Yesterday afternoon the representatives of the different lines met and agreed to bury the hatchet. An ironclad agreement was entered into backed by a gilt edge bond in the extent of $1000 each and anyone breaking the compact forfeits his bond.

Bethune representing the committee appointed at a public mass meeting last winter which resulted in sending two delegates to Ottawa to protest against the Treadgold concession, met yesterday afternoon to hear the report of Delegate Sugrue, Delegate Wilson being absent on the creeks. Mr. Sugrue submitted a comprehensive report in writing which was read by the chairman and afterward adopted with but one dissenting vote. It was also decided to hold a public meeting at a later date at which the delegates will report more fully and at greater detail.

Excitement in Panama

Panama, Colombia, June 14.—A schooner, towed by the launch Aurora landed 200 government troops at Chorrera, fifteen miles from Panama. A telegraph inspector left overland today for Chorrera, with the object of establishing a line into the interior.

A flotilla of eight sailing vessels started last night with reinforcements to Gen. Bertie's troops at Pescadora. Great excitement prevails here and will continue until the result of the attack on the rebels at Agua Dulce is known.

Gov. Salazar says he will send next week an important government official to consult the administration of the recaptured province, and that he expects to hear soon that the revolution is confined to Chiriqui.

FOREST FIRES.

The manner in which the timber resources of this territory are being destroyed through the agency of forest fires is little less than criminal.

In older provinces measures are taken every summer to protect the forest reserves by the establishment of a regular system of patrols.

It is obvious, however, in this country that anything in the nature of a systematic forest patrol is out of the question.

It is easy to extinguish a small camp fire upon leaving it, but when once it gains headway and particularly under the influence of the prevailing winds, there is nothing to be done but allow the flames to take their course.

The timber resources of the territory are among its most valued possessions, and every tree that is destroyed by fire represents so much of a loss.

The extremely sensitive nerves of our contemporary the News have been greatly overwrought of late by the numerous whistles which are sounded in Dawson at various times during the day.

ways welcome. We wish there were more whistles. When noon time and six o'clock arrive, nothing would be more pleasant than to hear the whistles from half a hundred places, for wherever a whistle is heard, there is always to be found men employed and a pay roll.

The coroner's jury which has been investigating into the causes of the Fernie disaster has found that the explosion was due to neglect on the part of the mine management.

Hard cash is now coming forward for quartz investments, an indication which is most favorable. At the very least, two properties will be thoroughly exploited this summer and definite information as to their value secured.

The government will expend upwards of $2,000,000 in this territory during the ensuing 12 months. If Ottawa did not have reasonable grounds for belief in the permanent nature of the camp, it is not likely that any such sum would have been appropriated.

Home for Dogs

Chicago, June 14.—The Chicago dog is a power in society. Not only are the petted and cherished darlings of appreciative dog fanciers regarded as most precious and surrounded by every luxury, but the day of the technically worthless and quite unpedigreed dog of unrecognizable family and unattractive origin would appear to have dawned most auspiciously.

Not Size, But Quality

The question whether the size of the head is correlated with intellectual attainment has been discussed for years in scientific circles but very little has come out of the discussion proving the case either one way or the other.

man, this is rather due to the better nutrition of the latter. The Chinaman is noted for the size of his brain, yet he is not in popular opinion blessed with a greater portion of genius than the average westerner.

SOMETHING TANGIBLE

Propositions Submitted Last Night

Three Parties File Bids and Plans for the New Water Works System.

At last the water works proposition is assuming a tangible form. Pursuant to the request of the council, City Engineer Rendell prepared specifications for a system such as will be adequate to meet the demands of the city, and at last night's meeting of the council three different parties submitted facts and figures pertaining to the plant which they are willing to install and the remuneration and other privileges they expect to enjoy in return for the expenditure so made.

The plan submitted by J. A. Williams for the Dawson Electric Light and Power Company, is not so elaborate nor does it go so greatly into detail. It says: "It gives us pleasure to herewith submit for your kind consideration and acceptance the following proposition for furnishing you with water."

"We propose and agree to lay 8-inch pipe from the plant to the north-east corner of Second street and from thence to the foot of Seventh street 6-inch pipe, Second and First streets west of Third avenue, 6-inch pipe, with thirteen hydrants as shown on the enclosed map.

"Pumping capacity, 1400 gallons per minute. Pressure at hydrants with two hose connections, one hundred pounds when needed.

"The council will meet in caucus once or twice this week and probably come to a decision which if any of the plans submitted will be accepted."

He Only Laughed

Philadelphia, June 14.—Willis Sharpe Kilmer of Binghamton, N. Y., laughed when told of the fort which the good people of Absecon, N. J., have erected to prevent him from "scorching" through that place with his $26,000 automobile, the "Green Demon," in his coming effort to break Charles M. Schwab's record for the Atlantic City-Camden run.

have given the question of locating hydrants to the best advantage a great deal of study, and feel confident it will meet with your approval.

"To insure above results the plant will comprise two boilers of 125 horsepower each, arranged to be used either independently or connected. A duplex, compound, condensing pump, 22x30x12x18 of the most modern construction, which will furnish a maximum of 1400 gallons per minute under 250 pounds per square inch initial pressure and a reserve pump of the same type as above and about one-half the capacity, thus insuring sufficient water at all times and under any circumstances.

"The large pump will be kept in motion at all times, thus insuring an immediate response to any call for water. I also propose to have one fire banked and the boiler under a full head of steam at all times with a reserve of paraffined fuel ready for any emergency.

"I also propose to run the First avenue main as far as Ninth street, discharging into a 30,080 gallon tank, to which a fire engine could be attached in case of emergency in that part of the city.

"As we are the ones most concerned, you will readily see that we cannot afford to take any risks, and if we don't deliver the goods it will cost you anything, but on the contrary it will cost us a very large sum of money to install the above plant.

"Provided you will grant us a franchise to sell water, we will charge for same $833 per month."

"The third and last submitted is from J. C. Foley. He agrees to install the plant according to the specifications of the city engineer upon the following conditions and at the following rates:

"First—The city to grant me an exclusive franchise free to perform said work, and to make an eight-year contract with me. I agree to install the plant for the following rates to be paid annually: Forty thousand dollars for the first year, and $23,480 dollars for each and every year thereafter, during the life of my contract with the city. I agree to go outside myself at once and rush the plant in, and have the same installed, before the close of September next.

"I am prepared to put up a certified check for $25,000 as a bond that I will faithfully perform the work, said check to remain in the hands of the city treasurer until the plant is completed and tested."

cannon that has lain idle on the village green since Revolutionary days will be resurrected by the determined Jerseymen, and loaded to the muzzle with rusty nails and scrap iron, and set to guard the approaches under the command of old "Cap" Brown.

It is feared that the reckless chauffeur from Binghamton, N. Y., will meet his fate, for "Cap" has sworn to nail him fast to the "Green Demon." It is a curious coincidence that the last time this old cannon was fired it was touched off by the hand of General George Washington in his attack on the famous drunken Hessian General Rahl at the battle of Trenton.

Away Down in Tennessee

In one of the valleys to the east of the main spur of the Cumberland I stopped at a "huddle" of houses for the night. I was given a bed in a chamber with a window looking out on to the yard, and ten feet from the window stood a large apple tree. It being summer, the window sash was raised.

It must have been about midnight when a sound at the window awoke me, and I got out of bed to see what was the matter. It did not take long to discover that some one was planning a surprise for me. A man had climbed the tree and from a handy branch had thrust out a plank to reach the sill of the window. It was the end of the plank dropping on the sill which aroused me.

I stood back a little to watch, and presently the fellow, whose color I could not determine, started to creep along the plank. I didn't know exactly what to do at first, but finally decided to give him a fall instead of a bullet. Waiting until he was midway between the window and the tree, I gave the end of the plank a shove, and down he went, yelling in affright as he found himself going. He had scarcely struck the ground when some one seized him. The house was alarmed, everybody turned out, and when I got down the owner of the house was standing guard over the man and saying:

"Now, then, Jim Hivers, you un has got yo' self into a powerful fuss. You un has been tryin' to git inter my cabin in the night-time to rob the stranger, an' if you doan' dance high fur it I doan' want no mo' meat!"

"Wasn't a-tryin' to git in!" sulkily replied Jim.

"Then what was you un doin'?"

"Arter apples."

"Arter apples which hain't as good as shucks at this time o' year. Jim, yo' is bad—had all the way up an' down. I've knowed it fur y'ars, an' I've knowed that you would get cotched some day. The cotchin' has arrove."

"Cawn't prove it ag'in me," calmly observed the prisoner.

"You un just wait! I'm gwine to tie yo' up till daylight and then take yo' befo' Squar' Taylor."

"Jess meant to look in the window," explained Jim, who was evidently beginning to be alarmed.

"Oh, yes! We understand! Now you un come along to the smokehouse an' doan' try any tricks on me!"

Next morning he was regularly arrested on a warrant charging him with intent to enter and rob. The examination took place in the school-house, and the justice conducted it without any lawyers to bother. When Jim was asked to plead, he replied:

"I jess didn't dun it, an' I'll stick to my fat if yo' hang me!"

"Then I'll enter a plea of not guilty," said his honor, and he asked me to take the stand. I testified as related above, but all was not smooth sailing. When I stated that I was aroused by a noise, Jim put in:

"He un doan' dun say what sort of a noise, squar'. That's mo' than fifty kinds of noises, an' he uns got to come right down here."

When I said that I looked out of the window and saw a man in the tree, he interrupted with:

"Squar' Taylor, is you un gwine to put that down ag'in me? That's var'us sorts o' men. How does he un know it wasn't a nigger? Pin him right down, squar'."

"Couldn't bin no nigger, nehov," said his honor. "Couldn't been nobody but yous, kase yous the one cotched."

"When I testified to pushing the end of the plank off the sill, Jim looked done for a minute. Then a bright idea came, and he exclaimed:

"Hold he un down, squar'. He says a plank! How long was that plank? What sort of wood? Who did it belong to? Doan' give he un no high ground over me kase he looks peart."

The owner of the house testified to having been disturbed by a strange noise, and he had just gone to the door when Jim fell from the tree.

"Shore it was me?" asked Jim.

"Of co'se."

"Doan' reckon it was anybody else."

"Couldn't bin, kase I grabbed it." "Better be kerful! You's on oath! What did I say?"

"Said you un was arter apples."

"Put that down plain, squar'." "Apples isn't as big as beans yit, an' if I was arter apples it proves insanity. That's one for me."

When he took the stand in his own defense, he was asked:

"Prisoner, what is your name?"

"What you drivin' at, Squar' Taylor? Ain't no use to menshun any names an' git up a great fuss in de papers. Jess got right along steady."

"Are you a resident of this village, county and state?"

"Jess h'ar him! Squar' Taylor, that hain't no law. That's only foolin' around, jess like a man lookin' up a coon tree when the coon is somewhar' else."

"What is your occupation?" continued the squire.

"Say, squar'," exclaimed Jim as he arose and pounded on the desk, "this hain't no case whar' somebody stole a hog. This is a case whar a nigger climbed a tree to rob a white man in a house, an' it's got to go 'ordin' to law or I'll draw right out."

"Jim," replied the justice after some reflection, "you un was up that tree."

"I dun deny it."

"You un reckoned to get in that winder."

"What winder? Hain't nobody swore on which side of the house that winder was."

"And you un reckoned to rob the stranger?"

"Hu! What's he un got to be robbed of? Hain't nobody done swore he's got nuff to buy a coon's tail!"

"And you un was cotched."

"Cawn't agree with you, squar'. If a feller stands still, you can't catch him. He's got to be on the run."

"You un has been in jail fur stealin' tobacco."

"Hu! That's nuffin to do with this case. Who knows how many times this stranger has been in jail? Put him right up an' ax him the ou-shun, squar'."

The justice scratched his head, sharpened his goosequill pen, in doubt from me to Jim and back in a doubtful way and, finally said:

"Jim Hivers, I'm goin' to let you un go free."

"Of co'se."

"But be powerful kerful how you go blowin' yous horn around in future."

"I hain't gwine to blow."

"When court was dismissed, his honor came over to me and said:

"It's too bad to let he un go, but I didn't want to upset you un."

"How do you mean?"

"Why, he un was bound to ask if you un had ever been in jail for a crime."

"Well?"

"I thought from your looks that you un certainly had and perhaps in a stronger place, an' I wasn't goin' to let he un git the crow on you!"

The Teacher's Mistake.

Jack had a toothache and asked me to take his place at school. I consented and proceeded to the school-house. No one was there but a quiet little girl sweeping up kindling chips.

"Your regular teacher will be unable to be with you today, miss, but I will fill his place with what ability I can command. What's your name?"

"I do not think I ever saw any one look quite so surprised as that girl did then. However, I saw nothing very strange in the matter and repeated:

"What's your name? I am to teach you today."

"Alice Stanley."

"How old are you, Alice?"

"Eighteen."

"Shew!" thought I to myself. "She doesn't look fourteen."

The last bell rang, and Alice Stanley came in. I quietly remarked:

"I am to take the place of your teacher today. Will some one start a song?"

Calling a class, Peter Thompson failed to come forward. I urged him to do so.

I took hold of Peter's shoulder. If commands are not obeyed, use force. That's my motto. Immediately Peter gave such a yell as I never heard from mortal lungs. I sprang back as if I had touched off a mine. Peter did not desist, but to the first burst succeeded an avalanche of blubberings that came down like the cataract of Lodore. I retreated in dismay, and Peter halted with strange suddenness. He sulked behind his apron, however, till recess. I took the reader and pointed to the first letter of the alphabet.

"What is the name of that letter?" I inquired.

They gazed at me in stupid amazement.

"You surely know what that letter is. Tell me at once," said I severely.

Monitions of rain in one or two eyes. Alice Stanley's hand goes up.

"Question, Alice?"

"Please, sir, teacher uses the word method."

The word method? What might that be? My course in college so far contained no information on that point. Perhaps it was in the scientific course. To cover my confusion I looked at my watch. It was far past recess time, and I rang the bell.

I measured off just five minutes for the recess. Time was precious if the morning program was to be completed. Promptly at the expiration of the time I rang the bell, and as the astonished company hustled back to their seats I noticed Peter Thompson's place vacant.

"Where is Peter?"

"He went home cryin'."

"Said he'd tell his ma."

"Said he warn't goin' to no old school," volunteered a dozen voices. I summoned "B geography." This a class of intermediate grade, whose lesson for the day was Africa.

Right here the door opened wide, and in it stood a little bit of a woman, with a sunbonnet on her head and a mop in her hand and the cloth frozen stiff. She panted, with one hand on her heart. "Where's the schoolmarm?"

"He could not be here today. I take his place. Is there anything I can do for you, ma'am? May I ask your name?"

"I'm Missus Thompson. My poor little boy just come home a-cryin' as if his little heart would break, an' I'd just got to know who's been misusin' of him. I'd put the law on 'em, I would! Pretty goin's on in a schoolhouse, I must say! Oh, there you are, Miss Stanley. Why ain't you in your proper place?"

"Mrs. Thompson, may I see you a moment in the lobby?" asked Miss Stanley, while I stood entirely dumfounded.

"S'pose you went."

"While they went out I got my hat and overcoat and put them on. My brain was in a whirl. That little girl! But, after all, there was a certain air of maturity about her. And that Dekeleia and the giggling! I was a fool. As I got into the lobby—how I know not—Mrs. Thompson was departing with a broad grin on her face. Miss Stanley held out her hand, with several roughish dimples playing hide and seek about her cheeks.

"Pardon me. I thought at first some one was trying to play a trick on me through you, but I fear now I have been the trickster. I was quite tired and discouraged this morning. If you were a teacher—pardon me for imagining that you are not—you would know how glad I was to rest and hear some one else teach and learn how." This last was added slyly.

When she had directed me across the fields, I lifted my hat and walked off. As Miss Stanley entered the schoolroom I heard tumultuous clapping and cheering.

I plunged fiercely on, reviewing the morning's experience with burning cheeks whose fires were none the cooler by the time I reached my cousin's school, which also, I noticed, was fronted with a big elm.

As I went nearer the unmistakable buzz of a school in session greeted my ears. Wonderingly I rapped at the door. It opened, and, lo, Jack! "How's your tooth?" savagely said I.

"Might as well own up. It was all a trick. I came out here and hid. I was going to hear you teach all the morning and then disclose myself. The boys were in the secret, but when you didn't come the joke was on me. Where have you been?"

But that I never told.

Hunted by Marshals

Davenport, Wash., June 13.—After impersonating an officer twice and thereby not only escaping the law himself, but also effecting the release of three other prisoners, Jake Griswold is being hunted for by Deputy United States marshals. One of the men he has twice assisted to escape, George MacDonald, was captured last night. The arrests are the outcome of the recent "Sooner" movement on the reservation. When the men who had camped on the reservation in the hope of its early opening to settlement were driven off, Jake Young, Albert Hughes and George MacDonald did not leave the reservation and were captured by the Indian police. Just then it is alleged Griswold rode up and declared himself to be an officer of the law. He said the prisoners were wanted for horse stealing and exhibited an officer's star. He asked for assistance in handcuffing the men, and the Indians complied.

Later a similar occurrence happened near the house of an Indian farmer, and again, it is said, Griswold impersonated an officer and secured the prisoners. This occurrence was also reported to Indian Agent Anderson, who grew suspicious and started a movement to apprehend the quartette. Hughes is a well known prospector who headed the rush to the north half of the reservation three years ago. Griswold was formerly a deputy sheriff in Stevens county. He was arrested several years ago by Deputy Sheriff Gardner on a horse stealing charge. At Gardner's command to surrender Griswold ran and was brought down by a shot in the leg. Griswold and his pals will be charged with trespass upon the reservation and with carrying firearms.

Excitement in Panama

Panama, Colombia, June 13.—A schooner towed by the launch Aurora landed 200 government troops at Chorrera, fifteen miles from Panama. A telegraph inspector left overland today for Chorrera, with the object of establishing a line into the interior.

A flotilla of eight sailing vessels started last night with reinforcements for Gen. Bertis' troops at Pescadora. Great excitement prevails here and will continue until the result of the attack on the rebels at Agua Dulce is known.

Gov. Salazar says he will send next week an important government official to consult the administration of the recaptured province, and that he expects to hear soon that the revolution is confined to Chiriqui.

Marconi's New Invention

London, June 13.—In the course of a lecture tonight before the Royal Institute of Great Britain, William Marconi announced that he had invented a highly sensitive magnetic detector of electric waves by which it was possible to read thirty words per minute in wireless telegraphy.

Stroller's Column.

In the majority of the southern states there are laws providing for the employment of convict labor and in many cases labor is furnished by the states. But in such states as have no manufacturing industries, or where the employment of convict labor is sufficient to warrant the utilization of convict labor, the convicts are hired out by such state to the highest bidder, the employer or lessee of the convict, in a stipulated sum per month for the safe return of all hired convicts to the penitentiary warden. The state is fortunate when it can employ convicts at from $4 to $6 per month each, and that is a good price considering the fact that for every convict a guard must be employed. But in spite of the vigilance of the guards, escapes are not infrequent, and, as the employer is under the obligation to return all convicts a small number of detectives is constantly stationed around on the trail of recidivists. In the Gulf coast states convicts are usually employed at saw-mills, in turpentine camps or in phosphate mines, and notices of rewards offered for the return of escaped convicts are very frequent in the papers city as well as from other parts of the Dominion have gone or will soon leave for South Africa to engage in teaching school, I have decided that I, too, would enjoy getting out in the world and doing some good. I imagine, however, that I could get better wages for teaching in the Klondike, than are paid in South Africa; besides, I would not be so far from home.

Please answer at your earliest convenience and give me your opinion as to what is best for me to do.

Enclosed find an unlicked stamp for reply.

Respectfully,
MARY

The Stroller hails with delight, Mary, any move in the way of heralding enlightenment and spreading the cause of education. The Stroller has himself essayed to teach school and while he may not have been an eminent success, he honestly believes that no tutor ever tutored with a more unselfish purpose or for a smaller salary.

It was on account of the small salary that the Stroller refrained from teaching, but that, Mary, is the fault of nearly all teachers of the present generation. They only teach until they can get something better or get married.

You mention salary in your letter, the root of all evil so far as schools everywhere are concerned. That great Democratic principle of "revenue only" has permeated the schoolroom, the church and even the Salvation Army barracks.

What is needed in the present age is a few hundred teachers like Socrates, who taught school for the simple love of teaching. He never charged anything for his teaching and never wore shoes until after Thanksgiving. That habit, of course, could not be practiced here.

Many a time Socrates (people who didn't like him called him Old Socks) would take his kindergarten class out on the bank of the Klondike and discourse for hours on deep and difficult doctrines while he dangled his unsaddled feet in the genial tide.

That would be impossible in Dawson in the winter season.

And while the pupils of Socrates would quietly nibble at Grecian doughnuts and dig their heels in the ambient mud, their learned tutor would discourse by the hour on the laws of nature and science, all unmindful of the fact that fish were nibbling at his Gothic toes.

It was a great privilege to live in Socrates' school district and thus he unconsciously became a boomer of real estate.

One of the brightest pupils that ever graduated from Socrates open air school was Plato the philosopher. And yet Plato wrote columns of hot stuff that the Greek papers refused to publish. Had news been half as scarce as it is in Dawson they would not only have published his articles but would have also given him something for them, an order on the store for some Athenian dried prunes or a sack of Herculean corn meal or some Roman chocolate drops for his kids.

Plato died 431 years B.C. and it was not known until after he had been dead so long they could not find his grave that he had been really and truly a great man.

You will doubtless think, Mary, that this is a rather long and rambling answer to your letter, but you are young and the Stroller feels that it is his duty to give you something over which to study and reflect.

The trouble with too many young girls, Mary, is that the only reflection they care about is what they see in the looking glass. The Stroller hopes that you are not of this class. And yet, Mary, the lady school teacher who is untidy in her dress is an abomination—in the sight of the Lord. Don't try to get along without a glass but do not stay before it more than two hours every morning. Get through and give the others a chance.

If you find anything in the foregoing that you interpret as encouragement to come to the Klondike to teach it is not intended as such.

Really, it seems that this country is pretty well supplied with teachers already but probably another one or two would not overstock the market.

The Stroller is opposed to any lady teaching school after she passes her 30th year for then she begins to be needlessly severe with the children of men who passed her up ten years before. How the Stroller's children would suffer if they were going to school.

Where the wild flowers bloom

Where the orange distills its perfume

als which form a part of many Europeans' belief of America and Americans. Miss Fletcher is an impossible character outside of a burlesque.

The plot of "Queen" can be told in a few words. Lord Walter Huntington wooed and wins Queena Montrose, an American girl, to whom he is secretly married. A letter apprises him of the serious illness of his father and he bids his wife a tearful farewell promising to return in a few weeks at most. Months pass and no news is heard of him, the wife becomes desperate believing herself to have been deserted; her marriage never having been made public, the certificate being lost, she has no means of proving her assertions and fearing her word would be doubted and the disgrace of such would be unendurable, she runs away accompanied only by her friend Florence. A struggle with poverty is experienced and Queena, who is the possessor of a marvelous voice, finally adopts the stage, becoming an operatic singer. Shortly after her departure from her home a cousin by the same name arrives, sickens and dies and it is given out that Queena Montrose is dead. When that is discovered by Queena she becomes Mlle. Renee, the lyric queen. Her husband in the meantime has suffered a severe illness which has left him blind. His aristocratic father makes his believe Queena is dead. They take a trip to Paris to consult an oculist and husband and wife meet for the first time since their separation at a ball given at the American embassy, though the former being blind is unaware of the identity of the great singer to whom he has been introduced. The husband believing his wife dead is about to be married to an heiress though he has never ceased to love her for whom he mourns. Unable to endure the sight of another making love to her husband Mlle. Renee hurriedly leaves the ball when just at the point of announcing her identity and demanding the recognition due her. She with her child returns to her old home. Eventually Lord Huntington learns all, his sight is restored, he again comes to America and claims his own and the curtain falls upon a happy reunion.

Miss Lovell plays Queena and Mlle. Renee, plays it as only Miss Lovell could, and while the part is not equal to the abilities of the actress, yet much is made of it. There are some strong emotional lines which are read with a perfect conception. In the third act Mlle. Renee at the embassy ball is beautiful to look at and the climax at the conclusion of the act is quite the best scene in the play.

Mrs. Bittner appears as Florence Fletcher, the impossible American girl, and Miss Howard as Alice St. Clair, Lord Walter's fiancée. Little Miss Pauline Lane, a very pretty and sweet child, made her debut in a child's part, doing it nobly. Hans Sedley does Lord Walter.

During the entrance Mr. Southard sings a couple of songs. Dawson never seems to tire of his excellent voice and he is as popular today as he was nearly a year ago. Miss Vera Chandon made her first appearance as a violinist. Miss Chandon made a pretty picture on the stage but her playing was something fierce. Her violin was a half tone flat, which made matters worse than they otherwise would have been. Miss Chandon is not a violinist; she is scarcely a promising pupil.

The cast of "Queen" is as follows:

THEATRE MELANGE

Another Melodrama at the Auditorium

"The Girl in Pink," Sensational Dancer, Makes Her Debut at the Orpheum.

The initial performance of "Queen" at the Auditorium last night was greeted with a small house, though very appreciative and equally as demonstrative. Two curtain calls were taken, one in the first act and the other in the third, but the entire credit for the generous reception given a very ordinary melo-drama belongs to Miss Lovell. The play is essentially a one-person piece and the exceptionally clever work of the talented star is all that saves it from falling even below the mark of mediocrity. Without Miss Lovell, "Queen" would be worse than "Hamlet" with the melancholy Dane left out. Her support at times when it should have been most vigorous was wretchedly poor, notably in the climax at the close of the third act which is the one strong scene in the play. Left almost alone in a really good situation Miss Lovell simply by her magnetism and force of determination worked up the scene until it was raised out of the ordinary and became splendid. Several incongruities appear in the play which are painful. For instance, to see two gentlemen in afternoon dress at the ball and reception given in Paris at the residence of the American embassy, where of all places matters in the way of dress are most punctilious, is a sight incompatible with one's ideas of the eternal fitness of things. Of the characters portrayed, some are true to life while others are but travesties. From the playwright's conception of an American girl such as Florence Nightingale Fletcher is made to appear, one can easily perceive that the author was either an Englishman or some other person who acquired his idea from a comic weekly, the same sort of brains that pictures American gentlemen in Chicago and New York as wearing guns at all times, long hair, sombreros and other little incidents could not. His son Darby leaves the parental roof and a number of years later turns up as the manager of a fly by night show. It is a scratch to pay salaries and the encouragement is held out that eventually all will come out right. Darby represents to the company that his father is a millionaire, a retired banker, the proper caper in every respect. While the company one day is at the theater rehearsing the old man unexpectedly blows in, but instead of Googan Sr. being the picture of opulence that his son had represented him to be he looks more like a hodcarrier. From his first entrance the fun is fast and furious from start to finish. Eight of the coryphees in stunning costumes do a very pretty gavotte followed by a quintette of stags in a burlesque of the dance. The piece ends with a rousing medley.

The olio opens with petite Paula Cordero in the Spanish dances which she executes so well. Beatrice Lorne and Annie Merrill are heard in new duets of which one never tires. Miss Edwina Dolan and Miss Johanna Mulligan are new stars just off the ice. Their sketch is a one-act curtain raiser which is also a hair raiser. Never before has "Larboard Watch" been sung with such fearful effect. The Sisters Glue are artists and no mistake. Vivian is heard in new songs, Lorraine & Howell with their exceptionally well trained dogs open their third week's engagement and "The Original Girl in Pink" makes her debut before a Dawson audience. Her specialty is dancing, but such dancing as has never before been seen here. It is bewildering, dazzling, beautiful, and indescribable. Exquisite light effects are produced by means of two calciums, each a 625 candle power and so arranged that the colors are kaleidoscopic in their character. "The Girl in Pink" was a howling success in New York and Chicago and has only taken the trip into the Klondike as a sort of summer jaunt. Her engagement here is limited as she opens at Keith's theater in Boston the first week in September. The little danseuse is a singer of Mlle. Almee, the fire 'nigger, who is equally as famous as a component of the terpsichorean art.

Postage Books

One of the most popular ideas ever adopted by the postoffice department was the selling of twelve 2-cent stamps in a little book for 25 cents. They are put up between sheets of waxed paper, so that there is no danger of spoiling them by the heat or moisture of the body when they are carried in the pocket. For the little books and the extra trouble the government charges 1 cent on twelve stamps, and there is no compulsion about taking them, for the stamps can be bought at regular rates at any postoffice without the covers. The popularity of this plan is shown by the statement that comes from Washington that out of this transaction the government will make by the end of this year almost $80,000. Last year it made something like $29,000, and in the first ten months of the current year the profits have been over $26,000, and it is expected that for the current year they will amount to close to $45,000. This, we think, is a legitimate profit for the government to take. It furnishes people with stamps in a convenient form for the pocket, and it is evident from the large profit made that the general public is very willing to pay Uncle Sam his extra cent for the handy little booklets.—Boston Herald.

Police Matter Remains Unsettled

City Council Wrestles With the Water Works Proposition—Will Decide at Once.

All the members of the council were present at the meeting last night with the exception of Alderman Norway. The audience was larger than usual as it was expected the police matter would be definitely settled and possibly some appointments be made.

Sergeant Smith sent the council a letter acknowledging receipt of a communication from the city clerk as to the dispensing with the services of the town station police after July 1.

A communication was read from a number of citizens calling attention to the deplorable condition of First and second avenues between Albert and Edward streets, due largely to the Canadian Yukon Lumber Company who appear to have a total disregard for the rights of the public on the thoroughfares.

John R. Patterson, ten years on the N.W.M.P., four of which have been spent in the Yukon, asks for a position on the city police force.

Matthew Scofield, also an ex-N.W.M.P., is likewise an applicant. James Palmer would like to be chief or he would serve merely as a constable. He has had eight years experience in similar service in London.

The bids for installing the water system were read, a more exhaustive account of which will be found elsewhere in this issue.

The following bills were presented: Electric Light Co. $255.00 Dawson Hardware Co. 233.90 Dawson Hardware Co. 69.40 Dawson Hardware Co. 8.50 Klondike Mill Co. 17.98 Third Avenue Stables 7.50 Reading Room, for April 300.00 Reading Room, for May 300.00 Palmer Bros. 153.00 McLennan & McFeely 186.63 Thord & Smith 30.75 N. D. Telegraph Co. 610.00 Telephone Co. 30.00 San Francisco Laundry 27.75 Geo. Brewitt 3.50

The report of the finance committee consisted only in the recommendation of the payment of the following bills:

Klondike Mill Co. $ 76.87 Klondike Mill Co. 251.87 Yukon Sawmill 1,107.78 Yukon Sawmill 456.70 J. P. O'Connor 110.50 McDonald Iron Works 350.00 McDonald Iron Works 4.50 C. Y. Lumber Co. 1,533.03 McLennan & McFeely 6.90

Murphy undertook to take a fall out of the streets committee by asking the city engineer by what authority he put in the improvements on Third avenue from King to Albert street, Mr. Rendell replying that it was in the contract.

"Then," said Murphy, "all I have to say is that it was a gross misappropriation of funds and the chairman of the streets committee who is continuously preaching economy shows poor judgment in countenancing such procedure. I should like, too, hereafter, to see all bills on the side of those for the fire department and labor to come before this council."

Wilson looked wise, smiled complacently and remarked that that portion of Third avenue which was referred to was in the contract and all had seen it. His worship poured oil over the troubled waters by saying that he did not regard the money spent as having been wasted. The street was in bad condition and at times practically impassable for horses.

Murphy gave notice of his intention to move an amendment to bylaw No. 4 which was later taken up and given its first, then its second and third readings. The amendment changes the hour of the meeting of the council from 8 to 8:30.

When a report from the police committee was called for Macdonald, chairman, said they were not ready, but would be so later in the week. That was Wilson's cue. He is bitterly opposed to a change in the present system, the substitution of a city police force for the N.W.M.P. and he moved to reconsider the report of the police committee filed and adopted at the last meeting. Murphy arose to a point of order, Wilson having voted against the adoption of the report he can not now move its reconsideration. The point was argued, referred to the city solicitor who said there was nothing in any of the bylaws to that effect. Such ruling was right according to parliamentary procedure but was not necessarily binding upon the acts of the council.

Murphy is against the reconsideration and wants to go on record as vigorously opposed to police matters as they now stand. Wilson called the council's attention to the notice already served on Sergeant Smith and definite action upon the matter could not be deferred but a day or two at most.

Macdonald said that it was necessary to have several caucuses this week and that probably at the first held he would be prepared to show the council where and how the proposed change would be most desirable. He favors the city having its own police system and wanted to be understood emphatically upon that point. If his scheme fails his committee might as well go out of business. They are never consulted and are apparently of but little or no use.

The final reading of the fire bylaw was deferred until the next meeting. Some of the dealers are objecting to the clause which requires the exclusive use of pipe of No. 24 gauge, saying such is unnecessary where the pipe is exposed to view.

His worship again referred to the practice of laundries emptying their dirty water into the open sewers and said something must be done in the matter immediately.

Murphy gave notice that at least two weeks hence he would move an amendment to section 4 of bylaw No. 8, which refers to the tying up of animals to telephone poles, etc.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Mr. Justice Dugas returned yesterday afternoon on the Columbian from a short trip to Skagway.

Mrs. W. B. Ross left this afternoon on the Columbian for a visit of several months in Seattle. She will return in September.

Ralph Boyker, the well known restaurateur formerly of this city, arrived this morning on the Victorian and is busy today renewing old acquaintances.

Dr. A. E. Wills and C. E. Carbonneau leave on the Sifton this evening for Paris on business connected with a big mining deal. They will be accompanied as far as the coast by H. T. Wills.

Both Working Hard.

Both Slavin and Burley fully realize that they are each against the hardest proposition of his ring life in the fifteen-round go that will take place in the A. B. hall Thursday night of next week, July 3rd, and each man is training as he has never trained before.

Slavin is determined that lack of training shall not be an obstacle this time and is going in to win back lost laurels.

Burley fully realizes that he had no "dead easy thing" before and that he will have much more to contend with this time. He is training as never before.

Betting so far is about even. Both men have backers who are willing to go their last dollar on the outcome.

Hydrophobia

Webster City, Iowa, June 14.—Death and four others suffering from hydrophobia, is the result of a dog's work at Ellsworth, a town near here. John Olson, the first victim, died Sunday at Chicago, where he had been taken for treatment. Last night Edward Severn, Alvin and Mrs. George Pearson and their daughter, all suffering from hydrophobia, were taken to Chicago. Little hope is entertained for their recovery.

The people in the country surrounding Ellsworth are panic-stricken. Other dogs have been bitten.
