GERMAN MILITARY DOINT in the prominent in Liberal politics all h significant:

There seems to be a good deal of confusion in the public mind about the position of many of those who took part in the convention. Being chairman of the resolution committee, I was not present in the body of the convention, and therefore personally know nothing about what occurred there. My position is that the resolutions should be read as they are written. They left the committee and were adopted by the convention without change. The war resolution, to my mind, states the most comprehensive war policy so far promulgated. It includes conscription, not merely for military service, but for all other purposes of the state in any way relating to the war—conscription of men, mon-even the state in any way relating to the war—conscription of men, mon-even the state in the convention, is that the resolutions should be read as they are written. They left the committee and were adopted by the convention, while Laurier was to secure a solid Quebec on the issue of anti-conscription. Then there was to be a targain. Quebec was to dictate the war policy of the new government while the west was to be given a considerable instalment of economic reform.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER COMING TO TORONTO

Complete Reorganization of Toronto's Liberal Party is Expected.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is expected in To-onto about next Wednesday to attend an important conference.

It is understood that the leader of the Liberal party has requested a meeting of conscription Liberals, labor Liberals and national service Liberals to meet him when he arrives here, and it is expected that his wisnes will be fulfilled. Retail Motor Car Men Believe Coming Year Will Be Big One for Industry.

Fullest confidence thru the country hat the coming months will see nothnation is indicated by the manner in which Saxon dealers from coast to coast and gulf to Canada are contracting for next year's allotment of Saxon motor cars.

In the last two weeks many big contracts have been closed with dealers in the larger cities of the country and in a number of other cities which lie in the heart of the farming region of the country. Every one of these dealers has signed for a large number of cars and in many cases a

"This year will see the best falrselling season we ever have had," says it. C. Getsinger, sales manager of the Saxton Motor Car Corporation. "The slight decrease which was felt all over the country in the last spring will be more than made up by the fall buyers. "With the feeling of confidence restored in the country and with the bumper crops which are now practically assured, to say nothing of the big increase in industrial and manufacturing enterprises, the public is going to buy motor cars. Many are facturing enterprises, the public is going to buy motor cars. Many are now placing orders that they have been holding off on since spring, and for military service.

"This fall is going to be a big one in every line, and I believe that the best proof of that is to be found in the best proof of that as to be found in the motor car dealers, who are all preparing for increased business. They know the people and conditions, and their opinion may generally be taken as a pretty good estimate of their own particular locality."

Madrid, Aug. 11-Premier Dato has nounced that the ministers of the announced that the ministers of the various departments believe they will be able to assure railroad service despite the wirlke which was expected to begin last night. Military and asval engineers will be substituted for the strickers. Serious measures have been prepared but the government does not intend to anticipate events by repressive acts.

The Northern Railroad Co. has given the men 48 hours to abandon the wirlke. If they fail to do so they will be definitely dismissed. The general impression is favorable.

SITUATION EXTREMELY GRAVE.

Paris, Aug. 11—Despatches con-cerning the Spanish strike situation are rare and inconclusive. So far as known only the Northern Railroad is affected. There is a probability the strike may spread to other roads. The split between the men and the company is over questions of discipline and duties, the directors having agreed to consider that of salaries. Even if the struggle should be restricted to this one road its effect on the troubled political and economic situation cannot but be extreme-

War Summary

BY W. H. STEWART.

The alfies in Flanders have utilize the intervals between the heavy rainstorms of the past week to thrust out higher ground left in German hands. The most important thrust is that of the British who won in hard fighting the possession of the Westhock ridge and village on Friday. This advance had a frontage of two miles south of the Ypres-Roulers railway, and the general effect has been not only the bringing of the British lines near the Ostend-Thruout-Roulers-Menin railway, but the giving them of the high ground which overlooks this line north of the Lys River toward Menin.

The French have been clearing the enemy out of positions in the region of Dixmude, Bixschoote, and Langemarck. They have also captured several farms in this region along the road to Thruout.

Future of Russia

The next fortnight will probably show whether the enemy is to proceed with the invasion of Russia, or is to fail in his project. The only thing which would tempt him into entering that country in a desire to reach and control the coasts of the Black Sea, is the present reputed disorganized condition of the Russian armies, dilated upon in the despatches until it has become nauseating. Doubtless, the Russians have got rid of the disaffected elements or subdued them in the important sectors of their front, but the question of their ability to make a stubborn stand, or even to launch a counter-offensive depends on their immediately available supply of munitions. A great quantity must have gone in the retirement. Some of their withdrawals in the Carpathians have only been for a few miles to permit them to reach strong defensive positions, to concentrate forces against attack, and to be near munitions, stores and depots.

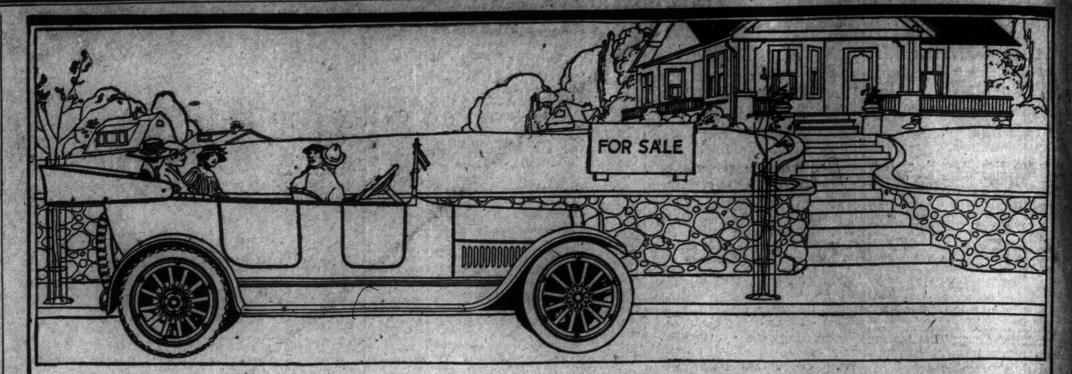

The Russian front, it may be repeated, is 1600 miles long, and it cannot be held with the same desmand.

The Russian front, it may be repeated, is 1600 miles long, and it cannot be held with the same degree of concentration per yard as the western front. The Russians, therefore, have established outposts and patrols in a thin line at the least vulnerable portions, and these, when attacked, fall back on their supports, while the reserves, posted at convenient distances of two or three days march, at once begin to proceed toward the threatened points. This accounts for the fact that an attack of the enemy often that an attack of the enemy ofter that an attack of the enemy often succeeds for two or three days, and then it vanishes from the German offi-cial communications. The Germans have no use for any failures.

The Germans began a march down the Sereth River, after stopping stock still southwest of Chotin. They proceeded gaily on their path. Then they became strangely silent about this section of the front. The Rumanians and Russians then reported the defeat of their attacks.

Audacity Chief Quality

The Rusisan higher command has always adopted audacity as its supreme policy, and Korniloff, from his record already made this summer, is not the least among the audacious. This fieneral, in fact, has traveled further on his nerve and a bold front than any other allied other allied commander except the Grand Duke Nicholas. Since audacity is the foremost trait of the Russian command, it would be rather unusual, if it merely awaited the pending renewal of the enemy offensive. It may develop that rapid Russian action may hring a surprising change over the of affairs behind the front. While the socialist proselytes in the army were running away without fighting, the workmen and railway employes in the rear were out on strike, so that the

Buy your car as you would buy your home

OOK at the buying of your car as you would look at the buying of your home. You can find a house at almost any price you would care to pay. But there are certain necessities you must have if that house is to be a home. You wouldn't, for example, try to get along in tiny, cramped up, uncomfortable rooms. Neither would you live in a house with cheap plumbing, inferior woodwork, ill-fitting doors and rattling windows.

Without going into luxuries, there are certain necessities you must have to justify your calling your house a home—a place you will be proud to own.

It is the same with your car. It must have a certain amount of size, roominess and wheel-base to make it really comfortable and free you from the need of constant apologies. It must have materials of a certain quality to insure its lasting the proper time to justify your investment in it. It must have the proper weight to make it hold the road. It must seat all its passengers in comfort.

You wouldn't buy a house that lacked the real necessities because it cost a few dollars less. Even so it is false economy to buy a car that lacks the essentials of motoring satisfaction because it is cheap to buy.

In the Series 18 Studebaker Cars you get all the needed essentials of complete motoring satisfaction at the lowest possible price.

When you realize that Studebaker, one of the largest producers of cars in the world, enjoying all the economies of great production and great resources, makes a smaller percentage of profit per car than the small car manufacturers, it is obvious that Studebaker includes in its cars those features that small cars must curtail; and quality, both of material and workmanship, that you cannot reasonably expect to find in small cars at their prices.

What is a small initial saving compared to a great sacrifice? Be wise—before you decide what car to buy see the Studebaker.

Nearly every automobile manufacturer has made an increase in prices, but Studebaker prices still remain the same as they were last Spring. This further increases the value of Studebaker cars in comparison with all others.

The increased cost of materials and labor may force Stude-baker to make an advance in prices at any time without notice.

The news that France, instead of verging on exhaustion, has three mil-lion soldiers in the war zone, and ample reserves behind them to last thruout the war cannot but be disconcerting to the Germans. The enemy, however, it is said, is greatly helped by an excess of caution in civilian war ministers and politicians, composing war cabinets. When a section of the war cabinets. When a section of the London press took up a cry about a lack of control or something of the same category over the military command in the autumn of 1915, when, in reality, the much censured offensive at Loos formed part of the allied strategic scheme to call back the German armies about to enter Russia, the bring a surprising change over the strategic scheme to call back the Gerbattlefront. The chief handloap at man armies about to enter Russia, the present is the disorganized condition politicians, quick to sieze on anything

> An expert of the war office, who accompanied the London war council on its first trip to Paris has given a report of their conversation on military matters. That report, if read by any person with the slightest familiarity with military affairs, is sufficient to condemn any interference of politicians in military matters.
> Lincoln, who used to interfere in the planning and execution of campaigns, at last found that wherever he interfered he would reap a harvest of fallure and so he hit upon the sensible policy of leaviny everything to Gen. Grant and his staff. As soon as he did this the Northern arms began to pre-vail. When the allied politicians formed their war councils, the general-ship of the allies became half-paralyzed. Excess of caution, it is charged, has marred the campaigns. It now seems that last spring the allies had the Germans in France in a serious plight, and that if they had driven their attack home, they would have broken the German army. Instead of allowing this to be done, the French socialist members, acting as if they were the tools of Berlin, raised an outcry, and the French Government relieved of his command Nivelle, the most audacious general of France in the present war. Petain, his successor, is as eager for an offensive as ever, but the French politicians have shown no inclination to give him full control. The consequence is that the French people are getting out of patience with their politicians, and there may be an explosion. The relieving of Nivelle from his command automatically halted the successful advance, for Petain had to take time for the drawing up of his own plans. home, they would have broken the Ger-Germany's Strength

The figures of Mr. Belloc are illuminating on the present situation. They show with what few actual numbers the enemy is holding the allies in the west. While the kalser has a million infantry, the allies have probably three times that number. The problem presented by modern war with its vast instruments of destruction, and its still vaster means of defence and or prolongation of the campaign is to hasten the end, while the whole tactics of the enemy is to retard the end and trust to intrigue, submarines and socialist conferences to weary the glies of war, and to give him an advantage-ous peace.

Altho the enemy is so short of fighting men, it must be reckoned that it he enters another winter without decisive defeat, he will scrape together more drafts and, perhaps, even impress prisoners of war in his ranks, as Frederick the Great Ms.

New York, Aug. 11 - (Weekly fiincial review). - Indications that various industrial concerns engaged in filling war contracts are in need of financial rehabilitation and a disappointing crop report constituted the primary factors of this week's irregular stock market.

As a matter of record and information we publish below the officially sanctioned description of the United Kirkland Gold Mines, Limited, properties, located in the Kirkland Lake gold mining district, Timiska ming Mining Division, Province of Ontario:

UNITED KIRKLAND GOLD MINES, LIMITED

INCORPORATION-United Kirkland Gold Mines, Limited, is in corporated under the Ontario Companies Act. No personal liability. CAPITALIZATION-Authorized, 2,000,000 shares. Par $1. 'Tree

OFFICERS-President, B. T. Shillington; vice-president, W. George Ellis; secretary and treasurer, Herbert A. Day-all of Haileybury, Ontario-with Levi Dodge and Edward Kert, both of Englehart, Ontario constitute the board of directors.

PROPERTIES—Five full and fractional claims, aggregating 140

LOCATION-Properties are in a compact group and located in the western end of the Kirkland Lake district, adjoin the Elliott-Kirkland properties and are one remove west of the already famous Kirkland Lake Geld Mines (McKane), now under successful deep-level develop ment by the Beaver Consolidated Mines interests of Cobalt.

The Elliott-Kirkland and Kirkland Lake Gold Mines properties were sold to their present interests by the principals of the United Kirkland Gold Mines, Limited.

ACCESSIBILITY-United Kirkland Gold Mines estate is located in Lake, nearest the Swastika station on the Timiskaming & Norther Ontario Railway. It can be reached from the railroad station by automobile in from 10 to 20 minutes. The making of an appropriation to cover the building of a railroad tangent from the station to connect with Kirkland Lake has been authorized by the Provincial Government, and it is expected that the first new railroad building done in the north country will be that connecting up the Kirkland Lake camp. Two surveys have been made by the T. & N. O., one of which will be followed when the road is built. Both surveys pass in the immediate vicinity of the United Kirkland Mines properties, one survey crossing the pro-

VEIN SYSTEM-United Kirkland Gold Mines properties lie on the lirect strike of the main wein system of Kirkland Lake, on the contact between the porphyry and the sedimentary series. This system has been proven for two mfles, in a direction slightly north of east and south of west extending from the Tough-Oakes mines to United Kirkland. The extension of this main vein system is exposed boldly on the surface of the United Kirkland properties and shows from six to eight feet of the characteristic vein matter lying directly on the contact, which bas proven to be the rich productive zone of Kirkland Lake. This out-crop, with its marked favorable characteristics, exceeds in width, length and strength of showing any other surface showing at the western end of Kirkland Lake, and is fully equal (with one possible exception, the Wright-Hargraves, the discovery mine of the camp, as the opposite end of the lake) to that of any in the entire camp. The company is fortunate in being in position to immediately begin work on the extension of the known ore-bearing system of Kirkland Lake. There are three sitively established vein systems in Kirkland Lake, all of which cross

DEVELOPMENT-There has been but little development done to date on the properties of the company, this having been confined to the VALUES-Assays of the surface exposure on United Kirkland No. 1 vein show values up to $12 per ton across a stoping width. Following the experience of its immediate neighbors, Elliott-Kirkland and Kirkland Lake Gold Mines, higher values and greater widths may be expected as each new level is opened up.

POWER-Development of these properties has waited on the de-livery of hydro-electric power into the Kirkland Lake district, which became a fact in the spring of 1917. Northern Ontario Light & Power Company with an expenditure of approximately $400,000 entered the district from Cobalt, a distance of 70 miles, providing for all the power demands of the Kirkland Lake mines and works. Power from this system is now being delivered to the Elliott-Kirkland plant, directly adjoining United Kirkland, and by the stringing of approximately one third of a mile of wiring at nominal expense this power will be available on the United Kirkland estate. Former costs were about $120 per horsepower annually, while present costs are $60 per horsepower, a reduction of at least 50%, placing the power costs of the camp on substantially as economical a basis as those of any camp operating in the north.

HISTORY-The development of Kirkland Lake, which is now preducing around $1,000,000 annually in gold bullion, notwithstanding recent unsettled labor supply, has been exceptional. This development dates back only to 1918, when gold was found in the quartz veinlets which traverse the reddish feldsper porphyry on the Wright-Hargraves to the east of the lake, and when the Tough-Oakes group began making shipments of high-grade gold ore from its No. 2 vein.

The men connected with United Kirkland Gold Mines were pioneer; of the district and have been closely associated with its physical and financial development from the earliest discovery days. They have owned and disposed of some of the richest ground in the district, notably the McKane properties, to the Beaver Consolidated interests, for $300,000, the second payment of $75,000 of which was made a few weeks ago. The McKane properties had been developed by shaft for 76 feet at the time of this sale, but the Beaver interests did not reach the main ore body until the shaft had been sunk to 200 feet. The Beaver interests are now sinking from the 600 to the 700 level, the deepest shaft in the camp, and as the result of deep developments are preparing to erect on the ground a 150-ton mill to treat the ore

The record of the men at the head of United Kirkiand Core Mines in Kirkland Lake has been successful without exception, and, as a matter of fact, not a single failure has yet been recorded against Kirkland Lake in the two-mile section lying between Tough-Oakes, a dividend-payer, and United Kirkland Gold Mines. The rich surface showings have already proven in the experience of the Kirkland Lake Gold Mine the tendency to widen and grow richer down to the 700 level, where these properties have an ore body 45 feet wide with estimated average values of $15 to the ton, the widest vein in the district and one of the widest in the north country.

The president of the company, Mr. R. T. Shillington, is a man of isiderable means realized from the mining business. His mining ventures have uniformly turned out successfully. He was for four years a member of the Provincial Parliament from the Timiskaming district. His official associates are men of splendid standing. Mr. W. George Ellis, the vice-president, and Mr. Levi Dodge, a director, originally staked these properties, which are known locally as the "Dodge-Ellis" group, having been connected with the Kirkland Lake camp since 1912. These properties have been examined and reported upon by T. J. Flynn, M.E., R. H. Lyman. M.E., and Geo. O. Randolph, M.E.

REMARKS-The established character of Kirkland Lake; rapid pregress of the camp in matters of deep-level development; widening and enriching of ore bodies; development of ore reserves; building of mills; advent of hydro-electric power; assurance of early railroad facilities; building of new mills and increasing of capacity of old plants to treat the ores, and the aiready demonstrated earning power of the older mines, all point to a great suture for Kirkland Lake, which some mining engineers esteem to be in line to become the peer of Porcupine. That United Kirkland Mines will add one more success to Kirkland Lake's "Golden Two Miles" cannot be intelligently questioned.

United Kirkland Gold Mines stock offering is being sponsored by Mr. J. T. Eastwood, president of the Toronto Standard Stock Exchange.

BUT WE WANT TO REITERATE—AND THUS PLACE OURSELVES EMPHATICALLY ON RECORD - OUR PLEDGE THAT EVERY SHARE OF UNITED KIRKLAND GOLD MINES STOCK SOLD THROUGH OUR OFFICE WILL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO THE EXAMINATION AND REPORT OF A DISTINGUISHED MINING ENGINEER AND GEOLO-GIST, WHO WILL BE CHOSEN AND ANNOUNCED BY US AS SOON AS THE MATTER CAN BE PROPERLY DETER-MINED. WE WANT TO MAKE OURSELVES PLAIN-WE WISH NO MISUNDERSTANDING. · We are free to say that we believe that the United Kirkland properties will prove the biggest in Kirkland Lake. This is a belief based upon talks with various Kirkland Lake operators, some of whom have no direct interests in United Kirkland. It is a belief based upon the reports of such mining engineers as Messrs. T. J. Flynn and George O. Randolph, which are on file in our office. We believe United Kirkland is the solar plexus property of Kirkland Leke. Personally, we believe it is the mother lode of the camp. But we are not mining engineers, and we have never yet tried to force our views as to mining propositions upon the public to the exclusion of the opinions of men of technical ability and authority. We not only decline to offer our opinion in lieu of that of a mining engineer, but we intend-and are now working out our intention-to procure this mining engineer of commanding standing to report upon these properties, whether for good or for ill, and his report shall afford the protection which we and our customers must now and always have in buying into mining propositions.

REMEMBER, THE TIME IS SHORT. AN OVERSUB-SCRIPTION OF STOCK IS ASSURED, ATTESTING THE GREAT POPULARITY OF KIRKLAND LAKE AS A GOLD CAMP. IF YOU DO NOT HAVE YOUR SUBSCRIPTION IN OUR HANDS BY THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS, AUGUST 15. YOU LOSE THE OPPORTUNITY OF BUYING UNITED KIRKLAND STOCK AT 22c, AND WILL THEN HAVE TO PAY 30c. Cobb has pilfered 32 bases, while the Cleveland pair have stolen 34 and 33 respectively. Chapman, with 55, is far in front of other sacrifice hitters. JUNIORS SHOW WARES

Linfield and Parkview Provide Exhibition as First Half of Bill.

Referee—Hall.

—First Half—
Linfield took the field with nine players only, but took the offensive from the klok-off. They forced two corners at their opponent's end, but both were cleared. Parkviews tallied the first goal thru a mistake by Johnson, the Linfield net guardian. A long shot from the left wing came salling in and the goaler stopped the ball, but failed to clear. This allowed Todd to come in and shoot it into the net.

Parkviews 1, Linfield 0.

Parkviews kept up the pressure, and following some tame play Todd again found the net with a shot from 15-yard range Parkviews 2. Linfield 0.

Linfield rushed the game more following these reverses, and had one more player in the field to assist them. They gave the opposing defence a rather busy five minutes' session, but could not score.

The teams changed ends immediately and re-started play. Parkviews resumed their attack, but falled to register. Linfield also took a hand at the offensive game, and staged a prolonged rally at their coponents' end, where they had some hard luck with their shots. Linfield were pressing the Parkview defence hard at this time, and looked like breaking into the score column at any minute.

The Leafs took part in nine games since the last Sunday World's averages were published, and Larry's boys did some tall clouting. The big Frenchman still has his batting eye with him and improved his mark by 4 points. Larry leads the Leafs and is the International League's real hitting leader.

Frank Truesdale is romping along at a great clip. He collected 14 hits in the nine games and is second to Lajoie on the Leafs' roster. Truesdale picked up 15 points during the week and is a very valuable asset to the club. Joe Schultz's trip across the border to take examination for the U. S. army did not hurt him. Joe improved his average by six points.

Criminal Waste!

The Toronto Star of Tuesday contained a startling statement to the effect that over 800 loaves of bread had been wantonly wasted and thrown away by pionic parties at local summer resorts on the holiday. There is no reason to doubt the accuracy of The Star's statement, and it further brings home to us the absolute necessity of stopping this criminal waste of one of the prime necessities of life, irrespective of whether it applies to war economics or not. Prompt action should follow this report of The Star, either by the Honorable Food Controllier or Mayor Church. Such wanton cinelessness and extravance as this comes mighty close to treason at this time. Consider the enormous waste that is going on in this way from day to day in thousands of places over the Dominion, and it is easily understood what the ultimate results must be.

Here is an important field of work for some of Mr. Hanna's highly paid experts. There is no doubt that the chief himself is devoting every moment of his time to his heavy responsibilities, and that is why I make the suggestion. On every summer resort in Canada there should be men patroling the grounds and warning pionickers against waste of food stuffs. There might also be signa posted on trees, fences, etc., to the same effect. And most important of all, the newspapers. A live campaign — articles that bring the truth home to us all should be appearing daily in the press. For example: If you stop to figure it out, it would take 50,000 acres of wheat land to make up the loss sustained IF ONLY ONE SLICE of bread a day is wasted in every Canadian home. In hundreds of ways the truth can be brought home, so that we can understand that if we all cannot serve our country at the front, we can serve

BOXING UNDER THE CONTROL OF CITY

New York Fans Will Request That City Conduct

New York, Aug. 11.—Boxing under city control is the latest movement to be started in an effort to save the sport for the "fans" of New York. It is proposed to have not less than 90,000 voters sign a monster petition to be presented to the board of aldermen requesting them to pass an ordinance governing boxing bouts within the limits of the city. It is hoped in this way to have the board of aldermen issue permits to the different clubs. It is further proposed to deduct five per cent. of the gross receipts of all bouts to be turned over to the city controller. Whether this movement can possibly meet with any success is doubted, but not by those who are fostering the idea and furnishing the impetus.

May Be impossible.

It is argued by those who should know that the board of aldermen cannot pass any ordinances which conflict with state laws, and, naturally, an ordinance of this kind would be in direct opposition to the purpose of the bill which repealed the Frawley law legalizing boxing bouts in the state. The Frawley law will be repealed on Nov. 15, after which time the future of the sport in this state is shrouded in doubt.

It seems that the only solution of the rather vexing problem is to return to the old club system that obtained before boxing was legalized by the passing of the Frawley law, and the chances are that it will be the final answer. However, there are some who are sanguine this latest move will neet with success, When questioned regarding, it, one of the men behind the move said:

The Plan.

"It is the purpose of twenty-five of us to present a monster petition to the board of aldermen with 90,000 names of voters from the five boroughs, requesting that bedy to pass a law permitting boxing exhibitions. We believe that five per cent. deducted from the gross receipts of the competitions will fully pay all expenses of the commissioners, who will be appointed by the city to supervise the sport, and still have a tidy sum left to turn over to the city controller.

"There is no good reason why the City of

TENNIS BY ELECTRIC LIGHT GROWS POPULAR

McLoughlin Is Surprised at the Way One Can Volley by Artificial Light.

By W. A. Collins.

New York. August 11—Lawn tennis playing at night on electrically lighted courts, which has recently attracted widespread interest because of the matches which Miss Mary K. Browne, and William M. Johnston, the Californians, have played at the Westfield Golf Club, has enlisted the enthusiasm of the most famous American racquet wielders. Maurice E. Mc-Loughlin, four years ago maintained a court for night practice at his home in Pledmont, Cal. The California comet treated the Australasian Davis Cup team of that year—Stanley N. Doust, A. B. Jones and Horace Rice—to their first experience of playing by electric light.

McLoughlin is one of the ploneers of the night game. He recently said off it: "No one can believe what is said of artificial lighted courts until one actually plays on, such a court. The most susprising thing about it is the way one can velley. It is possible to go to the net and there volley the fastest shots that can be sent over, and there is absolutely no trouble with following the ball from the time the opponent strikes it until you set your racquet on it."

It was William H. Cragin, Jr., the former 7th Regiment champion, who first saw the possibilities of electric light for matches indeers and at night. He tested his theories during the national indoor championship in the 7th's armory and the methods have since been perfected by experts.

particularly wise the city alone will reap the financial benefit of it. Thousands of dollars derived from taxes on boxing bouts held in this city was poured fit the state treasity, with this city as chief supporter of the fund. In the event of the board of aldermen passing a law giving the fans in this city a legal right to witness boxing bouts, all of this more would be turned over to Father Knicker-bocker and spent where it was collected.

There is ansolutely nothing wrong with the sport. In fact, the army and navy officials are advesing all training camps to list boxing as one of the physical exercises.

Of course, the mayor would issue the permits under the scheme we will present to the board of aldermen, the the mayor could turn the privilege over to the police commissioner, as is the custom in cities where the state does not supervise boxing bouts, anylow, we are going to try out our scheme, and 90,000 voters names don't look like a failure for a starter."

The farmer's explanation was that the boy was "always asking fool questions," but when, after a few minutes' conversation, the visitor was able to show the farmer that this was quite natural, and to point out to him how foolish many a farm-bred man would feel among city surroundings, the latter admitted his mistake. When You Eat Out of Doors

"Don't you like to eat out of doors, these warm summer days?" asked the girl from the city, of the country woman in town for a day's shopping.

"Indeed I do," was the reply. "So much so that one corner of our verandah is commonly spoken of as the dining-room. And, moreover, I have just bought some new furniture for it, which is the moreover, I have ever seen. It is simple, too, of plain cream white-natural colored, not stained or painted or enameled-willow The table is a good-sized oval one, but this new furniture is not going to take up too much space, for the interesting thing about the set is that the six chairs all fit right under the table, when not in use, so there is only one piece of furniture to be thought of when the ques tion of space comes up. It is such an interesting arrangement; that is one reason why I bought it.

'Our outdoor dining-room is in one of the rear conners of the plazza, and from it we get a beautiful view of fields and hills, beyond the flower garden at our feet. A tall screen of hollyhocks—they are so beautiful now; you ought to come out to see them!—offers a welcome bit of shade when the sun is hot, but still does not shut out the view; instead, it frames parts of it as beautiful little pictures."

Raggs' Weekly Letter

The Farmlet, Up-North-and-Beyond!

My Dear Toronto-Onters:

I cannot deny that the excitement of the life up here is thrilling beyond words! Can you imagine anything more exciting than having a temperature of one hundred and two, by your trusty little chinical thermometer—and the nearest doctor forty miles away? And not a drop of the cup that stimulates nearer than Niagara Falls, N.Y.? However the stimulant and the doctor arrived about the same time, and I am quite well, thank you. The former arrived in the village neatly packed in a tasty little wooden box, on which was a most artistic, the large red label, neatly picked out in black letters, stating for the benefit of the villagers who sathered about it in an interested group, that it was my duty to the province to drink it all myself—if I parted with any of it (they had evidently heard of my generous disposition), I would be "pinched"! It was most gratifying! If we carnot be celebrated, by all means let us be notorious!

Can hardly blame them for paying as little as possible.

No doubt the same problem of inefficiency holds in factories. I know that it does in households, where there are servants who, taking advantage of the fact that the demand for their work is greater than the supply, demand wages out of all proportion to the quantity or quality of work they turn out. Women with g small knowledge of household duties receive good wages, while in the process of being trained by their long suffering employers. Then there is a "flirting" to "pastures new," and the same grind all over again for the woman who pays the wages.

No denunclation can be too fierce for their benefit. But, as Dr. Ribourg implies, there are two sides to the question.

The injustice of employes to employers is just as great a stain upon the social conscience as the reverse order of things.

Wouldn't it cause a wonderful revolution in social conditions if both classes tried Christianty in their dealings with generous disposition). Proposition of the control of the control of the control

A sermon preached by Dr. Ribourg recently at St. Alban's Cathedral and reported in the press, interested me greatly. It was original in that, in speaking of social "birds of prey," and the "socially oppressed," he implied that the employes who do not worthily do the work for which they are paid, are in the same class with employers who give insufficient pay. insufficient pay.

The workingmen with socialistic tendencies—and which of them have not?—have for so long brooded over the injustice of the wealthy employer who makes his profits from their labor; that they have, perhaps lost sight of the fact that there are just about as many perfect employers as employers which perfect that there are just about as many perfect employes as employers—which statement isn't flattering to either class. Jest for instance—there are certain large and small stores all over the city, where it is a pleasure to deal. There are others where customers are driven way by the carelessness and rudeness of employes. The employers who pay wages to such clerks are not receiving honest value for their money, and you same grind all over again for the woman who pays the wages.

No denunciation can be too fierce for the individual who does not pay a living wage—even tho he sanctimoniously/pauperize his employes by charitable schemes for their benefit. But, as Dr. Ribourg implies, there are two sides to the question.

The injustice of employes to employers is just as great a stain upon the social conscience as the reverse order of things. Wouldn't it cause a wonderful revolution in social conditions if both classes tried Christianty in their dealings with each other.

He says: "When Christianity truly controls men's lives, there will be a change in the standard of the world. The employer will not profit by unfair wages and overwork. The employer will not profit by unfair when sense of responsibility by giving, efficiently, his services for the wage received."

Christianity should not be so difficult to attain, after all. Surely Brother-tult to attain attains to file in, and the more serious numbers, rag-time, in which and the more serious numbers, rag-time

Like Jane of many kitchens, we want to go on, and on, with all possible despatch, forming getting that "too far east is west," and we will only come back to the same stupid, unsolved problems.

The song is "Annie Laurie." The singer motions for the soldiers to join him in the second verse. They respond, stumblingly, at first, then louder. "Each heart supplied a different name, but all sang 'Annie Laurie." In the doors and windows can be seen dimly the faces of men for whom there is not room inside. Behind the singer is a row of other performers, one with a violin, one with a 'cello, one with a roll of music in his hands, still another who is a story-teller, and at the head of the line the presiding colonel.

War Time Vacation

Glad days of vacation, of emancipation from office and factory and store, we hail you with pleasure, sweet moments of leisure, and wish you were longer and more! When we have been weary, and life has seemed dreary, we've thought of your coming with joy—sweet rest from employment chock full of enjoyment and happiness free from alloy! To sleep in the morning disturbed by no warning from wicked, insistent slarm; to in the morning disturbed by no warning from wicked, insistent starm; to loaf and be lazy, with intellect hazy, yet feel one is doing no harm. On commonplace clothing to cast eyes of loathing, apparel that's starched to eschew; old duds to be dressed in, the hammock to rest in the whole gladsome, happy day thru; alternately snoozing and reading and musing, and all the time breathing fresh air; from thence to the table to eat all one's able—Oh! this is Vacation for fair! Tho all must be working, and none able—Oh! this is Vacation for fair! Tho all must be working, and none offered last. all the time breathing fresh air; from thence to the table to eat all one's able—Oh! this is Vacation for fair! The all must be working, and none must be shirking, authorities say it is best, nay more, necessary, that folks labor-weary should once in a year have a rest. 'Tis true, tho 'tis pity, that Atlantic City the most of us cannot afford; 'twould mean ruination to take a vacation and hand out so much for one's board. Muskoka is jolly; it would be great folly its pleasures and charms to deny; but living's so costly that poor folks have mostly to give all "Resorts" the go-by. This so costly that poor folks have mostly to give all "Resorts" the go-by. A back porch and garden, a hammock the yard in, are methods not far from the best. The tuneful bird bowers, the grass and sweet flowers will help with the cure quite a bit; and these with some dozin', some sunshine and ozone will soon make us feel very fit. Exhaustion abated, and health reinstated with sleeping and eating and rest, some fine early rising and hoe exercising will make us as strong as the best. The work in the garden our muscles will harden and help food production along; then when Vacation's ended, with bodies well mended, we'll go back large, as in this movement among boys large, as in this movement among boys to work with a song!

Woolen materials are getting scarcer every day, and it is predicted that before many months the handsomest of silks will be much cheaper than the most ordinary of woolens. Canadians are learning to serve for the love of, and loyalty to a principle. If we have government ownership of public utilities—and it is coming—will not these men serve their country which temploys them, the country which they love and have fought for, in something the same spirit that they are expressing now in a different, harder kind of service?

Service for love's sake! It is the principle underlying all Christian teaching. It is what Christ came to earth to express. Perhaps during the past three years we have come nearer to being a Christian nation than ever before.

I have been interestedly perusing a small-town newspaper that numbers among its readers practically all the Canadian citizens of this part of the numerous simple models that have a modish air.

Particularly chic is an afternoon design in white foulard combined with the same silk in dot effect. In addition to the dots satin threads are woven thru the foulard in winding effect, giving an unusually novel pattern. The dress closes to the left of the front under a box plait and a collar to correspond with the skirt and sleeves finishes the square neck. The front panel is of dotted foulard and the lower edge of the gathered skirt is trimmed with a deep band of the same. The sleeves are loose and open, and despite their lack of trimming are incredibly chic. A sash belt of the white foulard holds in the fulness at the waist.

There is nothing more fashicnable than oyster-white foulard—unless it be egg-shell white. The silk is used than cyster-white foulard—unless it be egg-shell white. The slik is used for a charming dinner frock, having the front and back gathered to a square yoke. The skirt is a four-piece model, being gathered and attached to the waist slightly above normal. At the sidos there are large pockets, so near beach-bag proportions that they resemble draperies.

A model designed upon new lines especially for mid-summer service is offectively developed in pale rose voile trimmed with that most favored of laces—filet. A band of the trimming appears on the skirt above the deep hem, also on the flowing sleeves. Filet forms the collar and trimming for pockets. Satin binds the large armholes of the waist, to which a two-piece skirt is attached under a straight band of black velvet ribbon. Filet in every description is in monstrous demand this season. In bandings for use bn collars and hip-bits, and in the coarser quality, it has attained flattering success. A new idea is pastel colored filet laces. Many tained flattering success. A new idea is rastel colored filet laces. Many evidences of this novelty have been noticed. This effect is attained by

For the heyday of, summer there is a delightful dress in one of the new novelty ginshams, combined with fine with Elinen, which is used for the colliar, turn-back cuffs and a straight bet trimmed with black velvet buttons. The model is really a shirt-waist costume, as the waist and skirt are made independently, but it has the effect of being built up in one piece. The skirt is plaited all around except at the front where there is a panel. Draped pock-cits trim the skirt.

This sleeve is carried to the wrist in a modified form of its original shape, and rolled over at the straight open edge.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am 18, and have been going with a young man of the same age for two years. He told me he loved me, but still he goes with another girl. I asked him not to go out with her, and he didn't go out with her for over a month, but I met them on the street the other night. Now, dear Annie Laurie, he has not acted the same to me since he met her. It will break my heart if he gives me up, as I could never love another. I have been out with this girl, and she, too, loves him. What can I do to get him back?

A BROKEN-HEARTED WORKING-A BROKEN-HEARTED WORKING

I am a gril 19 years old, and have a young man friend of the same age, who has been paying me attention for about three months, but just lately seems to have lest his friendship. He was always kind and friendly to me until just recently, when he began to act queerly, and would only speak a few words to me. The last time he called we paried as kindly as usual. I am trying hard to find the reason for his queer actions, but I really fear there is something on his raind that is worrying him. This is the first time I have lost a friend. I have many friends, but he, ind-ed; was the dearest one. Please give me your advice—how can I obtain his friendship again? PEARL ROSE. PEARL ROSE. Altho you say you see 19, your letter is very immature, my dear, and I wonder if you aren't just a school girl, for your problem is disco like that of the girls who are just beginning to lave young men friends and who take each little trouble too much to heart. Of currae you tate to lose his friendship butware you quite sure that you were not taking him too seriously? That was the trot bie, I believe, for men hate to be taken seriously when their thought is only friendly.

You can't win him back, dear child, for you did nothing to drive him away. The best thing for you to do is to wait keeping your own heart clear of hared for the slight, and if he is just worrying over something which you cannot help, he will come lack when he wakes up!

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Will you help me to decide a matter that the long been worrying me? I am very unsettled, as I design to become a station picture actress. At preent I am working, but I am not contented.

I have also met a girl here who would like to go with me. Would you give me the name of a good company that we may write?

G. P.: I'an sorry that I cannot adviso you to take up the work you long for, girls, and really I fear you would not be successful. The life of a moving picture actress is not as easy as it seems, and requires much training. The police records are searched for accident or arrest. All the morgues in Greater New York are visited. Inquiries are made at all the organizations interested in girls. Reports are sent to other cities. A daily search is, made of all unidentified dead.

A cruel alarm at six a.m. roused me to the fact that an unrelenting sun was out on another scorching campaign.

I was still wondering when, late in the evening, we—the poodle-dog lady,—her husband and I—anchored the rowboat, and were leaving the lake, the breeze and the moon. The husband suggested a sail. But knowing that if I accepted there would be fittle time left for fondling, I declined on the grounds of the late bour.

"It's not late," said the husband, and slipped an arm about his wife. Before I could get away his lips were pressed to hers. I struggled bravely on in the darkness. Presently I came across the dying embers of the late that the laborers, male and female, with sickles or mattocks, could stand upright. strict records were made a terrible total of death records would be indirectly due to over eating. Premature deaths are also indirectly caused by over eating since the ductless glands and kidneys are directly affected by over eating therefrom.

The full dinner pail does not atways represent contentment nor lack of gastritis, and over eating causes our system to revoit with a venganne, swiftly and surely to bring our bodies to such an imparted condition, so that we become walking advertisements for gout and diabetes. The over loading of metabolism with the wastes resulting from combustion of such quantities of food, especially of meat, cannot but result in harm, for even the organs, which segulate metabolic processes, the ductless glands, thyroids, adrenals and sexual stands become injured by, excessive feeding.

The problem of health is dismissed until we are sick. Then we stand at the door of necessity to become mystified at our own misgrivings. Learn to live in moderation, live temperate, do not over eat, leave a little for the next meal or for the other fellow. Learn the secret of food values and eat discreetly. We are standing on the threshold of an enlightened democracy ringing thruout the world, and yet our ringing throut the world, and yet our conquering brains have not been taught the first lessons of "Food

Transportation is Civilization Kipling Said it.

If, as Kipling puts it, "transportation is civilization," then Canada is still lacking somewhat in civilization. For while one branch of our transportation is well developed (the railroad) the other equally-important branch (the highway) is still to be brought to that perfection so necessary to the complete solution of a country's social and economic problems. Human Brigandage Lloyd George's Phrase.

Premier Lloyd George has reached climax after climax in his great speeches on the war. Perhaps he was not on his highest level in replying to Chancellor Michaelis, but his speech in Queen's Hall in London on August 5 was one of his very finest orations. He ingeniously preserved in it the metaphors of mountain and landscape, availing himself of physiographical images to point his meaning. The climbing of mountain peaks, the dark chasms below, the road that winds climbing of mountain peaks, the dark chasms below, the read that winds across the country, the dark glen thru which it passes, were woven into the eloquent address and unified it. "What are we fighting for?" he asked. "To defeat the most dangerous conspiracy ever plotted against the liberty of nations; carefully, skilfully, insidiously, elandestinely planned in every detail with ruthless, cynical determination. Those who have read the revelations which have recently appeared, of the meeting in Berlin a few weeks before the war, must have read with a shudder the account of the meeting of the contederates before the firing of the train—one of the most sinister episodea in the whole history of human brigandage." A convincing passage asked, "Will those who have any doubt as to whether we ought to have entered this war three years ago reflect on the kind of Europe there would have been today if we had not gone into the war?" There are people who now say that the peril is past, he went on; why, therefore, do we not make peace? The kalser uses different language now. We do not hear the resounding phrases about the world power of Germany. He talks modestly about defending his own soil.

Who ever wanted to invade Germany? This was a masterly piece of surcasm in Premier Lloyd George's speech. "Did Britain with her contemptible little army? Did Russia, which had not got a railway system that was adequate to keep an army to defend her was adequate to keep an army to defend her own frontiers? Was she preparing for an invasion? Was France, who was obviously unprepared to protect even her own frontiers? Or was it Belgium? Or was the Serbian army to march on Berlin? He knows, he must know, it is not true. That is not why he went to war. That is not why he is at war, even now. Neither of them, neither he nor his new chancellor says they will be satisfied with German soil. They talk glibly of peace, both of them; but they stammer, they stutter, when they come to the word restoration. It has not yet crossed their lips in its entirety. We have challenged them. They cannot say it. Before we enter a peace conference they must learn to utter that word to begin with." The premier also dwelt on the future, for which this war must be a preparation either by victory or defeat. If we make this war must be a preparation either by victory or defeat. If we make a premature peace, he pointed out, "we have it on the authority of a man in a very high and powerful position in Germany, who safe. There will be peace shortly, but war will be resumed in ten years." That is 'hat is the way they talk." It is a realization of this that compels all who value the opportunities and the liberties of peace to resolve that however long it takes we are going to finish with war this "To run away is not the way to a satisfactory peace," he caustically remarked, and he was sure that those in Russia, who at one time thought so, have ceased to be of that opinion. This is not so certain, for the average pacifist would let war continue forever before he would end it by any act of his.

Nationalization of Grand Trunk Hoped For.

There is a very general feeling of regret that the government did not accept the report of Messrs. Acworth and Drayton on the nationalization of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern Railways in one system. Before the report was presented there had been some hope that the C.P.R. would be included by the railway commissioners in their report, but this proved to be foundationless. The pubupon the nation's taxpayers after the lie certainly expected the report to be acted upon as it was made, and Sir Thomas White's explanations about finances are not entirely convincing. Nothing is changed since the letter written by Mr. Archibald McGoun and published in The World on July 23. Since Sir Thomas White's announcement a rumor has been in circulation that the Grand Trunk will be taken over later. Certainly if no better service is rendered in the coming winter than in the last by the G.T.R., public opinion will insist on its nationalization. Ontario is particularly disappointed at the omission of the Grand Trunk from the government plans, This province always has to bear an undue share of the cost and liability of national projects from which she only derives secondary bene fits. The Canadian Northern will benefit the west and Quebec much more than Ontario, and in Ontario as a government road it will meet the competition of both the Grand Trunk and the C.P.R. Joined with the C.N.R. and the Intercolonial in a national system, it would have strengthened the whole system and particularly benefited Ontario on account of the possibility of electrifying the road, thus economizing coal and increasing the supply of coal to other industries; The municipalities of the province interested in the hydro-electric system are a nit on Grand Trunk nationalization.

In the recently published report of the proceedings of the Canadian Club, Toronto, for the year 1916-17," an address by Mr. Must Shun Politics Samuel O. Dunn on October 30 last on For Railway "Management of Railways" is perpetuated. Success. It was as an opponent of government ownership of railways that he spoke, and he based his opposition chiefly on the point that altho a railway might be a highway, no government had ever carried goods and passengers before failways. As the cost of carriage is about 60 per cent. of the whole cost of railways, he pleaded that this was a reason for private ownership. Mr. Dunn was acting as a special pleader, of course; and while he admitted, as he had to do, that the highway privilege was a governmental one, he had nothing to say about the surrender of the 40 per cent, of the government interest to private interests. Nor was he logical in dealing with the other percentage of cost. The problem, he said, had two phases of paramount importance. One of these was the economic one. Which policy best served the efficient production and equitable distribution of wealth? And he actually begged the whole question by declaring for private ownership. The other phase of first importance is the political phase, he said. Politics should have nothing to do with it, in our view. He inferred that under public ownership the taxpayer would have to pay a large part of the cost of transportation. If it cost $10, he suggested to move 1,000 tons of freight one mile, the burden imposed on the country for this movement is just the same whether $5 of the cost was paid by the shipper and $5 by the taxpayer, or the whole $10 by the shipper. When after this he admits that cost consists of return to invested capital (including watered stock); and that economy in management is a prime factor in cost, so that duplication of rolling stock paralleling of trackage, multiplication of overhead expenses are a feature of private management, he admits enough to make a good case for public ownership. He says that under public ownership railways cost more to build and to operate. The T. & N. O. Railway dees not show this. We believe public railway servants can be as efficient and as honest as any private officials, .Mr, Dunn's weightiest objection was the fear that political influence would interfere in management. The independent commission plan obviates that danger, and might conceivably reverse the 60 per cent, cost of operation and the 40 per cent, cost

CRUSTS AND CRUMBS

INCE I READ THACKERAY I betwen the two countries, that they Since I Read Thackeray I have not enjoyed and been so seized by any book as by St. John G. Ervine's "Changing Winds" (Macmillan & Co. St. Martin's House, Toronto, $1.60). It is a young man's book to begin with, and this is its distinguishing merit. It has the vigour, the wisdom and the courage of youth, all three qualities impossible to physical age. As we grow older we grow siller. I see that clearly. Hermes, and Angus Oge and all the Christs are beautiful young men, etcanally young, because continually reborn. But they have the wisdom and the vigour and the courage of youth also. Let no silly young man, who begins by being silly, think that his youth, of itself, gives him anything to presume upon. A large part of the joy of "Changing Winds" is the fact that it is a young man's book, with the outlook of spring, and the verdure of new life. It is a book about the war, which is the work of silly old men, and which will not be ended until young men find the secret. We are overborne by ancient precedents, dusty traditions, hoary failacies, antique superstitions which have have not enjoyed and been so cannot be fair to each other. No dusty traditions, hoary failacles, antique superstitions which have hardened the veins of the world, paralyzed its limbs, and softened its brains. "Behold I make all things new!" is the most jubilant cry of vevelation. The well of water springing into aconian life, the fountain of eternal youth, has gone dry tain of eternal youth, has gone dry in the old, choked with prejudice, drained by their conceit. We still suffer from the Scribes and Pharises, and we need a forty years' less of the story are reoted. There journey in the wilderness, till the old die off. youth is the only ture. I know the grey-beards will think this a crazy rhapsody, just as the foolish young will deem it a warrant for licence. Neither of these has learned to distinguish between youth and immaturity. At 120 Moses' eye was not dim nor his strength abated. The God of youth abode in him.

In "MRS. MARTIN'S MAN," Mr.

"Punch" Which He Uses Well

London.—A friend has given me an interesting light on the character of

Mr. Page, the American ambassacor. There has been rather a disposition to think of Mr. Page as dropping something of the importance with which the American embassy was invested by some of his predecessors. He has been looked upon as a very pleasant man, of letters, owing his position to a long friendship with the president, but not counting very much in the diplomatic scheme of things. I am told that this is quite a mis-taken view and that Mr. Page has a "punch," which he uses with great effect in his dealings with the home stand, has a great respect for Mr. Page's sagacity, all the more so because the ambassador never hesitates to put his opinions in the strongest language when he thinks fit.

The Germans had made a big fight and paid the penalty; their limp bodies in field-grey uniforms fringed parapet and parados, lying there as they fell when flung out by the victors. Mute, impotent things they looked; well in keeping with the wreck of war, the shattered dug-outs, the ruined machine gun emplacements, blood-bespattered parapet and parados. So I listened in silence as he airily talk-ed of the catches he had had in the north country when he had been "prospecting," and his struggles with the finny giants of the deep. Even my wife, I could see, was greatly impressed when the various and hooks and what-not, Brown great-ly impressed to tackle and hooks and what-not, Brown great-ly impressed to thinking. "About half a mile up, beneath that large bank. That is the place," said Brown. "Swarms of them there," and in a feverish haste I pulled. We were going against the tide, and there was a strong head wind. We had no rudder, and Mrs. Brown and "Johnny" were in the bow. Mrs. Brown weighs, I should estimate, in the neighborhood of 208 pounds, and I shall never forget that pull. The head of the boat exhibited a strong tendency to point towards the bank, and try as I would I could not keep it straight. But we could not keep it straight. But we arrived there. Oh, yes, even if I was in a state of comapse. And putting the two women and the dear little cherub on the bank, with instructions to get

He Ignored Rods.

Brown did not deign to fish with a rod. Rods he simply ignored. Instead he had a contrivance—a weird line containing fifty or more hooks that he threw out at intervals, but the only result as far as I could see was to get them entangled in the weeds, which nearly resulted in our having the boat over in our attempts to re-lease them. After about an hour's fu-tile struggle in this masner he came to the conclusion that they were not biting, and we had better go back for our lunch.

"Better have a rest until the afternoon," he said. "They will be biting then." So as I was getting hungry I fell in with the suggestion, and we pulled back to our landing stage and here I got my first catch.

To those I met I was a novelist studying the underworld of the capitals for the purpose of writing sensational fiction. It was, I found, a very good ruse. Those who introduced me to the orgies of the Villa Regala, outside Bucharest, the night-life of Berlin and of Galata, at to the salons or dinner-tables of ministers in Rome, Madrid, Belgradi Brussels, or this city, never dreamed of my real object—namely that of keeping an ever-open eye upon the underground politics of Europe, in order to discover who were Britain's friends.

The average Briton is as charitable a person as can be found in any nation, but the whole plan of endless flag days has frazzled his nerves. He objects to the continual purchase of ornaments for his buttonhole, for which he must pay out his small change. He objects to having his feelings worked upon by a well-dressed girl with ravishing eyes, not because the sensation is unpleasant at the time, but because it leaves an after feeling that he has been "done in," as they say over here. Even such objections would not count for much if the flag days were uncomman, but with one following the other in close succession it has become a daily tax.

It isn't the well to do tolk who suffer from flag days. They can travel about in private cars or taxicabs and thus avoid the buzzards that infest the streets with their dainty cans ready to receive the donations. But that attraction ceased when the newspapers ceased printing the pictures and benting out the real feelings of Britons Try to Run Blockade.

Today there is hardly a man in Lonlon who wouldn't chortle in high glee if he could get home at night without having been "stung" for one of the flags. Clubmen discuss various methods of avoiding the purchase of a flag. One method is to walk directly behind some belligerent old gentleman who hasn't a flag on his lapel and who carries himself with the air of a man who will not be wheedled into submission by a coy smile. Because, Like G. B. Shaw, It Hits the Middle Classes Ruthlessly.

London — About ten or fifteen years ago some charitable person originated the idea of sending pretty gars out on the streets to sell stitle pleces of ribbon or imitation flowers for ten times what they cost, and thus collect money for orphans or hospitals or heathen bushmen. Out of this benevolent institution, known a "lag day," has grown England's tax on pedestrians. Everyday is flag day over here, and the average man winces at the very mention of the term.

The object, of those who inaugurate flag days is usually a worthy one. There are organizations of mational importance which must be supported by public contributions, and the Englishman is perfectly willing to help them. But the flag day method of collecting funds will soon have to go by the board. It has ceased to be a trilling irritation, and has taken on the proportions of a public nulsance an abomination.

It has been curious to watch the antagonism to flag days growing as the nuisance becomes impore widespread. The first kicks didn't come from the class of people most affected, but from those who could easily dodge the flag sellers, but when caught had to donate as beflitted their class.

The original criticisms of flag days were more or less jocular. Of course the flag sellers are always willing to tell what charity are always willing to tell what charity they are working for and what great good their particular organization has accomplished, but this hardly satisfied the inquisitive vox populi. There have been many broad hints of late that a good portion of the funds go to support people, who find it convenient and ea systo give services of doubtful value to charity.

The Bobbies! They Loate It!

The police detest the flag selling practice because they have been forced to regulate the sales and put out trained men to watch the sellers and see that they don't pocket donations. OLDEST WAR BREAD RECIPE.

NCOMPARABLY the greater number of motorists determine any tire's efficiency by the mileage and endurance it shows.

To them, this is the paramount virtue. It is the "sine qua non" of tire-buying.

True, they appreciate security, appearance, liveliness; but transcending all other desirable qualities they seek and demand greater mileage and the resulting lower tire costs.

This is the one quality that con-stitutes the crowning recommendation for Goodyear Tires.

While Goodyear has led in the efforts to magnify riding-ease and security it is above all in this direction—in multiplying the miles delivered upon the road—that Goodyear tire-making knowledge and achievements represent a tremendous forward step.

For Goodyear Tires positively do yield that greater mileage—the motorist's actual return for the money he invests—which business minded men have set as their standard in tire purchasing.

Two causes co-operate in enabling Goodyear Tires to outserve, outlast, and outvalue so indisputably.

Primarily the prolonged usefulness, the slow and grudging wear, the brimming value of these tires come as result of Goodyear construction.

Goodyear Tires in the No-Hook type are protected against blow-outs by our On-Air cure, against rim-cutting by our No-Rim-Cut feature, against loose treads by our Rubber Rivets, against insecurity by our Braided Piano-Wire base, against skidding by our All-Weather Tread.

Most motorists have neither the time nor the inclination to analyze the effect of these superior features.

But they are actually interested in the greater mileage and heightened efficiency these features lend.

They appreciate even more the merit of Goodyear endeavour when they become acquainted with the work of the Goodyear Service Station Dealer. It is the work of the Goodyear Service Station Dealer to extend the goodness, the stamina, the vitalityin a word, the mileage—that is built into Goodyear Tires.

His work covers many phases. It involves doing many duties you might otherwise neglect. Rendered at no extra cost to you, this service will save your tires, your time, your money, your temper, your clothes.

Goodyear Service Station Dealers who co-operate with him, stand ready beneath the emblem shown here.

KING MAY DROP "WINDSOR."

Philologists Declare New Name is German.

London.—When King George recently ordered the change in the name of his family to Windsor, it was supposed the last taint of German was eradicated, but The Vienna Nieue Frei Presse amounces that philologists have decided the King guessed wrong. They say Windsor is derived from the Saxon "wildelesora eles," being the genitive ending of two old German proper hames.

England now is worried lest she be compelled to change again, and linguists are busy investigating whether the Vienna Story is correct.

Joe Dawson, at the wheel of a Chalmers stock car, completed on Thursday a record-breaking run of 1900 miles in 24 hours. Practically no mechanical troubles were encountered, and, taking into consideration the heat—it was part of the "hottest on record" week—and the small size of the engine, it was a wonderful performance. This gives the Hudson a reason for coming out of its retirement as having no more worlds to conquer.

Now Is the Best Time to Buy a Hudson Super-Six

Today's Prices are Based on Last Year's Material Costs. Present Markets Have Already Forced 51 Makers to Add $100 to $700 to Their Prices

Former $1500 and $1700 cars now cost about as much as a Hudson Super-Six.

No changes warrant such an increase. They are practically the same as the cars which recently sold at $200 to $300 less than the Hudson Super-Six.

Cars in the $2500 class and up have increased from $350 to $700. That removes them further from the Hudson Super-Six price.

Increased cost of material is responsible for the higher

Hudson prices have not increased this year. Our materials were contracted for months ago. When present supplies are exhausted then Hudsons, too, must cost more. Until then Hudson, because of its value, is the lowest priced car on the

Here is an indication of how prices have been affected. Consider just one item.

The principal material in a fine automobile is steel. All steel is made from iron.

For 25 years before the Greta War the average price of iron was a few cents over $16 a ton. In December last it was $30 a ton. It now is $54 a ton.

Makers who bought materials this year must get more for their cars than for those built of materials bought last year.

Good Fortune for Hudson Buyers

Even when other cars sold at $200 to $300 less, Super-Six sales exceeded those of any two makes in the $1500 to $1700 class. Now that there is no such difference in price you can realize how much greater will be the demand for Hudsons. The present supply won't last long. Then the Hudson, too,

There can be no preference now that former cheaper cars cost as much as the Super-Six.

Super-Six endurance makes it the preferred among fine cars. In every revealing test it has proved endurance unequalled by any other car.

All Due to the Super-Six Motor

Hudson leadership is due to the Super-Six motor. No other motor is like it. It minimizes vibration. That increases power and lengthens motor life. Vibration is the most destructive force in a motor. All Hudson tests show how by minimizing vibration endurance is obtained. The Super-Six is the most powerful automobile motor of its size known.

No owner has yet discovered the real limits of Super-Six endurance and almost 40,000 Super-Sixes are now in daily Endurance is the most wanted quality of a motor car. A car should not wear out soon. It should not require frequent mechanical attention. That Hudson has proved.

You Need No Greater Proof for Hudson

A double transcontinental run with a seven-passenger phaeton broke every previous record each way. Pike's Peak, up the highest and longest mountain road in the world, was climbed by a Super-Six special in less time than any other car. Twenty-two of the world's fastest cars contested. A stock chassis established the record for the fastest mile. A stock Super-Six phaeton made the festest time for one hour. Carrying driver and one passenger, car fully equipped, it traveled 100 miles at an average of 74.67 miles per hour.

A stock chassis made the greatest 24-hour long-distance run on record. It covered 1819 miles in that time and at the stop showed nothing to indicate that its endurance had

But these tests, greater than any other car ever made, were not enough to reveal the limits of Hudson endurance. Then special racing cars were built that they might compete on the speedway with the world's fastest, most carefully built automobiles. The same principle that accounts for Hudson endurance in the stock cars is included in these.

The American Speedway record for 200 miles was established by one of them at an average speed of 104 miles an

That speed for that distance calls for endurance beyond that which ordinarily is needed in a lifetime's requirements. These are proofs of Hudson endurance. They indicate the service you may expect from a Hudson Super-Six. If such tests mean nothing to you because of their extremes, then think what the service to almost 40,000 users means. There can be no greater assurance than that.

There is no advantage now in buying another car, not even the apparent saving in the first cost price.

But the number of Super-Sixes that can be built from last year's material purchases is limited. If you are to get your car at the present price it must be from that number. You must decide soon.

The Phaeton costs $2275, f.o.b. Toronto. There are seven other body designs of open and closed models

Early Methods of Ignition.

The early systems of ignition were quite different from those in use at the present time and a brief description of several of them will be given in the following paragraphs.

In the earliest forms of the gas engine a fiame burned near a valve in the head of the engine cylinder, and when the piston was in the proper position the valve opened, thus permitting the fiame to ignite the gas back of the engine piston. This method was used in the forms of engines in which the gas and air mixture was not compressed.

It was later found desirable to compress the gas and air mixture before exploding it and in such a case the open fiame could not be used. A platinum tube was inserted in the side of the combustion chamber and this tube was heated to such an extent by means of a fiame directed against its walls from the outside of the cylinder that the end inside the combustion chamber was maintained at a sufficiently high temperature to ignite the gas mixture.

ber was maintained at a sufficiently high temperature to ignite the gas mixture.

Later forms used the property of gases to dre or ignite themselves if compressed to a sufficient degree, and others made use of the stored heat in the cylinder walls and head to fire the highly compressed charge.

All of these various methods were not practical in their application to the gasoline engine as used on the modern motor car, due principally to the fact that they did not permit a flexible engine action which is essential in a good motor car engine. The electrical ignition systems are standard at the present time and the fundamental principles upon which they operate will be discussed in the following section.

Low Tensions Ignition System.

A low tension ignition system is one using an electric arc which is produced by a low voltage or pressure. In a system of this kind the spark is produced within the cylinder by breaking the electrical circuit between two points in the combustion chamber, called electrodes. The principle of this system is shown diagrammatically in Figure 1. When the igniter contacts are closed in the combustion chamber of the cylinder a current will be produced in the circuit by means of the storage battery. After the engine shaft revolves a small angle the contact in the combustion chamber is broken, and when this break takes place there will be an electric arc produced between the two parts of the igniter. A coil of wire about an iron core is shown connected in series in the circuit. This wire about an iron core is shown con-nected in series in the circuit. This coil has a strong magnetic field pro-duced about it and thru its centre when a current is established in the winding. This magnetic field represents a certain amount of stored energy just as a wound-up clock spring, and when the circuit is broken the energy stored in the magnetic field will take some other force.

As the magnetic field surrounding the coil decreases in value due to a decrease in the current in the coil, the lines of magnetic force which are sup-posed to constitute the magnetic field lines of magnetic force which are supposed to constitute the magnetic field cut the various turns of wire forming the coil, and as a result there will be an electrical pressure produced in the winding of the coil. This pressure may be and usually is many times the value of the pressure produced by the battery, and as a result it tends to maintain the are between the two terminals of the igniter when the circuit is broken in the combustion chamber. The purpose of the coil then is to give a much hotter and longer spark than would otherwise be obtained. Such a coil, of course, has only one winding and they are usually called primary or low tension coils. The application of an ignition system of this kind to a four-cylinder engine is shown diagrammatically in Figure 2. In this case the source of electrical energy is either the magneto or the five dry cells, depending upon the position in which the ignition switch is thrown.

The chief advantage of the low tension ignition system is its freedom from short circuits caused by poor insulation of the electrical circuit. This system of ignition, however, is of only historical interest, so far as the motor historical interest, so far as the motor car is concerned, as it has been discarded for several years and is now confined almost entirely to low speed confined almost entirely to low speed stationary engines.

This system is commonly called the make and break system of ignition.

High Tension Ignition System.

The operation of the high tension ignition system is based on the fact that when a sufficiently big electrical pressure is made to act upon an electric circuit in which there is a small gap, the electricity will leap this gap and produce a small arc. The principal parts of a high tension ignition system are shown diagrammatically in system are shown diagrammatically in Figure 3. B is a source of electrical energy such as a battery or low tension magneto connected in series with the primary winding P of the ignition coil, the vibrator V and the contractor C. The contact C is operated by tor C. The contact C is operated by the engine so that it makes contact at the exact time an ignition spark is required in the engine cylinder.

When the contact C is closed a current will be produced in the primary winding of the coil which magnetizes the iron core and the vibrator V is attracted to the core. When the blade V moves away from the end of the adjusting screw the primary circuit is opened and the iron core is demagnetized and the vibrator returning to its original position, and this operation is again repeated in rapid succession so long as the contact in the primary circuit is established and destroyed there is a high electrical pressure produced in the secondary winding. This high electrical pressure is of sufficient is again repeated in rapid succession so long as the contact in the primary circuit is established and destroyed there is a high electrical pressure produced in the secondary winding. This high electrical pressure is of sufficient value to cause a current to be established between the terminals or electrodes of the spark plug, and thus produce the desired ignition spark.

Do You Know Why More People This Year Are Buying The Chandler Six Than Are Buying Any Other High-Grade Car?

Do You Know Why in Four Years Time The Chandler Has Passed and Left Behind, One by One, a Long Line of Other Well Known Cars?

There are perhaps several reasons, all of which would appear very clearly if you had the opportunity or took the time to analyze the history and business policies of the automobile industry. But there is one big basic reason which to you as a motorist is the essential reason, and that one reason is this—that ever since the first Chandler car was designed and built and marketed four years ago last month the Chandler has offered the finest of design, construction and equipment at the lowest possible price.

The Chandler today offers this excess of value, this dependability of service, just as distinctly as at any time in the four years past.

It took some little time, of course, for a great part of the motoring world to pin its confidence to this newcomer. Men recognized, indeed the whole trade recognized, that a new type of car which must make large appeal had come into the market. The trade knew that it was the product of men who knew motor building and general motor car design and who were experienced in the best manufacturing practices.

Still—and remember this was more than four years ago—the trade said a newcomer could not win out.

Nevertheless, there were a few hundred Chandler cars manufactured and sold in those months of the summer and fall of Nineteen-

And how distinctly the Chandler has won its place in the very front rank of fine motor cars is reflected in the Chandler sales records of Nineteen-Fourteen, Fifteen, Sixteen and Seventeen.

Month by month and season after season throughout these four years the Chandler has moved forward and forward, until today its leadership could hardly be questioned.

Your own observation of high-grade cars in your own observation of high-grade cars in service in almost any market in America would show you clearly how surely the Chandler has come into leadership.

This leadership has been built on the Right Car at the Right Price.

Back in 1914 men were very generally inclined to recognize that the Chandler was the right car at the right price and about two thousand of them had the courage to make sure of and of them had the courage to make sure of their convictions.

Those two thousand won thousands more to their convictions, so that in the year following nearly seven thousand men chose the Chandler for their car.

And the car went on making friends by its performance in the hands of these owners. The whole country marveled at this wonderful motor, at its power, its flexibility, its life and get-away, and its endurance. The whole Chandler chassis came to be recognized as a

So last year, 1916, it was hardly surprising to those who really knew the Chandler that more than thirteen thousand motorists chose this car for their car, more than twice as many as had chosen it the year-before.

And now comes 1917, a year of some stress for And now comes 1917, a year of some stress for all trades, a year above all years when the real worth in merchandise counts most. And what is the motoring public's answer in its discussion of high-grade cars? What is its answer in discussion of Sixes most particularly?

From coast to coast, so far as our available records show, the Chandler is preferred above all other medium-priced cars, above all other high-grade cars.

Our own sales records show an increase of

Our own sales records show an increase of better than 55 per cent. in the first six months of this year as compared with the first six months

Records of registration of new cars, although available in only a few typical sections of the United States, indicate a tremendous public pre-ference for the Chandler over all other cars in its field, in some instances as much as a two-to-its field, in some instances as much as a two-toone preference.

We realize that in some isolated instances, because of peculiar trade conditions, some other car may lead, but in the great markets where men have the choice of all makes of cars, where every kind and type of car is represented, sold and owned, motorists indicate their preference for the Chandler, and prove their confidence in the Chandler, by choosing the Chandler.

Chandler leads because, starting with the right type of car, the Chandler Company has stood firmly by this type of car. It has continued to develop this car throughout these four years until today it approximates perfection in construction and performance.

We cannot convey to you in the printed page any full conception of the superiority of the Chandler motor, but any one of nearly forty thousand Chandler owners could put you along-side him at the wheel and show you Chandler

Ask the average motorcyclist how fast his flywheels turn, and he will likely say, "You've got me." However, it is very, simple when figured out. Take for instance, if the machine is on the stand and the motor turning the back wheel over at an equivalent to a road speed of 60 miles per hour. We will figure on a Standard 31-2-h.p. motor, a stroke of 88 MM.

1. The peripheral speed of the fly-wheels will be 60x41-3x71-2, over 26; equals 75 M.P.H.; or 75x22, over 15; equals 110 feet per second.

2. The number of engine revolutions per minute will equal 60x1760x3x12x 41-3, over 60x3.1416x26; equals 3360 approx.

Sometimes a person who has something that a motion picture director wants disposes of it at a reasonable price. This was true recently when Edwin Carewe, who is at Fort Lee, N. Clever Musical Farce of French Origin to Be Presented.

OUTDOOR ATTRACTION

Mermadia to Dive From the Bridge of Dalhousie City.

For the gratification of his clientelle this week at the Star Theatre, Manager Pierce has selected the "Lady Buccaneers," a modern burlesque show that has the necessary elements for an evening's enjoyment.

The first part of the entertainment is called "Spending a Million," musical farce of French, origin. It is said to be an ingenious affair, with no offense in it, unless one chooses to think that a pair of gentlemen, who are in the habit of meeting young actresses at a fashionable resort; treating them to expensive dinners and cutting all sorts of capers, when their wives suppose that they are at tending to their legitimate commercial pursuits, is an offence against the cial pursuits, is an offence against the morals of society. The actresses succeed in wheedling a goodly portion of the "million" from the pockets of the gay, old "bucks," but how this is done would not be fair to tell in advance; however, their methods are mirth provoking and keep an audience laughing or applauding most of the time.

Those engaged to portray the var-ious characters are: Frederick Hacket, The Theda Bara picture, "Cleopatra," nearly ended before it was begun, while the production was being made in Los Angeles. Entertaining Program Arranged for Patrons-Jack Pickford and Louise Huff Starring.

Dramatic value, excellence of photography, artistic eminence as regards stars, and diversity of interest as regards theme-it is for these that the management of the Madison Theatre ooks in selecting a program. in the bill-of-fare which that charming theatre, so great a favorite among particular people, will present to its patrons for the forthcoming week.

The feature for Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday will be "What Money Can't Buy", adapted by Beulah Marie Dix from the original story of the same name by George Broadhurst. Jack Pickford and Louise Huff are the co-stars, the supporting caste, headed by Theodore Roberts, is an "all-star" one, and the production is "all-star" one, and the production is directed by Lou Tellegen. The hero of this romantic photo-play, which is an example of Lasky at his best, is an example of Lasky at his best, is an adventurous, young American, whose father tries to get a concession to build a railroad thru a Principality whose king, controlled by an unsrupulous financier, is opposed to the project. The young American falls in love with the King's daughter; is impressible to the project of prisoned by a jealous rival. butfin-ally, by means of a brilliant ruse, manages to straighten things out.

For Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, the headline will be another Lasky production, "Forbidden Paths," a strong and vital story of love and sacrifice starring Vivian Martin and Sessue Hayakawa. This is a particularly appealing story of the devotion of a Japanese to a young American girl, and typifies, with singular fidelity, the undying devotion and capacity for self-sacrifice so characteristic of the Japanese race. The Japanese artist realizes that his great love for the American maiden is hopeless because of the difference of color, but e sacrifices life and honor for her happiness—and is happy in making the sacrifice. Vivian Martin is adorable as the American heroine, and Sessue Hayakawa, as the Japapese lover, gives a noble interpretation of an exacting role.

STRONG PHOTOPLAY BOOKED FOR LOEW'S

'Redemption," Starring Evelyn Nesbit, is an Exceptional Picture.

FOUNDED ON HER LIFE

Story is Woven Around the Events in Star's Own Experience.

The soul of a good woman cannot be crushed or defiled no matter how terribly fate may treat her. That is the message told in "Redemption," a deeply emotional photoplay, in which Evelyn Neshit and her son, Russel Thaw, will be featured the coming week at Loew's Yonge Street Theatre and Winter Garden. The story is based on the former life of Evelyn Nesbit, yet is distinctly away from it. and is worked out so beautifully that one would hardly realize it is her life; while the purpose of her life and hope in the strong love of her son is made the keynote of the film and its title.

The story begins in the happy home of Thomas and Alice Loring, and their little son, Harry. Stephen Brooks, a man of wealth and social standing, on-ly tolerated by his wife for the sake of their two children, has been con-cerned in the past life of Alice Loring (Evelyn Nesbit), during her career as a professional dancer. Recognizing her on the street, he makes every effort to influence her to return to him again. She has Brooks arrested for insulting her, but is persuaded to drop the case.

The newspapers rake up the scandal, nowever, and when her husband learns dowever, and when her husband learns of it he proceeds to thrash Brooks.

Brooks' influence and standing in the financial world causes Loring to lose his position. Subsequently his illness and death throws his wife on her own resources. Finally, she makes a success of a dressmaking establishment under an assumed name. Fifteen years later her son, the centre of her existence and hope, is in love with his college chum's sister Grace. Harry's mother, and the girl's father oppose the match, but Harry finally wins her thru his brave act of saving ner brother his brave act of saving ner brother from death in a burning laboratory. In the love of her son, a credit to his mother, the past is redeemed. Naturalness and humanness are the outstanding features of the play, the sousation of which may be said to be its lack of sensation. While "Redemption" has the "Punch," so much discussed by the theatrical commenta-tors, it is delivered with a gloved hand. but its power is none the less cumu-lative and terrible. Miss Nesbit is a revelation on the screen, and she has the beauty and personality that mark an ideal photoplay actress.

Charles Miller, who is at present directing Miss Love in a new production, attempted to put off the representatives of the law but they would not be refused.

MARY PICKFORD GETS BIG OVATION

Streets Jammed for Miles When America's Sweetheart Appears.

When Mary Pickford consented to appear in person on the opening night of "The Little American" at Clune's Auditorium in Los Angeles, she had little idea of the commotion she was going to create in the business centre of that flourishing California city.

It was announced in the newspapers that "America's Sweetheart" would greet the audience on that opening night. Certainly everyone in Los Angeles must read the newspapers, for at 6 ciclock as account to the control of the control of the control of the city of the control of the city of the control of the city of at 6 o'clock an assault in force on the box office began. By 7 it was a siege, and within half an hour after that time the vicinity of the theatre resembled a gigantic mob scene in a super-production. All the seats in the theatre had been filled, the lobby was stuffed with people, and for a block east and a cock west of the building traffic was well nigh impeded.

Miss Pickford's car had not yet ar rived, and the great throng outside awaited it, determined to at least catch a glimpse of her, even the there was no chance of witnessing her ap-Pearance on the stage.

When the little Artcraft star stepped out upon the stage there was an ovation such as a victorious general might expect to receive from a frenzied populace. For ten minutes the house shook with a storm of applause. At last little Mary was able to make herself heard, and she made a very brief address that brought forth another tumuit. In it she told the audience that no greater joy could come to her than to know that "The Little American" was stirring the hearts of the nation's picture patrons to a higher realization of their duty, and a stronger sense of patriotism.
