty and were met at the station by a military committee.

CHIMNEY FIRE

An alarm from box 16 called the department to Brussels street yesterday morning for a chimney fire which caused more alarm than damage.

NO MORE SMALLPOX.

The outbreak of smallpox has been checked and no new cases have been reported for more than a week, and only two houses in the city are now under quarantine.

THE JEWISH LEGION

About 100 men of the Jewish Legion arrived in the city yesterday en route to Wainwright. Approximately three hundred men will comprise this unit on their arrival in camp.

ADMITTED TO HOSPITAL.

Word was received yesterday by Mrs. John Hapenny, 485 Main street, informing her that her son, Gar. Peter H. Hapenny has been admitted to hospital in France suffering from shell shock.

GIRL MESSENGERS.

The manager of the C. P. R. Telegraph Company in Halifax is employing girls to deliver telegrams during the day time, and no girls under sixteen are employed. Eight girls are now employed, and all have an opportunity to learn telegraphy.

ALL GERMAN JUNK.

A soldier en route to Fredericton last evening was loaded down with haversacks and valises. When asked how he became so weighted down, he replied, "All German junk, sir." The soldier had lately returned from overseas and was bringing a few souvenirs with him.

THE LAW BREAKERS.

For some years there has been considerable complaint regarding the fast and reckless manner in which some automobile drivers speed through the country towns and villages, especially Rothesay, and Inspector McQuade is said to have the number of two of the law breakers.

IN CATHOLIC CHURCHES.

The congregations of all the Catholic churches celebrated the Feast of the Sacred Heart yesterday and there was a large attendance at all services. Over one thousand received the blessed sacrament. Over seven hundred received Holy Communion in St. Peter's church.

TWO AUTO PARTIES.

In spite of the downpour of rain yesterday two automobile parties came in from Mac's Bay. Among them were J. McWhinney, Mrs. L. McWhinney, Hazen Small and wife, Mark Ellis, Messrs. Harry and George, Victor Small, Robert Ellis and E. Small, accompanied by his wife. They found the roads in fairly good condition in spite of the rain, and made a quick trip to the city.

GEORGE MUNROE DEAD.

Geo. Joseph Conroy, known as Geo. Munroe, a well known bantamweight boxer of former years and a protégé of Sam Harris, who managed the late champion, Terry McGovern, died at New Haven, Conn. recently, a few hours after an attack of heart disease. He was 43 years of age and came to New Haven from New York City about a year ago to conduct a boxing school.

TWO SHOWERS TENDERED.

Miss Julia A. McManus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. McManus, of No. 1 Victoria street, West St. John, will be principal in an interesting event next week. On Tuesday evening last a large party of her married and single friends called at her home and tendered her a shower, and she was the recipient of a large number of beautiful presents. Thursday evening there was another gathering at her home, when she was called on by her companions in the firm of F. W. Daniel & Company, and there was another shower of gifts for the bride elect. A very pleasant evening was spent by all with games and music, and all present wished Miss McManus the best of happiness. In addition to the many presents was a beautiful electric reading lamp from the Daniel employes, which the firm Miss McManus has been connected for some time past.

PLAYGROUND EXECUTIVE.

The playgrounds are now being repaired so as to be in readiness for the opening, the second of July. This was a statement made at a meeting of the Playground Executive held in the Y. M. C. A. last evening. A. M. Belding gave an account of a visit paid by Mayor Hayes to the ground at Rockwood Park, where they discussed plans for its preparation as a baseball diamond and playground. The Rotary Club are also giving assistance in this matter.

A letter was received from Mrs. Deacon, convener of the standing committee on playgrounds of the National Council of Women, asking that a Canadian headquarters should be established for the association in Canada instead of the association working under the United States management. As this was originally the plan of Miss Mabel Peters, who did so much work in Canada, a letter will be written in reply, supporting the motion.

GEORGE McLEAN CAMP VISITING IN THE PROVINCES

Former St. John Man Now With British and Canadian Recruiting Mission, Here Yesterday—Visited Camps in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

Among the passengers to arrive in the city yesterday afternoon on the steamer Empress from Digby was George McLean, a former resident and newspaper man of St. John, for some years past residing in London. Mr. McLean left the Boston Express last evening for the Hub. He is connected with the British and Canadian recruiting mission in Boston and states that they have been signing on a very large number of men to cross the ocean and hunt the Huns. For the past few days Mr. McLean has been on mission business, visiting the different military camps in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia and was deeply impressed with the manner in which all are being conducted. While in Sussex he said he was more than pleased to call on an old friend, Lieut. Col. J. L. McAvity, the camp commander, with whom he was personally acquainted before leaving St. John. Mr. McLean says that Col. McAvity is every inch a soldier and is certainly looking after a very large family of young soldiers at the present time in a manner that can't be improved on.

Speaking of war conditions in the United States, Mr. McLean says that everything in the states at the present time is war, and every man, woman and child are doing their bit to help. The men of military age have responded nobly to the call to the colors, and while the public on this side of the Atlantic is just beginning to hear of the good work being performed by the United States soldiers in France, he has every reason to believe that before long the soldiers of Uncle Sam will prove their mettle when the opportunity offers. Mr. McLean says that the Canadians have certainly blazed a trail in France since the first contingent left the land of the Maple Leaf to fight for their King, country and freedom, that is a hard one to follow, the Canadian boys have proved to rank among the best and bravest fighters in the world today, and it is to every soldier following them to keep up the record, which is a most worthy one. Being a British born, the Boston man says that he has been thrilled with admiration at the work of the Canadians, and from what he knows of the United States "Sammys," that when the latter are fighting shoulder to shoulder with their brothers across the border that the combination will prove one that cannot be beaten. The United States has now more than a million of her brave sons overseas and there is yet an untold number to go and join in the conflict. Perhaps that while this great world war cannot be won within a short time, there is certainly only one outcome, and that is victory for the Allies, with utter defeat and ruin for the enemy, and when it is all over and the heroes return to their loved ones across the world will be at peace and prosperity will reign supreme in all the nations whose sons have fought, bled and died for the just and righteous cause.

Mr. McLean has two sons now serving in the United States navy, and while he is over the age limit, he says that he has been prepared to stand in the position it is one way in which he is able to do his bit.

FOOLED THE DOCTOR AND FOOLED HIMSELF

Young Man Was Vaccinated on the Arm, Removed the Vaccine With His Handkerchief, Wiped His Nose, and Was Vaccinated on the Nasal Organ.

A good story is told of a certain young man in the city. Recently he was called on by a doctor and in compliance with the order of the Board of Health, the young man bared his arm, received the scratch and the necessary amount of vaccine. As the doctor turned his back to the patient the young man acted quickly, and as he said to a friend, "You can bet that I was not going to have a sore arm. I quickly took my handkerchief and rubbed the vaccine off. Now comes the sore part of the story." The young man was undoubtedly successful in transferring the vaccine from his arm to the handkerchief which prevented him from going through the horrors of an itchy and sore arm, but he forgot that he had a fresh scratch on his nose and on wiping the latter with the handkerchief he was quite successful in vaccinating his nasal organ. In a couple of days the nose became itchy, then it began to swell, a nice but uncomfortable sore made its appearance which appeared much larger to him than it really was, and he became almost cross-eyed looking at it without a mirror. The soreness has now passed away, the swelling has gone down, but there is still a small scar to identify him from all other persons and place him on record as the only person who to protect himself from the dreaded disease of smallpox, was vaccinated on the nose.

The young man is now fully aware that he is older wiser, and that when a person wishes to fool the doctor, he is sure and not fool himself.

In the estate of Mary Jane Campbell, deceased, letters of administration were granted to Geo. O. Baxter, J. P. D. Lewis and Mrs. Campbell, widow.

LIEUT. H. C. SIMMONS POPULAR WITH MEN

Letter From Member of His Company Speaks Highly of Well Known Commercial Man Now in France.

That Capt. Harry C. Simmons, who was elected to the command of the Travellers platoon in the 104th battalion, and went overseas with that unit, later reverting to the rank of lieutenant to go to France with another battalion, is making good and holds a warm spot in the hearts of his men is indicated by a letter received this week from Sergt. Harris A. McGinley, Sergt. McGinley, who went overseas with the 104th battalion and later joined another unit in France, writes to his mother, Mrs. W. A. McGinley, in part as follows:

"We are having a strenuous time of it these days; a long trip in the line and a short time out. There are only a few of the chaps I came to France with left now and a good many who came on later drafts have been killed. I have not seen a church in this country within range of German guns that has not been demolished. Only a single stone is left of the one in which we were writing, stand the ruins of what once was a beautiful church and convent building. Now it is a mass of debris. On every hand we can see ruined buildings whose once happy homes were peace and plenty. No one who has not seen this awful devastation can form any idea of what war means, particularly looking after a very large family of young soldiers at the present time in a manner that can't be improved on. Speaking of war conditions in the United States, Mr. McLean says that everything in the states at the present time is war, and every man, woman and child are doing their bit to help. The men of military age have responded nobly to the call to the colors, and while the public on this side of the Atlantic is just beginning to hear of the good work being performed by the United States soldiers in France, he has every reason to believe that before long the soldiers of Uncle Sam will prove their mettle when the opportunity offers. Mr. McLean says that the Canadians have certainly blazed a trail in France since the first contingent left the land of the Maple Leaf to fight for their King, country and freedom, that is a hard one to follow, the Canadian boys have proved to rank among the best and bravest fighters in the world today, and it is to every soldier following them to keep up the record, which is a most worthy one. 90TH ANNIVERSARY OF ORGANIZATION

Portland Methodist Sunday School Ninety Years Old—First Protestant School in North End.

The 90th anniversary of the organization of Portland Methodist Sunday School will be held tomorrow morning in the auditorium of the church, when a special programme appropriate to the occasion will be given by the members of the school. The Sunday school was the first Protestant Sunday school to be organized in the North End and from the date of organization until the present time it has prospered and grown. The school is now the largest Sunday school in the city, having a total enrollment of 780, of whom 58 constitute the officers and teaching staff. The school was organized in 1828 by members of the Queen Square Methodist church and for a time was methodized by volunteers from that body but soon became independent. For the last twenty-five years the very efficient superintendent of the school has been R. T. Hayes, and under his leadership rapid advancement in all lines of work has been made.

ARTHUR BANVILLE STILL MISSING

Twelve Year Old Son of North End Resident Lost Since Wednesday—Feared He Is Drowned.

Up to a late hour last night no trace of the missing lad Arthur Banville, had been found. Yesterday afternoon his father applied for and obtained the use of the city grappling irons and spent the afternoon grappling in the vicinity of Long Wharf where the lad was last seen on Wednesday afternoon last about five o'clock. Last night a telegram was sent to Sussex on the supposition that the lad might have gone there but no reply has yet been received from the authorities there. The lad who is twelve years of age came home from school on Wednesday afternoon as usual and went out to play. When he did not come home that night his parents supposed that he might have gone to the country with a friend but later it was found he had not done so, what it is now feared that he might have fallen over the Long Wharf and been drowned.

BE IN THE LAST OFFENSIVE

The last offensive against the debt contracted by the G. W. V. A. in the purchase of the Elks Home will be launched shortly. Recently the boys made the second payment on the property and they hope to clean up their entire indebtedness when the next payment falls due.

A splendid donation of $250 has been received by the Association from the Pender Mill Company and no doubt many other large concerns in the city will follow this example. Get your $10 block of stock if you can take no more and prove your worth as a citizen by subscribing to the most worthy object that has ever been placed before the generous people of this city. Send your donation to Mayor Hayes or C. A. Sobeloff.

BOSTON LAWYER IS SAID TO BE CHOICE OF CITY COUNCIL

H. J. Sullivan Likely To Act For City With Hon. J. B. M. Baxter and Dr. W. B. Wallace in N. B. Power Hearing.

Since the announcement of the appointment of the commission to hear the application of the New Brunswick Power Company for an increase in rates there has been considerable speculation as to who would be the city's counsel. It is understood that the city's case will be conducted by Hon. Dr. B. K. C. and Dr. Wallace, K. C., who will be assisted by a New England lawyer.

It was impossible last night to confirm the report of selection of the outside counsel as the Mayor could not be located, and Commissioners Fisher and Hilyard, who were communicated with by the Standard, would not say who had been chosen. In this connection, however, it is said that the name of H. J. Sullivan of Boston has been under consideration and he will, in all likelihood, be the man to act in conjunction with the local legal talent. Mr. Sullivan is one of the best known Massachusetts lawyers and has had a wide experience in litigation of this kind. It has been rumored that the city might bring in outside auditors and engineers to make an examination of the books and property of the company. Commissioner Fisher said last night this would be done if the counsel for the city desired it.

JAPAN IMPORTERS REPRESENTATIVE HERE

Y. Nishiguchi Arranging For Shipping of Natural Products From Japan to United Kingdom Via Canada.

Y. Nishiguchi, representing the firm of Nozaki Brothers, general importers and exporters of Japan, arrived in St. John yesterday en route to Halifax. His visit to Canada is to make arrangements for the shipping of natural products of Japan such as peas, beans and peanuts, from Japan to the United Kingdom via Canada. This firm has branches in Yokohama, Osaka, Kobe, Tokyo, New York and San Francisco, and carries on an extensive business in tin plates, hides and leathers, which they import into Japan.

Referring to the present struggle in Europe, Mr. Nishiguchi stated to a Standard representative that the Japanese are working with the Allies until they conquered the German people and made the world free for democracy. While in St. John he is a guest at the Royal Hotel.

FULLY 3,000 MEN HAVE REGISTERED

New Brunswick Young Men in Nineteen Class—Several Hundred Yet Who Have Not Registered—They Will Be Looked After.

It is reported that fully 3,000 young men in the "19 Class" have registered in New Brunswick. Owing to the mail and other delays of a singular nature several of the registration forms were not in the hands of the provincial registrar by June 1st, the time limit for registering. It is stated that there are still several hundred men in New Brunswick who have not registered and it is expected that they will be called upon to report direct to the depot at Sussex. However, no statement to this effect has been made public by the officials, but it is understood that this solution has been advanced by several associated with the enforcement of the act in this province. With regard to the young men who attain the age of military service after June 1st, they have ten days from the time of attaining that age to register with the officer under the military service act in St. John.

AN INTERESTING CASE FINISHED

Max Webber and Maurice Whitman Acquitted Last Evening—Were Charged With Receiving Stolen Goods.

The jury acquitted Max Webber on the charge of receiving stolen goods knowing the same to have been stolen, and disagreed in the case of Maurice Whitman, who was on trial for the same offence. The trial of Max Webber and Whitman, which had been in progress since Wednesday of last week has been the cause of interest, owing to the facts surrounding the case. It is stated that the prosecution intended to hold a second trial in the case of Whitman and he was remanded to jail last evening. Six were for acquittal and six for conviction in the Whitman case.

THE POLICE COURT.

Two men charged with drunkenness in the police court yesterday were remanded to endeavor to find out where they obtained the liquor. Harold Payson was fined two dollars for obstructing Main street with an automobile. A fine of $20 was allowed to stand against the Turnbull Real Estate Company for having a fence in a dangerous condition on Brussels street.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Eliza R. Johnston. The death of a former St. John lady, Mrs. Eliza Johnston, widow of Rev. T. W. Johnston, occurred yesterday at her home, Digby, N. S. Mrs. Johnston who before marriage was Miss Starr, will be mourned by a large circle of friends. She is survived by one son, F. P. Johnston, of St. John, and two daughters, Mrs. R. P. & W. F. Starr. The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at Digby at 2:30 p. m.

E. Percy Shaw. The death of E. Percy Shaw took place at his home, 23 High street, yesterday in his 87th year. The deceased was born in Moncton, of Loyalist stock and removed with his parents to this city early in life. He was among the first from St. John to go to the Australian gold fields in company with the late Thomas E. Everett and Dr. Berryman and others. After spending seven years there he returned to the city and in 1860 he married Miss Annie M. Earl, daughter of the Hon. John E. Earl, of Douglas Harbor. For a number of years he was employed in the Government Railways and retired on pension a few years ago. Deceased is survived by his wife, two sons, Frank A., of Kansas City, and Stephen H., of Fairville, and one daughter, Mrs. A. W. Langley, of this city with whom he has resided. Also survived by one brother, A. N. Shaw, of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. E. Whitehead, Florida, and Mrs. P. B. Coleman, Fredericton.

Mrs. John McGrath, of Boston, is visiting St. John, and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Winslow, St. Patrick street.

Imprisoned Ex-Czar, Parted From Son, Lives In Peril On His 50th Birthday

Monarchical Movement in Russia Keeps Former Ruler in Constant Danger of Assassination — No Attempt Made By Allies To Secure His Safety At a Time When Action Was Possible.

Former Crown Prince Alexis, Thirteen Years Old, Held in Fever Stricken Tobolsk By Soviet, May Be Made Emperor, According To Berlin — Other Rulers Have Endured Misfortune of Imprisonment.

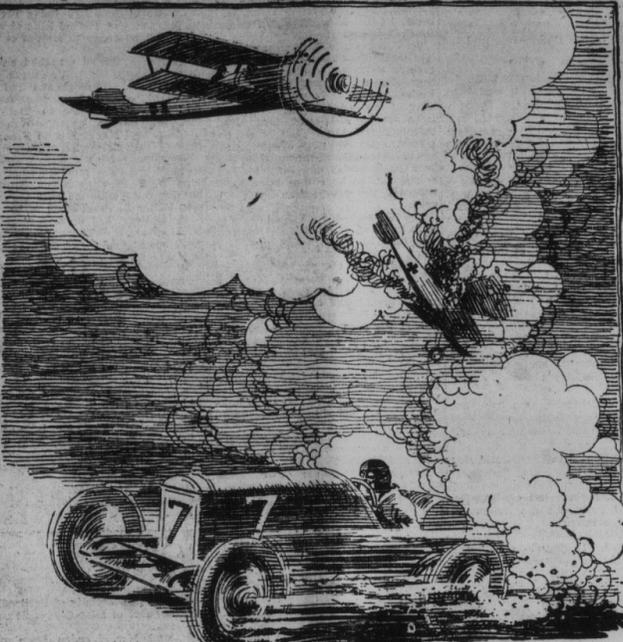

By Ex-Attache. Nicholas II celebrated last week the 50th anniversary of his birth. And since we have the piteous word of Sir George Buchanan, who was British Ambassador at Petrograd from 1910 until the withdrawal of his mission from Russia a few months ago, that the former czar never wavered in his complete loyalty to his allies, from the inception of the war until the pulsory abdication, and rendered inestimable services to the cause of the entente by successfully invading both Germany and Austria-Hungary, during the first year of the conflict, thus preventing the Kaiser from massing all his forces against France, it must be a source of regret and of compunction to Great Britain, and to the other great powers associated with her, that no provision should have been made by them for his personal safety and for that of the members of his more immediate family.

Ready to Listen to Allies. During the first few months of the resolution, the members of the first, and even of the second provisional government at Petrograd, were so anxious to secure the secession and the goal of the latter for the protection of the former ruler, of his children, and of his Danish-born mother, would have been treated with the utmost deference, and there is no doubt that the administration of Prince Lvoff, and even of that of Kerensky, would have welcomed with relief the departure of Nicholas, and of his family, for Denmark, or some other neutral or entente country, had the allied powers insisted upon the matter. Indeed Lvoff and Kerensky would have viewed his departure for some foreign refuge with relief, appreciating the difficulty of controlling the forces of anarchy by which they themselves were ultimately overthrown, and realizing full well the extent to which they would be held responsible for the fate of the emperor, the two former empresses and the princes and princesses of their house, were to be overtaken by the appalling fate which has fallen upon the lot of so many thousands of Muscovite officers, heroes of the present and of former wars, and who have been literally torn to pieces by the Bolshevik mobs.

Hope Lies in Own Countrymen. Today it is too late to save him, or his family, from without. The allies are powerless to move in his behalf, and even the Kaiser, who is now in possession of a considerable portion of European Russia, cannot lift a finger to save him if he wishes to do so, which is by no means certain. For he may feel that a massacre of the Romanoffs would still further disgust the entire civilized world with the forces of anarchy, now rampant in Russia, and create a sentiment that any form of government, even the cruel despotism of Germany, would be preferable to chaos. Nicholas' only hope of safety lies in his own countrymen. His rescue, and that of those near and dear to him, must come from those who until his abdication owed him allegiance. True

The Speed of Rickenbacher.

—By Ripley.

Lieut. RICKENBACHER — A SPEED-ING OF THE EARTH AND SKY.

(By Robert L. Ripley.) The world of sport has another hero, Lieutenant Edward Rickenbacher, a speed king of the earth, is now growing famous as a speedster of the sky. He has just brought down his first Boeche after a battle that thrilled the spectators in the trenches. The former auto racer showed the same dash and courage in the air as he did on the speedways of America. There is no question that aeronauts and auto racers have many attributes in common, and the experience Rickenbacher gained at the wheel of his racing car served him well above the battle lines "Over There."

An American through and through, was Eddie in everything he undertook. Do or die, was always his motto, and it was that (fully American) idea that caused him to be known in a short five years as one of the greatest auto drivers in the country. He won many races in all parts of the country and still holds the 300-mile championship of America. When war was declared he made an effort with De Lloy Thompson to organize a special flying corps consisting of automobile racers, mechanics and drivers and exhibition fliers, but the Signal Corps would not recognize his efforts. Then he enlisted and was General Pershing's chauffeur for the first three months of the general's stay in France. Recently he was transferred to the Flying Corps, and reports are that he developed quickly as a flier as he did as a racing car driver.

He has always been known as a steek, and this is undoubtedly due to the experience he had at Columbus in 1911, when he snatched defeat out of the fire at the last minute. Of all the present-day racing stars Rickenbacher was really the only one qualified to make a great flier, as he is but twenty-four years old. De Palma, Resta, Chevrolet, Oldfield, Mulford, Duray, Guyot, and the balance of the pilots that are racing now are all from ten to twenty years older and do not have the stamina that air fighting requires of the modern winged warriors.

of the time of the revolution, are at the head, not merely of a movement, but also of a big armed force, marching toward Petrograd, and bent on restoring the monarchy, with the young czar, crich Alexis, now 13 years old, as emperor and former czar Nicholas' only brother as regent.

This is a particularly cruel blow to the former czar. He is passionately devoted to his boy. It was in order not to be parted from him that when forced too ill to admit of his being moved from Tobolsk, and who has been left behind there, in the care of his sisters.

The story which the department of foreign affairs at Berlin said to have obtained through Count Mirbach, the new German Ambassador at Moscow, and from German agents at Petrograd, and in the southern portion of Finland, intimates that there has been already some very heavy fighting between the red guards and the monarchists in the streets and suburbs of Petrograd. If this news of Baron von dem Buesche-Haddenhausen is really true, as there is plenty of reason to believe, it would account for the action of the soviet in removing ex-emperor Nicholas in unprecedented strict custody to Ekaterinburg and in holding his ailing son Alexis in that pestilential, fever-stricken and horrible Siberian town, Tobolsk.

Of course, a movement such as that described by the Kaiser's undersecretary of state for foreign affairs at Berlin as being headed by Gen. Alexieff would have the result of drawing to all those elements in Russia that yearn for the restoration of law and of order, and for the safety of life and property. Even the most extreme radicals of the monarchy in the early months of last year as the dawn of the republic, have become convinced by cruel experience that Russia is not yet ripe for a form of government such as that of the United States. It has been tried and a terrible mess has been made of it, which has thrown back the economic and political development of Russia for a hundred years, has inflicted an injury to her monetary credit from which it will take many decades to recover, and has placed a lasting stain upon her national honor. For it cannot be denied that the Bolshevik juntas which followed the Lvoff and the Kerensky administrations betrayed the allies of Russia to the Kaiser.

Another thing to be borne in mind is that, from the point of view of national and international law, Gen. Alexieff and those associated with him represent the only constitutional government in Russia. When Nicholas II abdicated, he did so in favor of his brother, Michael Alexandrovitch. The latter declined to accept the crown until the people had had an opportunity of expressing their wish about the matter, by means of a constituent assembly, being content in the meantime to leave the reins of the government in the hands of the administration formed by the duma, or national legislature, under the presidency of Prince Lvoff, and comprising Miliukoff, Gutchekoff, et al.

BIG AWARD FOR SALVING STEAMER

Larder Bros. Wrecking Company To Receive $86,480 For Floating Steamer Arachne.

A cable from England received by M. O. Crowell, of Crowell Bros., Limited, Vice-President of the Larder Bros. Wrecking Company, Limited, announces that the Larder Bros. Wrecking Company, Limited, have been awarded the sum of $86,480 by the Arbitration Court in England as their remuneration for salvage services performed to the steamer "Arachne" in 1916. The steamer "Arachne" went ashore on the island of Langlade or Little Miquelon in June, 1916, in a very exposed place. Larder Bros. were employed to save her and were successful in floating the ship and having temporary repairs made in St. Pierre, and afterwards taking her to Quebec, where she was repaired in drydock and has since made a number of successful voyages.

The administration styled itself the provisional government, and when Kerensky, who had formed part of it, and who was for a time its president, abandoned his post and vanished, the chief of the provisional government, Prince Lvoff, the duma has never been legally dissolved, and its president and chief executive officer, Rodzianko, remains vested with all the powers that he possessed at the time of the outbreak of the revolution since no properly organized constituent assembly has ever taken place.

Moreover, this movement has the backing of the Orthodox National Church, which has pronounced its anathema against the Bolsheviks for their spoliation of the treasures and property of the cathedrals, the churches, and of the religious orders. While the inhabitants of the towns and cities are indifferent to religion, and inclined to the Bolshevik creed of nihilism, the population, are devoted to their faith and are completely under the influence of their clergy, now headed by Patriarch Tikhon.

It is not only Ex-Emperor Nicholas, with his wife and children, who are in captivity on his fiftieth birthday, but also his sisters, the Grandduchesses Xenia, married to Grandduke Alexander Nicholavitch—who was at Newport in the summer of 1913—and Grandduchess Olga; likewise his cousin, Grandduke Nicholas Nicholavitch, former generalissimo of the Russian army, the latter's consort, who is a daughter of the king of Montenegro, and his only son and heir, the now aged and demented Duke of Cumberland, were able to effect their escape, after their defeat at the battle of Langensalz and to reach Vienna in safety. Queen Marie of Hanover remained in captivity until the end of the war, when after dethronement, he was allowed to leave Germany, and to take up his residence in Austria.

The blind king of Hanover, and his only son and heir, the now aged and demented Duke of Cumberland, were able to effect their escape, after their defeat at the battle of Langensalz and to reach Vienna in safety. Queen Marie of Hanover remained in captivity until the end of the war, when after dethronement, he was allowed to leave Germany, and to take up his residence in Austria. When King Francis of Naples and his wife, Queen Marie, were obliged by starvation and the destruction of all the defenses to surrender the fortress of Gaeta, after a long siege, they were on account of their heroism allowed to march out with all the honors of war the royal couple withdrawing to Rome. If the Kaiser has any grain of chivalry left in his composition, he will follow the example of his grandfather, old Emperor William in the case of Queen Marie of Hanover and that of the Italian Re Galant'Uomo, in the instance of Queen Marie of Naples, and release the sponging-carrier Empress Marie and her daughters from all the horrors of Teuton captivity and cause them to be conducted with all sovereign honors and courtesies, either to Switzerland or to her native land of Denmark.

STRAWS SHOW HOW SUMMER WINDS BLOW

Trifles That Count in the Dress World — Green Beneficial To the Health of the Wearer as Well as Approved by Fashion — Neck Scarves Still in Evidence — Oxfords More Favored Than Pumps.

The spring millinery has an upward tendency. This means that the brims of hats are beginning to flare higher and higher in sides and back, although they still maintain the tip downward over the eyes. The woman who tries to show her brow in a hat like this finds that she has a broken neck appearance at the back.

Wide brims become more common as the season grows warmer. Huge bows of handsome ribbon make the only trimming on very smart hats.

There is no reason to suppose that women will not wear for this summer as they have done for the last four seasons. The substitute for it on suits of jersey and thin cloth is Angora, cut in strips and usually colored.

Fur neck pieces will continue to be used throughout the late spring and early summer. Gray fox is preferred. It is worn like a cape, hanging well down over the shoulders and joined over the chest with two of the paws.

Green Fashionable.

The house of Callot has laid its impress upon the use of tree green for everyday costumes. Women are taking it up slowly, so it is well to advise them that green is a peculiarly good color for our summer.

There are scientists who believe that colors have an effect upon the health and temperature of the body, and the depression or enlightenment of the mind.

When tea is served on the veranda or in the garden under the trees the gingham frock is changed to organdie, voile or net, and then is when we bless the frocks with only a few snaps to fasten at the side.

Voile comes in figured and embroidered patterns and makes charming frocks. Can you imagine anything more refreshing not only to wear but for the other person to look at than a simply made frock in this material, white with dainty spray of lavender flowers, with white frills at the neck and a lavender ribbon girle?

If lavender is not becoming there are so many other colors to choose from one is sure to find the right thing. Whatever else, have the groundwork white, have flowers sprinkled around, have a frilly collar and cuffs of white and have a sash matching the flowers.

The Neck Scarf.

The fashion of cutting a neck scarf in one with the back or front of a coat or cape has grown in popularity. It is an eccentricity which many women do not like. However, it takes the place of any other kind of neckpiece and it envelops the chin in the manner that has become a general fashion.

There is a scarf of tulle attached to the hat which winds around the chin and hangs at the back, or there is a thin scarf attached to the coat. If you are fashionable you take your choice between the two, or you use one however, is doubted. They merely make that triple effect somewhere on the frock which is a minor detail of fashion that has become important. We have triple skirts, triple caps, triple shoulder collars, triple cuffs and triple pocket flaps. They are at times bound with braid and embroidered.

Triple pockets were invented by Cheruit and have been taken up by designers. They are put in coats and one-piece frocks. Then serviceability, it is not, of course, true that we must have a handbag for each frock; but still we must have several handbags. And as a plea for the saving of leather is coincident with a fashion for handbags of silk, satin and velvet, any woman clever with the needle may fashion her own bags, and so increase the number that she may have for a given expenditure.

There are two general ways of making handbags: One is with a drawstring top, the other is with a frame of some sort, on which the fabric of the bag is hung.

The shops sell now many tops to which the bags may be easily attached. There are rings of various sorts and sizes, from the small rings of silver, just large enough to slip easily over the hand, to the very large rings of bone or tortoise, that are almost large enough for knitting bags. And according to the size of the ring may the fabric be chosen. A heavy but soft brocade may be used with the small silver rings and a velvet with the larger ones.

Then the shops sell frames of imitation tortoise. They are fitted with Wheat May Be Worn, Not Eaten.

Women in mass these days appear like a wheat field with the wind blowing over it. The tops of their hats show these stalks of forbidden grain, vari-colored, shredded, curled and disheveled. It is no longer wheat colored. It goes into every dyepot.

The milliners have invented a curious and complex treatment of wheat after it comes from the dyepot in red, blue, yellow and green. They put it through some trick of magic in the back rooms, and it emerges as a first cousin to an cigarette or as a half-sister to an ostrich feather.

TWO ABLE ADDRESSES HEARD YESTERDAY BY CITY BUSINESS MEN

Messrs. Stewart and Abraham of Canada Food Board, the Speakers—Instructive Talks on Retail Merchandising.

One of the great benefits of the license system, introduced by the Canada Food Board is that it will force the retail merchants to systematize their business and enable them to decide whether they are doing business at a loss or profit. F. W. Stewart, Dominion chairman of the publicity committee of the Canada Food Board.

Before a large gathering of business men, members of the Retail Merchants' Association, Canadian Club and Rotary Club, held yesterday at Bond's, F. W. Stewart, Dominion chairman of the publicity committee of the Canada Food Board, and Daniel, president of the St. John branch of the R. M. A., presided, and introduced as the first speaker F. W. Stewart.

Mr. Stewart referred briefly to the work of his branch of the food board and stated that at the present time the board is divided into five sections, each in charge of a district representative whose duty it is to organize that district and obtain the co-operation of the retail merchants in the dissemination of literature. There was now 700 towns and cities fully organized, and all the work was being done in a very efficient manner.

Perhaps as the war proceeds the American will adopt the shoe of the French, with its rounded toe and its straight, high Spanish heel. At any rate the Oxford is now the thing.

HAND BAGS MADE AT HOME

Surely we are in the midst of a great vogue for handbags. We see them not only overrunning the counters of all the shops, but we see them in the hands of every smart woman. No woman who dresses well nowadays blinks at the importance in her complete costume of the handbag she carries.

It is not, of course, true that we must have a handbag for each frock; but still we must have several handbags. And as a plea for the saving of leather is coincident with a fashion for handbags of silk, satin and velvet, any woman clever with the needle may fashion her own bags, and so increase the number that she may have for a given expenditure.

Let Your Soup Kettle Do Its Bit.

Help win the war by eating more soup! A thick soup is one of the few dishes that give ample nourishment at minimum cost and at the same time tempt the appetite. A generous serving of a good meat or fish soup gives energy than a serving of roast beef.

Soup may have as a foundation mutton, pork, poultry, game, fish, cheese, beans, peas, lentils, cereals, and many other things. It is, of course, more nourishing if the meat is cut up and allowed to remain in the broth. A liberal use of wholesome vegetables gives flavor and additional nutriment. Potatoes, rice, sump, farina, tapioca, noodles and other grain products are often added to give bulk and supply heat and energy.

Dried peas, beans and lentils are especially valuable in soups, for they furnish so much protein. A soup made from them with the addition of bread croutons and a little oil in the form of butter, vegetable fat, drippings or meat, makes a pretty well balanced meal.

Here are some soups that are popular in various parts of the world and that deserve to be better known in every patriotic American household: Beef Soup (English). Cut one pound of beef into dice and saute in one or three tablespoons of hot fat until golden brown. Add one quart water or broth, boil one hour and remove grease from soup. Strain, return to saucepan, add two carrots, one turnip, one onion and one stalk of celery; all diced and sauteed in a little fat and then drained. Add one small branch of parsley, two leeks and more water or stock, if necessary. Boil one hour, skim again, remove parsley and serve hot.

Giblet Soup (French). Wash and clean neck, wings, gizzard and heart of fowl or turkey. Saute with one finely chopped onion and two deserved the enthusiastic applause received at the finish. One gown worn by the lady at the piano is striking in color scheme, quite a novelty in sartorial art.

Chas. Mack & Co. offered a realistic bit of "Old Ireland" transplanted to a St. John stage, so well staged that one could not be sure if the shamrocks growing on the grass plots. Good Irish songs and dances were well put over, and a real Irish atmosphere pervaded right through the act. The old gentleman in the act was a genuine bit of "Killarney," very likeable indeed. A good dance by the lady member of the company, on a number of what I suppose were Irish pipes, scored a hit. Those who know Ireland will enjoy this clever skit to the limit.

Edah Delbridge Trio—are three stars who know how to sing and harmonize—and were a rare musical treat. It would not be fair to say that they did not get enough of them. To use a slang expression, their offering had "the punch" and brought down the house, which shows that St. John audiences appreciate good things in the vocal line when they hear them.

Dennis Bros. in feats of daring on a revolving ladder were a real novelty and made a good closing feature. The final chapter of the Mystery Ship ended very satisfactorily to all concerned. It would not be fair to tell you about it here, but it is worth seeing.

"YOU CAN'T MAKE ME MAD" WAS MOTTO ADOPTED BY FARM GIRLS

Miss Jones, National Secretary of the Y. W. C. A., Addressed Meeting Last Evening in Veterans' Rooms—Pubing Meeting Held Under Auspices of Y. W. P. A.

"You can't make me mad" was the motto adopted and lived up to by the girls who worked on the farms of Ontario last summer and whose summer camps were most interesting described by Miss F. Jones of Toronto last evening. The meeting was held in the G. W. V. A. Rooms under the auspices of the Y. W. P. A. and was open to the public but the attendance was small owing to the evening.

Miss Jones who is a delightful speaker and possesses a charming personality, told in a bright and entertaining way of the National character of the Young Women's Christian Association speaking particularly about the girls who worked last year upon the farms in Ontario who gave much valuable advice to the members of the Y. W. P. A. for their agricultural camp this year.

The girls made good and the government fixed a minimum wage for them. The meeting closed with an informal discussion in which a large number of those present voiced the opinion that a building for rest, recreation and where an inexpensive lunch would be provided is urgently needed in St. John.

A committee was appointed to try to persuade if enough girls could be found who would attend a summer rest camp under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. A vote of thanks was moved by Miss Helen Fairweather seconded by Miss Helen Church and presented to Miss Jones by Miss Church.

Sergt. Paddy threw several slides up on the screen during the evening.

INTERESTING MEETING OF ROYAL STANDARD CHAPTER

Satisfactory Reports Received —Mrs. E. Atherton Smith, Regent, Presided.

Most satisfactory reports from the committees in charge of the two entertainments given lately by the Royal Standard Chapter were heard at their regular meeting on Thursday evening. Mrs. E. Atherton Smith, regent, presided and the meeting was largely attended.

The receipts from the Cadets' entertainment amounted to $220.00, which is to be given to the N. B. Auxiliary to the Maritime Home for the Blind. Votes of thanks were passed to H. J. Armstrong for the use of St. Andrew's Rink and to the Depot Battalion Band for their services on that occasion.

ROYALIST CHAPTER Owing to the unpleasant weather the Royalist Chapter who had proposed to hold their meeting at the L. M. Club assembled at the residence of Mrs. W. A. Lockhart yesterday afternoon.

The Red Cross Work for the month was 67 pairs of socks and 3 pairs of pyjamas. A gift to the St. James St. Military Hospital of a gramophone was reported also that the hospital had been supplied through the month with fruit and other delicacies. A satisfactory report was given of the Band Concert held recently.

Quite a number of members handed in their names as willing to help with the Registration work on June 22. The sum of $50 was voted to the work of the Young Women's Christian Association in St. John.

The dress shown would be charming for an afternoon garden or porch party in warm weather, and it is so plain that no great effort will be required for its fashioning. The little gown fastens in the centre back, skirt and waist being joined all around. THE EVENING STORY

BEAUTIFUL THING THAT CAME TO HER.

(Copyright, 1918, by W. Werner.)

After services the women stood about irresolutely, looking at each other with blank, questioning faces. Spruce Hill was undeniably on the road toward prosperity, but its people had not yet loosened their grasp on the labor that was oppressing them. Every woman and child of the community, from the eight-year mite who washed dishes and "chores" to the de-white haired grandmother knitting in the corner, had duties for each hour of the day. They had little time for flowers, and, besides, the lilac bushes and "poppies" in their yards, and a few such perennials as lilies and phlox and daffodils, and perhaps a geranium or calls in the kitchen window, had literally nothing for "and an outdoor display much less for a church decoration. And yet the new minister was asking them, confidently, for flowers.

"I guess you'll have to excuse me, Mr. Kent," one of them said at last bluntly. "I haven't any flowers except one geranium, which don't bloom, and besides I don't know a thing about decorating, and ain't any time, either."

"No, no," "or me," "nor me," came in rapid succession, and with evident relief, from the other women. "Oh, come, come, this will never do," expostulated the minister. "Surely each of you can spare a little time from work. I will help with the lifting and carrying, and there are several boys in my class who will do what they can. Let us all join together and make it a grand success."

"I've heard Mrs. Bray speak of narcissus," said a woman reflectively. "She was the florist's wife, you know. An' come to think, she's likely a master hand at this decoratin' business. She has spoke of seein' big city churches filled with flowers."

"Who is Mrs. Bray and where she is to be found?" asked the minister. "I don't know," replied Mrs. Perry. "I don't think I've had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Bray before," said the minister, rising, "and yet I've called her several times."

"No," acquiesced the old woman, "generally stay in the kitchen. I think that's the best place for a woman to be in. He wants to know the man or woman who will be charged to guard it, when he is not there, and will it pay for him to chance his health that way?"

"Well, I am putting now my all in three investments—children small, I think their future's worth the chance. I think their value will advance. I think they'll pay on what I've spent a greater rate than six per cent. And, viewed from every business way, I think those little ones today are worth my best and finest care; for all my riches center there."

So a very thoughtful woman, whose conclusions I usually respect, declared to me the other day after hearing two sisters rattle each other's tempers and get themselves all "hot" up over a session of mutual-criticism, which started when one told the other that she ought to make her children mind better. I could understand perfectly how the woman felt. That little session of criticism had developed a lot of ill feeling and, to all appearances, done no good whatever. And yet I didn't agree with her sweeping condemnation of criticism. I think there are two distinct kinds of criticism. Criticism That is Simply Made to Relieve the Mind.

It may be used externally and internally, and often is of very great service. Other useful measures are blisters, and cupping of the joints, dry heat, stimulating liniments, electricity and massage. Baths and hot springs (especially sulphur springs) are often of great value. Treatment of this kind may be had at several resorts in Virginia; at Sharon Springs, N. Y.; Mt. RANDOM REELS

By HOWARD L. RANN.

THE THRIFTY WIFE.

The thrifty wife is a priceless boon to man who is never appreciated until the other kind has been given a thorough trial.

Man has always been considered a wise, brainy animal, but he has never yet learned to put anything in the bank except some relative's life insurance. It is a sad reflection upon man's two-ply intelligence that while he handles all of the money that he and his wife earn, in so many instances none of it reaches the bank except to appease the appetite of a sight draft. This has resulted in a widespread movement to allow women to run the family till, and whenever this happens the savings deposits grow faster than an electric light bill after the installation of a $4 toaster.

One reason why a thrifty wife can save more money than her husband is because she sees so little of it. One of the evidences of our corrupt civilization is the nonchalance with which the average man can throw out a crisp, yellow-necked $20 bill and see it broken up into small fragments in the purchase of two-cent cigars. If a thrifty wife ever gets hold of a $20 bill she will stand off everybody from the milk man to the milliner before she will allow it to be split up into small change. If the male sex had more of this spirit the banks of the country would have to store their deposits in portable corn cobs.

In some homes the thrifty wife runs things with a high hand. It is an inspiring sight to see an economical housewife going about on tiptoe and turning off the electric lights and admonishing her husband not to shake the furnace more than once a day. Some of the worst forms of marital discord have arisen because a blunder-headed husband left the bath room light on while he stepped out to hunt a pair of tan socks.

Polygamy is a mixed blessing, but if some bachelors had twenty wives with a large bump of thrift they might be able to save a part of their salary.

PAYING UP.

We lately had a Pay Up Week, when folks squared up their ancient bills, and coin was flowing like a stream, to all the local merchants' tills. I setled for the wooden leg I bought nine years ago last May, and Jones and Smith and Brown and Greg paddled for groceries and hay. I long had shunned the busy streets, and through the alley took my way, consorting with a lot of beats who couldn't or who wouldn't pay. Alas, I lacked the nerve to face the men I owed for fountain pens, for calico and Irish lace, for poodles and for setting hens. It filled me with a dread intense to see the tailor just ahead; and I would hide behind a fence on hearing Jinks the butcher's tread. I owed this man and that a pound, to one a bone, to one a mark; in furtive style I slid around, and made my journeys after dark. But Pay Up Week brought strong appeals from merchants who were needing dust; they handed out most potent spells to men who had abused their trust. And so, by conscience well advised with cash to creditors I sped; the merchant princes were surprised, but only one fell over dead. And now I proudly walk the street, there's nothing blinking now in me; no matter who I chance to meet, I do not hide behind a tree.

DICKY DIPPY'S DIARY.

FRIDAY: GOT A GLIMMER OF THE NEW SCHOOL TEACHER YESTERDAY. SHE TEACHES MY LITTLE NEPHEW ORVILLE.

"YOUR LIPS WILL NEVER TOUCH HERS, MINE WILL BE FIRST"

Miss Baird's Dying Curse As She Swallowed Poison and Died in the Hope That Her Last Bitter Wish Would Wreck the Happiness of the Lover She Hoped to Marry.

Miss Jean Katherine Baird, authoress and teacher in Beaver College, near Pittsburgh, Pa., had waited twenty-five years for her schoolgirl sweetheart to marry her. When she was twenty, just out of high school, she watched helplessly as he turned from her to marry another girl.

Years went by and her love remained faithful.

Then his first wife died. Belief that her waiting was now to be rewarded was strong in her, and then her air castles were blown away by the news that he had again married another. Sitting in her room at the college, Miss Baird drank poison. Before she died she left a letter to her old sweetheart, in it she said, speaking of the woman who had taken, as she thought, her rightful place:

"Your arms will never be around her at night but my dead face will be between you; your lips will never touch hers but my dead lips will be there. Every day of your married life will be a curse. Before the year ends you will do as I have done."

Psychology has had before it no more interesting problem to watch than the development of this dying curse of college teacher Jean Baird. The power of suggestion has been recognized as a mighty one ever since the human race attained consciousness.

"As a man thinketh in his heart so is he," says the Bible. But it is equally true that the manner in which men think "in their hearts" is largely a matter not of their own volition, but of suggestions crowding into their minds from every side. And usually the dominant suggestion dictates the manner of his thought. The "curse" is as old as the human race itself, and has had its victims wherever superstition has ruled in any age—and where in any age has superstition not ruled? It is a favorite subject of literature. Some of the greatest tragedies of history have grown from seed thus sown.

That a "curse" is effective only to the extent to which the person cursed believes in it, no refuge for those who lack the power to disbelieve, and if one disbelieves himself, he cannot always shake off the effect upon him of those who know the circumstances and watch him anxiously, waiting for the "spell" to take effect.

It is a matter of common knowledge that a man perfectly well can be made ill by a number of people, collectively and anxiously telling him how "bad he looks." This is a phase of suggestion blood brother to the historic curse. And knowledge of the good as well as the evil effect, has been used in the ablest modern medicine to effect many a cure of obscure mental and also physical diseases having their origin in the disturbed condition of the patient's mind.

It is all this that makes Miss Baird's letter so interesting to science. What will be the reaction of this anathema of a dying woman whose love, turned at last to bitterness, was so strong throughout the years? Can the intensity of that love give added force to her wish?

And if the man can forget it, can the second wife, a woman and more impressionable, forget it?

Consideration of the facts of the tragic romance may shed some light upon the future, although the future is and ever remains in doubt.

It was back in the early '90's that Jean Baird, ambitious, a dreamer, sensitive and still in her teens, first grew to love ardently a young Pennsylvanian—E. W. Hess. He was ten years older than she, but even when her hair had been in pig tails he had admired him. He was studying civil engineering and it would appear, had "coerced" her.

At least in his answer to her dying letter he says, "I led her on. I admit, but I was married about that time and forgot all about her."

Whether Hess was in love with the romantic girl or not, it is certain that she had expected, or at least hoped, that he would marry her. She was at her home in Remora in Pennsylvania when this wish was broken.

"I can love no other man and I shall always wait for him," she said. Young, exceedingly attractive and with a mind unusual in its keenness, her friends did not believe her.

"Jean is just the kind of girl to make some man the happiest husband in the world," they said.

It may be that she was, but she had set her heart upon only one. She delir-ed more strongly into study, began to write, secured considerable reputation as a novelist and a poet, and soon became a demand by various schools making women's education a feature. She was an honored teacher in the Central State Normal School at Lock Haven, Pennsylvania, and the Randolph Macon School of Lynchburg, Virginia. At last she entered Beaver College and became the dean of the Women's Department. She had travelled extensively, had been a prominent figure at educational gatherings throughout the world, but neither broadening interest nor travel had dimmed the light of love in her heart.

Apparently she had met Hess frequently during the years. He had attained high position in his profession and some wealth. But as the years went by the school girl who had become a cultured woman of the world did not see them passing over him. To her, it would seem, he was always the ideal of her school girl days and always the belief that he would sometime marry her. It was not until she was twenty-five years old that she learned that he had married another.

And then it would seem that doubt began to creep in. At any rate Dr. H. D. Haskell, president of the college, told her sisters when they came for her body that he had noticed for some time that Miss Baird had been much depressed. He had spoken to her at Easter time, asking her if she was suffering from any illness. In reply she said:

"No, I am not ill bodily, but I am trying to come to the decision of a question which has been with me night and day for twenty years."

She had then made Doctor Haskell a confidant—her only one, it seemed. For twenty years, she said, Hess had been paying marked attention to her. They had dined together, Doctor Haskell said she told him and gone to theaters and had shared in the deepest friendship. Why all this had not developed into marriage she did not make clear.

A few weeks ago the doubt turned to certainty. She was teaching when she received the news that Hess had again married another. At once she began to break. Two nights later she went to her room early. Somewhere she had secured some cyanide potassium. She destroyed many letters and then disrobing, arranged her bed for sleep. She wrote a few notes and then at last came to the letter she was to write to Hess.

As she wrote, the poison before her in her mind, no doubt, came a vision. She seemed to see before her her old sweetheart, and beside him this new wife who had taken the place she should have belonged to. And she seemed to see herself, a spirit shape, standing between them and holding them apart and seeing this she set down her pen and in the night—will she think that she feels cold, dead arms beside hers and on her lips the frozen kisses of a woman dead?

At night but my dead face will be between you; your lips will never touch hers but my dead lips will be there first.

"Every day of your married life will be a curse. Before the year ends you will do as I have done."

This she signed and sealed and then, mixing some of the poison in a little bowl, drank it and had just time to go to her bed and compose herself before the spasms of death that cyanide brings extinguished in her heart the love that for twenty-five years had tortured her.

Her body was found the next morning. The sisters who came for it told Dr. Haskell that they had known of her friendship with Hess, but that she had never revealed to them the depth of her love for him.

"No doubt her age made the situation clearly marked for her to bear," Dr. Haskell said. "For twenty years or more she had loved this man; the best of her—her youth—had been taken, and when he whom she had loved so faithfully, she had lost out of her life by marrying another, it must have been more than she could bear."

"When word of the suicide was brought to Hess he said:

"Miss Baird was a word-painter and inclined to draw on her imagination. If she was infatuated with me, that was her own lookout. Twenty-five years ago I was a student, but I was married about that time and forgot about her. When my wife died, I was in correspondence with and saw Miss Baird at times. A week ago I was in the city and she came to see me. Since our boy-and-girl affair of twenty-five years ago there has been nothing more than a friendship between Miss Baird and myself."

Hess also remarked that he had received many letters from Miss Baird, four within the last month—but "I never answered any of these letters. I did not lead the woman on after my first marriage. She was a very nice girl during the interim between the death of my first wife and my marriage last week. I saw Miss Baird last Spring for the first time in five years."

Miss Baird was a word-painter and wrote in passionate and romantic vein. She was a writer of fiction, you know, and of the artistic temperament that leads one to overdraw their feelings. I am as much surprised as any one that she should pen such a note to me on the brink of death. There was no excuse for it, so far as I am concerned. I am sure she did not mean to do me any harm. I am not superstitious."

Nevertheless, the day after the letter was revealed, Hess and his bride left the city quickly without telling any of their numerous friends where they were going or when they would be back. This unquestionably was the first reaction.

And what will follow? Even if the man can resolutely thrust from his mind the threat of the woman who died because she loved him too well, will his wife be able to forget? When she greets him—and in the night—will she think that she feels cold, dead arms beside hers and on her lips the frozen kisses of a woman dead?

DER KAISER'S SONS

By W. F. Kirk.

In some glad hour far away—un-dreamed of at the present day—some later Homer, taking wing, about Der Kaiser's sons will sing.

Der Kaiser's sons are soldiers, too. They fight the crimson seasons through. That is, they wear their uniforms and sidestep through the raging storms. The screaming shells, with all their speed, have never tested this gangling breed. No bullet from an allies' trench has found them where they "play the bench."

Der Kaiser's sons are grim and grim and look on human life like him. When their poor dupes are slain groups they prate about "our gallant troops!" How murky is the German mind! To all this selfish slaughter blind! How worse than blind do the shells are thick that miss Der Kaiser and his sons!

And still we see Death's angel roam from German home to German home. And still we see that royal brood all safe as if in solid gold! One of them loses now and then, another fifty thousand men, but not one "Prince" (God save the mark!) steps into the Eternal Dark.

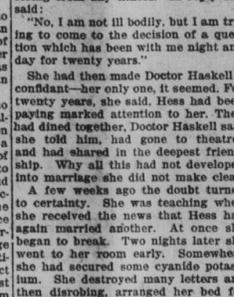

No race so blind will ever be as those who cannot, will not see! How will Der Kaiser's glory fall when weighed in history's level scale! This King who dreamed of Caesar's reign without one-tenth of Caesar's brain! This man whoaped Napoleon's will without Napoleon's matchless skill! This, only this, will history say, when telling of this war's last day: "The allies crushed the last weak drive. The Kaiser's sons are all alive! The only man of all colossal, almost incredible ignorance. Only one thing can effectively enlighten them—a constant preaching of thrift in their hearing by fellow citizens.

The newspapers have forcefully been preaching thrift. From the pulpit clergymen have been earnestly advocating it. Lecturers on war savings continue to urge it. Every department of the government has urged it through innumerable pamphlets and posters.

Yet all this has not been enough. Thriftlessness still is rampant. Something else is needed.

That something, it seems to me, is persistent talk about thrift, in the home and on the street, by all persons who appreciate the exceptional need for thrift at the present time. Let thrift become a general topic of conversation, and it is safe to predict that waste and extravagance will soon be far less in evidence than they are today.

Many people, it is important to remember, do not read newspapers carefully. Many do not read them at all, because they are illiterate and can read nothing.

Many never go to church. Many have failed to attend a single war lecture. Many do not give even a passing thought to books, pamphlets, or posters on serious subjects.

Such people necessarily remain unaffected by the various agencies for inculcating thrift.

If they are wasters they continue to be wasteful—particularly with regard to food—because they early acquire habits of wastefulness, and because their mental habits are such that they are adamant to most educational influences.

IT'S HOW—NOT WHAT!

What a strange world this would be if everybody won his fight! If there were none about but successful people. But its strangeness would be wrapped in a kind of tragedy.

For a world demands color, contrast, and offsets to make it real. It is worth more than the greatest fortune to humanity to have had in its midst such a brain as that of Robert Browning, who could at the close of his life, say that "what I aspired to be, and was not, comforts me."

It's the fine failures, who aspire and work, yet who lose their point that make effort endurable.

A friend of mine, in looking at a beautiful work of art with me, recently remarked that he liked it because the artist had made such a failure of his picture. That he had attempted a magnificent theme but did not succeed with it.

I took an added interest in that picture, after my friend's remark and I wanted to own it as an inspiration to me.

It's the way you take up and handle the reins of life that counts, not wholly where you go or what you do. Many years ago I came across a wonderful little poem that I learned. I will quote it as I recall it. I do not know the author.

"He cast his net at noon, when fishers toil,
At ev'n he drew it empty to the shore;
He took the drier's plunge into the sea,
But therein, within his hands,
No precious pearls he bore;
He ran a race, but he never reached the goal;
He sped an arrow, but he missed his aim;
And slept, at last, beneath a solitary stone,
With no achievement carved about his name.
Men called it failure, but as for myself,
I dare not use the word—
For what if Heaven, shall question,
Ere his judgment shall be given,
Not hast thou won, but only HAST THOU STRIVEN!"

PRIVATE DANNY'S WAR BOOK

By FRAZIER HUNT.

Well what do you think—old Corporal Jake Wart who I always thought had so much bone in his dome has turned out to be a regular kind of a person. He and Sandy and me is now the best of friends and along with Private Pete Peters is four of a kind.

Last night the word was kind of passed around that within 48 hours we would be starting for France and Sandy and me decided that we would have a final evening in a little town that is near Camp Merritt here. So we beat it out and sneaked by the guard and went to a picture show over there and ate about 40 cents worth of soda apiece and acted like we was having a heck of a time.

Well along about 10 o'clock we decided we would sneak back through our guards to our barracks. But just as we was leaving the picture show who should we run head on into but Corporal Wart.

"Hello boys," he said kind of throwing us off our guards with a kind tone. "I didn't know you fellows was on a pass."

Neither Sandy nor me said anything for about a half minute and then Sandy said, "Well I suppose we are caught red handed. We ain't got any more pass than a jay bird."

"Well that's all right. I guess I can get you in," he said.

"What did you say?" Sandy asked not believing his ears.

BALLPLAYER I

THE MAN

There have been cases and hundreds of them, who have been released for many errors, but there has been one in baseball history who has been released for having no skill. He was a Scanian of Washington, D. C., and he was ever been an excellent player. He had a famous player in his position, but he was a ball club in that city, and he was a player in the game. He was a player in the game, and he was a player in the game.

It was the last year of player on the diamond while peerless shortstop get balls that looked to even in his latter years could not be hit apparently.

FAILURE OF HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE BOUT NO SURPRISE

The abandonment of the proposed heavyweight championship boxing bout between Jess Willard, titleholder, and Fred Fulton, challenger, of Minnesota, which was scheduled to be held somewhere in the United States July 4, has been taken more or less agreeably by the followers of boxing.

Willard's retirement, following so closely the abandonment of the title bout, likewise will be taken calmly by followers of the sport, who have long held the opinion that Willard would not again be seen in a public ring encounter where his laurels were at stake.

Since the news was first broadcast that the men had signed articles for the bout under the direction of Colonel Miller, public sentiment experienced a great change. Taken at first with a display of enthusiasm and expectation, principally through the announced intention of the principals to make it a fitting war-time championship bout, feeling against the contest took a turn. Disapproval made itself manifest when, instead of a championship bout over a distance, the contest was reduced to a ten-round affair, in which it was the universal opinion Willard's title would be safe.

BALLPLAYER IS FIRED BECAUSE HE MADE NO ERRORS IN 20 GAMES

There have been cases in baseball, and hundreds of them, where players have been released for having too many errors, but there has been one case in baseball history where a man was released for having no errors. Mike Scanlan of Washington, D. C., the father of baseball at the capital, who has ever been an excellent judge of a player, had a famous player in the past under his charge when he was manager of a ball club in that city. This famous player was Dave Foust, second to George Wright as a shortstop of the past. He began his career with Mr. Scanlan and ended it with him. All practical baseball men know that a man who gets older in the game is covering less ground—especially if he is an infielder.

It was the last year of this famous player on the diamond and the erstwhile peerless shortstop that used to get balls that looked to everybody else, in his latter years couldn't gather balls that were hit apparently at him, but somehow he had the art of going for the ball, but never got his hands on it, therefore no error could be charged.

BURNS AND SISLER IN DRIVE FOR SECOND PLACE BATTING HONORS

A drive for second place batting honors in the American League is under way with Burns and Sisler as the first basemen, leading the attack. Burns placed George Sisler during the week ending last Wednesday, and has an average of .365. Sisler is 6 points behind him. "Babe" Ruth continues at the top of the list with a mark of .407, but he has been out of the game because of illness. Sisler continues to show the way to the base stealers with 16. McNamara of Boston tied his team-mate, Sean for honors in sacrifice hitting with 13. Walker of Philadelphia still leads in home run hitting with 6. The leading batters: Ruth, Boston, .407; Burns, Philadelphia, .385; Sisler, St. Louis, .364; Baker, New York, .352; Walker, Philadelphia, .349; Hooper, Boston, .348; Strunk, Boston, .338; Schulte, Washington, .323; Spauldinger, Cleveland, .319; Gandil, Chicago, .319.

"Don't drive over crushed stones in wet weather." Mr. Storms advises: "The sharp edge of each stone is as dangerous as a bayonet, if your tires are wet. If your tires are dry, the stones are practically harmless. "I have notified that the workmen in our rubber factory have found it necessary to cut rubber, a small stream of water was allowed to play on the knife and on the piece of rubber to be cut. Water has a peculiar action on rubber. Draw the wet blade of a knife over a wet piece of rubber and the latter is cut as readily as a slice of roast beef. Draw a

THE GRAND OLD MAN.

By Robert L. Ripley. Ty Cobb a Grand Old Man? The dashing Georgian is now the Grand Old Man of the American League. Ty is the oldest regular in point of service in that circuit—since the passing of Sam Crawford and the resignation of Terry Turner to the role of substitute. This is Cobb's fourteenth season with Detroit—and yet he may play regularly this year, as game. It seems unusual that any one as young as Cobb should enjoy such distinction. Ty is thirty-one, and while there are others in the league older in years there is none who has served as many years in major league baseball as is used as a coach by the Browns, although he is listed a member of the team.

—BY RIPLEY.

Sherwood Magee is the real veteran of big league baseball, however. "Sherry" is entering his fifteenth season as a regular, and has without question, played more big league games than any one in either league. George Paskert is the oldest player in either league—admitting to thirty-seven years. Jimmy Austin and Terry Turner are thirty-six years old, and Magee is thirty-four. Here are some other players who are as old or older than Cobb: Gravelly Archer, Ames, Daubert, Eldring, Moeller, Wilson, Sallee, Herzog, Stange, Shotton, Baker, Nishoff, Doyle, Fletcher, Luderus and Killifer.

OF INTEREST TO DOG FANCIERS

Importation of High Class Breeding Stock Prohibited By Recent Regulation.

There is considerable interest among New Brunswick dog fanciers over the fact that on the official list of goods, the importation of which is embargoed except under special license appears "dogs for the improvement of stock." This ruling will not affect St. John as much directly, as indirectly, as most of the dogs brought here for stock improvement purposes come from Upper Canada. Quite a number have, however, been brought from the United States and some few from the Old Country.

The embargo will have the effect of limiting the supply of imported canines for the big Upper Canadian kennels as a literal reading of the regulations seems to indicate that the importation of dogs is at an end until after the war at least. At the present time, dogs are on the way to Canada from England many well known, high priced, dogs and as they were purchased before the present order was promulgated it is believed they will be allowed to come in. Future importations are, however, causing the fanciers some thought. As dog shows are under the ban in England during the period of the war and breeding has been greatly curtailed there it was possible for Canadian buyers to pick up good stock at something like a reasonable figure. As the result of the situation in England American dog buyers have turned their attention to Canada and at the recent Upper Canadian shows several notable sales were made. With the importation of new stock prohibited, however, it is expected Canadian breeders will prefer to retain what they have rather than sell their promising puppies as heretofore.

WHERE ARE JOCKEYS.

It is generally agreed that the present crop of race riders lacks class. There isn't a jockey on the turf today that compares with the once invincible Tod Sloan. You can't find the equal of Willie Shaw, one of the most capable riders that ever climbed into a saddle. Go down the line and recall the days of Walter Miller, who rode more than 300 winners in a single season; Jack Martin, the king of money riders; Fred Tavel, Benny Maher, Snapper, Garrison, George Odom, Willie Sims, Harry Griffin, Lucien Lyle, Joe Notter, Arthur Redfern, Winnie O'Connor, Eddie Tusa, Carroll a shifting, Milton Henry, Grove Cleveland Fuller, Sam Duggett, the Reiff brothers, Vincent Powers, Jimmy McLaughlin, Isaac Murphy, Herman Radtke, John Bullman, Sewel, Hilderbrand, Tommy Burns, Patey McCree, Spencer, the Ice Man, Nash Turner and McCafferty. These men were real jockeys, high salaried and greatly in demand. Incidentally, they attracted the public whenever they secured mounts in the big events.

NEW BOXING CHAMPIONS PROBABLE AFTER THE WAR

Training Camp Instruction Will Develop Experts and Enthusiasts — Red Cross Glove Bouts Under Mayor's Window in Philadelphia — Other Ring Gossip.

After the Hun has been humbled, and the peace loving peoples of the earth can retire for a night's slumber without danger of being awakened by the explosion of Boche bombs, there promises to be the greatest revival of boxing that ever has marked any branch of vigorous sport. The obvious truth of this assertion is the fact that nearly every soldier of the numerous training camps in America has had enough instruction in boxing by an expert to assure a knowledge of the science, or else to instill in him a liking for the sport. The result is that when Uncle Sam's boys come marching home after being a K. O. on the Hun chime, there will be an army of boxing enthusiasts who will be anxious to follow up the sport as spectators.

Question of Courage.

Jimmy Dunn, who was manager of Johnny Kilbane, recently made the surprising announcement that in his opinion a boxer who took the count showed a lack of courage. Dunn added: "I won't say that a game fighter never takes a knockout—but hardly ever. I am sure that a big percentage of the knockouts we see in the ring are not real knockouts at all. A fighter that is thoroughly game at heart will pull through the toughest sort of a beating before he will refuse to get up from the floor on the count." This is a direct contradiction of the statements of medical experts, who declare that partial or complete unconsciousness can be produced by a blow on the point of the jaw. Those familiar with knockouts in the ring are well aware that many boxers do not recover from the effects of blows on the jaw for several minutes, and that in other cases the victims of these blows while not entirely unconscious are unable to shake off the drowsy sensation before the referee has counted ten.

Boxing in Philadelphia.

Boxing is playing a leading part in the Red Cross drive over in Philadelphia, where genuine glove contests are staged on the city hall plaza, just beneath the windows of the mayor's office, in order to produce funds for the war. When Kilbane was being buffeted about the ring by Benny Leonard and seemed on the verge of a knockout, Dunn tossed a towel into the ring at a time when his man was still on his feet, although groggy and unable to fight back. Does Mr. Dunn's action indicate his belief that Kilbane is lacking in courage? Peculiar Wager. One of the most peculiar wagers in the history of boxing was offered by a man who attended the bout between Johnny Ertle and Pal Moore at Baltimore. The bet was a race track man who wanted to bet $1,000 to $200 that Moore would win, but he insisted on a provision that in case of a knockout the bet was off. In other words he wanted to bet that Ertle would not outpoint Moore, barring all efforts at a knockout. It merely bore out the argument by a Moore had no punch and simply relied upon his footwork to keep him out of danger, admitting at the same time that Kewpie was dangerous at all times with a K. O. wallop. The Washington man did not get any coin down on the conditions named, but there was plenty of betting outside of that. One Eyed Connolly Won. One Eyed Connolly, who was the butt of jokes in pugilistic circles for years was also a punching bag for the rough necks of the club. One night in Chicago, Connolly was maltreated by a gang of toughs led by a rough person known as Tom O'Brien, while Connolly went away and hunted up Bill Bradburn, one of the strongest, most courageous pugilists in the history of the sport. Bradburn was a peaceable chap until attacked and then he was a fury. After Bradburn had heard One Eyed Connolly's tale of woe, the fighter said, "Come with me." Straight to the scene of the attack went Bradburn with Connolly and one or two others following. Arriving at the room, Bradburn strode in with the fighter said, "Walking up to the bar Bradburn said: 'Mr. Barkeep, this is my friend Mr. Connolly. He is going to have a drink with me and I would like to see any gaiety in this room interfere.' The fighter glared significantly at O'Brien and his gang, who never made a move, knowing that Bradburn, who was a terrific tough and tumble fighter, would tear them to pieces. After Bradburn and Connolly had Hourless is in stud. Major August Belmont's great four-year-old Hourless has been bred to the aged mare Fairy Gold. This means that the son of Negafol will never race again. When Hourless broke down a short time ago it was said that he would be retired to the stud. But until several days ago it was not known that he was already standing. Major Belmont, by the way, says that Hourless was not badly broken down. He says it would have been a simple matter for Trainer Sam Hildreth to bring him around again in a month's time. However, it was decided that he would be of more value in the stud than in active campaigning. Fairy Gold, to which Hourless has been bred, or which has been bred to Hourless, is twenty-two years of age. She is a great brood mare, and Major Belmont expects great things from her mating with his son of Negafol.

COAL OIL JOHNNY, THE CROSS MONEY BURNER

His Spectacular Six Months' Whirl of Wealth That Made Even Broadway Blink.

There's something which gets into the blood of men when the black, smelly oil comes bubbling out of the earth and they find themselves suddenly rich. Take "Coal Oil Johnny" for instance. "Coal Oil Johnny" began life on a county poor farm. At twenty-one he was lighting $1 cigars with $50 greenbacks.

The story begins one day in 1887, when William McClintock, owner of an almost worthless patch of ground in Pennsylvania, and his wife went to the county poor farm to adopt a child. There they found a lad, about twelve years old, who bore the name of John W. Steele, and his sister. They adopted these children.

A short time later William McClintock died. His widow, suddenly realizing how uncertain life is, then made a will. The will left $20,000, all she and her husband had been able to save, to the adopted daughter, Steele got the farm, which probably was worth a couple of hundred dollars.

A dreamer happened along, Colonel Edwin L. Drake was considered a moonbeam chaser. His dream was of oil. The slimy fluid was known. At different points along Oil Creek in Venango County, Pennsylvania.

springs issued from the banks of the stream, bringing up more or less oil, which collected upon the surface of the water as it stood in the pools below the springs.

The inhabitants were accustomed to collect the oil by spreading woolen cloths upon the water and wringing them when saturated. It was put in bottles and sold as medicine. "Medically," says an old history, "it has been found efficacious in suppurating wounds, also in headache, toothache, swellings, rheumatism, dislocations and as a disinfectant."

Struck Oil.

But its use as fuel for lighting had been proved, and men with vision saw the possibility. Colonel Drake and a handful of supporters believed that oil could be had by drilling. The colonel persuaded the Widow McClintock to allow him to drill for oil on one corner of the farm. In a few months the farm was dotted all over with derricks, and Mrs. McClintock had sent to Pittsburgh for a big safe into which she was stuffing money and bonds. For every other barrel of oil which gushed from the earth she got fifteen dollars. Millions of barrels of oil gushed in every section of Venango County. Fortunes were won and lost almost in the blink of an eye. The first oil sold at fifty cents a gallon. Soon the creek bottoms were flooded with the slimy fluid and thousands of barrels of it were sold as low as five cents a barrel.

Many of those who made a fortune and went broke became independently wealthy again by hauling oil to market. Thousands of teams were used. A teamster was considered cheap at $15 and $20 a day. It was here that John D. Rockefeller stripped off his coat and with his own hands guided the drills which laid the foundation for his great wealth.

Never Expected to be So Well and Strong Again—An Enthusiastic Statement Endorsed by a Postmaster.

Parkerville, N. B., Mar. 23.—Here is a cheerful letter from a man who was greatly broken in health and much discouraged. Fortunately he found in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food the exact treatment he required and was fully restored to health and vigor.

As a blood builder and invigorator of the nervous system, this food cure of Dr. Chase's is a most remarkable record. You can prove this for yourself by reading the letters published in this paper.

Mrs. W. A. Rudolph, Liscombe, N. S., writes: "Some time ago I was so run down I could not walk any distance without getting out of breath. When I went to bed at night I could not rest, my heart was so bad and my breath so short, I had begun to think I would have to give up working, when I saw Dr. Chase's Nerve Food advertised, and read of how other people suffering as I was had been helped. I sent for four boxes, took them, and now, thanks to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I am feeling well again, and can rest well at night. I hope someone who is suffering as I was may see this letter and be induced to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, as I feel sure they will obtain speedy relief from this treatment."

"This is to certify that I am acquainted with Mrs. Rudolph, and believe her statement regarding Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to be true and correct."—Mr. W. A. McDiarmid, Postmaster.

It was a merry day. When the lease expired the landlord took back the hotel and reinstated the clerk. Steele's anger rose. He went across the street, bought the Girard House, reduced the rates and took in all the patronage.

Broadway knew him next. Steele wagged a bottle of wine he could spend $10,000 a day for sixty days without giving any of it away. He won easily. Cafe managers patted him on the back and called him "Johnny."

Whenever Steele and his retinue of hangers-on went the wine glasses were kept full. Night after night was spent beneath the rose shaded lights. The Great White Way gurgled with delight. It was too good to last. The streams of oil pouring from his farm back home became sickly, weakened and dwindled out. Wickham declined to carry out the agreement and Steele found himself a bankrupt. Don't Diet Yourself TO CURE DYSPEPSIA IT ISN'T NECESSARY

The sufferer from dyspepsia and indigestion who has to pick and choose his food, is the most miserable of all mankind. Even the little he does eat causes such torture, and is digested so imperfectly that it does him little good. What dyspepsia does is not dieting, or artificial digestants, but something that will put their stomach right so it will manufacture its own digestive ferments.

For forty years saw Burdock Blood Bitters has been making weak stomachs strong, and curing severe cases of dyspepsia and indigestion that other remedies were powerless to reach.

It restores the stomach to a normal healthy condition so that the food no longer causes distress, but is thoroughly digested and assimilated, and goes on its way making rich, red blood.

Mrs. Henry Shaw, Campbellton, N. B., writes: "I was for five years troubled with a weak stomach, and could not eat any food that would agree with me. I tried different medicines, but could not get cured. A friend advised me to take Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles, and now I am in perfect health."

FREE TO MEN Manly Vigor—something New

Here is a little free pocket compendium in book form illustrated with 40 half-tone photographs, and containing 8,000 words of easy advice on private matters which I gladly send to any man anywhere in the world absolutely free of charge, and enclosed in a perfectly plain, sealed envelope, so it is received by you like an ordinary private letter. I take all this special precaution in sending my free book because where the health is concerned, and especially with reference to debility and nerve weakness, people everywhere prefer to keep the matter entirely to themselves. For this reason I seal the envelope and prepay full letter postage. I have thus mailed over a million of the books to men all over the world who requested them.

You, reader, will like this little book immensely, and can grasp the full meaning of its special advice from one or two careful readings. It contains a great deal of heretofore unpublished information of interest to all men, young or elderly, single or married, and may easily be of value to you throughout your entire lifetime.

In one part of the book I describe my little mechanical VITALIZER, which was invented by me to assist men to regain lost vigor. However, you are not to think of getting this VITALIZER at the present time, but first send for the advice book and read up on the subject of self preservation without drugs.

Please use the coupon below and the book will come to you free, sealed, by return mail.

SANDEW, Publisher.

Many Men Are Always In The Game.

Reader, did you ever stop to consider that it is not books which make the real man? Nor is it necessarily a large man who wields the most power in his community. However, whether big or small, young or elderly, we invariably find that vigorous, manly manhood stands behind all of the world's greatest achievements and successes. In this respect, I give it as my honest opinion, based upon over 30 years' experience, that no man need lose hope of himself restoring his full manly power if he but be willing to make a fair, square effort, and will lead a decent, manly life, free from excess and free from dissipation. My free book gives you all the desired information. According to my belief, lost manly strength is no real organic disease in itself, and, for that reason, should easily respond to any mode of treatment which puts new vital force into the weakened nerves and blood. The little VITALIZER mentioned above was designed by me to render aid to the man who really is willing to make a reasonable attempt to get strong, and who effort to regain his manly vigor. To the man who persists in living an unnatural life of excess and dissipation, no hope can be offered, but for the other kind there is every hope and encouragement, because in regulating his habits he has taken the first grand and necessary step, which prepares the way for the action of any natural treatment which may re-supply his body with the FORCE which it has been drained of.

With respect to my VITALIZER, you simply buckle it on your body when you go to bed. Thus, while you sleep, it sends a great, mysterious power (which I call VIGOR) into your blood, nerves and muscles while you sleep. Men have said it takes from one application; that 60 to 90 days' use is sufficient to restore normal, manly strength.

Therefore, first get the free book of general advice to men, which also describes my VITALIZER. Then, if in the future you feel you would like to use one of these little appliances in your own case, I will make some special proposition whereby you may have one to wear. If I happen to live in or near this city, I would be pleased to have you call. Otherwise, just use the coupon and get the free book by return mail. Office hours, 9 to 6.

Remember, I will send you, as stated above, my little book or pocket compendium, containing 40 illustrations and 8,000 words of private advice free, sealed, by mail.

This book is meant to point out to men certain errors which are being committed all over the world today by those who do not realize the harm resulting. It gives, in condensed form, and in easy language, the truth that I have learned from years upon years of experience. It deals with vigor and manly power as against weakness and debility. One part of the book describes my little VITALIZER, so all information is complete in this one volume. Please write or call today. Satisfaction guaranteed in every case.

ATTENTION! Sick Women

To do your duty during these trying times your health should be your first consideration. These two women tell how they found health.

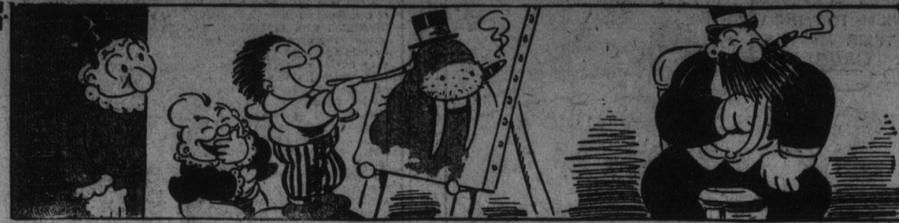

Hellam, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and a displacement. I felt all run down and was very weak. I had been treated by a physician without result, so I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and felt better right away. I am keeping house since last April and doing all my housework, where before I was unable to do any work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly the best medicine a woman can take when in this condition. I give you permission to publish this letter."—Mrs. E. R. CRYSLING, R. No. 1, Hellam, Pa.

Lowell, Mich.—"I suffered from cramps and dragging down pains, was irregular and had female weakness and displacement. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which gave me relief at once and restored my health. I should like to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies to all suffering women who are troubled in a similar way."—Mrs. ELISE HUNN, R. No. 6, Box 68, Lowell, Mich.
