LISTEN TO US

"We are only little ones, but we know Zam-Buk eased our pain and cured our sores. Perhaps it would cure you, too, if you tried it?"

Isn't this sound advice from "babes and sucklings"? Take it! The speakers are the children of Mrs. E. Webster, of Beignour St., Montreal, and the mother adds weight to their appeal. She says: "My little girl contracted scarp disease at school. Bad gatherings formed all over her head, and not only caused the child acute pain but made her very ill. The sores discharged, and occurring on the scalp we feared she would lose all her hair. She was in a pitiable plight when we tried Zam-Buk, but a few days' treatment with this balm gave her ease. Then the sores began to heal, and we continued the Zam-Buk treatment. In a short time she was quite healed."

"My little boy sustained a serious scald on the neck. It set up a bad sore, and quite a few things we tried, failed to heal it or give him ease. Once more we turned to Zam-Buk, and we were not disappointed. It acted like a charm in drawing away the pain, and soon healed the wound."

Zam-Buk is "something different" in the way of balms. It contains powerful healing herbale essences, which, as soon as applied to skin diseases, kill off the germs and end the painful smarting. Other essences contained in Zam-Buk so stimulate the cells that new healthy tissue is speedily formed. Eczema, itch, blisters, cold sores, abscesses, festering sores, blood poisoning, chronic wounds, cold cracks, etc., are healed and cured in this way. Use it for all skin injuries and diseases. It is also of great service for piles. All drug stores and stores at 50 cents box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Love a Conqueror
—OR—
WEDDED AT LAST

CHAPTER XX.

"But that I pity your suffering, and that I think of our old friendship, such words would not be long unavenged," put in Sir Hugh slowly, a flush coloring his pale haggard face, and his blue eyes turning to Major Stuart with an angry menace in their depths. "Why is she silent? If she could do so, do you think she would not refute the charge? She knows that I have right on my side, and witnesses to prove that right. Have you such faith in her," he went on scornfully, "that you will not see that she repented the bargain she had made—that she perceived that a bargain with money was better worth having than a penniless officer? Her sex is not usually noted for disinterestedness," he continued bitterly, for the mute scorn which overpowered even the pain on Shirley's pale face lashed him to fury. "You were not very long gone when she permitted me to—"

"Kiss her hand in the hall," gasped Alice Fairholme vindictively through her sobs; and a flash of indignant contempt came into Oswald's eyes as he turned them on his sister's face.

"Thank you, Miss Fairholme," said Sir Hugh. "I am glad to have my assertion corroborated. Yes; it is perfectly true; and, if my subsequent conduct has seemed treacherous to you, Stuart, it is because I believed this lady's assurance that she had written to break off her engagement to you."

Shirley's face changed then; a terrible bitterness, a great horror, an irrepressible loathing overspread it, and she lifted her eyes and fixed them on Sir Hugh with an expression that he could not meet.

"Shirley," Major Stuart broke out, indignation, entreaty and pain in his voice, "this is unendurable. Love, you know I do not doubt you—not for one moment—but to satisfy these others utter just one word in denial. Darling, I do not doubt you, remember," he added, with earnest tenderness. "It is not to clear yourself in my eyes; I can never doubt you." "No, you cannot—you never will," Shirley said, in a voice so unlike her usual tone that every person in the room turned and looked at her, while Ruby rose quietly and drew nearer to her side.

"It would greatly simplify matters," put in Sir Gilbert, sternly, "if you would deny the charge brought against you, Shirley. Where were you on the afternoon of the third of January?"

"I remember," Miss Fairholme said suddenly in the silence which followed. "She was out all the afternoon and when she came in—quite late—she was—she fainted in the hall!"

With a quick look Shirley's eyes were turned upon her cousin's face and Ruby Capel stole nearer to her side and put her arm around her. The girl made no sign that she even felt the gentle caress; she was utterly motionless—only the anguish on her face and the restless eyes showed how she was suffering.

"And I met you in the hall," Sir Gilbert said severely; "and I saw Sir Hugh take leave of you in the avenue, and—"

His voice failed, and he turned away in great agitation. Every eye in the room was on Shirley now but she did not quail.

"Shirley, why don't you speak?" said her cousin Alice quickly, in her clear high tones. "Why don't you deny it?"

"Because I cannot." The words came slowly and feebly from Shirley's lips, as if her very heart-strings were torn in the utterance, and Ruby Capel felt the terrible shudder which ran through her. For a moment her lids sank heavily, as if she were going to faint; but the next she rallied and lifted the beautiful head which had drooped, with a gesture of her old queen-like grace.

"Do you mean that you went to Dumfries with Sir Hugh Glynn?" demanded her uncle sternly.

"Yes." "That at the Half-Moon Inn you passed as his wife and called him your husband?"

"Yes." "And that this story he has told us is correct?" "Correct as to the facts," she said, in the same slow faint voice—"yes." It was painful to hear her as she words fell from her lips; it was terrible to see the agony of scorn and horror which crushed out all the life and beauty of the fair face. Sir Gilbert turned away with a groan; the old wound was deeply probed, and it was bleeding profusely under the hand which had so rudely torn it open.

There was a short silence then, broken by Major Stuart's voice, which was deep and low and constrained, from the terrible restraint he put upon himself.

"Shirley," he said gently, "since you have told us that you went to Dumfries with Sir Hugh Glynn, you will tell us now your object in doing so. Why did you go, Shirley? There must have been some pressing reason to make you take such a step."

The look of hopeless anguish deepened in the girl's eyes as they went to his face for a moment, and her lips quivered.

"I cannot tell you," she said painfully. "Try to trust me still, Guy." A look of distress and disappointment passed over Major Stuart's face, and his eyes, as they met hers, were full of an entreaty which pierced Shirley to the heart, but she had given a promise to Jack, and she could not tell him now before her uncle and aunt.

"If you can trust me, Guy," she said piteously, putting out two little supplicating hands, "I will tell you when—when we are alone."

"When you can use your blandishments to deceive him!" put in Alice Fairholme, with bitter significance. "You are a bad, false girl; and I, for one, have never been deceived in you. Sir Hugh's story—"

"Mother," Oswald Fairholme interrupted, with quick earnestness, "take Alice away; she is upset by all this. She does not know what she is saying." Oswald's tone was too significant and earnest to be disregarded; and Lady Fairholme bent over her daughter, and half led, half forced her from the room, making a sign to Ruby to follow her; but Miss Capel, by Shirley's quick glance of entreaty that her presence afforded some consolation to the unhappy girl, and she remained, and was thanked by a quick grateful look from Captain Fairholme's dark eyes.

"I can trust you without the aid of your blandishments, my darling," Guy said, moving toward Shirley, when Sir Hugh, with a quick movement came between them.

"Pardon me," he said haughtily. "You forget, I think, that I claim that lady as my wife."

Guy fell back, paling to his lips, a quick gleam of passion flashing into his gray eyes and a passionate exclamation rising to his lips. The two men stood for a moment looking at each other, and a glance of terrible menace was exchanged; then Sir Hugh moved back to his place, and turned to Sir Gilbert with perfect courtesy and composure.

"Sir Gilbert," he said gravely, "I cannot tell you how it grieves me to be the cause of so much sorrow and annoyance to you and yours, more especially as I know that this must be a particularly painful thing for you. I loved your niece from the beginning of my acquaintance with her, and I confess that her engagement to my friend gave me deep pain. Had she been satisfied with and happy in that engagement, I should have never interfered; but even in Major Stuart's presence she openly declared that in her opinion it was perfectly justifiable to jilt a poor suitor for a rich one. Subsequently I discovered that her heart was not in her engagement, but her dread of your displeasure made her hesitate to break it off."

"You scoundrel!" Guy cried savagely between his set teeth. "What a tissue of lies!" "Major Stuart," interposed Sir Gilbert, with a grave dignity which became him well, "I cannot allow you to forget that you are under my roof and that Sir Hugh Glynn is my visitor."

"Shirley's dread of your displeasure made her hesitate to break off her engagement, of which both you and Lady Fairholme cordially approved. Together we devised the plan which we subsequently carried out, I being still under the impression that she had written to Major Stuart to cancel her promise that she had given him. You will remember perhaps that on the day following that on which I had made your niece my wife according to the laws of this country I was called away by my mother's illness. On the day that I arrived at Cannes I met with a carriage accident which resulted in a broken arm and some slight head injuries. I could not write to my wife.

A cry of unutterable anguish broke from Shirley and silenced the smooth flow of words which sounded so plausible to the hearers—a cry sharp and sudden. She shuddered from head to foot, as though a red-hot iron had touched her delicate flesh; and for the first time her courage failed her. Her limbs trembled and gave way, she sank upon her knees, Ruby's arms around her and supporting her, and her head fell back against Miss Capel. But she was not unconscious; she could see and hear all that passed; and something in the helpless attitude bespoke a suffering terrible to witness. It was harrowing to Guy Stuart, to the man who loved her with such a great love, who trusted her with such a perfect faith, to see her there, in all the glory of her satin and lace and diamonds, pale and drooping like a flower broken at the stem and left to die.

"I could not write to my wife myself," Sir Hugh went on rather hoarsely—he too loved her—ar, and loved her well in his way, but selfishly and cruelly; "and I did not like to let another write to her for me; so I waited. As soon as I could spare his attendance, I sent my confidential servant to Scotland to see Shirley. Immediately on his arrival he dispatched a telegram telling me that my wife was about to marry another man. I left Cannes immediately—at the risk of my life, the physicians said; but that matters little, since I was in time to prevent a crime."

Sir Hugh concluded, as he had spoken amid perfect silence, and Sir Gilbert, to whom he had addressed himself, bowed slightly. Captain Fairholme was standing with his hand upon Guy's arm, his face full of earnest sympathy and pain because of the anguish and anger upon Major Stuart's dark face; and Ruby, still supporting Shirley in her arms, was watching, with nameless fear, the colorless face and miserable aching eyes so wide and desolate, the pale lips from which the quick gasping breaths came almost like sobs.

"I must thank you for the patient hearing that you have given me," Sir Hugh continued, gravely; "and now let me ask you, Sir Gilbert, what your opinion is. The lawyer—a distinguished member of his profession—Mr. Duncan of Perth—whom I consulted on the subject, gave it as his opinion that the laws of this country had made your niece my wife, and that, even if I wished to do so, I could not disown the marriage."

On Finding People.

By RUTH CAMERON.

It is always a pleasure to find things. A little silver pin discovered in the mud at your feet delights you far more than it possibly could if it came to you in any other way. That one dollar bill which you found unconventionally fluttering about in the gutter gave you more happiness than two of the conventional kind in your bill folder.

Some people are always finding things. I knew a girl who found three pieces of money and a brooch pin in one week. The largest piece of money was a dime and the pin was brass, but she seemed to get a prodigious amount of pleasure and pride out of her faculty. Myself, I am not good at finding things. I cannot recall ever finding any piece of money larger than a nickel, and my other finds have been such utter impossibilities as battered brass hat pins and empty pocket books. I suppose someone must lose things and I suspect that is the part I play in this drama. However, that is not what I started to say. What I set out to announce is that while I am not lucky at finding things I consider myself extremely lucky at finding people.

What I do I mean by that? Well, suppose I illustrate. The other day coming home in the trolley car from a gathering of women, circumstances obliged me to sit

Household Notes

Use cotton thread in mending kid gloves.

Most salt fish should be soaked overnight.

The typical French dish is always garnished.

Don't expect to have good cake with out fresh eggs.

A wooden spoon is best for creaming butter and fresh eggs.

A wooden spoon is best for creaming butter and sugar.

Corned beef should always be used soon after it is corned.

For taking out bloodstains, nothing is better than ammonia.

Never melt shortening for cakes unless the recipe so specifies.

Never slam the oven door when you have a cake in the oven.

There is a greater variety in salt and cured fish than in meats.

Never try to bake a delicate cake with other things in the oven.

Parsley and celery are an improvement, added to lamb stew.

Animal crackers coated with lard are good for children's parties.

Use the same kind of fat for greasing cake tins as that used in the cake.

When beating whites of eggs, keep them well in the center of the bowl.

Keep hands and feet warm, and the rest of the body will look out for itself.

Give cala lilla a drink of hot water now and then; it improves them wonderfully.

Attach baby cap strings to the cap by patent snaps if you would save constant ripping off.

Aggressive wall papers should never be allowed in any room; they are unrefined and ugly.

A shallow box full of sand kept in the garret will be a great resource for the children on rainy days.

The bouquet of herbs brings out the flavor of boiled mutton, cod or salmon as nothing else can.

The ideal French seasoning for a pot roast is a bouquet of parsley, chervil, basil or coriander.

The attic is far better than the cellar for storing canned fruits, jellies, seeds, roots, and so on.

A glass measuring cup is particularly good for measuring dry materials such as sugar or flour.

Put a bit of gum camphor in the case when you put away silver, if you would have it stay bright.

Be sure to combine green foods with salt meats or fish, else the salt will be irritating to the system.

In making cakes, measure the shortening by packing solidly into a cup and leveling the top with a knife.

An agreeable change is crisp, cold lettuce, served with French dressing as usual, but sprinkled with nicotinic acid.

If gas, gasoline or kerosene is used, light the oven at least ten minutes before you put your cake in to bake.

A three-minute glass should be kept beside the telephone to help in marking time during out-of-town calls.

In making beef stew, have the beef cut into small cubes. The best way to thicken it is with a few pods of okra.

The Boss.

By GEORGE FITCH,

Author of "At Good Old Stew."

The boss is a man who comes in at ten o'clock, and forgets to come back after lunch whenever the weather is decent enough for golf.

He is also the man who has nothing to do when he is in the office except keep two stenographers busy and raise a Mexican insurrection whenever someone makes a mistake.

The boss has a large roomy desk, with nothing on it except his feet; and whenever a friend comes in he closes the door and they go into executive session until the latest stories have been told.

The boss rolls down in the morning in his automobile and wears one of those overcoats with naturally curly collars. He gets such a big salary that if he had to carry it home in dollars it would break his back. But all he does is figure out how to keep the office a little busier. This makes him so tired that in June he goes to Europe with his family for the summer. This compels the assistant boss to do his work and the assistant boss thereby gets a fine rest.

The boss is a good-natured chap at long range, and it is fine to see him let out one of those big 45-waist-measure laughs whenever the president of the company comes in and tells him about his last fishing trip. But when you have to go in on the carpet before the boss and explain to him just why sales in your territory are slipping down, he is a cross between Nero and a Bengal tiger. Next to fancy dentistry, getting head by a big, fat, good-natured boss is about the most painful thing on earth. It must be fine to be a boss and sail blithely through life over the necks of the perspiring crowd, with no one above him to tell him that after next Saturday he will be at liberty to go out and jump off the dock so far as the company is concerned.

The boss is a necessary evil because if there wasn't one boss there would be a dozen, but our conservation congresses ought to figure out some way of making the boss work.

Healthy and Unhealthy Lighting.

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not vitate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:—

Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this, amongst other reasons, that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson B. Hurry.

He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old conditions could deny the improvement that had taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reginald Dudgeon, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.

I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which, in the old days, was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which with the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity, the latter being employed with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of asphyxiation.—Vivian B. Lewis, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—Nov. 3, 1913.

Real New Fox Story.

Fox stories from P. E. Island are many and varied, but a real few one was added to the collection by a traveler recently returned from the Garden of the Gulf, where they now reckon only in foxes. It goes that a woman visited a cross roads store, accompanied by several children. "Are all these your children, ma'am?" asked an inquisitive farmer, who happened to be present. "Yes," cheerfully replied the happy mother, "and there are more at home. We had a very large family, eighteen in all." "My! Eighteen!" gasped the astonished instructor, "why, missus, think if you had been a black fox your husband would be a millionaire!"—Pictou Advocate.

Price of Coal.

The Daily News states on reliable authority that it is not true that the standard article, known as North Sydney coal, has been raised in price 37 cents by the North Sydney dealers. The editor then goes on to say that "the reason for a 40-cent increase on genuine 'North Sydney' coal is not apparent."

Perhaps some one who is familiar with the facts about Sydney coals, prices there and here, and the winning, transporting, handling and re-tailing will throw some light on the situation. Twenty years ago people obtained much better coal at $4.60 and $4.80 than they have been getting for $7.20, and for which they are now called upon to pay $7.60. We of course recognize that this increase includes an increase in city taxation. Twenty years ago the St. John's Municipal Council received from the Government as they do to-day all the dues received on coal entering the port of St. John's. In these days the rate was 30 cents a ton. Now it is 70 cents a ton on soft coal and $1.00 on anthracite. This accounts only for a 40 cent jump during the past twenty years, and only goes a short way towards accounting for the Three Dollar Jump. The actual winning of coal from the mine by the colliers costs comparatively little. For instance we know of slack coal being delivered at carbonizing plants in the neighbourhood of mines at Five Shillings a ton and we have bought household coal in the North of England, which had to be transported a number of miles by rail, heaped in yards and delivered by carts at $2.50 and $3 a ton.

The company at Grand Falls bought a coal mine of their own, apparently under the impression that the cost of purchase in Sydney was excessive. This may throw some light on the situation. Whatever the causes may be, the situation is growing high intolerable. It touches every fireside and it is a grave national grievance. Sir Edward Morris declared five years ago that a means must be found for effecting a reduction in the price of coal. Unfortunately for everybody no such means has been found. The grievance has become far more intolerable and it seems to grow worse. Prices may drop elsewhere. But in St. John's they rise and worse than all the quality of the coal becomes worse.

Grave Concern Over Vessel's Long Passage.

The non-arrival of the schooner Checkers, which is now seventy-eight days out from Oporo, bound to this port in ballast, is eliciting grave concern. Considerable talk about the vessel was going on in shipping circles to-day and experienced mariners, who are beginning to get anxious for those on board, contend that the "Checkers" has either put in somewhere in a damaged condition or perished in the recent gales that have swept the Atlantic.

S.U.F. Installation and Banquet.

At the British Hall, last evening, there was a large gathering of members of St. John's Lodge, Society of United Fishermen. The Grand Master, Bro. J. A. CHIT, K.C., accompanied by Grand Marshal, J. C. Phillips and other members of the Grand Lodge attended to install the officers for the ensuing year. The names of the new officers elected were published recently. After the installation a banquet was held, at which the following toasts were honored:—
"The King," prop. by W. Master.
"The Grand Lodge," prop. by Bro. C. E. Hunt; resp. by the Grand Master Bro. J. A. CHIT.
"Sister Lodges," prop. by Bro. G. House; resp. by Representatives.
"St. John's Lodge," prop. by Bro. J. C. Phillips; resp. W. Master.
Several songs were also rendered, and an enjoyable evening came to a close at midnight.

Social Event at the Institute

A very enjoyable social event was held in the Greenfell Hall of the King George the Fifth Seamen's Institute last night, by the members of the Young Men's Society and Workers of the Sunday Evening Meetings and their lady friends. Over one hundred persons attended. Musical numbers were rendered by Mrs. Penman, Rev. W. H. Thomas, Miss J. Barnes, Miss E. M. Jones, after which old English games were indulged in. Light refreshments were then served and the happy affair terminated with the rendition of Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem.

Drunken Woman Creates Scene.

Last night Constables Churchill and Walsh were called to a house in Murphy's Square in the West End of the city, where a woman, 60 years old who was in an advanced state of intoxication, was causing much alarm and excitement. When found by the police officers she was going through her house, flourishing in her right hand a lamp, without any chimney. The inebriate was immediately taken in charge and driven to the police station. Those who lived in the neighborhood were badly frightened in case of fire, if the lamp exploded, and were glad when the woman was taken into custody. The unfortunate woman was in a half crazed state from alcohol as she had been celebrating during the Christmas season. To-day in court, she was fined $25 or two months' imprisonment. The latter course was chosen.

A MATTER FOR THE CITY FATHERS.

It is said by people who live in that section that a scattered cart load of soil is being deposited on Kenma's Hill these nights. This, if true, is certainly a great danger to any community and liable to cause an outbreak of disease. The City Fathers should investigate the matter and censure those at fault.

Home Rule Conference

THE POST DECLARES HAS BROTHERN DOWN.

LONDON, To-day.
The conference between Asquith and the Opposition Leader, Andrew Bonar Law, on the Home Rule question has broken down, according to the Unionist Morning Post, which says there may possibly be another interview, but that any hope of compromise must be abandoned. Mr. Asquith refused to meet the demands of Unionists for the exclusion even temporarily of Ulster from the Home Rule Bill. The Post represented the Prime Minister as having been personally inclined to accede to the temporary exclusion of Ulster, but declares that he was overborne by John Redmond, Joseph Devlin and John Dillon. The Right Hon. Thomas Wallace Russell, speaking at Strabane, County Tyrone, last night, warned Unionists that if any trouble arose in Ulster the Government would invoke the Crimes Act by giving twenty-four hours notice. He added that the Home Rule Bill would be passed by mid-summer.

Four Great Conflicts.

"Of the four great human conflicts, race, class, sex, and creed, only the last shows signs of definite abatement in our time," says the Nation. "Wars in which religion is the primary and avowed motive are becoming rare, and the area of toleration is continually advancing. The other conflicts, however, seem rather to grow in magnitude and in the conscious bitterness which they express. The factor of antagonism in sex has, indeed, almost for the first time come out into the open in these days, and class-wars are taking an intensity, a persistence, and a scope of action never experienced before."

PERCIE JOHNSON.

Past Master Frank Schultz Has Issued an Open Letter to the Orange Order

DEALS WITH THE QUESTION OF PROPOSED ARMED RESISTANCE TO HOME RULE BY ULSTER MEN.

To the Editor of The Tribune:
Sir,—I enclose you a communication on armed resistance in Ulster. I desire you to publish this in your daily and weekly issue. I am aware that subscriptions are being asked for in the province from Orangemen. This is contrary to the principles and teachings of the Orange Order. I am anxious to reach as many of my brother Orangemen as possible, in order that they may understand the serious position they are now in.

An open letter to Orangemen by Frank Schultz, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Manitoba, Past Grand Master Grand Black Chapter of Manitoba, Past Grand Auditor of Triennial Orange Council of the World, and at the present time Master of Orange Lodge of Baldur, Manitoba, Canada, a member of Grand Orange Lodge, and Grand Black Chapter of British America.

Armed resistance in Ulster to constitutional authority is an important question affecting every patriotic citizen in the British Empire. The only defence offered by the defenders of this method is that Ulster has a grievance, and that armed resistance is justifiable. In reply to this argument I would draw your attention to the following historical facts:

In 1837 the Chartist Rebellion took place in England. Since then practically all their demands, with the exception of semi-annual parliaments, have been granted. The rebellion was quelled, the leaders punished, and to this day the supporters of it are branded as rebels.

In 1837 we had a rebellion in Canada in opposition to the tyrannical rule of the Family Compact. Newspapers that protested against their methods were attacked and in some cases their presses were seized and destroyed. The agitation for responsible government was supported by a majority of the people of Canada, but when Mackenzie and Papineau resorted to armed resistance as a means of securing it, the Orangemen and other patriotic citizens united in defending the constitution and the British Empire. The rebellion was crushed and a large reward was offered for the capture of Mackenzie. These loyalists agreed with the rebels that responsible government was desirable, but they firmly resolved to secure it by lawful means. In 1854 responsible government was granted to Canada. A few years later Mackenzie was elected mayor of the loyal city of Toronto. There is no doubt that the people of Canada had a grievance; that the demands of Mackenzie and Papineau were just is now universally admitted, but these demands only seven years later were secured by constitutional methods, and those who resorted to more violent means were justly called rebels.

In 1869 the residents of what is now Manitoba imagined they had a grievance. The replacing of the Hudson Bay Company, to whom they had always looked for protection, by a new form of government, was misunderstood by them. A council was formed with Riel, as president, and Thomas Bunn as secretary. A majority of the council decided in favor of armed resistance. Thomas Bunn, with many others, refused to join the rebellion and their action won them the name of patriots. Riel and his party were defeated, and Riel finally died the death of a traitor. These people, like those in Ulster, believed they had a grievance. The Orangemen and all other patriotic citizens declared only constitutional authority should be appealed to in remedying it. To preserve constitutional authority, Brother Thomas Scott laid down his life.

In 1776 the New England States rebelled and forced England to acknowledge their independence. The rebellion was caused by unjust taxation by England, and refusing the colonies right of representation. These injustices did not affect the loyalty of many true Britons then residing in the rebellious area. They sacrificed their homes, their prosperity, and in some cases their lives for their motherland. Large numbers emigrated to Canada and there were given the name to which all their descendants point with pride, "United Empire Loyalists."

In 1913 the British Parliament passed the Home Rule Bill the second time in the House of Commons, the House of Lords rejected the Bill. In May, 1914, it will be brought up in the Imperial Parliament. If passed by the House of Commons it becomes law, despite the actions of the House of Lords.

The situation leading up to the present crisis may be briefly summarized: For over twenty-five years the people in Ireland have had at least 65 per cent. of their members in favor of home rule. At the present time Ulster, "Protestant Ulster," is represented by eighteen Home Rulers and seventeen anti-Home Rulers. The government has devised a settlement of the question satisfactory to a majority of those concerned. Sir Edward Carson, an Orangeman, in defiance of this settlement, is appealing to the citizens and to the Orangemen of Canada for financial assistance.

Some Orangemen have formed themselves into an Ulster defence committee and are making the same appeal which means armed resistance to the King of England, to the King's government. The King has issued a proclamation forbidding the importation of arms into Ireland. Last week's papers Sir Edward Carson was reported as making the following statement: "One year ago Ulster had 15,000 men armed, and now there is 90,000, and these men are prepared to fight." I ask who are they prepared to fight? Is it not the King of England and his government, and is not the money sent from Canada devoted to this treasonable purpose? Now I wish to ask Sir Edward Carson and the Orangemen supporting him this question—If the Chartists and Mackenzie and Papineau and Louis Riel were rebels, what are they? I ask further, if the acts of Sir Edward are not treasonable, what are they? I have consulted the best authorities at my disposal and find the terms rebel, rebellion, treason, defined as follows:

Rebel—To renounce and resist by force the authority of the ruler or government to which one owes obedience.

Rebellion—Open and avowed renunciation of the authority of the government to which one owes obedience, and resistance to its officers and laws, either by levying war or by aiding others to do so; an organized uprising of subjects for the purpose of coercing, or overthrowing the lawful rulers, government by force.

Treason is thus defined by Henry E. Tassereau, one of the judges of the Supreme Court of Canada:

Treason—An intention to levy war against his majesty within any part

All ready baked to a nicety; whole, mealy and full flavored. Heating only is necessary.

of the said United Kingdom, or Canada, in order by force or constraint to compel him to change his measures or counsels, or in order to put any force or constraint upon, or in order to intimidate or overawe both houses, or either house of parliament of the United Kingdom or of Canada. (Page 48, Section 69, Sub-Section "B," of the Criminal Code.)

The punishment for such offences can be as rigorous as imprisonment for life, or even death.

It is the duty of every Orangeman to consult the best authorities possible and determine the real position of Carson and his associates. It is the duty you owe to the Empire, to the government, and to the Orange Society of which you are a member.

It has been reported that members of the Black Chapter are also seeking assistance for the cause advocated by Sir Edward Carson. I would call their attention to the following passages from the Black Constitution:

"No member shall be permitted to introduce any subject or religious discussion in any of the chapters or preceptories." (Page 45, Rule 103.)

"The applicant must to the utmost of his power support and defend his present majesty, his heirs, successors, being Protestant, and maintain the Constitution of 1688 against all foes, foreign and domestic." (Page 1.)

The action of the supporters of Sir Edward Carson violates both these rules for dissentions are bound to result from a course that according to the best authorities means rebellion against the King and his government. I assure them many members have a true sense of their obligation and would withdraw rather than countenance rebellion and treason.

I request the Orangemen of Canada to investigate the question a little further purely from the Orange point of view. The General Declaration says in part:

"The Loyal Orange Association is formed by persons desirous of supporting to the utmost of their power the principles of the Christian religion, to maintain the laws and the constitution of the country, and the supremacy of the law, order, and constitutional freedom (Page 3.)

"The Orange Association lays no claim to exclusive loyalty; but it admits no man whose principles are not loyal. It takes its stand upon the glorious principles of the Revolution of 1688; it lays its foundation in the field of British liberty; it disdains the badge of faction and knows no emblem save the altar and the throne. (Page 3.)

Regarding the qualifications for membership the constitution reads as follows:

"The candidate should be zealous in promoting the honour, happiness and prosperity of his King and country." (Page 6.)

In dedicating an Orange Hall, the Grand Master says in part to those assembled:

"The duty of every Orangeman being to aid and defend all loyal subjects of every religious persuasion in the employment of their constitutional rights."

The only question is as to whether the Home Rulers are proceeding according to the British Constitution. I think this will be readily admitted. This admitted, it follows that the actions of Sir Edward Carson and his followers in taking up arms is unconstitutional. I challenge any Orangeman in Canada, to show by the constitution or the ritual of his order one line in defence of armed resistance in Ulster. I ask them to produce any evidence, any authority that will justify their actions to the Orangemen of Canada.

If we admit the right of Sir Edward Carson and Ulster Orangemen to raise an army to fight the King's government of England because they object to home rule, does it not follow that home rulers, with a majority of 100 members in the House of Commons, would be justified in raising an army against the King and government for the purpose of securing home rule? If Sir Edward Carson is at liberty to organize armed resistance to secure certain concessions, would not the suffragists, the Labor Party, the Socialistic Party be equally justified in resorting to the same methods? If you admit the right of Carson and his supporters to rebel, you give the same privilege to any body of men or women dissatisfied with the legislation of the British parliament.

I took my first obligation in the Orange Association over forty years ago. I have been a student of its teachings and principles ever since. I know that these teachings are loyalty to the Empire, the King, and the constitution. Orangemen are bound by these teachings and by their obligation to adopt only constitutional means. It has been my privilege to proclaim the same sentiments from many platforms and at Orange celebrations. I never found them contradicted. I am satisfied that if the members of the primary lodges of Canada would read the first four pages of the Orange Constitution and would consider the obligations they have taken, it would be apparent to them that armed resistance in Ulster is in direct opposition to the teachings of the Orange order.

I claim to be a true Britisher giving willing and cheerful allegiance to constitutional government. As an Orangeman, and as a loyal Canadian, I shall at all times advocate constitutional methods and no others as a means of securing the legislation I may be in favor of. I will never place myself in a position that my opponents can say I am in favor of armed resistance, and that I am a rebel against the King and lawful government. This is what the Orange Order teaches. I purpose to live up to my obligation as an Orangeman.

Eat Cabbage, Fish Sausage, New Bread

No Indigestion, Gas, Sourness or Upset Stomach if you'll take "Pape's Diapepsin"—Try This!

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic jot this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Diapepsin" is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever make, by getting a large fifty cent case. "Pape's Diapepsin" from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

Eggs.

For months the hens turned out no eggs, and caused us much despair; in vain we tried to pull their legs—the henfruit wasn't there. And then the sinful storage men began to make their hay; they charged us seven kinds of yen for eggs put down last May. Whereat we rose in awful ire, the storage men to roast; we talked of faggot and of fire, and longed to see them toast. "These soulless vampires," so we cried, "would rob us left and right! We can't have henfruit, poached or fried—the cost is out of sight! They buy their eggs at seven cents, at forty cents they sell; oh, let's round up these wicked geals, and lynch them for a spell!" Next year the crazy, dippy hens may lay to beat the band; you'll hear them cackling in their pens throughout the blooming land. And then the men with storage eggs, who had good luck this year, will walk around on wobbly legs and shed the scalding tear. And when we see these wretched jays, thus mourning, in the hole, we'll pause to wish them better days, to pity and condole.

Week of Prayer.

Last night the service in connection with the Week of Prayer was held in the Kirk and conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Sulherland, assisted by visiting pastors of the city. The address was given by the Rev. Dr. Cowperthwaite and the topic taken was the Church Universal. In his opening remarks the learned Doctor said that God's Church had existed from all time, though under various conditions and dispensations. In the early history of the Old Testament it was more patriarchal than ceremonial; and it was not until after the establishment of the Israelite nation that it assumed regularity and uniformity, which in course of time became perfected. Under the Levitical priesthood the Church came to be the glory of God's ancient people. The Christian Church excelled the Jewish Church, comprising, as it did, all peoples, nations, kindreds and tongues, and on this account was truly universal. The Rev. Doctor expressed the need for greater unity, which was far more desirable than mere organic uniformity, and exhorted his hearers towards the close of his remarks to put forward greater effort and zeal in the interests of the Church. The address was an eloquent and masterly one, and all felt moved and were much edified by the beautiful discourse. To-night's service will be held at George Street Church, the speaker being the Rev. Mr. Thomas, pastor of Queen's Road Congregational Church. The topic will be "Nations and their rulers."

Charity Windfall by Boy's Death.
The death of a Harrow School boy—Mr. Geoffrey Charles Ansell, who was heir to a £300,000 estate, has resulted in an unexpected windfall of about £250,000 to London charities. Mr. Ansell was injured while tobogganing on the Cresta Run in Switzerland two years ago and has just died in London from the effects of the accident. He was only seventeen, and the provisions made by the late Mr. Charles Ansell in the event of his dying a minor become operative. Briefly, they are that the estate is to be realized for the benefit of hospitals and other institutions in London, subject to bequests to relatives and friends and the payment of certain annuities (including one of £2,000 to Mrs. Ansell). The bequests specifically mentioned in the will include the following: £50,000 to King Edward's Hospital Fund; £25,000 to the National Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children; £25,000 to the Royal Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; £10,000 each to Charing Cross, St. Thomas's, St. Bartholomew's, Guy's, St. George's, Westminster, Middlesex, and London Hospitals; £4,000 each to eighteen other hospitals. Should any sums remain after the specific bequests have been paid the trustees are empowered to devote them to any charitable objects they think proper. Mr. Charles Ansell's fortune recalls a romance of the South African gold mining boom in 1895. At that time Mr. Ansell was a member of the firm of Ansell, Mankiewicz, and Tollerman, which reaped large profits from the boom. Mr. Ansell lived in Sloane street, and in 1905 he purchased Minster House, Harpenden, Hertfordshire, as a country residence. The transaction had hardly been completed when he died at the age of forty-five. The son was a ward in Chancery.—Daily Mail, Dec. 24.

Barqt. Earlshall Again Meets Mishap.

Messrs. Job Brothers received a message to-day to the effect that their brigantine Earlshall, Captain Coward, had arrived at Pernambuco this morning after a forty-seven days' passage from this port, also that her gasoline engine was broken down, the piston being broken. The Earlshall since she was purchased two years ago by her new owners, has established a record in local marine for rough passages and breakdowns. It will be remembered that twice on her way here from Liverpool, the winter before last, the vessel had a terrific experience and had to put back to Queenstown with everything swept away. In fact at that time she was given up as lost. Again on her way here from Glasgow, last winter, she had a tempestuous passage, being forced into different places three times. It may also be recalled on that occasion that the vessel was detained for some time at Swansea as her crew, who were useless as seamen were discharged there and others rescued after much difficulty in their place.

Flying to be 'Fool Proof.'

Mr. Orville Wright, entertained by the New York Aero Club to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the first flight made with a heavier-than-air machine by the brothers Wright, said that he hoped to put on the market in the spring a stabilizer, which would render flying "fool proof," and which would be better than human hands in maintaining the equilibrium of the machine. He claimed that his invention would abolish "stalling," which was the cause of 95 per cent. of the accidents, and practically make flying possible for all.

Cacophonous Latin Jargon.

The Rev. H. Costley White, headmaster of Bradford College, at the Headmasters' Conference at Reading, on Wednesday, said when a boy went to the University, especially the University of Oxford, he came into a farago of cacophonous jargon which did duty for the pronunciation of the Latin language. (Laughter.) He believed there was no place in the world where Latin was more variously or villainously pronounced than at Oxford.

War on Hudson Bay.

IT WAS ONCE THE SCENE OF A NAVAL BATTLE.

During the reign of William and Mary Canada's Inland Sea Was the Theatre of a Desperate Struggle for Supremacy Between the English and the French—Britain Lost Three Ships in Conflict.

Since the days of Henry Hudson, three hundred and four years ago, the waters of the Bay and Strait that bear his name have been navigated by white men. The Great Company, founded sixty years after the discovery of the Bay, sent out its ships laden with goods and brought them home laden with furs, using only this route. The adventurous Radisson and his companions laid the foundation of this trade and established the rule of the company throughout much of the northern region.

With trade there mingled the stern conditions of war. The Hudson Bay Company was holding this country for England—this was before there was a United Kingdom—and several times the French attempted to drive the English from it, and thereby make Rupert's Land a part of New France, of which the capital was Quebec its heights over-looking the St. Lawrence.

This war on the waters and along the shores of Hudson Bay took place during the reign of William and Mary.

The leader of the French force sent to Hudson Bay was Iberville, after whom is named one of the counties of the Province of Quebec. In 1694 he compelled Port Nelson—Fort Nelson, it was then called—to surrender after a bombardment of three weeks. Two years later an English fleet recaptured the fort, at the same time securing a vast quantity of furs. Then both England and France prepared for conflict, that, it was expected, would finally settle the question of supremacy in Hudson Bay.

Each country sent out a fleet, that from England consisting of four of the company's ships—the Hampshire, the Hudson Bay, the Dering, and Owner's Love. The English ships entered the Strait only forty hours in advance of the ships of the French fleet being much impeded by the ice. The French ships really followed in the wake of the English.

Having entered the Bay, where there was more open water, Iberville, in his ship Pelican, succeeded in slipping by the English ships unknown to them, and reached the mouth of the Nelson River, within sight of the fort. The garrison was greatly surprised, for it had been hoped that the English ships would fleet would prevent the French ships passing through the Strait. The appearance of the Pelican showed that this had not been done; but the English fleet was hourly expected, and shots were fired as a signal to the approaching vessels.

Iberville also anxiously awaited the coming of his own vessels, and so two days were passed in a state of suspense by both the garrison at Fort Nelson and two crew of the Pelican. On the morning of the third day, which was September 5, 1697, three ships were distinctly visible, and so confident was Iberville that they were his that he hoisted anchor and sailed away to join them. As he drew near he learned, to his surprise and, perhaps somewhat to his dismay, that the ships were the English fleet, now reduced to three ships; for the fourth, the Owner's Love, had become separated from her companions when they were in the ice-field and was never more heard of.

Iberville was not daunted by the discovery. He decided to attack, and made straight for the three ships of the enemy. It was a case of three against one, but Iberville's one was much superior to its opponents, for the Pelican was manned by about two hundred and fifty sailors and marines, and the vessel carried four pieces of cannon.

The battle began at once. Iberville first tried to run down and board the Hampshire. Failing in this, he turned to the Dering and the Hudson Bay, pouring into each damaging broadside; the English replying with a musket fire into the Pelican's crew and a broadside of grape-shot which wrought havoc with the enemy's sails.

The Hudson Bay then tried to run in front of the Pelican and give her a constant hull fire, beside taking the wind from her sails. Iberville saw the intended movement. He veered around and by a fine piece of seamanship came so near the Hampshire that the crew saw that boarding was intended, but a terrific broadside of grape held the French in check, for a time saving the Hampshire. It was only for a time, for at the end of three and a half hours of fighting the Hampshire began to sink with all sails set.

At this time there were ninety men severely wounded on board the Pelican, forty having been struck by a single broadside. Notwithstanding this, Iberville decided to push the fight with the Dering which was the smallest ship, and had suffered severely. The Dering seeing that she was singled out for destruction, crowded on sail and managed to avoid an encounter. The Pelican being in no condition to give chase returned to the Hudson Bay, which soon surrendered.

In the meantime, the Hampshire had been steadily sinking, and shortly after the surrender of the Hudson Bay, the Hampshire went down with nearly all on board, and thus was concluded what was, in the opinion of the best authorities, both French and English, one of the fiercest and bloodiest naval battles of the war.

M. Jaures: French Orator.

"M. Jaures, who has recently been in London, is one of the most remarkable intellects in Europe," writes the Paris correspondent of the Pall Mall. "But none can dispute his integrity, his talent, his amazing oratorical ability. Jaures is no common man."

"Destined for the professoriate, he was a student at the Ecole Normale Supérieure. Then he went to Toulouse as Lecturer in Philosophy at the University, and achieved great distinction there. His eloquence stood him in great stead at the Palais Bourbon, where that impressionable audience was astounded by the wealth of his metaphor, by the torrent of his imagery, and his flow of reason, inspired by idealism and tempered by erudition. "Unaristocratic in features, Jaures belongs none the less to an excellent family and includes an admiral among his ancestors. His brother, singularly resembling him in physique, being broad-shouldered and somewhat ungainly, is captain of a cruiser."

"In an ordinary way he has few friends. Like many men of extreme intellectuality, he is more attached to ideas than to persons. Jaures is more admired than loved."

"He is editor as well as orator, directing the Socialist newspaper L'Humanite. It is no secret that it is not particularly successful. Its brilliant director is a poor administrator; he sees everything in the large, and nothing in detail. It is said that the publication costs a good deal of money without bringing in much return."

"Jaures is utterly indifferent on the subject of clothes. He is one of the worst dressed men in the Chamber of Deputies. In the country, his costume is extraordinary, and provokes the hilarity, if not consternation, of his friends."

"Another legend accuses Jaures of wealth. I doubt if his income exceeds fifteen hundred pounds a year, including his stipend as a deputy. His property consists of a country house in the Tarn, with a few acres surrounding it. The rental would not be more than £50 a year. It belongs really to his mother-in-law, who is still an active woman."

"As to his 'castle in Germany,' it is really in the air. He lives by his talent as journalist and deputy, and not even his worst enemy has ever suggested dishonesty, or that he bartered his influence for the least material advantage."

"His family life is charming. Of his two children, a boy and a girl, the latter is married to a young engineer. Young Jaures is still at the lycee, where, like his father, he shows a precocious talent for speech."

In London the other day, M. Jaures said that his wife was not the least thing he owed to England.

PATERSON, N.J., Jan. 6.
A fire broke out to-day and destroyed the Paterson Opera House, and threatened many frame buildings, from which the police ordered more than 200 families, before the firemen got the blaze under control. The loss is estimated at $100,000. Five firemen were overcome by smoke, while carrying the hose in the Opera House. They were rescued by their fellow firemen.

DAYTON, Ohio, Jan. 6.
Orville Wright has several surprises in store for people interested in air traffic. By perfection of his hydro-aeroplane he has brought forward one of the unique mechanical devices of the century. Another invention is an automatic stabilizer, which will make flying fool-proof, and as comparatively safe as transportation by land. It means that an unskilled operator may make a trip from Dayton to New York and return with comparative safety. "We have invented an automatic stability device which will revolutionize flights," said Wright. "It is more accurate than any aviator can be. I have flown many miles with it and have never touched the controller. We hope to see the day when it will be just as safe to board an aeroplane to take a long trip, as it is at present to make the journey by land or water."

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.
Six out of the twenty-seven missing from the crew of the oil tank steamer Oklahoma, which broke in two at Sandy Hook early on Sunday, were brought into port alive to-day. They were picked up in a lifeboat on Sunday afternoon by the Booth Line steamer Gregory, after having been adrift in the bitter cold for six hours. The Oklahoma broke in two amidships without warning. The stern section, where all the machinery of the vessel is situated, was sunk immediately. Two boats were got away. One was crammed full. This was presumably the boat in which the Seneca found 43 dead and one alive. The other boat in which 5 were picked up, contained eleven when it got away, of whom 6 were subsequently drowned after the craft repeatedly capsized. When the five were finally taken aboard the Gregory their condition was pitiable. Both boats were in extreme peril from the moment that they were lowered over the sinking ship's side. The sea smothered them, and the racing screws which they barely missed threatened to smash the boats into matchwood. They drifted away, soon to be separated. They saw Capt. Gunter and others amidships on the Oklahoma. The five rescued knew nothing of his fate until they reached New York and were surprised to learn that he and seven others had been saved by the steamer Bavaria.

At the Crescent.

Judging by the throngs of people that patronize this new, popular and wholesome theatre afternoons and night it has evidently won the favor of the public, and the management is receiving every encouragement to continue the splendid bills that have been offered every change. For to-day and to-morrow the following programme is selected. The powerful drama "The Shadow"; a second drama, which is equally interesting, is a beautifully colored feature "The Spider," the characters of which are genuine natives of Japan; the two comedies "The Twins of Double X Ranch" and "He Could not Lose it" will surely fill the light side of life. Mr. David Parks, baritone, sings an illustrated song, entitled "Always take a Girl named Daisy." The Crescent is open every afternoon at 2.30, and every evening at 7.15.

White Slavery Murder Mystery.

Annie Yokinen, the pretty, intelligent and well educated Finnish girl, a domestic from Annesley Hall, Victoria College, Toronto, who disappeared after saying good-night to a lady friend on December 4, and who was found in a dying condition, more than two weeks later, in a corn stock on the farm of John Dew, on the outskirts of the city. She was carried into the Dew homestead, where she passed away before she was able to tell anything of her strange disappearance. Five city detectives and a host of other sleuths, hired by private societies and individuals interested in the strange case, are working on it. The theory is that the girl was carried away by white slavers, forcibly, as she walked along the street, and was left to die in the farmer's corn stock.

At the Theatre.

The reproduction of the society drama, "Bought and Paid For," at the Casino Theatre last evening was greeted by a large audience, who showed their appreciation of the performance by rounds of unstinted applause.

The attendance at the two productions of the initial bill warrants us in predicting for Manager Harkins a very successful season.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES COLDS, &c.

Fierce Boxing.

Jeannette Beaten by Langford.

Paris, Dec. 21.—It was a great battle. It was one of those events which leave on the mind an impression that time can never efface. For years I shall see that grim, indomitable black man of muscle, Sam Langford, steadily following the light yellow brown mulatto around the ring, pushing aside Jeannette's jabs, unheeding his hooks, always getting closer and closer for the inevitable blow that would end the contest.

Jeannette fought like a greyhound, a plucky greyhound that wants to fight but can only fight his own way. As he retreats he snaps back little lighter unless he is a thorough-bred bulldog like Sam Langford, for that is exactly what Langford is in appearance and by temperament. He is a bigger edition of Joe Walcott, the black demon, and I think a better one. Jeannette is not either black or a demon. He is almost as white as some of the Latins, and his face for a fighter is distinguished and nervous. He looked worried in his corner before the beginning, whereas Langford sat up waiting for the bell like a bulldog expecting a bone.

The vast garlanded palace was filled with hundreds of wealthy men in costly fur coats, accompanied by women in the most weird and wonderful toilettes covered with jewels and promening in robes of immense value between the boxing bouts as they would at the opera. Pale purple glass tubes against a red background threw a fantastic light upon ring and spectators. Generally speaking, however, the spectators were callous and indifferent to any but the most thrilling incidents. An expert told me that his estimate of the value of the clothing worn in the ring seats was £50,000.

Jeannette entered the ring, followed by Langford in a bright green dressing gown. Then followed Carpenter in evening dress, not to challenge but to shake hands with the combatants in their corners while the house cheered. It was all very French.

Jeannette was full of clean muscle. Even a bit finely drawn, Langford carried a good deal of superfluous flesh, but the immensity of his shoulders made one forget that fact. Langford, grim and dour, was not the public's favorite. He smiled only twice throughout the whole battle, and this absence of the human note made the people cheer Jeannette to a victory he could never achieve. I am convinced, after seeing the two Johnsons, Jeannette, and Langford in the ring, that Jack Johnson is master of them all, but that Langford has more chance than anyone else of defeating him.

JEANNETTE A BEATEN MAN.

Langford was looking for an opening to end the contest, for he was tired from his efforts in round 13. Jeannette was a beaten man, but he boxed well and landed five times on various places.

In round 17 Langford nearly ended the contest, a terrific right just missing the jaw in a clinch. Jeannette got on to Langford's eye and opened it, but the blood made the black fight harder.

In the eighteenth round the house rose as Jeannette shook the demon with a fine right smash and fought into a clinch. When the bell sounded Jeannette was frantically applauded, and Langford walked to the corner shaking his head.

The last round was as thrilling in every sense as round 13. Jeannette smashed a right to the body and Langford got two back on the jaw. Jeannette jabbed and rushed, and then hooked both hands, but as the crowd cheered he emerged from a mix up bleeding at the nose and mouth and as weak as a rat. Langford had caught him again and like a demon was rushing on with terrific blows. It was a wonderful finish. Jeannette's long, pale, muscular body lay over the ropes, while Langford pounded him with both hands. Weak as he was Jeannette moved his head backwards at each blow, and when the gong sounded he was still on his feet although a badly beaten man.

Blew Up Wife And Cabin After Christmas Row.

Charleston West, Va., Dec. 26.—Closely guarded by deputies, Thomas Ellis was brought to jail here to-day charged with the murder of his wife on Christmas night. They had quarreled, according to the authorities, and while the woman was asleep Ellis is alleged to have placed a quantity of blasting powder in the middle of the floor of their mountain cabin near Winfred, W. Va., and exploded it with a fuse. The explosion which tore the cabin to pieces aroused the settlement and Ellis was captured. Officers secreted him in a coal mine during the night to prevent his infuriated neighbours from lynching him.

Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

A meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will take place in the Social Room of the Girls' Department at the Seamen's Institute this afternoon. Mrs. Pippy will deliver a discourse on her recent visit to the Ninth Triennial Convention of the World's W. C. T. U. which was held in Brooklyn. The subject will be of particular interest to the Union and matters of an important nature will be discussed during the meeting. The Convention endorsed the proclamation issued by Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens for National Constitutional Prohibition for the United States, and resolved that the Convention was in favor of world-wide prohibition. The following is the Proclamation:—

"Whereas, modern science has definitely established for all time that alcohol is a toxin, the worst product of the ferment germ; a poison to every living tissue, destructive and degenerating to the human organism, striking at the health, character, and life of the individual, blasting the lives of children unborn, and undermining the integrity of the family;—

"Whereas, 'Wine is a mocker,' and the maintenance of alcoholic beverages in the channels of trade always causes their widespread use among the people, entailing incalculable economic loss in productivity and heavy burden of taxation; turning out multitudes of slaves and solons of drink; lowering in an appalling degree the average standard of character of citizenship, upon which the nation's institutions and liberties must rest; bringing about the untimely death of many thousands of citizens, exceeding in numbers all those destroyed by war, pestilence, fire, flood and famine combined;—

"Whereas, this terrible disease has been running for long centuries, and is now gnawing at the vitals of the nations and civilizations of to-day, gripping the governments of the world, and is interwoven into the political, commercial and social life of the people, constituting thus the deepest seated, most chronic organic disease known to the body politic and body social;—

"Whereas, such a disease for a permanent cure requires of necessity deep continued organic treatment for the whole body, for which partial superficial devices like legalization and local regulation have always proved and from their own nature must always prove utterly inadequate;—

"Therefore, in the name of the World's and National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, we hereby make this Proclamation for a Great Crusade to carry the vital truth to the people themselves in all lands, and through them to place prohibition in the organic law of all nations and ultimately in the organic law of the world now in the forming; and to this high end we invoke the blessing and guidance of Almighty God and the co-operation of the men and women of all lands who love their fellowmen, and

"To America, the birthplace of the local, State, National, and World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union, we hereby proclaim, amid the smoke of the second great battle of Maine, in the home of Neal Dow and in the state which longer than any other has had a Prohibitory Law, that within a decade prohibition shall be placed in the Constitution of the United States; and to this end we call to active co-operation all temperance, prohibition, religious and philanthropic bodies; all patriotic, fraternal, civic associations and all Americans who love their country!"

Alias Jimmy Valentine.

At the Casino to-night the W. S. Harkins players will present the greatest "crook" play ever written, Alias Jimmy Valentine. This play is founded on facts taken from the life of a famous "crook." This man, an expert safe opener who scorned to use "Soup" nitro glycerine—as called by burglars—used no tools but his hands to open the most difficult safes and vaults. His fingers were so sensitive that he could feel the faintest drop of the "tumblers" in the combination. Tired of paying him involuntary tribute, the American Bankers' Association decided it would be cheaper to pay him a stated yearly salary "to be good," and commissioned a well known detective to make him the offer. He accepted, and today is living in retirement honored by his fellow citizens who know nothing of his past. In addition to this man's history the action of the play has drawn from the life stories of other famous crooks, one an expert "forger," another an expert "lock picker," and incidentally he shows the methods pursued by prison officials and detectives in American cities to secure conviction. Alias Jimmy Valentine will surely create a sensation here as it has everywhere else. Seats are selling rapidly. Secure yours at once.

Inspector O'Brien's Report

In St. John's East and West and suburbs Inspector O'Brien visited and inspected within the past five months eight hundred and fifty-three milk farms, cow sheds and dairies. With few exceptions the different places visited were found in good sanitary condition. During 1912 and 1913 eighty-six persons went out of the milk business and 48 added to the list. There are 69 slaughter houses in operation. Those in the suburbs—54—were each visited twice since September last. The fifteen city houses were inspected more frequently. Last year altogether 18 butchers were prosecuted for a breach of the rules. Dr. Brehm and Inspector O'Brien are both deserving of credit, as they are mainly responsible by their efforts for the sanitary reforms and improvements in our milk farms and slaughter houses.

Nurse's Years of Experience

Proves Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Best Treatment for Kidney and Stomach Troubles.

The trained nurse has even greater opportunities than the doctor himself to watch the action of medicine in specific cases.

For years the writer of this letter has been recommending the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills among her patients, and is firmly convinced that no treatment is so prompt and effective.

This is the most valuable evidence obtainable, and we believe that all who know Mrs. Duffy will appreciate it to the full, knowing that she would not recommend anything in which she had not the fullest confidence.

Mrs. Duffy, nurse, 35 Lewis street, Toronto, writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for years, and recommend them to my patients for all disorders of the kidneys, liver and stomach. In all my professional experience I have found nothing better." Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edgars, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Morganatic Marriages.

What Royal Personages Will do for Love.

Cupid's power is strikingly illustrated by the sacrifices willingly made by Royalty, who defy the laws of kingdoms and marry for love. Often in the case of a prince who marries "beneath him," it means deprivation of rank, privileges, and wealth, while, although a morganatic wife enjoys the legal privileges of an ordinary wife, both she and her offspring are debarred from the special rights of the husband and father as a Royal personage.

At the same time, however, a prince who marries for love, cannot, except on sufficient grounds for divorce, have that marriage set aside to marry a Royal lady. Furthermore, his morganatic children are legitimate and can inherit his private property.

The romantic love story of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, who recently stayed with King George and Queen Mary at Windsor, provides a striking illustration of what a woman of inferior rank may have to suffer for marrying a Royal personage. The Archduke, who is heir to the Austrian throne, declined to marry any of the Royal ladies offered for his choice, for he had fallen in love with a maid of honour, the beautiful woman who is now his wife.

Although the Emperor at last gave his sanction to the marriage, Imperial honours were denied the bride, and it was only after some years that she and her husband wore down the prejudice which existed against her, and she was created duchess by the Emperor—a title which conferred upon her privileges more in harmony with her dignity as the lawful wife of the future Sovereign.

By the terms of the marriage settlements, however, the Archduke's wife cannot become Empress, nor even her children succeed to the Imperial crown, although it is pointed out that Royal marriage settlements have, before now, been set aside.

Cable News.

Special to Evening Telegram. PARIS, To-day.

Jules Vedrines, one of the French Aviators, who recently fled from Paris to Cairo, was ordered to-day in a telegram from Rene Quinton, President of the French National Aerial League to give satisfaction immediately to Henry Roux, his rival, who also had accomplished flight, and who had challenged him to duel after Vedrines had struck him in the face during an altercation between the two aviators, said to have arisen when Roux is alleged to have asked Turkish officials not to assist Vedrines in his flight in the Orient. If Vedrines should decline to fight, he is told by M. Quinton to return at once to France. The French National Aerial League, it is understood, intends in this case to withdraw from Vedrines' official mission, with which he was entrusted of taking part in the continuation of a flight from Cairo to Capetown. All the celebrations which had been arranged in honor of Vedrines among the French Colony at Cairo has been cancelled.

BERLIN, To-day.

Crown Prince Frederick William has again struck a blow at his own popularity, in a telegram which he recently sent to Lieut. General Delming and Col. Von Peuter, commending their Zaberu affairs, being made to-day the subject of angry editorials in leading Berlin newspapers.

Entertainment at Aula Maxima.

The entertainment held by the St. Bonaventure's Ladies' Association at the Aula Maxima, yesterday afternoon, was largely patronized, notwithstanding the adverse weather conditions.

A very enjoyable programme was rendered, the contributors being Misses M. Keegan and Devine, Mrs. Cahill, Messrs. A. Joy and A. Summers. The several items were splendidly given and received much applause. Mrs. Cleary acted as accompanist in her usual satisfactory manner. The event of the evening was the lucky bean competition in which much enthusiasm was displayed. The winners were Mrs. J. Duff, Miss St. Ryan and Miss Lundrigan, all of whom received beautiful prizes. As the close of the concert, excellent teas were served by the ladies of the Association.

Storm Interrupts Telegraph Service.

Owing to the recent storms the Postal Telegraph service was interrupted considerably, particularly down north. To facilitate the despatch of business while repairs are being made, messages have been sent by mail from Clarendville to several points in Trinity Bay. Practically the whole northern service is interrupted and the repairs from the different stations are busy to-day effecting the necessary repairs.

Codfishing at Rose Blanche.

Yesterday afternoon the Board of Trade had a communication from Rose Blanche saying that good codfishing was being done in that neighbourhood. Fish were found in abundance by the fishermen when they got on the grounds, but they said that stormy weather was a material setback. Another great hindrance to operations was the scarcity of bait. The men are now using salt squid, but with a fresh bait supply, which they are expecting, should do exceptionally well with the cod.

Hockey Notes.

It is expected that the Crescent and Victoria hockey teams will have their first practice for the season to-morrow as the ice at the Prince's Rink is in fairly good condition.

The first League match for the season, although not definitely arranged yet, will likely take place next Monday week.

The three college teams are now beginning to get in trim as their series of matches will commence in a fortnight's time.

Winter's Events.

Preparations are now being made by the different societies of the city for a series of entertainments for the coming season. Quite a few concerts are now in preparation, and will be held about the first week of February. A series of lectures and debates will also be held and the different committees are enthusiastically making the necessary arrangements.

DR. A. E. LEHR, Dentist, wishes to thank his patrons for their patronage during the past year and extends to the general public his best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.—jan5,31

If Architects

Did the Housework!

If architects did the housework—well, there would be very different houses in which to do the work.

This is the general opinion of most women, and is certainly that of the writer of a very interesting article on "The House and the Art of Living in it" in the Contemporary Review.

"If this was a sermon" writes Jessie Carey, "I should give out as my text: 'Surely the life is more than housework, and the body more than spring-cleanings.' But it is a plea for a more logical adjustment of domestic life to existing circumstances, for an active recognition of the fact that our housekeeping is difficult and strenuous far in excess of the results attained.

The Ideal House

"My ideal house was built by two architects, a man and a woman, in partnership with an engineer. I have never been able to understand why domestic architecture should be considered exclusively a man's profession. What man architect knows the fatigue of carrying in skirts heavy trays of china and food up and down steps, or understands enough of kitchen work to follow in spirit a busy cook who knows she will want a little milk about a dozen times a day, and partly worried and partly careless, gradually slipped into the dangerous habit of keeping a jug of milk in the kitchen, because the tiresome larder is so awkward to get at? Only a woman, and a housekeeping woman, can appreciate the importance of all these points.

"When we think of the gloomy basement kitchens and airless attics of the late Georgian and early Victorian town houses we not involuntarily call to mind: 'All the earth is full of darkness and cruel habitations.'

Women Architects

"I should like to put in a plea for women architects. It is a profession for which women are admirably adapted in co-operation with men; there is a crying need that the common sense and practical knowledge of women should be applied to the remedy of existing defects in most of the houses that we know so well and groan over so frequently. It is one of the few professions for women that are not overstocked.

"My ruling idea is that every house should be so made and fitted that a gentlewoman can do all the necessary work. Most of the hard and dirty work in our houses is due to defective planning and false economy in building, and to a callous disregard on the part of the architect for the unnecessary drudgery imposed on the maids. Is it ever a pleasant thing to have to hand over to others work which you would rather not do, do you yourself? I am quite clear for my part that carrying water and coal, scrubbing stone and rough wooden floors is not work for a woman and I believe that most doctors would endorse this statement. That there should be still a disease diagnosed and treated as 'housemaid's knee' is surely a lamentable comment on our civilization.

Washing-Up Problem

"There are three main factors in housework, excluding cooking (the effort to keep warm, the effort to keep the house clean and the washing of dishes. I calculate that the domestic washing up for a family of eight or nine persons, including the stuff, at the rate of four meals a day of the ordinary liberal but not extravagant sort, would take one maid from four to six hours—that is anything from half to three quarters of her working day. Now if we can save this work we shall have taken a long step towards the goal of reducing the service. My kitchen department has a washing up machine worked by compressed steam, an excellent labour-saving device. Similar machines, together with boot polishing and potato-peeling machines, and many other mechanical devices for simplifying domestic work, have long been in use in steamships and in hotels; but we want to have them in smaller sizes, manufactured by the tens of thousands for the relief of the housewife.

"Could one imagine a more delightful or profitable object of a commission than an inquiry into the housekeeping methods of all civilized countries, so that we might gather the best from all lands for our homes in England?"

The French Heavy-weight a Wonder.

Mons. Georges Carpentier becomes the best heavyweight attraction in the boxing world. Georges won a guarantee of $15,000 and a side bet of $5,000 by beating Bombardier Wells last week. He can repeat the sum if he beats Gunboat Smith in London, a match that is now under way, and he can draw great houses in America. In France, his home country, where he is idolized, he is under a nine months ban for meeting a dud who was billed under a well known fighter's name. He cannot appear in a ring until the bars are lifted.

Outside of being the best card of any heavyweight living, Carpentier has the distinction of having made more money out of boxing than any man but Jeffries. If the bookmaker had not fought Johnson, this Frenchman would to-day be crowned the Croesus of the game. At that, he holds one record, that of making an historic sum in less time than any pugilist. Eighteen thousand dollars for beating Wells in one minute and thirty seconds. Every time Carpentier steps in a ring he draws at least $5,000 and often much more. He has made close to $200,000.

Carpentier is a good fighting man. True, he has not done mighty things, but his record far surpasses that of the majority of American hopes. In the first place, when he was lighter than now, he beat Frank Loughrey, of Lewis, American welterweight champion. After that he licked Jim Sullivan, middleweight champion of England. Next George Gunther, who last year was a clever negro and a tough man to defeat.

Weak from making the French middleweight limit, Carpentier has been growing ever since he became a fighter, he went twenty rounds with Willie Lewis and won. Weaker still a short time after, he lost to Frank Klaus and Billy Papke.

This year Carpentier has beaten Bendman Rice, Cy Smith, George Gunther again, Private Williams, Ken Smith and Bombardier Wells twice.

Carpentier is not yet twenty years old. In Europe he is regarded as an athletic marvel. On this side he would be a box office bear.

Wedding Of Son 67.

Breakfast Speech by Mother of 166.
Mrs. Rebecca Clarke, aged 169, Wood Green's centenarian, presided yesterday at the wedding breakfast of her "baby son" Harry, aged 67.

The other two are Mr. Charles Clarke and Mr. Robert Clarke, sprightly bachelors of 73 and 70 respectively. Mr. Charles, who lived with his mother, has such a retiring disposition that according to his brother Harry, he stayed in bed all yesterday, too shy to take part in the festivities.

The bride was Miss Lucy Turner, of Dicoot, Berks, and the wedding took place at St. Michael's Church, Wood Green. It was Mr. Clarke's second marriage.

Four of his six daughters attended the ceremony. One of them, Miss Kate Clarke, boldly defied all tradition and assumed the duties of best man. The bride is 20 years her husband's junior. Mrs. Rebecca Clarke was prevented from attending the wedding owing to the cold weather. Presiding at the wedding breakfast, she proposed the health of her son and daughter-in-law, ate the first slice from the wedding cake, and holding her pet dog "Inky" in her arms, sang a few verses of her own composition about the dog. She also quoted the following lines, which she learned many years ago:

Here's a health to us two and two more.
If they two love us two as we two love them two, here's a health to all four.
But if they two don't love us two as we two love them two, here's a health to us two and no more.

Mrs. Clarke concluded an eventful day with a Christmas dinner party in the evening.—Daily Mail, Dec. 26.

If Child Is Cross Feverish And Sick.

Look Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely. A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has a sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all of the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

HERRING FISHERY.—Herring were very plentiful at Bonne Bay yesterday but operations were prevented by the weather which was very stormy all along that section of the coast.

Cleanses Your Hair Makes It Beautiful

It becomes thick, wavy, lustrous and all dandruff disappears—Hair stops coming out.

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

Mr. John Burns's Record.

It is exactly eight years since Mr. Balfour laid down the cares of office, and Sir Edward Grey and Mr. John Burns have been Foreign Secretary and President of the Local Government Board respectively for exactly eight years. They are the only two Cabinet Ministers now holding office who started in the same offices under "C.B." in 1905, and furthermore they are the only men living on either side who have held the same office continuously for so long a period. Mr. Burns has created an absolute record for not one of his thirteen predecessors at the Local Government Board, among whom were Mr. Balfour and Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, was President for more than six years.

Last Night's Gale.

Last night a N.N.E. gale raged in the city, accompanied by a snow storm which was severely felt in bleak places, especially on the higher levels. At intervals the wind blew with great force and a regular blizzard prevailed. Along the railway line as far as Bishop's Falls there was a heavy snow fall but west of that place the weather was fine and cold.

Head Stuffed? Got A Cold? Try Pape's

"Pape's Cold Compound" relieves worst cold or the gripe in few hours—No quinine used.

Take "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until you have taken three doses, then all gripe, misery and cold will be broken. It promptly opens your clogged-up nostrils and the air passages of the head; stops nasty discharge of nose; punting; relieves the headache, dizziness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffing. Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Accept no substitute.

Last Night's Lecture And Concert.

Despite the inclemency of the weather a large number attended the lecture given by Captain H. B. Saunders at the College Hall last night.

At 8.15 p.m. His Excellency the Governor and Mrs. Davidson arrived attended by Major Davenport, a D.C. His Excellency was then asked to open the proceedings, which he did in a very pleasing manner, paying a worthy tribute to the employees of the Reid Company, under whose auspices the affair was held. He then in a few remarks introduced the lecturer, Capt. Saunders, who took as his subject: "Marine Curiosities."

The lecturer handled the subject in his usual capable manner and his vivid descriptions of the modern appliances used in saving proved highly interesting. The lecture was illustrated by lantern slides which clearly showed the wonderful feats accomplished in recent days by the use of compressed air. Among the numerous pictures shown on the screen were views of the Glace Bay, Royal George and Manchester Commerc.

He referred at length to the latter, and in doing so expressed his appreciation of the satisfactory manner in which the employees of the Dry Dock are making repairs. He felt sure that when the work was executed the excellent condition in which the ship would leave their hands would be a source of gratification to the underwriters whom he represented. The lecture was delivered in three parts and during the intervals an excellent programme was rendered by Misses Grace Colton, H. and D. McDonald, Messrs. Cornick, Watson and McDonald, the several items being well received and enthusiastically applauded.

Miss H. McDonald gave a clever exhibition of fancy club swinging, and Miss Grace Colton sang in a very pleasing manner and had to respond to an encore. The performance was in every respect all that could be desired, and the lecture which was of particular interest to persons familiar with marine engineering proved very enjoyable throughout. At the close His Excellency congratulated Capt. Saunders and pointed out the many facilities offered to our boys to take up engineering, expressing the hope that within a short time the dock or some other institution would be so equipped that our boys could be instructed in the use of all the modern labour-saving appliances.

The National Anthem brought the enjoyable entertainment to a close. The proceeds are to be devoted to the benefit of a workman who has been incapacitated for some time past.

Capt. Saunders and Supt. Laidley and the employees of the Reid Co. are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts in this worthy cause.

A baby girl was born yesterday to A. J. and Mrs. Goodland (Principal of the C. of E. High School).

To-day, January 6th, is being observed as a holy day by our Roman Catholic friends.

The annual meeting of the Conception Bay British Society was held in the Society's Hall last night. The Treasurer, in his report, showed that the body was better off financially than at this time last year. Three old members had died during the year, and four members wives, the mortality money being $200. The sum of $432 had been paid out on account of sickness during the year. The year's managing expenses were $203.99. The amount to the Society's credit in the banks now is $3,003.18 as against $2,949.00 last year (1912). Over 200 members are on the roll. After the general routine business, was gone through with the election of officers for the present year took place, and resulted as follows:

President—George T. Gordon, elected.
Vice-President—Jordan Sheppard, re-elected.
Treasurer—Albert Heath, re-elected.
Secretary—Wm. A. McKay, re-elected.
The Committee were elected in the following order:
R. Tetter, John D. Webber, Fred Snow, George French, James Parrinello, Charles Ash, Richard Ash, Thomas Courage, John Downing.
Grand Marshal—C. Pike, elected.
Hall-keeper—M. French, re-elected.
The National Anthem brought a very interesting meeting to a close.

Claims 75 Men Were Lost.

Special to Evening Telegram.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 6.
Suffering from injuries received in a wreck on the Fraser River, in which he claims 75 men were lost, Angelo Pugliese applied to the immigration offices to-day for aid. Some time ago Pugliese, who secured work with the Grand Trunk Pacific, was sent with many others to British Columbia, and was kept busy for some time in the vicinity of Port George. In November, with 100 other laborers, he was sent further west on a trip requiring the party to cross the Fraser River. The entire party were loaded in a large boat. Navigation was difficult, the boat became unmanageable, crashed into a large rock, and the frail craft was dashed to pieces. The human cargo was plunged into the torrent, and the men were either dashed to death on the rocks or drowned. Of five score, only 25 were taken from the waters, many of them seriously injured.
