 $63^{\circ} 10' 22' W.$ from Greenwich.

CHARLOTTETOWN:

PRINTED, PUBLISHED AND SOLD BY GEORGE T. HASZARD, SOUTH SIDE QUEEN SQUARE.

MORNING AND EVENING STARS.

Venus will be Evening Star until July 18th, then Morning Star the rest of the year. Mars will be Morning Star until July 17th, then Evening Star the rest of the year. Jupiter will be Morning Star until January 10th, then Evening Star until July 29th, then Morning Star the rest of the year. Saturn will be Morning Star until February 11th, then Evening Star until August 22d, then Morning Star the rest of the year.

OCCULTATIONS.

Venus will be eclipsed by the Moon on the 24th of April, visible generally throughout the country. The planet will disappear behind the Moon at 8h. 33m. in the evening, and reappear at 9h. 3m.

Jupiter will also be eclipsed by the Moon north of lat. 43° on the 26th of April, at about an hour before the Moon sets.

CHRONOLOGICAL CYCLES.

Dominical Letter, A G; Golden Number, 18; Jewish Lunar Cycle, 15; Epact, 7; Solar Cycle, 21; Julian Period, 6573; age of the world, 5863.

ECLIPSES.

There will be four eclipses this year, as follows:—

I. An annular Eclipse of the Sun, Jan. 22d, invisible in North America.

II. A partial Eclipse of the Moon, Feb. 6th, in the evening, visible in P. E. Island as follows:—Eclipse begins, 8h. 51m.; largest 10h. 17m.; ends 11h. 43m.

III. A total Eclipse of the Sun, July 18th, in the morning. In Prince Edward Island this will only be a partial Eclipse, beginning at 7h. 56m., and ending at 10h. 1m.

IV. A partial Eclipse of the Moon, Aug. 1st, at 1h. 13m. afternoon,—hence invisible in this Island, but visible to our antipodes.

EQUINOXES AND SOLSTICES FOR 1860.

Vernal Equinox, - - -	March 20th, 3h. 57m. morning.
Summer Solstice, - - -	June 21st, 0h. 35m. morning.
Autumnal Equinox, - - -	Sept. 22d, 2h. 44m. evening.
Winter Solstice, - - -	Dec. 21st, 8h. 43m. morning.

LEAP-YEAR.

Every year the number of which is divisible by 4 without a remainder, is a leap-year, except the last year of the century, which is a leap-year only when divisible by 400 without a remainder. Thus the year 1900 will not be leap-year.

MANY FACTS IN SMALL COMPASS.

The number of languages spoken is 4064. The number of men is about equal to the number of women. The average of human life is 33 years. One quarter die before the age of 7; one half before the age of 17. Of every 1000 persons 1 only reaches 100 years. Of every 100 only 6 reach 75 years; and not more than 1 in 500 will reach 80 years. There are on the earth 1,000,000,000 of inhabitants. Of these 33,333,333 die every year; 91,824 die every day; 7,780 every hour; and 60 per minute, or one every second. These losses are about balanced by an equal number of births. The married are longer-lived than the single; and, above all, those who observe a sober and industrious conduct. Women have more chances of life previous to the age of fifty years than men, but fewer after: The number of marriages are in proportion of seventy-six to one hundred. Marriages are most frequent during the months of June and December.—Selected.

“Time is the solemn inheritance to which every man is born heir who has a life-rent of this world—a little section cut out of eternity and given us to do our work in—an eternity before, an eternity behind, and the small stream of life between, floating swiftly from the one into the vast bosom of the other.”

MANY new and happy years to you and yours, friends and readers: and to make the years happy, they must commence with good resolutions, and continue and end with the performance of them. This is the time to balance accounts, and for each one to look closely into his affairs, and, if he sees where errors of omission or commission have occurred, to avoid such errors in future.

Of this month an eloquent author writes nearly thus: "Snow is on the ground; cold is in the air. Why is the ground hidden? Why is the earth white? So hath God completed the past; so hath he spread the earth like an unwritten page for a new year! Old sounds are silent in the forest and in the air. Insects are dead, birds are gone, leaves have perished. Upon the earth lies, white and tranquil, the emblem of newness and purity."

The earth indeed may be frozen, but, by reading and reflection, the germs of mental progress may be planted at this season that will yield abundant harvests. Well conducted newspapers and useful books will aid all to acquire knowledge that will be constantly beneficial.

In this month plan the year's work as far as possible.

A POLITE REPLY.

'What a pity it is,' said a lady to Garrick, 'that you are not taller!' 'I should be happy indeed, madam,' replied Garrick, 'to be higher in your estimation.'

ACTIONS.

Actions speak more forcibly than words; they are the test of character. Like fruit upon the tree, they show the nature of the man; while motives, like the sap, are hidden from our view.

Look well to your cattle many times daily; see that they are kept warm, and regularly fed, that they may have a good start in the spring; for, according to the old adage, "cattle well wintered are half summered." The woodpile, too, is an object of great interest at this season to all in the house.

Last year I made some suggestions as to the preparation of a hot-bed in this month; and now I would say that a poultry-house is a good thing upon a farm, and this is a good time to build one, if you have not one on your premises. Let it be in a warm place, sheltered from cold winds, water-tight above, roosts not too far from the ground nor directly over each other, nor too small, and always kept as free from insects as possible; put gravel or dry ashes on the floor, with some old mortar or oyster shells pounded up. The house should be white-washed in spring and fall, and thus kept clean; boxes should be fixed for the hens to lay in, so that they may be undisturbed. As to the best kind of fowls, those with fancy names may cost more than the old-fashioned barn-door fowls, but the latter will be, probably, as profitable, and as satisfactory as any. The meat that is given to the dog, if cut fine and given to the hens, would improve their condition, for they need animal food of some kind to make them thrive.

If you want your name to be held in grateful remembrance, plant trees; if you want to improve the roadsides in your town, plant trees; if you want to add to the beauty of the surroundings of your dwelling, for your own and your friends' eyes, plant trees; if you would have your house and grounds more valuable, to keep or to sell, plant trees; if any of your land is not well adapted for cultivation or pasturage, cannot you plant trees? if you want property that, like money at interest, will be "growing while you are sleeping," plant trees.

G. B. Emerson says: "A tree which furnishes a cool shade to the inhabitants of a house, is at the same and on that account its best ornament. In the summer season, a modest house shaded by an oak or an elm, speaks more to the feelings and is more beautiful than the showiest house unprotected from the sun. Trees sh'd be planted not only by dwelling houses and along roads, they should be in every pasture, and by watering-places, and near every barn,—wherever cattle, horses, or sheep, are to be provided for."

THE PUNCTUAL MAN.

A punctual man is very rarely a poor man, and never a man of doubtful credit. His small accounts are frequently settled and he never meets with difficulty in raising money to pay large demands. Small debts neglected, ruin credit, and when a man has lost that, he will find himself at the bottom of a hill he cannot ascend.

Meekness is founded in an extended contemplation of the place we bear in the universe, and a just observation how little, how empty, how wavering are our deepest resolves and councils.—Steele.

Somewhere between the producer and the consumer there is a profit in every legitimate business; and it wants this same common sense to find where the profit is, this industry to make it, and this prudence to keep it after it is made. If vegetables of different kinds can be planted in the spring, and in the autumn there can be gathered of "some fifty and of some an hundred fold," it would seem that if enough were planted, and they were properly taken care of, it would "pay" to farm it, and to raise them, as these productions must be profitable; while apples, pears, strawberries, or cranberries, and the varied produce of the farm or garden, add to the profits. What pursuit is safer, more healthful and respectable than good farming? THIS TOO SHALL PASS AWAY. From the Boston Transcript. Many of our readers probably remember the reply of the philosopher to the monarch, who desired some sentence, easily remembered, that would always alleviate the pressure of calamity and check the exuberance of prosperity. "This too shall pass away," was the chosen motto. |

"Farming don't pay; it is poor business," I have heard said. No business pays well unless pursued with spirit and energy. But if farming don't

Battle of Palestro between Allies and Austrians 1859.

Early this month the Garden must have attention. "There should be something of the agreeable and ornamental even in the kitchen-garden, which should be laid out with the triple object of convenience, profit and beauty. * * * * The moral influence exerted over the minds and characters of the young by a well arranged and carefully-conducted garden is certainly a consideration of no unimportant moment."

Cultivate carefully, and to their utmost capacity of production, only a few square rods as a garden, and you will be surprised at the pleasure and profit yielded. Even a comparatively small portion of time spent in the garden would enable you to have a dish of vegetables, healthful and pleasant to the taste, upon the table at any time. At this season of the year the appetite craves vegetable food. We long, too, for the delicious strawberry and the refreshing currant, and, if we would have them at the proper time, we must begin in season to take care of the garden.

If you have to purchase seed, get of responsible seedsmen that which can be recommended, of old or new varieties; enrich your land, look sharp after injurious insects, and use the hoe constantly, and you will be rewarded.

I call that a complete and generous education which fits a man to perform justly, skillfully, and magnanimously, all the offices both public and private, of peace or war.—Milton.

The warm sun and the gentle, life-giving rain have caused the tender plants to put forth, and it is now that the care and supervision of the intelligent cultivator of the earth are called for. The hon Josiah Quincy, in an address delivered before the Massachusetts Agricultural Society, many years since, said, " Most is done for agriculture when every farmer is excited to small attentions and incidental improvements, such as proceed, for instance, from the constant application of a few plain and common principles; such are, that in farming nothing should be lost, nothing neglected; that everything should be done in its proper time, everything put in its proper place, everything executed by its proper instruments. These attentions, when viewed in their individual effect, seem small, but they are immense in the aggregate. Let us cast our eyes, then, from the door of the farm-house. What do we see? Are the fences on the road in good condition? * * * * Is nothing useful lost, and does nothing useless offend?" — Not as I will, but as thou wilt. “July is the haymaker’s month. Now we must bestir ourselves. The timothy, the redtop, and the sweet clover are all ready for the scythe.

If you would have the hay-mow retain the true flavor of the hay-field, you must cut the grass while it is in blossom and before it has lost its sweet aroma. * * * * *

“We said that July is the haymaker’s month; but it is not wholly thus. The reapers must have their share of it. The grain as well as the grass must be cut in season. Do not let it stand till the kernel will shell out in handling the sheaves. When grain is ripe it is liable to be injured by rains and wind. There is risk in letting it remain longer than is absolutely necessary, and, when properly dried, the sooner it is housed the better.

“The cornfields and the garden must not be neglected in July. Weeds will grow in July as well as in June. The corn must have its last hoeing this month. See that it is well done. Leave no weeds to bear a crop of seed for next year. Your root crops want frequent visits from the wheel-hoe, to keep the ground light and mellow.”

Whom resist, steadfast in the faith, 1 Pet. v. 9.

There is no fighting on a quagmire. Faith furnishes the only solid, the only safe ground on which we can contend. Faith clothes us with the whole armor of God. Faith connects us with the Captain of our salvation, without whom we can do nothing, but through whose strengthening us we can do all things.—JAY.

This month has generally been esteemed the dryest in an average of years of any of the summer or fall months, and has been therefore thought best by some for well-digging, ditching, and draining. Take the mean quantity of rain falling per month for many years, showing that August is not really the dryest month; though, as farming work may not crowd hard now, it may be the most convenient to attend to draining. The advantage of draining land is well set forth by Hon. M. P. Wilder, in one of his excellent addresses before a pomological society. He says: "the importance of thorough draining and perfect cultivation of the soil," for fruit culture, "have not received the consideration they deserve. * * * Thorough draining lies at the foundation of all successful cultivation, and in cold, wet, undrained grounds, the disease of trees commences at the root. * * * Wherever there is an excess of water, and consequently too low a temperature, and the soil is not properly drained and thoroughly worked, the vital energies of the plant are soon impaired. * * * How many of the diseases of fruit-trees are attributable to this cause, it is not easy to determine."

The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness. Psa. xli. 3.
Bear in mind, afflicted Christians, that while your heavenly Father chastens you with one hand, he supports you with the other.—JACKSON.

An agricultural writer of repute says: August is the best time for ploughing and seeding down such mowing lands as need re-seeding. * * * From the 10th of August to Sept. 20th is appropriate time for this work. There can be no doubt that this is the best way to resuscitate worn-out grass lands, but it is important that it be done in season." Flint, in his treatise on Grasses and Forage Plants, says: "The most important point to be observed, is to use a large number of species of grasses, with smaller quantities of each than those most commonly used. This is Nature's rule; for in examining the turf of a rich old pasture, we shall find a large number of different species growing together." * * * As an instance of what he considers an improvement in our ordinary mixtures for permanent pastures, Mr. Flint, in the treatise above referred to, suggests 1 lb. of Sweet-scented Vernal, 2 lbs. each of Meadow Foxtail, Meadow Fescue, Red-top, and Rough-stalked Meadow Grass, 3 lbs. of Timothy, 4 lbs. each of June Grass, Italian Ryegrass, and Perennial Clover, 5 lbs. White Clover, 6 lbs. each of Orchardgrass and Perennial Ryegrass,—say 41 lbs. per acre.

Whoso offereth praise glorifieth me. Psalm l. 24.

The liveliest emblem of heaven that I know upon earth, is when the people of God, in a deep sense of his excellency, from hearts abounding with love and joy, join together both in heart and voice, in the cheerful and melodious singing of his praises.—BAXTER.

Now come the cold nights, the frosty mornings, and the sunshiny days—the most melancholy and yet the most beautiful, of all the year. But work still remains to be done. The roots are not all out of the ground. Carrots grow long after the frosts have begun to nip the more tender plants. Apples and other fruits, especially the winter varieties, are now to be gathered;—mind you don't bruise them by careless picking. If it pays to set out and follow up your trees with tender care year after year, till they begin to reward your labors, a little extra care in gathering your apples by hand, one by one, and laying them gently away, will equally pay for time and trouble. A single decaying apple, bruised in gathering or packing, may cause you the loss of half a barrel. Look out for the cattle during these cold, chilly nights, especially young calves. Better take them in too early than too late. Feed up the cows, too, or they will now fall off in milk, and cannot easily be brought up again. Now is the time, also, to look to the farming tools which have been used in summer, and to put them away, carefully cleaned and dry, for next season's use. Exposure to the weather will destroy them as fast as ordinary usage.

No fool can be silent in his cups —Solon.

DANIEL WEBSTER remarked, "If we work on immortal minds, * * * we engrave on those tablets something which no time can efface, but will brighten to all eternity." A celebrated author writes somewhat thus: "That class of men who make the most and best use of their heads will in fact be the most influential." "The only way to overcome the difference between the educated and uneducated portions of society, is to rear up a generation of well educated, thinking, reading farmers and mechanics."

This is the season for general reading; when thus employed, have, if possible, a Dictionary and an Atlas by you for reference. Books for farmers are now constantly being published; we give the titles of a few: Flint's Milch Cows and Dairy Farming, and his Grasses and Forage Plants, new edition; Beecher's Plain Talks about Fruits, Flowers, and farming; Copeland's Country Life; the American Home Garden; Darlington's American Weeds and Useful Plants; Herbert's Hints to Horse-Keepers; French's Farm Drainage; Langstroth on Bees; Downing's Landscape Gardening and Rural Architecture, new edition. Don't be afraid of getting information from books.

I have longed for thy salvation, O Lord; and thy law is my delight. Psa. cxix. 174.

When the law of God is written in our hearts, our duty will be our delight.—HENRY.

The Old Year is nearly gathered to the past; the new, with its unacted history, is approaching. H. W. Beecher says: "The Almanac for the year died without a groan. He seemed as vigorous only the day before as the first day of his life, and held his own to the last moment. Were it not that another child of the same family, bearing the same general features, and apparently of the same temper is ready to take his place, we should be inconsolable. For no other friend have we to whom we can go for advice as we could to him. He spoke mostly in figures. His knowledge in various things was not small, and was exceedingly practical. He held converse with the stars, and seemed to know what was going on among all the planets. * * * He was fond of looking after the times; he kept a calendar of various events and days. * * * We seldom took in hand an important matter without consulting him, and never found his judgment of events wrong. Nothing pleased him more than on some winter night to be drawn forth and held before the glowing fire, and be persuaded into spiritual converse."

Adieu, until we wish you a Happy New Year in the next number of the Almanac.

The sting of death is sin.
1 Cor. xv. 56.

There are souls, on whose horizon, though Death's skeleton form comes striding, the light from eternity does but invest the form with glory. It is no more death the skeleton, but Death the angel, a messenger of peace, mercy, love and glory.—CHEEVER.
