And How They are Supported-Bishop Building Said to be First in Ontario-O'Dwyer of Limerick, on the Educational Crisis - Reference to the German Solution-High Praise for Germany.

The solution of the educational question as solved by Germany is re- as the following quotations will show: ferred to in the following way by his Lordship Bishop O'Dwyer of Limerick, in his late Lenten Pastoral:

What country is in the van in Germany, where education has been the passion of the people, the dream of her statesmen for generations? I Lindsay, at the opening, said he condare say no one will gainsay me when I assert that Germany is, at this moment, the best educated country in the world, and I might almost add so far beyond all others that there is no second. But is German education had taken the start in this matter. mixed? Is secularism its ideal? Has The new school, he considered, a the State in order to produce the marvellous results which are the wonder and the admiration of the world, been driven to banish religion from the schools in order to educate the children of different religions? Every one who has given any thought to these questions knows the facts. Education in the German schools is religious and denominational. The Government recognizes three religions -the Protestants, the Catholics and the Jews. Wherever any of these bodies are in sufficient numbers to form a school of their own they do so, and it is accepted as a State school, and every pupil in it must be thoroughly instructed in the faith of its church, according to an elaborate syllabus drawn up by the authorities of that church.

His Lordship quotes at some length of education.' from "Special Reports on Secondary | His Lordship Bishop O'Connor was (9) school, taught it thoroughly, secular instruction.

Worthy of special praise were the lighting and heating. The speaker contrasted the new school with 'the schools of his boyhood, showing the remarkable progress which had been made. The aim of the separate schools was to give the pupils a thorough mental, moral and religious training. The children would never forget the knowledge imparted to them in their school days, and for this reason it was necessary to have right surroundings for the young people during their school days. The new school should fill the bill nicely. # HOME CIRCLE

CHOOSING FRIENDS.

In a matter so important as the making of friendships, there should be the greatest care. A distinct choice should be made. It is the easlest thing in the world to get friends, especially in our large cities, where "sharks" abound. We think it would be well for young people to observe a few rules in the choice of friends. Let the following, at least, be thought of:

Never choose others as friends, simply because they have money, or belong to what is called "good ciety." There are doubtless many belonging to wealthy families, or who move in fashionable circles, who are entirely worthy of confidence, but they should be selected for their worth, and not for the external advantages they seem to offer.

Never choose others as friends merely because they dress well, or are attractive in their personal appearance. Some of the greatest mistakes which young people make are along this line. It should always be remembered that a handsome face and the best fitting clothes may be the masks of a shallow brain and an evil heart.

Never choose as friends those whose habits are bad. Shun such people as you would a viper or a pestilence. Never choose as friends those who make a mock of religion. True friendship and religious reverence are twin Never choose as friends the superficial or selfish. True friendship must he would tell you he preferred the have depth of nature, and must be as willing to give as to receive.

Choose as your friends the pure, the good, and trustworthy, no matter what their station in life, or the amount of money they may have at their command. And, having chosen, hold your friends as a sacred possesand let ourselves fancy that all the sunshine and happiness are given to other people, and to us only the cloudy pilla is turned. Have you ever felt like this? You are so miserable that you imagine you can nedown and hug your misery closer, and When Gretchen plays with Lulubel, ver be happy again. And so you sit forget to pick up the crum's of happiness that are even now strewn at the side of the road along which you are travelling.

Of course, I know our lives are not one long eestasy. We should probably get tired if they were. But it is possible to cultivate a happy frame mind if only we set about it diligently, for happiness is never won by a haphazard effort. If you are to be a happy man or woman, satisfactory to yourself and helpful to the world, you must have a definite purpose to start with, and you must be willing to work hard for something that is worth working for. Temperament can be changed; disposition and temper can be changed. If you are naturally critical and faultfinding and inclined to look on the dark side, then create a new nature for your-

Of course it is difficult; but then there is no royal easy road to perfection; and the secret of happiness is worth learning even if it cost some time and trouble. Have you ever watched a person carving a very hard piece of wood? It is a task requiring much skill and patience. A softer wood could be carved with much less trouble; but if you ask the worker harder task because the best results come from the toughest materials. IN BETTER LAND.

(By Mrs. Hemans.) I hear the speak of the better land. 'DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ARE THE Thou callest its children a happy band; Mother, oh, where is that radiant shore? Shall we not seek it and weep no more? blows,

And the fireflies glance through the myrtle boughs? 'Not there, not there, my child!"

'It is where the feathery palm-trees And the date grows ripe under sunny skies? Or 'midst the green islands of glittering seas,

And strange, bright birds, on their starry wings, Bear the rich hues of all glorious things?" 'Not there, not there, my child!"

Where the rivers wander o'er sands as big as their papas, and girls are of gold?-

Where the burning rays of the ruby shine. And the diamond lights up the secret mine. And the pearl gleams forth from the ceral strand?-Is it there, sweet mother, that better land?"

-"Not there, not there, my child!"

"Eye hath not seen it, my gentle boy! Ear hath not heard its deep songs of joy; Dreams cannot picture a world so fair-Sorrow and death may not enter there; Time doth not breathe on its fadeless bloom, For beyond the clouds, and beyond the tomb, -It is there, it is there, my child!'

His personality and capacity for hard work have enabled the government to place more progressive legislation to its credit in the last half decade than the records of Canada can show for any period since confederation. Just now when the business of insurance is under serious investigation and the public interests in connection with all the great corporate bodies, are arresting the attention of thinking men, Mr. Fitzpatrick's loss to his party could not be compensated in any possible reconstruction of the Cabinet.

THE AGE OF STEEL

For Homes as Well as Office Buildings

Steel is rapidly replacing wood and mortar as a material for the interior of homes, as well as for the structural part of "sky scrapers." Metal Walls and Ceil-ings are more durable and sanitary than plaster, and have the still greater advantage of being absolutely fireproo.. Then, too, they come in many designs that lend themselves to rich, harmonious color schemes. Metal Shingles-which last a lifetime, never rust or leak and are fireproof and lightning proof-now take the place of wooden shingles and tin. Metal Sidings are more sanitary and more durable than brick or stone. But as her new companion sank into the wacant seat with evident care not to discommode her more than necessary, she heard a soft little sigh of weariness or anxiety, which stirred curiosity just enough to compel a quick look. Then, having looked, she looked again, with sudden interest which carried her thoughts completely away from herself and her own personal comfort.

A little worn old face, under a little worn old bonnet, so faded and out of fashion that it carried it own tale of poverty and hardship; a plain black gown, two nervous, little, wrinkled work-scarred hands, clinging tightly to a meagre paper parcel; then timidly turned toward her, a pair of gray eyes, gentle, diffident, but with surprising light and warmth -that was what the girl's gaze included in that second swift look.

Because Harriet Erskine's perceptions were as clear and quick ast the vision of her clear, dark eyes, and because something warm and sweet stirred instantly in her heart, she could no more have withheld a smile of friendly welcome than she could have given an unkind word.

"I'm glad to have company," said. "Isn't it a lovely day? Let me take your bundle and put it up in the rack with mine. It's too warm to hold them." Then, impulsively, she added, "I'm going in shopping;

I live at Hazelton, and I thought I had to change cars here, and I didn't after all." She paused, and a slow gravity overspread her face. "I'm going to see my son Alex," she added. "I haven't seen him for five years. He ran away.'

"Five years!" said Harriet. "That is a long time." She tried to imagine how long five years would seem without a sight of her own people.

"Yes, 'tis. He ran away because his father wanted him to work on the farm, and he wanted to work in town. He was a wild boy, Alex was, and didn't mind very well; and his father and he had trouble about it, and he went. He was always a good boy, though. He was just obstinate, and that was like his father, and so

She paused again. The little, wrinkled hands were tight clasped in her lap now, and Harriet suddenly realized that it was a story of real pain and trouble which was being so abruptly told to a chance listener.

The Mountain Sheep of the Himalayas

The principal beast of burden in the inner ranges of the Himalayas is the mountain sheep, which will carry each from seventeen to twenty-five pounds of baggage and live entirely on the herbage by the wayside. A small fleck of them accompanied a recent expedition of a famous Indian explorer for more than a thousand miles, being at the finish none the worse for the journey. It is common in the Himalayas to load sheep high up in the mountains with borax and then drive them down to the plains, where they are shorn of their wool and return laden with grain or salt. They stand the severe cold of the higher ranges of Tibet better than the yak or mountain cow, and are indeed indispensable to the primitive needs of transit of the dwellers there. The Younghusband expedition has provided a knowledge of the animal which the world lacked before, and it shows up as a beast of high merit with an allaround utility not easy to surpass .-Boston Transcript.

The Town Crier's Son

There can be no doubt at all that to have a father who is Town Crier is a great distinction. And this is all the more apparent if you are a French boy and live in the delightful town of Laumant.

The uniform itself is not all that it might be in point of color. It is inferior to that of a gendarme, and is not to be mentioned in the same breath with the costume of the parochial Suisse; but in the hands of a self-respecting man like Jules Trillot, to say nothing of Madame; his wifea laundress of quite exceptional talent-there are possibilities about this official costume that render it capable of being raised to a very respectable

It is not the uniform, however, that makes the public crier. It is the drum. The hand bell of the English crier is a sufficiently far-reaching thing, but it has not the ear-compelling force of the Frenchman's drum. Nervous old ladies in Laumant have sometimes thought the German army was in the town when Jules Trillot, at eight in the morning, started his tattoo as a prelude to the exciting notice of an evening promenade con- said, with a smile, pointing to the cert in the Rue S. "And Henri?" I inquired. "Poor child! Poor child! He must leave school, I fear. He must work; there is no help for it."

It was weeks before I saw the boy again. He no longer served my Mass and it seemed as though he had disappeared forever from the environment of church and school. I legened afterward that on Sundays and holiafterward that on Sundays and holidays he served a very early Mass. We met on the snow-covered hills

THE HOLY FAMILY PARISH. The opening of the Forty Hours devotion which began in the parish of the Holy Family on Friday, the 20th inst., was preached by Rev. Father Doherty, who spoke from the words "Jesus of Nazareth Passeth by" the sermon being a delightful development of the text. On Sunday morning the Archbishop was present and exhorted his hearers to be ready on, every occasion to give a reason for the faith within them, while in the evening Rev.
