Old Landmark Removed
C. J. Koenig, implement agent, has had his old frame warehouse removed this week, preparatory to the erection of a new brick block. This structure was one of the oldest buildings in the village, having been erected and used as Mildmay's first school. Some forty years ago it was converted into a blacksmith shop, and of late years it has served as an implement salesroom.
Celebrated Silver Wedding
Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Huber celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage last Friday, when a large number of their friends called to congratulate them and extend their good wishes. Mr. and Mrs. Huber were married at Deemerton on April 19th, 1904, by Rev. Father Brohman, now of Formosa. On this occasion their friends presented them with a fine address and a lovely piece of silverware, and the family presented them with a fine bed, mattress and springs. Councillor and Mrs. Huber's many friends hope they will be spared to enjoy many more years of health and happiness.
Telephone Manager Hurt
Mr. J. N. Scheffer, manager of the South Bruce Telephone Company, is having some enforced holidays this week, having sustained painful injuries on Monday afternoon. He was descending the stairway in his garage when one of the steps broke, and Mr. Scheffer fell heavily to the floor. He lay there for some time before he was discovered, and before he could be assisted into the house, he fainted. Dr. Carpenter was summoned, and found that the injured man had sustained a sprained wrist and was badly bruised across the chest and shoulders. He will be unable to attend to his office work for some days.
Schurr-Schill
The marriage of Mr. Elmer J. Schurr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew M. Schurr of Carrick, to Miss Lucia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schill of the Flora Road, took place on Tuesday morning at St. Mary's Church, Formosa. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Father Beckman, pastor of the church. The bride was very prettily attired in brown crepe de chine, with shoes, hose and hat to match. She was assisted by her cousin, Miss Hilda Schill, while Mr. Francis Schurr acted as best man. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful mission mantle clock, to the bride a pearl necklace, and to the best man a gold chain and jackknife. The happy young couple will in the near future take up residence on Concession A., Carrick. The Gazette joins with their many friends in extending kindest wishes.

This popular three act comedy will be presented by the Formosa Dramatic Club in the Town Hall here on Friday evening of this week, under the auspices of the Horticultural Society. It was given at Southampton on Tuesday evening, where it was a tremendous hit. Don't fail to hear this on Friday evening.
Carrick Man Arrested
Provincial Constable Nelson of Walkerton paid a visit to Deemerton on Monday evening and placed Anthony Kochev, a young man of that village, under arrest upon a charge of chicken stealing. Anthony's friends have been trying to arrange bail for him, but so far have not succeeded. It is said that a number of hens were stolen last week from a farmer in the Deemerton vicinity, and suspicion pointed strongly to the accused, who, it is alleged, admitted the charge and returned the poultry to their rightful owner. The trial is set for Friday.
Injured by Cow
Chas. Beninger, of Calross, formerly of Mildmay, met with a painful accident on Monday. While doing his chores in the stable, he received a vicious kick from a cow, which knocked him down under another bovine near by. This animal becoming excited, trampled Mr. Beninger pretty badly before he was able to get away from his unpleasant position. He had his collar bone broken, and a big gash on his forehead which required some stitches to close, and he was painfully bruised otherwise. Mr. Beninger has been suffering with rheumatism for the past year or two, and is therefore not as active as he should be.
Truck and Auto Collide
Last Friday evening, Mr. Daniel Kuester and family, while driving to Mildmay with a Chevrolet Sedan, had an experience that might have had a much more serious ending. They had reached a point about forty miles west of St. Catharines, when they met another vehicle, which turned out to be a light Nash truck. The truck driver seemed somewhat erratic and Daniel pulled out to his extreme right to give him all the road possible. This didn't prevent trouble, however, and the two machines came together with quite a smash. The impact sent the truck to the west side of the highway, its front wheels going into the ditch at the edge of the creek which flows along the road there, and the cars were badly battered up, and it is estimated that the repairs to the pair of chariots will run over $100. The truck driver is a Palmerston man named Newbitt, and those who know some of the circumstances say his unsteady control of the truck was not the direct result of drinking too much water. Many here express the opinion that this case should be investigated by the police, as it was only by the merest chance that all escaped serious or perhaps fatal injury.

Gailya—Oh. Jim—Don't scream. Gailya—I don't intend to. Jim—That's right, be quiet now and I won't hurt you. Gailya—What do you want here? You will get the answer in "Eyes of Love" on May 10th, a play which will be presented by the Y. P. of the United Church.

Aged Lady Passes
Miss Catherine Beninger, who made her home for the past twenty years or more with her brother, Conrad Beninger, at Formosa, passed away on Sunday at the age of 85 years. She was born in this province and was very highly respected by all who knew her. Interment took place on Wednesday morning at Formosa.
Check Up Boozy Drivers
Although the 1929 motoring season has just nicely commenced, the boozey driver is already pretty much in evidence. Two cases were noted in this locality within the past week and it is time the provincial patrol officers were back on their job. Any person who, while under the influence of liquor attempts to operate a car upon the highway, should have his license cancelled and be given a good stiff jail sentence besides. We do not believe in the "flush" policy adopted by so many in cases like this. It is every person's duty to report these cases promptly. Let it be done.
Division Court Cases
Two cases were heard at the Division Court at Walkerton on Tuesday in which Carrick citizens were participants. The first was an action to recover $58.58 brought by Martin Albrecht of Walkerton against his father, Jos. Albrecht, for 58 bushels of oats bought by defendant at plaintiff's auction sale in March, 1927. Defendant maintained that there was an agreement that the oats were not to be paid in cash, but were to be repaid in an equal amount of oats. Judge Owen took the view, as evidenced by the clerk's sale book, that the sale was a genuine sale with no strings attached, and gave judgment in favor of the plaintiff. The other case was that of Stanley Darling vs. M. Ammonett in which plaintiff sued for $25.50, being the amount he claimed was due to him on some livestock transactions. The defendant, with his son, Karl, swore that they were not indebted to Darling, and judgment was therefore given against plaintiff. The action of Edward Diemert of Hanover against Cyril Kempel of Carrick for damages to car in the smashup that took place at Mildmay during the old home week celebration last July, was again adjourned, at the request of the plaintiff's counsel, as was also Stephen Weingart's case against the Mildmay Separate School Board, to recover payment of an account for lime.

Sunday School Lesson

April 22. Lesson IV.—The Suffering Servant of Jehovah—Isaiah 53: 1-12. Golden Text—With his stripes we are healed.—Isaiah 53: 5.

- ANALYSIS.
- I. THE COMING GLORY OF JEHOVAH'S SERVANT, Chap. 52: 13-15.
 - II. HIS HUMILIATION AND DEATH, Chap. 53: 1-9.
 - III. THE ACCOMPLISHMENT OF HIS WORK IN THE WORLD, Chap. 53: 10-12.

INTRODUCTION.—Throughout chapters 40 to 55 we meet the figure of Jehovah's servant again and again. He is called by the names "Jacob" and "Israel" (chs. 41; 43; 44; 45; 46; 48; 49; 50; 51; 52; 53; 54; 55), and seems quite clearly to be a personification of Israel as Jehovah's chosen people. He is represented as "chosen," "called," "not cast away," strengthened, helped, upheld by God, destined to render a great service to the world, both to the Gentiles, and to his own nation. Yet he is blind to the great things which Jehovah is doing in the world on his behalf, and deaf to the words of Jehovah's prophets who seek to instruct him. He has much to learn before he can accomplish his task. His blind eyes must be opened and his death ears made to hear (42: 19; 43: 8-10). Then he shall be Jehovah's witness to the nations that he is the servant whom I have chosen.

And only God as against the false and powerless gods they worship. That it is the people who are thought of as God's servant, and not an individual person, is clear from the passage above quoted (43: 10-12) where the plural pronoun is used ("Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, and my servant whom I have chosen").

I. THE COMING GLORY OF JEHOVAH'S SERVANT, Chap. 52: 13-15.

Israel, beaten, humiliated, enslaved in Babylonian exile is soon to be delivered and restored to his own land. There he will be exalted and honored, to the astonishment and wonder of the other nations. The Hebrew text of this passage is in some confusion. The word rendered "deal prudently," or "deal wisely" (Rev. Ver.), should rather be rendered "prosper" (Rev. Ver. margin), as in Jer. 10: 21 and Prov. 17: 8. In v. 14 we should read "at him" instead of "thee," as in two of the ancient versions. In the first part of v. 15 the ancient Greek version has, "So shall many nations wonder at him," probably correctly.

These verses may be rendered more perfectly as follows: "Behold my servant shall prosper, being exalted, lifted up, and very high. For as many were appalled at him, so marred was he from the likeness of a man, and his form from that of the sons of men. So shall many nations wonder at him. Kings shall do him reverence. For that which never before had been told them shall they see, and that which they never had heard of shall they consider."

II. HIS HUMILIATION AND DEATH, Chap. 53: 1-9.

The many nations or their kings, who are astonished at Israel's deliverance and exaltation, are, apparently, represented as the speakers. The story they tell of Israel's humiliation and subsequent rise to a place of glory and honor among the nations seems too wonderful to be believed (v. 1). Verse 2 should be rendered as in Rev. Ver., "grew up," not "shall grow up." The reference is to Israel's past as a comparatively small and poor people. Moffatt renders: "Why, Israel of old grew like a sapling. Like a shoot springing from dry soil; He had no beauty to attract our eyes, No charm to make us choose him." Now forlorn, captive, or dispersed among the nations, he is despised and rejected of men, a man of sorrows. The description fits perfectly Israel in the latter half of the sixth century, B.C., exiled in Babylon, in Egypt, and in many other lands.

People of other nations looking on thought Israel to be suffering entirely for his own sins, stricken of God, and afflicted. Now they know his suffering to have been on their behalf, that he might thus be qualified and prepared to teach them the ways of the Lord, that he might be God's prophet to them. In Babylonian exile the nation of Israel went down to death, and to the grave, vs. 8, 9.

It is true that this ideal of sinless sufferer was never perfectly realized in Israel. It remained to be fulfilled in Jesus Christ. He is the true realization and fulfillment of the prophet's vision. It is in him, in his life of service and of sacrifice, that we see completed Israel's ideal and hope as the servant of the Lord; in him the realization of Israel's ideal of character; and of self-sacrificing, loving service to humanity. In that sense we may truly say that we have in these verses the most perfect prevision and portrayal of the suffering Saviour.

III. THE ACCOMPLISHMENT OF HIS WORK IN THE WORLD, Chap. 53: 10-12.

The prophet tells us here that it was all a part of Jehovah's plan for the world's redemption. The meaning of v. 10 is simply, "It pleased the Lord, or it was the Lord's will, to bruise (or crush) him, making his life an offering (sacrifice) for sin." In days to come he will be revived and restored. He will see his posterity carrying out his mission to the world, and seeing that accomplished for which he had labored and suffered he will be satisfied. The knowledge which he has so hardly gained will be for the world's instruction, making many righteous.

Finds British Discord Growing in Egypt

Van Ek Reports Bad Feeling is Rife Over Question of Independence

Professor Jacob Ek of the University of Colorado, in a report, declares that political disagreement between Great Britain and Egypt is evident on every hand. The report, sent from Athens, declares that the difference between the two countries arises from a fundamental question, which is of the utmost importance to both parties. "Egypt desires independence," he writes. "The leaders have undoubtedly succeeded in arousing the lower classes to the cause of nationalism and independence. The demand for independence and nationalism has evidenced itself in a very virulent form on several occasions during the last decade. On the basis of their past activities, I think it is safe to say that the leaders will not compromise their stand, which seems to be for complete independence."

"On the other hand, Great Britain seems to be convinced that control over Egypt is necessary for the maintenance of the British Empire. Hence she will continue to insist upon control over Egypt's foreign affairs, no doubt on the basis of the four matters which are now reserved to her control. It is also maintained that Great Britain desires to keep control over Egypt for the purpose of economic exploitation.

"At present, affairs seem to be at a standstill. The Egyptian Parlia-

Immigrants

The word immigrant has lost a great deal of its old significance in this country. Once it described one who was escaping from a life of suffering and hardship to an unknown land of freedom but of uncertain opportunities and possibilities. The modern immigrant it typified in the seven girls photographed above who were recent arrivals on the Canadian Pacific Duchess of Richmond. Their future as domestics in the city of Toronto was assured before they left their homes, and the comfortable quarters they occupied on the regal Atlantic vessel was a long cry from the accommodation they must have endured had they been but one generation earlier.

ment has been suspended for three years from July 19, 1928, and Egypt is being governed by a dictatorship. "Illiteracy is very widespread in Egypt. There are plans for a school system, but funds are not available for the realization of these plans. "Mohammedanism is a great force. It affects every detail of the lives of the people. "There is, however, a woman's movement, and no doubt this will be an influence for the improvement of woman's condition of life."

Michael, having spent a tiring day at the local fair, was driving home, when a great drowsiness overcame him, and he lay down in the cart and went off to sleep. The horse, finding that he could do as he liked, kicked himself free of the traces and ran away. When the Irishman awoke he found the horse was missing. While he was pondering the situation a stranger appeared on the scene. "Oh," said Michael, "am OI Mike or aren't OI?" "OI'm sure OI dunno," said the stranger. "Well," declared the other, "if OI'm Mike, OI've lost a horse, but if OI'm not, OI've found a cart."

To Learn Canadian Farming

An admiral's son and one of the Young Ambassadors of the Empire, the latter having visited Canada last year with the British "Young Ambassadors" Party were amongst recent arrivals, at Halifax, of juvenile Britons coming to Canada for farm work.

The admiral's son was Edward G. B. Kiddle (right), son of Admiral Sir Charles Kiddle, R.N., and the "Young Ambassador" was Frederick T. Mace, (left), who completed a correspondence course in Canadian farming and who has proceeded to Winnipeg for placement.

The boys were among a party of 125 arriving on the Cunarder "Assand" and who travelled westward over the lines of the Canadian National Railways. Their placements were handled under the auspices of the British Immigration and Colonization Association.

LIMERICK CORNER

The Contest Is Closed

For the time being, the contest is closed. Following is a very interesting letter from Miss Mattie Rabb of Palmerston, Ontario, offering some suggestions for a future contest:—

Palmerston, April 9th, 1929.

Gentlemen:—Accept hearty thanks for the Dollar I received yesterday, April 8th, being prize in "Limerick Contest". I see by last week's "Palmerston Spectator" that the Contest is closed, I think it was a splendid feature and would liked to have seen it continued for awhile longer. A real good contest is a Picture Title Contest, prizes to be given for the most clever or original title. You could give, say, several prizes each week ranging from $5 to $1 or whatever amount you saw fit to give. 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes, and then say five of one dollar each. Allow each contestant to submit three titles each week if they wish. Nothing to be written on the post card but the titles and name and address, have no strings or restrictions attached, simply that each person trying the contest must write their titles on a post card and send in up to a certain date each week, this is really an excellent contest, lots of fun and interest is aroused in it, or another good one is to have the four lines of a limerick printed on a certain article and the contestant is to supply the last (fifth) line, and prizes to be given for the best last lines. Another good contest is to have some certain line of goods in an advertisement and a certain phrase in double quotation marks will be in these ads and the contestant is to pick out the phrase in the ads and then make up rhymes or jingles on the product or firm represented and for these contests are good. I would very much like to see some one of them continued for a time. If there are any instructions or more information I could give you in regards these contests I would be pleased to do so. I remain yours Respectfully,

(Miss) Mattie, Rabb,
Box 113, Palmerston, Ont.

We will be glad to hear from those who have taken part in the contest just closed or have enjoyed reading Limerick Corner. Let us know what you think of Miss Rabb's suggestions or send along some of your own.

Tariff Revision

Philadelphia Ledger: The weight of opinion, as shown in the House hearings, favors an immediate and upward general revision of the Tariff Act. The Administration is not in sympathy with a sweeping revision. Administration policy, so far as is known, points toward limited changes. The agricultural duties, most, of course, have an overhauling in connection with farm relief. The cement industry seems to be asking for immediate help. Textiles, apparently, are marked for immediate attention. However, the plan has been to hold back from and discourage any general and thoroughgoing redrafting of the present tariff law.

Corporations and Campaign Funds

Quebec Evenement (Cons.): The Ferguson Government has passed a law prohibiting Ontario companies from subscribing to campaign funds, under pain of heavy penalties for each infringement of the law. . . . It would have been a better plan to follow the example of the United States, where the law permits all subscriptions to campaign funds, on condition that the names of the subscribers are published and the details of the way in which their money has been spent. . . . The most serious difficulty in the Ontario law is that it will unjustly discredit candidates without individual fortunes. It will be presumed that they are supported by shady people, thus giving an advantage to candidates who are in a position to pay their own expenses in the campaign. Mr. Ferguson has been too quick in acting this time, and his law is not likely to produce any practical results.

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctor's word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

Keeping Your Dog Satisfied at Home

To be satisfied at home, a dog must have exercise. If his master does not take him for a hike, he is apt to get out on his own hook.

The dog's kennel must be comfortable. If it is too hot or too cold, or infested with fleas, he will do the very natural thing—get out and look for better quarters. Hunger, too, will make him restless, so I should say that the three fundamentals are: enough exercise to make him tired, a generous feed in the evening, and a clean, comfortable bed.

Dogs are sociable creatures. They crave company, and that is the reason why the owner of two or more canines seldom has any trouble from "muzzing." One roundabout, especially if he barks much, can lure dozens of other dogs out. If you can induce other owners in the vicinity to keep their pets at home, each animal will be less apt to leave his own yard.

Learning the cause for your dog's "excursions" usually simplifies correction. Slyly watch him some night and see where he goes. Often it will be found that some particular henhouse or garbage can is his destination. Egg-sucking is common among dogs. The owner of the chicken will gladly co-operate with you, and an egg can be so "loaded" (with pepper or some other disagreeable substance) as to cure Touser sharply and permanently.

Do not tie the dog up; it only makes him worse when he is liberated. Besides, it spoils his disposition. Do not whip him; unless you do so at the time he is starting. Any reproach given hours after the offense does no good, for your pet will not know its reason. Such only makes him afraid of you and more desirous of running away. If you can so plan it as to catch him in the act of running off, mild switching then will help. Accompany it with orders (always in the same words) to stay home; and lead him back every time. Do this repeatedly, being particularly good to him at other times, and he will catch on. Never under any circumstances kick or beat your dog. If you lose your temper, let him entirely alone until next day.—Lester Banks, in "Our Dumb Animals."

Mr. Borah Back to Normal

Detroit Free Press: Announcement that Senator Borah intends to fight American adherence to the World Court, on the basis of the new plan proposed by Mr. Root, is no news. The widespread prevalence of the feeling that the conditions of that plan are reasonable and practical, was almost a guarantee that the Senator would go into a state of opposition. It is against the nature of Mr. Borah to agree with anybody except himself if he can avoid doing so; and the relative harmony which has existed between him and Presidents Coolidge and Hoover for the last few months, unquestionably has been a strain upon his temperament. He was bound to seek relief somewhere, somehow, sooner or later. The revival of the World Court proposal provides a natural avenue of outlet.

In the Foothills Of the Himalayas

The bungalow-built house stood on the slope of one of "the hills." Those Himalayan foothills, toward which the dweller in the dry hot plains lifts up his eyes for refreshment and inspiration. The great mountain ranges were from distant points higher up the hills. Sometimes, on special occasions, there would be day excursions to these heights; when a procession of "dandies," or carrying chairs, borne on the shoulders of the family "jompies," would set out for a day's climb, right up beyond the hill station. These were days of rare delight and wonder. The agile servants, clad in the gay liveries of the family, perhaps a bright red trimmed with golden yellow, would carry the Europeans up the winding roads into the wild hills.

Unforgettable was the luxuriant jungle growth; the magnificent rhododendrons, large as giant oak trees and resplendent with deep crimson blossoms, the ground beneath them carpeted with fall. . . . The tangles of rich bushes festooned with flowering creepers; and mighty fern-tasseled trees in whose branches merry little brown monkeys, and solemn-faced gray langurs, frolicked and leapt from bough to bough, while bright green parrots fluttered in the branches. As a traveler went higher, rare flowers and ferns appeared, and he might pick the tall "Jull" lilies (Madonna lilies), the rich velvet-petaled gloxinias, the tall pink saxifrage, and the delicate black-stemmed maidenhair fern. Then, too, there were those pretty Himalayan primulas which grew in profusion on the ground, their dainty purple blossoms set demurely on the top of their straight stalks! The little white everlastings were picked in handfuls, to be sent home to England, there to brighten the grayness of a great northern industrial city.

The views grew more wonderful as the path wound upward, until at last the place was reached where the Himalayas themselves were visible. How grateful one is for the loving wisdom of a M. Har, who led one long the fern-covered path at the top of the wooded ravine, to gaze on that superb panorama of mighty, distant snow-clad peaks, the "snows," as the Himalayan ranges are familiarly called, and said: "Look well at them. You will want to remember them always!"

These outings far afield were high lights, among happy days spent at home. In India the garden is known as a "compound" and is generally large. The front of one compound was a wood, where lilies of the valley grew wild, and through which ran the drive up to the house, its shady "erandah" gay with large tubs of hydrangeas, flowers and vegetable gardens, stables, tennis court and asphalt playground, and another wood where long fern-like mosses grew in quantities, were all included in that home domain. Perhaps the best loved spot was the orchard with its pear and cherry trees, for, since the monkeys always appropriated the fruit, the children were allowed to climb them freely.

Walks were frequent along the side of the lake, reached by passing through the bazaar. One could gaze at the goods displayed on open stalls, at gay toys, brass and copper ware, jewels, Indian sweetmeats! A dear Ayah would sometimes bring home goodies tied up in knots in the ends of her chuddah or sticks of juicy sugar-cane. In the hot weather the tar on the roof of the house would melt and drip from the eaves like black icicles, and the children would pick them off, shaping them into dolls and figures in their hands. In the rains the compound would be traversed by streams and rivers ideal for the navigation of toy boats and ships, whilst the rocks on the lake and hillside would blossom all over with little shell-like pink and white begonias. The dearest little frogs would appear in myriads under the trees.

And then, when the happy day was over and night fell swiftly, unheralded by twilight, the stars would come out in the gorgeous eastern sky. The children could feast their eyes on that marvelous spectacle. Those jewels blaze in the heavens of memory still.

The New Imperialism

Ottawa Droit (Ind.): Economic imperialism is a new factor in the world. The old type of imperialism, that of Alexander, of Caesar and of Napoleon, was of a warlike description; the American type of imperialism is pacific, without ever ceasing to be strongly armed. In the first case it was political conquests and displacements of all allegiances; in the second it is only economic conquests which usually occur without political reactions, but which may pave the way for new territorial boundaries. We in Canada know something of this. We are more and more penetrated by the American dollar. American investments in our country are calculated at four billion dollars. And the annual growth is exceedingly rapid. In 1910 American capital invested abroad did not exceed 500 million dollars; whilst to-day it is estimated that it amounts to 30,000 millions. China and South America are, with us, the countries most invaded by this spirit of economic conquest. In Germany, Italy, Poland, great industrial firms which have become American properties are already very numerous.

KEEP YOUR BABY HAPPY AND WELL

Every mother wishes her child or children to be well and happy; to be bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked boys and girls. No mother, though, can expect her children to escape all the ills of babyhood and childhood, but she can do much to help them fight the battle for health.

All prudent mothers constantly keep at hand the means of aiding their little ones when sickness comes suddenly—as it generally does in the case of children. In every home where there are infants and young children Baby's Own Tablets should be found. Read what Mrs. Mary Hill, Centre Dummer, Ont., says concerning these Tablets:—"I am the mother of six children and would not be without Baby's Own Tablets. They are a wonderful medicine for little ones."

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus break up colds and simple fever, banish constipation and indigestion and allay the irritation accompanying the cutting of teeth. They are absolutely safe and are pleasant to take. The Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The National Origins Law

New York Times: The foreign elements are divided on this subject. Those which, like the Germans, Irish and Scandinavians, will have their quotas cut by the new system oppose it strongly. Others, like the Russians, Italians and Poles, whose quotas will be enlarged, favour it. The arguments used against it are much the same as those used in 1924 against the basis for computing the immigration quotas. Many of those who now denounce the national origins clause defend the 1930 census, which five years ago they attacked. The foreign elements opposing the national origins system are strong in certain sections of the country and will find sturdy champions in Congress. But against them is a great mass of Americans unaffiliated with any foreign racial groups. Unless Congress acts before June 30, the national origins system will come into force as the law of the land.

The following preciously preserved extract from a love-letter written home to his wife by an ex-soldier on active service will evoke tender memories in thousands of former service men: "Don't send me no more nagging letters, Lottie. "Say, why don't you get a car with a self-starter?" said a bystander to an elderly negro who was wearily cranking starting his car. "Well, you see, Boss, Ah'd be wonderin' all de time if she would be astartin' when Ah didn't want her to."

What many people call indigestion, very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention. One spoonful of this harmless, taste-

Starvation Salaries

Le Monde Ouvrier (Ind.): Surprise is sometimes expressed at the gloomy condition of trade; landlords are always complaining that their tenants do not pay their rent, and the grocer at the corner, compelled to give credit, finds himself in his turn charging much more than the market price for his goods, thus making the one pay for the other. This situation ought not to surprise us, when a father of a family earns an average salary of from $600 to $700 a year, that is to say about $12 to $15 a week. How can you expect him to pay his rent, his grocer, his doctor, etc? He cannot pay out more than he receives; he does not live, he can only merely exist. Instead of making the wheels of industry and commerce turn, this is a brake on general prosperity. And yet we talk of bringing back to this country some 200,000 of our fellow-citizens from the United States! Are we going to offer them 20 to 25 cents an hour, after killing the fatted calf to celebrate the return of all our prodigal sons?

The I'm Alone Incident

New York Sun: There is no question of the character of the vessel that was sunk by the Coast Guard. There may be a question whether she was inside the twelve-mile limit when first chased by the patrol boat Wolcott. There may be a question whether the pursuit, first by the Wolcott and then by the Dexter, was hot. But assuming that Secretary Mellon is right in his statement that in both these respects, the fact remains that the British Government never abandoned the principle of the three-mile limit and never acceded to the application of the right of hot pursuit in a case begun outside the twelve-mile limit. If the British Government has decided not to press this case, it undoubtedly is because of the notorious character of the I'm Alone and not because Lordon retreats from her old contention. At that, it would be well for the two governments to look calmly into the facts, possibly making it certain that no such incident, with its unpleasant reactions on both sides of the Atlantic, shall occur again.

The most pressing intellectual need is such pulse as comes from a genuine coordination of the great subdivisions of thought.—President James R. Angell of Yale.

SHEEP LOST IN FLOOD

Mr. Jas. Thompson, of Paisley, met with a severe loss through the flood as a flock of nine sheep perished from cold and exposure after standing in the water throughout Friday night. They were penned in a stable into which the water flowed on Friday evening, and they could not be reached after the danger of the situation was realized. As the animals were all breeding ewes, valued at about $25 each, the loss is considerable. Some hens in pens at other places in the flooded areas were also lost.—Paisley Advocate.

LAKELET

The farmers are quite busy these fine days getting the land ready for seeding. There has been nothing sown here as yet, but by the end of the week sowing will be general.

The suckers from the big lake are getting down to the mill. They appear to follow the current and land at the dam. They come here from all the surrounding country for a sucker. Were it not for the runner, eel bones they would be nice recipients.

THE WORLD IS IMPROVING

But that spoiled some of us. Harold Cook, local garage man, and his dealer, brought two very nice new Whipper Coaches from the city last week. The agents, who are out through the country, report prospects for sales good for so early in the season. This cry of hard times among the farmers is surely a myth, as they buy the very best cars, and apart from year then out as quickly or more so than the town and city man.

Wm. Sangster, agent for fertilizer, is busy these days delivering the stuff with his truck. He runs out as far as Ayton from Gorrie, where he has his headquarters. The farmers are using more fertilizer every year and it pays too.

Paul Preiss sold his 23 head of cattle last week to Stanley Darling. They averaged 1040 and when he bought them last fall they were under 800 lbs. He got 8 1/2¢ for them as he paid a high price last fall.

Sam Burnett and Sangster Bros. are about the only ones on the 17th who have cattle. Sangsters have 37 head and intend keeping them till June.

There is a car of 19 horses, which arrived from the West on Saturday afternoon at Clifford, stable right west of the own. They are good work horses, quiet, and weighing from 1300 to 1500 and aged 5 to 7. They will be sold by auction at the stock yards, Clifford, on Saturday afternoon, April 27th at 1:30. This will likely be the last horse sale of the season and any of the livestock should attend this sale.

The floating bridge which leads to the Island is inundated since the deluge and it is going to be a difficult matter for the proprietor, Chas. Hubbard, to get in a crop if the water does not lower. It is the first time in 50 years that conditions were as they are now.

It is estimated that it will cost $10,000 to rebuild the Gorrie dam which was swept away with the freshet. Mr. McGuire, we hear, offered Paul Preiss $5000 to put in the current part of it, and he may accept it. Wroster is in a bad way too. Harold Smith, who a few years ago ran the Clifford mill, and who bought the mill at Wroster a year ago has had hard luck. He was getting everything going nicely when the reverse came.

John Leske, one of the pioneers of the township, passed away last Sunday morning and was buried at Clifford on Wednesday. He was a quiet, honest, industrious man and had attained the age of 78 years. A wife and grown-up family survive. The latter have homes of their own in the West, Kitchener and in this township.

Those from here who visited the scenes of the recent downpour state that though Mildmay got a very bad shaking, it is light compared with the ravages committed at Neustadt.

MOLTKE

Seeding operations are well on the way and the weather seems to have warmed up a little.

The bridge on the townline has again been opened for traffic, but we must say is rather wobbly.

SLEIGH WIDENING BILL WITHDRAWN

In a recent issue we referred to a bill having passed at the recent session of the Ontario Legislature by which owners of sleighs would be fined $50 and costs if they did not comply with the terms of the bill by December 1st. We said the bill came into effect on Dec. 1st. This is a mistake. The bill was introduced into the Legislature by Mr. Mahoney on Dec. 1st, and received its first reading. The bill was so unpopular that it was withdrawn and it is to be hoped it will not appear.

BODY OF NEW BORN BABY FOUND

Thos. Cordick, an employee of the Town of Warton, made a startling discovery on Monday last, while cleaning debris from the bed of Taylor's creek, when he found the body of a new-born baby boy wrapped in a strip of cloth. Mr. Cordick immediately notified Mayor Gilpin, and Chief of Police Thomas Bone, who had the body taken to Dr. Hough's office where an examination was made before removing it to Henderson's Funeral Parlors. Dr. Hough declared the body had been in the water four or five days.
The small body which weighed ten pounds, was disfigured, badly by the actions of the water. It is thought that the body died a short time after birth and that it was thrown into the creek four or five days ago while the creek was flooded by last Thursday's storm. No clue has yet been found as to whom the baby belongs.

FORMER CARRICK MAN SUICIDES

The following taken from the Kitchener News-Record refers to Jos. Kohl, a son of the late Andrew Kohl of Mildmay. Deceased was brought up in Carrick and will be remembered by many here.

Joseph Kohl, aged 68, was found dead in his kitchen at 93 West Lancaster street shortly after seven o'clock last Thursday morning by his brother-in-law, George B. Schell. Gas was discharging from two burners in the gas stove at the time. Dr. L. J. Crowle was called and life was found to be extinct. Dr. Crowley called Coroner Honsperger who pronounced death due to poisoning. The case is evidently one of suicide.

Kohl was found seated beside the kitchen table at the time, his body bent forward as if in sleep. The police were immediately notified and Detective Blevins responded. The house was filled with gas indicating that the burners had been turned on for some time before the deal man was found.

Kohl and his wife, it is believed, have been at odds for some time. They were before Magistrate Weir Wednesday morning when a charge of non-support laid by Mrs. Kohl was heard in the magistrate's private office. Mrs. Kohl did not remain in the house Wednesday night, but was there until about 10 o'clock, a neighbor woman being with her until she left. She spent the night at her brother's home and returned to her own home next door about 7 o'clock. Finding the house locked, she opened the front door with her key. When the door was opened she became aware of the odor of gas and suspecting that something was wrong called her brother who entered the kitchen and found Kohl's body. Mr. Schell notified the police and called Dr. Crowley.

Kohl conducted a grocery store at the corner of Lancaster and Louisa streets. It is understood that he has been in despondent condition for some time owing to the differences between himself and his wife.

Evidence about the house showed that Kohl had been sleeping at the bed was unmade. He evidently arose early in the morning. It is alleged he had been drinking of late. Nearby was a whiskey bottle practically empty and his pipe and some tobacco. The body was still warm when found, rigor mortis not having set in to any extent. Kohl was fully clothed with the exception of shoes.

Coroner Dr. Honsperger announced there would be no inquest, as he believes it a plain case of suicide. Besides his wife the deceased is

WENT TO SLEEP AT WHEEL

While motoring from Southampton to Walkerton early Sunday morning Mr. Barney Sheerer, of the latter town, fell asleep at the wheel of his car and only awoke when the sedan turned turtle into the ditch fronting on Mr. John Walker's farm, Elora road north. Finding no broken bones Barney climbed out of his bus by way of the open window. An inspection of the car showed no serious results of the plunge, although "her roadship" was lying firmly on her left side, some four feet from the road level. A hurry call to a local garage brought the rescue crew to the scene and inside of an hour Barney was on his way again.—Paisley Advocate.

"SALADA" TEA

"Fresh from the gardens"

From the beginning Antony had seen this answer coming and had drawn back from it. For if Mark had been killed, it seemed such a cold-blooded killing. Was Cayley equal to it?

Bill would have said "No," because Bill wouldn't have killed anybody in cold blood himself, and because he took it for granted that other people behaved pretty much as he did. But Antony had no such illusions. Murders were done; murder had actually been done here, for there was Robert's dead body. Why not another murder?

Had Mark been in the office at all that afternoon? The only evidence

NICE WORDS WON'T DYE a dress or coat...

Neither pretty pictures nor colorful adjectives will dye a dress or coat. It takes real dyes to do the work; dyes made from true anilines.

Next time you have dyeing to do, try Diamond Dyes. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Your dealer will remind you money if you don't agree they are better dyes.

You get none of that re-dyed look from Diamond Dyes; no streaking or spotting. Just fresh, crisp, bright new color. And watch the way they keep their brilliance through wear and washing. They are better dyes because they contain plenty of real anilines—from three to five times more than other dyes. But you pay no more for them than for ordinary dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. Remember this when you buy. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

And then the sudden inspiration! Robert dead in the office, Mark's body hidden in the passage—impossible to make Robert seem the murderer, but how easy to make Mark's body dead and Mark missing; why, it jumped to the eye at once. Mark had killed Robert accidentally; yet, that would be more likely—and then had run away. Sudden panic. . . (He looks at his watch again. Fifteen minutes, but plenty of time now. The thing arranges itself.)

Was that the solution, Antony wondered. It seemed to fit in with the facts as they knew them; but then, so did the other theory which he had suggested to Bill in the morning.

"Which one?" said Bill. "They were sitting in the corpse above the pond, from which the Inspector and his fishermen had now withdrawn. Bill had listened with open mouth to Antony's theory, and save for an occasional "By jove!" had listened in silence. "Smart man, Cayley," had been his only comment at the end.

"Which other theory?" "That Mark had killed Robert accidentally and had gone to Cayley for help, and that Cayley, having hidden him in the passage, locked the office door from the outside and hammered on it."

"Yes, but you were so dashed mysterious about that. I asked you what the point of it was, and you wouldn't say anything." He thought for a little, and then went on, "I suppose you meant that Cayley deliberately killed Mark, and tried to make him look like a murderer?"

"See anything?" said Antony at last.

"I wanted to warn you that we should probably find Mark in the passage, alive or dead."

"And now you don't think so?" "No, I think that his dead body is there."

"Meaning that Cayley went down and killed him afterward—after you had come after the police had come?" "Well, that's what I shrink from, Bill. It's so horribly cold-blooded, Cayley may be capable of it, but I hate to think of it."

"But, dash it all, your other way is cold-blooded enough. According to you, he goes up to the office and deliberately shoots a man with whom he has no quarrel, whom he hasn't seen for fifteen years!"

"Yes, but to save his own neck. That makes a difference. And I think that Mark's dead body is in the passage now, and has been there since, say, half-past two yesterday afternoon. And tonight Cayley is going to hide it in the pond."

Bill pulled at the moss on the ground beside him, threw away a handful or two, and said slowly, "You may be right, but it's all guess-work, you know."

Antony laughed. "Good Lord, of course it is," he said. "And tonight we shall know if it's a good guess or a bad one."

Bill brightened up suddenly. "Tonight," he said. "I say, tonight's going to be rather fun. How do we work it?"

Antony was silent for a little. "Let's put ourselves in Cayley's place," said Antony, puffing slowly at his pipe. "He's got the body, or whatever it is, in the passage. What will he do next?"

"Come out again," said Bill helpfully. "Yes; but which end?"

Bill sat up with a start. "By jove, you mean that he will go out at the far end by the bowling-green?"

"Don't you think so? Just imagine him walking across the lawn in full view of the house, at midnight, with a body in his arms. He can get out by the bowling-green, and then come to the pond without ever being in sight of the house at all."

"You're right. Now, what's the next thing?" "The next thing is to mark the exact place in the pond where he drops whatever he drops."

"So that we can fish it out again." "If we can see what it is, we shan't want to. The police can have a go at it tomorrow. But if it's something we can't identify from a distance, then we must try and get it out. To see whether it's worth telling the police about."

"Y—yes," said Bill, wrinkling his forehead. "Of course, the trouble with water is that one bit of it looks pretty much like the next bit. I don't know if that had occurred to you."

"It had," smiled Antony. "Let's come and have a look at it." They walked to the edge of the corpse, and lay down there in silence, looking at the pond beneath them.

"The fence on the other side." "What about it?"

"Well, it's rather useful, that's all." "Said Sherlock Holmes enigmatically," added Bill. "A moment later, his friend Watson had hurled him into the pond."

Antony laughed. "I love being Sherlock," he said. "It's very unfair of you not to play up to me."

"Why is that fence useful to my dear Holmes?" said Bill obediently. "Because you can take a bearing on it. You see—"

"Yes, you needn't stop to explain to me what a bearing is."

"I wasn't going to. But you're lying here"—he looked up—"underneath this pine tree. Cayley comes out in the old boat and drops his parcel in. You take a line from here on to the boat, and mark it off on the fence there. Say it's the fifth post from the end. Well, then I take a line from my tree—we'll find one for me directly—and it comes to the twentieth post. Say, and where the two lines meet, there shall the eagles be gathered together. Q. E. D. And the taller eagle, Beverley by name, do his famous diving act. As performed nightly at the Hippodrome."

Bill looked at him uneasily. "I say, really? It's beastly dirty water, you know."

"I'm afraid so, Bill. So it is written in the book of Jasher." "Of course I knew that one of us would have to, but I hoped—oh, well, it's a warm night."

"Just the night for a bath," agreed Antony, getting up. "Well now, let's have a look for my tree."

They walked down to the margin of the pond and then looked back. Bill's tree stood up and took the evening, tall and unmistakable, fifty feet nearer to heaven than its neighbors. But it had its fellow at the other end of the copse, not quite so tall, perhaps, but equally conspicuous.

"That's where I shall be," said Antony, pointing to it. "Now, for my sake, count your posts accurately."

"Thanks very much, but I shall do it for my own sake," said Bill with whole night diving."

"Fix on the post in a straight line with you and the splash, and then count backward to the beginning of the fence."

"Right, old boy. Leave it to me. I can do this on my head."

"Well, that's how you will have to do the last part of it," said Antony with a smile.

He looked at his watch. It was nearly time to change for dinner. They started to walk back to the house together.

At midnight the pond was waiting for them, more solemn in the moonlight. The trees which crowned the sloping bank on the far side of it were mysteriously silent. It seemed that they had the world very much to themselves.

Almost unconsciously Antony spoke in a whisper. "There's your tree, there's mine. As long as you don't move, there's no chance of his seeing you. After he's gone, don't come out till I do. He won't be here for a quarter of an hour or so, so don't be impatient."

"Right," whispered Bill. Antony gave him a nod and a smile, and they walked off to their posts. (To be continued.)

How far would you go to be sure of a better Oil-?

Knowing that a better oil means smoother performance, longer life, greater economy and bigger trade-in-value for your car, you'd probably go a long way to be sure of a better oil.

That's what Imperial Oil Limited did—went all the way to tropical South America for the crude out of which to refine Marvelube.

There's lots of crude oil available right at Canada's front door. If Canada's largest and most modern refineries had been able to evolve as good an oil as Marvelube from locally available crude they would have been glad to do so. Peruvian crude made a purer, carbon-free, fuller-bodied oil—an oil that meant better lubrication—so Peruvian crude was decided upon.

The decision set a new standard in motor oils. Aircraft operators, the most particular buyers of oil, are enthusiastic about Marvelube because it has given them a longer period of operation between engine overhauls, and a greater margin of safety.

You can enjoy the same benefits in your car, and there is a grade of Marvelube that is refined to meet the exact requirements of your car. Consult the Marvelube chart at good service stations and dealers everywhere.

Does Disaster Face Canada?

A Few Items Gleaned From Canadian Sources From Coast to Coast Does Not Look Like It

Sir George Paish Wrong

Recent press dispatches have played up rather prominently the gloomy forebodings of Britain's champion pessimist, Sir George Paish. Sir George visited Canada in 1919 or there about and his interpretations of the world's economics were interesting and to say the least, disconcerting. He pictured the post war condition as one where the world had rolled over a deep chasm and that it was then falling to the everlasting and eternal bow wows.

Recently Sir George the gloomy has burst forth again. The world is on the verge of financial collapse. The writer is no dee, thinking economic highbrow but he can read and partially understand the written word. If the following news dispatches from coast to coast in Canada mean anything they mean that Sir George Paish has once more "missed his putt."

From the East

Halifax, Nova Scotia.—The freight import and export business of the port of Halifax this season exceeds that of last season by about 30 to 40 per cent. According to the Board of Trade bulletins, this has been one of the best shipping seasons the port has ever had. Apple shipments are about 100,000 barrels head of the 1927-28 season.

Quebec, Quebec.—The Port of Quebec is preparing for a busy season as is evidenced by the activity along the waterfront.

Montreal, Quebec.—Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures show February's exports of automobiles to be twice as large in volume as those for the same month last year, the largest buyers being the United Kingdom, South Africa, Australia, British India and New Zealand, while there were also some sales to Argentina, Dutch East Indies, Egypt, and the United States. February's exports of passenger cars amounted to $3,362,273, compared with $2,479,515 in January and $1,491,609 in February, 1928. Exports of trucks amounted to $1,221,716, as against $1,272,207 in January and $551,472 in February, 1928.

From Ontario

Toronto, Ontario.—Canadian bond sales to date, according to the weekly summary of A. E. Ames & Co., amount to $115,654,289, as compared with $60,155,697 for the corresponding period of 1928 and $93,920,507 for that of 1927. Government issued made up a total of $6,417,000; Municipal of $25,001,189, and Corporation of $83,636,100. Canada purchased to the extent of $18,039,289; the United States $30,121,000 and Great Britain $1,500,000.

From the Prairies

Winnipeg, Manitoba.—Homestead filings for the two first months of the year numbered 1,416, as compared with 1,926 for the same two months of 1928. Alberta's entries amounted to 702 as against 502 in January and February of 1928; Saskatchewan's were 595 against 430; Manitoba's 78 against 74 and British Columbia's 41 against 31.

Brandon, Manitoba.—A season of record building activity is promised by the number of projects at present in the planning stage or actually in process. In fact, there is every promise of last year's active season being surpassed.

Regina, Saskatchewan.—The butter production of the province in February nearly doubled that of the previous February, being 553,912 pounds, as compared with 284,356 pounds in February, 1928. The winter season as a whole has been an active one in creamery circles with each month showing an increase over the same month of the previous year.

A special train of tractors, valued at $100,000, recently reached Regina. There were 280 machines in all, occupying 70 railway cars. The tractors were distributed to farmer buyers in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Edmonton, Alberta.—According to announcement made by different business firms and governmental bodies, over $7,000,000 in building is in sight for Edmonton this year. The provincial government is planning to spend around $1,250,000 on new construction which includes a new normal school, $500,000 administrative building, and a $250,000 extension to the University hospital is in prospect. Permits to date are six times greater than the total for the same period last year.

From British Columbia

Vancouver, British Columbia.—Construction has begun on the Marine Building which, when completed, will be the tallest building in Canada west of Toronto, towering 18 stories above the northwest corner of Burrard and Hastings Streets.

The Dominion Bridge Company will shortly begin construction of the first unit of a structural steel fabricating plant in Burnaby. It will be operated in conjunction with the plant the company now owns on False Creek. The new unit will cost about $1,500,000.

An increase of nearly $1,000,000 in the value of the mineral output of British Columbia for 1928, as compared with that of the previous year, is noted in the preliminary report of the provincial mineralogist. The value of all minerals is placed at $61,637,691, as compared with $60,729,358 in 1927. Lead, copper and coal, in that order, were the largest products. So it would appear that progress and prosperity are in store for Canada.

Canada Not Disposed to Bar Rum Running

I'm Alone Case Turns Public Opinion Against Request for Tighter Border Control

Ottawa—Whatever form the negotiation between Ottawa and Washington over the Canadian schooner I'm Alone may take it is certain that the sinking of this boat has destroyed whatever small chance existed that Parliament would do something to meet the request of the United States for a tighter control over the border liquor trade. Naturally this statement is not possible of exact proof, but undoubtedly it is true that public opinion in this country has been shocked and astounded by the long pursuit and deliberate sinking of the I'm Alone by armed American Coast Guard patrols, 200 miles off shore.

Before Parliament there are numerous petitions from prohibition organizations praying that it be made a crime in Canada to ship liquor over the international frontier, but in official circles it is held unofficially that these documents are signed by the sort of uncompromising drys who, in the United States, would be members of the Anti-Saloon League and that they do not speak for the great body of the people.

Why should Canada, it is asked, concern itself with this purely domestic American problem, and make a crime out of what is now legitimate trading on this side of the line, when on all the evidence millions of Americans break the prohibition law daily and even men in important official posts seem to show no particular solicitude for it.

Thus it will be found inconvenient to do anything at this session about the border business.

New Brunswick Revises Its Motor Vehicle Code

The Canadian Province of New Brunswick has recently remodeled its motor vehicle laws. Among the salient features of the new regulations are:

Open country speed of forty miles per hour.

No parking on curves or intersections.

Persons over 16 years of age with licenses obtained in the country of their residence may operate a car in New Brunswick for not longer than ninety days in any one year.

Jail sentence without the option of fine for persons convicted of driving while intoxicated.

Where an accident results in injury or death, or causes property damage to the extent of $50 or more, the driver must immediately report to the proper authority.

Some more howlers for the examinations: Joan of Arc's father was a peasant. Perkin Warbeck said he was the son of a king but he was really the son of respectable people. A skeleton is a man with his inside out and outside off. When there is a parasite in the aeroplane the pilot is not afraid to jump out. An optician is a cheerful eye's scallist. A parliament is an Irish nobleman. All Scotchmen wear kilts. "The Last Rose of Summer" was written by the man who wrote "Caller Herring." Wolfe said he would rather write an elegy in a country orchard than fight the battle of Quebec.

Ontario Home Brings Happiness

Story of One Immigrant Tells That Success is Possible in Northern Ontario

CLIMATE PRAISED

The bitter disappointment experienced by some English emigrants, who tried life in Canada as workers during the harvest time on Canadian farms last summer, has been noted in these pages, with the press explanation that some of the unsuccessful where on a farm, and that others had journeyed to Canada from England merely as an experiment. But now a concrete case of the happiness found on a Canadian farm by a British couple and their children is recorded in the London Times by the wife of a farmer who has been in the Dominion of six full years. She and her husband decided to emigrate, we are told, because Canada offered more scope for a small family with limited means than anything they could hope for in the British Isles, and they picked out the Province of Ontario "greatly on account of its proximity to England; the idea of being only nine days from London rather appealed to us." At the outset in Canada, it is further stated, they decided that "they were there more to save money than to make money" for the first few years, because to make money one must first be willing to sink a certain amount, which they did not feel justified in doing at the beginning. Their initial effort, it seems, was the purchase of a fair-sized farm, with a few tumble-down buildings, in one of which they lived while they were having a house built. The new one was a nine-room bungalow, with an attic capable of being divided into five more rooms, and with all modern conveniences, including many labor-saving devices. The cost of putting up this house in Canada was less than it would have been in England, according to this settler's wife, who continues:

"It is astonishing how much one can save if one tries, and living expenses in Northern Ontario where we live are very much lower than at home; so are rates and taxes. We decided, to begin with, to employ no labor in the house or outside except on special occasions, and as I had heard that a servant was difficult to get I thought I would try to carry on without help, though I found it was always possible to get a 'girl.' The 'girl' is usually French-Canadian, talks very little English, receives not less than $20, the equivalent to $4, a month, or if employed by the day from $1.25, and will do any and every kind of job.

"I decided to have a 'girl' once a week to give me a hand, but I had no idea how to prepare for this 'attack.' She would appear soon after 8 a.m. and expect to work without any interval, except a half-hour for lunch, until 6.30 in the evening, and I found it almost impossible to keep the supply of work equal to the demand. My vision of a restful day, getting through arrears of darning, letter-writing, and perhaps a little reading, soon vanished. I would settle down in a comfortable chair with a lapful of socks to mend, when round the door would pop Marie-Rose, 'And now what, Missus?' and I would have to think out some further occupation for her, my carefully thought-out supply for the day's work, having given out by the middle of the morning. By 6.30 p.m. she left fresh and smiling, with a dollar and a quarter in her pocket, leaving behind her a completely exhausted 'Missus.' Even usually I found myself far more tired after my day's help than any other day in the week, so I gave it up, except about once a month, and when I had given time and thought to preparing a real full ten hours of work. One soon gets accustomed to doing everything oneself, though certain things such as washing can be done 'out,' but it is advisable to inquire about the water supply before entrusting any light-colored garments to the hands of a washerwoman."

The secret of success, according to this farmer's wife, is working by the clock, setting aside definite times for each job, and beginning and ending at the set time. One soon learns how long various jobs take, and we read:

"If by any chance the work is finished five minutes before scheduled time it gives one the feeling of leisure, whereas if there is a great deal to do and one sets oneself no time limit one is always chasing and rushing round. I don't work so very hard either. I never start before 7 a.m., and make a rule to knock off all housework and domestic work at 3 o'clock, leaving all tea and supper washing-up to be done the following morning, supper usually having been prepared earlier in the day. I always try to put in half an hour resting and reading from 3 to 3.30, and then I go out, very often driving into town with the children to shop or to see friends, or possibly going to a neighboring farm with a message from my husband.

"I do not think it will come amiss to say, for the benefit of mothers going out with small families, that it is a marvelously healthy country for children. Last winter there were only two days on which the children had to be kept indoors; and certainly the open-air life in Canada, with nature as nurse and school-teacher, is one of the best upbringings, mentally, morally, and physically. It makes the children independent in the right way, observant, able to fend for themselves."

That Canada is not receiving a sufficient proportion of Britons as immigrants worries some Canadian and some English editors. At present, remarks the London Daily Express, two Europeans are entering Canada for every Briton, and this fact is considered "ominous for the Canadian future." Says the Montreal Daily Star: "In spite of the fact that immigration into Canada has increased from 124,362 in 1927 to 132,398 in 1928, the number of British immigrants shows a decrease from 45,012 in 1927 to 43,229 in 1928, excluding the miner-vesters. . . .

"If we have had fewer British immigrants to welcome during the past year, we have had more from the United States. In 1927 the number of settlers who crossed the international boundary to settle in this country has risen to 23,329, due, probably, to increasing unemployment in the United States.

"This means that while immigration from the United States increased during the past year by 25 per cent., immigration from Great Britain decreased by 4 per cent."

"Most men are not at home in evening clothes, if they have any other place to go."

The Mexican rebels will never win any battles as long as they allow the Federals to write the official reports.

Stanley Baldwin Eternal Boy

By SIR EDWARD BARRY

Mr. Baldwin has just figured in an incident in the British House of Commons which showed him as the strong man with the manner that is firm, though gentle. The Postmaster-General had refused to see a deputation on an important national question. The Premier saw the deputation himself, and, in his own words, gave a "courteous reply to a courteous request." Sir Edward Barry suggests that this might be a slogan for Whitehall.

Mr. Baldwin made a pleasant speech the other day, taking as his text Byron's line:

"Ah, happy years! Once more who would not be a boy?"

It is a great thing for a man in public life to have kept the spirit of boyhood in him and the honesty to acknowledge it unabashed.

"I always think," said Mr. Baldwin, "one of the great charms of my sex is that the best of us remain boys to the end," and it is that characteristic of our Prime Minister that has gained him a place in the hearts of the people.

When Pharaoh Refused

The Press desired to discuss with the P.M.G. a question of public policy. The P.M.G. was sulky and inaccessible and on two occasions when they called he peeped at them over the blinds, but was not at home. So they went to see Mr. Baldwin instead, and had a heart-to-heart talk, and came away happy.

Our P.M.G. should read about Pharaoh. When he refused to see deputations he found his roll-top desk swarming with fat, healthy frogs the next morning. Our modern Pharaohs should study history. The House of Commons wanted to know all about the incident, and Mr. Baldwin was asked why he had received the Press representatives that the P.M.G. had refused to receive.

"In the same way I always receive them," replied the Prime Minister; "a courteous reply to a courteous request."

Political Leap-Frog

When Mr. Baldwin was further tackled with the impropriety of a Prime Minister "going over the head of a trusted Minister" he evidently regarded the process as a sort of everyday political leap-frog, and replied with joyous determination: "I never feel any hesitation in doing so if I think it desirable in the public interest."

The House was delighted. For at its best it has the psychology of a collection of schoolboys. And Mr. Baldwin with a boy's instinct, has made just the reply that the captain of the school would have made if someone had asked him why he had taken off an efficient bowler and gone on to bowl himself. It had seemed to him that it was the interests of the game. That settled it.

Microbes Blamed for Street Blow-Up

Germes Now Said to Have Caused Explosions in Old London

London—The newest danger of cities, a microbe that lives in the ground beneath them and does its best to blow them up, is suspected in London by the distinguished British biologist, Professor J. S. Haldane, as an explanation of a mysterious explosion which tore up long sections of street paving in the Holborn district last December.

That explosion undoubtedly was caused by a gas of some kind which collected in conduits and manholes underneath the street and exploded violently when one of the manholes was opened and a light struck inside it. The problem with which London authorities are now wrestling is to decide where the explosive gas came from.

Called as an expert witness because of his long experience with such explosive gases in mines and elsewhere, Professor Haldane suggested his startling microbe theory of the origin of the gas.

It is well known, he said, that microbes which live in the mud of swamps are able to manufacture the gas called methane, which explodes violently when mixed with air and touched off by a match or a spark. This is the "marsh gas" which bubbles out of such swamps, and which is possible, the distinguished biologist believes, that these same microbes live in vast numbers in the moist, dirty sub-soil of a city and slowly produce this same explosive gas. Pavements keep the gas from escaping into the air. Accordingly it may accumulate in seldom-opened conduits or manholes, prepared to send the whole street skyward if someone incautiously introduces a light.

Canada's Mining Advance

From a comparatively obscure position in 1900 with a production of less than $65,000,000, Canada is steadily advancing to the front rank of the mineral-producing countries of the world with a total production in 1928 valued at $271,000,000.

What a Difference

A tourist was prowling around a Scottish graveyard. His eyes caught the epitaph, "Lord, she was thin." "Say, sexton, what d'ye make of that?" he asked.

"That's all right, sir. The sculptor went over near the edge of the stont and didn't have room for the 'e'."

Another Bridge Gone

The large concrete and steel bridge on the 12th concession of Carrick, immediately adjoining the townline, has been undermined by the Neustadt creek, and a big portion of earth-approach carried away. This will cost the Township several thousand dollars to replace.
