PEACE PACT IN IRELAND ENDS LONG TURMOIL

Proclamation of Irish Free State Begins New Era in History.

DE VALERA UNSATISFIED

Followers Intend to Continue Agitation For Independent Republic.

BY CABR.
The ratification of the treaty proclaiming the Irish Free State by the Dail Eireann on Saturday night apparently indicates that the hickering and recriminations of centuries have at last been wiped away.

Ireland, its trials and its struggles forgotten, should now be at peace. Henceforth it should go its way on an equal plane with Canada—even with England itself—if internal disturbances are not fostered by certain American publishers, such as William Randolph Hearst, who again and again has vented his spleen on Great Britain and all things that the Union Jack champions.

The "Irish question" should stand before all states, despite indications that Eamon de Valera and his followers intend to continue their battle for a republic, undismayed by the fact that the Irish people and clergy have wholeheartedly approved the action of the Dail Eireann.

World Welcomes Peace.

The world breathes with relief. The armistice of July 11 came after more than seven centuries' differences between the peoples of England and Ireland. In fact, the early differences between the two peoples are clouded in the dimness and uncertainty of legendary lore.

England's control of Ireland began in the eleventh century, when Henry II. overcame the feudal lords and took possession of a strip of the Irish coast. In those early days England's control was weak, and little effort was made to hold more than a few miles of coast land. Gradually, however, British possessions in the island spread, until, under Oliver Cromwell, Britain succeeded in subjugating the whole island in 1652.

Unfortunate days followed for Ireland. Even in those early days the split between the Catholics and Protestants was marked. The Irish Episcopal Church was the state church, and Catholics were, for many years, persecuted. The emancipation bill at last gave the Catholics equal rights with their Protestant brethren, and the disestablishment of the Irish Church in 1869 completed their religious freedom.

The Protestants always leaned toward England in their sympathies, partly from the fact that many of them were immigrants in the island, and partly because their religious affiliations were British rather than Irish. The Catholics, on the other hand, mindful of the persecutions to which their forefathers had told them they were subjected in the early days, have nearly always been anti-English in feeling.

Fight for Home Rule.

After their final religious liberation, encouraged by their success, the Catholics, under John Redmond, sought independence for Ireland. The fight for home rule, and from 1871 until the outbreak of the war, that was their ultimate goal.

COLLINS URGES WORK

Sees Need of Committees Representing Both Sides of Controversy.

Dublin, Jan. 9.—The motion to re-elect Eamon de Valera president of the Irish republic was defeated in the Dail Eireann today by a vote of 58 to 60.

Dublin, Jan. 9.—As soon as the Dail Eireann was convened this morning, Eamon de Valera arose and placed his resignation as president of the Irish republic formally before the House.

Mrs. Thomas J. Clarke moved the re-election of Mr. de Valera as president of the republic. Liam Mellows seconded the motion.

Michael Collins, one of the leaders in support of the Irish treaty, said that no one in the Dail wished to be put in the position of opposing President de Valera. He stated that the Dail was now faced with the problem of taking over the government from the British and he suggested the formation of a committee whose members would be chosen from both sides of the controversy, to keep the peace, work, and no talk, was now required, he added.

Arthur Griffith, speaking after Collins had concluded, said the question of the treaty had been constitutionally settled, and that there was nothing to prevent its terms being carried out. After the re-nomination of de Valera for the presidency, Michael Collins, addressing the Dail, said he would not object to the re-election of de Valera, but that if Mr. de Valera were re-elected the people would turn out the Dail, as the Dail would be the laughing stock of the world.

Miss Mary MacSwiney was next to speak on the re-election question. "We must carry on the republican government until it is disestablished by an act of the British parliament," she opposed the joint committee proposed by Michael Collins.

George Gavan Duffy demanded that Mr. de Valera tell the Dail what his policy would be if he were re-elected. Mr. de Valera replied that the republic must continue until the people, by an election, disestablished it. He was quite ready to help maintain the independence of Ireland during the interval, he said.

Mr. de Valera said that until the treaty was put into legislative form and worked out, the people would not understand what it meant. He called the treaty a "white promise."

MAYOR WILSON RE-ELECT DE VALERA

POPULATION OF CANADA MAY BE NEAR 8,800,000

Smallness of Net Increase Indicates Steady Exodus to Other Lands.

PROBLEM FUNDAMENTAL

New Government Will Likely Investigate Why Canadians Leave Home.

[Special to London Advertiser.]
Ottawa, Jan. 9.—From the figures already published, it is possible to hazard a fairly accurate guess of the population of the Dominion as revealed in the census of June, 1921.

It will be well in excess of eight and a half million, but it will fall considerably short of nine million. The exact total will probably be found somewhere between 8,600,000 and 8,800,000. This figure represents a gain of more than one and a half million souls during the decade, and to such as believe in quantity rather than quality as a measure of successful nationhood it will be disappointing.

It will show, indeed, that Canada's actual increase in population is less than the total number of immigrants in the decade 1911-1921, and that as the natural increase of 1911 population sought to itself have given Canada a million more people, the country has been suffering from an annual exodus of serious dimensions.

In future population, which will produce an increase in traffic, seems to be the only feasible solution of Canada's railway trouble, so this failure to retain her possible inhabitants is a fundamental problem, and will probably claim the careful consideration of the new government.

URGE CUSTOMS REGULATIONS BE AMENDED

Importers Allege Unfairness in Valuation of Goods From Europe.

MARKING ACT IN FORCE

Manufacturers Claim Practice Necessary To Prevent 'Dumping' of German Goods.

Ottawa, Jan. 9.—While Canadian importers are strongly urging the removal of customs regulations regarding depreciated currency and the marking of goods from foreign countries, Canadian manufacturers are urging quite as strongly for their retention. Hon. W. S. Fielding, Hon. Jacques Bureau and the government generally is now considering what action shall be taken in the matter.

Both the regulation providing for valuation for customs purposes of foreign goods on a basis of a depreciation of currency not exceeding 50 per cent, and that providing that all imports from foreign countries shall be marked, stamped or branded with the name of the country of origin, are enactments of parliament, and while the latter regulation was for a time suspended, there are those in the new government who are of the opinion that amendment, suspension or abrogation are not in the interests of a government, but of parliament to bring about.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

New Council Has Short Business Session for Inaugural Meeting.

The 1922 council, with Mayor J. Cameron Wilson presiding, staged its inaugural meeting in the council chamber of the city hall at 11 o'clock on Monday morning.

The mayor's inaugural address and the report of the striking committee, which contains all appointments for the year, were the features. There was no untoward feature. All is ready now for the regular dispatch of the city's business for another year, and the committee will make an immediate start, the board of works meeting on Tuesday and the finance committee on Wednesday.

Mayor Wilson's address was rich in legislative suggestions, and if carried out will bring numerous changes and reforms at the city hall. His suggestions go on to the committees interested for immediate consideration.

Perhaps most important to all ratepayers, as it directly affects their pocket is the new mayor's initial recommendation for consideration, that the expenditures for the year should not exceed the debentures expiring. In doing so the mayor calls attention to the steady increase in the debenture debt of the city in the last twelve years. He asks that the finance committee go into his suggestion.

Issues Warning Note.

The lack of control of expenditures by decentralization, is the subject of a warning note from the mayor. He wonders if the elected representatives of the people are properly safeguarding the interests of the city by delegating their powers to various boards.

The rapid increase in charity grants and the unemployment situation were touched on by the mayor. He expressed his opinion on the 1921 council that the situation was alarming is not borne out by facts. Due to the city's heavy financial responsibilities, he expresses the opinion that the pension scheme proposed for the 1922 council by J. G. Richter cannot be accepted and put into operation at this time. He believes that the employees should be sufficiently remunerated to care for themselves and says that "apparently there is no demand from the officials from this pension."

After urging close scrutiny of matters pertaining to the Gas Company's application for an increase in the gas rate, the creation of a city insurance fund, and pointing out the danger of increasing the debenture debt following large assessment increases, the mayor touched on some election recommendations made by the clerk. The most important feature of these would be the election in future municipal elections of the 1922 council by the voters of the city.

SEA CAPTAINS TO WATCH FOR HIGHEST TIDE OF DAY

Ottawa, Jan. 9.—Canadian officers of the Miramichi Bay, which it is said will be of great value to the navy, are being sent to take on a considerably heavier cargo when leaving Chatham, N. B., is explained in a statement issued by the department of marine and naval affairs.

In future sea captains will only need to refer to the tide tables to see which tide in the day will be higher. This is of special importance to Miramichi Bay, because of the bar at its mouth, which has to be crossed. The difference in the rise of the tide is often as much as two feet, and vessels leaving Chatham will now be enabled to take advantage of the higher tide of the day.

ANNOUNCES CALL TO NEW CABINET

Nelson, B. C., Jan. 9.—At a Liberal meeting in Nelson Saturday afternoon, Hon. J. H. This is the first time Dr. King has made a public statement on the matter.

SEVEN WISPS OF ILL-FATE CLAIM DAD WAS DUPE

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 9.—From the lips of seven little children who were found playing around a moonshine still in the kitchen of a farmhouse on Bagley road, Parma village, deputy sheriffs learned early today the strange operations of the weather traffickers. It is a story that is being told by the children.

"It's not papa's fault; oh, don't blame him," said a little girl of 14, oldest of the children. "Papa was just about at the end of his rope when this rich man came. He showed lots of money. Our clothes were in rags; there was but little food for us to eat, and it tempted papa."

"Besides, we had a 'new baby coming' at our house, and what was daddy to do? Really, you can't blame daddy," gives—Then Sets Up Still.

The children then told of how this man—the "big man"—bought them some warm clothes, but some nourishing food on the shelves, and then set up a complete still, with all its essential materials, in their home.

YOUTH OF 16 IS HELD ON CHARGE OF L. E. LOWMAN

Feared Brother and Sister Were To Be Taken From Mother.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

Child Welfare Worker Alleges Youth Struck Him Grazing Blow.

Arrested in police court on Monday morning charged with criminal assault by L. E. Lowman, director of child welfare work with the soldiers' aid commission, a 16-year-old boy was remanded until Thursday morning next for trial.

He was defended by Albert Judd. He intended to drop the charge this morning, said Mr. Lowman to the Advertiser after the court, "but as I learned that the defendant had secured the services of a lawyer, I am letting it continue."

Mr. Lowman claims that during a discussion in his office Saturday morning the prisoner struck at him after he had called for the police. He appears in the case.

The case appears to be somewhat intricate and involves the dire necessity for food of the family of the accused. The lad's mother is a widow. There are two children, a boy, somewhat younger than the boy. At the present time both the mother and the son, now under arrest, have been without employment, and the family is in a state of dire straits. As a result, the entire family of four are living under very favorable circumstances.

The Advertiser has been informed that on Friday last it was reported that Mr. Lowman by W. E. Kelly, secretary of the Soldiers' Aid Society, that the prisoner's little sister was begging on the street.

The family say that later in the day the investigator arrived at the home of the mother and that something was said to the mother which led her to believe steps might be taken to take her children away from her. In the meantime the younger child had gone to the Soldiers' Aid Commission to seek aid, the father having been a veteran of the army.

It is explained that the mother, then fearing that the attempt would be made at once to deprive her of her children, sent the son to the Soldiers' Aid Commission to prevent the same. It was apparently when he interviewed Mr. Lowman that the altercation occurred.

Claims He Was Chided.

The prisoner claims that he was chided by Lowman because he was not at work.

PEACE PACT IN IRELAND ENDS LONG TURMOIL

Proclamation of Irish Free State Begins New Era in History.

DE VALERA UNSATISFIED

Followers Intend to Continue Agitation For Independent Republic.

BY CABR.
The ratification of the treaty proclaiming the Irish Free State by the Dail Eireann on Saturday night apparently indicates that the hickering and recriminations of centuries have at last been wiped away.

Ireland, its trials and its struggles forgotten, should now be at peace. Henceforth it should go its way on an equal plane with Canada—even with England itself—if internal disturbances are not fostered by certain American publishers, such as William Randolph Hearst, who again and again has vented his spleen on Great Britain and all things that the Union Jack champions.

The "Irish question" should stand before all states, despite indications that Eamon de Valera and his followers intend to continue their battle for a republic, undismayed by the fact that the Irish people and clergy have wholeheartedly approved the action of the Dail Eireann.

World Welcomes Peace.

The world breathes with relief. The armistice of July 11 came after more than seven centuries' differences between the peoples of England and Ireland. In fact, the early differences between the two peoples are clouded in the dimness and uncertainty of legendary lore.

England's control of Ireland began in the eleventh century, when Henry II. overcame the feudal lords and took possession of a strip of the Irish coast. In those early days England's control was weak, and little effort was made to hold more than a few miles of coast land. Gradually, however, British possessions in the island spread, until, under Oliver Cromwell, Britain succeeded in subjugating the whole island in 1652.

Unfortunate days followed for Ireland. Even in those early days the split between the Catholics and Protestants was marked. The Irish Episcopal Church was the state church, and Catholics were, for many years, persecuted. The emancipation bill at last gave the Catholics equal rights with their Protestant brethren, and the disestablishment of the Irish Church in 1869 completed their religious freedom.

The Protestants always leaned toward England in their sympathies, partly from the fact that many of them were immigrants in the island, and partly because their religious affiliations were British rather than Irish. The Catholics, on the other hand, mindful of the persecutions to which their forefathers had told them they were subjected in the early days, have nearly always been anti-English in feeling.

Fight for Home Rule.

After their final religious liberation, encouraged by their success, the Catholics, under John Redmond, sought independence for Ireland. The fight for home rule, and from 1871 until the outbreak of the war, that was their ultimate goal.

LYON REVEALS STAND ON HYDRO RADIAL BYLAWS

Declares Trustees Should Be Free To Address Public Meetings.

OPPOSES ANY CHANGES

Claims Rights Promised Municipalities by Sir Wm. Hearst.

QUELPH, Jan. 8.—In view of the reports as to the proposed action of the Drury government in respect to hydro affairs, J. W. Lyon, president of the Hydro-Radial Association of Canada, today gave out the following statement:

"The municipalities of Ontario which have carried bylaws for hydro-electric railways or have contracts for hydro-electric power have no policy but public ownership, and do not desire to embarrass the present or any government, but these bylaws were carried and these contracts entered into on the distinct understanding that these utilities would be administered by and operated under the direction of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission as trustee."

"The municipalities are also opposed to any changes in the hydro-electric power and railway acts, under which bylaws have been carried and contracts entered into in good faith, and which are working satisfactorily in all the municipalities interested. Any attempt to alter these acts without a request from the municipalities would be a direct interference with municipal rights and vested interests."

Claim Representation.

"The municipalities claim the right to representation on the commission which was promised them by Sir William Hearst when premier of Ontario and which was admitted by Premier Duffin to be a reasonable request. "And we also feel that the members of the commission as trustees for the municipalities should be free to address public meetings on hydro matters any time on request that the municipalities and particularly when bylaws are being submitted or proposals recommended, when they, by virtue of their position, are in possession of the fullest information."

EXPECTED IRISH CHIEF TO RESIGN

ROCHESTER, Jan. 8.—Mrs. Katherine Wheelwright of this city, mother of Eamon de Valera, president of the Irish republic, stated today that she expected her son's resignation from the Irish presidency. She recalled that at the time of de Valera's visit to the United States two years ago he had told her that he intended to remain in the presidency only until Ireland had been completely freed from British rule. She did not regard his withdrawal of his resignation as particularly significant, but she believed that he would eventually resign, regardless of the present controversy.

MAY DECIDE TO CHOOSE LEADER

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—The Ontario Liberal executive will meet on Wednesday next in conference with the Liberal members of the Legislature when consideration will be given to the resolution passed by the members at their last meeting favoring the calling of a new provincial convention to choose a leader. The executive is in control, so far as the calling of a convention is concerned, but there is no reason to believe that they will raise any objection to the plan. So far the Liberals have no leader in sight. It is said that the plan to inveigle R. J. Fleming into the political field has been dropped, which leaves Major J. C. Thomas of Windsor as the only "candidate," although the name of Fred Pardee, ex-M.P.P., still comes up in discussions.

GRAND SIRE OF I. O. O. F. DIES AT TORONTO HOME

Held Various Municipal Posts, Including That of Mayor, Few Years Ago.

OPPOSED LIQUOR TRAFFIC

Public Funeral Will Be Held Tuesday Under Auspices of Order.

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—(By Canadian Press.)—Joseph Oliver, grand sire of the Order of Oddfellows of America, former mayor of Toronto, and prominent lumber merchant, died here today after an illness of three months.

His death had been expected for several days. Mr. Oliver was in his 70th year. Mrs. Oliver survives, also two sons and two daughters, Mrs. Hipwell and Miss Oliver of this city.

Joseph Oliver was one of Toronto's most prominent municipal and fraternal dignitaries. He was mayor of this city in 1908 and 1909, after having held for various periods all other public offices in the gift of the Toronto electors.

Mr. Oliver attained the honored post of grand sire of the Independent Order of Oddfellows of America, in which he officiated in the continental convention here last year, after holding many high offices in the Masonic, Oddfellow and other fraternal bodies. He was also an Orangeman and a Forester.

Mr. Oliver's earlier municipal career was characterized by a vigorous opposition to the liquor traffic—he was a Royal Templar. In view of the fact that he was the first mayor to sign a contract for public-owned and developed hydro power from the Canadian side of Niagara Falls.

Mr. Oliver was a Liberal in politics, a Presbyterian by religious denomination, and in business a successful lumber merchant and manufacturer. In his earlier days he was prominent in aquatic sports, and was a lawn bowler of some note. He was born in Erin, Ont., in 1852, and came to Toronto with his parents when he was 3 years of age.

A public funeral has been arranged for Tuesday, the details of which are being looked after by the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

ESTHONIAN KILLED IN ONTARIO SWAMP

NORTH BAY, Ont., Jan. 8.—While walking through the bush near Eureka, 45 miles from Kirt, on the morning of Jan. 4, Alexander Kirs, an Esthonian, 40 years of age, was accidentally shot and killed when a .22-calibre rifle in the hands of John Milciff, a companion, suddenly exploded.

The men were walking on snowshoes, following a trap line at the time, and while crossing a stretch of swamp, Milciff stumbled and fell, the loaded rifle discharging as he went down.

Kirs fell instantly. Milciff removed his snowshoes and made him comfortable among some evergreens and set out for help. He secured aid after a six-mile journey from Kirt, still living, was brought to Eureka. He was placed on board a train, but died shortly after reaching Kirt.

GERMANS SEND DELEGATES TO CANNES PARLEY

Experts Reach Agreement Whereby Germany Makes Annual Payments.

WORK OF COUNCIL LAGS

Lloyd George Not Pressing For Stronger Guarantees From Berlin.

CANNES, Jan. 8.—Representatives of Germany some time next week will come to Cannes to discuss with the supreme council the reparations proposal to be prepared by the allied statesmen.

This was decided upon at the second day's session of the council yesterday, and notification to this effect was dispatched to the Berlin government, stipulating, however, that the German experts go to Paris first, and there hold themselves in readiness for the call.

As originally introduced by Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain, the proposal was worded so as to ask the German government to send its representatives direct to Cannes, but M. Briand, voicing the opinion that it was necessary to reach some kind of an agreement among themselves first, it was modified.

In introducing his proposal, Mr. Lloyd George declared that the presence of German representatives at the Spa conference had proved most useful, and had resulted in an agreement which was carried out.

Council Work Lags. The work of the council slowed up today, when the thorny reparations question came up.

Yesterday's speedy decision on the calling of an international financial and economic conference, with the participation of Russia and Germany, and the progress made by the reparations experts this morning raised the hope for a time that there might be an early adjournment, but later in the day it became apparent that the council was not so near an agreement as were the experts.

By the experts it was maintained yesterday that there was an agreement in principle, but the members of the council announced that further deliberation was necessary after which the council would receive the experts' report and make its decision.

Experts Reach Agreement. The experts, it is learned, have reached an agreement providing for remission of cash payments by Germany, providing for the payment of 500,000,000 gold marks in cash, and 1,000,000,000 gold marks in kind each year over a period of years.

In the course of the deliberations Great Britain, in exchange for abandonment of her 22 per cent of the first five years' payments, asked Belgium to renounce in part her priority claim, so that France can share in these payments, demanding at the same time that France ratify the August agreement, whereby the first billion gold marks were to be paid to the reparations commission, would be applied to the payment of Great Britain and Belgium's occupation expenses to the exclusion of France.

Mr. Lloyd George resisted all suggestions that action be taken to obtain stronger guarantees from Germany, as asked by France, such as a commission on the German debt to control customs, money rates and tax receipts.

SEEK TO CAPTURE SEAT AT KINGSTON

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—An effort will likely be made by the Labor and U. F. O. forces, working in conjunction, to capture the Kingston seat in the Legislature, vacated through the resignation of Brigadier-General A. E. Ross, to become a Conservative candidate for the federal house at the recent general election.

At a meeting of the executive of the Ontario section of the Canadian Labor party, held at the Labor Temple on Saturday, President Harry Kerwin was instructed to go to Kingston to look over the situation, with a view to putting a Labor candidate in the field for the by-election to be held shortly. If a candidate is named he will have the joint support of the Labor and Farmer followers.

ST. THOMAS RESIDENT, AGED 89 YEARS, DIES

Mr. Stirling was born at Kirkintilloch, Dumfriesshire, Scotland, on May 13, 1833, his father being the late William Stirling. The family came to Canada in 1857, settling in Chateaugay County, Quebec. Mr. Stirling later moved to Port Hope, going from there to Whitby and coming to St. Thomas in 1880; joining the J. & W. Mickleborough firm at the time they were removing from the old Scotch warehouse to the store at the corner of St. George and Talbot streets. SHOW PROFITS REAPED BY USE OF FERTILIZERS

Government Farm Experiments Prove Land Seldom Manured Can Be Utilized.

DRAINAGE IS ADVOCATED

Removal of Surface Water Tends to Improve Tilth of Soil.

In Eastern Canada, including Ontario and the provinces eastward, there are approximately 20,761,000 acres under cultivation, of which 2,556,000 acres are in hay. The livestock in these provinces can produce during the winter months only about 50,000,000 tons of manure, an amount insufficient to cover the entire area under cultivation when applied in any ordinary length of rotation. For this reason, extensive areas, estimated between one-quarter and one-half the entire area, never receive any application of manure whatever. Such land is usually far removed from the farm buildings; it is left in hay and pasture for several years, then plowed, planted to oats and seeded down to hay again. Casual observation, as well as the foregoing statistics, confirm the widespread extent of this practice.

Now, what is the best method of handling such land? It is useless to say "apply manure," because the farmer has already applied elsewhere all the manure that has been produced. As the land is usually farm from the buildings and often poorly drained, it would be unwise to plant corn or roots and to include it in the rotation used on the land near the buildings. The present practice is more preferable than that, but is the present practice the best possible one?

Increases Crop Yield.

There is much reason to think, from the results of definite experiments, that an improvement can be made in the present practice which will result in increased profits. One improvement which is widely known, but poorly followed, is surface drainage. The removal of surface water by care in plowing and attention to outlets materially improves the tilth of the soil, and, in some years, greatly increases the crop yield. Another improvement which may be adopted in many districts is the growing of alfalfa. If a few pounds of alfalfa are included in the ordinary hay mixture, one can learn at small expense whether alfalfa will grow profitably. If it will grow it will be found to materially increase the yield of hay. Finally, as there is not enough farm manure, commercial fertilizers may be used.

Shows Better Results.

At the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, commercial fertilizers have been used in comparison with farm manure and unmanured land for over ten years. The results have shown a large profit accompanying the use of the commercial fertilizers. In a four-year rotation of manure, oats, clover hay and timothy hay, application of fertilizers were as follows: On the manure, 300 pounds superphosphate, 75 pounds muriate of potash and 100 pounds of nitrate of soda; on each of the oats, clover and timothy crops, 100 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre were applied. For the five-year period, from 1916 to 1920, the total cost of these fertilizers on four acres of land was $142.32; the value of the increased crop over unmanured land was $318.04; the net profit was $175.72. Figured on the basis of one acre, the net profit was $5.78 per year.

When one considers the extensive areas of land which never receive manure, it might be well worth while to plan to use some commercial fertilizers. If a small area were tried first it would enable a farmer to decide whether such applications were profitable. The most profitable use of commercial fertilizers requires prudent buying and intelligent practice in making applications to the land. Persons are invited to correspond with the Field Husbandry Division of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

"Four Ninety" Motor

The Chevrolet valve-in-head motor is famous for its power and economy.

These are the results of simplicity in its construction. There are no side valve chambers as in other types in which much of the force of combustion is wasted and dead gases stored up.

In the valve-in-head motor, fuel is introduced directly into the piston chamber and confined there. Combustion takes place directly over the piston head, which receives the full downward force of the blow. The result is more power with less gasoline consumption and a wider range of control.

The cylinder head is easily removed, permitting ready access to all parts.

Dependability at all times, silence of operation, great hill-climbing ability and long life distinguish the performance of this motor.

FRANCE ATONES FOR EXECUTIONS

Compensates Widow and Father of Officers Shot Without Being Tried.

Paris, Jan. 9.—The French government has now done something to atone for the unfortunate error made in June, 1916, when Lieutenants Herdun and Millant were summarily executed without court-martial or any form of judgment within 48 hours of the retreat from Fort Douaumont on Verdun.

Louis Barthou, minister of war, has written to Madame Herdun, the widow, saying that 100,000 francs has been allotted to her as civil reparation, and 50,000 francs have been similarly allotted to the father of Lieut. Millant.

The letter of the minister says that the evidence given in a recent action that Madame Herdun had taken against a Paris newspaper for libel had made him re-examine the petitions that she had sent to him and his predecessors at the war office.

Money As Reparation.

"If this grievous event is to be judged impartially," the letter says, "it cannot be separated from the tragic hours when the fate of France was bound up in victory before Verdun, but it can hardly have been brought about by a mistaken application of the regulations. Your husband, very well noted and decorated with the military medal during the war, was a courageous officer whose name and your little son can bear with honor. The law does not permit revision of his case, but the government on my proposition has decided to award you civil reparation."

Madame Herdun and the elder Millant have accepted the government's offer, and so far as they are concerned this painful affair is now closed.

Fatal Mistake Made.

When Herdun faced the firing corps he refused to have his eyes covered, and said a few words to the squad, that it was their duty to obey orders without questioning their justice. Then he himself gave the order to fire.

It was later proved that a mistake had been made, and that neither officer had abandoned his post, but as the order to execute them had been given summarily without the process of military law, the authorities always insisted there was no means to revise the judgment or exonerate the victims of the error.

Last June a Paris newspaper published an article on the case of the two officers, declaring that Herdun had abandoned his post, and was an alcoholic. Madame Herdun brought an action for defamation, alleging that such charges were untrue. She won a verdict for 5,000 francs, whereupon the government utilized the occasion to compensate the officer's widow.

THREATEN LIFE OF RUSSIAN BALLET

MOSCOW, Jan. 8.—Russia's greatest sport, the ballet, is threatened with extinction. The various municipal soviets are trying to force the dancers to make up in order to keep the operas and the ballets going. Ballet and opera alternate in the big theatres. The ballets, however, do not make enough profit to carry the opera and the great orchestras necessary to satisfy the music-loving Russians.

Ballerinas are the subjects of endless discussion.

Families break up over the differences about the merits of Smirnova, Geiser, Gerdt and others who are now holding the spotlight in Petrograd and Moscow. To a lesser degree, the same battle rages at Kazan and Kiev and Odessa. Just at the moment Lukem is the hot favorite in Petrograd and Geiser in Moscow.

Youth and beauty do not count with Russian ballet fans. It matters not if the ballerina is old; in fact, she generally has to be fairly mature before she can master the intricate steps upon which Russian give points. She may have muscles which give her the appearance of a strong lady in the circus and still fascinate Russian spectators if she can spin fast enough on her toes and shift her weight from one big toe to the other at just the moment prescribed in the rules.

At first a foreigner is inclined to admire the beautiful young neophytes who dance mazourkas and have all the charm which grace and flowing white robes can impart to youth dancing to the music of a superb orchestra. That is the result of utter ignorance.

Geiser, the strongly-featured player of the Moscow circuit, recently fell on the stage, and had to beat a retreat before catcalls and howls, which made it impossible for her to reappear for a fortnight. Russian ballet fans are as merciless as the crowds at a Spanish bullfight. There are no excuses for failure.

Heralds Era of Peace After Centuries of Conflict

BELFAST LINEN TRADE LIKELY TO BE REVIVED

Steadying of Prices Warrants Producers To Make Plans Ahead.

NO BOOM ANTICIPATED Demand From American Market, However, Favorable to Progress in Industry.

Belfast, Ireland, Jan. 9.—The signs of revival in the Belfast linen trade continue, and the future is regarded with more hope at present than it has been for a year. There are, however, no signs of a boom in Irish linen, and one is neither expected nor desired. It would be a doubtful blessing if the boom did come, for the great need at present is not a sudden rush of business which would only be temporary and create great disturbance in the trade, but rather a gradual improvement on sound economic lines.

An important factor is the steadying of prices, and as these have now, it is believed, reached rock bottom in view of the world's flax situation those engaged in the production side of the industry can go forward with more confidence, while the merchant can assure distributors of reliable markets. Reports from the American market, which is the largest buyer of Irish linen, are entirely satisfactory. The good demand compared with previous months is being maintained, and this is particularly the case in regard to handkerchiefs, while dress linens for spring and summer wear are likely to be the fashion during 1922.

Work Longer Hours.

During the past few weeks the weaving end of the industry experienced a slight falling off in the volume of business. On the whole, the position is now much better than it was a few months ago. Longer hours are being worked in the weaving factories, and more looms are being started, generally on forward orders. Confidence has been restored in ability to transact business at the present prices, and repeat orders are coming in in the ordinary way. The spinners also had a fair turnover during recent weeks, but they are not so busy as formerly, as manufacturers had already operated freely in providing future requirements.

The greater stock lots in the market have been picked up, and the demand for damask and sheer yarns are well supplied with orders, and tow yarns are moving off quietly at current values. The merchants are experiencing a general demand for housekeeping goods, but hardly up to the level of preceding weeks, and for the moment retailers seem to have fixed up their immediate requirements for this class of goods, and also for handkerchiefs for the holiday trade.

Order Dress Linen.

There have been more orders placed in the hands of merchants, for dress linens, but in view of the large quantity of dress linens due for delivery during November and December further important business in this department cannot be expected. There is also a good demand for white and colored dress linens from other shipping centers.

The supply of flax in the Irish markets these past few weeks has not been so large and growers showed an inclination not to accept the prices, but eventually the bulk of flax offered for sale was disposed of. On the Continent supplies are more plentiful, and there has been more demand for all classes of fiber, but particularly in the low end, for both dew retted and water retted flaxes.

There is little serviceable quality of Russian flax or tow on offering. The price asked for Livonian in stock in Great Britain is £129 per ton basis, at which there are no buyers. Sellers are soliciting orders from spinners at £30 to £1,000 per ton for Novgorod, 78, 3d. low for shipment from Russia.

DECLARES IT DIFFICULT TO ENFORCE CUSTOMS

Washington, Jan. 9.—It would be difficult, but not impossible, to determine and to administer "offsetting" import duties against the varying exchange rates in foreign countries, the United States tariff commission says in a special report on depreciated exchange and international trade, made public yesterday. This is one of the plans that has been suggested before the Senate finance committee for meeting the unusual situation brought about by the differences in exchange as between the United States and the various countries from which goods are brought to this country.

"A flat rate cannot be applied because of the varying degrees of depreciation of exchange in different countries," the commission says, "but a list of commodities for which special protection is sought could be prepared and revised from time to time."

GAMING HOUSE ACT TROUBLES ENGLISH PUBLIC

"Does It Prohibit Whist Drives?" Is Question Which Remains Undecided.

JUDGES GIVE DECISIONS

Persons Convicted of Breaking Law Liable To Fine of $2,000.

London, Jan. 9.—(By Canadian Press).—"Are whist drives illegal?" "What is unlawful gaming?" These questions are troubling the public just now in consequence of the recent decision of the House of Lords that in certain circumstances money paid by cheques in betting transactions could be recovered by the drawers of the cheques. A legal correspondent of the Times says: "There now seems to be some confusion among laymen about the law of whist drives. The question whether they were legal or not was raised recently in the court of criminal appeal, and was really left undecided, but remarks by the way of the judges are of importance."

The Times correspondent explains that the appellant was convicted of using a hall for unlawful gaming within the meaning of a certain section of the gaming house act. That section says that any person who owns or occupies "any house, room or place," and who "shall open, keep or use the same for the purposes of unlawful gaming being carried on therein," may, on summary conviction before two justices, be "adjudged to pay" a penalty not exceeding £500. The question has been raised, what is "unlawful gaming?"

Owner Not Convicted.

Mr. Justice Hawkins (afterward Lord Brampton), is quoted as having given a decision in a case as follows: "All games of chance and skill combined (which cannot be called games of mere skill), are unlawful games if played in a house kept for playing them." It has been held, however, that an isolated occasion on which an unlawful game was played among friends at the house of one of them did not render the owner of the premises liable under the section.

In another case Mr. Justice Avory said that playing at games of cards for money was gaming, which was not necessarily unlawful, but it became unlawful if the game was played in a common gaming house, "as part of the business thereof." Whist, in the opinion of the courts, is a game of chance and skill combined, and the element of chance is made the greater in whist drives or progressive whist.

Courts Are Lenient.

So far, the courts have been lenient in the interpretation of the section of the gaming house act relating to whist. They have not insisted that the mere use of the premises for the playing of card games of chance and skill combined is sufficient to render the owner or occupier liable. They have taken the view that there must be evidence of the premises being "kept" for unlawful gaming. Thus, a man who hires a hall for a series of whist drives, charges for admission, and offers prizes, would come under the penalty imposed in the statute as a person who kept a gaming house—namely, to use Mr. Justice Hawkins' definition, "a house in which a large number of persons are invited habitually to congregate for the purpose of gaming."

The "gaming" must be the taking part in a game which is not a game of mere chance, is not enough to take the game out of the category of games that are unlawful, when played in a "gaming house," as defined by the courts.

Since their re-establishment as nations following the war, both Lithuania and Poland have made claims to the Vilna region, which is situated on the border between them. The controversy is still pending before the League of Nations and will probably be taken up at the meeting of its council in Geneva on Jan. 11.

Other veins nearby are now being developed.

Why Money Rates Play See-Saw

If you had $1,000 to loan and there were 100 people who wanted to borrow it, these people in their anxiety to secure the use of your money would bid against each other by offering you high rates of interest.

But if you wanted to borrow money and there were 100 people who wanted to loan it to you, you would secure it at a low rate of interest because these people would prefer to put their money to work at even a low rate of interest rather than to have it idle, earning nothing.

In each case the security behind the loan might be the same—yet the interest rate would vary greatly.

These extreme examples illustrate the ups and downs of money rates.

During the war the government had need of a great part of the wealth of the country. Individuals or corporations whose need of funds compelled them to compete with the government for money were obliged to pay a high price for the money they secured.

The needs for money since the war have also been great so that those who secure it are in effect still bidding against each other and paying a high price for the funds they obtain.

A common way for a corporation to borrow money is through the medium of a bond issue. The high rates paid during recent years have been all to the advantage of those who loan their money by purchasing bonds.

But less money is now being sought by borrowers than during the war and the months following the war. Supply is beginning to meet demand. Interest rates in some instances have already declined. They will in time decline still more. The opportunities to secure the highest rates in many years are passing. Some day 5 and 6 per cent will again seem high.

Everyone Is Welcome at Any of These Churches On the Sabbath Day

Repudiates Popular Idea That Ministers Cater To Classes

Rev. A. C. Bingham, Pastor Egerton Street Baptist Church, Declares Bible Against Men Who Rob Labor of Its Due, But Wealth Not Necessarily Disgraceful.

Prefacing his remarks by the explanation that he had been challenged to preach a sermon from James 1, 1, Rev. A. C. Bingham, at Egerton Street Baptist Church, on Sunday morning, took that verse as the theme of his discourse, the wording being: "Ye rich, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you."

"I have been challenged to speak upon that text," stated the pastor, "and I am only too glad to meet that challenge. In fact, I am only too ready at any time to have any member of my congregation suggest texts that they would like to have dealt with. Some get the idea that ministers cater only to the rich, but that is a delusion that will be swept away by a regular attendance at the services of any church. A preacher is not a coward, and he must do his God-given duty in any camp of strong-arms."

The text for the morning, were it traced to its root, would be found to center and exist in ignorance about and ignoring of Christ's second coming. It is no disgrace to be successful, neither is it a disgrace to be wealthy. Job and Abraham were among the wealthiest men of their times. God gives the ability to some men to accumulate wealth. The speaker then brought out the special classes mentioned in the chapter from which the verse is taken.

Rob Labor of Due.

First among these are those who are holding back from labor by robbing labor of the share that rightly belongs to it. Both the Old and New Testaments deal with these men, classifying them with adulterers and liars. "God will come upon these men with swift witness," declared the speaker. "The Bible holds no brief for these. Then there are those who live in continual useless pleasure. The way taught by God will come upon these men, too. It is a sin not to serve. There is nothing that stirs up the red blood of a man more than to see those who have made money by grinding others down, spreading their wealth in idleness to appease the longings of a selfish soul. There are firms and individuals today that are sneered at in certain circles because they won't put down the pretensions of those who have the business ability. They refuse to grind, and in turn they are shoved to the wall and forced out of business."

"But the law of retribution is still operative. People don't like to use the word hell any more, so they bring out the word retribution, as they imagine it sounds nicer, but the same idea is in both. If there were no hell or no retribution our sense of justice and fair play would be outraged. God will hold those responsible who get and hold money for wrong uses. God does not smite the pious of poverty, nor the pious that the children of the poor have the same chance as the children of the rich. God gathers all these things up, and will surely pour them on the heads of those who have caused all the misery."

"Sell and Give to Poor."

Christ told the rich young man to go, sell what he had and give to the poor, and then to come and follow him. He also said it was hard for a rich man to enter the kingdom, but he did not say it was impossible. The one thing necessary was to get rid of the burden. Mr. Bingham then went on to show

ROBINSON MEMORIAL METHODIST CHURCH

"Breathe On Us Breath of God" was the subject of a sermon preached by Rev. W. H. Hiles in Robinson Memorial Methodist Church Sunday morning. The sermon was based on the text: "How much more shall your Heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him."

In part, Mr. Hiles said: "In the thought of Jesus man had no greater privilege to bring to the throne of grace than this, and God had no greater gift to give than His Holy Spirit. 'A great many good men today are making the mistake of desiring above everything else a speedy bodily return of Jesus Christ to earth. The disciples themselves desired the continued bodily presence of Jesus in their midst, but Jesus said 'It is expedient for you that I go away, for if I do not go away the Comforter will not come. Let us know that the greatest visitation we can have in our own lives or in our church life or in our world life is a visitation of God's Spirit, His dwelling with us and being in us.' 'It is not everything to see and hear and touch. Once men knew Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth they know Him by the Spirit, His dwelling with us and being in us. What then is it the Holy Spirit in us? The great prayer for us today is the prayer a master of Harrow school used to teach his boys, 'O Lord God for Christ's sake, give me the Holy Spirit. What then is it the Holy Spirit in us? He alone will do for us and in us. When He is come,' says Jesus, 'He will convince the world of sin and of righteousness and of judgment.' Such a conviction is at the basis of true repentance."

"It is the preparation for the coming of the kingdom of God. The Holy Spirit is God in action. In us He is the life of God in our souls. He is the life giver, and 'it is life richer, fuller, that we want.' Men cannot be satisfied with forgiveness of sin, they want goodness; men are born of the Spirit. He makes beautiful and fruitful the life in which he dwells. 'The Holy Spirit is also called the spirit of truth, who will guide men into all truth. No man can say that Jesus Christ is Lord but by the Holy Ghost. What a wonderful thing it is to be able to say 'My Lord, My God,' and bring great and mighty convictions into our hearts when he comes and dwells in us. Like Paul, we can say: 'I know whom I have believed.' 'We know all things work together for good.' 'We know that we have a building of God.' Such certainty brings peace and joy and gladness into our lives."

"And then the spirit of God is the spirit of power. We are oppressed by our failure to bring God's kingdom to earth. We are depending too much on ourselves. 'Let us look now for a fresh outpouring of the spirit of power. 'Ye shall receive power when the Holy Ghost is come upon you.' 'Ask and ye shall receive,' says Jesus. It is in our knees we shall receive this spirit of truth and light and power. Lord teach us how to pray."

URGES MISSIONARY ACTIVITY IN AFRICA

Preaching in St. Paul's Cathedral Sunday evening, Rev. Professor Anderson urged the aid of Christian missionary effort being increased in Central Africa before the natives have been won to Mohammedanism. At the present time the forces of Islam are carrying on an active campaign to secure new converts, and it is a race of doubtful result to see whether Africa shall eventually be a Christian or a Mohammedan continent.

Professor Anderson also pointed to the "open door" which now awaits Christianity in the heathen world, including India, China and Japan. Pious efforts of the students of Tokio University in a religious census had declared themselves agnostics, showing to what extent the Japanese are deserting their one-time national religion Shintoism. Christianity now stands on equal ground in Japan with the two great heathen religions of that country, Shintoism and Buddhism, and the Christian world should not delay to take advantage of this favorable opportunity.

India also is in a receptive attitude toward Christianity, because India is a land of reformers of one caste or another, and Christianity is a religion of universal appeal, which does not recognize any caste and class divisions. "Open doors" may not always remain open, said Professor Anderson, in emphasizing the desirability making the most of the present opportunities for evangelizing the world.

NEW THOUGHT SOCIETY

The service of the Unity New Thought Society in the Highgate Block, Dundas street, Sunday afternoon, was conducted by Dr. Hedley V. Caton, recently elected president of the organization. Following the address of Dr. Caton, Alexander McLennan, of Toronto, spoke briefly on behalf of the Russian famine relief fund now being raised by the Canadian Friends of Soviet Russia. In answer to criticism, Mr. McLennan declared that this organization was purely humanitarian and non-political. After some discussion it was decided by the New Thoughtists to tentatively appoint delegates to the local conference of the Canadian Friends of Soviet Russia to be held during this week.

Declares Christian Science Proves Itself by Its Works

Esra W. Palmer, C.S.B., Explains Real Reasons For Religion's Existence and Growth in World.

Esra W. Palmer, C.S.B., member of the board of lecturers of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., delivered a lecture on Christian Science, the science of a spiritual understanding, to a large and enthusiastic audience at the Patricia Theatre on Sunday night. Mr. Palmer, who was introduced by Mr. S. F. Lawrason, spoke substantially as follows:

"The world has been searching for it for thousands of years. In their endeavor to solve the problem of being and to establish happiness on an enduring basis, mortals have formulated many creeds, rules of conduct and organized numerous conflicting sects and denominations. They have tried various attempts to establish happiness, but have not stood the test of time, nor have they rendered mankind immune from the ravages of fear, sin, disease and death. These creeds and sects have, in large measure, been predicted in the teachings of the Bible, but they have failed to demonstrate the promises of the Bible in saving men from the mortal coil. The only way to escape the mortal coil is to have a right understanding of the word of God, that is, the word of the Father, who is the Father of all things, and must be submitted to."

Proves by Works.

Christian Science is a demonstrable religion. The reason for its existence, and its growth, is that Jesus Christ is Lord but by the Holy Ghost. What a wonderful thing it is to be able to say 'My Lord, My God,' and bring great and mighty convictions into our hearts when he comes and dwells in us. Like Paul, we can say: 'I know whom I have believed.' 'We know all things work together for good.' 'We know that we have a building of God.' Such certainty brings peace and joy and gladness into our lives. "And then the spirit of God is the spirit of power. We are oppressed by our failure to bring God's kingdom to earth. We are depending too much on ourselves. 'Let us look now for a fresh outpouring of the spirit of power. 'Ye shall receive power when the Holy Ghost is come upon you.' 'Ask and ye shall receive,' says Jesus. It is in our knees we shall receive this spirit of truth and light and power. Lord teach us how to pray."

Has Much in Common.

Let it be remembered that Christian Science has nothing in common with current religious teachings. When we examine the teachings of Christian Science we find that it has much in common with the best religious teachings outside of the Christian Science movement. Mrs. Eddy was for many years a member of the Congregational church, and while a member of that church, and while under the instruction of some of the noted divines of that church, she began that profound study of the Bible and that tireless search for a spiritual cause of all human ailments which culminated in the revelation and discovery of Christian Science. There is therefore no gulf fixed between Christian Science and what is known as orthodox Christianity. Christian Science is the revelation and discovery of the ailment of spirit and the application of that fact to human affairs resulting in the spiritual healing of human beliefs in sin, disease and death. It teaches a spiritual concept of God which orthodox Christianity has not attained. When we examine the doctrines and creeds of the various religions we find much that is conflicting—but we also find that practically all Christian denominations agree on certain great fundamental concepts regarding the Supreme Being.

"People agree that God is Spirit and that Spirit is omnipotent, omniscient and omnipresent. They agree on these three great fundamentals because they are taught in the Bible, and because on no other basis can we conceive of a Supreme Being. We cannot divide God's power and still have him supreme, and if his power is divided, to whom will we assign the power taken away from God? If we assign it to another agency called evil, we divide the universe; the one God, the great I am, would no longer be supreme, and there would be two powers arrayed against each other, the powers of good and evil, with the result—a universe of conflicting forces of chaos and disorder. Christian Science accepts and teaches these three great verities of Spirit, omnipotence, omnipresence, omniscience, not theoretically or abstractly, but as living realities, and it teaches that in the understanding of these fundamentals lies the solution of all human problems. Thus if a Christian Scientist faces sickness, he relies on the omnipotence of God to heal it; if he faces a condition where ignorance prevails, he turns to God and relies on the omniscience—the infinite all-knowingness of God—to supply him the wisdom and light to meet the situation. If evil seems to hold sway, he knows that God is omnipresent, universal good, and that the divine presence is at hand to destroy evil. God is a Rescuer."

On the other hand, the adherents of current religious teachings do not as a rule rely wholly upon the all-power, all-presence and all-knowledge of God. If sick, they will usually rely upon drugs or other material means, and turn to God only as a last resort when hope of relief from other sources has utterly vanished. And so, likewise, the materially minded are prone to rely on human means for help when disaster appears instead of turning unreservedly to God. They rely on others, trust to human will and human ingenuity to aid them, although experience has proved time and again that these material agencies afford no sure and genuine relief. Through the centuries of Bible history, patriarch and prophet gave to the world the truth about God and man as revealed to them. But they did not receive the full revelation of truth. They had the spirit,

Catholic Societies Celebrate Holy Communion at St. Peter's

Sunday the Holy Name Societies of the city in common with similar societies on the North American continent celebrated the Feast of the Holy Name, which fell during the past week, by attending Holy Communion in a body.

The event at St. Peter's Cathedral had an added interest inasmuch as the annual meeting and breakfast of the society falls on the Sunday on which the feast is celebrated, and this year's gathering was very large. Bishop M. F. Fallon said the 8:30 mass, which the society attended, and the two center tables of the cathedral were almost wholly taken up by men. Father Pocock was the preacher at the mass.

Women Serve Breakfast.

Leaving the cathedral the men adjourned to St. Peter's Hall, where the women of the Altar Society had prepared a tasty breakfast. The six long rows of tables, seating about 50 each, were soon filled and many had to wait. Between courses Father Brennan, the new spiritual director, practiced the men on hymn singing, stating that in the future it is the intention to have congregational singing at all masses for the Holy Name Society.

Bishop Fallon joined the men at breakfast after the mass, and addressed them at some length, touching on a number of topics of interest to the members, and the advancement of their society.

Hugh L. Humphrey, editor of the Catholic Magazine, Hamilton, was also a speaker, touching briefly on the progress of the work which various Catholic organizations throughout the world are carrying on for the spread of the faith.

New Director Attends.

Dr. Best, president of the society, presided, and during the course of his remarks on the work of the year, he spoke feelingly of the departure of Father Young, former spiritual director, who is now stationed at St. Mary's. He touched at length on the interest which Father Young had taken in spreading the work of the Holy

GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED MONTREAL, QUEBEC

November 8th, 1921.

Canadian Daily Newspapers Association, 902 Excelsior Life Building, Toronto, Ont.

Gentlemen:--

Your letter of October 21st gives us the opportunity to say that in the opinion of the Gillette Safety Razor Company of Canada, Limited, publicity may be considered under the following heads:

All kinds of advertising are good advertising.

The relative value of the media depends on the text and the purpose of the message.

Topical advertisements requiring insertion on certain set dates from the Atlantic to the Pacific have been an important part of the Gillette advertising campaign, and for that reason the daily newspapers have always occupied an important part of our publicity budget.

The service of the press will be invoked by us in the future as in the past.

Very truly yours,

GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR COMPANY of Canada, Limited.

Peterstein, Superintendent.

NPP/Steno.#5.

When the Gillette Safety Razor Company wished to announce their new razor, and to tell the public about it over-night, they did it through the Daily Newspapers of Canada thereby proving the unparalleled flexibility of the Daily Newspaper as an advertising medium.

The Irish Treaty.

THE SIGNING OF the treaty making the Free State of Ireland was a big event, not only for Ireland, but for the empire.

It is too early to pronounce the treaty a success. The vote on the measure showed opposition, persistent and unyielding, and the attitude of this faction in the future can do much to mar the success of the attempt.

The success of the Free State of Ireland means to a large measure the immediate success of the empire.

The Point At Issue.

THE MUNICIPALITIES that voted on hydro radial bylaws recently and carried them, have created a situation that will have to be faced by these municipalities and by the government of the province.

The government has stated its position before the vote was taken, and there is no reason to believe that there will be any change in the attitude on this matter.

The Drury government probably has no idea of interfering in any way with the right of the municipalities to conduct their own affairs, so long as such policy is consistent with the general welfare of the province.

At the same time, there is the other angle on which the government has taken its stand, viz.: That the government will not knowingly be a party to illegal procedure.

The point involved is whether the municipalities can go ahead with plans and ideas that are quite separate and apart from the rights granted in the statutes of the province.

Capt. Matthew Munro.

CAPTAIN MATTHEW MUNRO of Canso, N. S., is a rugged captain in the non-spectacular business of running a sailing vessel in the fishing trade.

But Captain Munro had his opportunity to show just how a real seafaring man can act in the face of danger and death.

When his ship had all but gone to pieces in a snowstorm, and when she was being pounded to pieces on the rocks at night, Captain Munro, resolved to take a desperate chance.

The rugged life of the sea develops men—men big enough and brave enough to face with courage and decision the great crises of their life.

Captain Munro played well his part when the big chance came. His was the heroism that thrills Canada, and his was the willingness to make even the supreme sacrifice, if necessary, in order to save the members of his crew.

Canada is proud of men like Captain Matthew Munro. He is a credit to the best traditions of the sea.

READ YOUR CHARACTER

NO. 82—PASSIONATE HANDS. Right at the outset it must be stated that this business of holding hands is one which must be discussed circum-spectly.

Our inopinion is this; it isn't really necessary to hold a person's hand continuously to decide whether he or she is one possessed of an excess of ardor and emotion. If you're reasonably quick about it you can find out all you want to know simply by shaking hands. Even "demon" chaperons cannot prevent a slight lingering of the handclasp. And it isn't necessary to let it linger longer than is enough to indicate a certain degree of cordiality.

All you have to find out is whether the person's hand is hot. A hot hand indicates hot blood, not so much in the literal as in the figurative sense. It doesn't make any difference whether the hand is moist or dry. That is of physiological significance only. Except it is well to remember that a hand which perspires freely will be colder than it is when the hand is dry.

Such persons are not only likely to display ardor in their affections and friendships, but have a tendency to be hot-headed generally, resentful of insults or slights, and equally ready to forgive and forget.

WAYS TO KEEP WELL THE MOUTH

BY DR. R. H. BISHOP. The mouth has a greater task than we realize. Through it passes everything that is necessary to sustain life and build up the body.

In the mouth the food is chewed and mixed with saliva—the first step in digestion. We must realize that in this process of chewing or mastication, all the foods are directly affected by the condition of the mouth. If the gums are foul and full of pus, if there are cavities in the teeth in which bits of decomposed food remain, the food in its passage through the mouth becomes contaminated and mixed with pus from round the teeth and the bacteria from the cavities in the teeth.

The only way to keep from constantly swallowing diseased material is to keep the mouth clean. Having the teeth repaired will not only do this, but will relieve one from the pain of inflamed gums and broken-down teeth. Obscure general symptoms, in a number of cases, have been relieved by proper dental treatment when no other remedy could be found.

Children's teeth should be carefully watched from early childhood. School dentists are now doing much good work. If the school dentist sends home word that care is needed, send your child promptly to your dentist.

Teeth should be brushed at least once a day and should be looked over and put in order twice a year.

De Lorme, a priest of this city, was found late yesterday with two bullets through his head on the snow, near a small shack in the neighborhood of Snowden Junction, about three miles from the heart of this city.

Complete mystery surrounds the perpetration of the crime, but it is the theory of detectives who are working on the case, that there is a woman in the case and that the deed was done in a spirit of revenge.

About 7 o'clock he telephoned to the house and said he had been to the performance and was going to supper with friends, and that afterwards he might take an automobile ride, and not to worry about him if he was a little late.

Who the friends are with whom he went to the theatre or with whom he stayed are absolutely unknown to the family, although his brother remembers hearing him speak on one occasion of a friend who lives on Beaudry street.

Robbery was not the motive of the crime, for on his finger was found his class-ring, bearing the inscription, "U. of O. '22," while in his pockets were all his private papers, some letters and a small sum of money.

The victim was shot once through the head and once through the throat, the bullets entering from the right side.

The boy is not known to have had any bad companions and to have been of good habits. He went to confession as late as last Thursday, preparatory evidently to his return to Ottawa, where he was to resume his studies Monday.

FREES JAMES HOLLING

Magistrate Jarvis Hears Evidence—Minister Helped in "Still Hunt."

[Special to London Advertiser.] SARNIA, Jan. 8.—James Holling was dismissed here Saturday afternoon when he appeared before Police Magistrate Jarvis charged with keeping a still, in a case which was featured by mention of the name of Rev. J. O. La Spracklin. As a result, Rev. Mr. Harding of Wilkesport Methodist Church was charged with being an aid in the employ of High Constable Scott, whose methods are now the subject of an investigation resulting from information being placed before Judge Albert Taylor of Lambton County.

Questioned by Attorney W. S. Haney, Mr. Harding, in the witness-box, admitted he had carried a revolver without a license, and while not having a chauffeur's license he had received various sums of money for driving the county constable in his motor car during recent raids made on farms throughout this vicinity. Under cross-examination, Mr. Harding stated he carried the revolver for self-defence, as did his fellow-clergyman, Mr. Spracklin. Asked if the latter had ever assisted him in raids made along the St. Clair border, the witness stated he never knew of him being in this section, but stated that he himself had aided the constable in raids made for liquor stills in Petrolon.

Denying that he had carried a gun during the years from 1914 to 1918, Rev.

Mr. Harding stated he had only carried it since he became a party to the clean-up campaign in Lambton County.

HEARTBURN A SEVERE CASE

Many people are troubled with heartburn who really do not realize just what it is.

In cases of this trouble there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach attended by disturbed appetite. It is generally caused by great acidity of the stomach, and whenever too much food is taken, it is liable to ferment, and become extremely sour, causing heartburn. In such cases vomiting often occurs, and what is thrown up is sour and sometimes bitter.

The one way to get rid of heartburn is to keep your liver active by using MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS, and you will have no heartburn or other liver troubles such as constipation, jaundice, water brash, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, foul breath, etc.

Miss Agnes Cutting, Shallow Lake, Ont., writes: "I have had heartburn for a long time. There were gnawing and burning pains in my stomach, and then when I vomited there was a sour and bitter taste. I used two vials of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and they have cleared me of my heartburn. I don't think they can be beaten by any other medicine."

Price, 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct, on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont.—Advt.

Seeing Week-End Market With Aunt Maria's Eyes

Does anybody ever do more see popcorn? Not the pink and white balls that are sold at "hokey-pokey, double jointed peanut vendors," or retail in the candy shops, but the kind that grows on cobs, is shelled off, hopped into the popper or family griddle, and makes a party for the whole home circle while it is being popped.

The dearth of such innocent amusement is possibly due to the lack of association with the chief factor in making corn-popping a habit and a success, association with "young hopefuls," who see in every corn-cob potential popcorn. In any case, the family man who has recently taken up his residence in London looked at Aunt Maria with a pity when she triumphantly displayed ears of popcorn annexed at the week-end market.

"Do the children up at our house ever see corn popped?" she repeated as questioner asked. "Say, the first thing they did after arriving in London, before the house was in order, was to go right down town and invest in a corn popper. Paid sixty-five cents for it. You would think the youngsters were going into the business to see operation around our kitchen. Fix it up with some kind of molasses and roll it in balls. And I don't mind telling I slide downstairs to get it at night. Only kind of confectory I ever eat, excepting those cakes that come out of Christmas trees."

Just Like Peter Pan.

Which goes to prove that people never really grow up, even if they do put up a fine bluff before their corn-popping sons and daughters. It is a limited quantity of the "raw material" from which the stylish pink and white balls and "dipped-in-molasses-home-brew" varieties are evolved was to be found Saturday morning over at the market. "What is this?" asked the vendor crisply.

"It was so long since Aunt Maria had indulged in such frivolities that she looked blankly at the interrogator. "What is the matter?" she asked.

"Nothing in the pop," said the growler. In appearance, the kernels of the corn were pointed like sharp teeth, the English, not so fancy or so snappy in style, but solid and substantial, very.

"It appeared that Aunt Maria had been napping. It wasn't the first time the popcorn had been seen on the market this season at all. "Had it in several weeks before Christmas," she was informed. "It didn't take long to go. I had this big basket full this morning, and see, it is pretty nearly all gone now." The price asked was 25 cents a dozen cobs. And think of the fun of popping.

"Cook Quick" Beans.

Not much mental adjusting was required to give attention next to beans, white ones at fifteen cents a quart.

A neighbor of the owner of the big basket proved a valuable ally when it came to making sales.

"I never saw beans cook up so quick," she commented. "I bought some of Mrs. G.'s beans, and I must say I got a surprise. If you burn gas, while they are cooking, burning dollars, you'll find it a real saving to buy these beans."

The growler smiled her gratitude for the timely "first aid to salesmanship," and, as she measured out a paper bag full of the beans, mentioned the fact she cooks them herself. Sometimes she soaks them over night; sometimes just a couple of hours. She puts them on in cold water to which she adds a teaspoonful of soda. When that boils up well, she pours off the water and replaces it with cold water, bringing it to a boil, and continuing the boiling till the beans are cooked to her satisfaction. That is her simplest method, and the quickest.

"I don't know any dish the family likes better for supper these cold nights than baked beans," commented a farmer's wife who had overheard the conversation.

Seventy and seventy-five cents were top-notch prices discovered for "strictly fresh eggs." One man selling them at 75 cents stated he had gathered 60 dozen during the past week. At that he claimed, with the price he must pay for feed, he really isn't much ahead.

Eggs, $30 a Dozen.

"There's not much money in farming this year," he declared. "A year ago this time we got $12 a pair for our young pigs. The best offer I have been able to get so far this year is $20 for a dozen."

Even if feed is high and prices are low, he had an experience in chicken-raising to relate, which causes him amusement every time he thinks of it.

"Ever buy chickens at a five, ten or fifteen-cent store?" he asked. "The real thing? Sure. Well, the wife and I saw them one day last June, selling right on a store in London for fifteen cents a piece. We bought some, and took them home to the kids, just for fun. Will you believe it, one of those chicks was the very first pullet we had start to lay, and it laid all we raised, choice breeds and all."

Butter was a trifle dearer than a week ago, 45 to 50 cents. Vegetables were scarce and scarcer, though quite a bumper squash could be bought for ten cents.

Was it because the sunshine had in it a whisper of spring? In any case, radishes, lettuce, and little green onions, all two bunches for fifteen cents, disappeared like magic. Just one turkey and one goose around the festive table in the basement at 11 o'clock, the former asking for itself, 60 cents. Fowl was scarce, and not cheap. Large birds were offered as high as $2.50, the lowest price discovered at $1.45 for "this year's chickens," fixed by a choice looking a bird some weeks ago for 90 cents or $1.

Fragrant offerings in a sidestall were bunches of narcissi and white and pale pink carnations, all tied up for 50 cents a piece.

A little girl, with a dimple in her chin paused in front of the charming young woman who dispenses weekly offerings of big fat cucumber pickles, just out of the brine, and cups and bowls of cottage cheese.

"Got my cheese for me?" said the little maiden. "Do you buy it for yourself or for your mother?" asked Aunt Maria.

"Both," she admitted. "mother sends me to get it, but I like it so much I take it every chance I get." Then, with her most grown-up, superior manner "This is really very good cheese, not too dry at all."

DIAMOND DYES

USED 50 YEARS

Somebody out of touch with truth once said there is no sentiment in business. Another, greater in wisdom, declared: "They profit most who serve best."

"Diamond Dyes" is half a century old, and Wells & Richardson, the manufacturers, are having a series of happy episodes to make the anniversary a noteworthy one.

Wells & Richardson announce the fact that their Diamond Dyes, a heroic example of the power of advertising, for the plant of small beginnings now covers a city block. The business was built on "making good" the advertisement that has made Diamond Dyes a household article. Possibly the greatest asset of this proved aid to economy is the goodwill of families who run through generations. Young women tell that their mothers and grandmothers before them were Diamond Dye enthusiasts.

The Wells & Richardson people are going to make the golden jubilee of Diamond Dyes nation-wide.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS.

A. QUARREL

[By Olive Roberts Barton.]

"Now tell me what the trouble is," said the Fairy Queen.

"Now tell me what the trouble is," said the Fairy Queen to the two battered looking kites.

"Nancy, Nick and Buskins had taken seats in the front row of the courtroom and they could hear and see everything that went on.

"They have been fighting again, your highness," said the policeman-kite, coming forward and making a stiff bow. "It's the old trouble again. They've been jealous of each other these hundred years and they are getting worse instead of better."

The Fairy Queen turned her kind eyes reprovingly on the offenders.

"Tut, tut, tut," she said. "This will never do! Aren't you both ashamed of yourselves! I keep this part of my kingdom, the Land-Up-In-The-Air, just to make you happy and here you are acting like this."

"Dear only knows when you kites get away from the strings 'n' things that do you to earth, you make a beeline for the sky as quick as you know how. Why do you come if you cannot be happy?" she asked severely.

"I would be happy if it wasn't for this fellow," said the first kite. "He knows I am the most important, but he won't say so."

"Why I've been written about in all the history books down on the earth and the children study about me. 'In the kite that carried the cord that pulled the rose that drew the cable that started the bridge.'"

"Oh, goodness!" cried the second kite. "we've heard it a million times!"

Then he turned to the Fairy Queen. "As for me, your majesty, I am Benjamin Franklin's silk kite," he said. "I went up into the clouds during a storm and discovered electricity!"

And he held himself so straight that he nearly fell over backwards.

The Fairy Queen wondered how the Fairy Queen was going to decide the question. But Buskins said to wait.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

MIX FRUITS AND CEREALS IN BREAKFAST DISHES

HE fruits and cereals you serve at breakfast may often be combined in such a way that both are improved. Cereals need long cooking, no matter what the directions on the package say. Start the cereal in the morning before when starting dinner.

Then cook in the double boiler while getting dinner and until the dishes are washed. In the morning reheating is all that will be necessary.

If dried fruit is added, add it the last hour of cooking. Always have the water boiling and salted before the cereal is sifted in, and stir constantly for the first ten minutes of cooking directly over the fire.

Allow a scant teaspoonful of salt to every cup of cereal.

Oatmeal with Raisins.
One cup oatmeal, 2 1/2 cups boiling water, 1 scant teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup seeded raisins.

Put water in top of double boiler with salt. When boiling briskly add the oatmeal slowly without stopping the bubbling. If the grains settle stir to prevent burning.

Cook over hot water for 2 hours and add raisins which have been carefully washed and dried. In the morning reheat and serve very hot.

There are so many wheat cereals on the market that one has a wide choice. The same rule holds with these, they must be well cooked.

However, wheat cooks in a shorter time than other grains and may be entirely cooked in the morning. Stoned and chopped dates are delicious added to any cooked wheat cereal just before serving.

Graham Mush.
One cup graham flour, 3/4 cup water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup stewed prunes.

Add salt to water. When boiling, add flour slowly. Cook over the fire 45 minutes, stirring to prevent burning. Add stewed prunes, stoned and cut in pieces, just before removing from the fire.

Hominy Grits With Figs.
One cup hominy, 4 cups water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup figs.

Add salt to boiling water and sift in hominy. Cook directly over the fire 10 minutes. Then cook in a double boiler for two or three hours.

Wash figs and cut in small pieces for the last hour of cooking. In the morning reheat to serve. Hominy grits are fine hominy. Coarse hominy or samp is used as a vegetable rather than a cereal.

Baked apples are delicious filled with cereal and served with sugar and cream for breakfast.

When fruit is combined with the cereal no other fruit is necessary. crisp toast should be served rather than hot muffins or rolls.

MISS H. PRIDDIS
DIES SUDDENLY
AT ST. JOHN'S

London Women Mourn Loss of Leader of Many Social Organizations.

LAUD HER WAR WORK
Funeral Will Be Held From Residence To Woodland
Monday Afternoon.

After only a couple of weeks' illness
death removed on Saturday morning
one of London's outstanding women,
Miss Harriet Priddis of "Brook Farm."
She was taken ill while spending Christmas with the Misses Geary, St. John's, and never rallied sufficiently to be removed to her home.

Miss Priddis was a daughter of the late Charles Priddis, a leading drygoods merchant in the early days in London.
Upon her father's death the business was taken over by her brothers, who resided from the store about fifteen years ago to go to their farm on Richmond street north.

She is survived by two brothers,
James and George, both of "Brook
Farm, Richmond street, and one brother, Charles, who resided here in September at Priddis, a village near Calgary. The village was named after him.

Funeral Monday Afternoon.
The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock
Monday afternoon from the residence of her brothers to Woodland cemetery, where interment will be made in the family mausoleum. The funeral will be conducted by Rev. William Lowes of St. John's Anglican Church.

Miss Priddis' unflinching sense of humor made her an eagerly sought guest or companion. No group of friends was so complete as to add the laugh of her original point of view, her naive comments on personages in the public eye and the events of history in the making. She was a staunch and sturdy friend alike of individual and cause, fearless to speak her mind in support of what she believed to be truth and right, unflinching in her advocacy of the cause she was forwarding a movement that lay close to her heart.

Regent of I. O. O. E. Chapter.
For years Miss Priddis was leader of the I. O. O. E. Chapter, later the Abigail Chapter, I. O. O. E. around whom the members rallied enthusiastically.
She resigned only a year ago the responsibilities of the office of regent.

As secretary of the department for a number of years, Miss Priddis was devoted heart and soul to carrying forward the work of the ladies' auxiliary of the I. O. O. E. She was a member of the M. S. C. C., introducing from time to time as head of the department personal touches and original methods characteristically her own.

She was proud of the fact that she was a descendant of sturdy English stock, rooted for generations in the land, and she enjoyed to the full her spacious country home across the Richmond street bridge in London Township. Memorable for years to come will be the June garden fetes held there for the Abigail Becker Chapter, the mistress of the occasion, who moved her gracious and hospitality as she moved among her guests. In the war years she led her chapter by personal example in unflinching efforts on behalf of the men who were fighting and suffering and dying for a great cause.
Whether it was in service at the soldiers' club or organizing and superintending the peddling of apples for evaporating when the cash was low,
she was ever ready for any and all possible supplies to be sent overseas, she gave of her best efforts.

Back to Home Interests.
With the major responsibilities of war days behind her, she turned to the things in which she had been interested from girlhood days. The Technical School offered opportunity.
She took advantage of it in improving her technical skills in sewing.
And so, as the years rolled by and piled up their total for her, she retained a live interest in people and the things going on in the world around her, close touch with the affairs of life, and sympathetic contact with the newest generation which kept her young in heart, retaining for her old friends and making new ones whenever she turned.

the purpose of hearing Dr. Frank H.

THIRTEEN NEW MEMBERS

were welcomed at the January meeting of the Lorne Avenue Mothers' Club, bringing the total up to 52. The meeting took the form of an entertainment for the school children, when an enjoyable program of songs, recitations, etc., was presented by the pupils of the different grades. The club is planning a talent show and sale of home cooking for the first week in February.

A MEMORIAL SERVICE

was held at Hyatt Avenue Church on Sunday at 11 o'clock for the late Mrs.
Kathleen Topham, who died Jan. 1.
The superintendent of the school spoke very feelingly to the scholars on the life of Miss Topham, having known her all her life. R. J. McCormick, pastor of the church, addressed the Sunday school, on the influence of such a life in her home and in the Sunday school,
where she would be missed very much.
She will be missed very much among the many friends that she made during her short life. A letter of sincere sympathy was sent from the school to her family.

EXHIBIT MODEL OF

LLOYD GEORGE HOTEL

Just what the new Lloyd George Hotel will look like can be seen from the model now on exhibition in the window of Smallman & Ingram.

It can readily be imagined from the model that the hotel will be a very imposing building, and a great acquisition to the city from the building standpoint.

The structure, which will occupy the site block on Richmond street, will appear like three wings, with two vacant spaces between them, to afford plenty of light to all the rooms. The ground floors in the front will be devoted to stores, besides embracing the main entrances to the hotel, side entrances are provided for on each of the side streets.

The building will be faced with red brick, with ornamental masonry work for pillars and cornices.

The work of the test pits is going on,
and it is expected that work will begin on the main structure before long.

particularly along the vocational lines.
Following the conclusion of the tour of the school, the members of the committee will be entertained at luncheon at the school.

The special meeting will bring up only one feature, so far as is known.
This concerns the notice of motion given by Mrs. A. A. Rice, who will move an amendment to the bylaws regarding the composition of No. 3, the Collegiate committee.

city on Wednesday.

CONTRACTORS MAY MAKE WAGE CUT

When the contractors of the Builders' Exchange meet in general session on Monday night it is fully expected that some of their number will ask for a reduction in wages in at least certain of the branches of the industry.

It was hoped, as an instance that the bricklayers would accept a voluntary cut, but a committee of the employers met with a committee of the bricklayers last week when no amicable understanding was reached. The contractors ask that the prevailing scale for this class of work be reduced from $1.00 to 90 cents an hour.

Certain of the contractors hold that corresponding decreases should be afforded to the plumbers, carpenters, electricians and other skilled workers.

FREDERICK SMITH

sided at the weekly court at the court house on Saturday, the first since the

disposed of, as follows:

Elizabeth Smith vs. Frederick Smith

An order was made for interim alimony of $100 per week and actual disbursements to be paid before trial. P.
H. Bartlett appeared for the plaintiff and A. R. Douglas for the defendant.

Glen vs. Atkinson—Motion to confirm report of the local master at London. Order was made as asked on consent being filed, including the consent of the mortgage company that was implicated in the same deed, elected trial by jury, and was also remanded until Friday next for preliminary hearing. Through his counsel, J. M. Donahue, he pleaded not guilty, but this was subsequently withdrawn. Crown

the election of trial should proceed the plea.

A juvenile, who is said to have accompanied the other defendants, was arraigned before the magistrate in a private session, and finally discharged.

It being reasoned that he was in no way connected with the alleged act.
J. M. Donahue's request for further time was granted by the crown.

But Four Building Permits Issued in 1922

THERE is no wild rush at the city hall for building permits
since the new year has started.
So far only four permits have been issued, three for garages, the value of which totals $270 and $100 job of putting new retaining walls under a house.

Inspector Piper has hopes,
however, that it will not be long before building will get under way, and he looks for big things in the spring.

Receive Instruction Posters
Regarding Minimum Wages

The posters regarding the minimum wage instructions have arrived in London and will be exhibited in all places that are governed by them. The instructions are the result of the investigation conducted by the minimum wage board that held sittings in the various cities to determine what should be the lowest amount paid to the female help in stores, factories and
etc. The amount differs slightly according to the size of the city and whether the person is an experienced worker or not. An experienced worker in London must not get lower than $12.00 a week and inexperienced hands are

J. STANLEY MEREDITH.

What can we do to make 1922 good for business? was the subject of the address given at the Rotary Club luncheon on Monday.

Harvey Skey was the first speaker,
and he gave a comparison of the statistics for the years 1920 and 1921, and in them it was shown that business had removed a large part of the load that was holding it back. The premium paid on American money was less than half what it was in 1920, and that showed that the trade balance was getting more equal.

The speaker said that if lower rates prevailed on the railroads, the cost of living would be reduced considerably, because the transportation rates affected everybody, and whereas other things had been reduced quite considerably, the transportation charges were still about three times as much as in pre-war times. Wages in general were coming down, and it was only right that wages on the railways should come down with the cost of living.

Statistics were the only basis for comparison and was the only way that people could see where they stood.

Chris. Whitwam, who was the next speaker, said that speaking in a general way, the stocks of the manufacturers were very low, and for the first few months of this year the orders would exceed the production, especially could this be true in the steel trade and the manufacturer of steel goods.
The speaker urged that the people be prepared when the time came that they were busy once again. If the manufacturer did not anticipate the time to some extent, and be prepared,
the best part of the rush that was to come, would be lost. Conditions were much better now than a year ago and that this was a time for optimism.

THIEVES BREAK
INTO CITY HALL
Steal Cash Box With $500
Bond, Legal Documents and Check.

Seemingly Chicago and Detroit are not the only cities where the bold bandits coolly force entrances into buildings and walk away with the safe or the cash security box.

Edward Lance, secretary of the London branch of the Soldiers' Aid Commission, reports that his department nearly lost a $500 Victory bond, as the result of an early morning raid on his office on Saturday last.

The visitor, or visitors, who were in the office of the downtown area, waited apparently until P. C.
Frayne made his usual call at 2 a.m.
and then proceeded boldly and method-ically to crash in the two doors leading into the commission office.

Several other legal documents and a check for $12 are also gone.

Secretary Lance reports that the cash box only was "lifted," and with it he has gone the $500 bond, the property of Mrs. Emily Coleman, a widow, who had left it with Mr. Lance for safe keeping. The bond in question is practically valueless to the day, present other than the owner, and is registered as
No. 2006956.

It was P. C. Frayne, who reports that about 2:30 Saturday morning he was making his regular rounds when he discovered the lower door smashed in.

TRUNKS UNMOLESTED
Police Believe Intruders Knew
Ground At 609 Richmond Street.

It is the frank opinion of the detective department that the thieves who forced an entry into Sam Lee's laundry, 609 Richmond street, early Sunday night were not treading upon unfamiliar ground.

More than $700, the property of three different Chinamen, was taken. The sum of $600 was removed from his hiding place in a box concealed beneath a large mound of rags. The other sums, more than $50 each, hid by the owners in different places on a shelf, were also missing.

The police explain that whoever made the entry must needs have been entirely familiar with the place.
Trunks and other possible places of hiding were obviously going direct to where the money was located. Nothing else was disturbed.

San Lee stated to the police that he and his two companions who live with him left the store about eight o'clock.
When they returned about eleven o'clock they discovered that the front door had been broken in and upon a quick survey of the rooms, soon learnt that their savings had disappeared.

The detectives are working on the case.

MAY PICK NEW RULER FOR TORN HUNGARY STATE

Hapsburgs On Verge of Presenting Another Act of Europe's 'Royal Comedy.'

ALBRECHT LIKELY CHOICE

Son of Archduke Frederic Is Supported by Large and Powerful Following.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—King Charles and Queen Zita are secure prisoners on the island of Madeira, the Hungarian parliament has submitted to the Entente and formally deposed the king. The armies of Czech-Slovakia and Jugoslavia have demobilized, and the danger of a new war is passed. Yet the Hapsburgs, drama of Europe's "royal comedies" is not ended, and promises another act or two quite as stirring, perhaps even as ludicrous as the one just finished.

If consistency is a virtue, the Magyars cannot take offense in having their story called a comedy and Charles' adventures and their own behavior ludicrous. It was the Hapsburgs who in 1849 wiped out the liberal movement in Hungary with foreign aid. It was against the Hapsburg power that Hungarian policy intermittently intervened during the life of Franz Joseph and when the young Charles after his coronation dismissed Count Tisza he severed one of the strongest bonds between the crown and the Magyar aristocracy.

Yet the legitimists after the war saved the monarchy, and even the Hapsburg monarch. And there the simple element sets in. Charles, invited to Hungary by the liberal-minded people, was summarily invited by them to go away again. His triumphant entry into Budapest was thoroughly worked out a second time; a second time he set foot on his home soil, thereupon was by not only defeated by an army of his Magyar subjects, but was taken prisoner by them and surrendered to foreign captivity. All the Magyar army which filled the concentration camps of Hungary with thousands of enemies of a monarchy of government and have kindled the brightest royalist altar left in Europe.

May Surprise Agin. Now unless the election of a new Hungarian ruler should be indefinitely postponed (which seems hardly credible) the world may have another Hapsburg surprise. Experts on Hungarian common law, and especially Count Apponyi, the politician of international fame, point out that the resolution of the National Assembly proclaiming the dethronement of the Hapsburgs is not valid.

They declare that it violates the unchangeable fundamental law of the country's Constitution whereby he who has been invested with the holy crown of St. Stephen, Hungary's first ruler, cannot cease to be the only lawful head of the country without formally renouncing his rights. The law of the "Pragmatic Sanction," passed in 1722 providing for the hereditary succession of the Hapsburgs, is considered a contract between the royal family and the nation. One of these parties cannot dissolve it without the other's formal consent.

This attitude of statesmen of the moral influence of Count Apponyi will naturally strengthen the back of the pro-Hapsburg party. But even were the treaty accepted by all political parties the Hapsburg question is still far from being settled. The resolution has merely re-established the right of free election of the king. Although the election is chiefly advocated by the dominant party of small landowners who are anti-Hapsburg, yet it is likely—unless the Allies intervene—that Hungary will elect a Hapsburg.

The reason is that the only serious candidate belongs to that family. Although some members of Admiral Horthy's entourage would like to put the present "Regent" of Hungary up as a candidate, he opposes following Napoleon's example. Besides Hungary's constitution only permits the admission of a Catholic to the kingship and Horthy is a Protestant and not an aristocrat by birth. Moreover, it appears to be tacitly agreed that the election of a native must be avoided. It would surely lead to a violent party feud, of which the country's history has already seen many a disastrous example.

Support Archduke Albrecht. The candidate believed to be supported by Horthy himself, and by a strong group in Hungary, is the Hapsburg Archduke Albrecht, a son of Archduke Frederic, the enormously wealthy uncle of the emperor. The Hungarian exchequer, at any rate, would gladly hail the advance of a wealthy prince, who would be expected to sacrifice a part of his fortune on the altar of the fatherland. Another serious candidate is Archduke Joseph, the only really popular Hapsburg, who is looked upon as a thorough-going Hungarian both by birth and education.

The other possible candidates stand but a small chance of being elected. It is asserted that a certain group of Hungarian politicians let out a fever about a year ago to see whether a prince of British royal blood would accept the candidature. It seems, however, that this step met with a cool reception in London, for England prefers the attitude of the look-on-to-be-entangled-in-so-intricate-a-problem.

Several aristocrats hailing from Transylvania favor the plan of a native ruler.

sonal union between Hungary and Rumania, whereby they hope to see their home province restored to Hungary. But the Rumanian occupation of the greater part of Hungary in 1919, which stripped the country bare of what Bela Kun's reign has destroyed, created so strong a feeling against the eastern neighbor that a Rumanian on Hungary's throne is thought impossible. A Hungary-Jugo-Slav combination is out of the question, both because of the enmity between the two nations and by Italy's violent opposition to any change which might strengthen her Adriatic rival.

Thus it seems that the only way to prevent another Hapsburg complex in the near future might be a prolongation of Horthy's term as "regent," and an indefinite postponement of the election. But Hungarians are impatient. They feel disposed to force the issue to a speedy end and "have done with it."

Naturally the Hapsburg drama has a motive and an explanation. "They are to be found in the character of the Hungarian people and their constitution. Not the person nor the family of the ruler decides the attitude of the nation. This attitude is due to the time-honored institution of the 'legis moribus' of Saint Stephen." Whoever has lawfully worn that crown will ever be regarded by the legitimists to be the only lawful sovereign, and the politically conservative Magyars will shrink back from the violation of that tradition, sanctioned by the ancient contract between ruler and ruled.

Require Strict Legality. No law is valid in Hungary unless it has been passed by both the king and Parliament. If either of the two refuses to cooperate the legislation is worthless. Thus the Hapsburgs, by offering passive resistance to any legal measure apt to deprive them of their rights, are masters of the situation. This is the secret of the most paradoxical situation. Europe has witnessed since the armistice the explanation of why serious and influential politicians like Count Apponyi, Count Andrássy, Dr. Gratz and Dr. Vassonyi have supported the regent's recent adventure and why the proposed trial for high treason of these "legitimists," as they are called, is very unlikely to come off at all.

As far as Charles is concerned, popularity as he was during the first few months of the war, the last two years of the war saw him one of Europe's most disliked monarchs. His weakness and the strong, allegedly Jesuit, inspired influence of Empress Zita upon her husband, as well as her Italian descent, accounts for that. It is typical of the unpopularity of the imperial couple that there was a rumor in Austria-Hungary that in two instances Horthy's offensive operations against Italy had to be postponed because the preparatory measures of the Austrian general staff were given away to Italy by the pro-Italian personal entourage of the empress, who had two brothers fighting on the allied side.

It is symptomatic of the general state of mind in Austria that many influential politicians in Vienna were convinced that Charles' plan had been sanctioned, even supported, by French royalists. It was stated by Vienna newspapermen that the alleged French attempt at inducing Bavaria to break away from Berlin and at bringing about a personal union between monarchistic Bavaria, Austria and Hungary under the Wittelsbach dynasty had failed because Bavaria, although thoroughly monarchistic in her feelings, had realized that her economic prosperity depended upon her cooperation with the rest of Germany. Italy was also accused of promoting the experiment with a view to weakening her Yugoslav neighbors.

Rumor of this kind and prophecies of what may happen next are the topic of the day in Vienna, Budapest and neighboring capitals. The tension caused by Charles' ill-advised adventure has not yet been forgotten, and it is likely that the "big" and the "little" Ententes will soon face a new situation in Hungary which even sage diplomats will find a hard nut to crack.

British Ideas Prevailed. In reference to the position of Italy in the conference, Signor Nitti points out the most important question was settled, as it happened, when the Italian representatives by fortuitous circumstances were absent. The question of the settlement of damages was accidentally settled, and almost by mistake, and yet on this question the present life of Europe for some time to come must depend. At certain periods the American representatives were almost lacking; England and Greece were quite uninterested, but in the end her opinion prevailed over that of the French who only had one idea, which was the dismemberment of Germany, creating conditions of life which are quite intolerable.

A considerable part of the book is devoted to the future of the new countries which have risen since the treaties of peace, and he claims probably with justice that a number of these are still-born and it will be impossible for them to preserve their territorial positions in Central Europe. He is particularly bitter against Poland and Greece, which countries he considers to be a couple of nouveau riche brigands in the new world. Italy has enormous armies and is spending enormous sums, having done practically nothing in the war to justify their extension or creation of territories. Poland especially he claims to be bankrupt and he says that the only claim of Poland today, not being able to do anything but create a system of anarchy in her own country, is to try to grab other territories belonging to people much better civilized and capable than the Poles.

The disorganized production has placed the greater part of Europe in the position that it cannot trade one part between another, and this has created a crisis which has its repercussions also in the United States. There is no trade in Europe today which can by any possible chance be called as approaching the normal. He claims that France and Italy are not in a position to pay their foreign debts and not even the interest on them, though he allows that if careful financiers could be found in these countries who would go in for a rigid system of economy these two countries are the only ones on the continent of Europe which have any chance of living through the present crisis, preserving their credits. He pays a tribute to England and says that she is the only country which has made any attempt to set her house in order financially, and he states that England more than any other country, not excepting his own country, has carried out disarmament and demobilization.

False Ideas of Resources. But against the position of the conquering countries, Signor Nitti points out that Europe still shows an inclination to believe that the conquered countries, which have one and all lost a large part of their resources, by territorial divisions, such as the treaties, etc., are able to pay huge indemnities. He notes that Austria, far from being able to pay an indemnity, is at the present time asking for help from abroad to feed her own population. And this theory is still believed in by certain people at a time when the financial experts of the world are trying to reduce the importance of the prospective indemnities in the interest of the victorious countries themselves.

In summing up the position Signor Nitti says that Italy, which had been the lifelong enemy of the Austrian monarchy, today, after the armistice, and the peace treaties, finds herself in competition with the victors which composed the monarchy, but who are today protected by the Entente; Germany has

SIGNOR NITTI WRITES BOOK ON GREAT WAR

Convinced That Russia Was Original and Principal Reason For Conflict.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO BRITAIN

Mistaken Idea To Believe the Conquered Can Pay Huge Indemnity.

Rome, Jan. 9.—Although Signor Nitti has just completed a series of articles on the condition of Europe since the war and his opinions of the present condition of Europe, he has rushed into press a book on "Europe Without Peace," to be simultaneously published in French, German, English and Italian, and which, while containing much material which has already appeared in the articles written for the American press, yet at the same time brings the author's remarks up to date and throws into a new and serious light the past.

The author commences with a study of the reasons which led to the war, based on the conditions of Europe prior to 1914, and is firmly convinced that Russia was the original and principal reason of the war. In fact, throughout the book he declares that the war was a fight between Teutonism and Slavism for the supremacy of the world. He says that Russia alone kept Serbia alive with her agitations against Austria, and that she alone kept up the intrigues of the Austrian Slavs in the Balkans.

For Germany Russia was the future peril. The three great empires—Russia, Austria and Germany—were in opposite factions, and while there was no sound democracy in these countries the direction of public affairs was left in the hands of a few persons, which inevitably led to war. Against Germany Signor Nitti claims that her imperialism, her more disgraceful thing which did her more damage than anything else.

Following this introductory Signor Nitti sums up the results of the war and asserts that it is equally onerous for the victors as for the conquered. He refers to the treaties of peace as a failure, and says that they are nothing but a continuation of the war. They are not peace, they are not even equilibrium, but are the direct denial of all the principles for which the war was supposed to have gone to war and which she claimed to do so.

But the Allied and Associated Powers had different aims and tendencies. As a result the program of President Wilson fell to the ground. In its place was substituted a different program, which had for its principal object the crushing and vivisection of Germany and her allies and conquered countries. He states that President Wilson had a complete ignorance of Europe, and while it is not permissible to doubt his good faith, yet it is inadvisable to doubt his academic knowledge to face the vast problems which he had set for himself. The consequence was that the peace conference was obliged to accept a series of proposals one after the other, which while they did not absolutely contradict in the word the "fourteen points," in fact did so.

The disorganized production has placed the greater part of Europe in the position that it cannot trade one part between another, and this has created a crisis which has its repercussions also in the United States. There is no trade in Europe today which can by any possible chance be called as approaching the normal. He claims that France and Italy are not in a position to pay their foreign debts and not even the interest on them, though he allows that if careful financiers could be found in these countries who would go in for a rigid system of economy these two countries are the only ones on the continent of Europe which have any chance of living through the present crisis, preserving their credits. He pays a tribute to England and says that she is the only country which has made any attempt to set her house in order financially, and he states that England more than any other country, not excepting his own country, has carried out disarmament and demobilization.

False Ideas of Resources. But against the position of the conquering countries, Signor Nitti points out that Europe still shows an inclination to believe that the conquered countries, which have one and all lost a large part of their resources, by territorial divisions, such as the treaties, etc., are able to pay huge indemnities. He notes that Austria, far from being able to pay an indemnity, is at the present time asking for help from abroad to feed her own population. And this theory is still believed in by certain people at a time when the financial experts of the world are trying to reduce the importance of the prospective indemnities in the interest of the victorious countries themselves.

In summing up the position Signor Nitti says that Italy, which had been the lifelong enemy of the Austrian monarchy, today, after the armistice, and the peace treaties, finds herself in competition with the victors which composed the monarchy, but who are today protected by the Entente; Germany has been smashed, but France has lost what was her greatest prestige, that of being a democratic country, and today all the democracies of the world look at France, a little askance; England is steering clear of the continent and America has returned to the doctrine of Monroe.

But Signor Nitti is not only a critic, for he has also a program of reconstruction, and in the last part of his book he places before the public five clauses which he thinks are worthy of consideration.

1. He proposes the abolition of the reparations commissions and the modification of articles 5 and 10 of the convention of the League of Nations so that all the conquered nations can be admitted, and by which the reparations commissions should come under the control of the league.

2. Revision of the treaties of peace, not immediately, so as to destroy the treaties. The revision which is contemplated by the League of Nations could be carried out by the league itself.

3. Maintain all the obligations of disarmament of the conquered countries, but a military guarantee to be given to France by England and Italy. In spite of the debts—not even the interest on them—of the victors cannot be paid, and yet it is supposed that Germany on the eve of the ruin of her credit can pay an enormous indemnity. The United States alone is a creditor. Great Britain has lent double of what she has taken in loans. France and Italy are actually alone debtors, because France, two-thirds of her credit is unget-at-able. If it is not possible to wipe out all the debts, in the interests of the creditor countries themselves, to put the exchange back on a sound basis and prevent the widening of the industrial crisis, it is necessary to find a solution. By withdrawing all the troops of occupation, which cost more than twenty-five milliards of marks per year, and which threaten to cost double, when the collapse of the mark is taken into consideration, it is possible to arrive at the sum of sixty milliard of francs at par, to be paid in gold marks in the following quotients: Twenty milliard to be considered as already paid in consideration of what Germany has handed over according to the terms of the heavy treaty; twenty milliard is the amount which Germany must pay to the conquerors in coal, etc.

To France Germany must give an amount of coal equal to the difference between the productions of the mines of the north and of the Pas de Calais before the war, and the amount produced in the next ten years. She must give to Italy, which, after her heavy losses, has not the possibility of furnishing large quantities of exchange materials, a quantity of coal equal to at least three-quarters of the amount established by the treaty of Versailles.

Germany must be obliged to give the Allies for ten years the yearly sum of 500,000,000 gold marks guaranteed on the customs; twenty milliards, after paying the debts of the second category, are to be set aside by Germany as a nucleus for reimbursing the countries which furnished the credit for the Allies, the United States, Great Britain and in a smaller degree France.

5. Reopening of relations with Russia, renouncing, however, the French idea that not only shall Russia give guarantees of her honesty but also guarantees that Russia will pay her antebellum debts.

These are, according to Signor Nitti, the only means of saving the situation.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

ORDERS PLAINTIFF GET $50 ALIMONY

Justice Orde Decides in Favor of Mrs. Pickell, St. Thomas.

[Special to London Advertiser.]
ST. THOMAS, Jan. 8.—Ethel Maude Pickell of this city was awarded $50 a month alimony as a result of an action brought against her husband, W. A. Pickell, a railway employe, also of this city, and heard before Justice Orde of Toronto a few weeks ago. Mrs. Pickell sued for $20 a week alimony.

In giving his judgment Justice Orde stated: "In this case I find as a fact that the constant charges of immorality made by the husband against the wife, reiterated repeatedly with the frequent accompaniment of vile and abusive language, have so affected her health as to have justified her in leaving him; that there is not any reasonable prospect, from the defendant's attitude towards her that it will be safe for her to return, and that she is therefore justified in refusing to return."

"She is therefore entitled to alimony. She swears that her husband was earning about $200 a month. He produced a statement from the office of his time-keeper showing that his earnings in 1921 amounted to $1,793.44. I think that if I award her alimony at the rate of $50 per month I shall be doing substantial justice, but it must be understood that this is not to cover any expenditure upon her son's education."

"The boy is 15 years of age, and is attending college at Woodstock at his father's expense. No order was asked as to the custody of the boy. If he is to reside in future with his mother, then so long as it is necessary to continue his education at Woodstock the defendant ought to pay an additional $250 per annum to the plaintiff to cover this expense."

Having been joint owners in the house, the judgment also provides for the partition or sale of the lands in question, with a reference to the local master at St. Thomas, with power to deal with the costs of the reference. She is also entitled to judgment for the delivery to her of such goods and chattels in the possession of the defendant to which the master determines she is entitled.

Bill's bullet went straight home, ripping through the lungs, tearing the great arteries about the heart, shivering even a portion of the heart itself. And yet the grizzly sprang like a demon through the deep snow, straight toward him.

Virginia's horrified eyes saw his fingers race as he worked the lever action of the gun. The bear seemed when she heard the impotent click of the hammer against the breech. Bill had fired the single shot that was in his gun.

Before ever he heard the sound, Harold remembered. In one wave of horror he recalled that he had forgotten to refill the magazine with shells. Yet leaping fast—red and deadly upon the heels of his remorse—there came an emotion that seared him like a wall of fire. He saw Bill's fate.

Here was his enemy, the man he hated above all living creatures, and the blood lust surged through him like a madness. In one wave of ecstasy he felt that he was about to see the gratification of his hatred.

In the hands of a brave and loyal man, the rifle Harold carried might yet have been Bill's salvation. Yet Harold didn't lift it to his shoulder.

But at that instant aid came from an unexpected quarter. Virginia remembered the pistol at her belt, and she drew it in a flash of his steel. True and straight she aimed toward the glowing eyes of the grizzly.

At the angle that they struck, her bullets did not penetrate the brain; but they did give Bill an instant's reprieve. The bear struck at the wounds they made, then halted, bawling, in the snow. His roving eye caught sight of Virginia's form. With a roar he bounded toward her.

The next instant was one of drama, of incredible stress and movement. For all his mortal wounds, the short distance between the bear and the girl seemed to recede with tragic swiftness. Virginia stood her ground, firing shot after shot into the animal's head. Because it was an automatic, she was able to send home the loads in rapid succession.

But Bill by now had found one of the extra shells Harold had given him. The grizzly was upon them.

He dropped the shell into the gun. There was no time to raise the weapon to his shoulder. He pointed it instinctively toward the gray throat. And the end of the barrel was against the bear's flesh as he pressed the trigger.

No human eye could follow the lightning events of the next fraction of a second. One instant, and the three figures seemed all together; Bill crouched with rifle held pointed in his arms, Virginia behind him, the grizzly full upon them both.

The next, and Harold stood alone in the snow and the silence—awed, terrified, and estranged as in a dream.

Except for three forms that lay still, it was as if the adventure had never occurred.

The bullet had gone true. It had pierced the animal's neck, breaking the vertebrae of the spinal column, and life had gone out of him as a flame goes out in the wind. He had received only a glancing blow; the drifts into which he had fallen were soft as pillows. He crawled over to Virginia's side.

He seized her shoulders, and shook her gently.

Instantly her eyes opened. Her full consciousness returned to her with a rush. She was not scratched, but she reached up quickly for Bill's hands. And instantly, with a laugh on her lips, she sprang to her feet.

"You killed him?" she asked.

"Beat's all dead," he answered, cheerfully.

up some more game during the day. I'll hike over to my Twenty-Three Mile cabin and get the supplies I've left over there. There's a smoked caribou ham, among other things. I'll bring back a backload, anyway."

Bill then announced he'd like to find the grizzly's den. He felt sure it was near.

But Harold had very special and particular reasons why such a course appealed to him not at all. "Yes—and maybe find a couple of other bears in there, in the dark and no chance to fight. I'm not interested, anyway. Go and look, if you like."

"I will, if you don't mind. Do you want to come, too, Virginia? There's no danger—really there isn't. If this had been an old she-bear, we might have found some cubs, but these old males travel around by themselves."

"We'll be back in a minute, Harold. And if you don't mind, I'll take my own gun."

They exchanged rifles, and Virginia and Bill started back toward the fallen grizzly.

They backtracked the bear through the snow and came upon the cavern mouth.

Back five feet from the opening the interior was dark as night; the cavern walls, grey at the mouth, slowly paled and faded, and were obliterated in the gloom. Bill was puzzled.

"This cave—I've never seen a cave just like this, Virginia—"

The man stepped forward and scratched a match on the stone. It flared; the shadows raced away. Then Bill's breath caught in a half sob.

Instantly he smothered the match. The darkness dropped around them like a curtain. But in that instant of light Bill beheld a scene that tore at his heart.

Against the cavern wall, long lost in the irremediable darkness, he had seen a strange, white shape—a ghostly thing that lay still and caught the match's gleam—a grim relic of dead years.

He turned to the girl, and his voice was almost steady when he spoke. "You'd better go, out, Virginia—into the light," he advised.

"Why? Is it—danger?"

"Not danger." His voice in the silence thrilled her and moved her. "Only wickedness. But it isn't anything you'd like to see."

The single match-flare had revealed him the truth.

The thing he had seen was a naked skeleton, flesh and garments having dropped away in the years; and the grizzly had simply made his lair in the old shaft of his father's mine. Bill had found his father's sepulchre at last!

"I believe I understand," she said. "You've found your mine—and your father's body."

"Yes. Just a skeleton."

"I'm just afraid. Don't you want me to stay?"

"I'd love to have you, if you will. Some way—it takes away a lot of my bitterness—to have you here."

He made another light.

They stood together, looking down at the skeleton. But she wasn't quite prepared for what she saw. A little cry of horror rang strangely in the dark shaft.

This had been no natural death. Undoubtedly the elder Bronson had been struck down from behind, as he worked, and he lay just as he fell. There was one wound in the skull, round and ghastly, and in a moment they saw the weapon that made it. A rusted pick, such as miners use, lay beside the body.

"I won't try to do much today," the man told her, "except to set up one of my corner posts and erect a claim notice."

He held the light close, studying the rear wall of the cave. It was simply a gravel bed, verifying his guess that here lay an old bed of the creek. In the first handful of stone he snatched out he found a native source nugget.

"It's rich!" she asked.

"Beyond what I ever dreamed. But there's nothing more we can do now. I've made my find at last—but it doesn't seem to make me—as happy as it ought to. Of course, that slight—there against the wall—would naturally keep a man from being very happy. Oh, if I could only find and kill the devil who did it!"

He was setting his claim marks when Harold came muzzling toward them.

So intent were they upon their work that they didn't notice him until he was almost up to them.

"You've found a mine?" he guessed.

Virginia looked up, joyful at Bill's good fortune. "We've found his father's mine—the old shaft where the bear has been sleeping. But there's a dreadful side of it, too."

"Show me where it is. I wanted to see that mine into it, Virginia, right away—"

They started together.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Grey, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and life to the hair when faded, streaked or grey. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, by moving the grey hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes naturally dark, thick and glossy, and you look years younger.
