DISASTROUS FIRE RAGING IN NEW HAMPSHIRE CITY

Whole Tenement House District of Manchester, New Hampshire in the Grip of the Fire Fiend This Afternoon, Three Blocks Burned Already—Firemen Powerless in Face of Mile a Minute Gale

Manchester, N. H., April 8.—The tenement house district in the south section of the city, covering an area of nearly a square mile, and occupied by the cotton mill and shoe shop employees, many of them French-Canadians, was in the grasp at noon today of one of the most destructive fires that threatened the city. Up to that time three blocks of thirty wooden tenements had been wiped out, great burning brands were being hurled eastward in countless numbers, smaller fires were springing up among the other tenements in that direction, men and women were rushing from their work to save their property, and the entire city was in confusion.

The fire closely resembled that at Chelsea, Mass., a year ago. With a fierce westerly gale, behind it, it drove with increasing front steadily to the eastward, the flames leaping up house after house, and block after block. It started on the corner of Elm and Auburn streets, in the grasp at noon today of one of the most destructive fires that threatened the city. Up to that time three blocks of thirty wooden tenements had been wiped out, great burning brands were being hurled eastward in countless numbers, smaller fires were springing up among the other tenements in that direction, men and women were rushing from their work to save their property, and the entire city was in confusion.

DISASTROUS GALES AND HEAVY STORMS CENTERED OVER NEW ENGLAND TODAY

Massachusetts Has the Worst Gale in Twenty Years—Wind Fans Village Fire Into Serious Conflagration—Many Vessels in Danger—A Tale of Rack and Ruin From Ontario Cities

Boston, April 8.—The hurricane over the St. Lawrence River dragged in an air movement across New England today, of velocities ranging from 50 to 92 miles an hour. Such a gale has not been experienced in this vicinity for many years. The storm came unheralded, for no caution signals were hoisted by the weather bureau, and a number of vessels were caught off the coast. Three barges were reported to be in distress off the southern Rhode Island shore at 8 a. m. today. A little sloop was driven on the end of Cape Cod, and many vessels lost sails and other gear by the fury of the blast.

The highest wind velocity that has been reported in New England for sixteen years was reported from Blue Hill Observatory at 8.30 a. m. today, when the flying whirling annular cyclone registered 92 miles an hour. Such velocity has only been seen once in the 25 years history of the observatory, when 100 miles an hour was registered in 1884. The wind blew 50 miles an hour off Cape Cod and 45 miles an hour in this city. The wind was from the west-northwest, many citizens of Chelsea today became almost panic stricken when another fire broke out in the stricken city, and for a few minutes threatened to repeat the work of destruction of that of April 12, 1908.

The falling wall caused a mild panic in the school but no one was hurt.

Men of Sinking Barges

New London, Conn., April 8.—While coming up Long Island Sound last night the tug LeMartin, with five barges from Perth Amboy for Newport, broke away from its tow, and owing to the terrific gale, flying stars and debris, were called up, although the crew of a third was rescued. WHO WILL PAY FOR BRENNAN'S PAPER

James Brennan and Hopkins Bros. the Principals in Amusing City Court Case An amusing case was heard in the city court this morning in which James Brennan, a boarding house proprietor, sued Hopkins Bros., real estate dealers, for $88.78, alleged to be due for furnishing and hanging wall-paper, painting and white-washing premises on Union street owned by Brennan, which he formerly occupied. A set-off of $26.42 was filed by the defendants, who were represented by J. A. Campbell, E. T. C. Knowles. Brennan in his testimony was unable to add tangible evidence but said 20 rooms and two halls were furnished in the store, which Hopkins threw away after he reached the street. Mr. Curry exhibited a lease which Brennan admitted he signed and which Brennan was unable to produce a copy of which Brennan was to be responsible for all renovations in the building without compensation. Brennan contended that the lease was not in effect at the time in question, but it was dated February 28, 1907, and he was suing for work on the building in April, 1908. All that was in dispute was a receipted bill for $127.4 for paper from Watson & Co. to Brennan. Brennan's objection to the receipt was to the effect that Hopkins increased the rent last spring from $300 to $500 per year, and asked to renovate the apartments. He attached his signature to the lease, which Stanley Hopkins did not read to him or he did not permit it himself. When he consulted Hopkins first concerning the work he was informed to "wait a while" and next it was "bye and bye." Mrs. Brennan jumped into the breach and Hopkins insulted her, and later he said, "go away, woman." Brennan said he retained $25 of Stanley Hopkins' rent (April) because Hopkins seized his goods and he was compelled to remove to other quarters on a rainy day. Mrs. Margaret Brennan, his wife, testified that she told one of the brothers that she was weary of digging in dirt and Yankee settlers, and he replied, "Well, by the look of you, that's all you're fit for, so back and keep on digging."

THE TIMES NEW REPORTER

He will be well paid for the job. He will be a Royal Commission. Another man was caught trying to clean a street crossing yesterday. They thought him down the nearest sewer. An example must be made of such rascals. E-President Castro informed an interviewer yesterday that Providence alone could extricate Venezuela from her dire straits, but intimated that he would be willing to help. Mr. Peter Black says that Mr. Castro should organize a people's mission.

A Million a Minute

A Romance of Modern New York and Paris

By Hudson Douglas

She swept through Hollis and hit the ferocious turn of the part of the power using a note or two as she let it out in the open. She had three good lamps to help her along, and was a most expert driver. By the time she had left Mincola behind she had almost recovered her normal spirits, was even enjoying her would yet be home before daylight, and so relieve some part of Fanchette's anxieties.

A silver crescent climbed into the sky and cast strange shadows across her path. Dark clumps of trees, tall bushes, and toward them, and passed, and left them behind. The houses she saw were all only broken by the monotonous whirring of the motor, and when some which accompanied her, or when some which barked noisily from a farm at the sound of her flight.

Hour after hour ticked away without occurrence, and she was ready for anything that might befall. But, for all her haste, gray dawn was breaking, and she was before the high road to a rougher one, slowed down to cross an uncertain bridge spanning a shallow low water creek, and putting on all her wits to get across. A thick mist of untroudden track through a small belt of wood which concealed a small well beside the sea.

At the warning horn of her horn a door was flung wide from within, and a woman ran forth with uplifted hands, frantic eyes.

"Set toi, ma'mselle!" cried she in tremulous French, and called upon young mistress stepped down from the car.

"You were not overcautious, were you?" she asked, and put an arm round the other as she saw that her eyes were wet.

"Now, don't cry, there's a dear. I'm here after all, and I'll tell you what happened to me just as soon as we get to the house again."

Fanchette pulled a bunch of keys from her pocket and unlocked the padlock on the motor, and she locked it again ere she followed the girl toward the house. She saw the girl there behind her on entering.

The girl went wistfully through to a tiny sitting-room, and threw herself down on a couch by the window there, while her maid hastily completed the preparations for a late supper or early breakfast which had obviously been in readiness for some time.

"Draw in, dear heart, and eat," said Fanchette coaxingly. She herself had been almost distraught with anxiety the long night through, with worn with her vigil, but, since her daughter's charge was also so far spent as to confess the weakness evident in her whole demeanor, she was fain to forget her own fatigue in her haste to see her somewhat homely and harsh-featured serving-woman, Fanchette, but very faithful.

The girl raised herself hastily, and sat down in the place prepared for her.

"It was Jules Chevreil who detained me," she said, under an irresistible impulse to burden herself of her heavy trouble, and Fanchette's face paled as she laid a hand on her own forehead, and with the other, as though to ward off some imminent evil, at sound of that name.

"Jules Chevreil?" she repeated, in a hoarse whisper, and waited in fear.

"Jules Chevreil," said the girl, "the caught sight of me and I of him as I came out of a store. There was no chance of escape."

"But there is now?" asked Fanchette eagerly.

The girl did not answer at once. She was calling to mind all she had under gone, and a single furrow was once more visible on her white forehead.

"Monsieur is in New York," she returned presently, and Fanchette gave vent to a stifled groan.

"Jules said he had been sent in search of me, and—and that I must go to Montreal with him. Otherwise—he threatened to call the police. And I—I did not know. I felt stunned. I was afraid to risk such a scandal. I let him seat himself in the car, and I drove him where he would."

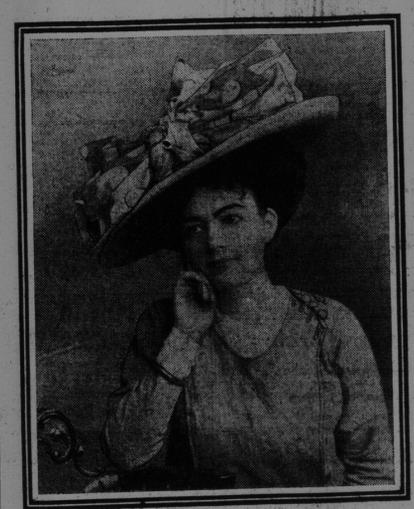

"We went up Riverside, and, by the way, he hinted at hush-money. He would take ten thousand francs," Fanchette held up her hands in mute, stricken protest—"and swear that he had not seen me. I told him that I had only five thousand in my possession, and, in the end, he agreed to accept that sum. We went back to the bank and he stayed outside while I closed my account. And he took it all from me as the price of silence. But I didn't grudge it for that."

Fanchette nodded, and shook her head, speechlessly.

"It was late enough then, and I begged him to let me go at once since he could bring nothing more from me, but he wouldn't. He made me take him to the Park and about the streets on the west side. Twice we stopped, and I had to accompany him into cafes, common places everyone stared at us strangely, and afterwards he insisted on my drawing up at a restaurant he pointed out, where he ordered dinner."

"I had no option but to obey him lest he should create a disturbance, and he made mock of my protests. At dinner he drank champagne, and became still more dictatorial. He had a digestive water-ke he shamed me bitterly in that place—and when that was over, would not let me take him back into the city. But I was desperate then. I struck him as he would have entered, and drove him away. He recovered his wits, and said, 'You were very brave, dear heart,' and said Fanchette soothingly, for the girl's eyes were downcast as though in shame, 'You were brave indeed! A pity the blow did not end the rascal! But you did well.'"

Fashion Hint for Times Readers

A LINEN SUIT AND OUTING HAT.

The upper part only of this little rose-colored frock of linen is shown, but the model is girlish and pretty one, falling from shoulder to foot in quite straight lines, the pinafore-like front having short bell ends which cross over the back panel under a big button, exactly like the big apron which one sees on preserving day. The hat is a flexible straw, with the brim turned up rakishly at one side, the only trimming being a band and bow of the fancy satin ribbon, which has been dubbed "the prosperity dot."

CHIMNEY FALLS THROUGH ROOF OF LONDON SCHOOL

Three Hundred Children Buried in the Debris—Six Seriously Injured and May Die, While Others Have Miraculous Escape—Tornado Yesterday Did Much Damage at Toronto, Hamilton, Guelph and Other Western Ontario Cities.

Toronto, April 7.—Toronto and Western Ontario were visited today by one of the fiercest gales ever experienced here. Buildings were unroofed in all directions, wires blown down and Niagara power which raged all the streets and was cut off. The result of this was stopping of all street car service for a time. Flying signs made the streets dangerous. Communication with Niagara was cut off, and there was no way of finding out what had gone wrong with the power transmission line. At Hamilton's Point the tower of the Grand stand at the oval was blown down and the stand collapsed. Fortunately no one was about the structure when it fell. Mr. Solman does not know the extent of the damage, as owing to the storm no boats have crossed the bay this afternoon.

A young man named George Moore was standing on a wood-pile in the yard of the Ontario Box Factory and was visible to all the children who were gathered to the edge of the shining field, there to be sought out by the single searchlight, followed by shells from the upper air.

Dr. artillery alone will scarcely be able to deny to an enemy's airship such access to the upper air as to make a drink, but a few minutes before the target air-dyodas may be necessary for reconnoitering and observation. This role can only be satisfactorily filled by faster air ships, or better still, aeroplanes, and the artillery defense in this respect regarded as auxiliary only.

The cheapest ton to use is not the lowest priced. You can buy a few cents a pound cleaner that will make a drink, but if you want an absolutely pure, beautiful, clean-prepared tea use "Salada." It is infinitely more delicious and healthy and economical than other teas, because it goes farther.

Miss Diadem Bell, a missionary of the Congregational church, home on furlough from Chibamba, West Central Africa, gave an address last night in the Congregational church, Union street. The meeting, which was under the auspices of the ladies' missionary auxiliary, was well attended and much appreciation. Miss Bell gave interesting details of the manners and customs of the natives of the district in which she was laboring and of the difficulties the missionaries encountered.

TRIAL IS FIXED FOR APRIL 20

Murray and the Hatches will Face Murder Charge on That Day

Fredericton, N. B., April 7.—A report from Centreville which reached here today stated that people there are considerably stirred up over the fact that an outline of the St. John Valley Railway bill, published in The Telegraph today, did not make it plain that the proposed road was to take Centreville, Mayor Chestnut was communicated with and asked if there was any movement on foot to sidetrack Centreville. He gave assurance that nothing of the kind was in contemplation.

A delegation from the York council, composed of Warden Hinber, Councillors Pond, Alverdy and Timmins and Secretary Treasurer Bliss, waited upon the government this afternoon and urged the adoption of the amendments to the highway act as suggested by the council at its January meeting. They were given assurance that the most important of their recommendations had been embodied in an amendment.

It was stated that the rate of taxation would remain at 20 cents per 100, but that the poll tax would be reduced from $2 to $1.50. The council will be allowed to appoint the chairman of the board and a member to be appointed by the government will act as secretary. Authority will be given to the appoint commissioners for sub-districts.

The attorney-general has announced that a commission would issue to Judge MeLeod for a special sitting of the Victoria county circuit court to be held on the 20th inst. at Andover to try Sandy Murray and the Hatches, the Italians who have been sent up for trial as being accomplices in the murder of Paddy Green, the Montreal jewelry peddler. The holding of the special session of the court will make it so that the executions of Tony Anzola and Leon Soppoli, the confessed murderers, can take place on May 4 as ordered.

MIDAIR BATTLES IN FUTURE WARS

Flying Battleships, Skyward-Pointed Artillery and Blazing Battlements Depicted

London, April 7.—A war like nothing that has yet been known—a war of flying battleships, of skyward-pointed artillery, and of blazing battlefields—was depicted yesterday by Colonel F. G. Stone, when he lectured before the Royal United Service Institution on the defense of harbors against naval airships.

"The employment of motor airships in the navy is seriously engaging the attention of the admiralty," said Colonel Stone.

"Our harbors in the south of England," he said, "are all open to attack by the larger type of airship, if starting from a land base in the north of France. If starting from Belgium, it may be limited, or, at a stretch, Devonport. From Holland, Portland would certainly be the limit, and from the nearest point in Germany, Portsmouth could scarcely be reached if the airship was required to return to German territory."

The only reliable airship which can be used in conjunction with the navy is one which can actually be steered on a "parent" ship, launched from it, and taken back on board when it returns from its flight in moderate weather.

But apart from their uses as scouts, the airships of an attacking power would prove a new and dangerous means of actual offense, because of their power of dropping bombs.

"Ballast can be replaced by bombs," Colonel Stone declared, "and these bombs may be very numerous and of large size."

Then he pictured the illusive target at which the artillery of the defenders would have to aim—an enemy which swooped away into the air as it delivered its blow. "It was calculated by the instructor of the Patrie that when she suddenly escaped from her moorings she was at once relieved of a weight of 1600 pounds; she shot up to a height of 6500 feet without any injury and without the valve being touched."

War in the air will have another terror, the lecturer reminded his audience, for the explosives will scatter their deadly fragments far and wider and with far greater force than the modern shells. The invading airship will come swiftly and secretly, hidden by the clouds or the night.

In the face of all these perils, how will the defenders act? Colonel Stone showed that "existing H. A. batteries engaged by day and reconnoissance or observation to an appreciable extent, since in order to attain a height of only 7500 feet it is necessary that the battery should be more than 4000 yards from a point vertically above the target."

"Artillery can do them to attack an airship on the move."

It is only when the hovers over a position comparatively low down, to place their bombs exactly in the right spot, that the batteries will be able to get at her, if they can see her.

He then said, Colonel Stone added, and, as to chase an airship with searchlights, "it is useless, another means must be employed. Here he drew an extraordinary picture of a modern battleship.

Instead of solitary searchlights here and there, he said, there will have to be a searchlight from light from all over the area in danger. The searchlight, blinded by the continuous glare and himself visible to all the other searchlights, will be to the edge of the shining field, there to be sought out by the single searchlight, followed by shells from the upper air.

Dr. artillery alone will scarcely be able to deny to an enemy's airship such access to the upper air as to make a drink, but a few minutes before the target air-dyodas may be necessary for reconnoitering and observation. This role can only be satisfactorily filled by faster air ships, or better still, aeroplanes, and the artillery defense in this respect regarded as auxiliary only.

The cheapest ton to use is not the lowest priced. You can buy a few cents a pound cleaner that will make a drink, but if you want an absolutely pure, beautiful, clean-prepared tea use "Salada." It is infinitely more delicious and healthy and economical than other teas, because it goes farther.

Miss Diadem Bell, a missionary of the Congregational church, home on furlough from Chibamba, West Central Africa, gave an address last night in the Congregational church, Union street. The meeting, which was under the auspices of the ladies' missionary auxiliary, was well attended and much appreciation. Miss Bell gave interesting details of the manners and customs of the natives of the district in which she was laboring and of the difficulties the missionaries encountered.

COURT ROOM WAS CROWDED AT INQUEST LAST NIGHT

The Evidence of Several Witnesses Taken at Last Night's Session of the Inquest into the Death of the Late Mrs. W. W. McLaughlin and Hearing Was Adjourned Until Monday—More Medical Evidence to Be Given

The inquest into the death of Mrs. Annie McLaughlin was resumed last evening. The evidence of several friends and relatives was taken and the further hearing was adjourned until Monday. The police court was again crowded, the number of ladies present being greater than at either of the previous sessions. As an instance of the interest taken, when the patient had taken a bad turn. She wanted him to come up and bring some whisky.

The witness said he was telephoned by Miss McNally. He thought she said the patient had taken a bad turn. She wanted him to come up and bring some whisky. He went and saw the patient. She said she was not feeling very well. He went out of the room and her mother came to him and asked if it would not be advisable to call in another doctor. He said he did not think so at that time. About fifteen minutes after he went into the room again and did not think her condition was improving. William McDonald came in and the witness told him he had better ask Dr. Emery to come. Dr. Emery responded quickly.

There was some confusion at this point as to dates. The witness said he had been speaking of the night the patient died. Continuing, he said that on March 12 he went to Dr. Emery and told him the patient had had a bad turn and that Dr. Spangler insisted on having another doctor called in. He thought Dr. Spangler was there at the time, but Dr. Emery did not recall it in his presence. As a result of that conversation, and at Dr. Spangler's suggestion, he went for Dr. Emery. He did not know whether Dr. Spangler was in the house when Dr. Emery arrived. He believed there was a consultation between Dr. Emery and Dr. Spangler as to the patient's condition. He was not sure if it was that evening. It was over the telephone. Dr. Emery did not protest, against attending on account of the patient being attended by Dr. Spangler. He was not particularly alarmed at her condition.

To Dr. MacRae, the witness said he was not in the house when the patient had the attack on March 12. He went for Dr. Emery himself. The patient was opposed to anyone being called in. She did not (Continued on page 7).

INSPECTOR JONES TALKS OF THE LIQUOR LAW AMENDMENTS

The New Conditions Will Obtain After May 1st—Inspector Reads in Amendments That Stalls in Saloons Must Go and is Also Doubtful About Hotel Bars Now Removed From Public View

The provisions of the new liquor license act will probably be operative from May 1st, the time from which the new license will take effect.

Where there was any ground glass or colored glass in the doors or windows to the view of the street, the same will be removed.

Another matter on which the inspector was questioned was regarding the bars in the hotels, whether they would be considered as part of the street.

According to this section those saloons which had show windows partitioned off would be required to have the partition taken away.

The principal changes under the new act were the regulations regarding the hours of sale and with respect to a free and unobstructed view of the interior of the saloons from outside.

Under the new law the bars would open at 10 o'clock every night except Saturday, when the closing hour is fixed at 9 o'clock.

The provision made for the removal of all screens or other impediments that would obstruct the view of the street.

Inspector Jones said that he would express himself definitely as to whether he would support the amendments.

"Every person charged with a public duty in connection with the same has been culpably negligent in the discharge of such duty." The above sentence, from the report of the Central Railway Commission, set forth in naked clearness the partisan spirit in which the enquiry was conceived and conducted.

A very practical step has been taken in New York state to protect the forests from danger of fire started by locomotives. An Albany despatch says: "An order was issued by the public service commission today requiring that all railroads traversing the state forest preserves in the Adirondacks must use oil consuming locomotives during certain periods of the year."

GERMANY CRITICISED

The Toronto Mail and Empire summarizes very well the substance of recent cables relative to the settlement of the Balkan trouble, and the bitterness toward Germany which has been aroused. We quote: "Austria-Hungary grabbed Bosnia and Herzegovina, which provinces she was solemnly bound by the Treaty of Berlin to hold in trust for Turkey. Serbia, whose right-of-way to the Adriatic through these provinces was practically assured by the same treaty, protested against the seizure."

From the list of candidates which the Times prints today (and there may be more on the underbrush), it should be possible to select a fairly good city council.

SIR WILLIAM VAN HORNE DISCUSSES CUBAN AFFAIRS. Says Island is Richest Spot on Earth—Pays Tribute to People—Good Times Ahead.

(Montreal Witness). If there is one country on earth which compares with Canada in the richness of natural resources, and the brightness of its prospects, that country is Cuba. This was the impression conveyed to the Witness this morning by Sir William Van Horne, who has just returned from a trip to Cuba and nonsense," said Sir William, "to talk about the Cubans as fire-eaters and insurrectionists. They are far from being so vicious as the North-ern mind conceives. On the contrary they are quiet, industrious and good natured, and they possess, at least as many of the better qualities of mankind as the people of any country I know."

REPORT OF THE CENTRAL RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS WHO L PARISIAN

It Charges Everybody with Culpable Negligence, and is Especially Bitter Against the Present Minister of Public Works

Fredericton, N. B., April 7.—The long looked for and much talked of report of the Central Railway Commission was laid on the table of the house today. It makes a pamphlet of 80 pages, which does not include any part of the evidence taken by the commission. Seven pages are devoted to a presentation of the facts of the "history" as the commissioners say, "that this report may be easily understood." The "history," as related by the commissioners, differs in many material facts from the "history" supplied under the signature of J. D. Hazen at the beginning of the provincial election campaign in 1908.

After reciting the section of the act defining the scope of their duties the commissioners plunge at once into their theme. From the beginning the report is severely critical and reads much more like the brief of a prosecuting attorney than the finding of a court. They claim that there were no books of account to guide them, yet they have succeeded in making up a statement which they put forward as the cost of the road to the province. What these gentlemen wanted was data is a mystery unsolved, as where any such was produced, like the report of Auditor Sharp, they refused to accept it.

From a rapid examination of the pages of the report it is evident that the commission were intent on trying to bring out testimony that would convict somebody. Those who remember the early days of the hearing and the manner in which the counsel for the government framed his questions have been looking forward to just such a report as has been laid on the table of the house. No other could have been expected.

The desire displayed by the counsel for the government throughout the enquiry to deal with but one side of the question rather than with both sides was so apparent as to create comment at the time. Throughout the report a similar spirit, not so marked, it is true, but nevertheless there, is noticeable. Whenever an unfavorable construction could be placed on a transaction it has been done. The commissioners have even entered upon a discussion of what the work done on the Central Railway should have cost. The report abounds in caustic criticism and the interpretations of the evidence do not always strike the reader as quite fair.

Just what part the report is expected to play no one can determine just now. That it was originally intended to be the political death warrant of those who opposed Mr. Hazen and his friends in New Brunswick has been more than suggested. It is not late now to serve any such purpose. While it would make an excellent campaign document it is hardly of the nature upon which a successful prosecution could be based. In many places the comments on the evidence are flippant. In other places it would almost seem as if the commissioners thought some of the people connected with the transactions of the company had died for the sole purpose of making their investigation the more difficult.

Under the heading of "Transactions Illustrated" the commissioners have handed down sixteen pages of the most remarkable admixture of statement of fact and opinions thereon that have ever found a place in the judgment of any court or commission. The story of their search for evidence is told in narrative form and incidentally opinions are expressed on the way on which everybody connected with the business of the company, including the government officials, lawyers and business men, had performed their duties. Of course everybody may have been wrong, but the commissioners believe otherwise.

One of the most remarkable things about this report is that it does not contain a single extract from the evidence taken by the commission. All the people have is the statement of the commissioners that there is evidence to substantiate them in their conclusions. The opinion is expressed that too much temptation was put in the way of the politicians by the large government guarantee. It is also no people who read the report will be of opinion that too much power was given other politicians by the act of last year.

The commission after dealing exhaustively with the sale of the Central Railway to the government and the legislation enacted by the house of assembly, arrives at the following conclusions: "To briefly sum up this whole matter: We have waded through a chaos of disconnected accounts and have carefully weighed all the evidence submitted as well as studying all the documents, orders in council, etc. Having thus patiently labored to ascertain, if possible, the true facts of the case we find a number of leading features governing the operations to which we call special attention. "First—it is clear that the enterprise was chiefly promoted by two members of the government, the controlling influence of one of whom was clearly evident from the beginning to the end. It is true a company was organized without any capital, which existed in name only, whose shareholders never attempted to influence its policy. Having everything to gain and nothing to lose, they left the control to the ex officio directors, as the government was putting in all the money. The company never performed the functions usually exercised by an incorporated company, it was, in fact, nothing but a disorganized department of the government of this province, whatever may be claimed for it in theory. The policy of granting government assistance to any company

Prevents as well as Cures "Father Morriey's No. 10" (Lung Tonic) Goes a Step Further Than Other Cough Medicines.

Left to themselves, most "Common Colds" will run their course and depart. But they leave reminders in the shape of lingering, irritating coughs and weak throats and lungs. There are many cough medicines on the market that help to stop a cold, but they do it because they contain Opium, Morphine or similar drugs that temporarily quiet or deaden the irritation, but do not remove the cause. Such medicines do little or no permanent good and often a great deal of harm, particularly to children. "Father Morriey's No. 10" is made of Roots, Herbs and Balsams, without a trace of Morphine or any other harmful drug. It goes straight to the root of the trouble and removes the cause of the cough. It restores lungs and throat to a healthy condition, tones them up, and makes them stronger than ever to resist colds and more serious diseases. Trial bottle, 25c. Regular size, 50c. AFFINITY MATCH SETS ALL PARIS TALKING

Son of Late President Casimir-Perier and a Theatre Francais Artist

Paris, April 7.—An affinity match is on the tapis, which has set all Paris talking. It involves a Perier and a Lebarry, names foremost in statecraft and dramatic art. To the charm of romance has been added the spectre of death. A divorce suit figures in it, with enough petty squabbling to keep the town alert.

Claude Casimir-Perier is one party to the match and Mme. Simone Lebarry the other. Claude's father was President of the republic, and the lady's husband holds easily first place among the great artists of the Theatre Francais, the forum par excellence of classic drama. Mme. Lebarry also won her fame in that institution.

It is known that for years the pair have been interested in each other. No one seemed to regard it as anything more than a platonic relation until Mme. Lebarry was called last season to fill an engagement in London. Young Perier followed her there. His father suspected the truth. He hastened to London to try to dissuade the son from pursuing his infatuation. There are pathetic scenes of pleading by the aged statesman to recall his wayward son. But the strength that had enabled him to carry France through seven months of political tempest could avail nothing with the love-sick pair. The son declared that he must be the sole ruler of his own heart, and the father returned, with his pride broken, to Paris. A little later he died. It was given out that he had caught a cold which involved his lungs, an accident which whereby the method and system could have been pursued.

There was apparently no secrecy in the relations of young Perier and Mme. Lebarry. At any rate, the quest of the older Perier had no sooner proved fruitless than M. Lebarry entered suit for divorce. The suit went in his favor by default.

Mme. Lebarry, whose quiet waiting to part from her husband, saw no reason to cease using his name, by which the public knew her and which was thus an asset in her art. Lebarry brought an action to enjoin such use. The courts again upheld him, decreeing that she must use another name. She then chose her first name, Simone; but now the public makes itself heard in the matter and insists in speaking of her as Mme. Lebarry. The death of the late president, however, has not altered the situation.

She comes of an excellent family and abandoned society to study for the stage. Her first instructor, Mutual, a member of the classic company and actor in the same drama with her husband, the death of Casimir-Perier, inspired certain convictions which have been respected, but it is well understood that Perier and Mme. Simone will wed within a few weeks.

Lebarry is the actor who roamed Holland to evade the production of his last masterpiece, "Cock Chastelot." The proposition was vetoed by the authorities of the Theatre Francais.

DOGS, CATS, DRUNKS AND FILTHY BACK YARDS

To the Editor of the Times, Sir.—Having read in a recent issue of your paper regarding the agitation for the persecution of harmless dogs, I would like to express my views on the matter. I am a dog lover and I am sure that you are able from your knowledge and control of the company's affairs to present such statements as were necessary to the government of the legislature and conceal from the country the true state of affairs.

Finally, the directors of the company and especially the ex officio directors, are responsible to the province for an accounting. They should be called upon to submit an account showing the expenditure of $838,290.75, or at least that portion of it, supplied by the province. What steps will be taken to enforce this finding we hardly feel called upon to determine. We find, putting the most charitable construction on the report, that $134,053.25 stated in our recapitulation following statement "C" given as unaccounted for, was misappropriated and diverted from its proper and legitimate channel.

Considering that the doors were never locked, that nearly $1,000,000 were used about without any special guardianship or any reasonable prospect of any one being called upon to account, that temptation in its most seductive form was continually in the path of the politicians interested, it is not very difficult to understand how an amount even larger than $134,053.25 might have been switched from their legitimate course. The $838,290.75, however, is not the slightest doubt forms part of the total shortage.

As to who personally got this money, we are unable to state. Want of records as shown by illustrations as given in the former part of this report, the fact that the secretary, Geo. W. Allen, as director or Solicitor A. I. Trueman had died before the investigation began greatly enhanced the difficulties of discovering anything definite on the above point. Then, too, many of the leading actors in this drama did not in their evidence disclose with any certainty their relations with transactions with which their names appear in written documents. A notable case was that of C. N. Skinner, whose memory appeared almost a blank as to his acts and reasons therefor. Even the amount of remuneration he had received had passed from his mind. We cannot but believe that had Mr. Skinner felt more personal responsibility in the duties he performed and better appreciated the ones in which we were engaged his memory would have been much improved. Leading witnesses with almost unalting monotonous referred us to two deceased officers of the company, George W. Allen and A. I. Trueman, when any critical point as to the disposal of moneys was in question.

We have become painfully convinced after examining the evidence and the statements submitted to us that in the expenditure of the public funds, provided for this enterprise, every person charged with public duty in connection with the same has been culpably negligent in the discharge of such duty. The degree of culpability attached to each individual has perhaps not been the same. Some were guilty of negligence in accepting positions of trust and in not acquainting themselves with what transpired in regard to the same but allowing others, unquestionably to undertake the sole discharge of duties, the responsibility of which they themselves had assumed. They lent their names and allowed the moral influence of their high standing in the community to assure the province that legitimate business methods would be followed. The provincial secretary and atorney-general, ex officio directors, who were especially appointed by the legislature to watch the company's doings in the interest of the province we consider by

OTTAWA HOUSE TOOK HOLIDAY

Several Bills Assented to Yesterday and House Adjourned for Easter Vacation

Ottawa, April 7.—A majority of the ministers will spend the holiday at Ottawa. Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, who is in Washington, is expected here on Friday. Hon. Mr. Pugsley leaves this afternoon for St. John, and Hon. Mr. Templeman will go to New York. Hon. Mr. Fisher will go to Kingston, and Hon. Mr. Lemieux will also go to New York. Hon. Mr. Fielding is going to Ottawa and will meet in council on Saturday and Monday.

The house of commons sat today for twenty minutes, responding to the call of the black rod to witness the royal assent to a number of bills, given by deputy governor general, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, and then adjourned for Easter holidays to meet again on Tuesday, April 13.

While commons were waiting for summons to proceed to the senate chamber, Hon. Mr. Lemieux laid before the house the communications he had received regarding the coal strike in the West and expressed the hope that satisfactory settlement would be reached immediately. It appears that only one man had refused to sign the agreement forwarded by the International Union. Mr. Lemieux also stated that Mackenzie King would still for home soon and report to parliament satisfactory results of the international commission which had been considering the suppression of opium. The legislation passed last session with regard to opium had taken effect and Canada was in the position of being the first country to suppress the use of the drug, except for purely medical purposes.

It is true the provincial secretary was not satisfied with matters as they were going, for more than once we find by letter or otherwise, he registered objections, but it would seem he had assisted to call into play forces he could not control, if he wished to do so, and the bonds were in due course guaranteed and moneys spent under conditions stated in this report."

Another Case Proving You Quickly Get Bracing Health From Ferrozene.

There's a real reason why Ferrozene cures. It's a true nerve tonic—not a stimulant—gives the nerves with its tonicment—gives them vital actual activity. No other tonic in the world like Ferrozene, nothing leaves so quick and lasting in its effects on a run-down, nervous system. "I used enough medicine to appreciate an honest one," writes J. J. Beattie, from his home in Newcastle. "From boyhood I was not overly strong and was always nervous. I smoked a good deal, but on the whole my habits were good. My trouble first began with a shortening of the hours of sleep. I would awaken too early, my appetite was poor and to whip it up I used highly spiced and sweet foods. First thing I knew I had palpitation on doing a little extra work, and then a awful tiredness came upon me, and a strange feeling of dread—almost of fear—made me think I was losing grip of myself. My power of memory weakened and I lost my position. Then I read about Ferrozene. So, it's awfully good to get a medicine that helps you right off. I don't mind telling you I was badly scared, and every dose was almost like sunshine. At once I began to feel better, and permanent relief I really was, for less than a dozen boxes made a well man. Now I can do my work with any man and I am grateful to Ferrozene."

Ferrozene corrects all enfeebled conditions of the system, builds up and gives the body great relative power against disease. Use Ferrozene assures lasting robust health. 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50. At all dealers. Try Ferrozene, do it today.

COURT ROOM CROWDED AT INQUEST LAST NIGHT

Dr. Emery in fifteen minutes. Dr. Spangler was there when he left. He was not sure if he had gone when he returned. Dr. Emery was there about half an hour. The witness was not in the room. He went to get a prescription filled. There were two bottles of medicine which the patient continued to use.

The patient did not tell him what treatment Dr. Emery prescribed, nor what Dr. Spangler's treatment was. She did not tell him she had dispensed with Dr. Emery's services.

The witness was at the house about 3 p. m. on the day the patient died. She was in bed then. She told him she had been sitting up for two hours. She said it was the way she found it. He told her she was very foolish. He did not say she was against Dr. Spangler's advice. He left at 12.20 p. m. The patient seemed tired when he went in, and bright and all right when he left.

Dr. Spangler saw her at 11.35 p. m. Mrs. William Lockhart ran him up and said the patient had a weak turn and was not coming out of it well. She wanted to know what Dr. Emery had said. He rang up Mrs. McDonald and told her that her sister was sick. When he arrived the patient was in bed, pale and breathing quick. Her forehead felt damp. He did not remember what he said. Her mother asked him to get her a glass of water. He did the meantime. He heard that Dr. Spangler had been there and thought she was coming along all right. She was called by Mrs. McDonald about fifteen minutes later. William McDonald came in. The patient was conscious when the doctor came.

To Dr. MacRae: "You said you knew Dr. Emery and Dr. Spangler had a consultation over the telephone. Where were you?" "That is hear say. Dr. Emery and Dr. Spangler both told me."

"Do you know of any difference of opinion as to the treatment?" "I think they agreed as to the symptoms, but I can't say as to treatment."

"What did Dr. Emery tell you?" "He said often in these cases but I'm not sure he said the brain. He also said if it were the case she might have another attack."

In further questions the witness said that neither from personal knowledge nor from what the patient told him could he say what the treatment was. He did not remember Dr. Emery saying anything to the witness.

To Mr. Teed the witness said the patient had told her to keep perfectly quiet, that too many people were coming over to treat her and she wanted it stopped right away.

The witness also told of going to have two prescriptions, given by Dr. Emery, filled at Burgess Brown's drug store. One a stimulant, was like water and Dr. Emery said the patient was to have a dose of one of them in bed. She asked her if she knew what the trouble was and she replied that she presumed it was a milk leg.

At the time of the conversation she was in bed. She had not seen her out of bed during her illness, though she had called in the morning, afternoon and evening. She had heard that the patient had been in bed several times. She had heard that she was up on Sunday.

The treatment given by Dr. Spangler was of the back. The patient told her Dr. Spangler never treated her leg. She had told her in the early stages of her illness. She had not seen the patient on every occasion as it was Dr. Spangler's express orders that the patient should not be moved. The witness said she did not speak of the mode of treatment as the patient had told her of her own knowledge. The patient did not tell her that Dr. Emery was called in at Dr. Spangler's request; she had heard it from other sources. Some time before she was confined to her bed, the patient had told her she thought she had rheumatism in her leg. Later she told her she thought she had a milk leg.

She had seen the patient frequently—about three times a week—until the later stages, when she knew the patient should be absolutely quiet. Then her only duty was to see that she was comfortable and to see that she had only what she needed. She had only one duty when she was called in at Dr. Spangler's request. She had only one duty when she was called in at Dr. Spangler's request. She had only one duty when she was called in at Dr. Spangler's request.

To Mr. Teed the witness said the patient would frequently walk about fourteen steps into another room. There was a step about three inches down at the door. The witness always helped her except on one occasion when she went alone. This continued up to the time of the last attack. She walked every other day or often.

Mr. Teed: "Notwithstanding Dr. Emery's and Dr. Spangler's orders as soon as she got strong enough after the first attack she persisted in getting up and moving in this way?" "Yes."

Mr. Teed: "He did not turn her over?" "Witness: "Never."

WAS THE MARATHON A FAKE?

New York "World" Hints that Promoter Had all Runners Fixed

In those days it is a common occurrence to hear the question: "Was it straight?" and whenever a big athletic event takes place, and the observations of W. P. McKinley in the New York World are great, the Marathon race of Saturday is interesting. He writes:

"The time of the Marathon Derby was at St. Yves, in Saturday's race was the best guarantee that he ran on the level. It was disappointing to the public to see Shrubbs and to pieces near finish. But this was not unexpected, at least. In Saturday morning's old I stated distinctly that Longboat should be resorted to in order to get him along when he gets that lagging. There was not much strenuous wasted on him to make his finish.

BOSTON OCEAN TUGS ON THE WAY HERE TO TAKE AUSTIN AWAY

The ocean going tug Underwriter and one that is expected to arrive here today about noon to tow the disabled steamer Calvin Austin to Boston where she will undergo repairs.

Yesterday afternoon Fred Doyle went down to chain up the disabled shaft and propeller, so that it would hold until the steamer reached Boston. Heavy chains were passed around the shafting and blades of the propeller, to lift the broken shaft up and hold them securely. There is another heavy chain to go and this will be led forward and made fast there so as to leave the shafting back into its place. With all these chains secured the steamer will be seaworthy to take to Boston.

It had been the intention of the company to take the Austin off the route in a few weeks for repairs, and she will now get her overhauling and the Governor Cobb will take her place.

CRY OF ANTI-ROMANISM AT A FREE CHURCH CONGRESS

The Free Church Parliament, at Swansea, Wales, has astonished even itself. Its proceedings have been marked by a dramatic upheaval, says the London Express.

The fires of anti-Romanism blazed up at the holding of a tall, pale, thin-faced, seer-like man whose grimness of spirit was shown by the fact that when the whole crowded parliament, packed from floor to ceiling, was rocking with laughter at the dry Scotch humor of the Rev. John McNeill, he sat with set lips, staring eyes, and not the glimmer of a smile. The man who varied between being one who varies between preaching with the writing of more or less sensational religious tales—the Rev. Joseph Hocking, author of "The Scarlet Woman."

He looked, while he spoke, the very picture of a Peter the Hermit calling for a new crusade. His deepest eyes glowed with fire, his jaws opened, and his jaws of steel, his head was thrust forward, and one arm extended while the other quivered as he held his manuscript.

Mr. Hocking was as startling as the title of his address, "The Alarming Development of Modern Romanism." He recited of the following figures:—Roman Catholic priests in England, 1851, 1861, 1871, 1881, 1891, 1901, 1911, 1921, 1931, 1941, 1951, 1961, 1971, 1981, 1991, 2001. He made the astonishing suggestion that the Roman Catholic Church has planted commissaries in newspapers of all over the country to time the press. After that it was an anti-Romanism, he said, in the number of Catholics in England is "very little altered" from what it was in 1851.

Mr. Hocking complained bitterly of what he called the "fulsome adulation" with which the newspapers described the Eucharistic Conference in London, and declared that, if Father Vaughan's tale was published in every paper, while if Dr. Horton preached up and down the land the newspapers ignored them.

"The thing Mr. Hocking hates particularly is a monastery or a nunnery. It is a blot on the face of the nation. Why is it that Rome should be so full of monastic institutions in the blackest of the Middle Ages? Why is it that Rome should be so full of monastic institutions in the blackest of the Middle Ages? Why is it that Rome should be so full of monastic institutions in the blackest of the Middle Ages?"

"I am too strong a Protestant to give a refuge to those who do not believe like me. He cried, 'but they should be under proper rules. How many inmates are there in these places? We do not know. They are shrouded in secrecy. The census gives no statistics. Convents are sealed houses containing thousands of our fellow-creatures, sworn to obey their superiors, and subjected to a cure if they break away.'"

"I say this," shouted the excited speaker, "that anything can be done. There can be cruelty and crime and outrage, and yet none has a right to know anything. The secrets remain secrets, every other kind of institution is open to inspection. Why should monasteries be so? Why should monasteries be so? Why should monasteries be so?"

Mr. O. Warren, Radnor, Pa., writes: "I was troubled with very severe pains in my back for years. I tried everything I could think of, but it did me no good. A friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills and after taking two boxes, I have not been troubled since. Price 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.35. All dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. When ordering specify 'Doan's.'"

Under ordinary conditions it ought to be strong and ready to bear the business of life. It is hard to do housework with an aching back. Backache comes from sick kidneys, and what a lot of trouble sick kidneys cause. But they can't help it. If more work is put on them than they can stand it is not to be wondered that they get out of order. Backache is simply a warning from the kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from kidney troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you in the same way as they have cured thousands of others.

An Unbreakable Set of Teeth

There is a class of patients who do not object to paying a fair price for artificial teeth, if they can really secure comfort, usefulness and naturalness. I have a set of teeth, such as is unobtainable in any other office in this city, to my knowledge. It is out of the ordinary line and unlike the teeth in general use. Its beauty is at once apparent, and it is practically unbreakable. I will pay those who are desirous of obtaining the best to be had in the dental line, to call and inspect this for themselves. I will gladly demonstrate its superiority over other plates, even if you have no immediate intention of investing.

WILL SPEND EASTER AS THE CITY'S GUESTS

Several "Gentlemen" Sent Today by Judge Ritchie to King Street East Hotel

In the police court this morning, Joseph Cunningham, who was arrested for profanity to patrolman, charged for some minutes over his reply to the charge, and consequently the policeman was provoked and demanded that a man on the opposite side of the street be arrested, accusing him of striking Cunningham. He stated that Cunningham approached him from him to incriminate the man, who was Dominick Kerrigan, and advised Cunningham to go away. Cunningham insisted that the policeman resembled one who would permit a third to be on the rampage without molestation.

To Judge Ritchie this morning, Cunningham said he was a native of Pittsburgh, and as Kerrigan had admitted relieving him of the money, he was excited when he accosted Cunningham. A fine of $8 or thirty days was imposed.

Samuel McAuley pleaded guilty to intoxication, and was welcomed to some extent in Montreal with a fine of $8 or thirty days.

Thomas Hanley's solicitations over the welfare of McAuley, caused a night's confinement in a cell for Cunningham. Sullivan testified that Hanley followed him to Water street lock-up, while McAuley was under arrest, and was entering the lock-up, and was ejected. He was impatient on the street, and said he was sent to St. John by a Halifax shipping agent to join the Victorian, but when he reached the city the turbine had departed. He was confined to his freedom.

Hazen and Charles McNulty, who were arrested on a charge of fighting on Westmorland Road on Saturday, said that fighting was an exaggeration for their somewhat, and when advised by his brother to go home, he was in a contrary mood, and Charles struck him. Children congregated, and they fled leaving a coat for the police, as a memento of the occasion. They were both remanded.

Thomas Williams, who was taken into custody in a box car, adjacent to the depot between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning said he drank a "little" and availed himself of the impromptu sleeping quarters that were empty car afforded. He paid $2 for intoxication yesterday, and to influence, his honor, he displayed the palms of his hands to him, with the comment: "These hands'll pass I guess."

"Yes, but your conduct won't" was the retort as he was fined $8 or thirty days. Thomas McCall, John Pettigrew and James Ferguson were fined $4 or ten days for inebriation, and it was suggested that the police enquire where McCall, who is twenty years old, obtained his liquor.

Officer McCollon vouchsafed that he was in McCall's saloon on Water street when Joseph Cunningham accused of stealing a cheque for $125 and $28 in cash and who was arrested in a Pond street boarding house last night, was commenced this afternoon, Cunningham, who was fined for profanity, will testify.

THIRTY-SEVEN IN THE FIELD NOW

This is the Number of Aldermanic Candidates Already Out, and Nomination Day May See More—St. John to Have Keenest Civic Fight for Years

The approaching civic contest promises to be very interesting. Up to the present time there are thirty-seven candidates in the field for aldermanic honors, including the present aldermen. There will be a contest in every ward, except Wellington and Stanley, where it seems likely that Ald. Christie and Ald. McGoldrick will not be opposed, although it is stated an effort is being made to induce Charles Green, son of George Green, who was a candidate two years ago, to run in Stanley.

George A. Knodell has announced definitely that he is in the field for Prince ward, and H. R. Roberts will run in Lorrie ward. John Burley is announced as an opponent of Ald. Elkin in Queens and Havelock ward. It is also rumored that W. G. Scovil would not be a candidate for Sydney ward, but Mr. Scovil announced today that he was in the fight to stay.

It is quite probable that several other names will come before the electors before the nominations close on Tuesday.

THE EASTER MARKET

Good Supply in All Lines, but Prices are Rather Stiff

The city market is well supplied for the Easter trade, meats, fowl, vegetables and green stuff, eggs, etc. even to strawberries. Prices, however, in many instances are somewhat stiff. Spring lamb for example is ranging in price as follows: Fore-quarters, $2.00, $2.25, $2.50 and hind quarter, $1.75, $2.00 and $2.25. There is an abundance of choice beef, principally the western article, though there is considerable nice local beef. The prices range as follows: Western 12c to 20c and local 10c to 20c. S. J. Dickson is carrying western beef only and has a conspicuous display. The supply of beef is divided between western and local about 20 to 30 per cent. The former is not the superior for any superiority over the New Brunswick beef, a big wholesale dealer informed the Times, but on account of the small supply of the latter as the result of lack of raising beef cattle in this province. In fact he further stated two weeks ago that the most profitable carcasses in the market, being the best dressed and finished, were the New Brunswick product. Local selling at 12, 14 and 16 cents for light and 18 to 22 cents for extra choice. A particularly fine carcass is displayed at Thomas Dean's. It is a 15 weeks' old calf weighing 527 pounds, raised by John Chalmer of Kingston. Choice Easter ham and bacon is selling at 15, 16 and 18 cents. Eggs are selling at 25 cents up. Turkeys 22 to 35 cents a pound. Fowl are high, bringing $1.50, $1.75, $2.00 and $2.50 a pair. Pork 15 cents, cabbage 15, 20 and 25 cents. Celery 10 to 12 cents, Cucumbers 18, 20 and 25 cents a piece. Tomatoes 20 and 25 cents a pound. Rhubarb 15 to 25 cents a pound. Squash 3 to 5 cents; spinach, 45 to 50 cents a peck; lettuce, 6 cents; carrots, $1.20 per barrel; beet $1.50; turnips, 90c to $1.00; cabbages, $1.50. J. E. Quinn, who is also a large grower has an especially attractive display of green stuff, in fact all the delicacies in and out of season. Here Mr. Quinn has an abundance of everything that goes to make up a tasty Easter dinner including palatable delicacies to the taste of the most fastidious epicure. Mr. Quinn is offering the following: Rhubarb, spinach, strawberries, tomatoes, native cauliflower, radishes, lettuce, water cress, celery, parsley, new cabbage, and some extra choice cranberries. Also are to be found here sweet potatoes.
