CHAPTER XV.

At that same moment there came the sound of wheels on the drive in the front of the house, and the dressing-bell rang, its loud clear summons pealing through the quiet house.

Stephen Daunt, passing out of the library, at sound of the dressing-bell into the pretty oak-paneled hall, saw the hall door open and Lloyd Milner just alighting from the carriage which had been sent to meet him at the station; and the next minute the two men had clasped hands in a close, friendly pressure, and the young barrister was looking with keen regret at the sadness of the grave, handsome face of his friend, which even Stephen's pleasure at seeing him could not quite dispense.

"Delighted to see you, old fellow," Stephen said, heartily. "We ought to feel grateful to you, I am sure, for leaving London and its pleasures even for a short time."

"London and its what?" Lloyd Milner returned, laughing. "If you call fogs and east winds, draughty courts and dingy chambers pleasures, you may well sympathize with me for leaving them; but such pleasures as those begin to pall sometimes."

"Do they? All pleasures get monotonous at times," answered Stephen rather wearily. "You look well, old fellow, in spite of fogs and east winds and the other delights of a barrister's life in Pump Court."

"That is more than I can say for you," the young barrister said, with a touch of gravity underlying the lightness of his voice and manner. "You look anything but 'fit,' Stephen."

"I am all right," Daunt answered, carelessly. "I have been pretty hard working since our return from abroad—making up for arrears, you know."

"You must have had a delightful tour."

"Oh, very!" Stephen said, dryly. "Will you come and see Sidney before you go to your room? I think she is still in the drawing-room."

He crossed the hall as he spoke, and, opening the drawing-room door, looked into the room. It was apparently empty, and he turned away.

"I am afraid she has gone up to child, you must be dreaming! Look here! What have you been doing?"

As he spoke, he touched the heavy, damp folds of her gown and the soft, waving hair; and Lloyd Milner, looking at her in some surprise and anxiety, saw her face change, and a look of startled consciousness replace the bewildered, vacant expression. Then she burst out laughing, suddenly and almost violently.

"How very stupid of me!" she said. "My head ached, and I went out for a few moments, and I did not notice that it was raining. I am afraid you have brought us bad weather, Mr. Milner. Have you had a very tedious journey?"

"Not at all," he answered, smiling. "Mrs. Daunt had better get rid of those wet garments at once," he added, anxiously, seeing Sidney's languid, inert manner, and feverish, bright eyes.

"Yes, indeed," Stephen said, hastily. "How could you be so imprudent, Sidney?"

"I did not think of the imprudence," she answered, looking up at him with eager, shining eyes. "I am not likely to take cold."

"I don't quite see how you can be exempt from doing so," her husband said, gravely. "Lloyd, I will show you your room. Easthorpe is not Lambewold, you know. You will have no difficulty in finding your way about in it," he added, with a slight laugh.

They all went up-stairs together; but Sidney left them then, with a smiling little nod of farewell to Mr. Milner; and the young barrister went to his rooms full of anxiety and uneasiness at what he had seen.

The few minutes he had been at Easthorpe had shown him only too clearly the unhappy state of things existing between the master and mistress of the beautiful home. Stephen's grave worn face showed a weariness the cause of which lay far deeper than in the hard work by which he had accounted for his altered looks, and Sidney's manner, so strangely cold and indifferent, had impressed him strongly.

What was wrong? he wondered, as he hurriedly unpacked and began to dress for dinner. What had come between them? If ever two persons had married with a bright prospect before them, these two had done so. They had youth and health and prosperity—even riches; and that a great and mutual love existed between them Lloyd Milner had never doubted. Surely a great happiness was in store for them, he had thought on that bright June morning when he had seen them made man and wife, and but four months had elapsed since then—four short months—and this was the end, coldness and indifference and disunion. Whose was the fault? he wondered. Not Stephen Daunt's. He knew him of old, how true and gentle and brave and honorable he was. The fault must have been hers. Perhaps, after all, the beauty which made her so pleasant to look upon, the charm of manner which made her so fascinating, were but the outer covering; the kernel of the nut is often rotten at the core when the shell is fair and so smooth without. And yet she was so beautiful, and she looked so unhappy.

The young barrister's clever, pleasant face wore a grave and troubled look as he went down-stairs, but it brightened suddenly as he caught sight of a graceful white figure moving lightly across the hall, a figure which turned its head at sound of his step and disclosed Dolly's lovely smiling face lighted up with gladness at the sight of her brother's friend.

"So you have come at last!" she said, giving him her hand with a smile. "You could never find time to come to Lambewold all through the summer, but you managed to come here."

"Are you upbraiding me for having come?" he asked, with a touch of reproach in his pleasant voice.

"No," she answered, quickly, "but for not having come."

"If I had thought you," he was beginning, then paused abruptly. What right had he, a struggling barrister, to utter words of tenderness to the daughter of such a wealthy man as John Daunt?

Dolly looked up at him inquiringly, with her innocent smiling eyes full of wonder; and the young man resumed, finishing the sentence in other words than those which had risen to his lips in his pleasure at knowing that she had wished him to come.

ALL IN THE APPROACH.

"It's all in the approach," So says my neighbor. She has been married two years and has just begun to get the full force of that interesting truth which every married woman who is capable of learning anything at all about human relationships gradually learns.

A specific experience brought it home to her with such force that she communicated the discovery to me.

This was the experience: She wanted to wear on a week-end visit a certain frock which her husband, who is a decided conservative, regards as rather too striking. It was really the only frock in her wardrobe that was exactly suitable for the occasion. She has a last year's frock that to her husband's eye was perfectly all right but she had worn it to the same place the year before.

He thought it was his idea. "If I'd told him I was going to wear that dress, he would have been cross and he would have sulked and just spoiled the visit. And if I'd asked him

THE QUICK AND GENTLE WAY TO END A CORN

A Corn will mar a pretty face

That corn is reflected in your face. Pain is disfiguring. If you keep that corn it will hasten crow's-feet. To carry a corn for days is to show those days, unfavorably, in your looks. The constant dull irritation makes its mark in frown lines which do not always come out. Then there's the undaintiness of it. . . . For the sake of personal charm and comfort—let Blue-jay end that corn in 48 hours.

New American Plane
RACES ON AT 270-MILE SPEED IN TESTS.

New York.—Partly throttled, the first of the three Curtiss racing planes built for the Pulitzer air races, made 270 miles an hour in two preliminary test hops at Mitchel Field recently.

On the second flight, with the army's alternate racing pilot, Lieut. J. H. Doolittle, flying, the terrific air pressure tore off a two-foot strip of fabric from the top of the upper wing.

Two disks, stream-lined hubs of the landing wheels, ripped off for the same reason in the first test with Lieut. Al Williams, navy pilot, at the stick.

The speed of 270 miles—an unofficial reading—is four miles faster than Lieut. Williams' greatest officially recorded speed and only eight miles less than the world's record.

"It's a better flying plane than any we've had before," said Lieut. Williams as he climbed out of the cockpit.

As Usual, Somebody "Leaked."

Determined efforts were made to keep secret the speed of the Curtiss racer after the two unofficial test flights. Officially it was stated that the air speed indicator had failed to work and that there was no record for the flight. Both Lieut. Doolittle and Lieut. Williams corroborated this.

It was revealed, unofficially, however, that 270 miles an hour was indicated while the throttles was partially choked.

With the "gun" full on, the 30 miles an hour that Curtiss' engine predicted is expected of the plane. That speed, if reached in recent tests, however, might have stripped every bit of canvas from her wings.

Even so, the plane might still have flown for two-thirds of the wing section is made of brass and serves as both wings and radiator.

Communism Rejected by Parliamentary Labour Party

Controversy at Washington Over Saklatvala--Senator Belcourt to Preside Over Inter-Parliamentary Conference At Ottawa.

LABOUR DISCARDS COMMUNISTS.
LIVERPOOL, Sept. 29.—The Parliamentary Labour Party, at the opening session of the conference to-day decisively disposed of the vexing question of Communist affiliation. The Radicals were routed when the committee resolutions calling for the exclusion of individual Communists from local labour parties, and advising the members not to appoint known Communists as delegates to the Conference.

WHO WILL CONTROL LABOUR?
LONDON, Sept. 29.—The Parliamentary Labour Party Conference in Liverpool is attracting attention throughout the country. It is being given special attention by the London newspapers because they see a vital conflict between the official labour leaders and Communists for control of the Labour Party. Anti-Socialist organs for days past have been stressing the impending battle.

CONTROVERSY OVER SAKLATVALA
NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The controversy over Shapurji Saklatvala, Communist member of the British Commons, who was barred by the State Department from the country, to-day interrupted the proceedings of the Inter-Parliamentary Council and threatened to present itself again when the Washington sessions open Thursday, although the Council to-night did everything in its power to end the incident over the Anglo-Indian radical.

PARENTS BLAMED FOR JUVENILE DELINQUENCY.
OTTAWA, Sept. 29.—Most of the blame for juvenile delinquency is laid at the door of parents by Judge Emily Murphy of Edmonton, who addressed an evening meeting of the Child Welfare Council Conference on juvenile delinquency.

Obituary

MISS ANNIE HANN.
Miss Annie Hann of Port Royal Parish of Bar Haven, died in New York on Sunday, Sept. 20th, after a week's illness with throat trouble. Prior to her going to New York, she spent a little time at Springfield, Mass. U.S.A. Her funeral was held on Wednesday, Sept. 23rd, from her residence, thence to the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, New York. The burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery. On Thursday, memorial services were held in St. Peter and Paul's Church, Port Royal at 11 a.m., when a solemn mass of requiem was celebrated for the repose of her soul by Rev. Francis Cacciola, Rector of the Mission. The remarks of the clergy at the close of Mass gave evidence of the great esteem and worth in which she was held in the land of her birth by all those who had the good fortune to know her. She is survived by her father, mother, her sisters Mary and Laura, and two brothers, James and Anthony at home, Kathleen in St. John, New Brunswick, Canada and Thomas, a brother in New York.

Last Chance to See "The Great Divide"

A Combination Of Cast, Production And Plot.

Seldom have we seen such a combination of cast, production, and story as in "The Great Divide," the Metro-Goldwyn picture which finishes at the Nickel Theatre to-night.

The story, which is from the famous stage play by William Vaughn Moody, is strong and full of numerous twists and thrills that keep one spellbound from start to finish.

The story starts in a small New England village and travels from there to the Painted Desert of Arizona. It is a psychological story of a woman's pride and a battle between her conscious mind and her subconscious instincts.

Alice Terry, as the girl, Ruth Jordan, gives a performance which is flawless and, though it is one of the most difficult roles ever brought to the screen, she carries it so convincingly that she makes it a reality.

Conway Tearle, as the man of the Painted Desert, is a cross between a polished gentleman and a cave-man. A combination which produces a powerful mental and physical creature of great fascination.

Wallace Beery's "Dutch" will not soon be forgotten, there is such individuality to everything he does; and George Cooper as "Shorty," runs a close second for "heavy" honors.

Zasu Pitts has the only feminine role beside that of Alice Terry. She is delightful as the harassed Jolly Jordan.

Huntley Gordon is seen in a new type role as Phillip Jordan, and Alan Forrest has a prominent and "different" role as Dr. Winthrop Newbury, while William Orlamond injects some inimitable comedy touches in his scenes as Lon.

Sauce for the Goose

Indianapolis News: Two women who were smoking cigarettes in a public street in Jamestown, N.D., were arrested because "no perfect lady" would do such a thing. There was no law requiring women to be perfect ladies, so the women were accused of disorderly conduct. The question of whether a "perfect lady" will smoke in public is not at issue. What the country will wish to know is how smoking constitutes disorderly conduct whether indulged in by perfect ladies or imperfect. Women have about the same rights now as men. If they wish to smoke where they may get themselves talked about, but they are within their rights.

A Stickler for Realism

We are told that army manoeuvres this year are to be exceptionally realistic, but in this country we have never attempted to reproduce war conditions quite so faithfully as was the custom of Turkey some ninety years ago. Lord Broughton in 1883, told of an interview with a Grand Vizier, who was described to him as being "very vir" when manoeuvring his troops in sham battles; so lively indeed that he made them "fire bullets through and charge with bayonets and kill one another, although in private life he was a mild man."—The Manchester Guardian.

The Screen Kiss Has Conquered People of Japan

RUSSING IN PUBLIC AND PRIVATE THE RULE, UPSETTING OLD NIPPON TRADITION.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23.—Japan has capitulated to kissing. Adoption of the subtle art as a "pleasing pastime" of the Nipponese Kingdom during the present generation is reported by Bishop John McKim, head of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Japan since 1893. Bishop McKim arrived here to-day en route to New Orleans, where he will cast his ballot next month at a convention of his church in favor of striking from the Episcopal marriage ceremony the word "obey."

Japan's infatuation by the kissing bug, the Bishop said, is epidemic. No longer the seventy-three-year-old church official declared, is a "kiss in the dark" necessary. Public osculation has now reached the point of general acceptance as a thing both proper and nice. The Japanese girls love it, the Bishop admitted, and their "sheikhs"—well—they don't mind it.

Lingering kisses in motion picture films were held by Bishop McKim as responsible for the advent of the Japanese era of osculation. At first deleted by the Nipponese censors, these kisses finally "won" the "blue pencilers" and they crept onto the screen. From that time it has been a "grand public invasion of kissing."

The Japanese preference for kissing he held, was responsible for the quick dropping of the boycott on American films following enactment of the Japanese Exclusion Law. The "kissless variety of Japan" did not take," he said.

Large Audience Enjoyed "Spring Cleaning"

The Harkins Players attracted a large audience at the Cr.ano Theatre last night. "Spring Cleaning" was thoroughly enjoyed by all, and it is, without exception, one of the most entertaining plays ever presented to the theatre-goers of this city. It will be played to-night for the last time. No one who really admires good acting, beautiful dresses and an entertaining play, should miss seeing "Spring Cleaning."
Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights the theatre-goers of St. John's will be given the greatest surprise in the way of a drama. The Compehy will present the thrilling play, "The Nightcap," by Max Martin and Guy Bolton. The plot of the play is as follows:—
Robert Andrews is giving a party, a big celebration. His friends wonder why he is giving it. He tells them that he is celebrating his own death. He has robbed the bank of which he is one of the directors, of eight hundred thousand dollars, and then to protect the depositors, he insures his life for that amount; but the policies contain a suicide clause, so he informs his co-directors that he must be murdered. They refuse, and he suggests that they hire some crook. This they also refuse to do, so he hires one himself. In the meantime, however, one of the directors is murdered. Who did it? Nobody knows, but each suspects the other. The bank examiners are due on Monday morning, but before Monday the bank is robbed. Who robbed the bank? Nobody knows that. Mystery after mystery, thrill after thrill, suspense, excitement, chills, creep, tears and laughter; in fact every human emotion that ever was or ever could be in "The Night Cap."

T.A. ATHLETES FITTINGLY CELEBRATE SEASON'S SUCCESSES.

The victories achieved by the athletes of the T.A. & B. Society, during the past season, were fittingly celebrated in the Society's reading room last night. The spacious room was nicely decorated with the Club's colors, while a portrait of Father Matheis, patron of the Society, was suspended at the head of the festive board. The special guests of the evening were Rev. Fr. Pippy, Spiritual Director; Hon. W. J. Higgins, President; C. E. Hunt, H. Coultas, the official referee, the officers and team representatives of the Junior League, and many others. The arrangements, carried out by the chairman and managing committee were perfect in every detail. The catering, which was left in the hands of the Ladies' Auxiliary, brought forth the highest praise. The menu was par excellence and, needless to say, was done full justice to by the eighty people in attendance. The occasion was the celebration of the T.A. football team, champions of the Junior League; the rowing crew, which had won honors at the Annual Regatta and Fr. Pippy's Gordon Party and Regatta; and the success of the Relay team. These honors, which had come in one single season, were unique in the history of the Society, and for this reason many of the old members of the Society assembled to show their deep sense of gratitude to the boys who had fought and won. Amongst the oldest members present were Mr. Frank Walsh, who recently celebrated his sixtieth anniversary of membership; Hon. W. J. Ellis, P. J. Hanley and Mr. Clancy. The three last named have put in over fifty years, and side by side with them were those of more recent years, and last, but not least, those boys of the present day, all of whom were filled with the same spirit, that of bringing honor to the Society. Mr. M. P. Hynes, Chairman of the Club, presided and made an excellent toast master. He opened the proceedings with a very fine speech in which he welcomed the guests of the evening, and those who gave of their services freely, assisting the teams in what proved to be a great athletic achievement. Following the chairman's remarks, an excellent toast list was taken up, interspersed with songs and much wit, especially from the younger members, was forthcoming. Happy notes were struck by most speakers, and as a result this occasion will mark an epoch in the history of the Society. The winning teams were heartily congratulated, whilst the Junior League, which has only been in existence a short few years, also came in for a big share of the praise. A splendid spirit of comradeship prevailed, and the enjoyable evening as spent was plainly apparent on the faces of all present, and their only regret was when the last item had concluded.

YOUNG SWIMMER WILL ATTEMPT ENGLISH CHANNEL.

Irene Hesseusis, Winner of Big Boston Swim, is at Strand.
Gertrude Ederle's failure to swim the English Channel does not mean that America will not be able to send across a fair mermaid capable of completing the long swim. The next swimmer from the American side to try the channel will be Miss Irene Hesseusis, 17 year old Boston swimmer, whose thrilling swim to victory in the recent Charlestown Bridge to Boston Light race, was the outstanding feat in Boston aquatic this year. At present Miss Hesseusis is with Bob O'Leary's splendid little company at the Strand, doing her act with the chorus. She is a clever dancer and a graduate of a Boston school of high repute.

Will Try Swim.

Asked if she would be ready for the long swim next year, Miss Hesseusis said: "Of course next year is a long way off and one can never tell what to expect. I would love to go across the water and try the long swim, and I am confident that I could make it. The swim in Boston which I won was 14 miles, and I wasn't really all tired out and could have gone on for several more miles. It was my first real long swim. Boston parties have confidence in me and believe that I could make the English Channel successfully. By Bug Light, in the Boston swim, I battled the incoming tide. We made a late start and encountered the awful tide dreaded by all long distance swimmers. I am under the instructions of Ben Lewis, of the Boston Swimming Association, and intend to do a lot of fancy diving in England."

Beat Eva Morrison.

The Boston American says: "Victorious in the swim from Charlestown Bridge to Boston Light, Miss Irene Hesseusis, of Winthrop, plans to try the English Channel next year. Miss Hesseusis was none the worse for her swim, save for a slight muscular contraction in her right knee. Although she never attempted swimming for distance before, she won the Mrs. James M. Curley trophy by finishing ahead of a field of girls, making the long swim of 14 miles in 7 hours and 9 minutes. Miss Eva Morrison, Revere, was the only other girl to finish. She was 58 minutes slower than Miss Hesseusis. The Winthrop girl's mark is an N.E.A.A.U. record. Rose Pittinoff did it in six hours and 47 minutes but not under A.A.U. sanction. There were two other starters, Miss Mae Edwell of Revere, and Miss May Murphy, of South Boston, but only Miss Hesseusis and Miss Morrison finished. Miss Murphy complained of nausea and was taken out of the water when she was opposite the Revere Beach ferry slip. Miss Edwell was taken out of the water at the entrance to the Narrows."

WASHINGTON WINS SECOND CONSECUTIVE AMERICAN LEAGUE PENNANT.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Washington to-day clinched its second consecutive American League pennant. The champions took the first game in ten innings, 4 to 3, and captured the pennant, 6 to 2.

The pennant was clinched with the crowd in the grandstand apparently unaware of it. As the last out in the second game was made, the fans drifted calmly out of the park with only the usual demonstration accompanying a victory.

For the last three weeks Washington had held a commanding lead in the race and ultimate result was more or less taken for granted here. The champions made their final bid for the flag with three straight victories over Cleveland, in which which three of the veteran regulars, Manager Harris, Peckinpaugh and Walter Johnson were out of the game because of injuries. All, with the possible exception of Harris, will be able to start against Pittsburgh in the opening game of the World Series less than two weeks hence.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Babe Ruth, Yankee slugger, has been sworn in as a Lieutenant of the Police Reserves with authority to supervise baseball and other athletic activities of the New York Department.

PENNANT NAILED TO THE MAST OF PITTSBURGH PIRATES, NATIONAL LEAGUE.

NE WYOMING, Sept. 24.—The National League pennant race is over with the budding mailed firmly to the Pirates' mast. Washington could settle the American League controversy to-day if it should win its double bill from the Indians and the Mackmen should bow to the Browns.

Pittsburgh had been chasing the championship for 15 years without success. Manager McKechnie, his assistants and players, were given an ovation by fans who swarmed the field after the Corsairs beat the Phillies 2 to 1.

TOMMY LOUGHRAN SCORES KNOCKOUT OVER JACK BURKE.

Bout Ends in Sixth Round, When Seconds Throw in Towel.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia light heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over Jack Burke, of Pittsburgh, the latter's seconds throwing a towel into the ring at the end of the sixth round. Burke substituted for King Solomon, of Panama who appeared in the ring and explained that he had broken a bone in his hand and was unable to fight.

In the ten round semi-windup Sid Terles, New York, won the judge's decision over Harry (Pinky) Brown Philadelphia. Brown substituted for Alex Hart, Ridley Park, Pa., who failed to appear. Terles weighed 134 pounds and Brown 135.

Joe Dundee, Baltimore was awarded the referee's decision over Pinky Mitchell, Milwaukee, after the judges had disagreed. Dundee weighed 141 Mitchell 148 pounds.

GOODYEAR HAS LARGEST TYRE PRODUCTION IN WORLD

Celebrating the building of the 75,000,000th automobile tyre manufactured under his direction, and the completion of his own 25 years of service with the Goodyear Tyre and Rubber Company, P. W. Litchfield, First Vice-President, announced recently a gift of $25,000 to the Welfare Committee of the Goodyear Industrial Assembly.

The money is to be used by this committee of employees of the plant to assist deserving workers, for educational work, and for rewarding unusual service or achievement. The gift is to be distributed entirely within the discretion of the men.

The 75,000,000th tyre, a 44 x 10 heavy duty truck tyre, was displayed during the celebration of Akron's Centennial recently.

Mr. Litchfield joined the company as factory manager in 1900 when the company was less than a year and a half old and when its main products were carriage tyres and bicycle tyres. Under his direction the first Goodyear automobile tyre was built. The total production of 75,000,000 built since that time under his supervision makes it the largest tyre production of any company in the world. Mr. Litchfield is the originator of the Industrial Assembly plan, a form of shop council under which 60 representatives and senators, selected by employees, legislate on such matters as working conditions, safety, sanitation, hours and wages, subject only to the factory manager. The assemblymen whose districts are concerned sit in at all sessions at which any change of wage is under discussion. The plan has been in operation for six years.

This is the second large gift made by Mr. Litchfield. In 1914 he gave $100,000 to the men of five years' service and over, the income of which is distributed among service men in the plant.

More than $100,000 in cash has been distributed from the earnings of the original gift. Mr. Litchfield is credited with bringing out the first Straight Side tyre, the first successful Cord tyre, the first Pneumatic Truck tyre. His latest contribution to tyre construction is the Superwulf Cord, a highly resilient cord material used in building balloon and high pressure tyres.

WALKER-SHADE RETURN MATCH.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Negotiations for a return match between Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, and Dave Shade, of California, Madison Square Garden promoter. The indecisiveness of Walker's victory over Shade in a 16-round title clash at the Yankee Stadium last night, the promoter said, prompted him to start dickering for a return match.

"LITTLE BILL" PUT UP MAGNIFICENT FIGHT.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 21.—William "Pat" Tilden, II, remains the undisputed tennis champion of the United States. He won the title Saturday when he turned back the challenge of his veteran rival, William M. Johnston, of California, in five sets. The score was 4-6, 11-9, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, but the cold statistics fail to tell the story of Johnston's magnificent fight to overthrow the champion who six times kept him from the title, or the story of Tilden's genius and coolness in times of peril which kept the crowd of thirteen thousand keyed high throughout the match.

Johnston was three times within a point of taking the second set, Tilden's amazing poise preventing him from taking that advantage and when the champion rushed through the third set the spectators thought it was all up with "Little Bill." But, the Californian came back with a hurricane spurt to take the fourth set and square the match. He had the crowd in an up-

Interstate Fair harness races recently.

To prove that his first victory was not a fluke, Don Mac came back in the second heat and won in 1:38 1-4.

$12,000 PRIZE MONEY FOR WEEK OF GOLF AT LOS ANGELES.

LOS ANGELES.—A one-day, 36 hole open golf tournament, with $2,000 in cash at stake, will be staged here in January in connection with the great $10,000 Los Angeles open championship which is to be played January 7, 8 and 9.

The added money, which will give professional golfers more than $12,000 to shoot at over a period of less than seven days, has been put up by officials of the Virginia Country Club at Long Beach, one of the most exclusive golf and country clubs in California.

Definite plans for the special one-day event, which sets a record in point of prize money for single day open tournament competition, are now worked out.

It is planned to hold the $2,000 affair just previous to the $10,000 play and over different Los Angeles links. This will give all visiting professional the opportunity to play in both events with undue waste of time.

The prize money for both tournaments is now in a Los Angeles bank, the two events having been underwritten by prominent Southern California sportsmen.

Officials in charge of the tournament, have received word from many of the star pros. of the east that they will be here for the play and the event is expected to be one of the greatest link classics staged in recent years.

Both tournaments will be open to all professional players.

Mosul and the League of Nations

The trouble in the east which assumed such alarming proportions a few days ago has been deferred for the time being, and Turkey is given three months longer to brood over her grievances, to perfect her plans for the eventual struggle and to continue the persecution of her Christian subjects.

The bone of contention is Mosul, a Turkish province on the River Tigris, over which Great Britain was given mandatory power by the Arbitration Commission of the League of Nations. This decision which incurred the ill-will of Turkey was far from acceptable to the whole of the British public, a large section of which took the view that it was bound to saddle the country with unnecessary responsibility and heavy expenditure at a time when further commitments should be avoided if at all possible.

At the recent session of the League the question was the most important one on the agenda, and it was hoped by all that a definite settlement would be arrived at. Turkey, however, was in no mood for a compromise, and the head of the delegation not only defied the authority of the League but flung down the gauntlet to Great Britain. That it was not picked up was entirely due to the forbearance of the latter and not to any action of the League, and further, in the face of Turkey's defiance, that body showed itself weak and vacillating.

The occasion afforded the League an excellent opportunity to prove that it did possess some authority, but instead it decided to turn the matter over to the Court of International Justice at the Hague, on the plea that there were certain abstruse points of law to be settled in connection with the problem. The action of the League may only be regarded as a desire to shift the responsibility off its own shoulders, and cannot but result in weakening its influence even if it does not hasten its demise. So far it cannot be said to have effectively fulfilled its mission. Mussolini, it will be remembered, gave it a severe jolt over the Grecian incident; Austin Chamberlain's bombshell in the matter of the peace protocol shook it to its foundation, and in this instance it has damaged its prestige by its own act. Even the strongest supporters of the League must begin to wonder whether it is serving the purpose for which it was established or whether it is nothing more than an elaborate debating society. The question is are the statesmen of which it is composed sincere in their intentions? Do they actually believe that the establishment of a world peace by such means is feasible, or are all the discussions on disarmament and the outlawing of war nothing more than expedients to return to normalcy of their own accord? It may be heresy to suggest such things, but the outcome so far of all the deliberations does not tend to strengthen the belief that the settlement of quarrels by other means than by war is any nearer solution than it ever was.

Oporto Market Report

In a report to the Secretary of the Board of Trade under date Sept. 10th, Messrs. Lind and Couto, fish dealers, Oporto, state that: "The demand opened this week fairly briskly but there seems a tendency for prices generally to weaken. During last week prices were well maintained all round and in our opinion the present weakening can be attributed to important quantities of fish that are softening in the heat and therefore necessitating forced sales. Besides this it is known that heavy quantities are on the way from Newfoundland and loading there. We are doing our utmost to keep prices at the highest possible point. There are still plentiful supplies of cheap fresh meat and sardines which tend to crush the sales of fish."

Income Tax Case

A VERY IMPORTANT JUDGMENT HANDED DOWN BY JUDGE MORRIS.

Judgment in the case of the Minister of Finance and Customs against Sir R. A. Squires for a breach of Section 7 of the War Tax Act of 1918, was handed down by Judge Morris in the Central District Court this morning as follows:—After hearing the evidence submitted on the part of the prosecution and arguments of learned counsel, and after examining the document with affidavit attached marked "exhibit 2," put in on the evidence of Joseph O'Reilly, assessor, purporting to be a statement of the defendant's total income during the calendar year preceding the 31st day of December, 1921, I hold that said document and affidavits are not a return on oath, of the defendant's total income during the said preceding calendar year, in the form prescribed by the Minister of Finance and Customs as provided for under Section 7 of the War Tax Act of 1918. I, therefore, adjudge the defendant to have committed a breach of Section 7 of the War Tax Act of 1918 and impose a fine upon him of $1000.00. Dated at St. John's this 30th day of Sept., 1925. (Sgd.) F. J. MORRIS.

Magistrate's Court

A drunk was fined $1.50 and black-listed. A man taken in for vagrancy was sent to jail for 14 days. A labourer was summoned into court at the instance of his wife for being drunk in his home and assaulting and beating her on Monday night. He pleaded "guilty." The woman at his appearance in court presented a very pitiful sight, her eyes having been blackened and swollen so that she could hardly see. It appears that the wife was hanging paper when "hubby" arrived home, "half seas over," and objected to the work. Judge Morris, in summing up, stated the defendant was nothing but a brute to beat his wife in the manner that the marks showed. He was too much of a coward to go out and attack a man his equal, and His Honor felt sorry that he could not send him to jail to receive a good flogging. If he sent him down his wife and little infant would be the chief sufferers. The prisoner was placed under a bond of $100 to keep the peace. He was advised that if he laid a hand on his wife again, when either drunk or sober, he would be severely dealt with by the court. The man in question is an employee at the dry dock and earning good wages.

Dinner Tendered in Honor of Birthday

Last night at Smithville, Sir Michael Cashin was tendered a dinner in honor of his 61st birthday, which he celebrated yesterday. Hon. Tasker Cook presided and some sixty guests were present. An excellent menu was provided and an enjoyable time spent by all; a splendid programme of speeches and songs being gone through. A feature of the evening was the presentation to Sir Michael Cashin of a very handsome smokers' set.

Dispute Ended

Last week some trouble arose at the Dry Dock which ended in the transference elsewhere of the General Superintendent of the Company. The workmen resented the action as taken, and when the position was filled by another man threats were made that all work would cease. The police were called in by the Company fearing that the men would put their threats into effect, but law and order prevailed when they had received a better understanding of the surrounding circumstances. The new superintendent employed is an American, having seen considerable service in France, and only recently left a big contracting job in Canada where he had 1000 men under his supervision. Before leaving his fellow workmen presented him with a gold watch and chain. Everything is working well at the dock today.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

Sept. 29th.—The day might fine, being quite warm all the morning, to my very great content. So abroad, but little news anywhere, save that I am told how there is like to be something done in the matter of sending drunks to prison for long terms. Indeed, one did tell me how 'tis commonly reported that more than 1000 serving sentences of more than 1 month for drunkenness will be released.

Satisfactory Settlement

OF FLOUR MILL PROJECT. In connection with the proposed Flour Mills, we understand that negotiations with the Government have been concluded satisfactorily and the project will be proceeded with after the arrival of the fiscal agent of the Company, Mr. E. P. Truett, who is leaving New York on October 10th, by S.S. Silvia.

Wasted Repairs.

The lane to the east of the Telegram Building was repaired within the past few days with a coat of gravel, but last night's rain carried to the foot of the slope. The material to the foot of the slope. The useless making repairs to such "water shuts" unless steps are taken to divert the stream, which runs down after every downpour, and we would suggest that the city engineer overlook the place to locate the trouble.

An attempt will be made at the forthcoming meeting of the Labor party at Liverpool, he says, to place the party on record as recognizing the "Communists" share our faith and our ways, and can operate with us in the practical work of upbuilding society in accordance with our heart's desire. "Of course, they cannot," he continues. "When we are in office we found out that their chief desire was to hang us."

INJECTS CANCER GERM IN SELF TO PROVE HIS CURE. LONDON, Ont., Sept. 22.—Dr. W. T. Galbraith, veterinary surgeon, believes after five years of experimentation he has discovered a cure for cancer. So positive was Dr. Galbraith that his cure, called "Isilin," was the real thing that he injected cancer virus into himself last fall and then proceeded to cure it with "Isilin." "This substance," says Dr. Galbraith, "administered where cancer has developed has broken it down. It is practically a preventive and brings immunity. We have experimented with dogs, horses and goats and we feel that we have at last reached our goal, cure for cancer."

Platinum Setting is General. All gems are set in platinum. Indeed, it is rare in a smart assembly to see a gold brooch or gold bracelet—unless it be of a quaint "heirloom" type. Platinum enhances the cold, hard dewdrop glitter of diamonds—or paste—and the milky beauty of pearls. The fashion for setting gems in platinum has brought in its train a revival of the Vogue for putting colored stones together. To have diamonds, emeralds, rubies, and sapphires in a gold setting often looks vulgar, yet in older days, when they were set in silver, they looked very well—as they do also in platinum. Hence in the very best shops and on wearers of acknowledged good taste one sees gems of different hues congregated to form a brooch in the basket-of-flowers style, and assembled to form a brooch or a tiny spray to serve as earrings.

Airplanes Will

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(C.P.)—The military officers who will be on duty on board men if the British fleet is sent on a battle cruise if they had applied the "dangerous" position of fewer than nine airplanes per ship, being merely spectators of the air warfare, they were not "out of action."

According to a newspaper which is more or less military in its character, the military officers who are being ordered to accompany the fleet are being ordered to accompany the fleet in order to observe the rate of action in the event of a battle.

Among the hundreds of the air forces are not only posted up, but also being trained in the art of flying. The military officers who are being ordered to accompany the fleet are being ordered to accompany the fleet in order to observe the rate of action in the event of a battle.

"I want to go home," is the regular marching song during military operations. It hardly needs an open avenue such as a military notability, Marshal Sir William Robertson, the military officer who is being ordered to accompany the fleet, is being ordered to accompany the fleet in order to observe the rate of action in the event of a battle.

Incidentally, in the event of a battle, the military officers who are being ordered to accompany the fleet are being ordered to accompany the fleet in order to observe the rate of action in the event of a battle.

Spectators turned out by the sands the first day of the manoeuvres, but the rain sent most of them before the manoeuvres were over. Meanwhile the troops carried out pretty much the same drill as under similar conditions in the past. The military officers who are being ordered to accompany the fleet are being ordered to accompany the fleet in order to observe the rate of action in the event of a battle.

Major-General J. H. Macrievan, who is a guest of the manoeuvres, is a guest of the manoeuvres.

Attack Made on Lord George

LONDON.—Former premier Lord George is finding the task of re-asserting his power is not only a difficult one, but also a very costly one. He is filled with the memories of his political career and scheme which is offering an inducement to them to all in the land.

The Morning Post has had at its disposal an article which is an excellent example of the kind of journalism which is being practiced in this country. The article is a very good one, and it is a very good one.

Lord George has been attacked by the Morning Post, and the article is a very good one. The article is a very good one, and it is a very good one.

Airplanes Win in Sham War

HAIG IN "DANGER"
LONDON, Sept. 23.—(C.P.)—Field Marshal Earl Haig and a cluster of military officers with him would have on a real battle and if they had occupied the "dangerous" position yesterday, as they were spotted by fewer than nine aeroplanes. However, being merely spectators of the mimic warfare, they were not even "out of action."

According to newspaper writers to be more or less military men, aeroplanes are carrying everything for them in the clash of arms on which the fate of London is supposed to depend. Among the humors of the manoeuvres are notices posted on bridges signifying that the bridges have been theoretically destroyed by fire, but the notices are being obliterated by a torrential rain. It is announced that rum rations are being served daily, while the townpunks. "I want to go home," is the most popular marching song during the military operations. It hardly needs an open avowal of such a military notability as Marshal Sir William Robertson convince the layman that the manoeuvres, however ably conducted, bear only a very faint resemblance to war. This was exemplified by the incident of Earl Haig and his companions standing in the line of march. Incidentally, in view of the bitter experiences which newspapermen had during the wartime in attempting to gain information of the progress of events for the enlightenment of the people at home, it is refreshing to note the almost complete freedom enjoyed by the writers in the present operations. Even those military men who wear "brass hats" richly worthy to betray no objection to crowding themselves for the photographers. Spectators turned out by the thousands the first day of the manoeuvres, but the rain sent most of them home before the manoeuvres were ended. Meanwhile the troops carried on in pretty much the same district, and under similar conditions, were Canada's First Division endured its earliest misery in the autumn and winter of 1914. Major-General J. H. Macpherson, Ottawa, is a guest of the umpires of the manoeuvres.

Attack Made on Lloyd George

HIS DENIAL SUBSTANTIALLY UPSET.

LONDON.—Former Premier Lloyd George is finding the road of return power is not only rocky but that it is filled with people with long memories who are skeptical of the old scheme which he is offering as inducement to them to all in bed with him. The Morning Post hits hard at him in an article which endeavors to show that he is in the same boat as those whom he castigated in his recent speech, being the owner of an estate at Churt of which more than one-half was at one time common land.

Lloyd George hits back this morning with a letter denying his and declaring that far from being common when he bought it, it was heavily stocked with pheasant as a game reserve and surrounded with a hedge. Notices posted in every direction that trespassers would be prosecuted. He says he purchased it the open market from "respected members of the House of Lords who, needless to say, considers the vice he obtained was fair and reasonable."

Is "Open Land?"
The Morning Post replies to this far plerous blow with a statement from Lord Ashcombe, the son of the man from whom the land was purchased, and who says, "I have known the land for 30 or 40 years and can remember notices of the kind referred to by Lloyd George being issued. There was some shooting which was let and the tenants may have put up notices, but the rest of the land is what is called in Surrey 'open land' and the public always had access to it, and the troops at Boreham used it for manoeuvres."

The Morning Post also cites from special correspondents, who says he substantiate all these statements personally and that he has inspected documents going as far back as 1850 in which year allotments of the common land were made in pursuance of the Enclosure Act. However, the land is on, and Lloyd George is not expected to get any more out of it, and it is possible that he will have to journey to

Increasing Sterility of Blueberry Barrens a Grave Problem

The following report of the blueberry industry in the Maritime Provinces, indicates the alarm felt over the growing sterility of the barrens owing to the value to be obtained in the American markets for this fruit: LOSS IN 1925, IS $50,000 OR MORE.

YARMOUTH, Sept. 21.—A condition of grave concern to many sections in the eastern part of Yarmouth County and practically all through Shelburne County is the sterility of the blueberries of these two counties are almost extinct. The barrens where thousands of crates were picked annually are now so run out that this season the yield, in crates, will easily be counted in the hundreds. Such a condition is a distinct monetary loss to this section of the province and something should be done immediately to effect a remedy. A year ago the Crown Lands Department of the Nova Scotia Government made a survey, with the result that the burning of two very large plots was done early this spring. Reports from those sections is to the effect that the new growth, showing in these lots, is marvellous and those familiar with the industry predict, all conditions favorable, a greatly increased crop for 1926.

Berries Not Fit To Pick.
In Shelburne, it is stated, there are miles and miles of territory absolutely useless for any other purpose than raising of blueberries, and yet the quantity of berries picked there this season will be only a matter of a few hundreds of crates. It is reported that on the barrens of that country, and also at points back of the Publicos, the berries are not only scarce, but a very large proportion are not fit to pick. A year or so ago shippers, with a number of helpers, at different points in those sections, would be working far into the night in order to get the pickings of one day crated and ready for shipment the next day, but that is now all past. The barrens, it can be said, are positively run out and must be burned over in order to replenish the yield.

The monetary loss is heavy. For instance, during the blueberry season of 1922, from July 13 to September 16, there were shipped to Yarmouth by Canadian Express Company from Shelburne County points for trans-shipment to Boston, a total of 10,073 crates of berries. Following that year the barrens began to fall and so rapidly did the crop diminish that for the same period in 1923 the yield fell off about fifty per cent, while for 1924 the crop dropped to at least fifty per cent. of the 1923 pickings.

Heavy Stumps In Shipments.
This year the blueberries were somewhat later than previous seasons, the first consignment of five crates to Boston being sent on July 22, and from that date until August 21, the shipments totalled 1,753 crates; a decrease of over $,000 in three years. Shipments via the Canadian Express to Yarmouth for the Boston market came in very large quantities, the greatest for one day being 570, against 115 for this year, and that for only one shipment. The next largest was eighty-one on one day and seventy-five crates for only one shipment. From that it has ranged from five to seventy-two crates.

When the fact is considered that the berries are worth $4.00 a crate, a direct loss in Yarmouth and Shelburne counties this year in berries alone can easily be placed at considerably over $53,000 to the pickers and shippers.

Burnt Barrens, Is Remedy.
Then again there is, owing to small shipments a loss in employment which from a financial standpoint would be difficult to estimate, but it can be readily calculated that the failure of the blueberry crop means a loss of at least $50,000.

Last year the Crown Lands Department of the Nova Scotia Government authorized the burning of the areas in Yarmouth County, which were set ablaze last spring and now are showing excellent new growth while next spring it is expected other pieces of barrens will be similarly treated. As for Shelburne those who are interested or depending on the blueberry industry, are being urged to make application to the Department of Natural Resources and Development at Halifax for an immediate survey for the burning in order that the blueberry industry may again become remunerative to hundreds of people in that county.

Do We Sleep Too Much

Is sleep, taken in too big doses, a drug which dulls the intellect and fills the body with poisons? Dr. Fred A. Moss, professor of psychology at George Washington University, Washington, D.C., believes that this conclusion may result from data gathered by a test during which the experimenter and eight of his students subjected themselves to an ordeal of sixty slumberless hours. All of them, four men and four women, in perfect physical condition, were told by the Boston Globe, emerged from the test apparently none the worse. Long and tomobile drives through the "illages surrounding Washington, dances, singing, frequent and rigid examinations by university physicians, and attention to the routine daily tasks helped to while away the long hours. We read:

"It required courage and tenacity. Professor Moss admits, to fight off the persistent demands of Morpheus; but after the first sleepless night, it was not so hard. Once routed, slumber was more cautious in its future approaches. At the end of the vigil, when they were free to go to their beds, none of the students showed any tendency toward prolonged sleep.

"The tests will be repeated soon. Dr. Moss believes that they have opened up for both physicians and psychologists a research field of the utmost importance, and may have pointed the way to a definite lengthening of human life, even aside from the working and playing time which can be rescued from the oblivion of blankets and mattresses.

"It is too early as yet, he says, to make any definite statement on the results of the tests. All those who took them have returned to their customary activities. The general results, however, seem to indicate that sleep is of little benefit to the mind, and that the only bad effects of prolonged sleeplessness are to be sought in the body, rather than the brain.

"One of the unexpected conditions noticed was that the blood-pressure of every student dropped hourly after the first twenty hours, the rate of decline increasing quite rapidly as the vigil progressed. On the other hand, the capacity for mental activity as revealed by the auto parking and army alpha tests decreased very slowly.

at the end. After a good meal, however, they were fully restored, to continue to the end of the ordeal.

"Results which still are to be determined relate to the effect of caffeine. Those who are coffee-drinkers abstained completely! Those who never drink coffee partook of it in considerable quantities. Dr. Moss expects it to prove that coffee really has nothing to do with sleeplessness, in spite of the old-fashioned idea that a cup before bedtime will keep the subject awake.

"He figures that if a third of the customary sleeping time could be cut off, the individual could add five years of working time to the average life."

This may be all very well, comments the Philadelphia Record, but it is to be hoped that the general public will not be inspired to try upon itself any such experiments with the help of prolonging life by stealing hours that have ordinarily been given to the restoration of nature in a comfortable bed, for "it is probably true that some of us sleep too much, but it is equally true that some of us sleep entirely too little. It is a deplorable fact that Americans as a whole are entirely too wide-awake and therefore more nervous than they should be." The New Haven Register thinks that the results of the test explain in some degree the oddities of genius. It says:

"Writers and composers have been known to get their greatest inspirations in the times of wakefulness or in times of stress, and if the experiment at the George Washington University bears out the partial conclusion that the body and not the mind suffers by loss of sleep that conclusion would fit with the most modern psychological theory that the greatest height of the mind is reached only by a weakening of the body."

If the object of this test is to prove that we can all get along with much less sleep than we now take, or to reassure sufferers from insomnia that their health is not being endangered, some good may come from the experiment, thinks the Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph. We read:

"Thomas A. Edison has always been held up as the classic example of the needlessness of long hours of somnolence. Like Napoleon, he is said to be able to get along with only four or five hours of sleep in the twenty-four. But a recent interviewer tells us that the great inventor is accustomed to lie down for brief naps during the day whenever he can find the time. Indeed, it is said he possessed the faculty of going to sleep in the midst of a battle for a 'cat nap.'

Miners in Angry Mood

ACCUSE PREMIER BALDWIN WITH HAVING BROKEN TERMS OF TRUCE.

By Reducing Wages in Certain Regions.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—There is a new threat of trouble in the coal mine districts. The miners are upset over a decision by Premier Baldwin in which he accepted the contention of the mine owners in their dispute with the Miners Federation of their right to reduce wages in certain regions. The miners contend that his decision is at variance with the agreement under which the government granted a subsidy of ten million pounds to mine owners to enable them to maintain the current scale of wages pending an inquiry by a Royal Commission into the entire coal situation.

The immediate fear is that the present trouble may lead to a cessation of activities in the coal industry, but much water will pass under the bridges before such a contingency materializes, as the miners will not make a final decision until October 8, when they have called a meeting to discuss the situation. Meantime every effort doubtless will be made to settle the trouble satisfactorily to both sides.

A. J. Cook, Secretary of the Miners' Federation, and other leaders of the men, are in an angry mood. They accuse the Premier of having deliberately broken the terms of the truce, which prevented a strike, in favor of the owners. They charge him with following a mean, dishonest and perfidiously short-sighted course, and they have withdrawn from participation in the work of the Royal Commission. They also have appealed to the entire labor movement to support them in their insistence that the miners' wages be not reduced. The defenders of Premier Baldwin say his decision was absolutely correct.

Husband's Forgetfulness

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 23 (Can. Press)—Last June Mayor Mikel of this City sent an invitation to Mary Pickford and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, the celebrated movie artists, to attend the celebration of the 110 years of peace between Canada and the United States which was held at Belleville the first week in August. No answer came. This surprised Mayor Mikel's letter in her husband's pocket, unanswered. After receiving the letter he had, husband like, placed it in his coat pocket, hung up the coat and having no occasion to wear it again till September, forgot all about it. Mary Pickford at once telegraphed Mayor Mikel the cause of her seeming indifference to his invitation and wrote explaining more fully. It seems that even husbands of star movie artists cannot be relied on to handle their wives' correspondence.

City Buried in Sand

We are accustomed to buried cities of the East, and even in the forests of Africa one is not surprised to hear that ancient ruins have been found buried in the jungle. But to find a buried city in Wales seems something of an anomaly.

In the days of the Conqueror, Kenfig was a walled city, a great commercial centre, and filled with art men. But an insidious foe-blown sand—was always liable to break down its best defences. By year bit by bit, it gained the tory, until by the time Queen Elizabeth began her reign there was left of the city to be seen except sand and a ruined tower.

A Scottish Home Rule Demonstration.

London, Eng., Sept. 24. (Canadian Press)—At a demonstration in favor of home rule for Scotland, Thomas Johnston, M.P., gave a graphic description of the experience of the citizens of Glasgow and of neighbouring districts before a Parliamentary Committee sitting at Westminster to consider a bill which the Scottish authorities were promoting in parliament.

"To London there came flocks of witnesses," said Mr. Johnston, "Doctors, lawyers, town clerks, engineers, burg surveyors, education officers—expert witnesses, one of whom got £250 for an hour and a half in the witness-box. These skilled men, engaged at so much per day, were housed in great hotels in London. On the committee of enquiry there was no Scotsman; there was only one man on it who had ever been in Scotland. There they sat for months in the Westminster committee room along with a floor of over twenty advocates, some of them at £1000 down—cash on the nail; a retainer it was called—and £40 a day as a refreshment. There they were, twenty of them, with wigs and gowns, spinning the thing out—"Oh, Lord, let it last a while." At the end of it all nobody was satisfied. Neither the promoters nor the opponents believe they had got justice."

Mr. Cunningham Graham—"Surely the lawyers were satisfied?" Mr. Johnston—"No, no, not yet. One member of the committee had told him that the coats up till now were over £200,000 and it was not finished. The bill was only through the House of Commons committee. The lawyers declined to accept the decision of that committee, and the bill was now to come before the House of Lords committee. Before four or five peers who might never have been in Scotland, the whole farce was to be gone over again. What a waste! What an insult to a proud and intelligent people," exclaimed Mr. Johnston.

CONFEDERATION LIFE.

aug17,3mos

INGRATITUDE. The man of millions looks around, as age comes on, to see if some way can't be found to help the human race. He tells his lawyers, "By the road, I'd like to use my roll to do some good, before the death bells toll. I'd like to think that when I'm dead about a thousand years, around my tomb the crowds will tread, their eyes sufficed with tears, remarking, 'though he's dead the sod his noble fame survives; he is the gent who blew his way to brighten human lives.' So let us plan to put my wealth where it will elevate the physical and moral health of every living skate." It is a grand and splendid scheme, of everlasting worth, and it should be the sounding theme of every hard on earth. And each considerable galoot, and every wholesome man should praise the wise and kindly plute who loved his fellowman. But people say, "He got his way by selling axle grease which was a base and beastly fraud, denounced by our police. We saw this man monopolize the grease mines everywhere, and now he thinks, before he dies, he'll make his record square. We'll profit by the wealth he gives, we'll put it in our pokes, and we'll abhor him while he lives, and roast him when he croaks." And by this babbling man confess a jealous insane; they hate a man for that success which they can not attain.

Prince Henry "Killed in Action"

King's Third Son Appears on Casualty List of Mock War.

WILTSHIRE, England, Sept. 24.—Prince Henry, the King's third son, was adjudicated "killed in action" by a referee in the army manoeuvres now proceeding in this district. Prince Henry, who is serving with the Blue Army, defending London, became a "casualty" while leading his troop of Hussars against the tanks and artillery of the Red forces. He was caught in a burst of artillery fire which "wiped out" his gallant cavalry squad. It had been unofficially reported that Prince Henry, Field Marshal Earl Haig and many other distinguished officers were "killed" in a morning raid, but this was apparently a false rumor.

Professor W. Seeley

THE MUSCLE BUILDER.

Will perform again in about 3 weeks time and will surely convince the public that there was no frame-up in the last performance at the Prince's Rink. A few people, however, thought there was and of course, there were a few car owners present at the time—many who were watching closely and saw the wheels starting to spin around on the floor, and everybody knows that after the rear wheels of a car spin around and the car does not go ahead the car is using all of its power. The next performance will be the holding of two spans of horses—one span on each side—pulling in opposite directions. This feat of super-strength will be 25 per cent. harder to hold than the two cars.

Now I want to make it plain to all the people in Newfoundland, also to the people in St. John's that I am not just putting on these performances for the financial part of it altogether; the sport of it is worth quite a lot to me, and to know that I am the strongest man who has ever stepped on Newfoundland soil since the Island was discovered by John Cabot in 1497. To anyone who is interested in real life and sport to see what can be accomplished by Physical Culture training should wake some of you up. I was no stronger than you are about 2 1/2 years ago and in a very short time hope to meet the best in the world, at any weight, in a contest. Will you think it over and let me help you? Do you think that your neck would be too big if you developed it about 2 inches more? Would your arm be too strong if it was about 4 inches bigger? Would you feel too well if your lungs, heart, inner organs and chest muscles were from five to 12 inches larger? If your whole body, life and mind were transformed over into a new one—bigger, stronger, clearer, full of new life, would you like to get back to your present condition again? Think it over; it is great sport for me to build muscles.

How the Miners Live

A correspondent of the London Daily Mail, after investigating conditions in the German Ruhr, states that in this mining district families are supporting themselves on about $37.50 per month, despite the relatively high cost of living. Vegetables grow in their own garden, and tended by the wives and children of the miners, make up the chief diet. Among the more fortunately placed saugages are an occasional luxury. Coffee is sometimes made from burned corn, and there is little money for clothing, as might be expected with only $37.50 per family per month. Is it any wonder under the circumstances that Great Britain has lost the greater part of her export coal trade? Is it any wonder that the manufacturers of Canada fear the competition of these and other Europeans in like position?

Lake of Sulphate

A lake near Biggar, Saskatchewan, and about three hundred miles northwest of Regina, has been found to be saturated with sodium sulphate, and the deposit under the lake and alongside the edge to be nearly 97 per cent pure sulphate. The mineral is used extensively in the manufacture of sulphuric acid, in photography and other industrial purposes. The lake occupies an area of about two hundred acres. The edge is muddy, but on boring down a solid bed of mirabilite crystals is found.

Secrets of Ant Bared By Science.

Observation of the industry of ants is of ancient record and in the Bible the sluggard is bidden to study her ways and be wise. The study of her ways is not being carried on by sluggards nowadays, but by scientists. Fabre contributed vastly to our knowledge of the ant and many others have observed and have been astonished by the communal life of the insects. In many respects the ants more closely approach the human being than do any of the quadrupeds. They have a social organization that is unequalled in the whole animal kingdom, and surpasses that of the bees. Fresh light upon some features of ant life has been thrown by Dr. Hermann Eidmann, a young German scientist in Berlin, and described by Herman George Scheffner in the New York Times. Since the doctor is only thirty years old, we infer that he could not have been a very active enemy while the war was going on, and thus venture to mention his name in rather an approving way. One thing he seems to have proved definitely is that ants communicate to each other through the sense of touch. It seems highly probable that owing to the great delicacy of their antennae they have evolved a kind of speech and that different touches signify different things to them.

Social and Community Life.

"We know," says Dr. Eidmann, "that the social and community life of insects, especially of the ant, offers us likenesses to our own special institutions such as we find nowhere else. It is the social life of the insects that has augmented and intensified their instincts to a most remarkable degree. The size and extent of the ant 'state' and the frequently huge numbers of its inhabitants have made it a potent factor in nature and brought about all kinds of interesting relationships. Food and shelter are, of course, the dominant urges in forming these relationships, which are sometimes one-sided, sometimes mutual. There are for example, the relationships between ants and plants as these manifest themselves in the garnering of grains, in the cultivation of fungi, in the utilization of hollow spaces in the ligneous vegetables as dwellings.

Clues to Human Mysteries.

"Then there are the relationships that ants entertain with non-social insects—their cultivation of the trellice or aphides as cows, their feeding of other kept insects, their community life with favorite parasites or with the myrmecophila, their relationships with other social insects, such as other tribes of ants, their keeping of slaves and social hangers-on, their composite and mixed colonies, their conduct of wars and much more. The ant, I am sure, will help us to solve many a biological riddle, many a psychological puzzle. I feel that we shall somehow get nearer to the great mystery of life, in all its vastness and grandeur, the closer we get to the secrets of these tiny and industrious little fellow-citizens of earth. The first step is to understand them and the means by which they understand one another."

Station Duty Ants.

Dr. Eidmann has arranged in his laboratory and under the range of powerful magnifying glasses various colonies of ants. He can therefore study them to the best advantage and under much more favorable circumstances than were available by Fabre. By the means of food he sought to learn how ants communicated with each other. When he placed a piece of food in the vicinity of a nest it would soon be found by some strolling ant which would immediately feel it all over with its antennae and haul it off; if small enough. When it was too large the ant would hurry away to announce the find. There in the darkness it would cross feelers with several other ants, running from one to the other and telling each the news by means of various strokes and touches. The ants would then rouse themselves and led by the first ant would make their way back to the food. On the return march the ants would keep in touch with each other and proceed in single file, each one imitating every movement of the leader. Arrived at the store they would combine to carry the food away. Dr. Eidmann reports that the ants thus summoned were always to be found hanging round in an upper chamber as in some guard house or police station and never in the lower levels where the queen ant sits attending to her important duties. When the food was not in a single large lump, but in a number of small pieces each capable of being carried by a single ant, the discoverer would transport the whole load himself, making several trips and summoning no help. Dr. Eidmann tried to find out whether an ant engaged in this work would permit himself to be drawn aside from the main task. He therefore displayed honey, a delicacy which ants love above all others. He found that the ant would pause and give the honey a lick or two instead of remaining for the half-hour which it requires for an ant thoroughly to gorge itself on honey, and then resume its work. But he found if the honey was produced after the ant had gone to get help the helpers on their return would stay with the honey and fill themselves, while the first ant would ignore the honey and proceed on his solitary way. This suggests that the finder ant is unable to communicate to his fellows the exact nature of what he had found. Another test was to dust over the trail made by the finder ant as soon as he returned to the nest with his tidings, and when he emerged to seize him. Thus it would be shown if the ant had been able to give directions to the others or whether they followed him blindly. They
