Ice Cream Without Labor

Lots of people would have home-made ice cream every day if it wasn't for the lack of applicants for the "crank turning job." No need to go without it now—the XXth Century Ice Cream Freezer freezes ice cream while it stands—simply put the ice and salt around the mixture and leave it alone. When the cream is frozen as hard as desired it is removed easily and cleanly all ready to serve in slices.

NO CRANK TO TURN

It's as unnecessary to "turn a crank" to make good ice cream as it is to mould tall candles to get a light.

Don't smile—it's a positive fact.

The XXth CENTURY FREEZER freezes the cream while it stands still in a pail.

You simply put in the ice and salt and mixtures—and slip on the cover—no re-packing of the ice and salt is necessary, and there is none of that disagreeable "crank turning."

The whole secret lies in the material—Insulated Fibreware.

It is absolutely impervious to heat and cold and moisture—keeps all the cold in and all the heat out.

The cream is frozen in a long narrow cylinder, which allows in just the right size for a generous plateful, so there is no waste or "mussing" when serving.

Three sizes—three prices—$1.75, $2.25 and $3.50.

ANOTHER VICTORY

The Athens senior baseball team drove to Brockville on Saturday last and there met a representative Brockville team and defeated them by the close score of 18 to 15. In reporting the match the Times says: "A game of baseball at the lacrosse grounds Saturday afternoon between Athens and Brockville ended in a dispute, George Holmes of Athens, who officiated as umpire, did not give satisfaction to the Brockville team and from the beginning it was a constant wrangle. The climax was reached in the last half of the seventh inning with Brockville batting. Romeau had reached third and scored on what he considered a 'blocked' ball. The referee decided otherwise and called him 'out' as the catcher touched him before he reached the plate. Romeau would not have it that way, however, and positively refused to abide by the decision. The result was that play was suspended and Athens was declared a winner by 18 to 16. The teams were as follows:—
 Brockville—Frego c., Romeau p., Connolly 1b., Fleming 2b., Meryin 3b., Tighe ss., Thibedeau cf., Doran lf., Brodeau rf.
 Athens—Green c., G. Barber p., McIntosh 1b., F. Barber 2b., Lee 3b., Whaley ss., Ripley rf., Dillon cf., Barker lf.
 The return match will probably be played here next Saturday.

A DESTRUCTIVE STORM

Late on Wednesday evening last there was evidence that a storm was brewing, and shortly before midnight this section was visited by one of the most violent thunderstorms known in years. There was a heavy downpour of rain and a very high wind prevailed during the half hour that the storm lasted. Reports indicate that the lightning did more or less serious damage in several places.

At the home of Robert Powell, between Elgin and Sand Lake, the lightning struck a chimney, wrecked it, and passed down through the stove-pipes and out the stove doors. There were nine people sleeping in the house, and though the corner of a carpet was torn up and the plaster knocked off in five rooms, no one was injured or affected by the visitation. In one room a window was broken and plaster knocked off onto a bed where a boy was sleeping, but the boy slept on unconscious that anything had happened. The soot in the chimney was set afire, but nothing else was ignited. Passing into the cellar, the lightning pierced a hole through the stone foundation and killed a dog that happened to be in its path.

At the farm of Watson Davis, Glen Buell, lightning killed a horse and a bull. It struck a hay stack, 200 feet from the barn, and passing down one of the retaining sticks it killed the horse. Here the bolt divided, one stream striking a fence 20 feet away, passing through and marking a course for about 80 feet beyond; the other stream struck the same fence about 35 feet away, following it for about 20 ft., then jumped to a pile of cedar posts, slivering several, and passing along the surface of the ground it marked a zigzag course for a long distance finally disappearing about 170 feet from the stack and 30 feet from the barn. The bull was chained about 60 feet from the stack, and neither its body nor that of the horse showed any exterior mark of the lightning. The horse was valued at $100 and was insured.

The barn of Mr. John Borthwick, a mile east of Frankville, narrowly escaped destruction. The lightning struck the ridge-board at the end of the barn, ripping off about eight feet of the gable. In its passage down the studding (which it slivered) to the earth a 2x4 piece was split from a centre-post and a large flat stone, used for underpinning, was broken. There was no trace of fire. Mrs. Borthwick was looking out of the window at the time the bolt struck and received quite a shock, her arm being affected with numbness for some time.

A mare and a colt, valued at $130, were killed at the farm of Mr. Thomas Steacy, seven miles east of Gananoque.

THE FARMER FEEDS US ALL

Now here's to the old farmer With the hayseed in his hair, With his pants held with a bag-string, In his hat a great big tear, With his shirt all full of patches And his vest ripped up the back, For he works from morn till even For to school a lazy pack.

They say he is a greenhorn, But when e'er he comes to town, They find he has the hoodle And to them he planks it down. He buys of them machinery And he pays them mighty well, And they pile out on the sidewalk All the things they have to sell.

If the farmer gave up business, Then the deuce would be to pay, For with rake and hoe and shovel We would have to wend our way To the field of weeds and trouble With a great big patch of sweat, And when it came 'bout Christmas We'd be hooin' still, you bet.

Then we'd get up in the morning, In the woods we'd get the cows, We would chase them home and milk them And we'd have a dozen rows. When they switched a great long tail And swat us in the face, We would get a great big handspike And we'd club them off the place.

To the factory then we'd send our milk To make it into cheese, We'd mix in lots of skim milk, Yes, anything we'd please— Till the Babcock test it caught us, And we went and cursed our luck From the factory where they soaked us And it cost us forty bucks.

THE PRETTY NURSE'S MARRIAGE CHANCES.

(N. Y. Sun.) An observer who has kept count both through the newspapers and by private statistics says that the trained nurse stands head on the list of women who make good marriages through their business associations; that the private secretary comes next, with the professional housekeeper a little in her wake; that governesses and school-teachers appear to have a very slim chance, and that the saleswomen and women engaged in commercial callings bring up the end of the procession as regards the converting of employers into husbands. Occasionally an artist marries his model, a chemist weds the assistant in his laboratory, or a dentist takes for his life partner the young woman who helps him to keep office. But till now the trained nurse has made more havoc with the single-blessedness of her employers than has any other order of working women. Various reasons are assigned for her success in this particular field.

"It's the uniform," says one. "White is so becoming and gives a young woman such a look of spotless innocence. Besides, the cap is very fetching and a wonderful help to a girl who has not pretty hair or who has not the knack for arranging it prettily."

"It's because she appears when the victim is in a helpless condition. She helps him out of a physical hole, and natural gratitude serves to rivet his interest," says another. "And a third holds that it is because the nurse looks so radiant, is so healthy and capable that she proves seductive to the man she is nursing, or in whose family she is nursing. She understands the laws of hygiene, is superior to nerves, and is able to keep things in the household in a state of domestic peace. And she is a picture to incite any man's admiration."

But whatever the secret, the trained nurse continues her conquest, transforming her patients and her patients' uncles and fathers and brothers into bridegrooms with amazing facility. Even the nurse who is a professional man later, and who declares that the only advantage in nursing men patients is that they pay her better and have no long hair to comb, will veer around and suddenly annex some well-to-do patient for better or for worse. The apparently confirmed bachelor or the widower whose relatives believed sure to leave all his property to them will succumb to the magic of the trained nurse before the interested have time to object. And the married man who falls into good hands when she marries it is as though fate would make amends for the drudgery filled days of her probation at the hospital, or recompense her for the weary, protracted vigils and forbidding duties of the training school, the hard knocks that were hers before she got up to the $30-a-week and never-sitting-up-at-night salary of the certain training school read like this:

"Miss L., fine looking girl from Canada; one of the best nurses we ever had; married last month to a wealthy manufacturer in Connecticut. He was a widower of long standing, and she went there to nurse his nephew, who lived with him."

"Miss P., posy-checked, fair haired girl from Iowa. She leaves us next week for Pittsburg. The bridegroom is a young fellow she met while nursing his mother at Lakewood in the winter. He was summoned to the sick room, fearing the worst, and took to the pretty nurse at once. He is slightly younger than she, but adores her, and the mother is ready to give her blessing."

"Miss X., good looking brunette—engaged to a rich business man in a southern city. He was brought to the hospital in a serious condition and she was one of his nurses through a long period of illness and convalescence. They will be married as soon as the house which he is having built after his own plans is finished."

"Miss W., a plump little nurse, who had a maternal, winning manner, even when she first came to the school, has scored the best match of all she has married a Boston widower with the children, who has already settled much property on her besides giving her unbounded facilities for helping her own family, who are living in Virginia and are poor."

do it, and don't think you are old. No one nowadays is old. It is unfashionable.

The favorite sticking age for women is 25. This is proved by the fact that the number of women marrying themselves as between 20 and 25 is far larger than the number of girls returned 10 years before as between 10 and 15. The former must naturally be the survivors of the latter. Here is a little mystery of which the solution must be found in the intricate mazes of a woman's vanity.

The present King of England, when Prince of Wales, once asked a pretty woman her age. She replied: "Just 25."

Five years later he met her again and asked the same question. "Just 25," she again replied. The prince smiled and said: "Five years ago you made the same answer."

"All your highness," was the rejoinder, "surely you don't think I am a woman who says one thing to-day and another thing to-morrow?"

"She was quite right. Twenty-five is a very proper age at which to remain. There is no reason why a woman should be obliged to tell her age in court. If she is wise she will not. And what is your age, madam?"

"My own," she answered promptly. "I understand that, madam; I mean how old are you?"

"I am not old, sir," with indignation. "I beg your pardon, madam; I mean how many years have you passed?"

"None; the years have passed me." "How many of them have passed you?"

"All I have never heard of their stopping." "Madam, you must answer my question; I want to know your age."

"I don't know that the acquaintance is desired by the other side." "I don't see why you insist upon refusing to answer my question, unless it is to vex me. I am sure I would tell you how old I was if I were asked."

"But nobody would ask you, for everybody knows you are old enough to know better than to be asking a woman her age."

And the attorney passed on to the next question. The objection made by women to letting their age be known is not approved by the ladies of Japan, who actually display their cycle of years by the way in which they arrange their hair.

Girls from 9 to 15 wear their hair interwined with red crepe in a semi-circle around the head, the forehead being left free with a curl at each side. From the ages of 15 to 30 the hair is dressed very high on the forehead and gathered up at the back in the shape of a butterfly or fan, with twirlings of silver cord and perhaps a decoration of colored balls.

Beyond the milestone of 30 a woman twists her hair around a shell pin placed horizontally at the back of the head. Quite differently, again, a widow arranges her coiffure, and the initiated are able to tell at a glance whether or not she desires to marry again.—New York Sun.

SLEEPY SHEEP. Some Noted Instances of Sleeping in Church.

"Shut the doors!" cried Father Anny one day to the Suisse on duty, when he observed the Archbishop of Paris asleep during his discourse. "Shut the doors," the shepherd is asleep, the sheep will get out."

Good Things to Know. Leather bags can be freshened by rubbing with a cloth slightly moistened with salad oil. Polish with olive oil, heated together and cooled. Use upon the face when going to bed with a mask of this old linen or muslin put on to prevent coming off further protecting the pillows by an old sheet thrown over them. In the morning a bath of white castile soap and water brings the face out pure and softly tinted as a child's. This is not only the best, but one of the most harmless and cheapest preparations that can be procured.

LUMBERMAN TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE.

How Dodd's Kidney Pills Quickly Cured His Lame Back.

William N. Baskin, of Norwood, Gives Good Advice and Others are Following It With Splendid Results.

Norwood, Ont., July 6.—(Special.)—William N. Baskin, the well-known lumberman and railroad contractor of this place, tells of an experience with Dodd's Kidney Pills that is bound to be of interest to the public generally.

"For two years," says Mr. Baskin, "I was laid up with Lame Back and Kidney Disease. I would at times become weak and have to leave off work. People who knew me as lumberman and contractor on the C. P. R. and Parry Sound Railways knew how sick I was."

"Reading of wonderful cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills led me to try them. I used three boxes and am completely cured. I can say now I have not had any pains since I used Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Others who have followed Mr. Baskin's advice and tried Dodd's Kidney Pills report similar results. No form of Kidney Disease can stand before them.

A Relation by Marriage. "Children have queer ideas," said the happy father of a bright young boy to a friend the other day. "I don't, as a general thing, repeat the sayings or tell of the doings of that young one of mine, but really a thing he said to me just before Christmas is worth repeating."

"I don't know that the acquaintance is desired by the other side." "I don't see why you insist upon refusing to answer my question, unless it is to vex me. I am sure I would tell you how old I was if I were asked."

LONDON AND PARIS.

Differences are Strongly Marked and are Often Opposite.

The contrasts presented by Paris and London are rather amusingly put by Felix Peja, in the Matin, of the former city. He says: "Paris does most things with the right hand or at the right hand side; London follows the left."

"Parisian coachmen keep to the right, those of London to the left. Paris grows more absorption, London by expansion."

"Paris is built of stone, London of brick. Paris has high houses and narrow streets, London's buildings are low and its streets wide."

"The windows of Paris open like shutters, those of London are like guillotine doors."

"Paris is collectivistic, it dwells in houses which are really caravansaries; London is individualistic, each family having its own house."

"Paris has its portier, London its night key. Paris gets up early from its bed, which is against the wall; London arises late from its bed, which is in the centre of the room."

"Paris dines, London eats. London said d'aitaire, has 100 regions; Paris has but one sauce; Paris has 100 sauces and no religion at all."

"Paris is gay, London sad. London has too few soldiers. Paris has too many. The soldier in Paris wears blue tunic and pantaloons, while the London man-of-war is clad in a red coat and blue trousers."

"In Paris priests perform the marriage ceremony in London they marry themselves. In Paris the married women are free; in London when a woman marries she ceases to be, London more homicides."

"Paris works, London traffics. In Paris the street crowds fight by kicks, in London by blows of the fist."

"The proletariat of Paris refer to the pawnshop as 'my aunt,' while in London they say 'my uncle.'"

BINDER TALK. Some of the important features of the Massey-Harris Binder are: Folding Dividers—No bolts or nuts to unscrew. You merely release a spring on the outside divider and the binder inside one to fold them.

A youngster can do it easily and properly. The Dividers are very rigid in their working positions and remain at whatever angle they are folded over the conveyor canvas. Floating Elevators—They literally float. The grain cannot stick or choke in the Massey-Harris elevator, no matter how much it is heaped.

Simple Knower—Capable of adjusting to take up wear. Reel-Suited for handling the crops under all conditions of weather or land. It will pick up tangled or laid grain and lay it neatly on the table. It also handles long or short grain with splendid success.

Roller Bearings—Throughout the light on the draft and make the work easy for the horses. The beasts know when they are hitched to a Massey-Harris—it runs so easily.

Another Peaceful Blockade. Chicago Post.

She (indignantly)—Sir, what do you mean by putting your arm around my waist? He (meekly)—Why, I—er—thought you wouldn't object.

"Well, I do, and I'll give you just three hours in which to remove it."

ABOUT THE RED-HEADED GIRL. She Possesses Qualities of Which Her Darker Sister Cannot Boast. A champion of the red-headed girl has come to the front. Not that the girl in question is greatly in need of a champion. In nine cases out of ten she is abundantly able to care for herself without assistance from any source. But this advice of "the girl with the auburn hair" defies the world to dispute the truth of these five propositions:

1. Detect the odor of a previous high ball further, quicker and with more unerring instinct than any other being on earth.

2. Nail a lie and bore deeper holes with her penetrating eye in so doing than any other thing that has eyes.

3. Make any man of a liar look like thirty cents quicker and with less effort than any other living thing.

4. Break a man's morning nap and hustle him to build the fire in the range quicker, surer and with less back talk than any other style of woman-kind.

5. She is the only known species who can throw a missile with accurate aim and who does not endanger the lives of innocent by-standers.

Minard's Liniment Cures Gargot in Cows. A GREAT FRONTIER JUDGE.

He Sentenced 172 Men and 88 of Them Were Hanged. From a sketch of Judge I. C. Parker, in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for July, this is taken:

A man who sentenced 172 criminals to death, 88 of whom were hanged; an upright judge, holding sway for 21 years over 74,000 square miles of the most lawless territory in the United States; a stern, just judge, whose name became a terror to evil doers; a very kindly, sympathetic gentleman and public spirit; his despises were killed in fights with law-breakers.

A London commercial, who had a very ruddy complexion, after "working" Glasgow, had some time to wait for his train at St. Enoch station, and thought himself of a good joke.

"What is the name of this station, my good man?" he asked of a porter. "St. Enoch station, sir."

A few minutes later he met the same porter and said: "What did you call this station, porter?"

"St. Enoch's. Dae ye no' see the name above the hotel there?"

Looking out of the carriage window he spied his "green" friend and calling him over asked in his most polite tone:

"Would you kindly tell me the name of this station, porter?" "Gang awa, ye bacon-faced old buffer! Pit yer daft head in!" was the answer.

GOBBLING UP OUR LAND.

How the Canadian Northwest is Filling Up.

PHENOMENAL SALES THIS YEAR

Winnipeg, July 6.—The C. P. R. land department closed its fiscal year yesterday with its receipts exceeding by about $1,500,000 those of the year preceding, ending June 30, 1902. The increase in total acreage sold was correspondingly great, the aggregate for 1902 being over a million acres less than that of the year 1903, ending to-day. The monthly returns for June are even more favorable. The total acreage sold has increased nearly one-third over that of June, 1902, but notwithstanding the average price paid per acre has gone up over half a dollar, last year's price being about $3.50 per acre, while this year's averages about $4.07. A big proportion of this sold is between Battleford and Edmonton. The exact annual and monthly figures follow:

MAD MULLAH DEFEATED.

War Office Receives News of the Egyptian Victory. London, July 6.—The War Office to-day received a despatch from Col. Rochfort, one of the British officers serving with the Abyssinian force in Somaliland, which says the Abyssinians on May 31st, after a series of forced marches, struck the Mad Mullah's forces near Jeyd, surprising them at dawn and killing 1,000 spearmen, and capturing almost all their cattle and sheep and 1,000 camels. Col. Rochfort adds that the Abyssinians have effectively closed to the Mullah all the watering places south of the Gerlogubi-Galadi line, and he hopes they will soon be in contact with the British forces and thus be able to co-operate in the pursuit of the Mullah, who is retarded in his movements by the fact that he is crossing a waterless part of the country. The colonel's despatch was dated June 14th.

SUSPENDED ELECTRIC RAIL

To be Formally Opened by the Kaiser Shortly. FROM LONDON TO BRIGHTON. Berlin, July 6.—The Kaiser will open next week the only suspended electric railway in the world. It has been built between Barmen, Elberfeld and Volwinkel, and for part of the way it runs over the River Wupper, and for part through these three busy towns. It does not interfere with the street and road traffic and is cheaper than an ordinary line, as it can be slung over rivers and back streets and the only land required is that necessary to plant the supports of the structure. In the case of the Barmen-Elberfeld-Volvinkel line the conclusion was arrived at that an overhead railway over the River Wupper was the only kind permissible, as an underground line would have been too costly, and there was absolutely no room for a car line, railway or tramway. The question was whether the railway should be on the plan of the New York elevated railways, with the necessary girders placed in the bed of the river, or whether the Kaiser's plan of Engineer Langen should be adopted. The latter won the day. The promoters of the new system claim that the suspended railway, in consequence of its high and light structure, does not deprive the inhabitants of the houses along which it runs of either air, light, or free outlook. The inhabitants, who have shown much artistic feeling in their architecture, do not seem to object to the carrying of the suspended line through their towns. This may be accounted for by the fact that the suspended railway is much less noisy than competing systems. The collector of the suspended railways is not so noticeable as the aerial tramway, and the structure lies in amount, somewhat that coming from Bow and trolley systems. Besides aerial traction, surface railways also cause vibrations of much greater energy through the earth, and these, although they are not everywhere perceived, soon develop, in unfavorably situated buildings, tremblings of the walls and floors of more annoying character than the aerial disturbance. In respect to earth trembling, that caused by the suspended railway, is very markedly less than that caused from street tramways, whose speed and carrying capacity are much less while it is insignificant compared with that emanating from the ordinary surface heavy railway. The vibrations from the suspended railway do not reach the earth foundations, and except after passing through a girder and arch column; thus they are almost wholly dissipated. Since experimental trains have been running on the new line the system has been studied by an English company which has projected a similar line between London and Brighton, the cars to run at a speed of 100 miles an hour.

DEBATE IN BELGIAN CHAMBER

Brussels, July 6.—The debate in the Chamber of Deputies on the interpellation of M. Van der Velde, the Socialist leader, on the administration of the Congo Free State was resumed to-day. Baron de Favereux, Minister of Foreign Affairs, continued his defence of the administration. He said that the Free State, in consequence of its high and light structure, does not deprive the inhabitants of the houses along which it runs of either air, light, or free outlook. The inhabitants, who have shown much artistic feeling in their architecture, do not seem to object to the carrying of the suspended line through their towns. This may be accounted for by the fact that the suspended railway is much less noisy than competing systems. He was born in 1818, and during his career filled several positions about the court. In 1852 he was chief equerry and clerk marshal to the late Queen Victoria, master of the buck hounds 1856-58, and chamberlain to the Prince of Wales from 1873 to 1901. He was chairman of the Great Northern Railway from 1872 to 1895.

HIS WIFE HIS SURGEON.

Mrs. Logan Performs Operation for Appendicitis on Her Husband. Bethany, Ill., July 6.—Advice from China says that Dr. W. H. Logan, formerly of this city, has entirely recovered from an attack of appendicitis. The Logan has been missionaries in China for a number of years. Their station is 800 miles from the nearest physician. Lately Dr. Logan was attacked by appendicitis. Realizing that recovery lay in an operation involving the removal of the organ, he called his wife and imparted a diagnosis of his own case. Mrs. Logan, unassisted, but guided by the instructions given before her husband's relapse into unconsciousness under anæsthetics, performed the operation. Under skillful management of the wife-nurse, such favorable progress was made towards recovery in short time that Mrs. Logan determined to remove him where he could have the benefit of skilled surgeons. She, her husband and a young boy under took the journey of 800 miles

STILL WANTS N.-W. TRIAL.

Kent Reported by Prison Official as Well Behaved. Rochester, July 6.—Leland Dorff Kent, sentenced for kidnaping Ethel Dingle, was visited in Auburn Prison yesterday by his attorney, Mr. Raines, who was told that Kent was in every way a model prisoner, and had already received two promotions for good conduct. The prison officials say his intelligence and readiness to perform all tasks assigned him have won the good will of his keepers. When taken to Auburn, Kent was placed in the rear ranks of one of the marching companies, and has since been promoted to the front rank and is about to be placed in command of a company. He was first assigned to work in the broom factory, but was recently transferred to the basket factory. Kent has grown very thin during his short confinement. The event will be started soon, and if a new trial is secured it will be held in some county other than Monroe, as Mr. Raines believes his client could receive fair treatment at the hands of a Monroe County judge. Mr. Raines said he had discovered new evidence, which, he believes, will be of material benefit to the case. Kent's parents have visited him every visiting day since he was taken to Auburn.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS

Stories of Remarkable Cures That Spread Faith. GREATEST GAIN ON RECORD. Boston, Mass., report: Gratifying in the highest degree to the 8,000 Christian Scientists who crowded McLean's Hall yesterday afternoon was the evidence of remarkable growth of the church, as shown in the annual reports. The clerk of the mother Church reported an increase in membership of 3,696 the last year, making the total membership 27,796. This increase is the largest for one year in the history of the Church. There are 566 organized churches, a gain of 55 during the year. The number of societies not organized, but holding regular meetings, is 207, a gain of nineteen. Particular significance was attached by the followers of Mrs. Eddy to the announcement of the death rate among members of the Church as being but 2.24 per 1,000, against 18.73 per 1,000 in the city of Boston, 1902. The supreme hour of the convention came when representative healers from all sections of this country and Europe gave reports of the condition of the faith and told of remarkable cures. One man declared that he had cured a cancer of fifteen years' standing, where the patient, a woman, had been operated upon four times by the surgeons. The speaker gave the absent treatment. The fame of the cure traveled one hundred miles and brought five hundred converts. Another speaker reported a cure of necrosis of the bone, where portions of the bone had dropped out at the hip and ankle. He said the patient was now as well as ever, save for a slight limp. According to the reports Christian Science is now gaining faster in the west than in the east. One report, which was received with enthusiasm, was that of a growth of two hundred per cent. in the year, and showed that the Christian Science text book had been circulated in Russia, Hungary, Bavaria, Italy, Holland, Belgium and South Africa. Announcement was made that the Rev. Irving C. Tomlinson, of Concord, N. H., had been elected as new president of the mother Church. This despatch from Mrs. Eddy, pastor emerita, was read: "Give my sincere thanks to my dear Church for this loving and comprehensive despatch." (Sunday's message.)

UNIVERSITY FEDERATION.

Trinity Will Join With the University at Toronto. ONLY ONE MEDICAL FACULTY. Although the federation of Trinity University with Toronto University is practically an assured fact, those conducting the negotiations have so far deemed it wise to do so in as quiet a manner as possible. Yesterday, however, a former member of Trinity corporation talked freely about it, and this is about the way he stated the situation. The proposition submitted by Toronto University to Trinity corporation at the recent meeting, was in effect as follows: Trinity University is to become affiliated with Toronto University, all degree-conferring powers to be exercised in the Chancellor of Toronto University. Trinity College is to have the right to teach the doctrines and carry on the worship of the Church of England. Lectures in arts at Trinity are to be counted as university lectures, and lectures in scientific subjects are to be duplicated at Trinity, provided there are enough students sufficient accommodation and suitable apparatus. Trinity University is to surrender her autonomy, and regulate her scholastic year, according to Toronto. Trinity medical faculty to be incorporated with Toronto medical faculty. The fees of Trinity University are to be reduced from $65 to $35 a year. This plan of federation was first submitted to the medical faculty, and while the dean and professors were long to assist at the obsequies of Trinity medical, they realized that federation was the only solution of the problem, and so accepted the proposition. Day Details to Settle. The day came before Trinity corporation last week, and the general principle was endorsed, the details to be considered at a meeting to be held on the 9th of July. The advantages of federation to Trinity will be mainly the ability to continue until the old name and the old methods, modeled on those of English universities, the education of the young men of the Church of England. At the same time the students will have all the advantages which a thoroughly equipped modern centre of learning can provide. Toronto will gain in prestige and in cash. The latter gain will be about as follows: Fees for conferring degrees, say $4,000; revenue from students of Trinity medical faculty, about $8,000, or a total of about $12,000 per annum.

THE POPE SEEMS WELL.

Aged Pontiff Took a Drive of an Hour and a Half. Rome, July 6.—The best proof that there is something wrong with the matter with the Pope's health is that he descended to the Vatican gardens this morning for the first time this year, and was driven about for an hour and a half. The Pontiff seemed to enjoy the open air immensely, and noticed the changes made in the gardens since last year. He was specially interested in the growth of the vines planted by himself and made inquiries regarding the prospects of the vintage. When the Pope returned to his apartments he was not in the least fatigued and received several bishops including the Right Rev. John Rooney, conductor apostolic vicar of Cape Town, Cape Colony.

THE MODEL REUNION

Owing to the marked success of the Model classes of 1901 and 1902, under the able management of Mr. C. Ross McIntosh, and the many happy acquaintances formed during the two terms, it was decided by both teacher and pupils to hold a reunion at Charleston Lake on July 2nd, 3rd, and 4th. This event was looked forward to with bright anticipations, and, according to arrangements made by the committee having the matter in hand, about forty modelites assembled at the school on Thursday morning last at 8 o'clock. They were conveyed to the lake in rigs engaged from Mr. F. Bullis, and safely arrived at their destination, the cottage of Mr. S. Y. Bullis. Boats had been rented from Mr. Smith and many other provisions made to add to the comfort and enjoyment of the party.
A delightful time was spent in boating, bathing, fishing, and talking over the many occurrences and experiences of the last two years in the different schools. Gramophones music went on continuously for three days and two nights, the favorite selection of all being "Did anybody see our cat?" The line of the familiar poem may well come in here—"No rest till morn when youth and pleasure meet."
Mr. B. Falkner went down on Friday afternoon and took a photograph of the crowd, first at the cottage and then in boats on the lake. The most prominent feature of the picture was the "old cat" in reality, held by Mr. B. Lyons, a board placed in front bearing the words of the favorite piece.
The weather was grand and the beautiful nights were in their favor. The days sped all too swiftly, and it was decided to make the reunion an annual affair, next year for all to meet at Westport and enjoy themselves in like fashion for a week on the Rideau.
The chaperons were Mrs. Beach and Mrs. Evertz, who were very kind and accommodating.
All enjoyed the pleasure of having

Mr. McIntosh with them, and hoped he might remain here to enjoy with them many more such happy events.
All returned home on Saturday, and as such a delightful time was spent, very many will avail themselves of the opportunity to meet in 1904.

The Hot Weather Test

Makes people better acquainted with their resources of strength and endurance.
Many find that they are not so well off as they thought and that they are easily enervated and depressed by the heat.
What they need is the tonic effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla which strengthens the blood, promotes refreshing sleep, overcomes that tired feeling, creates appetite.

A Sustaining Diet

These are the enervating days, when, as somebody has said, men drop by the sunstroke as if the Day of Fire had dawned. They are fraught with danger to people whose systems are poorly sustained; and this leads us to say, in the interest of the less robust of our readers, that the full effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla is such as to suggest the propriety of calling this medicine something besides a blood purifier and tonic, say a sustaining diet. It makes it much easier to bear the heat, assures refreshing sleep, and will without any doubt avert much sickness at this time of year.

THE BRIDE OF DEATH

Married on Wednesday, taken ill and died on Sunday, buried on Tuesday—such was the fate of Gertrude Knowlton, of Chantry.
A week ago we announced that the marriage was taking place on that day of two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Knowlton, Chantry—Gertrude to Mr. W. T. Jenks, of Oregon, and Edith to Dr. W. F. Phillips of Boston. The ceremony was solemnized in the presence of about sixty guests, in the home of the bride's parents amidst beautiful and appropriate floral decorations, by Rev. Mr. Garrett, of Delta, assisted by Rev. Mr. Walker, a returned missionary.
After the ceremony a dainty tea was served, and the happy wedding pairs started on a brief trip, which included a tour of the Thousand Islands and a week's sojourn on an island in the Rideau, a mile and a half from Portland.
They were occupying Mr. Gallagher's cottage on this island when about 3 a. m. on Sunday Mrs. Jenks complained of a soreness in her throat and a doctor was brought to the cottage from Portland. Her disease was declared to be diphtheria of a most virulent type, and despite all that medical skill could do she died the same day at 11 a. m. The authorities at once took steps to protect the public health by quarantining the home of Mrs. Toffey in Portland, at which some of the party had visited, and all upon the island.
At seven o'clock on Tuesday morning the remains were conveyed to Phillipsville cemetery and interred.
This death so sudden, so unexpected, so sad in all its particulars, has deeply stirred the hearts of all friends and acquaintances, and those so sorely bereft have the heartfelt sympathy of everybody in their great sorrow.

Quebec, July 4.—Hon. Thomas H. Duffy, Treasurer of the Province of Quebec, was stricken with apoplexy while in a barber's chair at 10 o'clock yesterday. He was removed to his rooms in the hotel and doctors were hastily summoned, but in spite of all they could do, he passed away at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The Minister had been ailing for several months.

Hon. Henry Thomas Duffy was born in the Township of St. Denis, Quebec, and was educated at the St. Francis College, Richmond and at McGill University. He practiced law in Sweetsburg, of which town he was elected Mayor. He has been prominently identified with the Brome County Temperance Alliance. Mr. Duffy unsuccessfully contested Brome for the Legislature, general election of 1888, but was returned at the general election of 1897, and on the formation of Mr. Parent's Cabinet in May was called to the office of Commissioner of Public Works. He was a member of the Church of England. He married Miss Mountain of Sweetsburg, Que.

THE POPE'S END IS NEAR

His Holiness Caught Cold in the Chest After Friday's Drive.

Developed Into Severe Dynamic Pneumonia, and His Condition Became So Critical That He Was Warned and the Last Sacraments of the Church Were Administered Sunday Night—Physicians at 11 p. m. Sunday Thought He Might Survive Days.

Rome, July 6.—It appears that the condition of the Pope became suddenly worse after Friday's drive in the Vatican gardens, when notwithstanding the fact that temperature was 96 degrees Fahrenheit, he caught cold, and it settled on his chest and head, producing shortly afterwards diffuse bronchial catarrh, accompanied by a slight cough, thirst, lassitude and watery eyes. Fortunately up to the present no fever has developed, not even increased heat, and there has been no acceleration of the pulse which is rather weak.

During the afternoon the strength of the Pontiff began to fail him so rapidly, and his condition became so critical, that it appeared that only a few more hours of life remained to him. It was, therefore, deemed wise to advise him of his grave condition, and this was done with tender precaution. Pope Leo was thus prepared for his last communion, which was administered last night with the participation of all the cardinals now in Rome and the whole of the Pontifical court.

The solemn, yet gorgeous, ceremony of administering the last sacrament took place at the bedside of Pope Leo. The central figure was the dying Pontiff, whose long life's journey is nearly over calmly preparing to enter the dark valley. His pale and emaciated face, almost as white as the pillows on which it rested, showed little sign of life, except the keen, glittering eyes, always his most striking feature. Around the bed were grouped the noble knights of the Order of the Holy Sepulchre, in their picturesque medieval costumes of black with white ruffs; 25 cardinals, all the members of the Sacred College were present in Rome, stately and venerable figures in their sweeping crimson robes, the whole forming a scene of rich, yet subdued color, a fit subject for the brush of Rembrandt. The whole affair is called the Pontifical family, headed by Cardinal Rampolli and including all the private chamberlains, was there.

Then came the touching prayers for a passing soul and part of the Gospel, the Lord's passion. In their knees, they all fell on their faces, the Pontiff raising his almost transparent finger with a feeble effort, pronounced in scarcely audible words his benediction on the sacred casket and on all present and then sank back on the pillows. There was scarcely a tearful eye in the whole assemblage, and the sobs of the Pope's relatives were plainly heard. Deep silence followed, only broken now and again by a murmured prayer of pious ejaculation.
The condition of His Holiness at 11 p. m. yesterday though still grave was not as serious as late in the afternoon.
"God's will be done. Who would have believed it, when only ten days ago I was presiding over a public consistory?" murmured feebly Pope Leo as he felt himself late last evening passing into a state of unconsciousness about 3 o'clock a. m., when excruciating pain brought the dying Pontiff back to consciousness. He groaned and complained of pains on both sides of the thorax.
The interior of the Vatican during the early hours of this morning were filled with the conviction that the passage of Pope Leo is very near.

AS IT AFFECTS CANADA.

New England Cattle Are Excluded From Britain by Order.
London, July 4.—A new order of the Board of Agriculture was gazetted yesterday, revising previous orders, and prohibiting the landing in Great Britain of any hogs from the United States, besides prohibiting the importation of cattle from New England. The order goes into effect Aug. 1.
As It Affects Canada.
Toronto, July 4.—According to William Harris, the new order as it regards hogs will have no effect on the Canadian market.
The prohibition of cattle from the New England States is a surprise. It is a result of the non-success of the measures for stamping out the dreaded foot and mouth disease. In so far as the order affects Canadian dealers in cattle, it is a warning to be extremely careful that the disease is kept out of Canadian cattle, as it stifles the strict feeling of the British Government in dealing with the question.

RAMPANT RACE RIOTS.

Evansville, Ind., in the Hands of a Bloodthirsty Mob.
Evansville, Ind., July 6.—At one o'clock this morning this city is in the hands of a mob. Troops have been ordered out by the Governor to protect the jail, which is surrounded by 2,000 men. Two negroes have been killed in the race riot, which is rampant.
Three business men have just been fired on, and are now organizing an armed party to exterminate the negro mob.
The race riot last night was the immediate outcome of the shooting of Patrolman Massey Friday night by Lee Brown, a negro.
3:30 a. m.—The mob has broken into the jail. The mob swarmed into the jail and began a search for the murderer. A mob of 200 white men heavily armed is now marching through the streets of the city, where negroes would likely be found. Shots are heard constantly.

HER FATHER'S FATE.

Little Three-Year-Old Girl's Story Against Her Mother.
Ottawa, July 6.—Mrs. Lalonde and a man named Desrosiers were arrested by the Ottawa police in consequence of queer reports in circulation. The woman and her husband formerly lived on St. John's Island in the Georgian Bay, and Desrosiers was a boarder with them, taking out in board a debt that Lalonde owed him. The Lalondes had a three-year-old child, and the little one is alleged to have stated that while crossing to the mainland her father was thrown overboard and drowned. The police were unable to obtain any further evidence to justify them in detaining Mrs. Lalonde and Desrosiers, but are looking into the matter.

Argonauts Win at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 6.—The annual people's regatta was held Saturday on the national course on the Schuylkill River. There was a swift current, due to recent rains, and the time was generally fast. Only one record, however, was broken, the honor going to the Argonaut (Rowing Club) of Toronto, which won the senior eight in 7m. 30 1-2s. The previous record was 7m. 39s, held by the Vesper Club's Paris crew.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Proceedings in the House of Commons For Week Ending July 4—Government Read From Moncton to Winnipeg.

Ottawa, June 29.—The House today considered the bill guaranteeing the bonds of the Canadian Northern Railway. The amendments made by the Senate to the bill concerning the settlement of railway labor disputes, and the bill providing $3,000,000 loan to Montreal Harbor Commissioners was read a third time. The House also considered in committee the bill to amend the Postoffice Act.

Ottawa, June 30.—Mr. Blair's Railway Commission Bill was again considered in committee today. The Minister promised to meet the wishes of the commercial travelers, and he also made explanations concerning the tariff of charges, of which there was a maximum and a special tariff. In Committee of Supply, on the Marine estimates, the militia system, and the Minister of Militia and the Finance Minister promised that provision would be made to improve the Canadian militia in the supplementary estimates.

Ottawa, July 2.—In the House today Mr. Fitzpatrick introduced a bill amending the Penitentiaries Act, the effect of which he said would be a saving of $7,500 a year. The Canadian Northern Railway Bill, guaranteeing its bonds to the extent of $9,000,000, was read a third time as amended in committee, and passed. The House in Supply passed most of the supplementary estimates for public works and adjourned at midnight.

Ottawa, July 3.—Mr. Haggart, at the opening of the House to-day asked the Minister of Railways whether there was any truth in the statement published by The Toronto Globe to the effect that the Government would build a railway as a Government work from Moncton to Winnipeg via Quebec, and lease it to the Grand Trunk Pacific for no rental for the first five years, for the net surplus over receipts for the second five years, and for the remaining forty years 3 per cent. on the cost of construction, with running rights to be accorded other roads by agreement. Sir Frederick Borden said that no authoritative statement had been given on this matter, and none would be given for a few days. Sir William Mulock's bill amending the Postoffice Act was read a third time and passed, as was that of Hon. Sydney Fisher respecting process butter. The drydock subsidy bill was also passed. The Collingwood dock will cost $400,000, and upon this the Government subsidy will be $12,000 a year for the next 20 years. The items for a direct steamship service to South Africa, $80,000 a year, and $28,338 for the Australasian service, were passed, and the House adjourned.

No Disguise

We don't consider it necessary for us to continually boast of virtues. The faultless goods we handle are a stamping virtue in themselves. In their merits we pride and congratulate ourselves on the success we have obtained—mainly due to them.

But we won't attempt to disguise our faults, which became known through the loud criticism of our competitors.

They are as such—

Never satisfied with our present enormous trade of our generous patrons we constantly greed to create new custom by offering

His Last Hope Realized

(From the Sentinel, Goba, Mont.)

In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers in 1889, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April. During his traveling about and afterwards his camping upon his claim, he encountered much bad water, which, together with the severe heat, gave him a severe diarrhoea which it seemed almost impossible to check, and along in June the case became so bad he expected to die. One day one of his neighbors brought him one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a last hope. A big dose was given him while he was rolling about on the ground in great agony, and in a few minutes the dose was repeated. The good effect of the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. That one little bottle worked a complete cure and he cannot help but feel grateful. The season for bowel disorders suggests this item. For sale by J. P. Lamb & Son.

The Rose and Lily Dagger

A TALE OF WOMAN'S LOVE AND WOMAN'S PERFDY

"No," she said gravely. "It is not a fit plaything for such sweet and pure hands as yours. It has shed blood—oh, forgive me!"

Elaine went down with the dagger in her hands. She had almost forgotten it in the sudden rush of emotion which the blind man's exclamation had roused, and she stopped at the case and laid the dagger on the top, intending to tell the marquise where she had put it, and ask him to lock it up.

The gentlemen had gone into the drawing-room during her absence, and as soon as she entered, Elaine saw the marquise's eyes looking at her with a lover's fond questioning.

But he did not approach her for some minutes. He knew that any attention he paid her would embarrass her, and with the tenderest delicacy he avoided attracting attention to their new relationship.

He asked Lady Blanche to sing, and stood beside her at the piano, dutifully turning over the music, and lingering even after the two songs were sung. Then he passed to the other side of the room, to speak to some of his guests. The major was not present, he having gone to the billiard-room to play a match-game.

Lady Blanche left the piano, where she had been touching the notes in a dreamy, mechanical fashion, and going to the window pulled the curtain a little aside.

"What a lovely night!" she said. "Come and look, Elaine."

Elaine rose and went to her. "It is the half-moon," she said. "Is that Mars out there?"

Lady Blanche insisted on answering the question, whereupon:

"Can those old women here us, do you think?" Elaine looked at her with surprise.

"Can they hear us? No, I should think not. But why?"

"Well—where have you been all this time? One of the maids brought a message for you."

"For me?" said Elaine. "Yes, your servant—what is her name?"

"Bridget?" "Yes, that was it—Bridget wants to see you particularly."

"Bridget wants to see me? Where is she in the servants' hall?" asked Elaine.

"No, no," replied Lady Blanche languidly, as if the matter were a nuisance. "She wants you to meet her at the bridge—there is a bridge isn't there?"

"Yes, yes," said Elaine quickly. "But I don't understand! Why didn't she come up to the Castle to the servants' hall?"

"My dear Elaine, how can I tell?" retorted Lady Blanche with affected impatience. "I don't be frightened; but I should say, if you ask me, that there is something in the matter. Something has happened at home!"

"At home, at the cottage?" said Elaine, anxiously. "Where is papa?" and she looked round, as if intending to go to him.

Lady Blanche took her arm and held it lightly, but still firmly enough to detain her.

"I wouldn't worry the major, if I were you," she said.

"Of course, I don't know why the girl wants to see you; but you may be sure it is about something she doesn't want the major to hear of. Perhaps she has broken something, or has had an accident of some kind."

Elaine smiled.

SICKLY BABIES

Weak, sickly babies are a great trial to mothers. They need constant care both night and day, and soon wear the mother out. Baby's little stomach is the cause of most of the trouble: it is very weak, and in consequence very easily upset. Baby's Own Tablets will cure all baby troubles. They are mildly laxative and give prompt relief. Concerning them Mrs. H. T. Bal'our, Omenset, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach troubles and constipation, from which my little girl suffered, and they entirely cured her. They produced sound, refreshing sleep, and I regard them as indispensable in any home where there are little ones."

Mothers from all parts of Canada write in favor of Baby's Own Tablets, proving the claim that they are the very best medicine for all the minor ills of infants and young children. Guaranteed to contain no opiates. Price 25 cents a box at all druggists or direct from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"It is like Bridget!" she said; "and she will be waiting at the bridge for—?"

"Is waiting?" remarked Lady Blanche casually. "It struck ten a few minutes ago. I suppose you will leave her there, to get cold and better sense."

"Oh, no; poor Bridget!" said Elaine with a smile. "Must some of your maids wait for her?"

"What a pity it is that she should be so foolish! What can have happened, I wonder! Ten o'clock. It is a lovely night, and it is not far. Will you come with me, Blanche?"

Lady Blanche started slightly, and bit her lip.

"My dear girl, I should be delighted, but I dare not face the night air. I've got the beginning of a nice cold already. I must have caught it riding on that hideous coach to-day. Besides, that I expect your maid would be frightened by the glare of her light."

"I can't do that," said Elaine, with a laugh. "Poor Bridget! she would never forgive me."

Lady Blanche's thin lips curled contemptuously.

"Well, if you have so much consideration for her, you had better run down to the bridge. Perhaps the marquise will catch you," she added, with a barely concealed sneer.

Elaine's face crimsoned at the vulgar-ity.

"Thank you for telling me," she said, with a quiet dignity of rebuke that made Lady Blanche wince—and hate her with a keener hatred. "I will go down to the bridge and send her home."

"Very well," said Lady Blanche, shrugging her shoulders indifferently. "If any of these old woman ask where you are, I will say you have gone to your room."

"There is no need for that," said Elaine, quietly. "Please say that I shall not be many minutes."

She left the room by a door near the window, and taking up a shawl which she had left on the stand in the lower hall, went to the door opening on to the terrace.

No one saw her leave the house, and no one, excepting Lady Blanche knew that she had quite dignified of rebuke that made Lady Blanche wince—and hate her with a keener hatred.

"Where is Elaine?" asked Lady Dornan, blinking sleepily at her.

"Gone to her room," replied Lady Blanche. "She said she was tired, and wanted to slip away without any fuss. It has been rather a trying day for her, dear girl."

Elaine sped along the terrace and entered the shrubbery. The moon was obscured now and again by the light summer clouds, and the shrubbery at such moments was rendered dark and "rich in shadows." But Elaine was not nervous. Indeed, she was too full of wonder and conjecture as to the reason which Bridget had for this secret "midnight" visit for any other feeling to find room in her mind.

It did not occur to her that the future Marchioness of Nairne was doing an undignified and improper thing in going out alone at ten o'clock at night to meet a servant. She thought only of poor, blundering, middle-witted Bridget, and the possible wonder might be worrying her.

She ran rather than walked the smooth path and, rather breathless, reached the bridge.

The moon, in its semi-circle, threw a pale cold light upon the water, and upon the trees, which cast deep shadows in the murmuring stream.

A dense, profound air of solitude seemed to hover like an impenetrable cloud over the spot, and it affected Elaine unpleasantly. She stood upon the bridge, and peered across it to the opposite bank. No one was in sight.

For the first time a sense of having acted unwisely smote her. But she had come, and the only thing to do was to see Bridget, urge her to hasten home, and run back to the Castle.

But where was Bridget? She stood for a moment silently peering round, then she called, in rather a shaky voice:

"Bridget?" No answer came; and she was turning away, resolved to return to the Castle at once, without waiting another moment, when there seemed to spring up from under her a man's form. It had climbed up from the bank below the bridge, noiselessly, ghostlike.

and as she shrank back she still looked round for Bridget.

"Have you—have you seen our servant, Bridget, Captain Sherwin?" were her first words. "I expected to see her here; she sent a message to say that she wished to see me."

"I have not seen her," she is not here," he replied, his eyes shifting from her face even in the semi-darkness, "and I must have seen her if she had been here, for I have been waiting for some time—waiting to see you."

"To see me!" said Elaine. "How did you know that I should be here—?" His weak face flushed.

"I thought that as it is such a beautiful night you might be tempted to come out and—"

Elaine drew her shawl round with an unmistakable gesture of preparing to go.

"Of course, I cannot remain with you," she said, gently, but firmly. "I came out to meet Bridget, and—"

Good-night, Captain Sherwin, cannot you guess what I wish to see me, when you have to say to me, and—indeed, I must go," she broke off, for she had taken a couple of steps which placed him in front of her, and so blocked the bridge.

"I beg you to wait—to wait only a few minutes," he said. "I have to say something to you that it is my duty to tell you. And he still barred her way."

Elaine colored and her eyes flashed.

"You are preventing me from passing," Captain Sherwin, she said in a low voice that trembled with indignation—not fear.

"I know it," he responded huskily, and with a mixture of shame and bravado. "I know what I am doing. You—you have driven me to take this course. You have avoided me—separated yourself from me—"

Elaine stopped him. "I have not avoided you," she said with a quiet dignity of rebuke. "And I do not wish to be unkind—but you have no right to suggest that we have ever been more than acquaintances, Captain Sherwin."

"No!" he said, quickly, his face flushing, his eyes moving to the right and left of her, and avoiding her direct steady regard. "We were, or we should have been, more, if it had not been for—"

"Do not mention my name yet. Not until I have heard from your own lips that this rumor is true."

Elaine was silent a moment.

"What is it you wish to know?" she asked.

She disliked this man who was so cowardly enough to waylay her alone, and at night; but she could not help pitying him, and a woman-like pity, made her relent.

"I want to know if it is true that you are engaged to the Marquis of Nairne?" he replied huskily, and he spoke the name as a man does who both fears and hates the person who bears it.

"You have no right to ask me such a question, Captain Sherwin," she said in a low voice, but one that made their fathered waters. "But it is true, I am engaged to marry Lord Nairne."

He put his hands to his lips, and plucked at them for a moment in silence; then he said:

"I thought it was a lie. I would not believe it. You to marry him! Do you know what he is?"

"Pray let me pass, Captain Sherwin," she said, indignantly. "Can you think for—"

"I mean to hear you speak thus of the man whose wife I am to be. Let me pass, please."

"Wait!" he said. "I beg your pardon. I did not mean to offend you. Wait; I implore you. I ask you for your own good—"

"It cannot be for my good that I should remain arguing with you to no purpose. I will respond."

"Can you not come up to the Castle to-morrow, and say what you have to say to my father?"

"No!" he retorted. "I will not cross that man's threshold."

"You prefer to utter vague slanders behind his back," said Elaine, her indignation getting the better of her patience.

He winced and stood gnawing his under lip.

"You think I am afraid of him?" he said, between his teeth.

"I think—but it is not of much consequence what I think," said Elaine, controlling herself. "I cannot, will you think quickly. I will not, and if you still persist in compelling me, I shall be compelled to call for assistance."

"Do not," he said, half defiantly, half angry, "I have to say to you alone. For your own sake, for the sake of others. If you call, I shall remain and tell what I know to any one who comes within your ear, and the consequences. If you will listen to me—oh, why will you not? You know that—that I love you, that I love you better than this—this man can ever love. There is nothing against my character, nothing while he—everybody will tell you that he is not fit to be your husband. Oh, Miss Elaine—Elaine—won't you listen to me? I will take my word? I don't wish to tell you what I know: I don't wish to injure him, though he has insulted me grossly. If you will only believe me and break off the engagement—"

SHAKY NERVES

Sufferers from Nervous T. cables Are in a State of Continuous Torture—Suggestions as to How the Trouble Can be Overcome.

When your nerves are shaky your self-control is shattered—you will power is broken. Sudden sounds startle you; your temper is irritable; your hands tremble; there is weakness in your knees; your skin is pale and parched; you are restless at night, and tired when you wake. It all comes from nervous exhaustion, perhaps due to overwork and worry. Late hours, hot days and want of sleep, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only cure. They make new, rich, red blood. They brace up jangled nerves and strengthen tired faculties. They give health and energy to dull, weary, despondent men and women. Strong proof is offered in the case of Mrs. Wm. Westcott, of Seaford, Ont., who says: "For a long time my health was in a bad state. I was subject to nervousness, dizziness and nervous exhaustion. My appetite was poor, and I was so badly run down I could not stand the least exertion. I tried several medicines, but they did not help me any. One of my neighbors strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before the second box was finished the turning point for my better health had been reached, and by the time I had used a half dozen boxes, to the surprise of my friends and neighbors I was again enjoying good health, and have since been able to do my own work without anything to equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when the system is run down."

What the pills have done for others they will do for you, if you will give them a fair trial. Sold by all medicine dealers, or sent post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

face; for your sake, and to prevent the scandal that would injure you as well as him I love, you too much for that."

Elaine laughed, a laugh that cut him like a stroke from a whip. Indeed, she wished to cut him now; she wished to punish him.

"Love!" she repeated, contemptuously. "You must think me as mad as yourself, Captain Sherwin. I am not a child, and I am not a fool. You are incapable of understanding it, you blaspheme the sacredness of the word. Pray keep such speeches for those who may value them for their own sake."

"I understand—I know what you mean," he broke in vehemently. "You—you are thinking of—of Fanny Inehley—"

Elaine repeated the name mechanically in her agitation; she had almost forgotten it.

"You think because—because I have amused myself with her that I care for her? Care for—care for her!" he laughed contemptuously. "She is nothing to me; she is no more than—the leaf on the stream there."

Elaine made a gesture of impatience and indifference.

"I tell you the truth," he went on, eagerly, hurriedly. "People have been telling lies of me and her, I assure you. I implore you not to believe them. If—I have shown any attention to Fanny Inehley—"

Elaine broke in, with a stamp of her foot.

"Captain Sherwin, your friendship or flirtation with Miss Inehley has no interest for me. Let me pass—"

"But I must tell you, I will," he persisted. "I say if I ever paid her any attention, it was only that I might hear of you, that I might see someone who was near you. As to anything further between us—he laughed huskily. "I should be mad indeed to think seriously of the niece of the Marquis of Nairne's house-keeper."

"Let me pass—let me pass!" said Elaine. "Captain Sherwin, I have listened to you. Be satisfied. Nothing you can say against me will heighten her of you, that I might see someone who was near you. As to anything further between us—he laughed huskily. "I should be mad indeed to think seriously of the niece of the Marquis of Nairne's house-keeper."

"I know that nothing I can say against him will move you," he retorted, plucking at his lips and eyes and under his half-closed eyes, "but if I can prove something—"

"I will not listen—I care nothing for anything you can say or prove," she broke in. "Captain Sherwin, I advise you for your own sake to allow me to return to the Castle. Lord Nairne has once before protected me from your impertinence."

His face went livid.

"I am sorry," he exclaimed. "You remind me of that! By God, I'm half inclined to let you go! Yes! Go! I won't detain you any longer. Go and marry the fellow. I shall have my revenge on him, at least."

He stood aside and leaned against the rail, with folded arms and agitated face.

THE CURING OF HAY.

Since the hay crop is likely to be light this year, it is doubly important that it be handled to the best possible advantage and cut and cured in such a way as to secure the largest amount of nutrients in the most digestible and palatable form.

To this end it is well at this season to bear the following facts in mind: Early cut hay is relatively richer in flesh-forming elements; it is more palatable and digestible; it has a sweeter aroma; but it has the disadvantage of being much more difficult to cure. Grass, as it approaches maturity, gains considerably in digestibility and palatability; it consists of starch and sugar, which is valuable to the feeder; and part consists of crude fibre, which decreases digestibility and renders the hay less palatable. Early cut hay is more valuable per ton than late cut; but a larger amount of digestible nutrients per acre is obtained by later cutting. Late cut hay has the advantage of being more easily and rapidly cured, thus diminishing not only the labor but also the risk of loss in harvesting.

Early cut hay is especially valuable for sheep, calves and dairy cattle; while for fattening cattle late cut hay will give as good results. Experiments conducted by Prof. Sanborn, of New Hampshire, and Prof. Henry, of Wisconsin, to determine the relative value of early and late cut hay for fattening steers, the advantage was a little in favor of the late cut hay.

Whether hay should be cut early or late will depend, therefore, on the following conditions: 1. The stock to be kept, at least enough hay should be cut early to supply the dairy cows and young stock. 2. The season; if the weather be "catchy," it is generally wiser to defer the cutting until somewhat later. 3. The average to be handled; if the crop be large, it will be necessary to begin cutting earlier.

By earlier cutting is meant cutting at or before the time of full bloom. By late cutting is meant cutting between the time of full bloom and ripening. In any case, however, hay should be cut before it is ripe enough for the seed to shell readily.

A crop of mixed clover and timothy hay is at its best if both quality and quantity are to be considered, when from one-third to one-half of the clover blossoms have turned brown.

Hay should be cured and stored as rapidly as possible after cutting. With this in view, it is better to defer cutting in the morning until the dew is off. If 30 tons or more of hay is to be handled in a season, a tedder will be found a good instrument. Care must be exercised to avoid storing hay while at all damp from rain, dew or absorption from the ground. Moisture of this kind will spoil hay much quicker than the water contained in its own sap.

Last year attention was called to the method of curing clover hay practiced successfully by Mr. Henry Glendenning and a number of other prominent and reliable farmers. Mr. Glendenning thus outlines his method. Cut when in full bloom or when the blossoms contain the most honey. Cut in the morning after the dew has dried off. That cut in the morning may be cooked up in the afternoon. The mower should not be run later than 4 p. m., and all cut that day should be put into cocks before the dew falls. This hay should be put into the barn next day and well tramped into the mows. He especially emphasizes the following conditions:

1. Do not cut in the morning until the grass is dry. 2. Do not allow fresh cut hay to lie on the ground over night, exposed to dew or rain. 3. If any hay should get wet with rain, let it stand in the cocks until thoroughly dry, before taking to the barn.

Mr. Glendenning states that his hay came out as green as when it was put in, with the blossoms a beautiful pink color, which would indicate that it had not heated so much as one would naturally expect. The advantages of this method are:

1. The saving of time between cutting and storing, lessening the risk of damage from rain. 2. All leaves and blossoms, the most valuable parts of the plant are saved. 3. The hay is cleaner and brighter than that cured in the old way.

Of course hay cannot be cured by rule; conditions vary. A good method of curing on a gravelly upland farm would be quite unsuited to the flat-ter clay and hamus soil.

The stencils for which hay should be exposed in the swath will be determined by its ripeness, by the humidity of the atmosphere, the temperature and moistness of the soil, the presence or absence of wind, etc. So that every man must be, in large measure, a law unto himself, and his practice must be governed by personal experience.

It appears to be a fact, however, that when the conditions are favorable, and the necessary skill and judgment exercised, clover may be stored much greener than was formerly thought possible, and that the very best quality of hay may be secured in this way.

SAMPLE APPEALS MADE TO THE RICH.

(N. Y. Sun).

Some amazing appeals are made to the rich by persons who have no manner of claim upon them. The following is a list of some of the things asked of a rich woman, both at personal interviews and by letter, within the last few months.

A woman wrote from Colorado, enclosing the photographs of her three girls. She saw that they were all dressed in calico frocks, the best they had, and she asked that a piano be sent so that they could take music lessons.

An Indiana man begged that money be sent to pay the cost of the removal of his household goods from one town to another. And another petitioner preferred a request for a farm and three cows so that he and his sweetheart could get married at once.

A New York woman asked for $500 to procure her daughter's trousseau. The girl had a chance of making a good match immediately, she said, if only the money was forthcoming to get the wedding outfit.

The girl who wrote for money to buy a gramophone. Another sought means to take drawing lessons.

A widow asked to have some railroad stock bought for her, but she added that she could be satisfied with a small annuity for life.

A bereaved daughter petitioned for a sum that would buy a fitting monument for her parents.

The young woman urgently requested an interview, and upon its being granted asked for money to get her sealkin coat out of pawn, and certain articles of jewelry which were likewise detained.

An elderly woman wrote for the cost of a set of teeth.

Three people asked for help to publish original productions, one had a musical manuscript, and two literary masterpieces.

A young student asked for money to pay for his education as a physician.

An artist put in an application for money to get household goods out of storage.

A western woman begged that money be sent to enable her eight-year-old daughter to take a trip to New York and see the world.

Another woman asked for a sewing machine, and a college graduate begged for the wherewithal to set up a photograph gallery.
