

The Fire Fiend Invades Halls of the Vatican

Celebrated Treasures Were in Great Danger of Destruction.

Pope Pius Assists Firemen and Attendants to Fight Flames.

Unusual Situation Causes Entry Into Building of the Italian Officials.

Rome, Nov. 1. — Fire broke out at half-past eight this evening in that portion of the Vatican containing the hall of inscriptions, where the Pope gives his audiences and which is adjacent to the famous pinacoteca or gallery of pictures. The alarm caused much confusion and excitement in the Vatican. Strenuous efforts were made to control the flames and the firemen of Rome were called to lend their help.

At a quarter past eleven the fire was under control. No lives were lost. No idea of the damage can yet be obtained. The Pope came to the scene in

The fire caused a greater sensation in Rome than has any other event since the death of Pope Leo. Fires in Rome are exceptional because of the heavy stone and bracken of the buildings. The safety of the Pope was the first thought, but this was soon abandoned. The Pope survived, at the

The first intimation of fire was heard when smoke was seen issuing from the apartment of M. Marie, a celebrated French restorer of ancient manuscripts and illuminated books, who was engaged in copying some of the

The gendarmes broke in the doors of M. Marie's apartment and found him in a heavy sleep. It is supposed he retired and forgot to take proper precautions with his kitchen fire, which ignited nearby hangings. Several alarms were sounded and much excitement among palace attaches followed. News of the fire was immediately comveyed to the Pope, who was four kneeling in his chapel for the evening prayer. He insisted upon going at once to the scene of the fire, notwithstanding the fact that he was begged to think first of his own safety. He proceeded to the fire and grasped the gravity of the situation. He considered that the firemen of Rome called. Although the firemen responded promptly, it took them some time to find the best means of securing a water supply, and the flames were attacking the roof before the firemen got to work. The flames lighted up the entire sky and gave the impression that nothing could stop them. When the firemen began working three roof were entirely destroyed. The Pope withdrew as soon as he saw that everything possible was being done. Information had been sent to the Italian authorities, who hurried to Peter's. They were courteously invited to enter, and did so. Therefore for the first time since the fall of temporal power of the Vatican,

It was a very difficult fire to overcome. There were a number of old inflammable objects in the apartment of M. Marie, and the wooden roof of

FOOTBALL TEAM IN BAD WRECK

Players of Purdue College
Killed On Big Four Road.

SIXTEEN BODIES RECOVERED

Thirty-Three Passengers Seriously Injured—How the Accident Occurred.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 2.—Following is the list of dead in the Big Four railway accident: Charles Grube, of Butler, Indiana, substitute; Charles Furr, Veedsburg, Ind., guard; E. C. Robertson, Indianapolis, assistant coach and former captain; Walter L. Roush, Pittsburgh, Pa., substitute; R. J. Powell, Corpus Christi, Texas, end; W. D. Hamilton, Lafayette, center; Gabriel S. Drollinger, Lafayette, Ind., substitute; Samuel Squibb, Lawrenceburg, Ind., substitute; Jay Hamilton, Huntington, Ind., substitute; K. R. Howard, Lafayette, Ind.; Bert Price, Spencer, Ind., substitute; J. C. Coats, Berwin, Pa.

WRECKAGE CAUGHT FIRE

To add to the horror the wreckage caught fire, but the flames were extinguished by the students after a hard fight. There were many miraculous escapes and thrilling experiences. The injured are in at least twenty cases in very serious condition. A dozen or more have broken bones, and in several cases there are compound fractures of two limbs, and the death list is expected to grow to at least twenty.

While the work of rescue was going on there arrived in the city over twenty cheering followers of Indiana University at Bloomington. News of the wreck turned all to sympathy, and many went to the scene of the disaster to render aid.

The special train bore the Lafayette rosters, numbering nearly 1,000. It consisted of twelve coaches and was running at the first station at about 10:30. At a gravel pit switch near Eighteenth street, a switch engine with a cut of coal cars, collided with the passenger. The passenger engine and the first three coaches were almost totally destroyed. The first coach was crushed and splintered, the second telescoped and thrown down an embankment fifteen feet high, while the third coach was thrown across the track. There is confusion as to what caused the accident, each engineer insisting that he had the track and did not know of the other train. A committee of inquiry is being organized, and a full report will be made clear of the track. The crash of the two trains threw the coal cars through the first two coaches, in which were many of the players and substitutes. The engine, two coal cars and two coaches were crushed into a confused mass of wreckage. Under this pile of debris were fifty or more students of the university.

The dead were carried away as fast as they could be taken from the wreck. The last bodies taken were those of W. M. Grube, of Butler, Ind., and Walter Furr, of Corpus Christi, Tex. Their mangled bodies were carried under the overturned tender, crushed almost beyond recognition. The work of rescuing these bodies required the combined work of the wrecking crew and many of the city firemen and policemen. The tender was buried with jacks, and the bodies were drawn out. The body of Gabriel S. Drollinger was found almost beheaded under the wreckage of the first coach. It was rescued with difficulty, owing to the danger of the debris falling over.

GIRL RESCUERS

The scenes following the rescue of the dead and injured were distressing. Strong men wept and cried when they looked upon the faces of their dead playmates or at the suffering of their classmates and fraternity brothers. Here and there someone would stoop and lift from the face of one of the dead a handkerchief or piece of garment that had been placed over the features by a friend. Many of the girls rolled their sleeves and knelt by the side of the stricken men and bathed their wounds until the services of a surgeon could be secured. All the young men killed were in the first coach. They were found lying tangled and bleeding with their limbs pinned against the sides. The coach held about seventy persons. Several of the suffering fellows pitifully pleaded that their names be not published, because of the anguish it would cause their mothers and fathers.

Three miles away twelve hundred cheering students arrived on a special train from Bloomington, Ind., with the Indiana University eleven eager for the contest on the gridiron. They poured out of the train with band playing and colors flying, to be met with the news of the tragedy to their rivals from Purdue. Instantly the bands played, colors lowered and hidden beneath coats. Tears followed laughter, and college yells faded into mournful expressions of sincere, heartfelt sympathy. The proposed game has been indefinitely postponed.

CHAMPION INJURED

World's Greatest Motorist in Smash-Up at Brighton.

New York, Nov. 2.—Hurled from a racing motor car going at something approaching approximately a mile a minute, Albert Champion, the world's champion motor cyclist, was seriously injured at the second annual speed meeting of the Long Island Automobile Club at the Brighton Beach race track. The accident occurred in the first mile of pursuit race. The wheels skidded and the car swerved and plunged through the fence on the inside of the track. Champion was thrown 20 feet. When assistance reached him he was unconscious. His right arm was lacerated and almost torn from its socket. His head was cut and his right leg broken near the thigh by what appeared to be a compound fracture.

STRANGELY ACTING FACE

A Peculiar Case Decided by Philadelphia Jury.

Philadelphia, Nov. 2.—Twelve jurors unanimously decided Saturday in the criminal court that a man's face had deliberately bumped itself against another's fist.

Rhodes Shee, a brick manufacturer, is the owner of the strangely-acting face, and the possessor of the fist in the case is one Thomas F. Gegan. Shee, who had made a charge of assault and battery against Gegan, swore that the latter had visited him in his office and, after an argument over a contract, had struck him in the face.

Gegan told a story which made the jurymen laugh, and they decided that it was true.

"It was this way," he said. "Shee declared I was no good morally, mentally and physically, and in the excitement of the moment I raised my fist and held my arm out straight in front of me. And would you believe it? The first thing I knew Shee moved right forward and struck my face against it. It was the strangest thing I've ever seen."

Shee thought the same thing about the verdict.

MANUFACTURERS ENDORSE POLICY

Canadian Association Approve of Toronto Resolution Sent Chamberlain.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—In an interview with Mr. W. K. McNaught, chairman of the tariff committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, it was learned that the manufacturers are heartily in accord with the resolution passed at the board of trade meeting Friday night, supporting Mr. Chamberlain's policy, though they did not agree with certain reasons given in favor of it by some of the speakers.

Mr. McNaught said: "One speaker proposed free trade within the empire; another a uniform tariff within the empire. Both propositions are one of the question, for whatever happens Canada must retain control of her own tariff, and any tariff arrangement between Great Britain and Canada must be in the nature of a bargain.

"The resolution passed Friday night is, however, along the lines of those of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and will greatly strengthen Mr. Chamberlain's hands at this time. I believe Mr. Chamberlain was misunderstood in the cables containing his reference to 'secondary industries.' I have definite information that it was not his intention that Canada should be hindered from developing whatever industries could be operated in this country with a fair prospect of success. His policy, I think, agrees with ours, which is that Canada's first duty is to herself, and afterwards to the empire. We can help Great Britain greatly by raising the tariff against foreign countries, and thus permit Great Britain to secure a larger portion of the trade now done by those countries. It is entirely a matter of adjustment, and I believe a tariff as high as that proposed by Mr. Chamberlain can be arranged which will be of great advantage to both countries, and no material advantage to either."

A DISCIPLE OF TOLSTOI

To Seek Election to British House of Commons.

London, Nov. 2.—Stewart Gray, a disciple of Tolstoi, independent candidate for Parliament from Tunbridge, has become the most picturesque figure in the political campaign in England. Gray practices Tolstoi's preachings. In the first meeting in the town hall of Tunbridge Wells he wore a potato sack instead of an overcoat. Gray dispensed with the usual formalities of selecting a chairman to preside over the meeting and placed a British flag in the chair. Gray's political platform is "The Land for the People." He advises the adoption of the obstructive tactics of the Irish parliamentarians in order to compel Premier Balfour to resign.

Gray is educated and well to do. He lives in the manner advocated by Tolstoi and earns his daily bread as a farm laborer. He lives in an abandoned hut near Tunbridge Wells. After his day's work on the farm, he spends the evening lecturing and procuring converts. The hut he inhabits contains nothing but a wash stand, a cot and a bookcase. Gray declares he needs only enough to obtain food for himself and share with the waifs whom he always befriends. His mission in life is to better the welfare of the "People," whom he asserts have been defrauded of the land by unjust land laws. Gray does not anticipate election.

RUSSIAN TROOPS SEIZE MUKDEN

Chinese Treaty Port in Possession of 1,000 Soldiers.

CHINA APPEALS TO POWERS

For Advice as to How to Act—Significant Movement of Viceroy Alexieff.

Peking, Nov. 2.—The Japanese Consul at New Chwang reports that the Russians have reoccupied Mukden with 500 soldiers. This apparently confirms a previous report from St. Petersburg. The Chinese Government is greatly disturbed at the reoccupation of Mukden, the capital of Manchuria, by Russian troops. The foreign office is appealing to friendly foreign legations for help and advice, admitting its own helplessness in the matter. According to advice received by the Chinese Government, 1,100 Russian soldiers took possession of the official buildings, barricaded the gates and evicted the Chinese officials. There are between ten and twenty thousand Chinese troops in the vicinity of Mukden, but the Chinese commanders in Manchuria have been given imperative orders in no wise to resist the Russian Government, and to use every effort to avert collisions. The circumstances leading to the reoccupation of Mukden are as follows: The Russians employed a noted brigand, who was accused of many crimes against the Chinese, as chief of one of the irregular bands of police they are organizing in Manchuria. The Chinese authorities repeatedly requested the surrender of this man, and the Russians recently consented to give him up. Thereupon a Chinese officer decapitated the brigand without giving him a trial. When this became known the Russians demanded the execution of this officer within five days, giving as an alternative the seizure of Mukden. The Chinese foreign office, questioned by Paul Lessar, the Russian minister, on the matter, and refused to banish the officer in question, advising that he had exceeded his instructions, and to remove the total, his superior, from office. There was a misunderstanding as to the time limit set for these negotiations; the Chinese thought it expired yesterday. Before the negotiations were completed the news was received that Russia had fulfilled her threat to reoccupy Mukden.

The fact that Viceroy Alexieff has removed his headquarters from Peking to Vladivostok has caused great surprise in Peking. It is generally conjectured that he was unwilling to risk passing the winter at a port which the Japanese undoubtedly would make a strenuous attempt to blockade in the event of war, thereby preventing the viceroy from communicating with his government.

HAS LORD "BOBS" RESIGNED OFFICE?

Rumor Says He Has Decided to Retire From Active Service.

London, Nov. 2.—There is a report in the military clubs that Lord Roberts has tendered his resignation as commander-in-chief of the British army. Lord Roberts had an interview with the King during the week and it is supposed he discussed his resignation with his majesty. The resignation of affairs of the war office. Lord Roberts is not unwilling to resign, for it is said he realizes he is too old to undertake the task of introducing and administering the many reforms proposed in the war office. Lord Roberts after his retirement will visit the United States.

EDWARD THE EDITOR

His Majesty Corrects Proofs of Book of Travel.

London, Nov. 2.—King Edward is nothing if not versatile, and his latest role is that of an editor. For probably the first time in his life he has read and corrected the proofs and supervised the making of a book. It gives a history of his majesty's recent visit to Portugal, Malta, Italy and France, the story of the royal tour having been written by the Hon. Charles Harding, who accompanied the King as minister plenipotentiary. The book will constitute a valuable piece of contemporary history, as it will contain official accounts of the meetings between King Edward and the Kings of Italy and Portugal and the President of the French Republic.

Pictorially it will be an interesting souvenir of his majesty's tour. Snapshots of the King and his hosts have been beautifully reproduced by the colotype process, and in addition there are other photographs in ordinary half-tone and four original drawings by the Chevalier de Martino, the King's marine painter, who accompanied him on the tour. A limited edition of this important work is to be placed upon the market, and sumptuously bound copies are to be presented to the King and Queen, Princess Victoria and the Prince of Wales, while a number of copies will be placed at the King's disposal, and will probably be sent as souvenirs to his friends, including the Kings of Italy and Portugal and President Loubet.

As an editor the King exercised great care: material changes were made in that part of the book dealing with the visit to Italy, his majesty striking out certain features which did not appear to him to be necessary.

THE NEW YORK ELECTIONS

McLellan Is Favorite in the Big Fight for Mayor.

New York, Nov. 2.—The most remarkable campaign in the history of the city practically came to a close tonight, with both the Democrats and Fusionists claiming the victory. There will be closing rallies Monday night and some meetings in the theaters tonight, but the lines now are drawn and it is all over but the voting. The practical politician on both sides will devote their time from now until Tuesday night to getting their voters to the polls and strengthening up weak places in their lines.

While both sides are claiming victory, to an impartial observer the chances of McLellan seem to be the best. The whole tenor of the Democratic campaign has been to draw party lines and to impress upon the voters the importance of a Democratic victory in New York on the eve of a presidential election. In what measure they have succeeded in this will develop when the voters are counted Tuesday night. The impression prevails outside of partisan circles that the party cry has been sufficiently effective to carry McLellan in by a safe margin.

U. S. WILL TRY TO ENFORCE TREATY

The Republic Preparing to Take a Firm Stand With Russia.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—The simple order that the collier Pompey will proceed from Manila to Niu Chwang reveals the fact that the United States Government has taken initial steps to enforce the treaty with Russia that there shall be two open ports in Manchuria for the United States. Since the treaty was made for these open ports the state department has been unable to secure the possibility that Russia would not keep its word and the administration has been trying to devise some plans to hold the government of the czar to its contract.

The fact that a collier was ordered to that point exacts comment at the state department today and investigation showed that she would be followed by the collier Helena, which vessel would go to Mukden for the winter, she being of light draft and able to navigate the stream to that point. The Pompey will unload coal at a point convenient for the Helena when she goes into winter quarters. It is expected that the government should Russia attempt to back out of her obligations after the treaty has been ratified by the United States senate.

The presence of the Helena in Russian territory is looked upon by certain officials as likely to cause some feeling with the troops of the czar and there is a possibility of a repetition of the incident which occurred at the jacks of this country and Russian troops which occurred several years ago when the gunboat Vicksburg was in Chinese waters.

ELECTRICITY RAMPANT

Ties Up Telegraph in England, Italy and Maine.

London, Nov. 2.—The most severe electrical storm of many years crippled telegraphic communication throughout the United Kingdom Saturday. The storm shows no sign of abating. Telegraphic communication between France and the remainder of Europe and America was almost suspended throughout the entire day in consequence of an electrical disturbance which seemed to be general. It is attributed to seismic movements and atmospheric phenomena, regarding which nothing definite is ascertainable. In conversation with a local financier on Saturday, a reporter learned that the Grand Trunk had a clientele in England, fully sufficient to back up the enterprise, and it was from this source the funds would be supplied. By the terms of the contract with the Government a deposit of $5,000,000 has to be forthcoming by Nov. 27, and this is already arranged for. The Canadian banks stand to be entrusted with financing the enterprise are the Bank of Commerce and Toronto, who in turn will operate through their British agents. It is thought that British financiers would want further incentive to supply the necessary funds than the high opinion now held of the stability of Canadian propositions.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 2.—The electric storm which caused considerable trouble on the telegraphic lines in New England during the early morning hours Saturday was still in evidence Saturday night, especially on the lines to the north of this city. Reports indicate that the wires in the Maritime Provinces are in bad shape.

THE G. T. PACIFIC FUNDS

English Capitalists Thought To Be Backing Construction.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—It is said that the first step in the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific is reported to have been accomplished by the initial subscription of $5,000,000 as an earnest of the underwriting of sufficient securities to complete the construction of the western section of this large enterprise. In conversation with a local financier on Saturday, a reporter learned that the Grand Trunk had a clientele in England, fully sufficient to back up the enterprise, and it was from this source the funds would be supplied. By the terms of the contract with the Government a deposit of $5,000,000 has to be forthcoming by Nov. 27, and this is already arranged for. CANADA NO CHILD

Saturday Review Calls Down the English Press.

London, Nov. 2.—The Saturday Review says: "We are amazed, though if we were Canadians we might be annoyed, at the smug, patronizing way almost every newspaper in the kingdom is telling Canada, as though she were a child, not to mind the Alaska boundary decision. A smack on the face is a fitting answer for such sublime impudence in journalists thus addressing a great nation. It is really amazing. Canada is to be resigned because her loss has removed a cause of friction between the United States and the empire. Were a question of Canada herself belonging to the United States, we doubtless would have intrusted it to a commission, and Canada being awarded to the United States, the Times would still be congratulating itself upon the fact that a great cause of friction with the United States had been removed."

A Preference for South Africa.

The Canadian Government has offered a tariff preference of 23.13 per cent to British South Africa, if the South African customs union will extend to Canadian imports the preference which it has already granted the mother country. The action of the Dominion Government is a development of the imperial principle of the Canadian fiscal system. When the Government incorporated the British preference in the Canadian tariff it opened an epoch in the history of the empire. Events have marched more rapidly than any one could have foreseen at that time. Canada precipitated the present campaign in Great Britain. The extension of a tariff preference to Great Britain by the new South African customs union was directly inspired by Canada's example. The movement in Australia and New Zealand toward the favored treatment of the mother country in tariff arrangements also received its impulse from this country. If imperial preferential trade is to be realized, as appears likely, Canada will have been the pioneer.

The Dominion Government has already subsidized a steamship service between Canadian and South African ports, and placed Canadian producers in a position to cultivate the South African market. Canadian exports last year to South Africa were only $11,458, but there is room for a great increase. Cape Colony imported in the first seven months of last year 1911, 600 worth of grain; in the same period of this year, $1,818,000 worth. Provisions, including butter, cheese, meats, etc., $2,071,000 in 1902, $2,788,000 in 1903. Metal manufactures, $1,635,000 in 1902, $2,412,000 in 1903. Agricultural implements, $60,000 in 1902, $217,000 in 1903. Wood and wood manufactures, including furniture, $207,000 in 1902, $1,233,000 in 1903. Wearing apparel, $46,000 in 1902, $1,103,000 in 1903. The exports from Cape Colony were chiefly in gold, diamonds, ostrich feathers and articles which Canada must import. A tariff preference ought to stimulate the growth of commerce between the two countries.

Mr. Chamberlain Sees New Light

Mr. Chamberlain was guilty of an amazing blunder in his Glasgow speech when he suggested that the colonies should undertake not to establish new secondary industries, but should leave to the mother country a monopoly of those industries which she possessed and which they did not possess. Mr. Chamberlain, however, is not above correcting his own mistakes. In revising his Glasgow speech for distribution he has deleted the passage alluded to. His excuse is that it was misinterpreted. At any rate it created an unfavorable impression in the colonies, as it implied a sacrifice of their fiscal and industrial independence. Canadians will never agree to a policy which ties their hands. Any tariff arrangement with the mother country and the sister colonies must be a provisional one, each party retaining the right to revise it or withdraw from it. It will be introduced and maintained by concurrent legislation. The only system under which an empire of self-governing units can be held together is by allowing each unit the utmost liberty of action. Canada must be free to regulate her own fiscal policy as she pleases. She may assent to certain modifications in return for favors from other portions of the empire, but she will do so voluntarily, believing it to be for her own advantage. If she ceases to think it is for her welfare, she must have the right to cancel the arrangement or demand a change. Any scheme of imperial preferential trade must stand on its merits. If experience should prove it to be mutually advantageous no colony will wish to withdraw from its benefits. But no colony can be coerced, as the colonies were once coerced, into any fiscal system.

Who Struck Lord Alverstone?

[Extracts from the debate on the Alaska boundary award in the House of Commons, Oct. 25.]

Mr. Borden thought the Canadian case was not so ridiculous and absurd as his hon. friend (Mr. Bourassa) tried to make out. The latter's argument placed Mr. Aylesworth and Sir Louis Jetté, both leaders of the Canadian bar, in an extraordinary position. It was hardly possible that the boundary line would pass in the circuitous way prescribed between Wales and Sitkan Islands. Why did the Government enter into such an arrangement as they had for the settlement of the Alaska boundary, when the Prime Minister had given an undertaking that the attitude taken by the joint high commission would be persisted in? Had the Government insisted on the appointment of three Canadian commissioners upon the Alaska tribunal there was not the slightest doubt that it would have been acceded to, and they would have been spared the condition of things which confronted them today. He would not question the ability of the United States commissioners, but two, if not three, of them had shown strong bias in favor of the American case before their appointment to the tribunal.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier—My honorable friend (Mr. Borden) stated in his opening remarks that it was not advisable at this time, nor have we the information which would enable us to comment upon the decision which has been given. But, later on in his remarks, my honorable friend stated that Canada would probably have had more justice if three Canadians had been appointed commissioners, rather than two commissioners and the Chief Justice of England. Perhaps my honorable friend is right; and perhaps in selecting the Chief Justice of England as a jurist of repute to pass upon this issue between the Canadian Government and people and the British crown on the one side and the United States on the other side, we made a mistake in confiding our interest to the highest expert in England. But, up to the present time, I fail to accept this decision. I do not come to such an opinion as that yet, and I will wait before I proceed as far as my honorable friend has gone in the expression of his opinion; I will wait until I have the reasoned opinion of the Chief Justice before launching against him such harsh language as my honorable friend has used.

Mr. Borden—I hope the Prime Minister will acquit me of using harsh language towards the Chief Justice. I said that, subject to the report of the opinion, which might modify my views, I could not at present comprehend the course of the line around these islands. And if my right honorable friend can comprehend it I shall be glad to hear his explanation.

The Prime Minister—But my honorable friend said also that we had made a mistake in not securing the appointment of three Canadians on this tribunal, that it would have done better, we should have had more justice, in that case, than we have had by the appointment of the Chief Justice of England. It is rather harsh to suppose that the Chief Justice of England had not treated us as justly as a Canadian would have done.

Mr. Gourley—Does not the right honorable gentleman's language seem harsh with respect to Canadians who decided differently from the Chief Justice?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier—I pass no opinion upon the decision, but I say there is an implication in the language of my honorable friend (Mr. Borden) when he says that three Canadians had given an opinion which would not have been given by a Canadian had a Canadian been in his place.

Senator Lodge Thinks This is a Good Time to Talk Reciprocity with Canada.

This is doubtful, but there is one thing about a reciprocity treaty—Canada will have the whole say.

We were mistaken in saying Mr. A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., will be banqueting at the National Club tonight. His host is the Canadian Club. But the word Canadian is apparently as offensive to the toadies as the word National.

When others were talking about what they were going to do "after the holidays," in the matter of inter-switching, Mr. Hyman was doing things, and induced the Grand Trunk to withdraw its opposition to the scheme. Because he asks the board of trade to take a hand in it he is told by a contemporary that he ought to have done all the work himself. And if Mr. Hyman had not invited co-operation he would have been accused of trying to monopolize the credit.

So far no charge of treason has been laid at the door of Mr. Borden, leader of the Opposition. The extracts from the debate on the boundary award, given above, showed that he dared to criticize Lord Alverstone's finding. He also complained because a Britisher was allowed on the boundary commission. How shockingly disloyal if Sir Wilfrid Laurier had spoken to the same effect!

"An artistic swindle," is the name given by the receiver of the United States Shipbuilding Trust to the schemes of Charles M. Schwab and the other Napoleons of finance. He alleges that the figures published as the organization was effected by dummy stockholders and directors, and that the sale of securities was practically the obtaining of money under false pretenses, as the stock was largely wind and water. The moral seems to be that it is always safer to steal on a gigantic scale.

Sufficiency.

[Washington Star.]
The rich are getting richer,
Economists declare;
The poor are getting poorer,
Which is very far from fair.

But the man who does his duty
Throughout his whole life long,
Is sure to have enough to eat,
And time to sing a song.

The Taper's Song.

Leaves her times to fall,
And so have I.
The reason is the same with both—
It comes of getting dry.
But there is a difference
'Twixt leaves and me—
I often fall much harder
And much more frequently.

The Aylesworth Banquet.

[Toronto Star.]
The three hundred and fifty tickets for the Aylesworth banquet are all sold.

When Lord Alverstone reads this he will wipe his glasses, look again, and say, "Just fawncy!"

Squeezing Out the Water.

[Hamilton Times.]
The Canada Cycle and Motor Company is to do a big marketing down act. The stock consists of $5,000,000, one-half common and one-half preferred. The shareholders are to be asked to share out the common stock entirely and write the $3,000,000 preferred down to $600,000. From six millions to six hundred thousand is a pretty big reduction in the nominal wealth of the holders of the stock, and some of them may make very fat cats over the operation of reducing $10 to $1.

LYNCHHAUN SET FREE

U. S. Commissioner Decides His Offense Was Political.

Indianapolis, Nov. 2.—James Lynchhaun, the Irish refugee, who walked out of a British jail and was afterwards captured in Indianapolis and held for extradition, was released by Federal Commissioner Moore, of New York, on the view of the defense that the assault upon Agnes McDonald in Ireland, for which he was sentenced to imprisonment for life, was a political offense.

In 1894, according to Lynchhaun's testimony, the Irish Revolutionary Brotherhood of the Island of Achill decided to burn the barns of Agnes McDonald in order to frighten her back to England.

BOY RUNAWAY LOST

He Started to Walk From Montreal to New York.

Glebe Falls, N. Y., Nov. 2.—Geo. L. Yznaga, the 15-year-old son of J. M. Del Valle, Yznaga, of New York, ran away from a college in Montreal Friday a week ago and started on foot on his way to New York. About 11 a.m. the next Monday he reached Plattsburgh, footsore and weary.

From that city he sent two telegrams to his father at No. 1161 Amsterdam avenue, asking for money. He waited around the telephone office all day for answer, but none came. The manager advised him to seek shelter at the police station, but as the boy's eyes filled with tears the manager agreed to become responsible for his lodging and breakfast at a hotel.

Wednesday morning, no answer having yet come to his appeal for assistance, he renewed his journey on foot for the metropolis.

Thursday Chief of Police Libby, of Plattsburgh, received a letter from the father asking him to detain the boy, saying he had answered his son's message and asking for his address.

THE CONGO HORRORS

Presbyterian Missionary Scores King Leopold.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 2.—Dr. W. M. Morrison, for six years missionary for the Southern Presbyterian Church in the Congo Free State, in an address here last night, charged King Leopold of Belgium, who holds absolute sovereignty over the South African Colony, with the provisions of the international treaty regarding slavery. Native slaves who fail to bring in a certain amount of ivory are punished, he says, by death.

Dr. Morrison is a member of the committee which will meet in Washington on Tuesday to meet in person before the President and Secretary of State.

FELL INTO THE TRAP

London Police Prevented Swindle of Guileless Soldier.

London, Nov. 2.—A soldier named Wilson, an ex-sergeant-major in the South African Constabulary, was offered the management of a Canadian sheep ranch by a man named Miller, who said he was going to invest nine thousand pounds. He required a deposit as security, and Wilson, who had twelve pounds into dollar notes of a Canadian bank and agreed to forward the amount, was told by Miller that he was a good faith. The police, however, jumped in and the captives were remanded to Bow Street.

TO MARK NEW BOUNDARY

Great Britain and U. S. to Make an Early Survey.

Washington, Nov. 2.—John W. Foster, agent for the United States before the Alaska boundary commission, has arrived in Washington, bringing the official text of the commission's findings, and all the records of the American case. General Foster had an interview with Secretary Hay and an explanation of the actual results obtained at London, and later in the day dined with the President. Upon the delivery of the findings, together with General Foster's own report with a few days, Secretary Hay will enter into negotiations with the British Government for the appointment of expert surveyors to mark the lines of the boundary as they have been described by the commission.

Growing Children.

The weight of a growing child is the most important index to its general health. The standard weight for growing children, that usually given by authorities in the matter, is that at 5 years of age a child should weigh about as many pounds as it is inches high. As a rule this will not be much over or under 40 pounds. Children who come of large parents should weigh something more than that. The rate of increase should be about two pounds for every inch of growth. When a child is rather heavier in proportion to its height than this standard it is sign of something further. If the child is growing rapidly it should not be allowed to fall much below it without being made to rest more than has been the custom before. A deficiency of weight in proportion to height is always an unfavorable sign. Any interruption in the progress of increase of growth, must be a danger signal that should not be neglected.

FINGER IS ONLY WEAPON

Two Men Held Up by Man Who Was "Joking."

Chicago, Nov. 2.—A highwayman whose only weapon was an outstretched index finger, held up and robbed a bicyclist and a pedestrian in Cragin last evening, and then laughingly restored his booty to one, while the other fled and alarmed the police. Sergeant Richard Swan captured Frank Davis, who admitted the "crime." Davis is 34 years old and claims to be employed in the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad yards. "I did it just for fun," explained Davis. Richard Bevel and George Glock, the two men who were held up, finally concluded not to prosecute.

"BABY PARTY" PARIS FAD

The Latest Social Amusement Finds Much Favor.

Paris, Nov. 2.—The latest fad for the amusement of social gatherings in Paris is the "baby party." A man dressed in a baby cap and long apron, and furnished with a feeding bottle, which is advantageously milked with something stronger than milk, is faced by a woman disguised as a nurse, who proceeds to chide the naughty infant until he becomes good and is rewarded by a stick of barley sugar. The game affords much amusement to the onlookers and is much in favor.

To Sell Byron Relics.

London, Nov. 2.—In the process of winding up the estate of a lately deceased citizen of Nottingham, some unique Byron relics will shortly come under the hammer. One is the collar of the famous dog, Bowswallow. It is of brass and is engraved with the name of the late Hon. Lord Byron. There is also a cup of the dog, Thunder, which belonged to the poet.

Echo of Humbert Trial.

Paris, Nov. 2.—The ministry of justice has refused a request made by J. M. D'Aurignac, brother of Madame Humbert, for conditional release from prison. This action is taken presumably because D'Aurignac is jointly responsible for the $25,000 costs of the Humbert trial. He will, therefore, undergo imprisonment in default of payment.

Combes May Retire.

Paris, Nov. 2.—The Figaro this morning says: "The reason to believe that Premier Combes has quite determined to retire from office; but, being unwilling to do so, the passage of the budget, he will not resign until the Christmas holiday unless compelled to do so by an adverse vote of the majority."

THAMESFORD.

Thamesford, Nov. 2.—November in this locality has opened very fine, and should this weather continue even the most negligent farmer will have his work completed ere winter sets in.

J. M. Scott, principal of the school here, attended the teachers' convention on Thursday and Friday of last week. No. 1 found a great number of gates closed, and he was not allowed to enter. In this locality the mischief-makers started early in the evening. The assembly in the town hall on Oct. 30 was said by those who attended to be one of the best assemblies ever held in the village. About 40 couples were in the village. The music was furnished by the Italian harpers of the Forest City and was first-class. Mr. Blake, of White Oak, was floor manager. After singing a delightful evening hymn, the gathering broke up at 3 o'clock with the "Home Sweet Home" waltz, and "God Save the King." The Rebekas always have a good time.

Rev. Mr. Daunt, Church of England, was visiting at Mr. Matthew Combes last evening. He continued very energetic in spite of his advancing years. John Wreath, of the 12th line, East Street, held a very successful plowing match on the 27th inst. at the farm of A. A. Montague. About 27 teams were present.

Mr. Hugh Sharkey, of the Forest City, has disposed of the pacing mare, recently purchased from George Patterson, of the Elgin road, at an advance of $100. The mare was sold to James Keys and wife and sister-in-law were in the Forest City over Sunday, Nov. 1.

Mr. W. Meel, who recently sold his farm to Mr. John Wallace, of this village, is moving away to his farm at the village of the Forest City. Mr. James Shetsinger, collector of taxes for the township of East Norwich, was going his rounds last week. He certainly had a fine weather, if the taxes are a little high.

Provincial Appointments.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—Sir Adolphe Caron has been appointed a notary public for the Province of Ontario. A. S. Ball, of Woodstock, is appointed notary public for that city, to replace the late G. C. Field. Hugh McEwing is appointed police magistrate of the town of Palmerston.

Doctors and Advertising.

The tenacity with which the doctors have adhered to that particular tenet of their code of ethics which prevents them making known that they are professional men, and where and when they can be found should their services be needed, has resulted in a rich harvest for the charlatans who were not bound by that rule. The Kansas City Journal advertises in this and declares: "That the world does move is demonstrated in the action of the Virginia Medical Society, which, after long and prayerful consideration, has decided that physicians may place business cards and advertisements of private hospitals in the newspapers. In other words, the Virginia Medical Society, more progressive than most of its contemporaries, has come to the conclusion that its members are entitled to utilize the same methods of publicity that are enjoyed by all other business men—for the physician, in the end, is a business man, as much as the merchant or the banker or the lawyer. He has his skill for sale, and it is only the singular code known as medical ethics which debars him from acquainting the public with the fact. It is held that the moment he proclaims his capability that moment he becomes a charlatan, a mountebank, unworthy of confidence. In this way, conceding the ethical contention mentioned, the 'outlaws' of the medical profession have the very best field to themselves. They get the vast patronage which is attracted by newspaper advertising, while the strictly ethical physicians, in their offices and waiting for the people to find out their ability—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

KINGSMILL'S

Lord Alverstone replied. "I thought we had made it quite plain that we did not intend to sign a treaty of the course taken with regard to the islands in the preparations. The guest of the evening is expected to deliver a speech in accordance with the suggestions conveyed in the preparations. There will be two toasts, 'The King' and 'Our Guest.' President of the club, D. Bruce Macdonald, will introduce Mr. Aylesworth in a brief speech. The whole of the evening will be devoted to Mr. Aylesworth's reply."

HE WANTS RECIPROCITY

Senator Lodge Thinks It Should Be Discussed.

Boston, Nov. 2.—Senator Lodge, speaking at a Republican rally in this city said: "There has been a great deal said by the Democratic party about reciprocity with Canada. The one obstacle to the settlement of all questions with Canada has been the boundary of Alaska. It broke up the commission of 1896, and prevented any settlement. It has stood in the way of all future negotiations. That obstacle to negotiations with Canada, including many other subjects than reciprocity, is the boundary of Alaska. The field is open to the discussion of Canadian reciprocity."

THE BODY IDENTIFIED

It Was Found in the St. Clair Heavily Weighted.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 2.—Oct. 10 the body of a woman weighted with stones was found in the St. Clair River, with every indication of suicide. The remains of the woman were not identified, and the body was sent to Toronto. On Saturday Miss Fann's Hillier, a domestic in the employ of Prosecuting Attorney Cady, identified the clothing at Sarnia as that of her mother, Mrs. Geo. Hillier, of Cumber, Mich., who had been missing. Mrs. Hillier was partially deranged, and at one time was confined in an asylum. How she reached Sarnia is a mystery.

IS AN OFFICER OF THE LAW OF HEALTH?

When called in to attend a disturbance it searches out the hiding-place of pain, and like a guardian of the peace, lays hands upon it and says: "I arrest you." Resistance is useless, as the law of health imposes a sentence of perpetual banishment on a pain and Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil was originated to enforce that sentence.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN IS NO DICTATOR

His Proposal Is for Fair Exchange With Colonies.

CANADA TAKES FIRST STEP

Towards Imperial Federation, According to Sir Gilbert Parker—Colonial Premiers Agreed.

London, Oct. 31.—A significant omission is made in Mr. Chamberlain's revised edition of his Glasgow speech. The passage, in which he was thought to suggest that the colonies might agree to not start new industries, permitting British manufacturers to occupy the field, is entirely deleted. It is understood the omission was made not because Mr. Chamberlain changed his mind, but because the passage was entirely misinterpreted. Mr. Chamberlain's intention is that the whole preferential policy must be one for negotiation between the British and colonial ministers, in order to arrive at a fair give-and-take arrangement. The last thing he desired would be to attempt to dictate.

SOLVING EMPIRE'S PROBLEMS.
Sir Gilbert Parker, referring to the Canadian preference to South Africa, said: "We have heard for years about free trade within the empire, being the solution of imperial federation. Canada has taken the first step in that direction. She first solved the question of commercial union by removing provinces with conflicting tariff systems. Three years ago she attempted to secure a preferential tariff with Australia by sending Sir William Mulock there for that purpose. It failed for the moment, but that she is working in the right lines is evidenced by Premier Deakin's manifesto. Now she has turned to another quarter of the empire with a fresh effort. I am amazed that British newspapers have said nothing about the offer to South Africa. Frankly, I doubt if they grasp its tremendous significance. It makes one proud of his native land that in the progress of the empire she leads the van. Canada has often been an inspiration to the center. Earl Beauchamp said: 'Canada's step is of profound importance. As an ex-empire-general of New South Wales, I am deeply interested in every feature of the movement.'"

The Statist says: "Whether right or wrong, the colonial Premiers have all declared that only by preferential trade can the mother country and her daughter countries be drawn together. Men of common sense will recognize the authority with which the Premier speaks. One single Premier or two might be disregarded, but when all the Premiers are of the same opinion it is an exceedingly dangerous thing to say they will disregard it."

The speaker, commenting on Sir Robert Gifford's letter to the London Times, says there was one point he left untouched. There were two colonies of Canada and the colonies are given separate treatment in a blue book because they are the only self-governing colonies which have been admitted to the empire during the period referred to while Canada, the larger and more important of the two, has accorded a preference to Great Britain during the last few years.

The Saturday Review says Mr. Chamberlain must have been given private secretary, or perhaps the Chancellor of the Exchequer helps him with his speeches, for it is impossible that Mr. Chamberlain can have time to read the history he apparently knows. The same journal says Sir Wilfrid Laurier's demand for Canada if given could mean nothing less than a theoretic if not actual severance of the imperial bond.

G. H. KENT'S CASE AGAIN

He Was Cured of Bright's Disease in the Worst Form by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 2.—Deaths of prominent people in Bright's Disease have been so numerous during the past few months that the case of G. H. Kent is again talked of here. Mr. Kent, who lives at 408 Glenora street, this city, was dying of Bright's Disease. He had lost the use of his limbs and his whole body was swollen to a terrible extent. Three doctors were positive that he must die. While watching by his bedside his wife read that Dodd's Kidney Pills were sent for as a last resort. From almost the first dose, Mr. Kent says, he felt benefited by them. After taking four boxes he was able to sit up. Seventeen boxes cured him completely. He has been a healthy man ever since.

FIRE AT WINDSOR

It Does $10,000 Damage to the Flann Block.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 31.—Fire last night in the Mann block, Sandwich street, did damage to the amount of $10,000. The blaze broke out in the third story, supposedly from defective wiring, and destroyed the stock of wallpaper belonging to the hardware firm of James Nelson & Bros., which firm occupied the ground floor. The household goods of George Freeman, who lives on the second floor, were damaged to the extent of $300.

George Lodge's grocery stock, on part of the ground floor, was damaged $200, and the stock of James Nelson & Bros. suffered to the extent of $500. All fully insured. Frank Mann owns the block; his loss also is covered by insurance.

COUNTESS LONYAY DYING

And Her Father, King Leopold, Refuses to See Her.

Geneva, Nov. 2.—Countess Lonyay's condition remains grave. She is suffering from peritonitis in her abdomen. Three physicians and a Viennese specialist are in constant attendance. The countess' father, King Leopold, has been notified that the countess' condition is serious. Despite reports to the contrary, the King has made no inquiries about his daughter. Apparently Leopold continues his bitter enmity against his daughter and reconciliation even on her deathbed is impossible. Leopold's indifference to his daughter's condition is sharply contrasted by the daily inquiries from the Emperor of Austria.

HOW MARE FANNY FOOLED THE VET

And Old Horse Condemned to Death Discovered Her Way Home.

New York, Oct. 1.—A. Edgar Bushe, of Oak Cob, owns a mare that has sense enough to know that there's a heap more fun in being a 'live horse' than a dead one. The mare's name is Fanny and she has been a member of the Bushe family for sixteen years.

Three months ago Mr. Bushe sent her for a vacation to a horse summer resort near North Greenwich, Conn., a little less than nine miles from the Bushe place. There she became as frisky as a 2-year-old, and one day near the end of September she forgot her age as to jump over the meadow fence.

Something usually happens to old horses, as to old persons, when they get too gay, and something happened to Fanny. She sprained a tendon in her off fore leg, and a veterinary surgeon reported that probably she would be always lame.

"If that's the case," said the owner, "go up and get her when I don't know anything about it, and take her away somewhere and chloroform her, so that she may have an easy death."

The mare, hobbling on three legs, was led away from the farm to the place selected for her demise. When she got to the veterinary's stable she was put in a stall and tied, while the doctor got ready to chloroform her.

This took some time and the old mare improved the opportunity to take in her surroundings. It didn't take her long to appreciate the fact that her halter hadn't been buckled and that the stable door had been left open.

An idea struck her, and she acted on it immediately. She worked her head out of the halter, backed out of the stall and jumped over the stable as fast as she could.

It was five and a half miles home, but the old mare, apparently without the slightest hesitation, struck the road quickly, passed through Greenwich, where she stopped long enough to take a drink at the fountain in the center of the village, and a little after midnight, walked through the gates of Mr. Bushe's place and straight up the kitchen door, where she neighed.

The cook opened the door to see what was the matter. Fanny promptly rubbed her nose against the cook's arm and continued on to the stable and to her own box stall. There the coachman found her a short time later, and the old mare showed in every way she could how delighted she was to be home.

It only remains to be told that the lame leg got well after all. When the veterinary reported the mare's disappearance Mr. Bushe said:

"Don't bother any more about it. Fanny came straight home and here she will stay as long as she lives."

THE HUDSON TUNNELED

Workmen Walk From Jersey Shore to New York.

New York, Nov. 2.—Hudson River is tunneled. From New Jersey workmen walked Friday and began digging through the rocks and sands directly under the French Lion pier at the foot of Morton street.

They are 80 feet under the water, but the bubbling caused by the air pressure as it forced itself from the watertight shield showed that the New Jersey tunnel to New York was an accomplished fact. One month more and walking will be good to New Jersey. If the tunnel could be thrown open to the public, By April next trolley cars will be humming along under the water.

MORGAN, SCHWAB DUBBED WRECKERS

Scathing Indictment of Their Stock Manipulations.

BY THE U. S. RECEIVER SMITH

Grave Charges Against the Promoters of the United States Ship Building Company.

New York, Nov. 2.—Sensational allegations of willful misstatement, falsification, swindling and fraud in the organization and flotation of the United States Shipbuilding Company, of attempts to mislead and deceive the investing public by erroneous prospectus statements, and of a deliberate plan to wreck the company by withholding the earnings of the Bethlehem Steel Company, are contained in the report of Receiver James Smith, jun., of the Shipbuilding Company, made public today. The report also contains the recommendation that suit be brought against all persons who received stock from the company without paying full value therefor, including the promoters of the consolidation, the vendors of the constituent plants and the shareholders of the United States Shipbuilding Company. To insure the payment of dividends in the Bethlehem Steel held by the United States Shipbuilding Company, the report of the receiver is characterized as an "artistic swindle."

Receiver Smith stating that the value of the plants, their earnings and their capital, given in alleged thorough reports of expert accounts, vary so much from actual figures, "as to compel the belief that the figures were misstated"; that it is extremely doubtful if such accounts' reports were submitted at the organization of the company; that the shareholders, directors and officers; that statements in the prospectus issued on June 14, 1902, were incorrect; that for property worth $12,441,516, the shipbuilding company paid in stock and bonds $6,797,000; that the accounts submitted to the United States Shipbuilding Company, in acquiring these companies, deliberately gave many million dollars in stock and bonds of their company (wholesale plunder, the receiver terms it) to a few persons, and that so far as the Bethlehem Steel Company is concerned, a deliberate attempt to wreck the United States Shipbuilding Company. The report deals fully with the name of Charles M. Schwab and the nature of the Bethlehem transaction, says Mr. Smith, is "as to justify him (Mr. Schwab) in saying that he did not sell the Bethlehem Steel Company, but took over the United States Shipbuilding Company, the $30,000,000 in stocks and bonds for taking it off their hands."

ARMENIAN PLOTTERS

Sagouni Was Third of Four Doomed to Die.

London, Nov. 2.—It is learned that a plot for the removal of four Armenian members of the House of Commons, namely, Mr. H. H. Asquith, Mr. J. H. Chamberlain, Mr. J. H. Chamberlain, and Mr. J. H. Chamberlain, was arranged at a meeting held in New York seven months ago of the Alfarist or physical force faction of the society, and revealed to the Hunchakist section through an error in sending a report of the meeting to a branch at Hullford which was not intended to be a Hunchakist. The Boston and Lausanne attempts at murder were outcomes of this plot. Sagouni was the fourth intended victim is at present in London, and taking precautions to protect himself.

A Canadian Drowned.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 2.—A body taken from the flume at the hydraulic canal has been identified as that of Frank M. Burns, of Whitby, Ont. Burns came here a month ago to work for the International Paper Company. How he was drowned is not known.

Boils were so painful could not sleep at night.

APPEARED ON NECK, LEGS AND ARMS.

Burdock Blood Bitters
CURED THEM.

It is well-known to all that bad blood is the direct cause of all skin diseases and it is necessary for the blood to be cleansed before the eruptions will disappear. For this purpose there is nothing so equal as Burdock Blood Bitters as the thousands of testimonials we have on hand will testify.

Mr. Willard Thompson, McNeill's Mills, P.E.I., writes as follows: "I wish to state to you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. Some time ago my body got out of order and many boils appeared on my neck, legs and arms. They were so painful that I could not sleep at night. After having tried many different remedies without success, I finally decided, on the advice of a friend, to use Burdock Blood Bitters. Before I had quite used two bottles the boils had completely disappeared, and I wish to emphasize the fact that I think Burdock Blood Bitters the best blood purifier on the market to-day."

BOOTH-TUCKER FUNERAL

A Monster Service Held in New York City.

New York, Nov. 1.—Funeral services over the remains of Emma Booth-Tucker, late consul of the Salvation Army in America, who was recently killed in a railway wreck, were held today in Carnegie Hall. The hall was crowded and hundreds waited outside until after the ceremonies, when they were allowed to view the remains. The services, which were conducted by Col. J. Higgins, chief secretary of the Salvation Army in America, were most impressive, and consisted of a musical programme made up of the favorite hymns of the deceased, and of eulogies of her life. Commander Booth-Tucker knelt sobbing at the bier during part of the ceremony. Gen. Ballington Booth, of the Volunteers of America, had endeavored to arrange for a family gathering and short private services before the public funeral, but upon learning that this could not be held, he left the hall, saying that he did not care to stay for the public demonstration. Herbert Booth, his brother, at the request of the family, remained to represent the family, and it was a convention of the Volunteers of America, which started out in a procession to Carnegie Hall, that was the last seen of the late Emma Booth-Tucker. The funeral procession, which was headed by the Volunteers of America, followed the casket. The commander occupied the center of the huge procession, and the funeral procession, which was headed by the Volunteers of America, followed the casket. The commander occupied the center of the huge procession, and the funeral procession, which was headed by the Volunteers of America, followed the casket.

LITERARY NOTES.

COUNTRY LIFE IN AMERICA.

The November number of this most beautiful and interesting magazine begins the third year of its publication and it has enjoyed three years of success which have proved it to be a magazine that is deservedly and truly earned. The current issue keeps up to, and in some respects surpasses, the very liberal scale on which the publishers, Doubleday, Page & Co., New York, have set out in the making of a high-class magazine for country-lovers. Like all preceding numbers it is a treasure trove to the lover of the outdoors and things in nature and art connected therewith. It is superbly illustrated. Although Country Life has gained a reputation for its high-class illustration and knowledge to its readers, even better things are promised for the future.

OUTING.

Stewart Edward White's new novel of the Northwest, "The Silent Places, or The Trail of Jinnoss," is begun in Outing for November. Among the many profusely illustrated articles in this number are Vance Thompson's "Gold Links of Paris," Mrs. Burton Kingsland's story "Driving Trip," and a story by Mrs. E. C. Pollock, "The Automobile Trip across unexplored lands of Colorado and New Mexico," and a charming practical article on "Nutting as a Pastime," by Clarence Fleming. Stories and sketches of the hunting and shooting season as a background are numerous and are plentifully illustrated. The "Niles-Township" is a story of the life of a Michigan Squirrel Shooter, and interesting stories by Arthur McFarlane and Stanley Waterloo. Edwyn Sandys' story of a hunting and upland shooting in his regular Gamefield department. Charles F. Holden tells about shooting flying fish, and a number of other articles of interest help to make the November Outing a most desirable collection of reading matter.

SCRIBNER'S.

Scribner's Magazine for November contains a notable article on the work of John S. Sargent, one of the greatest of portrait painters, with reproductions of many of the artist's drawings and portraits. A picturesque story of the great Louisiana purchase is given by Neal Brooks. Senator Lodge has an able article on "The United States Senate." "Through Bret Harte's Country," by E. C. Pollock, recalls the story of Colorado and New Mexico. The November Scribner also contains the customary budget of entertaining, sketches and stories, including an unusual love story of the Boer war, besides the regular departments of "The Field of Art" and "Point of View."

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY.

President Eliot, of Harvard University, opens the November Atlantic with an important article on "The School. Its Characteristics, What It Should Be, and Into What It Should Develop." Brooks Adams discusses "The Economic Conditions of Future Defense." William Garrott Brown treats "The Problem of the American Historian," and Burton J. Hendrick, "A Great Municipal Reform," the new movement in New York. In fiction the number contains "The Story of the Queen," the opening of a novelette by Harriet Prescott Spenser, "The Story of a Woman's Fancy," an attractive story by Alice Maude Ewell, and "The Boy Who Lived at the Bottom of a Well," by Edna Birkbeck. Sir Leslie Stephen continues his delightful recollections with a brilliant paper on Journalism—English—while many attractive short sketches and papers and reviews are given by other able writers. Poetry includes "The Hero," by Josephine Preston Peirce, "The Tenth Muse," by Evelyn Phinney, and "A Memory," by John Vance Cheney.

GREAT THINGS FROM LITTLE CAUSES GROW.—It takes very little to derange the stomach. The cause may be slight, a cold, something eaten or drunk, anxiety, worry, or some other simple cause. But if precautions be not taken, this simple cause may have most serious consequences. Many a chronically debilitated constitution today owes its destruction to simple causes not dealt with in time. Keep the digestive apparatus in healthy condition and all will be well. Farmale's Vegetable Pills are better than any other for the purpose.

QUIT CIGS OR COLLEGE

Faculty of Cornell College Issue an Ultimatum.

Iowa, Falls, Iowa, Oct. 31.—"Cut out cigarettes or leave the school," is the official mandate that has been issued by the faculty of Cornell College, which proposes to see that the order is enforced to the letter. The faculty decided that the cigarettes must go, and at the opening of the school the students were advised that they could either abstain from the habit or be dismissed. The first infraction of this rule will be followed by expulsion, and the faculty is on the lookout for the first offender.

JUST A COLD IN THE HEAD?

But if followed by another cold, or some extra exposure, is liable to result in nasal catarrh. Unless a radical cure is obtained, the throat, bronchial tubes and finally the lungs become affected. Nothing cures colds so quickly and pleasantly as Catarrhoxone. The Inspector of Mines for Nova Scotia, Mr. Neville, says: "Catarrhoxone is the best remedy I have ever used. It cured me of catarrh of the head and throat, and I am pleased to recommend such a satisfactory remedy." Catarrhoxone is a safeguard against colds, coughs and catarrh. It can be used while at work in the office, school, or street car. Simply inhale Catarrhoxone and it cures. Price, $1; small size, 50c. Druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Prof. Mommensen Dead.

Berlin, Nov. 1.—Prof. Theodore Mommensen, the historian, died at Charlottenburg at 8 this morning. He passed away without regaining consciousness. The change from life to death was observed only by his attending physician, who, with the Mommensen family, watched all night at the bedside.

FELL 1,000 FEET

Terrible Death of Two Miners at Halifax.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 2.—Jack McDonald, of Boularderie, and David MacDonald, of Harbor Bouche, were killed in Dominion No. 2 colliery, Saturday evening. They were working on a staving at the bank head, 90 feet from the surface, when a signal was given to lower the cage, into the pit, but instead the cage came up with terrible rapidity, overturning the staving. Both men were hurled to the bottom of the shaft, 1,000 feet, and crushed beyond all human semblance. Both victims were about 25 years of age and unmarried.

CHAPTER V.

Master and Dog.

No further opportunity was afforded me that night for studying the three leading characters in the remarkable drama I saw unfolding before me. A task was assigned me by the captain which took me from the house, and I missed the next scene—the arrival of the coroner. But I repaid myself for this loss in a way I thought justified by the importance of my own theory and the evident necessity there was of collecting each and every point of evidence which could give coloring to the charge, in the event of this crime coming to be looked on at headquarters as one of murder.

Observing that a light was still burning in Uncle David's den, I crossed to his door and rang the bell. I was answered by the deep and prolonged howl of a dog, soon cut short by his master's angry greeting. This latter was a surprise to me, I had heard so often of Mr. Moore's churlishness as a host that I had expected some rebuff. But I encountered no such tokens of hostility. His brow was smooth and his smile cheerfully condescending. Indeed, he appeared anxious to have me, and he did not lose that sudden assumption of dignity which I had observed in him ever since my entrance into the house. "I am overjoyed by this news," he remarked. "She has shot herself? Why?"

"I did not say that she had shot herself," I carefully repeated. "The facts point that way and Mr. Jeffrey accepts the suicide theory without question."

"Ah, Mr. Jeffrey is there!" "Most certainly, he was sent for at once."

"And Miss Tuttle? She came with her?" "She came, but not with him. She is very fond of her sister."

"I must go over at once," he cried, leaving again to his feet and looking at me with his hat and coat. "It is my duty to make them feel at home; in short, to put the house at their disposal."

Here he found his hat and coat, and on his head, account of his now, you know," he politely explained, turning with a keen light in his gray eye, full upon me and overwhelming me with the grand air of a man who comes unexpectedly into his own. "Mrs. Jeffrey's father was my younger brother—the story is an old and well-known one, and the property, which in all this was in many other ways he was a law to himself; notably so in the following instance. He kept one day of the year religiously, and in the same way before, he had been blessed with a wife who both understood and loved him. He had never before, and once a year, presumably on the anniversary of her death, it was his custom to go to the cemetery where she lay and to spend the whole day under the shadow of the stone he had raised to her memory. No matter what the weather, no matter what the condition of his own health, he was always to be seen in this spot, at the hour of seven, leaning against the shaft on which his wife's name was written, eating his supper in the company of his dog. It was a custom he had never omitted. So well known was it to the boys and certain curious individuals in the neighborhood, that he never lacked an audience, though we betide the daring foot that presumed to invade the precincts of the lot he called his, or the voice which offered to raise itself in gibe or jeer. He had but to cast a glance at Rudge and an avenging rush scattered the crowd in a twinkling. But he seldom had occasion to resort to this extreme measure for preserving the peace and quiet of his solemn watch. As a rule he was allowed to eat his meal undisturbed, and to pass out unmolested even by ridicule, though his teeth might still be busy over some fish or fowl, and his tears might be seen hanging undried upon his withered cheeks.

So much for one oddity which may stand as a sample of many others. One glance at the room into which he ushered me showed why he cherished so marked a dislike for visitors. It was bare to the point of discomfort, and had it not been for a certain quaintness in the shape of the few articles to be seen there, I should have experienced a feeling of repulsion, so pronounced was the contrast between this poverty-stricken interior and the polished bearing of its owner. He, I am sure, must have shown no more elevated manner than he was doing the honors of a palace. The organ, with the marks of home construction upon it, was the only object visible which spoke of luxury or even comfort.

But enough of these possibly uninteresting details. I did not dwell on them myself, breathing a spell on the stoop. But you have not answered my question; whom do you mean by she?" "Veronica Jeffrey," I replied. "She was Veronica Moore. She has visited this haunted house of hers for the last time."

"Last time!" Either he could not or would not understand me. "What has happened to my niece?" he cried, rising with an energy that displaced the great dog and sent him with hanging head and trailing tail, to his own special sleeping-place under the table. "Has she run upon a ghost in those dismal apartments? You interest me greatly. I did not think she would ever have the pluck to visit this house again after what happened here."

"She has had the pluck," I assured him; "and what is more, she has had enough of it not only to re-enter the house, but to enter it alone. At least, such is the present inference. Had you been blessed with more curiosity and made more frequent use of the chair so conveniently placed for viewing the opposite house, you might have been in a position to correct this inference. It would help the police materially to know positively that she had no companion in her fatal visit."

"Fatal!" he repeated, running his finger inside his neckband, which suddenly seemed to have grown too tight for comfort. "Can it be that my niece has been frightened to death in that old place? You alarm me. I am sure she was not of an impressive nature. Yet he was of the same human clay as the rest of us, and if he knew no more of this occurrence than he tried to make out, could not be altogether impervious to what I had to say next."

"You have a right to be alarmed," I asserted. "She was not frightened to death, yet is she lying dead on the library floor. Then, with a glance at the windows about me, I added light-heartedly, 'I take it that the pistol-shot delivered over there could not be heard in this room.'"

He sank rather melodramatically into his seat, yet his face and form did not lose that sudden assumption of dignity which I had observed in him ever since my entrance into the house. "I am overjoyed by this news," he remarked. "She has shot herself? Why?"

"I did not say that she had shot herself," I carefully repeated. "The facts point that way and Mr. Jeffrey accepts the suicide theory without question."

PERMANENT FORCE WON BY A SMALL MARGIN FROM SEVENTH

Sergeants of No. 1 Company Had a Lead of Two Points in the Annual Rifle Match.

The annual shoot between the sergeants of the Seventh Regiment and No. 1 Company, R. C. R., was held at the Cove ranges on Saturday afternoon. In every respect but one, the day was ideal for target work, and some fine scores were made. A slight haze hung over the ranges, and this may have interfered to a slight degree with the work of the marksmen.

The teams comprised ten men each, and they were the best that could be obtained from their respective corps. Those representing the Seventh were: Sgt.-Major Milligan, Bandmaster; Sgt. Hiscott, Bandmaster; Sgt. E. N. Hannah, Color-Sergeant; Sgt. Chapman, Sgt. N. S. Nannah, Redge, Robson and Galbraith. The team of No. 1 Company comprised Sgt.-Major Munro, Quartermaster-Sergeant, Dunley, Sgt.-Instructor Price, Hobbick and Blake-Foster, Hospital-Sergeant, Ardiel, Sgt. Farnsworth, Corp. O'Connell, Corp. Walsh and Sgt. Beales.

The work of both teams was exceptionally good, and the score was one of the closest ever shot at the ranges. The totals were: No. 1 Company, 765; Seventh Regiment, 764, a majority of two points for the men of the permanent force. The scores were:

NEARER THE CHAMPIONSHIP; Y. M. C. A. DEFEAT MEDICALS

The Association Football Season Drawing to a Close—Another Hard-Fought Game.

The game played in the city league on Saturday between the Y. M. C. A. and the Medical School was witnessed by one of the largest crowds of the season. Both teams were very closely matched and this was the cause for the attendance of about 500 people, whose cheering showed that they thoroughly appreciated the fine playing. A tie game had resulted when these two teams met a week before, and as they are both still well up in the running it is thought that these will be the two between whom the final struggle will take place.

After some discussion on the matter of appointing a referee, Wallace, the Wolsley Barracks back, was secured and the play commenced. Neither side had any great advantage and it was some time before the Y. M. C. A. succeeded in scoring. The Medicals claimed that the ball had been shot into goal from off-side, but, nevertheless, the referee awarded the goal to the Y. M. C. A. as the latter had not been in a position to object.

After the second half was started the Medicals worked vigorously and at times had the Y. M. C. A. hard. One of their shots was so close that it struck the goal wire. The Y. M. C. A. team did not score again, but the latter half was a very hard one, and if the executive closes the season at the end of the second round they will likely land the championship.

FOOTBALL. ROOTERS STOPPED PLAY. Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 31.—With two minutes to play and the score 6 to 6, in the struggle between Minnesota and Michigan was brought to a premature close this afternoon, the thousands of Gopher rooters warning the referee to stop the game.

The game might have returned a winner, though, if the stubborn manner in which the contest had been fought, and the slowness with which touchdowns had been secured. Those two minutes, however, it was impossible to play, and one of the contests that has aided in deciding a western champion closed with the situation, as far as Minnesota and Michigan are concerned, the same as before the game.

SATURDAY'S RUGBY SCORES. Toronto, Nov. 2.—Varsity scored a rather easy victory on Saturday over Queen's, the big crowd present attesting to the popularity of the old style of Rugby. The Tigers beat Toronto by 10 to 0. The two Ottawa teams won their Quebec Union games. All the scores:

ENTERTAINED AT A BANQUET. In the evening the sergeants of No. 1 Company returned the kindness shown by the Seventh sergeants a year ago by entertaining the latter at a banquet in the sergeants' mess at the barracks. The table was very tastefully arranged, covers being set for 40, and among the decorations were the trophy won by the school in the Canadian Military Rifle League, and also the Carling Cup.

The officers of both the Seventh and the permanent corps were invited, but many of them were unable to attend, owing to previous engagements. Those present were: Lieut. Eton, Capt. McCrimmon and Lieut. Eton and Quartermaster-Sergeant Irvine, formerly of the London Field Force, were among those in attendance.

A lengthy toast list followed the tempting supper, the guests and a number of the permanent force were present. The evening was a fitting close to a successful shoot.

A lengthy toast list followed the tempting supper, the guests and a number of the permanent force were present. The evening was a fitting close to a successful shoot.

esting stage, and even at this early date, with the championship season some months away, there is an abundance of discussion concerning the personnel of the different teams. According to the present outlook there will be five senior teams in Toronto this winter, viz: Varsity, Wellingtons, St. Georges, Marlborough, Argonauts.

NOVEL PLAY IN FOOTBALL GAME. Carlisle Indian Hides Pigskin Under Jersey and Runs Full Field for Touchdown.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 2.—In an intensely exciting and decidedly sensational football game, Harvard defeated the Carlisle Indians Saturday, 12 to 11. The closeness of the score was made possible by one of the most unique tricks tried on a football field for many years. Dillon, at the start of the second half, received the Harvard kick-off on his five-yard line and then, hiding the ball under his jersey behind his back, ran the length of the field empty-handed for a touchdown. There is apparently no rule covering this trick, so the play stood, and the score was 11 to 0 in favor of the Indians, as they had already scored a goal from the field in the first half.

The run of Dillon was the feature of the game, and will undoubtedly give rise to a vast deal of discussion. The instant he caught the ball the entire Carlisle team clustered about him, so that no one could see what was being done. The Harvard team threw themselves on the massed Indians just as the latter had begun to move down the field well bunched. While the Carlisle players were searching for the ball Dillon came out of the crowd and ran the length of the field, and 30 or 40 yards before any one realized that he had the ball.
