Systematic Looting of the Summer Palace.

Russians Said To Be Evacuating Pekin-Germans to Occupy the Forbidden City.

London, Oct. 1 .- A dispatch to the Times from St. Petersburg confirms the reports that the town of Kirin surrendered to the Russians without a shot on peremptory orders from Prince Ching. The dispatch says that if simflar orders shall be issued with regard to Mukden the Russian conquest of Manchuria will be completed. According to the same authority no further reinforcements will be required by the Russian commanders in the far east.

MORE CONFUSION.

London, Monday, Oct. 1-3:30 a.m.-Beyond a sheaf of imperial edicts, which throw into still worse confusion the complicated Chinese situation, there is little in today's news to arrest attention. From Shanghai comes an unconfirmed report that the alies have seized Shan Hai Wan. All the news with regard to the edicts emanates from Shanghai.

Pekin, Sept. 24, via Taku, Sept. 27 .-

Prince Ching has addressed notes to the ministers acknowledging their letters, suggesting that the court return to Pekin. He announces that he has dispatched a memorial covering the subject to the dowager empress. It is practically determined that Count Von Waldersee shall occupy one of the imperial palaces in the Forbidden City when he arrives, and a large portion of the German army will be quartered there. There is a complete reversal of the former policy to protect the Forbidden City. The Americans disapprove of this, but will not enter a protest. HIDDEN DEFENSES

Among Them Are Twenty-Six Forts, 800 95-Ton Guns and 50,000 Gunners.

Perhaps you have just returned from Paris, enthusiastic over the sights Here are some things you didn't see:

Seven great forts about the city, eight miles away from its walls. Nineteen smaller forts, four miles out, containing three acres and mounting two 95-ton guns.

Great stacks of 160-pound melinite shells ready for these guns to hurl.
Twenty-one miles of continuous fortifications about the town-earthwork walls 150 feet thick at the base and fronted by 45-foot moats.

Three hundred emplacements along this giant wall for as many 95-ton cannon, kept free from rust in the Champs de Mars arsenal and ready to be swung into place at any time. But anywhere else among the sights mentioned-and surely they are worth seeing-a visitor might be apt to have his feelings hurt, especially if he caried a camera.

So cleverly are the forts masked by long slopes of green turf and the walls by trees and bushes, that one can pass in and out of Paris a dozen times and see scarcely a trace of its famous fortifications.

The range of the 95-ton gun is over ten miles—some say fourteen. Beneath their at present untenanted beds on the rampart are stone casemates for ammunition, with small transfer wagons. These casemates are open upon the inner base of the wall, and a set of rails, standard gauge, runs for the doorway to the top of the fortification. You must look for these rails in the grass, the general staff is so modest. Suppose war comes and the 300 guns must be mounted. Well, the staff has thought of that. The rails, standard gauge-that lie ready for the ammunition wagons can be linked with the tramway system of Paris.

No ordinary tramway would bear 95 tons, but that also has been thought of. The Paris tramways are built on solid oak, pinned to iron trestles, bedded in concrete.

To work these guns, were every man of the garrison drafted away, Paris has 50,000 trained artillerymen among her reservists. She could man every gun twice over, garrison all her forts with infantry reservists, and put a dozen cavalry regiments into the field for scouting purposes. Such a performance no other city on earth could

LONDON WON. The Sarnia intermediate Rugby team were up against it good and hard on Saturday, being turned down by the local team to the tune of 36 to 0. was the first game of the season here, and the attendance was good, considering the bad weather. The boys from the Tunnel Town were simply by ed by the locals, who held them safe at every point of the game. In the first half London made 20 points on good kicking by the back division and fast following up by the forwards. In the second half there was more scrimmage and running play, and 16 points were On the half-back line, rolled up. Taylor, Peel and Hueston all were in good trim, and gained ground time and again on hard dashes down the field. Taylor's goal kicking in the first half was remarkable. In the second he bucked the line time and again, and always for a substantial gain. Hugh Labatt, at quarter, proved a worthy successor to Frank Hobbs.

Sarnia failed to produce a referee, and their captain called upon Frank Hobbs to act, with Will Hobbs as umpire. The whistle blew at 3:35, and the teams lined up as follows:

to kick south with the wind. The kick-off was poorly returned, and it was London's ball on Sarnia's 40-yard line. A succession of scrimmages, and Peel kicked across the line. Kerrigan followed up fast, but Freeman dodged and punted to the 25-yard line. Hueston returned, and Freeman fumbled. Galbraith dropped on the ball for a try, which Taylor neatly converted. Score, 6-0. London worked the ball back from the half-way mark, and Hugh Labatt bucked the line for another try. The kick was easy, and Taylor again did the trick. Score. 12-From a throw-in near Sarnia's goalline, Gibbons grabbed the pigskin and was pushed across. The goal was a most difficult one, but Taylor scored neatly. Score, 18-0. Another punt was added on a long kick, which came out of bounds, and a second single came when Freeman was forced to rouge. Half - time; score. 20-0. wind had freshened, and the Sarnians had big hopes of scoring in the second half, when it was behind them. London kept possession of the ball, and worked it down the field on short runs by Peel, Taylor and Hueston, and then Labatt broke through the center and handed the ball to Taylor, who struggled across for a try. He missed the kick. Score, From the kick-off London again brought the ball down to Sarnia's line on short runs round the ends. There

ATHLETICS.

New York, Sept. 29 .- The annual fall games of the New York Athletic Club were held today at the club's summer home, Traverse Island, on the Sound. in the presence of about 7,000 specta-tors. The weather was raw and un-suitable to clever performances on track and field. Notwithstanding this, two world's records were broken. In the 440 yards run handicap, Maxwell W. Long, of Columbia University, covered the distance in the remarkable time of 47% seconds. These figures eclipse all former records, amateur and professional, on a circular track.

SUNDAY GAMES.

Long ran from scratch in a handicap race, and had to run rather wide at one of the turns, winning by 18 yards. The other world's record was made in the hammer-throwing event, in which John Flonagan, of the New York Athletic Club, sent the missile 169 feet 3 inches, beating the former record of 167 feet 8 inches, made by himself on the same ground two years ago. In the shot-putting event, Hor-gan, the holder of the English record, failed in his attempt to beat the American record of 47 feet, his best effort being 45 feet 4 inches. The swimming championship of the Amateur Athletic Union was held in conjunction with the meet, and E. C. Schaefer, of the University of Pennsylvania, carried off the 100 yards, 200 yards and 400 yards event. In the 100 yards he lowered the American record of 1 minute 8% seconds to 1 minute 5% seconds. Dr. W. G. Douglas, the old-time swimmer, carried off the half-mile in capital style, and his victory created great en-

CHINESE JUSTICE.

At 10 o'clock (June 27), says Admiral John W. Philip in the interesting passages from his diary published in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for October, I went down with 30 men to attend a meeting of the Chinese court. The business today consisted in comparing the English and Chinese records of the case and making them agree. They reexamined the two leaders, who are the Chung brothers, and occupied nearly the whole day in trying by different tortures to make these fellows confess to their guilt. One proceeding rather amused me, although it was barbarous. The leading mandarin had asked one of these brothers several questions, to which he would not answer to the satisfaction of the court, so the mandarin wrote out the evidence as he thought the criminal ought to speak it, and then told him to acknowledge that it was correct; and when the poor fellow refused to comply with court's request, he was tortured until he fainted in the court room and had to be removed. By the Chinese laws they cannot punish a person until he confesses to everything. If the court think the prisoner is telling lies they torture him for the truth; or, if he does not speak as they wish him to, and will not confess his guilt, they torture him in the most cruel manner until he does as they wish. As soon as he confesses he is beheaded, frequently in one hour. I was told in hat very often a crimina die under his tortures rather than confess himself guilty. These, I suppose are rare cases, where the man is really innocent of the crime charged. I have seen enough of Chinese jurisprudence to disgust me with it for the

The Hon. F. G. Marchand.

We feel it our duty to express sympathy with the Province of Quebec in the loss of its Prime Minister, the Hon. Felix-Gabriel Marchand, who passed sway on the 25th of September. As a man and a politician, Mr. Marchand was one of whom Canadians might well be proud, and his removal is a loss both to the Liberal party and the whole Province of Quebeo. La Patrie refers to "the long and brilliant career of this distinguished statesman, who entered politics without a stain, and left it unsofled"; while the Chronicle, of Quebec, sums it up by saying, "An honest man has gone to his reward." The Hon. Judge Loranger, speaking from the bench, referred to the departed statesman as "an enlightened jurist, a devoted patriot, a sincere and honest politician." These testimonies, to which many more might be added, are not exaggerations prompted by sorrow, but deliberate statements which find their confirmation in the story of the man's life. Marchand was indeed a fine specimen of a cultured Canadian gentleman, who devoted his life to the serwice of his country. As a youth he took an active interest in healthful sports, as well as duties; in middle life he was acquainted with commerce, as well as learned in the law. In addition to this, he was a man of great literary gifts, and as a writer of prose and poetry takes no mean place among French-Canadian authors; while all through his career he took a lively interest in public affairs. The mention of these different sides of his activity, which, if we had space, we might illustrate abundantly, will serve to confirm our statement that the late Prime Minister of the Province of Quebec was a fine, all round man of many-sided culture, and well-balanced

During the Femian raid Mr. Marchand was in active service, and the corps that he commanded was sent to the frontier. He commanded at that time the brigade composed of the Prince of Wales' Regiment, the Victoria Carbineers, the Royal Scots, the ga Battalion, and the Twentyfirst Battalion of Richelieu Infantry, as well as a detachment of Montreal ravalry. He was placed on the retired list in 1880, preserving his rank of lieutenant-colonel. On the 27th of December, 1897, he celebrated the 30th anniversary of his entry into political life, and was the recipient of many honors and kindly manifestations. Mr. Marchand was remarkable for his courtesy and chivalry, which endeared him to his friends and won the respect of political opponents. We trust that the good influence he exerted in the sister province will long remain to elevate political life.

On Old World Topics-Progress of the British Election Campaign-Tactics of the Liberals-Campbell-Bannerman's Policy - Domestic Reforms Advocated-Kruger's Baggage May Be Overhauled-German Views in Regard to China.

London, Sept. 20.—In regard to the spare themselves the trouble of in-political campaign, Mr. Ford says: sisting upon the reconstruction of the Elections held in uncontested boroughs | cabinet. That result is inevitable. give the Conservatives a strong lead, dislikes to break away from associbut do not offer a clear indication of stees of long standing, but he has few the trend of public opinion Mr Cham-intimate friends in the cabinet, and the trend of public opinion. Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Ritchie, Mr. Wyndham and Sir Henry Fowler are among the and Sir Henry Fowler are among the upon him by public opinion, and by candidates returned without oppositive preferences of overworked ministion. Six Birmingham seats were carried by the Conservatives without resistance, the polling being reserved in the seventh for Thursday. Mr. Cham-berlain is master of the situation on his own ground, having carried Birmingham with him out of the Liberal party and kept it behind him. The Conservatives have gained the seat in York, which Sir Frank Lockwood carried in 1895, and which was won by a narrow majority by Lord Charles Beresford in a bye-election. The Conservatives have been boasting that they would capture all but two of the London seats. John Burns has been making a vigorous canvass in Battersea, and not repudiating his record as a consistent opponent of the war, but the other Liberal candidates have been less energetic. On Saturday night a mass meeting at St. James' Hall was planned for the purpose of imparting courage to the Liberals in the metropolitan districts, and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman was summoned from Scotland as the chief speaker. The hall was crowded with a goodhumored holiday audience, eager to applaud any hard hit or to laugh at any pleasantry.

TACTICS OF THE OPPOSITION. The Liberal leader gave a most effective exhibition of the tactics of the opposition. He began by explaining the causes of Conservative depression. The ministers were conscious of hav-The ministers were conscious of hav-ing ordered a discreditable maneuver upon the case. Magon and Slidell had in dissolving parliament on a depleted money and state papers with them register and of having run tremendous risks in demanding a special demonstration of confidence when they had failed to deserve it, especially in South Africa, where only the skill of the generals and the bravery of the soliders had pulled them through. He next made an incisive reply to Mr. Chamberlain's defense of the publication of private letters of members of parliament. He disclaimed sympathy with the views of Labouchere and Dr. Clark, and described Ellis' letter as harmless: but apart from the contents of the captured correspondence, he denounced the publication of private letters by a government department for partisan ends as a discreditable act, for which there was no precedent for two hundred He described Mr. Chamberlain's act as a breach of honor and a breach of law, and remarked that anyone in private life who ventured to The demand for Nova Scotia coal is publish private letters would be flouted out of society. These hard blows delighted the audience, which clearly wanted to direct the attack upon Mr.

DOMESTIC REFORMS PROPOSED. The Liberal leader then took up Lord Rosebery's programme of domestic reforms, and advocated the housing of the working classes through special legislation, increased transit facilities at the expense of the land owners, practical temperance reform and am enlargement of the scope of the national system of education. The Liberal speakers are following a judicious line of their own, saying little about South Africa and taking their oue from Lord Rosebery in laying stress upon WORKING DISTRICTS STIRRED. The excitement is rising in the working districts, for Lord George Hamilton has been nearly mobbed in attempting to address a hostile audience. Mr. Burns' opposent in Battersea has abandoned public speeches. Oldham is in a ferment, and Labouchere is attended by a swarm of noisy admirers, who will not allow anyone to say aught against him. The effects of the prolonged strain of excitement over the war in South Africa are revealed in the conduct of the electors. There are evidences of nervous irritability and flightiness of mind on all sides. The leader of the opposition has come dangerously near giving Mr. Chamberlain the lie direct, and the ministers themselves seem stale and not in good form for an appeal to the electors.

CABINET CHANGES INEVITABLE. The Conservative press is fidgeting over ways and means of rallying the Imperialists, when in reality there is no cause for alarm on that score. Imperialists are rallying, but not in a single political camp. They have raised their standard at the Liberal as well as at the Conservative headquar ters, and have obtained control of both parties. Meanwhile the Conservative press is clamoring for a reconstruction of the cabinet, a definite programme of army reform, and even restoration of public confidence in the efficiency of the fleet. Lord Roberts has been nominated for secretary of war by one leading journal, and Lord Salisbury is warned by his most loyal supporters in the press that the country needs a positive assurance that the old cabinet gang must be turned out, new men put into right places and the military and naval services organized; not for peace but for effective warfare. These vagaries of judgment are signs that the country has been upset by the pres-sure of excitement over South Africa, and that sober-minded Englishmen are nervously everwrought. Lord Sal-has a high sense of public obligations. The changes in the cabinet are forced ters for retirement. Lord Lansdowns will be transferred to the foreign office. after the elections, and Lord Salisbury will coach him on China ques-tions. This is the result generally ex-pected in diplomatic circles."

KRUGER'S BAGGAGE. In regard to President Kruger and the report that he might carry Transvaal gold to Europe, Mr. Ford says: "The rumors that the British foreign office has protested against the removal of the archives of the Transvaad Government and the deportation of gold by a Dutch man of war, are partially confirmed. No resistance is offered to Mr. Kruger's departure, but the British Government is believed by authorities on international law to be authorities on international law to be within the rights in demanding a guarantee that no state property of the Transvaal is included in the baggage of Mr. Kruger and his followers. The British fleet has made no attempt since the outbreak of the war to prevent shipments of gold by the Transvaal Government from Delagoa Bay, and it seems doubtful whether a German liner would now be stopped and bullion er would now be stopped and bullion removed from it. The shipment of pubtic records by the Transvaal Government may be prohibited, but it ought to be as easy for Mr. Kruger's friends to conceal them on neutral territory as it has been to bury big guns where they could not be found. No reference has been made in discussions here to ment insisted upon their immediate release and their right to sail under a neutral flag with their state papers, and the treasury was triumphantly vindicated. The case will be even stronger if a man of war be substituted for a packet ship."

THE CHINESE QUESTION. Another correspondent cables: Judging from appearances, the British press is preparing the way for the announcement that Lord Salisbury has failed to agree to the proposals communicated in the German note. The papers which at first anguily declared that the statement made to the Associated Press was inaccurate are now rather silent or are taking the view that, after all, it is doubtful if it would be advisable for Great Britain to become a party to such a stringent measure. The statement regarding Lord Salisbury's determination created so much excitement and brought such severe comment from Berlin that it may result in Great Britain's formal reply not being delivered and may induce Germany to agree to a compromise arrangement Meanwhile the attitude of the European powers towards China remains in the same chaotic state. The Conservative party managers would, so far as Great Britain is concerned, gladly see this policy of delay extended over the next two weeks, so that no more handles could be afforded the Liberals in their vigorous attack upon the gov-

JOE LOSING HIS TEMPER. Mr. Chamberlain seems to be losing his temper. In reply to a popular statement by Hon. Philip Stanhope (Liberal, president of the National Reform Union) regarding the Hawkesley documents, Mr. Chamberlain telegraphs to the latter telling him he would "not be blackmailed by Stanhope or any-one else," adding: "There is no cor-respondence, and never has been, to prove my complicity in the raid, which

I did my utmost to stop." Mr. Stanhope replied: stop to qualify the vulgarity of your language, but I am prepared to sub-stantiate in the courts every statement I have made concerning you."

Mr. Chamberlain, however, is not expected to take the matter into the courts. But he hit back hard with a personal bitterness quite foreign to the traditions of the usually sedate cabinet

The latest feature of Mr. Chamberain's speeches consist in his holding up Dr. Gavin Brown Clark (Liberal), who was formerly consul-general of the South African republic in London, and Mr. Henry Labouchere, the editor of Truth, to ignominy as traitors, till the audience shouted, referring to Clark,

The RUNIANS, GRAY, CARRIE CO

"A LITTLE AFRICAN." Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the Liberal statesman, who has come out of retirement and has astonished the country by the virility of his speeches (he was born in 1827), scored a point by dubbing Mr. Chamberlain a "little African," on the ground that, as he claimed, Mr. Chamberlain would sacrifice anything for his African policy, and added: "Mr. Chamberlain, considering himself to be a Capt. Cook and a Gen. Wolfe, rolled into one, believes he discovered Australia and stormed

Quebec."
Thus attacked on all sides, the central figure of the campaign, Mr. Cham-berlain, would have excitement enough if the opposition to him were confined to the opponents of the government. That this is not the case is quite evident from the ill-concealed delight with which some of Mr. Chamberlain's supporters half the bitterest attacks on the colonial secretary, while the party leaders, though suppressing any per-sonal dislike, are seriously disturbed over the allegations connecting the Chamberlains with the Kynechs and other firms supplying the government.

IN IRELAND. In Ireland the election is interesting. A verbal fight is in progress between Mr. William O'Brien and Mr. Tim Healy. Mr. O'Brien is backed up by the United Irish League and Mr. John Dillon and others, while Mr. Healy has Mr. Tim D. Sullivan and several other prominent men arguing in his behalf. The result is that a large number of the constituencies will be contested by nominees of both Mr. O'Frien and Mr. Healy, who apparently profess the same political principles. This may give the Conservatives an opportunity to capture a few seats. Mr. John Redmond, the leader of the United Irish party, to which both Messrs. O'Brien and Healy belong, has quite failed to restore harmony. Mr. J. L. Carew, who has represented the College Green division of Dublin, is not only opposed by a Conservative, but by a candidate put forward by a number of his constituents who are opposed to him because he attended the Queen's garden

CONSERVATIVES DIVIDED. The Conservative party in Dublin is also torn by internal dissensions over the refusal of Horace Plunkett, who represented the south division of Dublin county, and who is vice-president of the department of agriculture and other technical industries, a commissioner of the congested districts board of Ireland, and also a commissioner of the colonization board of Scotland and Ireland, and who founded the Irish Agricultural Association, to debar home rulers from positions in the department of agriculture, and by the sup-port which Mr. Gerald Balfour, the chief escretary for Ireland, has given his actions. A curious feature of this dissension, which is the most bitter the Conservatives in Ireland have had in years, is that the Guinness millionaires, Lord Iveagh and Lord Ardilaun, are taking opposing views, and are who represented Caithness-Shire, and sustaining them vigorously with their wealth and influence.

> McKINLEY BLAMED. The Chinese situation particularly Germany's proposal and the United States' answer, monopolized public attention in Berlin during the week. The press, both semi-official and independent, continues to severely blame President McKinley for his refusal to agree with the proposition of Germany. The Cologne Gazette, which since the outbreak of the China troubles, has been the favorite mouthplece, daily, of the foreign office, this week combatted the view that Germany had been trying to embark the other powers on dangerous seas or attempting to obtain the lead in the Chinese negotiations. The Lokal Angieger argues that the United States knows through Minister Conger that the Chinese ment has been the real culprit. Hence, it adds, it is ridiculous to expect this in its reply to Germany.' TUAN MUST BE PUNISHED. The report that Prince Tuan has been appointed to a post where his inbeen appointed to a post where his influence for evil is even greater than it formerly was is here regarded by it formerly was, is here regarded by government and press as unmistakable evidence that the Chinese government does not want peace. The argument, besides, is that Germany's demand that China give up the ringleaders before peace negotiations are begun, must be complied with by China in same government to punish itself, "as

WOMAN BALLOONIST fiek[ueG]sA.[Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 1. - Jennie Woodall, a balloonist, who made an ascension from a Vigo county fair, was unable to cut her parachute loose and fell with the balloon on the track of the Southern Indiana Railroad, directly in front of a rapidly moving freight train. The engineer managed to stop his locomotive just in time to escape running over the woman. So near was the engine to the prostrate airship that the balloon's canvas enveloped the stack, driving back the gas and smoke from the firebox into the cab, and almost suffocating the engineer and fireman. The aeronaut was not injured, but she was thoroughly drenched by passing through the lowflying rain clouds.

She had made the ascension at the Pierson fair in this county. When the crowd saw her unavailing efforts to cut the twisted parachute ropes, there was much excitement. Women fainted and men procured horses to follow in the direction the balloon had sailed away. The balloon passed out of sight when it entered the clouds, and its landing place was three miles from the fair grounds. The woman did not appear to be nervous, and in regard to the accident said: "I couldn't cut loose, so there was nothing for me to do but sit still and await the results. I could not see the ground part of the time, and when I was in the clouds I could not see anything.'

Rsv. J. G. Shearer Advises the Chris- charge of being disorderly, by gambltian People of Canada to Take ing in the park, and failed to appear, Prompt Steps to Preserve the Integrity and Sanctity of the Sabbath.

Speaking in St. James' Presbyterian in the park, and paid $2 therefor. Church last evening, Rev. J. G. Shearer, Thos. Faulds was fined $1 for breach secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, said that one of the most vital questions the Christian people of Canada had to deal with was that of Sabbath observance. Indeed, he believed the integrity and sanctity of the Lord's Day was at stake. Already Canada had its Sunday street cars, its railroad and steamboat traffic, and ice cream parlor. Did anyone, he asked, realize what these things meant, where they were going to end? Works of mercy and of necessity were always permitted but now the church is asked to sanction works of public and commercial convenience. No one could say that the Sunday street car is a work of necessity in Canada, but it could not be denied that it was one of great convience then, as on any other day. This beng so, why not have a Sunday de-livery of mail, the Sunday newspaper, Sunday theater, the Sunday saloon, together with Sunday photograph and dentistry business, and the open grocery store and butcher shop? Most of these things he was very sorry to say in heavy fall and winter staples. The existed in Canada today, especially in Montreal, where the people are now seriously alarmed about the matter.
These things were all brought about on the insidious plea of public convenience. Worst of all, said Mr. Shearer. the law of the country seems to sancton these evils, as the Lord's Day Alliance have found out when they have sought redress in the courts. Corporations were protected on all hands, an instance of which Rev. Mr. Shearer said occurred recently in this city. Was Canada going to be allow ed to become a rival to the United States, where three are some 3,000,000 at work on the Sabbath Day It was not yet too late to take action to prevent this evil from getting too firm a hold in our country, but whatever was done should be done earnestly and promptly. Concluding, the reverend gentleman said that he hoped that God would so touch the hearts of the people as to awaken them to their grave responsibility in this serious matter.

NINE MONTHS IN THE CENTRAL

Sentence Passed on Barbor-Future Offenders Will Be Lashed-Lengthy Police Court Docket.

At this morning's police court, Jas. Barbor was sentenced to nine months imprisonment in the Central Prison for indecently assaulting a five-yearold child. In passing sentence the police magistrate referred to the fact that the possible punishment was two years and the lash. He warned Barbor to leave drink alone, and said he would yet order the lash as a deterrent of similar crimes.

Wm. J. Wilkes and Ellen Wilkes were charged with neglect to support their children. The former dropped dead on Saturday. Mrs. Wilkes was remanded for a week, and allowed out on bail to attend the funeral. Wm. Colley, found guilty of the theft of a suit of clothes from Christopher Hevey, was allowed to go on suspended sentence. The charge of assault laid by his wife, against Thomas Harkins, was withdrawn, he paying the costs. The couple have separated. Alex. Warwick, who some months ago failed to answer a summons for disorderly conduct, gave himself up on Saturday, night. He was fined $1 for

FAIRLY ACTIVE

Bradstreet's Review of Business Con ditions in the Dominion.

Toronto, Sept. 29 .- Trade at Montreal this week has been fairly active. The shipping business is very active, and large quantities of grain and other merchandise are arriving to be sent forward on ocean steamers. wholesale trade report that collections are very fair for this time of the year, and a good many buyers are taking cash discounts. Reports from Ontario are very favorable for fall trade.

Toronto—The weather in Toronto was rather warm this week for trade cooler weather at the close of the week created a better feeling in the dry-goods trade. Trade in hardware, metals, leather, groceries, dairy produce and hog products is very fair for the season. London-There has been a fair demand reported by jobbers at London this week, and dealers look for considerable stimulus from the first cold spell. Reports from the country centers are very satisfactory, and the in-dications all point to a large fall and winter trade. Prices for various lines are being well maintained. Winnipeg-Trade prospects at Winnipeg are uncertain, owing to the delay through wet weather in threshing operations. The price of wheat has continued to advance this week. The cattle export trade is active. The marketings of dairy produce are larger than for some time. Business conditions at the coast are a little brighter. Hamilton-At Hamilton liberal sized orders are being received for the sorting trade, and considerable shipments to various country centers of the Dominion are being made. UNITED IN DEATH

Strange Story of a Michigan Woman's Demise.

Detroit, Oct. 1.-A telegram from Du-rand states that Mrs. Thomas Hamlin, widow of the engineer who was killed at Durand, was killed in an elevator accident at Cleveland ten minutes after her husband met his untimely end. A reporter called upon the family of the dead engineer at his late home, 497 Macomb street, and was the first to tell them the news. Mr. Owen Hamlin, brother of the dead man, stated that he had heard nothing of Mrs. Hamlin for several years. "We have not seen her or heard of her since she left here quite a number of years ago, and I could not say whether she is in Cleveland. Before she married Mr. Hamlin she was Miss Josephine Bushey, of Stoney Point, Ont., and I suppose that her nearest relatives live there, but I do not know for sure. If it is Mrs. Hamlin, it is a strange coincidence that they should be parted in life and united in death, at practically the same time.' World's Champion Healer.

Maids to the Sewing Circle! The skill of the Zulu of South Africa in sewing fur is a household word in South Africa, and some of the other tribes compete with them. The needle employed is widely different from that used by the ordinary needlewomen. In the first place, it has no eye; in the second, it is like a skewer, pointed at one end and thick at the other. The thread is not of cotton, but is made of the sinews of various animals, the best being made from the sinews in the neck of a giraffe. It is stiff, inelastic, with a great tendency to "kink" and tangle itself up with anything near it. Before being used it is steeped in hot water until it is quite tendents of the Lackawanna, the Le-high and Wilkesbarre, the Delaware and Hudson, the Lehigh. Thus the seamstress has a considerable amount of labor before she commences with the real work in hand.

This is carefully attended to and the work is not allowed to get dry until finished, when the seamstress lays it flat upon the ground, pulling it this way and that, and mixing and arranging the hair for several hours, until, the skin being generally dry, it is impossible to COOLING WATER WITHOUT ICE. "When a native in one of the broiling hot villages of interior Nicaragua wants to cool some water, she fills a half-gallon earthenware jar about twothirds full. Parenthetically, I say she, ecause this is a task that requires more energy than any male Nicaraguan was ever known to possess. The jar is made of baked clay, and not being glazed, is partially porous, and soon becomes moist on the outside. Two leather straps are firmly attached to the neck, and, seizing these in her hands, she begins to rotate the jars swiftly in the air. The mouth is wide open, but centrifugal attraction keeps the liquid from flying out. The average native woman is frait and listless in appearance, but the endurance which they exhibit at this sort of callsthenics is marvelous. It is about the same as swinging Indian clubs, and I am afraid to say how long I have seen them keep it up, lest you might set me down as a prize liar. I have never made a test with a thermometer, but I assure you they can reduce tepid water to the temperature of a very cool mountain spring. In Mexico the natives confine themselves, as a rule, to dampening the jar on the outside and placing it in a current of air. Near the little mountain village of Santa Rosa, on the Mexican Central, there is a cave through which a strong breeze passes at all hours of the day. A Romance.

CHAPTER I. In the pretty quaint drawing-room of White Cliffe, Squire Cliefden sat alone—an old man whose hair was gray and whose face was furrowed with age, whose figure was bent, and whose hands trembled with weakness—an old man who had not been pleased to grow old, whose thoughts, cares and inter-ests had been bound up in this world, and who knew no other. He sat in an easy chair, his head thrown back, his eyes closed, his hands folded, his face hopeless in expression.

The Cliefdens had once been the leading family in the county, and Cliefden Hall the most hospitable mansion in it; but long before the present squire was born Chiefden Park was sold, its name changed, and all that remained of the once vast estate was a low, rambling, picturesque place called White Cliffe. It is an awkward matter to be born with the taste of a grand duke, a lover of luxury, and a desire for position, when one pos-sesses very limited means. This is what had happened to Squire William Cliefden. His father's one prayer, one sincere desire, had been that he should win the old lands back again. He had died with such words on his lips, and they had set his son's heart on fire. But it was much easier for him to spend than to save. He went abroad, wonderful hoping always that some chance would enable him to retrieve his fallen fortunes, though it never came. At that time he was a handsome, gallant young man, with no more idea of the value of money than a

He passed some years quick-silver mining in Spain, and then returned to England, none the richer for his wanderings in search of wealth. Soon afterward he married a fair, placid girl, who had a large fortune, and with whom he lived happily enough. Catherine Somers loved her handsome, erratic young husband, and was quite content. She never wondered whether he had other loves or other interests; one day a terrible accident happened to the squire. He was struck by a falling branch of a tree, and carried home senseless. Even no whe suffered from the effects of the injury which had nearly proved fatal at the time he received it. During his delirium his one cry was "Dolores, Dolores!" in a voice so full of acute pain and misery that it brought tears to the eyes of those who heard him. "Dolores, Dolores!" was reiterated by the sick man all through the hours of the night and the early hours of morn, while the simple, unsuspecting English wife knelt by his side and wondered who Dolores was.

As he grew better, the Squire ceased to repeat the name; and his wife believed the cry to have arisen from some wandering of his fevered brain. When his little daughter was born, he said that she must be called "Dolores," and his fair wife smiled as she "That was the name you repeated so often when you were ill." So the bautiful, golden-haired child was call-"Dolores," a name as ill-suited to her bright blond loveliness as anything could well be.

Whatever the romance or tragedy of the Squires life had been, it was never discovered. If a wild, deep, unhappy love, it died with him and was never told; nor did he ever betray himself in any way respecting it, except when took a more musical tone in the utterance of the name "Do-

The gentle wife died and was buried. Then the Squire devoted himself to the task of making a fortune for Dolores. But Fate was not kind to him. He liked to speculate, but no speculation ever turned out well for him; he lost more than he made; and now when he was old, when energy, spirit, and hope were all gone, the news had come to him that he was utterly ruin-

He had gathered together every available shilling-he had even mort gaged White Cliffe, so sure was he of success-and he had invested the money in mining shares, which he had been assured would bring him in at least thirty per cent, and sell at any time for thrice their value. He was certain to make a large fortune-so the agents of the new company told him. And the Squire-never very keen where money was concerned-never very sound of judgment in making investments—was only too delighted. He staked every farthing he had in the world and for one year he enjoyed a wonderful increase of income. But that morning he had received a letter which told him of his utter ruin. The company was a complete swindle: the manager had absconded with all that remained of the capital, and there was nothing but ruin for all the deluded shareholders.

The squire had received that letter morning, and he had hardly stirred since. For many hours he had remained just as he was, trying to realize the utter abject misery which he had fallen. His hands folded, his eyes closed, his life wrecked and ruined, no more piteous sight could be conceived than the old man im his sorrow.

The door opened slowly, and into the darkened room came a beautiful, graceful girl, whose face was full of anxious solicitude. She went up to the drooping figure, and laid her loving arms around the Squire's neck.

"Papa," she said, "can you not cheer

"Worse, Dolores?" he questioned sadly. "Ah, no! Death is much more merciful than poverty and ruin. I could face death with a smile; but I am the last of the Cliefdens, and disgrace is worse than death.'

There is no disgrace for you, papa. It is not your fault that other men are rogues and swindlers. Tell me, dear, what will be the worst for us? 'The worst for me will be the workhouse or an almshouse in my old age; for you there will be hard work, Do-

"Is it so bad as that?" she asked, wonderingly. "Must we leave White Cliffe?"

"There is not even a chair in the house which belongs to us," he re-plied. "The house, pictures, furniture, plate, are no longr ours. We are absolute paupers, Dolores-and that is a hard thing to say."

"Very hard, papa; but I am quite sure I can work. I can make money enough to keep you and myself. I will, do anything-teach, paint, sing; I would go on the stage-I would do anything to help you." A softened look came over his worn

"I know it, Dolores; but you have never been used to work. The Cliefdens have until now kept some of their old state. If I could only have lived at White Cliffe until it was time to die! If I could only have slept where all the Cliefdens sleep! But I shall die in an almshouse, and be buried like a pauper. How could you work for me, child?" he continued. "I have lived in luxury all my life; I must have dainty food and choice wine; I must have comforts—good fires, good clothes, my books, my papers. How could you earn money for all those things?" Before she had time to answer there came a great peal at the door-bell.

"I cannot see any one, Dolores," he said; and even then the atterance of the beloved name seemed to lighten his sorrow. "Dolores!" he repeated, dwelling tenderly on the word.

But the visitor would take no denial; he had followed the servant to the drawing-room. "I must come in, Cliefden," he said.

"I must see you."
"It is Lord Rhysworth," said Dolores, unclasping her arms, with a little flush on her face.

The visitor entered—a tall, aristocratic man, rather above middle age, but not old enough to be called elderly. He was not handsome, but his face was that of a noble, generous man. "You must forgive me, Squire," he said. "I could not help coming to see you. Is the news I hear true? Has the company failed?" "Yes; and I am a ruined man-ruined, penniless-shall soon be homeless. I, the last of the Cliefdens, in my old age must die—a pauper!"

The Squire's voice sunk into a murmur, and his head fell upon his breast. Lord Rhysworth turned to the girl, whose face had grown colorless with

"Is it quite true, Miss Cliefden?" he asked.

"Quite true, my lord," she answered. "I am verry sorry," said Lord Rhysworth. The words were simple, but they had the ring of sincerity and truth. "I am more sorry than if mis-fortune had happened to myself," he continued. "Is there no way out of

"No." answered the Squire, sadly. "I must leave White Cliffe and find refuge in a workhouse or an almshouse, and Dolores-oh, Dolores, my darling! will have to work. I am the last of the Cliefdens, and such is my destiny. Fate has been more than cruel to me! Again the soft arms stole round his neck, and a sweet voice whispered to

"Papa, what some men call fate others call Providence; and Providence can never be cruel."

But the Squire would not listen. "I am an old man," he murmured; "my eyes are dim, and my hair is gray. I am an old man, and it is hard to eat pauper's bread, and die like a pauper. Then Lord Rhysworth went up him and, laying his hand upon his shoulder, said gently:,

"Will you listen to me, Squire? I can find you a way out of your trouble—a way by which you may live at White Cliffe, by which you may enjoy a good income, with every comfort and hesitation in his manner, a pallor on his face, and a tremor in his voice. "Let me marry your daughter, Dohe went on, "and you shall be lores." a rich man for life. Hush—do not speak—do not refuse! Hear what I have to say first-a rich man for life, Squire! CHAPTER II.

Wait until I recover myself."

They formed a striking group-the old Squire, with his gray head raised in wonder, his face full of pain, surprise, and pleasure, all striving mastery; the young girl by his side, whose faultless face had grown colorless, whose hands clung more closely to her father's neck; and the eager, noble-looking man.

Twice the Squire had essayed speak, but each time his voice had died away; the only sound that had come from his lips had been the whispered name of "Dolores!" Twice he had looked up with an eager, excited ges-ture, as though he would fain interrupt, but the fire and passion in the other face had stricken him dumb. Lord Rhysworth bent over him.

"You must not think," he said, "that I take an unfair advantage. I speak abruptly now; but the object of my visit has been the dream of my life I was 30 years of age before I looked with admiring eyes at any woman's face; and then I saw Dolores. London, Oct. 1 .- The report is current in London that Lord Curzon of Kedleston has intimated a desire to resign the vice-royalty of India, owing to the ill-effects of the climate on Lady Curzon's health. There is no confirmation of the rumor, but London papers regard the story as not unlikely. Lord Curzon has perhaps been less criticised than any viceroy India has had for many years, despite the fact that he has had to face many serious difficulties in the last year, owing to the famine, the plague and the cholera, yet all complaints have been aimed at the home government for lack of interest, rather than at the viceroy, who has been untiring in his efforts for the relief of the widespread distress.

INSULTED BY THE SHAH. Vienna, Oct. 1 .- The Shah of Persia rained decorations while here and at Buda-Pesth, as he has in every place where he has stopped during his tour, but in the Hungarian capital he was careless enough to confer on the burgomeister of the city, the same order which he bestowed on several secretaries of ministers and minor officials. This action has been resented by the friends of the Burgomeister, and that worthy, when he went to the station to say good-bye to the shah, not only refused to wear his new order, but actually returned it to the giver.

MIKADO'S VISIT TO EUROPE. Vienna, Oct. 1.-The rumor that the Emperor of Japan is to visit Europe in the spring created a flutter sity in Vienna. He is expected to visit first in St. Petersburg and come in May to Vienna, after which it is his purpose to visit all the principal canitals of Europe. It is pointed out that the present crisis in China may result in a general war, in which Japan would necessarily be involved. Such a contingency would, of course, prevent a royal tourage of Europe.

PRINCE GEORGE WILL QUIT. Vienna, Oct. 1.-A telegram received from Athens brings Crete again pro-minently before the world. The message announces that Prince George of Greece, chief commissioner of Crete, who has been for some time in Athens will return to his post, but before going will issue an announcement that he cannot accept a renewal for another three-year term of his commissionership over Crete, and will urge the powers to let the Cretans decide independently as to their future government.

This declaration, it is evidently hoped. will lead to Prince George's election by the Cretans as regent. His position as high commissioner was from the first merely a temporary one, and it was created as the easiest means of bringing order into a seriously complicated situation. His rule has been successful, and from all reports the Island of Crete is peaceful. He has the goodwill of the people and his choice as regent is therefore entirely probable. That Prince George has an idea of uniting Crete with Greece is not likely, for a move of this kind would end all possibility of the powers accepting his suggestion.

TO PREVENT IS BETTER THAN TO REPENT-A little medicine in the shape of the wonderful pellets which are known as Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, administered at the proper time and with the directions adhered to, often prevent a serious attack of sickness and save money which would go to the doctor. In all irregularities of the digestive organs they are an invaluable corrective and by cleansing the blood they cleanse the skin of imperfections.

The crust of the earth under Japan must be comparatively thin, judging by the number of earthquakes shocks in that country. They average 500 a year.

A LIFE SAVED .- Mr. James Bryson. Cameron, states: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs, and was given up by the physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for throat trouble with the best results. Acting on his advice, I procured the medicine, and less than a half bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me any good."

Messrs. John W. Jones and A. S. Other Children Have, Why Not Yours? The above comments occur in a letter referring to proper selection of food, from E. J. Wilson, 342 Hemlock street, Allegheny, Pa. "When our first baby boy reached seven months, he began to lose strength and grow pale. He could not digest any of the ordinary baby foods or prepared milk.

"Acting on the advice of a sister-inlaw, who was bringing the roses to the cheeks of her two children, by their diet of Grape-Nuts food, my wife purchased a package and began feeding it to our baby, preparing it with a little hot water until it was the consistency of a thick gruel. She not only fed it to the baby, but herself began eating It three times a day.

"The transformation was wonderful. Within a month the baby was free from all stomach trouble, and my wife's strength was completely renewed, that feeling of fatigue having entirely disappeared. Do not over-feed when giving Grape-Nuts food to the baby. Other children have red cheeks,

The Sunday Afternoon Meetings for Men Inaugurated by Rev. Henry Ostrom.

By placing in the Auditorium magnets of sufficient drawing power, in the way of good music and splendid speakers, the committee in charge of Sunday afternoon meetings are of the opinion that they can attract a goodly number of the men of the city, who will undoubtedly be greatly benefited by them. The success that attended yesterday's gathering would seem to indicate that no mistake was made in this supposition. In the first place, the singing of Mr. Newton Large and Mr. Ruthven McDonald was of itself good enough to repay a visit to Auditorium; and in the second, Rev. Henry Ostrom, who addressed the men. proved that even the advance notices vith which he had been heralded, gave him no exaggerated praise. He is a man of attractive personal appearance, and has a rich, pliant voice. He has an abundance of latent force, both voice and gesture, that comes to the surface with the expression of his more earnest thoughts. His address in the Auditorium and his services in the Wellington Street and First Methodist Churches, which were largely attended, were highly interesting, and of a most helpful nature. In the afternoon he spoke of the "multitude of men who saw the meadows of opportunities with their best possibilities, and the ocean of life with their greatest promises"; of the spending of childhood innocence; of the pledges made in a time of emergency that are so often literally snowed under with prosperity; and of the peculiar sense of right and wrong exists, and attempts to mix up right and wrong, so that right is not very right, and wrong is not very wrong 'There are men here." he concluded "who cost too much to be lost. There are none worth less than I, and I was worth the best that God could give. If men had not roused me I would have spent all before this afternoon, never had an asset to my credit. I centers and brain is so valuable that know that there are men here just where I was, and, oh, that Christ would

FIVE DOLLARS A BOX.

The Price Out No Figure With Him. "I want to say for the benefit of some poor dyspeptic that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will give comfort and a cure every time. Five dollars a box would not stop my purchasing them should I ever suffer again as I did for a week before using them.

"That one 50 cent box I bought at

"I thought I would try a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and see if they would make me feel better, never really thinking I had dyspepsia, but after only three or four tablets had been taken all the acid trouble disappeared, and then I discovered I had had acid dyspepsia, while the doctors had been treating me for kidney and bladder trouble, and one of them treated me for rheumatism.

"My digestion is fine, my complexion clear and I am able to do my work, and low spirits are unknown to me. "I am so thankful for finding a cure so good and so pleasant to take as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I am surprised at the change they have made
