What the Company Say.

If The Advertiser may be allowed to say so, without the accusation of "cant," nothing is ever really settled unless it is settled right.

Nor is anything to be gained by ignoring the strongest points that can be brought up by the side opposite your own.

So far as we can make out, from the published views of the London Street Railway Company, they object, most of all, to the recognition of the men collectively—that is, in the form of an organized union.

The company object to this, we understand, on the ground that, if they dealt with the men as a union, they would find it difficult to maintain discipline—that, for example, if a man were a union man, it might be difficult to discipline him, even if he proved intemperate or dishonest, because, as the company profess to fear, the union would stand by him through thick and thin, no matter what his faults.

Now, no one will deny that the company are entitled to the exercise of all reasonable, lawful discipline, just as a private employer would be, and that if an employee proves dishonest or intemperate, the company would be entitled, beyond question, to dismiss him. No one would for a moment argue to the contrary.

But is it true that the London motormen and conductors would insist on coercing the company into retaining in their employ men known to be dishonest or intemperate?

We do not think so. The mass of the men are men of common sense, and know it would be impossible to conduct any business in the world if employers were in any sense coerced into retaining the services of employees who are either dishonest or intemperate.

It may be asked, What does The Advertiser suggest, in order that these two apparently contradictory principles may be reconciled—first, the recognition of that fair and reasonable discipline on the part of the company which is necessary to efficiency; and, second, the reasonable right of the men to collective organization as a union?

The Advertiser does not believe the two positions to be in reality antagonistic. The Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk do not find them antagonistic. These great railway corporations maintain strict discipline, and they do not for a moment consider themselves bound to retain the services of any man who is either intemperate or dishonest. Yet they do not refuse to negotiate with the men under their employ in their collective capacity as unions.

As to the exact way in which the reasonable rights of the company, on the one hand, and the reasonable rights of the men, on the other, can be best safeguarded and adjusted, it is not for The Advertiser to say—not professing to be an expert in street railway matters. What we do say is, that the parties should be brought together to reason the matter—in conjunction with men of tact and impartiality—in other words, that all matters in dispute should be adjusted by arbitration.

The G. T. R. Trackmen's Strike.

The strike of the Grand Trunk trackmen is unfortunate at this season of activity. Mr. Hays' able management has brought the Grand Trunk system up to a high level of efficiency, and has produced a wonderful change for the better in its financial conditions. Today the Grand Trunk is stronger than it has ever been, and has apparently re-entered a dividend-paying epoch, which the shareholders, after their long deprivation, deserve. It is desirable at this auspicious time that the relations of the great corporation and its employees should not be disturbed. If it is true, as is alleged by the trackmen, that their average wage is only 98c per day, it would seem to be a case for arbitration.

The railway corporations have long since accepted the principle of unionism, and deal with most of their employees in a collective capacity. The companies and the various unions have periodical consultations, at which all grievances are freely canvassed and settled in a friendly spirit if possible. A railway strike is a rare occurrence. Recently the Grand Trunk set a good example by arbitrating with their telegraphers—a mode which speedily composed the differences. The trackmen's strike appears to be a good subject for the same process.

INTERESTED IN CANADA.

London, May 30.—The following are among the latest inquiries concerning Canadian trade received at the Canadian Government offices: A firm of fish and poultry salesmen at the Mar-lands is desirous of opening up trade with Canadian exporters of eggs, turkeys and frozen salmon. The London agents for a large Cape firm, that ships merino wools to the English and other markets, are desirous of entering into business relations with Canadian importers, or to place them in communication with their South African principals.

SOLID FOR CANADA.

London, May 30.—The Washington campaign against Canada continues. The latest statement put forward is that Canada demanded as a condition of the Alaska boundary arbitration that she conceded a tidewater port with hinterland, irrespective of the result of the arbitration. This inclines the Chronicle and one or two other newspapers to side with the United States. The most influential opinion is solid on the side of Canada.

CABLE NOTES.

At Madrid, on Monday, immense crowds witnessed the funeral of Senor Don Emilio Castelar, who died at Madrid Friday. All the public offices and most of the shops of the city were closed, and Madrid put on universal emblems of mourning. More than 100,000 people, embracing all classes of society, lined the route, and perfect order was maintained during almost the entire ceremony.

Loufi Agha, the sultan's special favorite, is dead. It is generally believed that Loufi exercised for years a remarkable influence in public affairs.

In addition to the czar's reported intention to abolish deportation to Siberia, it is stated that he has initiated a plan of general prison reform.

THE BOUNDARY DISPUTE.

London, May 30.—The Times publishes a special article explaining all aspects of the Alaskan boundary dispute. It believes that England's case is very strong, and that "she has every interest in going to arbitration, provided the terms of reference are satisfactory," adding that "the Venezuelan precedent might fairly be accepted on both sides." The article speaks favorably of the compromise plan for internationalizing the wharf of Skaguay and the White Pass road as far as the Canadian frontier.

MARCHAND HONORED.

Paris, May 30.—Major Marchand's arrival here was the occasion for a big demonstration. He was received at the Hotel de Ville, which was profusely decorated.

Horrible Fate of a British Officer and Two Companions.

London, May 30.—Details are to hand of the killing and eating, on the Congo, of Capt. Maurice Bell, a British militia officer, who last year left England for the Congo in the service of the Free State. It appears that Capt. Bell and his small force of 50 black troops proceeded in the direction of a village called Mondimba. While marching in Indian file through a dense forest they were suddenly surrounded by 300 spearmen. The soldiers, who were mere boys, no sooner saw the natives approaching than they threw down their rifles and cartridge belts and cleared into the bush, leaving Capt. Bell, his native servant and one boy to resist the attack. Aided by his rifle again and again, and when at close quarters used his revolver with such effect that he accounted for fully 100 of the natives, the three men, the cannibals, however, in the end overcame Capt. Bell and his two companions. First, the three were speared, then cut up and afterwards eaten.

Interest of Downtown Merchants

It is clearly in the interests of downtown merchants to have the earliest possible settlement of the street railway dispute. They realize that the people will not patronize the cars, and that the retail trade will suffer so long as the boycott continues. The merchants should get together and make pointed representations to the company to take steps to bring the difficulty to an end. The merchants as a class are not unfriendly to organized labor, from which the bulk of their patronage is drawn.

"Shynol."

Why Beauty Fades so Early.

The American "rush" habit is largely responsible for the evanescence of American female beauty. Ignorance of the laws of health, and carelessness bear the rest of the burden. Nine-tenths of our women are in the bilious anaemic condition, which produces sallowness, freckles, moth patches and that accompanying sense of weariness which sometimes amounts to exhaustion, yet they will not take time to attend to their health. Their motto is, "By and by." Some are slaves to household work—others are slaves to fashion and frivolous pleasures; none of them will give an hour to serious meditation. If they did, they would realize whether they are frustrating. Pills and cosmetic powder will not mend matters. These women need inward cleansing; that alone will make their complexion clear as a baby's! Chloro extracts and clover tea do the work for our grandmothers. Chloro and Boys Tea will do it for you. It is even more efficacious, for it contains other herbal ingredients which increase its marvelous alterative powers. Why not try it this Spring? We guarantee to refund your money if you are not cured or satisfied. Ask any druggist for a sample package, or write to B. C. Wells & Co., 55 Colburn Street, Toronto, Ont., and they will mail you a package free of charge. Sold throughout United States and Canada at 50c. and 25c.; and in England at 7s. 6d. and 2s. 3d.

THE BRITISH LLOYD'S

This Wonderful Corporation—It Dominates Every Vessel in Foreign Trade.

A brief statement of England's ocean supremacy will, I think, be of interest, says H. Phelps Whitmarsh in the May Atlantic. Great Britain today stands pre-eminently the mistress of the world's shipping interest. Her tonnage is greater than that of all the nations of the world put together; her ships carry five eighths of the deep-water freight, and she ships half the world's cargo on the ocean. Her success is no secret; it has certainly not been due to chance, but has grown from the spirited interest in ships that every British subject takes, and has always taken. This spirit has culminated in the great corporation known as the "British Lloyds," which corporation more or less dominates every vessel, no matter what nationality, that sails in foreign trade. In a list of shipping (Lloyds' Register) it has stamped or omitted to stamp the quality of every foreign-going vessel. It has been the means of centralizing the marine insurance business to such an extent that British companies carry seven eighths of the risks of the world.

For two hundred years, since the days when underwriters and men connected with shipping met at the coffee-house of Edward Lloyd in London, and applied the principles of marine insurance taught them by the Lombards, British ship-owners have sent their ships to sea with feelings of absolute safety, for they hold a paper underwritten at Lloyds as good as gold, in case of accident to their property. The board of directors in this corporation represent the entire shipping interest of Great Britain. In his fifteen hundred agents in various parts of the world—men with thorough knowledge of ships in general, whose duty it is to report shipping news. As a result Lloyds is a tremendous power; the words of its experts are accepted before parliamentary committees as truths, and its authority in the manner of ratings has given it the control of the world's over-sea traffic.

CURZON AND HIS WIFE

Described by G. W. Stevens—A Vivid Pen Picture.

The rising assembly saw a tall, erect, full-chested man in a gray frock coat on which, alone, shone the star of India. Forty years, more than half of them filled with strenuous work toward higher ends, have printed their mark on a broad, lofty brow, have stamped it with reflectiveness, but kept its serenity. The rest of the face might be owned by a country lad of 20—clean shaven, smooth, rosy, as if its owner had never had a care, never lost a night's sleep or a day's enjoyment. Beside him walked the incoming viceroy, tall and stately as a statue, light and graceful as a picture, lissome and expressive as a beautiful, gracious woman. Under a hat that drooped with lace and flowers appeared a profile and bound black hair of Grecian simplicity. When she turned the mobile lines of the complete face fired the classical beauty with the keen and nervous vitality of the modern west. But the mature freshness of the man's aspect, the alert repose of the woman's were secondary to their perfect entrance as viceroy and vicereine. From "The Installation of Lord Curzon as Viceroy of India," by G. W. Stevens, in the May Scribner's.

Street Railway Strikers Notified to Return the Company's Property—More About Arbitration.

The street railway company has 12 cars running today, but the union buses continue to do the business. The company says they will shortly have 14 cars in operation.

The union men have been notified by the company to return the badges, punches and rule-books, belonging to the company, before 6 o'clock this evening. The notices state that if they are not returned legal steps will be taken to recover them. Uniforms have been ordered for the new men, and the company says that if the old men wish to come back they will have to take their chances on the same footing with the men engaged since the strike.

An old citizen, writing to The Advertiser, under yesterday's date, says: "I read with pleasure in your issue today the words of wisdom spoken by Rev. W. J. Clark, in reference to the strike on the street railway. As they echo my sentiments, and I believe the sentiments of the large majority of our citizens, I commend them to the company and the employees alike. Arbitration should be called on to settle this question once for all. It is the only way it can be settled, unless the city council should step in and buy out the company, and run the streets railway, as it does the waterworks department."

In 1886 Policy 13699, $1,000, was issued for L. T., on the fifteen-year endowment plan. This month he purchased another policy for $5,000, fifteen-year endowment.

In 1886, H. A. W. obtained Policy 13712, $5,000, twenty-five-year endowment. Last year he purchased another policy of the same amount and upon the same plan.

Anti-Canadians at Work.

The Alaskan boundary question, from the Canadian point of view, is as clear as daylight, though deliberate efforts to obscure it have been made by some agency in Washington. The Associated Press has been loaded with anti-Canadian dispatches from this mysterious source. It has been repeatedly charged that the Canadian Government, by their petty grasping policy, have canceled the hope of further negotiations with the United States. Mr. Smalley, the American correspondent of the London Times, has become infected with this anti-Canadian prejudice so diligently fostered at Washington, and in a letter to the Times extols the conduct of the United States toward Canada as generous and forbearing, claiming that all the advances have come from the American side, while we offered nothing in return, and have exasperated official circles at Washington by our selfishness and presumption. Were it not for Canada, Smalley writes, Great Britain and the United States would soon reach an understanding. To the credit of the Times, and of nearly every other London journal, they repudiate Smalley's version, and stand up for Canada's rights in the premises, pointing out that the issues at stake are primarily Canadian; consequently Canadian interests must dictate the course of the British Government.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier put the whole situation clearly before the public in reply to Sir Charles Tupper Saturday and yesterday. He explained that the Canadian and American commissioners could not agree as to the location of the Alaskan boundary, as defined by the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia. The Canadian commissioners tried to arrange a compromise, but without effect. The two parties also failed to unite on a plan of arbitration. As a last resort the question was referred to the more elaborate diplomacy of the British and American Governments, in the hope that they would arrive at some agreement before the Joint High Commission resumed its sittings. Since then the two governments have been exchanging views, but whether they will be more successful than the Joint High Commission remains to be seen. Sir Wilfrid took occasion to give the lie to a statement sent out by the Associated Press on Sunday, to the effect that Canada demanded as a condition of arbitration that Pyramid Harbor and a strip on the Lynn Canal should be ceded to her without reference to the general conclusions of the arbitrators. Canada makes no such demand; she will accept arbitration unreservedly. Sir Wilfrid avers that if the boundary dispute were removed, the other matters intrusted to the commission would be adjusted in a few days. This is very reassuring, and shows the degree of progress the commission had attained when it stumbled over the Alaskan boundary. Sir Charles Tupper is to be congratulated on his change of front. When the commission adjourned he attacked the Government for not entirely breaking off relations with the United States, and he protested against any resumption of negotiations. Sir Charles now hails with pleasure the prospect of the commission sitting again, and he is disposed to give the Government a free hand in the whole business. He declares once more that it is a subject above party politics. He has come to realize with Sir Wilfrid Laurier the vital importance of the Alaskan boundary question to Canada. With the United States controlling the gateway of the Klondike, we are deprived of our legitimate share in the trade and commerce of our own Eldorado. We have good ground for challenging the title of the United States to that gateway. Surely both parties in this country should unite in upholding the Canadian claim to such a prize.

England as It Is Divided for Parliamentary Purposes.

The benefits of observing municipal boundaries in the delimitation of constituencies for the return of members to the Dominion House of Commons were well set forth by Sir John Macdonald in the redistribution of 1872. Nothing has occurred in Canada since that time to disprove the wisdom of that view. It has been confessed by the ex-chairman of the Ontario Conservative Union that the subsequent distribution, which ignored county lines, and professed to be a method of equalizing the constituencies, was really dictated by party exigencies, and was forced upon Sir John Macdonald by the schemers in his following. We showed effectively, in the list of constituencies printed in these columns the other day, that there was no ground for the claim that the constituencies were equalized by the gerrymanders of 1882 and 1892. On the contrary, the principle of rep. by pop. was nowhere insisted upon. But they ask now, "If you must repeal the gerrymander, and provide judges to divide the counties where more than one member is to be elected, why not follow the English system? The Liberal Government of Canada have improved on the English system by providing that judges of the superior courts shall make the division. In England the dividing officers were civil servants. In other respects, it cannot be said that there is much difference between the Canadian system, now about to be established, and the English system.

It has been contended that the English provide that their constituencies shall be equalized in population. This is not the case. The English idea has been to see that there is fair representation for groups of constituencies, without being very particular about the size of the individual constituency. In order to preserve municipal boundaries, it is no uncommon thing to find a British constituency with one member from 20,000 to 30,000, while others twice as large have no greater representation. In this respect, though with fewer inequalities, the Canadian Government is inclined to follow the policy of Great Britain, which has the support of both political parties. The English example also is followed, as it was even in the gerrymander, by providing that centers of population shall not have a representation up to the unit, inasmuch as it has always been found that large cities can always look well after their interests with their incidental advantages in this respect over the rural regions.

The official figures recording the population in various representative constituencies in England enable us to make some strong contrasts in this regard. In the British metropolis some divisions with between 80,000 and 90,000 inhabitants have but one member, while others having only a little over 40,000 have equal representation. In Worcestershire we have Kidderminster, 25,633 people, with one member, and Beudley, 51,460, with no more. Pontefract, in Yorkshire, has one member for 15,332 inhabitants, and Scarborough, one for 30,504; but Huddersfield, in the same district, has 87,157, and Middlesbrough, 72,157, with only one member each, while the old city of York, with 61,168 population, has two members. Taunton is given a member, though it has only 16,616 inhabitants, but five other divisions of Somersetshire, all with populations of over 50,000, have but one representative. We summarize a few of the many anomalies in British representation, agreed to by both parties, in order that municipal boundaries may remain intact:

There is nothing in these returns to show that the English system is superior to that adopted by the Canadian Government. The observation of municipal boundaries in Canada necessitates far fewer inequalities than are required in Great Britain, whose example the Canadian Government have been asked by their opponents to follow, apparently without being seized of the facts.

The peace conference at The Hague is making progress on the line of arbitration. The London Street Railway should heed the example.

Spain buried her noblest dust yesterday. Castelar was the greatest rhetorician in Europe, and the one Spaniard of international repute. Needless to say, he was unsuccessful in Spain.

The London Chronicle is the one prominent English paper which sides against Canada in the Alaskan boundary dispute. The Chronicle bases its anti-Canadian sentiment on a Washington dispatch which Premier Laurier yesterday stamped as a lie.

The suggestion was made in the House of Commons that Canadian fruit exported to England should be branded so as to detect and prevent fraudulent shipments. The shipper who exports bad or inferior fruit to England brings the whole Canadian trade into disrepute. He should be branded himself.

Mr. Smalley, the United States correspondent of the London Times, who is trying to prejudice Canada's claims in the Alaskan boundary question, is an American, who migrated to England years ago, as the London correspondent of the New York Tribune. He secured the entire to the best society, and became more British than the Britons. American newspapers dubbed him Squire Smalley, in derision of his aristocratic airs. Lately he returned to the United States, to act for the London Times. He is a man of much literary ability, but personally somewhat of a cad. His attack on Canada is evidently inspired by a desire to curry favor with the Washington authorities, who are doubtless very useful to him as news strings.

Mr. Gage, American Secretary of the Treasury, announces that the United States will not touch bonding privileges in retaliation for Canada's timber law. The news will be heard here with relief. Canada has no wish to see injury deliberately inflicted on American interests. That would be the effect of American interference with the bonding privilege.

No government or people have devoted themselves with greater ardor to the study and theory of arbitration than the government and people of the United States—London Times.

For instance, the rejection by the American Senate of the arbitration treaty with Great Britain, and the refusal of the American Government to arbitrate the Alaskan boundary question on the same line as the Venezuelan embroglio. Our neighbors may be great on the study and theory of arbitration, but when it comes to the practice—well, that's another story, as Kipling says.

What Others Say.

The Bank Robberies.

[Washington Star.]

Cracksmen from the United States are said to be robbing banks in Canada. The British Government will hardly suspect the people over here of taking any such underhand methods of getting back a few of the big deposits made by absconding cashiers in days gone by.

Spoiled or Despoiled.

[Hamilton Herald.]

In the States, Canada is being called "the spoiled child of the British empire." We don't know about that, but we do know that Canada has in the past been the despoiled child of the empire, and that she has been despoiled by American diplomats and government of British statesmen. But that time has passed, never to return.

Hamilton Statesmen in Danger.

[Hamilton Times.]

Such is the force of example. Last night Hon. A. S. Hardy, right before a room full of people in Berlin, kissed Miss Imgard Bitzer, a pretty little German maid, who had presented him with a bouquet of roses. "That comes of watching Sir Wilfrid Laurier's osculatory performances in public. We do hope the little girls will not tempt Henry Carscallen, or E. A. Colquhoun, or John Dickinson, with roses, for Hamilton has a horror of Hobsonizing."

Sara as Hamlet.

[Boston Herald.]

Bernhardt's Hamlet has got an advertisement she scarcely expected; but one admirer, at least, is rejoiced to learn from the Catulle Mendes duel that she has not become as stout as has been represented. "Bernhardt is form is peculiar, and when it was proposed she should play Hamlet one wondered how she would dispose of herself in tunic and hose. Never mind the 'lean shanks,' Sarah; they are millions better than the 'piano legs' of old age."

Songs of a Nation.

[Toronto Telegram.]

Any Canadian can be a patriot, but few Canadians can be poets. All the patriot needs is rich, red blood in his heart, but the poet must have rich, red ideas in his head. Patriotism is the fruit of impulse and conviction. Poetry is the flower of inspiration. No country can reap more than one really good national song from every two or three centuries on glorious history.

Canada is called upon to float to her glorious destiny a never-failing stream of rhyme, which is almost invariably shallow and often absurd.

A CONSERVATIVE EPITAPH.

A marble slab near the west door of the parish church at Tetbury, Gloucestershire, England, bears this inscription: "In a Vault underneath lie several of the Saunders late of this Parish. Particulars the last day will disclose. Amen."

SCREAMED WITH ECZEMA

Baby's Skin Red and Raw. Doctor's Medicine was Painful and Useless. A Stranger Advised CUTICURA. Cured in a Month, with Skin Smooth and Fair.

My little daughter, when six months old, broke out with Eczema. I took her to a doctor and he pronounced it "Moist Eczema," and prescribed for her. She screamed when I put the medicine on her, and I stopped using it. It was indeed very painful. Her skin was all red and raw, and moisture coming from it all the time. A perfect stranger to me advised me to use CUTICURA. I got CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA (ointment), and they entirely cured her within a month. She is twenty-three months old to-day, and her skin is like a piece of silk, and fair as a lily. Mrs. E. J. KANE, 515 Ohio Ave., Kansas City, Kan. Oct. 7, 1898.

PIMPLES CURED BY CUTICURA SOAP

I commenced to get pimples and blackheads when I was fifteen years old. My face was covered. I spent about ten dollars for soaps, medicine, etc., but they never did me any good. I used CUTICURA SOAP for two weeks, the pimples and blackheads began to disappear, and it only took three cakes of CUTICURA SOAP to cure my face of those homely pimples. JOSEPH B. CLAMER, Sept. 21, '98. 337 Court St., Elizabeth, N. J.

My face was covered with a pimply, ruptured, and itching skin. After using CUTICURA SOAP for six weeks, all the pimples went away, my skin getting as soft as velvet. E. CROME, 223 Malrose St., Chicago, Ill. Sept. 21, 1898.

Itching humors, torturing, disgusting eczemas, and every species of itching, burning, scaly, crusted, and pimply skin and scalp diseases, with dry, thin, and scaling hair, instantly relieved by using CUTICURA SOAP, gentle emollients with CUTICURA, purifier of excellent skin cure, and mild doses of CUTICURA. A SCORCHER AT ST. THOMAS

Departmental Store and Contents Destroyed.

Loss Placed at $110,000; Insurance About $95,000—Other Conflagrations.

St. Thomas, Ont., May 30.—Robertson, Lindsay & Company's establishment, one of the largest departmental stores in Western Ontario, was completely destroyed by fire last night. The building was one of the largest in the city, and comprised half a dozen stories. It was comparatively a new structure, being built two years ago, and situated in the center of the city, directly opposite the postoffice. The fire started on the third floor, in the tailor shop, at 11:15 p.m., and in a few minutes the whole structure was a mass of flames.

NOTHING SAVED.

The firemen were promptly on the scene, but their efforts were fruitless.

not a dollar's worth being saved, the walls alone standing. The stock was valued at $85,000, and the building at $25,000. Insurance on stock about $80,000, and on building $25,000. The names of the companies interested are not obtainable tonight.

The fire is a serious blow to the city of St. Thomas. The new metallic service of the Bell Telephone Company was also badly wrecked, seven large cables being broken and badly tangled up. Their loss is also heavy.

OTHER FIRES.

Bloomfield, May 30.—Isaac Wilson's barn was struck by lightning last night and entirely consumed, with contents. Loss about $2,000. Building and contents insured in the London Mutual.

Quebec, May 30.—At Etchemin some children started a fire which destroyed in three hours seven private residences, with their furniture and out-buildings, the whole valued at $10,000. There is only $3,000 insurance.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 30.—The Burnet House caught fire at 12:40. All the guests got out quietly and in safety. The fire made its way through the walls and ceilings, and eventually broke through the roof.

A POPULAR AFTER-DINNER RELISH.

A Long-Felt Want Filled by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

While Curing Advanced Stages of Dyspepsia a Tablet Taken After Dinner Is Accepted Gratefully by Even the Most Healthy Stomach.

We eat an awful lot of trash now—advertising—that is considering the use it is to our bodies when eaten. Think what a mixture has been sent down our throats at the end of an average good dinner.

The stomach has to separate the grain from the chaff, the blood-building parts from the utterly useless. And to its extreme vexation, no doubt, it finds after it has finished its work that the greater part of the material was utterly useless.

So the fact is that the stomach is greatly overworked. Now whether it has broken down yet or not Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will help it.

They assist in the digesting process. They help the stomach out with its work.

If you are troubled with the severe symptoms of Dyspepsia, viz., Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Foul Breath, Wind on the Stomach, Bilioousness, Water-brash, Heartburn, Catarrh of the stomach, Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will give your stomach a chance to take the time to cure itself.

That is the only way it can be done. If you starve yourself to rest your stomach, your starve your stomach also, for it needs nourishment like the rest of you.

If your stomach is still "game," but you know from experience to refrain from certain dainties, use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets after every meal and eat anything you like.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are 50 cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or will be sent, on receipt of price, by the Dodd's Medicine Company, Limited, Toronto.

WOULDN'T TAKE THE STREET CARS

Remarkable Scene Last Evening—The Rain Did Not Drive Business to the Company—Strong Test of Sympathy.

That was a curious and suggestive scene at the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets last evening.

At six o'clock the usual crowds poured out of the stores and factories, homeward bound. It was teeming rain—just such an occasion as ordinarily fills the street cars, until the conductors can hardly wedge through to collect the fares. It was a propitious hour for the street railway company. If ever people were tempted to ride, that was the time. The cars looked cosy and inviting, and it so happened there were plenty of them. But girls by the hundreds, most of them in light summer clothes, with no better shelter than umbrellas—most of them, too, doubtless tired with the day's work—trudged home in the rain, or stood at the Dundas and Richmond street corner waiting for the union busses. Meanwhile the regular cars went by them absolutely empty, save for an occasional passenger. The strikers could have reaped a harvest had they had more vehicles on the spot. The great majority of people were desirous of accommodation in the busses, and preferred to walk rather than take the cars. In all, about ten busses left the corner between 6 and 6:15 p.m., and every one was packed beyond the dreams of a street railway magnate. Once a car and a bus met at the corner, the car was a mere speck in the South London reached the southwest corner at the same moment. The contrast was amusing and dramatic. The scores who were waiting charged in a solid phalanx on the bus, and in a few seconds it was so full that the people were sitting on the seats, on the floor, a few feet away stood the empty trolley car. The motorman sounded his gong with great energy, but failed to lure those who couldn't get into the bus. They simply walked away, laughing at the crowded bus and the desolate car moved off simultaneously. Altogether it was an impressive object lesson, showing the degree of public sympathy with the employees.

ALLEGED CHICKEN THIEF CAPTURED.

Detective Ward yesterday arrested Edward Smith, who, it is believed, is one of a gang of chicken thieves at whose hands Westminster poultry houses have suffered severely for some time past. The arrest was cleverly accomplished. On May 23 Mr. Robert Nichol, con. 5, Westminster, complained to the detective of the loss of thirty chickens and two turkeys. After working on the case, the detective decided to search the premises of Adam Phair, Ridout street south, where Smith lived. Nothing was found. Then Smith was smart. He volunteered to take the searchers to the residence of Mr. Goldstick, to whom he had sold some chickens. There were some fowls there, but they were not the missing ones. On Saturday Mr. John Mills, another Westminster farmer, complained of losing some fowl, and yesterday Councilor Hardy Shore reported missing twelve Silver Dorkings. Detective Ward remembered that the fowl Smith had sold to Goldstick were Silver Dorkings, and the rest was easy. Squire Lacey remanded Smith until Saturday.

A SUPPOSED FRIEND

Gave Him a Case of Rheumatism.

"I have been in the habit for many years of drinking strong coffee twice a day without sugar or milk, hoping by that means to moderate the effects upon my nervous system. I never suspected the coffee habit had anything to do with my rheumatism, which was so bad that I was unable to get about without crutches at times."

"About a year and a half ago I stopped drinking coffee and took Postum Food Coffee, and after a few failures because of improper cooking, finally had it made strictly according to directions (which is easy), and found it of such charming flavor that I have kept up its use ever since."

"Strange as it may appear, the rheumatism disappeared entirely, and I have not had a single attack since. Moreover, my family have all taken some good substantial flesh, so that we feel Postum is not only a delicious drink in the taste, but that we are living evidences of its healthful properties."

"The preparation of any sort of food or drink is an important, essential part. I find that many people who have tried Postum go at the preparation in a careless way, that is to say, they put it on the stove and let it stand a few minutes, and think it should be done. We put Postum in cold water. It takes about fifteen minutes before it begins to boil, then we allow it to actually boil fifteen minutes, which, as you say, brings out the delicious flavor and good food value."

"Mr. and Mrs. Miller, of this city, are using Postum right along. Mrs. Miller has been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, had to give up coffee entirely, and that account. She enjoys good health now, since using Postum Food Coffee."

"Mr. and Mrs. Hervey, of Auburn, were troubled in the same way, and have been cured by Postum. Say they never were so well."

TENTED TOWN ON THE HEIGHTS

Wet Weather Delayed Things Somewhat and Work Is Being Rushed.

Cross Country Marches May Be a Feature of the Drill This Year.

Lieutenant-Colonel Holmes Will Be Acting Assistant Adjutant-General and Chief of Staff—The Duties of Officers and Men.

Within the last few hours a marked transformation has taken place on Carling's Heights, and the luxuriantly green pasture has given way to a tented city. The canvas extends from the barracks fence east along the northern extremity at Oxford street, and continues to the easterly limits, then south to the brow of the hill. This for the next twelve days will be the bivouac of over 3,000 of the Canadian infantry and cavalry.

Major-General Hutton, the commander-in-chief of the Canadian forces, will take command of the camp, and will be assisted by Lieut.-Col. Holmes, D. C. O., who takes the place of Col. Aylmer, assistant agent-general, and chief of the staff. Col. Aylmer's call to England has changed things in other respects. Col. Gordon, of Montreal, D. O. C. of District No. 5, will officiate as brigadier, Lieut.-Col. Buchanan assisting. The wet weather threw things behind a little yesterday, but there was considerable hustling this morning to make up for it. This camp will, in many respects, differ from its predecessors, and as the general believes in practical service, the men will not be surprised at movement. There will be two days' tactical drill, and this may possibly be put in in route marches across country.

The regulations governing this camp are about the same as last year. A non-commissioned officer and two men will be selected from each brigade to act as camp police, being under the command of the brigade major.

DUTIES.

A field officer and a captain will be detailed for duty daily in each brigade, and a captain or subaltern in each corps. A band will be detailed daily to play at reveille, retreat and tattoo, playing a quickstep on each occasion. At tattoo it will play on the parade ground until last post, finishing with the "National Anthem."

There will be a brigade main guard, furnished daily by corps, in rotation, to consist of 1 sergeant, 1 corporal, 1 bugler and 6 privates. This guard will mount daily at "brigade guard-mounting," and be inspected by the brigade major and handed over to the field officer of the day. All regimental guards and inlying pickets will parade at the same time and place, and after inspection will be marched off to their respective duties by the field officer of the day. Inlying picket will be furnished daily by each brigade as required. Pickets should consist of an entire company, including officers and non-commissioned officers. It will parade in drill order with side-arms at retreat, and remain on duty 24 hours. The men comprising it will attend all parades. Patrols will be detailed by the field officer from the inlying picket for the assistance of the military police. Medical and veterinary officers will not leave camp during drill hours.

CANTEENS.

The canteen will be under brigade control, and visited regularly by the field officer of the day, who will report upon its condition and management; if necessary, this officer must not scruple to close the canteen at once. It will be open from 7 to 7:30 a.m., from noon till 1:30 p.m., and from 4:30 to 9:30 p.m. Any abuse of privilege will be considered a disciplinary reason for the close of the canteen.

RATIONS.

Camp Quartermaster Galloway had the rations in readiness early today. The beef is supplied by Lockyer & Connor, at 7 1/2 cents per pound, and mutton at 6 1/2 cents. The Parnell-Dean Baking Company provides the bread at 1 1/2 cents per pound, and J. C. Treblelock receives 1 cent a pound for potatoes, and 2 cents for groceries, consisting of pepper, barley, cheese, rice, salt, etc. The wood is being furnished by W. Heaman at 4 1/2 cents per cord. J. B. Smythe provides the forage at 22 cents per ration.

MUSKETRY.

At target practice all scoring papers must be collected by the captain before his company leaves the ranges, and submitted to the musketry instructor for inspection, who, if they are found correct, will initial them and return them to the captain, who will, within 24 hours after the practice, send them, together with the target practice return, correctly made up, to the musketry instructor, who will be held responsible for its correctness. Officers responsible musketry certificates will be detailed daily to assist the instructor of musketry. Corps will be detailed in orders for target practice, and their whole strength must be struck off all duties till the practice is completed.

DRILLS.

Battalions will fall in for all regimental parades in accordance with the Infantry Drill, 1895, Part II, 58. The sections of Infantry Drill and the description of instructions to be carried out daily will be named in the orders of the previous day in accordance with a pre-determined syllabus. One coolie and one orderly man—men reported by the surgeons as fit for light duty, only being detailed for the latter purpose—will be allowed per company; all others (with the exception of field officers) will be required to bring up batmen, when in hospital, will be on parade.

DRESS.

The dress and conduct of all ranks must be such as to command respect for the militia force generally, and for non-commissioned officers and men going out of camp must be properly dressed. The picket and camp police are charged with the duty of enforcing these regulations. Forage caps will be worn at early morning parades and in "walking out," except on Sundays. Helmets may be worn on forenoon and afternoon parades and on Sundays. On parades and duties the chin straps will be worn down. Fatigue parties will be without waist-belts in no case will the wearing of plain clothes, either wholly or in part, be permitted. Corps in proceeding to and returning from camp will appear in "marching order," in which the following articles will be worn: Bayonet, waist-belt and frog; ball-bag, haversack and great coat (strapped), with mess tin attached. The ball-bag should be worn behind in the middle of the back, and will be required at all parades in which the rifle is used. Officers wear swords on all duties, and on all parades with arms. The hair must be cut short, and beard, when worn, neatly trimmed. The camp bounds will be arranged locally, and communicated to all non-commissioned officers and men must be properly dressed, and the men in possession of a pass.

SALUTING.

The major-general commanding desires to impress most strongly upon all ranks of the Canadian forces the importance of insisting upon and carefully carrying out the instructions laid down for non-commissioned officers and private soldiers of the British army saluting their officers, and for officers saluting their officers, and for the salute is the outward and visible sign of that discipline and respect for authority which must be the foundation stone of any army which lays claim to efficiency as a fighting force. Non-commissioned officers and private soldiers, in rendering this mark of respect to those holding her majesty's commissions as officers, do so as a token that they recognize the allegiance and the subordination to military discipline which is their proud privilege as soldiers of the empire. Equally officers will be particularly careful to return salutes to the non-commissioned officers and men, bearing in mind that these marks of respect are made to them in their capacity as officers upon whom has devolved the responsibility of command.

CARE OF CAMP LINES—RESPONSIBILITY OF REGIMENTS.

In order to minimize and to obviate, as far as possible, the necessity for brigade fatigue, certain specified areas will be allotted to each regiment in the brigade. These areas, in addition to the regimental lines, will be kept scrupulously clean, and the brigadier or other officer commanding will hold each commanding officer responsible both for the area allotted to him as well as for his actual camping ground. This principle will be also carried out by each regiment. Each company or squadron will, therefore, be allotted a specified area, officers commanding them will be responsible for the smartness and cleanliness of the same. The importance of the lines being kept the great importance of the lines being kept not only neat and clean, but smart. Nothing, in his opinion, conduces so much to the discipline, as well as to the comfort of the men, as clean, neat and smartly kept lines. The flank pegs of each regimental camp will be kept whitewashed, also the two pegs on either side of each tent door. Pegs must, in all cases, be carefully dressed. The lines of each corps must be distinctly marked with regulation camp colors, and the tent of each commanding officer distinguished by a saluting color.

Quartermasters will be responsible to their commanding officers that the orders for the constant cleanliness of their respective regimental lines are carried out. The major-general has the strongest views as to the importance among soldiers of extreme pains and trouble being taken in connection with the soldier's food and the cooking of his rations. The company cooking places will be concentrated in the place most suitable for the whole camp. In each corps specially selected sergeant will be detailed as sergeant-cook, who is to supervise the cooking generally and be responsible for the order, cleanliness, and regularity of the company cooks. On the camp breaking up, commanding officers are held responsible that all latrines, kitchens, camp ovens, refuse pits and tent trenches are filled, and all the refuse buried in the ground being left perfectly clean and tidy.

MEDICAL REGULATIONS.

A station hospital will be established under the direction of the P. M. O., to which regimental medical officers will send all non-commissioned officers and men whom they consider to be medically unfit for duty, and there treated them. Its position will be indicated in the daytime by the flying of a white flag with red cross in center "Geneva Flag," and at night by a red light on same flagpole.

NOTES.

Hospital Sergt. Copeman returned to Wolseley Barracks yesterday after a four months' course at Aldershot, England. He looks well, and says he feels as well as he looks. At Aldershot, he says, there are about 30,000 or 35,000 men, some coming and going all the time. The death rate among soldiers at the military headquarters is one per day. Sergt. Copeman's many friends are pleased to see him back.

Sergt. Hendrie returned to London barracks yesterday. He took part in the staff ride from Hamilton to Niagara.
