The Negro Question At The Episcopal Convention

RICHMOND, Va., October 18.—The suffragan bishops' bill was passed by the house of bishops of the Episcopal convention last night. This is the same bill that was passed by the house of deputies of the general convention yesterday, so that it is a settlement of the negro question so far as the Episcopal church is concerned. The suffragan bishops will only be elected in those dioceses which demand it, and will have a seat in the house of bishops without a vote. They may be either white or negro bishops, and may work with or among the negro or among the white element. It is understood, however, that many of the dioceses will ask for negro and suffragan bishops to work among the negro race, these bishops being under the immediate control of the white bishops of the diocese in which they work. It is thought the negro question will not disturb the present convention.

J. BRANT WALKER SURPRISES WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, October 18.—J. Brant Walker, of Wall street and Fifth avenue, whose recent operations on the stock exchanges had convinced his friends that he was on the shortest and most direct route to the poorhouse, surprised them all yesterday by announcing that he was through with stocks for good and all, having made $3,000,000 out of them within six months. Walker declares he has wrung the money from a paltry market by having sense enough to sell "high-brow" securities the moment there was indications of a decline.

Early last week people who were sure they knew all about him wagged their heads and predicted that Walker would never be able to stand the pressure. No man living, they declared, could sell as furiously as Walker sold when stocks were high and cover his contracts. Walker, however, was chucking quietly in his sleeve, and still more quietly getting out of the market day by day. He declared yesterday that for the past month he has been systematically banking his winnings and has only a few thousand shares of stock remaining to his name.

NEW YORK
Walker is a son of Edweta Walker, general counsel of the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, and has only been in New York a few years. When he first came here he went into partnership with his brother, E. C. Walker, head of the stock exchange house of Walker and Company. Recently he sold out and began to operate on his own account. He is the only customer of his own office at No. 500 Fifth avenue, and it takes a dozen clerks to keep track of his trading.

"No," he said yesterday, "I didn't keep an underground wire to my governor in Chicago. I just used my wits. I never could see that a stock market could lead a bond market. All the time that Rockefeller, Harriman and the rest of the big people were declaring dividends and still more dividends, the bond market kept going down. Do you suppose if there had been general faith in the dividend business keeping up that bond prices would have stayed firm? If all the operating had been based on sound realities, neither President Roosevelt nor anyone else could have broken the market with a few speeches. That was the way things seemed to me, and I backed my judgment to the limit."

HOW HE MADE IT
"To get down to my own recent profits, I sold Union at 43, Steel at 39, Smelter at 111, and St. Paul at 132. All told, I went short 1,000,000 shares in the New York market and 80,000 shares in London. I got out of Union at 18 5/8, Steel at 23 1/4 and Smelter at 75. A profit in other words of 17 points on Steel, 35 on Union and 36 on Smelter—$3,000,000 or so at conservative estimating."

Walker believes that some railroad stocks make good investments and others only good gambling. Don't invest your money, he says, in a road that pays too big dividends, because there must be something wrong about that road. A road that sold on its legs doesn't have to coax moths to the flame with inflated dividends. Walker is about forty, magnetic in manner and lives quietly in bachelor apartments at No. 22 West Third street. Asked what he was going to do with his new millions, he replied with a twinkling eye that he guessed he would go into some "nice conservative business in a small way."

Radyard Kipling on Canadian Immigration.

Mr. Rodyard Kipling is reported to have received an ovation at the luncheon of the Canadian club in Victoria, B.C. After a charmingly-worded reference to the work of the men who managed to "make Victoria a magnificent city and at the same time to keep intact the magnificent treasure-house of its natural beauty," Mr. Kipling dwelt on immigration, and promised that on his return he would embody his views on Canada in some form. He contrasted the happy condition of the Canadian people with those of India. He then went on to point out the difference between Oriental and continental European immigration and settlers of British origin.

ROOM TO DEVELOP IN THE DOMINION

In the one case the immigrants regarded law as a monster. They were born in fear and reared in the panic necessary to the race. It is not necessary, continued Mr. Kipling, to evolve an elaborate scheme of education to instruct the immigrant from Great Britain how to talk the English language or to teach his children the rudiments of citizenship. He knows that he may have to learn much and to unlearn much, but at last he will have the same powers and possibilities as yourselves and follow the same ideas even as your fathers did along lines that you know well. He seeks only room to develop his powers and his capabilities, and this room, I conceive is offered in your vast Dominion.

TIME FOR CHOICE IS ON US NOW

"It is possible that in your strength you may think that this is not an urgent question, but the time is coming when you will have to choose between the desired reinforcement of your own stock and blood and the strangers, whose speech you do not understand, and from whose instincts and traditions you are separated by thousands of years—that is your choice. For myself I think the time for making that choice is on you now."

WHERE WAS EARTHQUAKE?

Official Statements Given Out at Washington Regarding Seismograph
Observations of Past
Two Days.

WASHINGTON, October 18.—Official statements regarding the violent earthquake recorded Wednesday and followed by a disturbance of less magnitude yesterday indicate that the earthquake occurred at some point between 5,000 and 5,000 miles away, varying according to two estimates. The only direction indicated is that the motion was either east or west. Yesterday's shock, which kept the weather bureau seismograph moving for three-quarters of an hour, may have been an after shock of Wednesday's disturbance. The occurrence has created widespread interest among scientists. It is possible that congress may be made aware that records may be made by the government at various points.

DEATH OF LIEUT. ARTHUR GILPIN IN INDIA

Haiburton Gilpin has received a cable announcing the sudden death in India of his brother, Lieutenant Arthur Gilpin, of the 1st battalion Wiltshire regiment, recently stationed at Daghshi, the Punjab. The cause of death, the cable stated, was peritonitis. Lieutenant Gilpin was the youngest son of the late dean of Nova Scotia, of beloved memory, and was unmarried. He was, before entering the British army, one of the staff of the Bank of Montreal, and was a great favorite in Halifax society. The sad news will be received with genuine sorrow by all who knew him.

TORONTO, October 18.—Something said by Earl Grey at Upper Canada College yesterday has been construed into an announcement that members of the royal family, probably the King and Queen, would visit Canada next year on the occasion of the Diamond Jubilee.

His Excellency spoke of the interest being taken in this event, but neither Principal Anson nor many others present could place such a pleasing interpretation on his remarks. His Excellency may have intended the "honorary" not the presence of some members of the royal household.

A SHEAF OF DELIGHTFUL MEMORIES. (From the Yarmouth Herald.) Mr. Editor—On Monday morning I was invited to visit the English church that I might see the beautiful windows and listen to some music.

The singer appeared to be quite a young girl, and as she began her first selection, which was very familiar to me ("I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say"), there was an extraordinary touch of nervousness and the seeming incoherence between the acoustics of the chancel and the vocal volume.

None of those will abide longer, nor recur more often than the vision of a young girl, in white, standing in the dim chancel, the warm autumn sunbeams streaming through the "angel windows," and that voice ringing sweetly down the quiet arches, laden with the message of joy, peace and rest to all the toilers, travelers and wanderers of a BIRD OF PASSAGE.

The Digby County Exhibition.

The day was all that could be desired, and there was a large crowd in attendance at the Exhibition held here on Wednesday. Professor Cummings, Secretary of Agriculture for Nova Scotia, gave a very interesting address at the opening. Miss Miller, of the travelling dairy, was here but through some mistake her parcels failed to arrive and there was no demonstration of scientific butter making given. The show of cattle and horses was very good, there being some excellent specimens of both classes on the grounds. This department was a strong feature but could have been improved upon to a considerable degree, had the compilers of the prize lists taken into consideration the lack of registered animals especially in the horse class in our vicinity, for, as we have intimated before the whole show depended almost entirely upon those in our immediate vicinity, and there is no doubt this fact will not be again overlooked at our next exhibition. The show of sheep and swine was not large but the quality was good. The exhibit of poultry was good, although not as large as we have seen. The display of fruit was rather smaller than was expected but the quality was excellent, some very fine samples of apples being shown. Vegetables and roots, always a strong feature at an exhibition, were not lacking in numbers or quality, the display on the tables being far above the general average, both in quality and numbers, the potatoes especially being large and smooth and in such quantities as to make glad the heart of any true son of "Erin." The flower show, while not large in numbers, was excellent in quality. The packages of butter shown by our farmers' wives and daughters were well worthy of inspection and showed that they can produce as fine an article as one could wish. The display of maps, drawing and penmanship by the scholars of Oakdene School was a very pleasing feature and well worthy of a careful inspection. The bread cake, jellies, preserves and such things dear to the feminine heart, as well as to the hungry man, were well represented and called forth many words of praise. In the lines of domestic manufacture there was a very good showing, and taking it all in all, the exhibition, in all departments, was a credit to the community and the County at large. The special attractions in the afternoon were the halting matches at which some excellent work was done, and the exhibitions of speed given by Dr. Annis with his two fast horses, Cearra, 2.12 1/2, and his colt, William Mack. In the evening a large crowd gathered to hear three excellent speeches delivered by Prof. Cummings, Rev. I. A. Corbett and Rev. John Phalen, the meeting being presided over by the President of the society, John V. Thomas, Esq. At this meeting the united choir of the Methodist and Baptist churches rendered excellent service by their sweet music, which was much enjoyed by all present. Everybody seems to be well pleased with the grand success of this exhibition, which is greatly due to the untiring efforts of the President and Secretary, John V. Thomas and W. D. Eyerson.

Obituary.

JOHN W. BENSON.
A despatch received here on Monday conveyed the sad intelligence of the death of Mr. John W. Benson, which took place at the Hospital, Somerville, Mass., last Saturday evening after an illness of about three weeks of typhoid fever. He was 49 years of age, and a son of the late Edmund Benson of this place. He is survived by his wife, and one daughter by his first marriage, his mother, one sister, Mrs. Harry Shaw, of Yarmouth, with whom his mother resided, and three brothers, Freeman W. and Robert, of this place, and Edward S., of Somerville, Mass. The remains were brought here and interred in Mount Hope cemetery on Tuesday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. I. A. Corbett, pastor of the Baptist church of which church he was a member until a short time ago, when he withdrew to us to with the First Baptist Church in Somerville, where he was an active and respected member, both in church and Sabbath School work. The floral offerings were many and handsome, among them being a beautiful wreath containing fourteen white roses, the offering of his Sabbath School class of young ladies, a rose for each scholar. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved ones.

SMITH'S COVE.

Mrs. E. Winchester spent a few days in Halifax this week.
Miss Lillian Winchester is visiting her brother, Lovitt Winchester, South Matland.
George Austin has arrived from Boston to spend a couple of weeks.
The pie social given by the members of the local Division Sons of Temperance in the Hall here last Friday evening was a successful affair. The pie was good, and the girls were better. Everybody was happy, could not be otherwise.
The construction crew of the Valley Telephone Company have completed pole setting in this locality and have moved their boarding cars to Deep Brook. Good progress is being made and Annapolis will soon be reached.
W. J. Ward, of Halifax, has charge of the painting operations at Victoria Bridge. He expects to have the work completed in another week.
Mrs. McKellar, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Cosseboom for some weeks, left on Wednesday last for her home in Alabama.
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Caunt, of Lynn spent a few days here last week.
Mrs. J. S. Potter has been confined to the house through illness but is improving nicely now.
The hunting parties are having bad weather in the woods, but some of them are meeting with good luck.
William Hunt went to Boston on Wednesday last to visit his sons and daughters. He will be gone a fortnight.
Leander Alcorn, of Bear River, has been negotiating for the purchase of the Chase farm, formerly owned by Rev. Mr. Porter. Three thousand dollars is the price placed on the property.
Joseph Caunt, of Lynn, made a generous proposition at the pie social in the Hall on Friday evening last. After enjoying a pie, which only Smith Cove girls can make, he donated five dollars in addition to paying for the pie, and announced that he would contribute one hundred dollars to the hall fund provided the Division members raised two hundred dollars themselves. As one hundred dollars of the amount have already been raised, it is likely that Mr. Caunt's contribution is assured. His liberality is very much appreciated. Three hundred dollars should put the hall in first class condition.
CLEMENCEVALE.
Among those attending the Exhibition in Yarmouth last week were: Misses Edith and Florence Brown, Gilbert Potter, James Sanford, Avin Sanford, Ashford Robinson and George Trimmer.
Mrs. William Banks and Miss Jennie Coombs, guests of Mrs. John Coombs, returned to the United States last Friday.
Willie Potter left for Boston Saturday, to remain during the winter months.
Mr. and Mrs. Eber Potter returned Monday from their enjoyable trip to Massachusetts.
Mrs. Prime, of New Tusket, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. George Bealer.
Mr. and Mrs. B. DeShore and Mrs. D. Hubby attended the Exhibition in Cabotville last week.
Rev. C. H. Martell has moved into the new parsonage. Within eight months the former parsonage was reduced to ashes, and this new one is ready for occupancy. The house is a model of convenience and comfort, reflecting much credit on the building committee and the workmen as well. When the grounds are in order, the place will be a great acquisition to the community.
The Union Class held their first meeting in the new parsonage Monday evening, Manning Potter, president of the class, in the chair. A resolution was passed to have a Clam Chowder and Bean Supper in the parsonage, Tuesday evening, the 22nd instant. The proceeds for furnishing blinds, etc., for the house. A good supper will be provided for 20 cents, and the "Busy Bees," Mrs. Sprowl's S. S. class, will see that all have a pleasant social evening. It is hoped these young people will receive a generous response to their efforts for helping in this good work.

CHANGED WITH ROBBING WY-MOUTH POST OFFICE

Boston, October 17.—Hail Saubiere and Charles Elderkin, members of the crew of the British schooner George N. Warner, Captain Milberry, which arrived here today from Barton, N. S., were placed under arrest here late today by inspectors on suspicion that they were concerned in the robbery of the post office at Weymouth, N. S. Both men are said to have confessed and admitted being ticket-of-leave men and having served time for different offences. They were ordered deported and go to Halifax on Saturday on the steamer A. W. Perry, where they must stand trial on the charge of breaking and entering.

The capture of the two men named in the above despatch was brought about by the clever work of Provincial Detective Wright, of Halifax, who was handling the case.

The Weymouth post office was burglarized on the night of October 17th. Several hundred dollars in cash and a large amount of goods which were in the same building were carried off. The robbers, in making their escape from the building dropped the registered letters, and all of these were recovered. The safe had been blown open with dynamite and everything of value removed. The attorney general sent Officer Wright to investigate the mystery, and as a result the arrest of the above named was brought about.

When Wright's presence in the town became known it is said the parties implicated suddenly left for other parts. On Sunday last the men suspected, Elderkin and Saubiere, were driven to Plympton and there shipped on the schooner George M. Warner, which sailed for Boston early Sunday morning. Wright at once communicated with the Boston police, and when the schooner arrived there Elderkin and Saubiere were taken into custody.

GRAPHITE AS A LUBRICANT

NEW YORK, October 18.—An announcement that he had a successful converted artificial graphite, made from coal dust, into such a condition that it would pass through the finest filter paper and that he had succeeded in dissolving graphite in water, in other words making it colloidable, was made by E. C. Acheson, "the wizard of Niagara Falls," at the opening session of the twelfth general meeting of the American Electro Chemical Society last evening.

Both of these discoveries will have a wide application in industry, it was said, especially that of the dissolution of graphite in water, for it can be used successfully now as a lubricant, where heretofore when dissolved in oil it has formed a sediment at the bottom, resulting in much waste. The graphite is much cheaper than oil.

FARRSBORO, October 18.—T. E. Price & Co. have sold their two dwelling houses, store and stock of goods to Amos B. Lusby, of Southampton. Mr. Lusby has built up a flourishing business in Southampton, and will no doubt be successful in his new venture.

Miss Hunt, of St. Eleanor's, P. E. I., is visiting her brother, A. J. Hunt, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia here. A. E. Currie, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, returned from Halifax on Monday, bringing with him his wife and two children. Miss Elizabeth Fraser, who has been spending the summer in Halifax, is now the guest of Captain and Mrs. Notby. Mrs. Creelman and Mrs. Glenn of Cheverie, are visiting Mrs. John E. Dickinson. The Canadian Bank of Commerce will sell by auction a quantity of deals, hardwood and other lumber at Fox River and Ratchford River, assigned to the bank as security by H. S. McDowell.

MESSINGER-DARGIE.

The home of Mr. Norman Dargie, Carleton's Corner, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday morning, October 16th, when his daughter, Agnes Miller, was united by the holy bonds of matrimony to Barton N. Messinger, of Bridgetown. Rev. E. Underwood, rector of St. James' church, officiated. The house was prettily decorated for the occasion, the bridal pair standing under an arch of evergreen and autumn leaves.

While Lohengrin's wedding march was being ably rendered by Mrs. James Whitman, of Round Hill, the bride, becomingly attired in pearl grey silk with picture hat to match, entered the room bearing on the arm of her father, who gave her away. She was the recipient of many handsome and useful presents, including a cheque for a substantial amount from the groom's father. The groom's gift to the bride was a set of fur and monogram gold watch.

After the ceremony a dainty collation was served. The happy couple then left amid showers of rice and confetti, on a trip to Boston, Lynn and neighboring cities.

MILLAR-MILLER.

Halifax, Oct. 16.—At six o'clock this evening St. Paul's church was the scene of a wedding in which a large number of people both in Halifax and in New Brunswick feel special interest. The principals in the ceremony were Aleta May, daughter of the late L. Miller, and John Mackintosh Millar, sc. of Rev. Dr. Millar, pastor of Chalmers church. Mr. Millar is now practicing his profession as civil engineer in the employ of the Trans-continental Railway at Edmundston, N. B. The Venerable Archbishop Armitage performed the ceremony. Miss Miller was attended by Miss Florence Bowman, of St. John, who has been her guest for several weeks. Dr. J. Ross Millar, of Amherst, brother of the groom, was his best man.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of The Monitor:

Dear Sirs:— If not taking up too much space in your paper, will you kindly insert, for the benefit of general storekeepers in particular and for the public in general, the following extract from Chapter 106, Revised Statutes of Nova Scotia, 1900. "Of the sale of Drugs and Medicines."

Section 17. No person shall sell, or attempt to sell, or expose for sale, or keep open shop for retailing, dispensing, or compounding ANY OF THE DRUGS OR MEDICINES MENTIONED IN THE SCHEDULE TO THIS CHAPTER, or which are hereafter added to such schedule by authority of the Governor-in-Council, upon the recommendation of the Council, or assume or use the title chemist and druggist, or pharmacist or druggist, or apothecary, or dispensing chemist, or druggist or pharmaceutical chemist, or shall call his place of business Druggery or Pharmacy, in any part of this Province, unless such person is registered and is the holder of a certificate of registration under the provisions of this chapter. Provided that this section shall not prevent the sale of such articles by wholesale in market packages, nor of any of the articles commonly known as Patent Medicines.

Section 18. Every shop for the sale or compounding of drugs shall be in charge of a member of the Pharmaceutical Society, or a registered physician, and no member shall open or carry on a branch shop without placing in charge thereof a member of the Society. Provided, that in the case of the insolvency or death of any member his assignee or personal representative may continue to do business for the sole benefit of his estate, under the personal supervision of a member of the Society.

Section 19. (1) Any person who violates any of the provisions of the preceding sections shall, for the first offence, be liable to a penalty of twenty-five dollars, and for every subsequent offence shall be liable to a penalty of fifty dollars.

There is reason to believe that the provisions of the Pharmacy Act are being violated, in some cases by people who are ignorant of, and in others by those who simply disregard the stringent regulations regarding the sale of poisons and the "Drugs and Medicines" enumerated in the schedule referred to in Section 17.

There are over 150 "Drugs and Medicines" included in this schedule. Space will not permit all being given but below are given a few, the sale of which form the greater part of these violations. Tincture Iodine, Paragoric, Carbolic Acid, Laudanum, Quinine, Balaam, Calomel, Croscote, Fluid Extract of Cascara, (all the Fluid Extracts of the United States and British Pharmacopoeia are included) Aloes, and the Lead and Zinc Salts.

All who purchase such articles would do well to bear in mind that they should only obtain them from a doctor or druggist as no one else has a right to sell them.

The Springfield strike is still unsettled, the miners and company disagreeing upon the interpretation of Justice Graham's decision. They are apparently as far as ever from a mutual agreement and this is the 12th week of the strike. An enormous loss has been entailed by this strike, not only to the miners themselves but indirectly to the whole province.

The double house on Granville street, built in conjunction by A. L. Brown and Mrs. John Lockett, is nearly completed. The masons are now finishing the portion in which Mr. Brown will reside, and he expects to take possession immediately. Her clothing caught and all one side of her body was terribly burned. By the presence of mind of a little daughter, the baby in the mother's arms, when she fell, was caught up in time to save it from the flames.

PANDORA

Owing to the fine construction of most ranges it is a rather difficult feat to cook and bake successfully at the same time.

But the arrangement of the Pandora flues differs considerably from others. They are so constructed that the draft for baking is also the best for cooking, the heat circulating around the oven twice and under every pot hole before passing to the chimney.

The Pandora bakes and cooks perfectly at the same time.

Do you know of another range that does? If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora write direct to us for Free Booklet.

When Greek Meets Greek

"I hate a collar-band that's too wide!" muttered Alma critically inspecting the neatly made waist, the result of her mother's three days of patient labor. "These sleeves aren't half full enough, and I wanted hooks not buttons. I never get what I want."

Wearily Mrs. Boyce, however, paid no heed. An open letter fluttered from her hand. She dropped limply in the nearest chair. "It's your granduncle Timothy!" she gasped.

"Dead?" asked Alma.

"No," replied Mrs. Boyce. "He's coming to spend six weeks with us."

"Is it our turn?" asked Alma.

"Yes," said Mrs. Boyce. "It's just our turn."

Poor Mrs. Boyce was greatly perturbed. She had spent a trying morning with grumbling Alma, and although trying mornings with that inconsiderate young person were no novelty, their frequent recurrence made them no easier to bear. Granduncle Timothy's news, found the poor, harassed lady quite unfit for the receiving of unexpected tidings.

Mrs. Boyce always did the family dressmaking. For sweet-tempered, easily-pleased Ruth, two years older than Alma, the task was a pleasure; but sewing for the younger girl was a burden almost too great to be borne.

During her small girlhood Alma had been delicate, and it must be confessed, decidedly ill-tempered.

As she grew older, she grew stronger, but, unfortunately, so did her temper. There were moments—usually when she was among strangers—when she was fairly amiable, but there were other moments when the girl's outbursts of acute dissatisfaction drove harassed Mrs. Boyce to the verge of nervous prostration.

"I'd rather have every tooth in my head extracted," she poor lady had confided to Ruth that morning, "than make that tan emaline for Alma."

"What does she want?"

"Well, so far," said discouraged Mrs. Boyce, "she has spent three hundred and sixty-four days a year mentioning things she doesn't want, so she hasn't had any time to say what she does like, she's precisely like your father's Uncle Timothy. I suppose I spoiled her when she was a child. If I had it all to do over again, I'd bring her up differently."

At that moment a peevish voice had floated down the stairway.

"Mother," it wailed fretfully, "did I hear you say you were going to make tomato soup for dinner? I'm just sick of tomato soup!"

"What kind do you want?" asked Mrs. Boyce.

"Oh, I don't know!" Alma had returned impatiently. "Anything but tomato or bean or pea soup or mutton or—"

"How would you like potato soup?"

"I hate potato soup. Isn't there some kind we've never had?"

Uncle Timothy, if such a thing were possible, even harder to please than was Alma. Naturally, he was not a desirable visitor, which was peculiarly unfortunate, for visiting was poor Uncle Timothy's only occupation.

Mrs. Boyce lived farthest from Uncle Timothy. He had spent some over-to-be-forgotten weeks with the nervous little woman when Ruth was eight years old. But for eleven years she had, owing to distance, escaped a second visit. Now she was to have six weeks of Uncle Timothy—too much for any woman to contemplate with equanimity.

"Girls," said Mrs. Boyce, rising aloud, "I know it's cowardly—I know I ought to be ashamed of myself—but I'm all worn out. I haven't a scrap of courage, and girls I'm going to run away!"

"Run away?" asked Alma.

"Yes, to your Aunt Emily's. Really girls, I haven't the courage to plan meals for Uncle Timothy. I—I just can't do it. You've kept-house before and Hannah is perfectly competent to do all the cooking. I ought to—O dear! I've been sewing too steadily or something. It isn't right of me, but I'm—I'm not able to stand Uncle Timothy."

"You shan't have to," said Ruth, gathering her mother into her strong young arms and presenting a rounded shoulder to be wept upon. "You may be perfectly easy in your mind, mother, I'll look after Uncle Timothy."

Mrs. Boyce departed at noon. When Uncle Timothy arrived, an hour later he looked at Ruth and said "Humph!"

Then he looked at Alma and said "Humph!" again, but there was a vast difference in the two "humps."

From the first moment Alma's sullen eyes glared themselves with an odd irresistible fascination upon Uncle Timothy's wry countenance. It seemed oddly familiar. Where had she seen that puckered, peevish mouth, those restless eyes, the little, dissatisfied wrinkles in the forehead, the thin, pointed nose, with its half scornful, wholly disapproving lift?

Ruth regarded the guest with an odd mixture of amusement and pity, but between Uncle Timothy and Alma there was no love lost. It was evident that this tall, gaunt pair were antagonistic from the moment of their meeting, but they reserved a kind of armed truce.

"I think," said Alma one day, when the sisters were in the kitchen, trying to cut bread to a thickness that should meet with the nearest approach to approval from the visitor toward her mother, and decidedly less petulant; and that Uncle Timothy occasionally stopped short in the middle of some sharp tirade, exclaimed "Alma!" and then became, in his suddenly altered mien, almost lamb-like.

lighted cry when her mother walked in.

"Where's Uncle Timothy?" asked the returned traveller, who appeared much benefited by her trip.

"On a feather bed on the sewing-room floor," remarked Alma, in a tone of deep aversion. "He said his bed was too soft, the couch too hard, the other spare-room bed was too springy and that the wall-paper every place else made him dizzy. But what brought you home?"

"An accusing conscience. I should not have run away, and I wasn't thoroughly happy until I had decided to run back again."

"Mother," demanded troubled Alma "do you think I'm like Uncle Timothy? Of all grumbling, hypercritical mortals—"

"Well," admitted Mrs. Boyce, trying not to smile, "there have been moments when you've reminded me of your Granduncle Timothy. You certainly have characteristics—"

"Then I'll get over 'em!" declared Alma, grimly. "I don't like what I'm coming to—an Uncle Timothy in petticoats! Light!"

Oddly enough, a few days later, Uncle Timothy recovered from his illness, expressed a fear that he was growing like Alma.

"I abominate a skirt that hangs in scallops," said Alma, twisting to cast a displeased glance over her shoulders at the long, graceful folds behind her. "All the skirts you make, mother, go down in waves."

"Ruth," demanded Uncle Timothy, in a loud whisper, "am I anything like as disagreeable as your sister?"

"I am afraid you are, sometimes," confessed truthful Ruth with a smile that came near to pleasing even captious Uncle Timothy.

"Well, if that's the case," he returned, "I'd thank anybody that'd just say 'Alma' whenever I seem to be getting cantankerous. If I thought I was getting as hard to please as she is, I'd—I'd join a don't grumble club."

It really seemed afterward as if Granduncle Timothy's visit had proved generally beneficial, for it was noticed by all the large family connection that with time Alma certainly grew sweeter for more consideration toward her mother, and decidedly less petulant; and that Uncle Timothy occasionally stopped short in the middle of some sharp tirade, exclaimed "Alma!" and then became, in his suddenly altered mien, almost lamb-like.

TO MAKE LACE BOWS.

The dainty little lace bows that are so popular just now, are made of a yard of lace about three inches wide.

Cut the lace into half yard lengths, plant or mark it finely. Sew each piece together, with joinings on the wrong side and gather very closely at the upper edge of the lace.

Put the two gathered pieces together in the form of a bow, wind your thread tightly around the centre and cover the joinings by little pieces of lace or plain net, folded over and sewed together at the back. These bows are very smart with turn-over collars.

BUTTERMILK AS A TONIC.

Ordinary sour buttermilk is a better tonic, is a better food than was ever bottled or boxed up by the dietitian or doctor. Buttermilk is a very hearty food. Two glasses a day is enough for any one. This should be drunk with meals, or else should not be taken within two hours of a meal, says McCall's Magazine. Time should be given it to thoroughly digest before anything else is taken into the stomach. It takes buttermilk considerable over an hour to digest, and to drink another glass before the first one is digested is only to stir up difficulty with the digestive organs. Really, the best way to drink buttermilk is with the meals, though it may be drunk between meals as a sort of easily digested lunch.

Dust dress shields with talcum powder before putting in a white dress and the roughness against the bare arms is less noticeable, while the scented talcum destroys the odor of the gum, which is very disagreeable.

MIDNIGHT.

(Clara Boies Bush, in New Orleans Times-Democrat)
Hushed are the fretful noises of the day.
Shadows and mystery their vigil keep,
While through the darkness earth pursues her way,
Enwrapped in silence deep.

So still, so still, that when the night-wind stirs,
And like a stealthy footstep rustles,
A murmurous whisper moves the pines and firs
With deep, low-breathing sigh.

All nature vibrates with a noiseless beat.
The ceaseless pulsing of the ocean's breast,
And countless mystic throbbings that repeat
Humanity's unrest.

Stomach troubles, Heart and Kidney ailments, can be quickly corrected with a prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The prompt and surprising relief which this remedy immediately brings is entirely due to its restorative action upon the controlling nerves of the Stomach, etc.—Royal Pharmacy.

CRUEL CONFIDENCES.

Women who are lacking of self-control are given to complaining to their children about their troubles. They make confidants of them and introduce them prematurely to a realm of care and perplexity.

A child is so sympathetic and impossible that he offers a tempting field for the exploiting of little miseries. But he does not come through the experience unharmed. The delicate sensitivities of children are like the tender and exquisite arabesque, which give birth the sweetest fragrance when it is being crushed to death.

Once a weak mother, always in pecuniary difficulties through her extravagance, formed the habit of unbending herself to her little son, a sedate, earnest lad of 10. He was so deeply affected by the knowledge of her troubles that he treasured upon him constantly, and his great dream was to do something to relieve his mother from her debts.
His whole early life was clouded and made unhappy by this indiscreet demand upon his sympathies.

FOR CHRONIC DIARRHOEA.
"While in the army in 1863 I was taken with chronic diarrhoea," says George M. Elliot, of South Chicago, Pa. "I have since tried many remedies but without any permanent relief until Mr. A. W. ALLEGED STEAMBOAT PLANS.

The St. John Globe of recent date contained the following:
"Some time ago it was announced that Messrs. MacKenzie & Mann intended putting a steamer on the Bay. They own a railroad in Nova Scotia, running from Victoria Beach, opposite Digby, and connecting with their Halifax and Southwestern system, between Halifax and Yarmouth. It is now said that next season will see a considerable extension of their services in this section. One report is that they will put on two fine boats between Boston and Yarmouth to compete with the D. A. R., and that they will also put on the Bay steamer and will devote considerable energy towards directing travel in this direction. If this plan is carried out Messrs. MacKenzie & Mann would be in a position to offer excellent facilities to tourists to reach a hitherto little travelled portion of Nova Scotia and by round trip arrangements this city would secure a share of the benefits. The improved services of the Eastern S. S. Company, which will be even greater in future years, for it is now well known that the company will provide summer boats for the St. John route equal if not superior to the Yale, and the new services outlined by MacKenzie & Mann, together with improvements in the rail communication by reason of the Shore Line's new management, and the construction by the C. P. R. of beautiful new cars for the American train should result each year in largely increased travel between here and the United States. This was a banner tourist year, and the years to come, with the improvements outlined, should be even better."

This is a double riddle. In the first place the ending words of various lines are all transposed. If they are put into their proper places the alternate words will rhyme and the whole verse will ask a riddle.
My scream rings louder than a panther's cry.
Longer than serpent I uncoil my length.
Without a beat of wings so swift I fly.
That even eagles cannot match my strength.
Ever as I go my coal black flag floats free.
And for my race men clear a shining track.
In fear they stand aside to let me fly.
And yet submissively I bear the load.

MORE THAN ENOUGH IS TOO MUCH.
To maintain health, a mature man or woman needs just enough food to repair the waste and supply energy and body heat. The habitual consumption of more food than is necessary for these purposes is the prime cause of stomach troubles, rheumatism and disorders of the kidneys. If troubled with indigestion, revise your diet, let reason and not appetite control and take a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and you will soon be all right again! DON'T SHOOT!

(By Ella Wheeler Wilcox)
Don't shoot! Consider this one fact,
The lack of manhood in the act;
How could a creature of your size
Take aim at any bird that flies?
We are so helpless, and so small;
The very dustiest boy is tall
Compared with us. Put down your gun,
And seek some manlier kind of fun.

Don't shoot! Out there in tree and glade,
In pretty nests that we have made,
Our hungry little birdlings wait.
Ah, think of their unhappy fate
If we come not at set of sun!
Put down your gun, put down your gun.

Don't shoot! But leave us free of wing
To build, and nest, and soar and sing.
We ask so little, just to live—
And for that privilege we give
Our souls in song, till life is done,
Put down your gun, put down your gun.

Don't shoot! Earth has enough of joy
Of space, and food for bird and boy;
Enough for both of light and sun,
Put down your gun, put down your gun.

THE LAUGHALOT BOY.

(S. E. Kiser)
The Laughalot boy has returned to town.
His features are tanned and his arms are brown;
But his eyes are as bright as his eyes may be,
And his heart is still light and merry is he.

And the dog in the yard and the bird on the limb
Are happy again for the coming of him,
And the breezes blow sweeter than ever they blew,
And the sky seems brighter than ever before.

And the world is a place in which troubles are few,
For the Laughalot boy is at home once more.

The Laughalot boy has been out on the hills
And climbing the fences and wading the rills,
He has rolled on the grass, he has played in the hay,
His muscles are strong and his laughter is gay;
He has heard the wind passing through acres of corn,
He has nipped the sweet corn and is glad he was born.

And the breezes blow sweeter than ever they blew,
And the sky seems brighter than ever before,
And the world is a place in which troubles are few,
For the Laughalot boy is at home once more.

In buying linen it is well to remember that the unbleached variety lasts longer, as a rule, than the bleached and that a few washings will render it perfectly white.

There is quite a quantity of apples to be gathered in yet. The crop is turning out much better than was anticipated a few weeks ago. The winter like appearance on Monday made the farmers feel quite anxious. We hope it will have no bad effect on the fruit.

We are pleased to hear that James McGrath is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Leonard welcomed a daughter on the 15th instant. Apple picking was seriously delayed by the wet weather of the first part of the month. The fine weather of last week was a great boon to the fruit growers. Large quantities are still on the trees in some orchards.

The bulk of the apples in this vicinity have been sold for $2.50 per barrel, Nos. 1, 2 and 3, barreled and delivered at the warehouse. E. J. Elliott has purchased about 9,000 barrels for the Paradise warehouse. H. D. Stavens also purchased a large quantity at similar figures.
A large quantity of potatoes has been raised and sold in this vicinity this year. The prices range from $1.25 to $1.50 per barrel (apple barrel). The potatoes were also purchased a large quantity at similar figures.
As the Americans are our chief competitors in apples in the English market, a significant fact in connection with this year's prices should be the presence of a large number of buyers from the United States in the Valley. An application of the rule of proportion to the laws of supply and demand should give us fancy prices—at least on paper.

HASTE NECESSARY.

Here is the way one editor talks to his delinquents: "In view of the alarming news that the earth may soon be destroyed by a comet, we call the attention of a few delinquent subscribers that they should be prepared for the worst by paying up their back accounts and for a year in advance so that they may be able to meet the calamity with a clear conscience, which they certainly can't do so long as they owe the printer. Do not forget that the time for preparation is quite brief, besides, we need this money to acquire up a few things ourselves."

LOCAL PATRIOTISM.

A STUDY OF CANADA'S LITTLE LORDS BY EDGAR WALLACE.

Except Dawson City the Dominion has no town which has sprung into importance in a few years—rather in the future justified.

I turned at the door to light my pipe and congratulate the lady behind the counter on the obviously growing prosperity of the town.
"Make your pipe out, mister," she commanded. "I don't allow no smoking in this store." Then, mollified by my evident confusion, she resumed: "Well, we reckon this is a fine city."

"Hardly a city," I murmured indignantly; "you mean town."
"City I said," said the lady sharply, "and don't put your muddy boots on that there pair of pants. City I said, and City I mean. At any rate, we shall soon be incorporated. This here Moose Jaw is as thriving and prosperous a place as there is in the West, I guess. I guess so, too, but ventured to express my doubt as to the chance of its incorporation is so near a future as 'prety soon."
The lady eyed me scornfully, she knew the commercial importance of her own town—Moose Jaw.

Out in the street—the straggling, loose-strung street, where the noble red man in a plug hat and moccasins trod painfully the corded sidewalks, while time his brick-faced squaw gazed in silent wonderment at genuine woolen underwear marked down to dollar fifty—the street, with all its untidy noisiness, and the raw, unfinished edge of things slovenly displayed—only he who is uninitiated into the mysteries of colonial development would trace indications of unusual prosperity. To the uninitiated it was a struggling line of one-story shacks, beginning promisingly enough with redbrick hotel and trailing off into prairie land.

There are no boom towns in Canada—except Dawson City—as we understand boom towns. There are towns which have sprung into importance in a few years, such as Edmonton and Calgary and Regina. But these have had existence of long standing, and have only increased in ratio to the prosperity of the surrounding country. When Winnipeg was the Hudson Bay Company's post Fort Garry, it occupied relatively the same position to Manitoba as it does now. Immigration increased—it was a pitifully slow process—more and more prairie-land was broken in, the wheat crop became bigger and bigger—the needs of the urban population correspondingly increased both in quantity and variety; agriculture became a scientific pursuit, necessitating improved machinery; the old settler, who for years had roughed it on the bare essentials of life, found the little luxuries of civilization easier to procure; and so Winnipeg became a centre of population, a centre for products and the distributing point for necessities, whether it was the cloth of patient slaves, or the raw wool, or the thousand little townships spread over Canada, tapping the country, feeding the country, banking money, and dreaming of incorporation. For a town reaches the dignity of a city till it has a population of 10,000 to 20,000, gathered together in one place, constituting a township. From 10,000 to 100,000 they form the population of a city. Over 100,000 they are "the Earth."

This is the way of Canada; it is also the way of the States, except that there any old street of frame houses has its city hall and corporation. In Canada, incorporation is a prize to which every proper town aspires. It is a goal to which the nearest village that was ever tacked on to a C.P.R. elevator strives. Consequently, men from the back places are inveterate strikers, though they believe all they tell. "Boag! There is no brag quite like it."
"If you can find time it will pay you to stop at at Winnipeg. A few days you see it. Don't suppose there's another town like Winnipeg in all Canada. We've got as magnificent a church as you've ever seen outside of Montreal; banks, court-house, post office, hotel; and we're just installing electric light and a car service."
You know Wrinkles?
Alas! That the name, postoffice and court-house are built on a humble roof; that the hotel is kept by Hee Chow; that the church is a microscopical barn with a wooden steeple that the electric light and car service are unbrilliant myths.
Or it is, "You ought not to miss Bear's Head Creek. I don't want to brag about it, but you'll be surprised. Don't leave Canada without seeing it. We've got a newspaper there, too, that will interest you."
You go.

It is indeed a thriving township, and the newspaper is a fact. The day you arrive, there have been big happenings in Bear's Head Creek. Behold the front page of the paper.
"Local firm gets a thousand-dollar contract. Contractor O'Grady in open competition secures order for erecting new hotel. Successful competitor speaks with Gafette man, and expresses confidence in the future of Bear's Head Creek."
Let it be thought that I am attempting to poke a poor form of fun at these "little Lordships" struggling for recognition, let me say right here that I know no finer, no more inspiring sight than is afforded by the spectacle of the almost heroic efforts of the average Canadian township of smaller size to justify its glorious faith in the future.

"Here," says the man of the new town, "is a spot which by Providence, by natural position, by extraordinary conditions, and the proximity to the Canadian Pacific Railway is destined to be the Chicago of the West. Let us, the early fathers of this town, be the first to see to it that we have the only rich man that lives upon what he has, owns nothing, and is contented; for there is no determinate sum of money, nor quantity of estate, that can denote a man rich, since no man is truly rich that has not so much as perfectly satisfies his desire of having more; for the desire of more is want, and want is poverty—Hovee.
Repentance hath a purifying power, and every tear is of a cleansing virtue; but these penitential clouds must be still kept drooping, one shower will not suffice; for repentance is not one single action, but a course—South.
People of gloomy, uncheerful imaginations, or of envious, malignant tempers, whatever kind of life they are engaged in, will discover their natural faculties of mind in all their thoughts, words and actions—Addison.
The grand and, indeed, the only character of truth, is its capability of enduring the test of universal experience, and coming unchanged out of every possible form of fair discussion.—Sir John Herschel.
Now blessings light on him that first invented sleep; it covers a man all over, thoughts and all like a cloak; it is meat for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, heat for the cold, cold for the hot—Cervantes.
Sorrow is a kind of rust of the soul, which every new idea corrodes in its passage to secure away. It is the petrification of stagnant life, and is remedied by exercise and motion.—Johnson.
Instability of temper ought to be checked when it disposes man to transfer from one subject to another, since such a fickleness cannot but be attended with fatal consequences—Addison.

of the city, prepare the ground for future generations.
So the man of the new town sits on the snake-dance, pulling at his pipe, dreaming dreams, peopling the meadow cornfields with phantoms millions, peering on that a mammoth store, and sacrificing with some regret, but without a stern sense of duty, the little church and the postoffice shack to make place for a ten-storied hotel. And of their faith shall they in a degree be justified. Not all of them shall be citizens of a new Chicago—a poor enough ideal. God wot!—but they shall greatly grow. They shall hit higher than they aim, because that is how the ideal works out; but in the meantime their never-ceasing fight to thrust into fame and place the town of their adoption constitutes as fine a display of true patriotism as one may well wish to see.—Frank Wallace, in London Daily Mail.
